The Fairyland Theatre, Notre Dame street, Montreal, Que., was visited by fire on Friday evening, January 24, when the house was filled with people. The fire started in the basement and smoke was seen curling up through the floor. The large crowd quietly and quickly vacated the premises and the flames were extinguished after several hundred dollars' damage had been done. Performances were not resumed until the following day.

Berman and Baker on Tour.

Harry M. Berman, new general manager of Universal exchanges, and Tarkington Baker, general director of publicity, left New York January 25 for a business trip through the Central States.

Pittsburgh was the first point visited by Mr. Berman and Mr. Baker, and a special showing of the first five Stage Women's Green Room series pictures, to be distributed by Universal, was staged for the benefit of editors and film men. From Pittsburgh the Universalites proceeded to Chicago, where the Stage Women's films were presented, with special music, before a large gathering of editors, critics, exhibitors, theatrical folk and exchange men, Monday evening, January 26.

Reports from Chicago are to the effect that the Stage Women's Green Room pictures were received enthusiastically and that critics predict big success for them. The Belasco film, in particular, they asserted to be a motion picture triumph due to the numerous offers from producers Mr. Belasco has previously refused to accept.

REGENT TAKES BEAVER FALLS' GRAND

Richard A. Rowland of the Metro Company Is President of Organization Acquiring House

By Elmer H. Mayer, 231 Collins Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE Regent Amusement Company, of Beaver Falls, Pa., owners of the Regent Theatre there, took over the Grand Theatre in the same town February 1. This company is composed of R. A. Rowland, president of Metro, president; P. R. Jones, vice-president and general manager; Frank G. McPherson, burgess of Beaver Falls, secretary and treasurer. The Grand will be completely overhauled and renovated by the new management. Chester Bishop will be house manager.

Mr. Jones is also manager and part owner of the Rowland and Colonial theatres at Wilkinsburg, his partner being R. A. Rowland in these enterprises. Jones now has a string of four houses to book for, which will keep him quite busy.

Iris, of Vandergrift, Opens.

The Iris Theatre, Vandergrift, Pa., is practically completed and the formal opening took place Friday, January the 24th. The attraction was Anita Stewart in "Virtuous Wives." Ed Morton, of the Hollis, Smith, Morton Company, installed Simplex machines and an original Minusa Gold Fibre Screen. The size of the latter is 13x17-4. Seltzer's men also installed a Smith-Seebury organ. The house has a capacity of 750 and is up to date in every respect. The owner is J. A. Wiseman, who is at present in France with the American Army, the business of completing and opening the theatre having been performed by C. H. Cooper.

Business and Personal Notes.

W. D. Williams, formerly road man for the Supreme Exchange, opened a new house at Wallace, West Va., Wednesday, January the 22d. The theatre is called the Empire and has a seating capacity of 400. It is a pretty and up-to-date house.

Ed Goodman is erecting a large new house in Midland which he expects to open about the 17th of February. He recently purchased two Power's 6-B Cameragraphs and a Hallberg Motor Generator.

The Standard Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, recently closed a deal whereby they secure "The Spoilers," the big Selig picture, for exclusive distribution in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Mr. Weiland also announces the acquisition of all the W. H. Production Company's single-reel Mack Sennett comedies and the Thomas H. Ince series of two-reel Westerns.

Recently fire broke in Grand Opera House, Sharon, Pa. Although the entire stage was ruined the damage was mostly caused by smoke and water. The theatre, which runs both pictures and stage shows, is now being repaired and will again be open for business in a few weeks.

Workmen are busy at the Pittsburgh General office putting in new film vaults and separating the inspection room from the rest of the exchange by heavy concrete walls which are absolutely fireproof. The exchange is also being rewired, and when these jobs are completed the General will be one of the safest exchanges in Pittsburgh.

The Supreme Photoplay Productions, Pittsburgh, Harry F. Grelle, manager, has purchased "Mickey" for Ohio, and this firm now controls the picture in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and the Buckeye state. First-run bookings have already been taken by Loew's Stillman Theatre in Cleveland and the Temple at Toledo.

Exhibitors will remember the conflicting orders issued by the state health authorities and Mayor Babcock, of Pittsburgh, resulting in the opening of many houses in Pittsburgh in defiance of the orders of the state authorities, during the "flu" epidemic. The latter entered suit against 24 exhibitors, which suits have just recently been settled out of court. Sixteen of the exhibitors have paid the attorney's fees and the alderman's cases, but there are still eight of the number sued who have failed to make good their share of the costs.

Manager C. C. McKibbin, of the Pittsburgh Goldwyn office, reports that business is fine.

Manager Carlos E. Moore, of the Pittsburgh Hodkinson Exchange, points with pardonable pride to the fact that the Lyric, Fifth avenue, broke all house records with "The Drifters," featuring Jack Warren Kerrigan on a two-day run recently.

Fred G. Sliter, formerly manager of the New York Mutual office, and now special sales representative, arrived in Pittsburgh last Monday, to assist in canvassing the territory.

William W. Lewis, special representative for the Nicholas Power Company, was in Pittsburgh recently calling on the trade. Mr. Lewis recently left St. Louis and stopped here en route to the home office, which he had not visited for the past two years.

Sam Wheeler, well known in Pittsburgh film circles, has been transferred from Camp Lee to Camp Beauregard, La. He has been promoted to corporal.

William Cox, of the Brockway Theatre, Brockwayville, Pa., is out again after a seige of the "flu."

D. H. Mitchell, formerly with the Fox Film Corporation in Chicago, has joined the United Picture Theatres of America branch in Pittsburgh in the capacity of salesman.

Spear Marrosis, manager of the Dome Theatre, New Castle, is back on the job again, having been honorably discharged from the army.

Mr. Nichols, manager of the Kleine office in Pittsburgh for some time, has resigned that position and is now city salesman for the Pittsburgh Fox Exchange. Mr. Burhorn, manager of the General, through which Kleine releases, will look after the Kleine interests in the future.

Henry Holm, assistant auditor of the home office of the Mutual, New York, was in Pittsburgh a few days last week and straightened out the books to January 18. He stated that he found these in very good condition considering the excitement everyone had gone through since the fire.

Will Fight Fifteen Separate Villains.

It is evident that the Pathe scenario writers have a hearty regard for Pearl White's prowess as an annihilator of villains, for in her new Pathe serial "In Secret" she will have to contend with a different villain in each of the fifteen episodes. In the new Robert W. Chambers serial the story has been so constructed that unlike the ordinary serial, one villain cannot harass the star throughout the entire thirty reels. In each episode Miss White will dispose of a villain so that George B. Seitz, the director, has been confronted with the task of finding fifteen screen villains for his serial.

Walter McGrail, who will be remembered for his work in the O. Henry screen stories, will play opposite Miss White in "In Secret." Mr. Seitz will start work at once on certain scenes of the serial in which Miss White does not take part, and the star herself will be back February 3 ready for work. "In Secret" will be made at the Pathe Studio at 134th street and Park avenue, Mr. Seitz having decided to change from the Jersey City Studio in which he has made the last two or three Pearl White serials. Bertram Millhauser has finished the scripts for the first three episodes.

Minneapolis News Letter

By William Edward Mulligan, Minneapolis Journal, Minneapolis, Minn.

"Careless America" at Forty Houses.

AS A LESSON in the prevention of accidents, Universal's "Careless America," an educational film showing the tragedies from reckless automobile driving, was exhibited simultaneously at forty Minneapolis moving picture theatres, beginning Monday, January 20.

The picture, now showing in Minneapolis under the auspices of the police department, is being exhibited all over the United States in an effort to minimize careless driving and to teach observance of road rules.

Indorsement of the one-reel film was made by Mayor J. E. Meyers, who spoke on the need for more careful driving.

Cubberley Heads P. A. Exchange.

J. F. Cubberley has been appointed manager of the Minneapolis Paramount-Artcraft Exchange, succeeding C. L. Peavey, who has been called to the Chicago office. Mr. Cubberley's appointment becomes effective February 1. He is one of the oldest film men in this territory in point of service, having been on the job in Minneapolis since 1910.

Capital Films' New Exchange.

Isadore Schlank, special representative of the Capital Film Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., was in Minneapolis recently and made arrangements for the launching of a local Capital exchange. He leased offices at 421-324 Loeb Arcade and appointed A. A. Hixon as branch manager. Mr. Hixon was connected with Metro for several years and a year ago joined the forces of the William Fox Company. The new exchange will start releasing about February 3. Mr. Schlank has also appointed E. H. Hoyt, of Minneapolis, to take the management of the St. Louis (Mo.) branch.

St. Paul Exhibitor Joins T. P. L.

With the acceptance of the application for membership of H. J. Breilin, proprietor of the Faust, Verdi and Victoria theatres of St. Paul, the issue of whether the new Theatrical Protective League should restrict its affairs to only Minneapolis activities ended. Another new member added to the roster of the T. P. L. is James Fremow, of the University Theatre, Minneapolis. The League held a house-warming recently at the club rooms on the third floor of the Kasota block. The affair was pronounced a great success.

George Guise Joins Universal.

James V. Bryson, manager of the Minneapolis Universal Exchange, has secured the services of George Guise, of the Minneapolis Tribune, to take charge of the publicity department of the Minneapolis branch. Mr. Guise succeeds John Le Roy Johnston, who was called to Universal's home office in New York.

Trade News Brevities.

S. A. Shirley, division manager of the Middle West for Metro Pictures Corporation, spent several days in Minneapolis recently in conference with Manager Fisher of the local exchange.

Baby Marie Osborne, appearing in Pathe productions, made a personal appearance at the Minneapolis New Lyric Theatre recently.

Reports that W. W. Kofeldt and Louis Samuelson, former manager and booker respectively of the Minneapolis Pathe Exchange, were lost when the steamer Damaru burned in the mid-Pacific have been disproved. Mr. Kofeldt, according to latest information, was not on the boat, and Mr. Samuelson was among fourteen survivors, at first believed lost, who arrived near Manila a few days ago.

Moving pictures accessories may be quickly disposed of through announcements in The World's Classified advertising.

NEWARK NOW HAS SYNDICATE OWNERSHIP

Seven Local and Suburban Theatres Combine Under the Management of Charles L. Robinson

By Jacob J. Kalter, 112 Morton Street, Newark, N. J.

SYNDICATE ownership of motion picture theatres is now a reality in Newark. A deal has been consummated whereby seven of the local and suburban show houses are brought under the direct management of Charles Lester Robinson, owner of the Strand Theatre, 118 Market street, Newark. The circuit will include the Strand, Forest Hill, 675 Mount Prospect avenue; the Elliott, 244 Washington avenue; the Bandbox, 990 South Orange avenue; all in Newark; the Halstead, East Orange; the Goodwin, Nutley, and after June 10, the Goodwin, 863 Broad street, Newark.

Mr. Robinson will be the direct manager of the consolidation, and will have as the supervising manager, Charles Wuerz, present manager of the Strand. Mrs. L. H. Webbe, formerly managing director of the Goodwin, here, and more recently of the Elliot and Forest Hill, will also be actively connected in a managerial capacity.

Passaic Has Sunday Shows.

Passaic, N. J., has for the past three weeks seen moving picture shows on Sunday, notwithstanding protests of the Passaic Pastors' Association. Shows were given as usual last Sunday, without the least semblence of disorder.

There was a local ordinance against Sunday shows, but last week at a meeting of the city commissioners, the ordinance was revoked. The ministerial representatives brought up the old blue law, "the Crimes and Immorality Act," but were not successful in influencing the commissioners' decision.

Private Showing at Newark.

A private showing of James Keane's production, "The Spreading Evil," was given at the Newark Theatre, 195 Market street, Newark. The spectators included newspaper men, police officials, and members of the local board of censorship.

Fox to Open Paterson House.

William Fox has taken over the Empire Theatre, 152-156 Ellison street, Paterson, long used as a burlesque house, and after making alterations will open it as a link in his chain of picture houses. The alterations, which are of an interior nature, will cost $16,000. The architect is H. B. Crosby, and the property is owned by the Northern New Jersey Realty Company. Charles Levine, of 12 West 46th street, New York City, is the lessee. The theatre is rapidly nearing completion, and when finished will be one of Fox's prettiest houses.

New Film Corporation Is Organized.

A new corporation, known as the Plymouth Film Corporation, has been organized with registered offices at 784 Broad street, Newark. The authorized capital is placed at $30,000. The incorporators include George F. Brandenburgh, of Irvington, Harvey Macauley, of Bloomfield, and Wendell G. Shields, of South Orange.

The Globe of Atlantic City Enlarged.

Contracts have been awarded to P. M. Sax, 1418 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, for the alterations and enlargement of the Globe Theatre, Atlantic City. The building is a two-story structure, owned by Seltzer Brothers. The estimated cost of the improvement is placed at $10,000.

Asbury Park Firm Incorporates.

The Allied Amusement Company, with registered offices at 208 Main street, Asbury Park, has been incorporated with an authorized capitalization of $30,000. Papers were filed January 22 with the Secretary of State at Trenton. Milan Ross is the statutory agent, and the concern is empowered to conduct amusement places. The incorporators include Eugene A. Ameli, Asa A. Taft and Milan Ross.

T. M. A. Holds Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Newark Lodge, No. 28, Theatrical Mechanical Association, was held January 26 at Musicians' Temple. The officers of New York Lodge, No. 1, conducted the installation proceedings. Visiting delegates were present from nearby lodges.

Paramount Observes Anniversary.

The week of January 27 was anniversary week at the Paramount Theatre, Broad and Hill streets, when William B. Putnam and George W. Jacobs celebrated the third year of their taking control of the house. Clune's "The Eyes of the World" was the feature.

Seattle News Letter

By S. J. Anderson, 807 Leary Building, Seattle, Wash.

Walkout Increases Attendance.

THE immediate effect on motion picture business of the walkout of 25,000 shipyard workers from the yards of Seattle on January 21 has been very pronounced. Both afternoon and evening attendance has been greatly increased in the big downtown houses and among the smaller theatres in the lower downtown section. The houses in the residential districts have also profited greatly by the idleness of so many of their patrons.

Motion pictures were taken of the walkout by Will Hudson, Pathe cameraman, and by Jacobs, the photographer for the Star-Liberty News, a local news reel shown each week at the Liberty Theatre.

News Notes of the Trade.

W. W. Armstrong has bought the British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba rights of "The Fall of the Barbary Coast."

Gilbert Heyfron, formerly manager of the Missoula Amusement Company, has bought an interest in the Colonial Theatre, Seattle, and will have a deciding voice in its management.

H. O. Alden, former owner of the Empress Theatre in Ballard, has bought the Queen Anne Theatre this week. This was the first residential theatre opened in Seattle, having been built by John Hamrick, who now owns the Rex and the Gem, both downtown houses.

Joe Lucas, manager of the Liberty and the Grand theatres in Centralia, Washington, is spending the week in Seattle. He recently gave a box party at the Orpheum Theatre for a number of film men and their wives.

Miss Joe Donnelly wires from Butte, Montana, that "The Fall of the Barbary Coast" has broken all records in the history of the Orpheum Theatre, that the house was sold out at 7:15 the opening night, and a line two blocks long, three abreast, were waiting to get in the second show. The picture was held over three days longer than it was booked for. It also broke house records at the Ansonia, Great Falls, and the Margaret Theatre, Anaconda. Miss Donnelly is playing the picture on percentage through the state.

Charlie Thall, who has been managing the De Luxe Feature Film Company for Mike Rosenberg for the past few months since selling out his interest in the Victory Theatre, Camp Lewis, is leaving this week for San Francisco. He says he's going to work for Charlie Thall after this, but he doesn't say how he's going to begin.

L. A. Todd, formerly manager of the Parex Film Company's office in Seattle, is now looking after the interests of the Foursquare Pictures in this territory.

Producers' and Distributors' News

The Drews Welcome All Exhibitors' Suggestions

MRS. SIDNEY DREW, who is now at work on the fourth two-reel comedy, which is scheduled for April release on the Paramount program, receives possibly a larger mail from exhibitors than any other star producing two-reel attractions. And all of this correspondence is carefully read and all the suggestions contained in them are collected and itemized and continuous reference made to them in the course of completing their productions.

"It is strange," commented Mrs. Drew, "what a variety of opinions I receive, and the encouraging part of this correspondence is that all of these comments coming from exhibitors are constructive and not destructive and range from suggestions as to interior sets to even the insertion of business on the part of Mr. Drew and myself.

"And this correspondence proves that exhibitors have a keen sense of the psychological value of screen comedy. They confirm my opinion that the commonly accepted theory that 'A comic story presented on the screen does not amuse as successfully as a comic story presented on the stage,' a theory expounded by some authorities, is an error. The audience does laugh as heartily at screen comedy as it does at stage comedy, and possibly more so. This is because of the fact that in screen comedy the brain receives its comic message through the medium of but one sense and that is the eye, whereas in stage work the audience is compelled to exercise both eye and ear which does not permit of that concentration of sense that an employment of but the eye alone allows.

"And I want publicly to acknowledge that it is largely because of exhibitors' suggestions that Mr. Drew and myself have been able to make what others are gracious to call 'popular comedies'."

Weekly Issues for Lloyd Comedies.

"The constantly increasing popularity of the Lloyd Comedies, and the universal satisfaction they give has induced us to double the number of releases annually of these comedies," says Paul Brunet. "Exhibitors have been asking for more of these comedies and we have just perfected arrangements with the producer by which we can promise one of these laugh producers each week, starting March 9. Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels and "Snub" Pollard will continue as the featured principals supported by their same company."

Joseph L. Plunkett, manager of the Strand, New York, is one of the boosters for Harold Lloyd comedies which the Strand runs regularly. Pathe furnished practically the entire short subject portion of the Strand's program week of January 19 as an addition to the Harold Lloyd. This house also is using the Pathe Review featuring Analysis of Motion.

Would you find a new and better position? Try an advertisement in The World's Classified, the quick road to results.

Elsie Ferguson
Artcraft Film Star.

Public Showing Interest in the "U. S. A. Series"

WIDE INTEREST is being manifested in the series of two-reelers made by the United States Government to illustrate the activities of a number of specialized branches of war service. The four pictures of the "U. S. A. Series," which take the public behind the scenes and give them many secrets of methods that helped America toward victory, are all now released and have been widely booked. These thrilling two-reelers visualize in interesting detail many phases of the modern art of war and give to the American people a complete knowledge of many things that they want to know. The Government made the pictures to fulfil public demand, and it is reported from the Division of Films that the public is showing unusual interest in the series.

The first picture of the series, released December 23, is entitled "If Your Soldier's Hit," showing intimate details of the rescue of wounded soldiers from the battlefield and the American hospital facilities. The second picture, "Wings of Victory," released January 6, gives the full and complete story of America's program of the air, the manufacture of planes and motors and the training and fighting activities of the aviators. The third picture, "Horses of War," released January 20, visualizes the part played in the war by the horse, showing that his services are yet indispensable in spite of the extensive use of motor-driven vehicles. "Making a Nation Fit," released February 3, is the last picture of the series, and shows how American soldiers and sailors were prepared, physically, for the hardships of war.

Advance Release Date of Harold Lockwood Picture

REQUESTS for the latest Screen Classics special starring Harold Lockwood, "The Great Romance," have influenced Metro to set forward the release date of this spectacular and vivid photoplay of college life and foreign intrigue. It has been the intention of the company to revise carefully the finished print in order that there be not the slightest chance of its falling in any technical detail below the Screen Classics standard.

This revision has taken place, though there were, when the film was completed, but few minor changes to be made. Inasmuch as exhibitors throughout the entire country have been urging that the big Lockwood special be sent out at the earliest possible opportunity, Richard A. Rowland, president of Metro, decided that the producing staff had better work overtime to satisfy the demand, and this it did, with the result that the big picture is now ready for immediate showings.

In addition to the popularity of the star of "The Great Romance" and the fact that in this play he does perhaps the best work of his brilliant career, and to the intrinsic merit of the story and its skilful handling, the settings for the piece are of especial interest.

The cast for this piece is of the typical high order found in Screen Classics productions. Ruby de Remer plays the part of Althea. In the principal parts are Joseph Granby, Frank Currier, Helen Lindroth, Franklyn Hanna and Clara Grenville. The picture has been most capably directed by Henry Otto. Edwin Carewe was the managing director of the picture.

Ten Subjects in Hearst News.

Ten subjects comprise the fifth issue of the Hearst News, just released. The release shows the review, by city and Government officials at San Francisco, of French soldiers en route to Siberia; the great strength of "TNT" as demonstrated by Government mining engineers at Pittsburgh; the sailing of the U. S. S. Pensacola, bent on bringing relief to the stricken peoples of Asia Minor; the arrival of various fighting units at Atlantic ports; winter sports indulged in by eastern society folks, and scenes showing how the Salvation Army is continuing its work for the soldiers, even after the return home, and the first views of President Wilson's return to Paris from Italy and England to take an active part in the debating at the peace table.

Mortimer Aiding Baltimore Exhibitors.

In keeping with its policy of assisting exhibitors in every manner possible, Universal has sent G. Horace Mortimer to Baltimore, Washington and Cleveland, to assist exhibitors in launching their publicity and advertising campaigns on "The Heart of Humanity," the Jewel superdrama. Mr. Mortimer has the honor of being the first publicity representative to be sent in advance of a film booked into a theatre as a regular attraction.

Mr. Mortimer conducted the publicity campaign on "The Heart of Humanity" during that film's long run at the Broadway Theatre, New York.

Bessie Barriscale in "A Trick of Fate" (Exhibitors' Mutual).

Pathe's "Common Clay" Adapted from Prize Play

PAUL BRUNET, Pathe's vice-president and general manager, announces that an intensive campaign will be made for "Common Clay," A. H. Woods' screen presentation, in seven acts, of Cleves Kinkead's play of the same name, starring Fannie Ward. It was directed by George Fitzmaurice, from the scenario of Ouida Bergere and produced by the Astra Film Corporation; and all persons concerned are sure that this Harvard prize play, which ran in New York for a full year, will prove a successful screen attraction.

Six companies made the play known thoroughout the United States and Canada: it played to crowded houses for five months in Chicago; in Boston eighteen weeks; in Philadelphia a month. Every city of 10,000 population and upward has seen the plan and the Dominion of Canada was just as fully covered. This period of popularity lasted three years and twice "Common Clay" has made a journey from the Atlantitc to the Pacific. In selecting it for an unusual screen feature A. H. Woods was moved by the conviction that, with the wider scope of the camera, he had here an attraction that would even surpass the drawing power of the play itself.

"Its picture and its show value were demonstrated during the recent Save and Serve convention of Pathe Exchange when the heads of each of the thirty branches sat at a showing of 'Common Clay.' This gathering included some of the shrewdest showmen in America who have proved themselves unerring on picture values," says Mr. Brunet.

"They watched it with the keenest interest and at the termination of the show were enthusiastic in the praise of the picture and the players. As an entertainment and a selling proposition, these heads of the exchanges were emphatic and declaring that here was a popular feature. There were some slight criticisms, constructive suggestions, which were adopted; and, in conformity the story has been closely edited and titled."

"With splendid appreciation back of it," continued Mr. Brunet, "the story as translated into pictures is certain of a new and increased approval, carrying a new appeal to the old friends and gathering in hosts of the new. Since the advent of the war, which has brought about changes in economic and social conditions of women, the vital problem with which 'Common Clay' deals has been broadly and frankly discussed.

"And the most beneficial results must come from it. The play is one of the greatest of American plays, and the picture one of the very big features of its kind because both of them deal with actualities that come home intimately to every one of us. The study and preparation given to the picture deserve a special mention for both the star and the director and the cast that contributed."

The cast, specially selected, includes Easter Walters, Mary Alden, Helen Dunbar, W. E. Lawrence, Fred Goodwins, Andrew Arbuckle and John Barrows.

Compose Song for "Humanity" Film.

So impresed were two of Uncle Sam's fighters by "The Heart of Humanity," which ends a six weeks' run at the Broadway Theatre, February 1, that they collaborated in a ballad, now being published by Waterson, Berlin & Snyder and entitled "Heart of Humanity."

Supt. Ray Perkins and Seaman Roy Turk are the composers of the new ballad, the former writing the music and the latter the lyrics. The song was introduced at the Broadway Theatre the last week of the film's showing, with special stage effects by a trio composed of Fred Rudler, Ted Stein and Frank Phillips.

The song is of such quality that its publishers believe it will become one of the big successes of the season.

To get "local color" for his presentation of "The Girl Question," Kenneth Webb was lately guest of honor at a girl's boarding school for several days.

And what a tangled Webb he weaved in promising 'em all engagements as soon as (or before) they graduated!

"Union Operator Wanted in Middle West." Similar advertisements appear very frequently in The World's Classified advertising. Help and Situations Wanted are features of this useful service.

Alma Rubens Is Featured in Triangle's "Restless Souls"

"RESTLESS SOULS," the photoplay production of a story by Cosmo Hamilton, is announced as the Triangle release for the week of February 2. The plot tells of two women, friends since girlhood, now married, but each unhappy and unsatisfied in their totally different environments.

Alma Rubens is the featured player, and it is said that she is admirably cast in a part which enhances her individual talents as an emotional actress, that of a poor wife who longs for the material things of life besides the love of her husband.

Miss Rubens' supporting cast contains many names familiar to Triangle audiences, such as J. Barney Sherry in the role of a very human and broad-minded minister, Harvey Clarke, Eugene Burr and Jack Conway. Mr. Conway, by the way, was formerly Miss Rubens' director. As her leading man in this production his interpretation of the husband who strives to amass a fortune to provide luxuries for his wife is said to be both sympathetic and realistic.

"Restless Souls" is heralded as an unusual production from a spectacular standpoint. Much of the action takes place in the environment of the idle rich.

William C. Dowlan directed the production. Steve Norton was the cameraman.

Warner to Work at Hampton Studio.

All of the pictures to be made by H. B. Warner under his recent contract with Jesse D. Hampton will be produced at the Hampton studios in Los Angeles, not in the Brunton studios, as was previously announced. Mr. Hampton produces all his pictures in his own studios, where he filmed Grace Darmond and an all-star cast in the six-reel special, "What Every Woman Wants," which, like the Warner plays, will be released by the Exhibitors' Mutual. William Desmond, another Hampton star, works under Mr. Hampton in the Los Angeles studio.

In a wire from California, Mr. Hampton informs the local offices of Exhibitors' Mutual that great preparations are being made to receive Mr. Warner, who will leave New York shortly for the west coast.

"Made In America" Shows Achievements of Country

IT is generally agreed that one of the greatest achievements of this nation during the world war was the transformation of the peaceful populace into a trained army. The German military authorities sneered at the idea and many of our own people as well as the Allies were skeptical.

Yet in a little over a year after the United States entered the war she had four million men under arms, more than two million in Europe and the rest in the great training camps in this country.

How great the effect upon the resistance of the Central Powers this wonderful achievement may have had can only be surmised, but that their military power began to crumble, as America's armies began to pour into France, is now history.

For the first time, the story of the making of the armies of liberty has been pictorialized in its completeness. "Made in America" in eight one-reel episodes, follows the career of the American soldier from the time of the first draft until he returned to his native heath, crowned with the laurels of victory.

The scenario of "Made in America" was furnished by the Division of Films, of the Committee on Public Information, and it will be preserved in the Government archives at Washington with the official records of America's part in the great war.

It is published and distributed by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation through Pathe Exchange, Inc., and will be released Sunday, February 16.

Independent and Apollo Consummate Foreign Deal

ONE of the big transactions in the history of films for foreign fields was consummated this week between Frank Hall, president of the Independent Sales Corporation, and the Apollo Trading Corporation, of which company Lawrence Weber is president and Robert North, treasurer, recently incorporated for the purpose of distributing special productions throughout all foreign countries.

"The importance and magnitude of this deal," said Frank Hall, "can only be measured when you stop to consider what it means to have the foreign distribution of the big productions in which the world rights are invested with the Independent Sales Corporation.

"The first two of these extra attractions to be immediately distributed throughout the world by the Apollo Company excepting the United States and Canada will be J. Stuart Blackton's master production, 'Life's Greatest Problem,' starring Mitchell Lewis, and Frank Reicher's mystery drama, 'Suspense,' in which Mollie King is featured.

"The formulated plans of the Apollo Trading Corporation will be put into immediate operation. Captain Benjamin Hicks, one of the widely known film men in foreign markets, sailed Saturday, January 25, for London, where he will establish the English headquarters of the concern. Other units of the company will be opened in rapid order in every important foreign center, thus insuring the widest possible distribution of the Independent's numerous specials covered by this arrangement.

"With the war over, all eyes are now on the foreign markets, Europe especially, and it is very gratifying to the Independent Sales Corporation and to the big foreign buyers to know that the big specials of my company will be handled in the foreign field by such capable men as Lawrence Weber, Robert North and Captain Hicks."

Conceal Plot of Griffith Story.

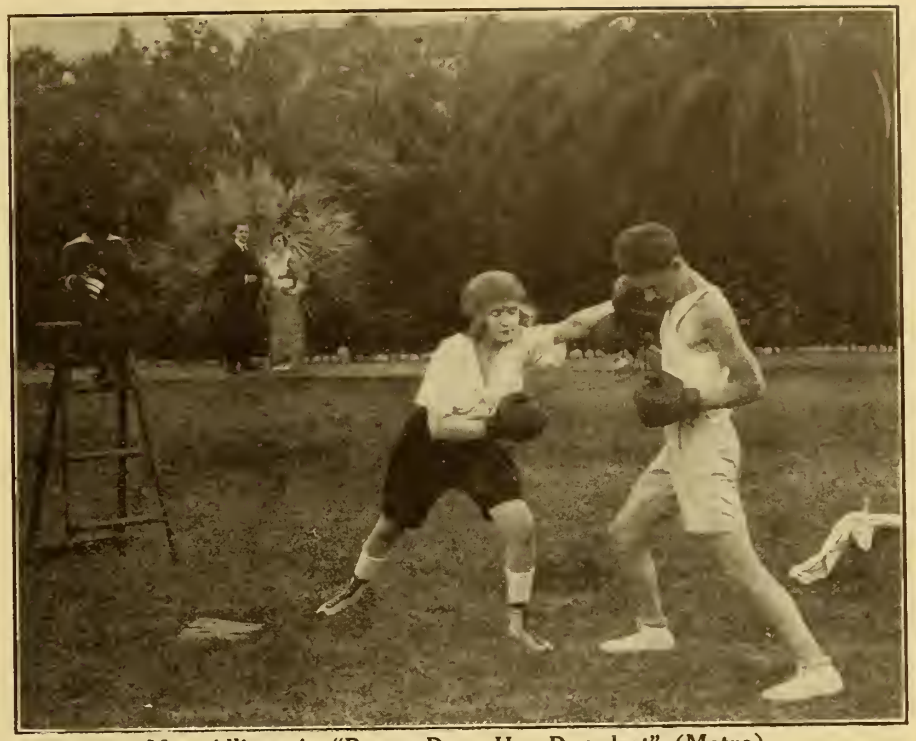
Mystery surrounds the plot of D. W. Griffith's next Artcraft picture, "A Romance of Happy Valley." Neither at the Griffith studios in California nor at the Famous Players-Lasky headquarters in New York is a synopsis of the story available, and for the first time in several years a press book on a release distributed by this company has been issued without a tabloid of the story of the picture. The press books on the new Griffith production are now finished without the usual synopsis, which, the company announces, will be inserted in the books on the release date of the film and not before.

In explanation of the above, it is stated at the home office that the nature of the plot and its climax in the new Griffith film is so extraordinary that Mr. Zukor has issued instructions to the entire organization asking that this particular information be withheld from the trade until the last moment.

"Johnny on the Spot" Is Finished.

Hale Hamilton has finished work in "Johnny on the Spot," his second starring vehicle under the Metro banner, at the Metro studios in Hollywood. It is just the same sort of rapid comedy as was the George Randolph Chester story; its theme, however, is different. For Johnny on the spot isn't Johnny on the spot until he learns that it pays to grab opportunity and speed right on.

Rich in funny situations is "Johnny on the Spot," adapted by June Mathis from the original story by Shannon Fife. It was directed by Harry L. Franklin. Louise Lovely is Hamilton's leading woman, and others in the cast are Lilie Leslie, Ruth Orlamond, Hardee Kirkland and Philo McCullough.



May Allison in "Peggy Does Her Darndest" (Metro).

Independent's Sales Chief Reports Many Contracts

FRANK HALL, president of the Independent Sales Corporation, is elated over the results obtained by salesmen in various sections of the country with the 10-20-30 series, says General Sales Manager L. S. Card of that corporation.

"Since the announcement of our first release, Evelyn Nesbit in 'Her Mistake,' on this fixed-price plan," continued Mr. Card, "exhibitors began to get their contracts in, but since the release of our second picture, J. Stuart Blackton's 'Life's Greatest Problem,' in which Mitchell Lewis is starred, our branches throughout the country have gone ahead of all expectations in the matter of securing contracts, the largest percentage of them coming from first-run houses.

"And it is quite natural, too, that this should be the case, for when you stop to consider what our 10-20-30 really stands for you can well understand why there should be an eagerness on the part of exhibitors to cover themselves with our contract.

"In the first place the bugbear of the business, that of juggling prices, is removed entirely by our plan—the prices being fixed—the exhibitor cannot pay more than $10-$20-$30 a day for any of this series of big specials; and in the second place the caliber of these specials ranks with that of the best productions.

"In launching this $10-$20-$30 fixed-price plan for super features Mr. Hall worked on the idea that an equitable contract and a fair price, a price that would enable the exhibitor to realize a profit, would induce a volume of business giving double the number of playing days for the pictures sold under this plan, which would more than offset the difference between the uncertain elastic prices and the extremely reasonable fixed prices of the Independent.

"That Mr. Hall's idea has proved practical and profitable beyond a doubt is evidenced by the hundreds of contracts already obtained.

"And as each succeeding picture of this series is released, the next one being Bacon-Backer's 'A Woman's Experience,' starring Mary Boland, which had a pre-release showing at the Rialto, New York, it is safe to predict many more exhibitors will fortify themselves against the unstable and uncertain conditions in the film field today with one of our good, sound and dependable 10-20-30 contracts."

Musicians secure employment and managers are provided with competent orchestras or piano players through The World's Classified Advertising Department.

Screen-Telegram Shows Wilson Reception.

The people of England and the people of France are rivals in their endeavors to see which nation can accord President Wilson the highest honor, a fact which is splendidly emphasized in the latest series of pictures from "over there," appearing in the Screen-Telegram, No. 4, issued by the International Film Service and released by Universal, for in these views he spends part of his time in each country.

His passage from the train at Dover to board the boat that is to carry him across the English Channel takes him between the ranks of countless hundreds of cheering, flag-waving inhabitants, congregated to wish him farewell; while at Calais, after receiving the salutation of the American warships in the harbor, he is met by French officers and veteran poilus, the warmness of his welcome being intensified by a black wall of their well-wishing compatriots in the background.

Pathe's New Buffalo Exchanges.

The largest film exchange in the state of New York outside of New York City has just been opened by Pathe in Buffalo. The new exchange is at 218 Franklin street, in a building which has been completely remodeled until it offers every facility for the proper handling of films. One of the features of the exchange is a miniature theatre, attractively fitted up. The film storehouse in the new building is 130 feet long by 35 feet wide.

The exchange serves theatres as far east as Syracuse and covers the entire Western end of the state. Associated with Branch Manager Taylor in the new Pathe office are A. Teschmacher, S. Z. Williams, G. H. Christoffer, F. J. Leonard, O. Schroeppel, Basil Brady and Harry De Vere. On January 20, Manager Taylor held a reception for members of his staff and his many friends among the exhibitors. A delegate from the home office was also present.

Four Productions in the Making at Metro Studio

FOUR big productions are in full swing at the Metro studios at Hollywood, and a fifth feature, one starring Emmy Wehlen, will be begun soon. The photoplays at present in process of making at the Coast plant are "The Blind Man's Eyes," starring Bert Lytell; "The Island of Intrigue," with May Allison in the principal role; a fast-moving Hale Hamilton picture, "Johnny on the Spot," and a most charming and human comedy-drama for Viola Dana, entitled "Diana Ardway."

"The Blind Man's Eyes" has to do with the fight of a man wrongly accused of murder to vindicate himself before the world and the girl he loves, and to bring retribution and justice to those who broke faith with him. Opposite Mr. Lytell is Naomi Childers, and the remainder of the cast includes such prominent screen artists as Joseph Kilgour, Frank Currier, Richard Morris, Morris Foster, Gertrude Claire and Mignon Anderson. It is being produced under the direction of John Ince.

Many of the scenes for "The Island of Intrigue," in which May Allison is starring, are to be taken on an island off the California coast.

Hale Hamilton will be seen in "Johnny on the Spot" as a young man under a double handicap. In the first place he is afflicted with literary aspirations, and in the second with a misguided notion that everything comes to him who waits. Playing opposite Mr. Hamilton is Louise Lovely; Lilie Leslie, Ruth Orlamond, Edward Connelly, Philo McCullough, Hardee Kirkland, Fred Warren, Neal Hardin and Oral Humphreys are others in the cast.

A most unusual characterization is intrusted to Viola Dana in "Diana Ardway," She is a tomboy vampire. Milton Sills, by arrangement with Goldwyn, has been chosen as Miss Dana's leading man. Lilie Leslie also is in the cast. Important parts have been intrusted too to Frank Currier, Lloyd Hughes, George King and Alice Knowland.

Recognize the Masked Corbett.

When James J. Corbett recently signed his contract to appear in Universal pictures, although Universal executives never doubted that Corbett's admirers ran into millions they resolved to give his popularity a test.

Mats made from a photo showing Corbett's face half covered by a bandana handkerchief were sent to sporting editors and photoplay editors all over the country and published with a caption, "Who Is He?"

James J. Corbett.

Hundreds of letters forwarded to Universal's home office by various editors prove that Corbett's face was well known to the people and that it took more than a handkerchief to conceal his identity.

It is seldom if ever that a film star is so well known to the public that his facial features, only half revealed, are recognized so easily, especially before he has made his screen debut.

Corbett is now working on the third episode of his serial, and Director James W. Horne finds his only difficulty in directing the ex-champion is providing extras to play in scenes in which Corbett is called upon to demonstrate his fistic ability.

"Children of Banishment" Is Practically Finished

AFTER a month of hardships on the high Sierras during the filming of Mitchell Lewis' Select picture, "Children of Banishment," Select has received word from Mr. Lewis' Western representative that work on this feature is practically completed. According to the report there is left only a few days of location work around Los Angeles. As soon as these shots are taken work will he started on the cutting and titling of the picture which constitutes the second of Mr. Lewis' Select Star Series.

"Children of Banishment," says the statement issued by Select, will be one of the most thrilling pictures of the Northwest ever filmed. There is not a man-made set in the entire production, and many of the scenes were taken at great risk of life to Mr. Lewis and the other members of his company.

One instance in particular in which Mitchell Lewis came within an inch of forfeiting his life, was during the filming of a scene taken in the broiling rapids of the Merced River—the river which carries off the water from the famous Vernal, Nevada, Bridal Veil and other falls which add so much to the picturesque beauty of Yosemite Valley.

From all reports this picture is a remarkable production, and there is great eagerness in Select's home office to see a print.

First February Vitagraph Is "The Highest Trump"

VITAGRAPH'S first feature release for February is a mystery play, "The Highest Trump," starring Earle Williams. Mr. Williams appears as a secret service agent. His most popular characterizations have previously been given in this type of role, and this, together with the fact that he is co-author of the story which is said to be one of the most unusual ever brought to the screen, holding many moments of dramatic tensity and surprising climaxes, is perhaps responsible for the heavy pre-release write-up. His collaborator in this story, H. H. Van Loan, is well known as a writer of scenarios and dramatic playlets, and he is also a frequent contributor to leading periodicals.

Francis Ford Company Going to Japan.

For the filming of the new Francis Ford serial, the scenes of which will be laid in the tropics, Mr. Ford and his company, consisting of Mae Gaston, Elsie Van Name, Phil Ford, Pete Gerald, Jerry Ash, Johnny Thwaites, and Harry Elis Dean, business manager of the company, will sail for Japan on March 15.

It is announced that the decision to film this serial is due to a careful survey of the situation as seen by the exhibitor from which it was ascertained that there is a strong demand for a mystery serial produced in China and Japan.

Mollie King in "Suspense" (Independent Sales).

Franchise Owners for "Hearts of the World"

IN response to several requests from exhibitors, we are publishing herewith a list of state rights owners for D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," together with their addresses and the territory each controls. The general offices of the company are located in suite 720 Longacre Building, New York. Albert L. Gray is the general manager, and should be addressed regarding any territory not included in the accompanying list.

For Michigan, Dawn Masterplays, Arthur S. Hyman, general manager, Owen Building, Detroit; "Hearts of the World" Company of New England, Edward A. Golden, general manager, 612 Little Building Boston, for New England states; "Hearts of the World" of the Southeast, Abe S. Guckenheimer, general manager, Halligan Building, Savannah, for Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, North Carolina, Louisiana and Tennessee; Doll-Van Film Corporation, Henry L. Dollman, general manager, 1606 Merchants Bank Building, Indianapolis, for Indiana and Kentucky; Sol L. Lesser, 191 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, for Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, California, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, California, Arizona and Nevada; and to Sol L. Lesser and George H. Davis, the Mid-West "Hearts of the World" Company, 1205 City Hall Square Building, Chicago, for Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Southern Triangle Reissues Ten Films.

W. J. Pratt, division manager of the Southern Triangle Picture Company, Atlanta, announces that this organization has arranged to reissue a series of ten pictures, consisting of seven Norma Talmadge subjects, "The Devil's Needle," "Fifty-Fifty," "Missing Links," "Martha's Vindication," "Children in the House," "Going Straight," and the "Social Secretary"; also "Peggy" with Billie Burke as the star, and two other specials, "The Girl of the Timber Claims," and "Betsy's Burglar." This series will be released through the Triangle offices in Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha, where bookings can now be arranged.

Lillian Walker Finishes Her Second Production

LILLIAN WALKER has finished her second production at the Robert Brunton Studio in Los Angeles, and a print has been received and viewed by officials of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, distributors, and Lillian Walker Pictures, Inc., producers. "Fixing It" is the title chosen for the picture, which is adapted from John Breckenridge Ellis' novel, "Fran." William P. S. Earle directed it from the scenario by himself and Arthur Edwin Krows. The release date has been set for February 24.

Lillian Walker plays the role of a girl who has been brought up in the circus, but decides she wants a real home and love that is rightfully hers. In the town of Littleburg she appears before Hamilton Gregory, an exhorter, and demands a home, but finds that in the bosom of the righteous is not always to be found the truest religion. A child of nature, the girl's simplicity and faith eventually bring happiness to others. The part is light comedy, with some splendid dramatic moments, and Miss Walker is given every opportunity to display her versatility. The supporting cast is a large one of well-known players.

Bessie Love the Ideal Heroine.

It may be regarded as a peculiar coincidence that the jacket cover of the popular edition of "The Enchanted Barn," Grace Livingston H. Lutz's widely read novel, carries an illustration of the heroine that has invariably been taken for a portrait of Bessie Love, the Vitagraph star who is appearing in the screen adaptation of this book.

The co-incidence becomes the logical result of a very natural cause when the readers of "The Enchanted Barn" recall the type of miss delineated by Miss Lutz; in fact, this was the chief reason why the motion picture rights were purchased for Miss Love's production. The girl of the book, in face and physique as well as whimsies and caprices, approaches in a most remarkable degree to little Miss Love herself, although neither she nor her director, David Smith, had learned of the illustrated book jacket until they were well along toward the completion of the play.

Select Pictures for the Washington.

On the latest trip across from the other side the entertainment committee of the George Washington, the President's ship, released four of Constance Talmadge's Select pictures much to the joy and entertainment, it is said, of every man on board. The pictures that were shown were "A Pair of Silk Stockings," "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," "Sauce for the Goose" and "A Lady's Name."

Before the George Washington left New York on the outgoing trip it was believed in inner circles that the President would be a passenger on her return trip, and, as the entertainment committee wanted to provide a few light moments for the great man, they requested some of Select's Constance Talmadge brand.

The President failed to make the return trip, but the crew and shipload of homecoming troops were entertained with them instead.

Big Houses Seek Prizma Showings.

Among big theatres signing for the showings of Prizma, the natural color pictures, during the past week are the Stanley and Arcadia theatres, Philadelphia, in which Prizma will be run simultaneously, an unprecedented condition; the Pantheon, Chicago; Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, and Proctor's New York, circuit of theatres, consisting of twenty big houses. In the meantime the Rivoli is continuing its presentations of Prizma pictures and is not alone featuring them on the program, but also featuring them on the electric signs in front of the theatre.

Scene from "How to Be Happy Though Married" (Exhibitors Mutual).

How Director Quickly Got His Score of Wounded Men

IN "Made in America," the eight-reel series, dealing with the making of the American soldier, a number of wounded men were needed in one of the scenes by Ashley Miller, its producer and director. John J. McCutcheon, assistant director, said he could get the men in "three shakes of a lamb's tail"; and he did.

In a waiting taxi he hustled down to the big hospital in the old Greenhut department store, Eighteenth street and Sixth avenue. Briefly, he stated his mission upon his arrival, showed his credentials and thanked the sagacious medico in uniform for the audience.

Ten minutes afterward "Mac" had no less than twenty-five casuals comfortably seated in autos driven by members of the Women's Motor Corps and on their way to the studio. Most of these fellows took part in the smashing of the Hindenburg line and each one who takes part in "Made in America" wears a medal or a citation cord for distinguished bravery on the field.

The series is produced by Ashley Miller. The W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, publishers and distributors, will release it Sunday, February 16.

Denver Books Jewel Film for Week.

Manager Edward Armstrong of the Universal Exchange at Denver, Colo., has booked "The Heart of Humanity" to the New Rivoli Theatre, Denver, for first run west of the Mississippi. The big Jewel production will be shown at the theatre for a week beginnirg February 2. This will be one of the first week runs of a film feature staged in Denver in some time, as four-day runs of big features are the rule in the Colorado capital.

Scene from "Under Four Flags" (Official).

"Unpardonable Sin" Is Preparing for Broadway

THE first four completed prints of the big Harry Garson independent production, "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blanche Sweet, under the personal direction of Marshal Neilan, were scheduled to leave Los Angeles, Cal., Saturday, February 1, in charge of a special messenger, who is to deliver them to W. H. Rudolph, eastern representative of the producing company, with offices in the Aeolian Building, New York City. Just when the picture is to be shown to the many people who have been anxiously awaiting its arrival in New York has not yet been determined.

"The Unpardonable Sin," in its photoplay form, is creating fully as much interest in the motion picture industry as it did in story form, when the Major Rupert Hughes story was given to the reading public and started considerable discussion. There seems to be little doubt but that Director Neilan has made the story into one of the strongest screen portrayals which has been turned out in many a day. It was being finished just about the time practically all the big picture men in the country were on the Pacific Coast, incident to the big things in the way of combinations which have happened recently.

Many of these picture authorities were afforded the opportunity of seeing the production, and as a consequence all kinds of offers for the production have been made. In some instances these offers have been flattering in the extreme, according to Mr. Garson's eastern representative, and there is presented the unusual situation of an expensive picture ready for the market, assured not only of its production cost back, but also of a handsome profit for those who conceived the idea, without any further effort on their part.

A number of offers for "The Unpardonable Sin" have been made by men prominent in the so-called "legitimate" branch of amusements. The only definite arrangements so far made call for the opening of the picture on Broadway in New York, the latter part of February, after an unusual advertising campaign: Three legitimate theatres, each one of them now housing a successful dramatic attraction, have been offered and the one best suited to the needs of the picture, at a $2.00 price scale, will be chosen.

Whether the production will get into the established moving picture theatres of the country within the next few months or will be handled as a special attraction in the first-class legitimate houses of the country for an indefinite period, will depend upon what disposition is being made of contracts now being considered.

Doris Kenyon Recuperating.

Doris Kenyon, De Luxe Pictures' star, who has been very ill with influenza, left January 27 for the South to recuperate before starting work on her next picture. Miss Kenyon went direct to Cleveland, Fla., where she will remain two weeks with friends. After that she will spend a week at Palm Beach before returning to New York to resume work.

Her latest picture, "Twilight," is now being titled, and will be released some time in February. Theodore C. Deitrich, president of De Luxe Pictures, Inc., has purchased a new story for Miss Kenyon, the title of which will be announced later. J. Searle Dawley, who directed Miss Kenyon in "Twilight," will direct her in her next production.

Fox Feature Shown to Marines.

"Tell It to the Marines," starring Jane and Katherine Lee, was shown recently at an entertainment in the Marine Corps training camp at Quantico, Va. In its story of the entertainment the Leatherneck, the camp paper, says:

"The big night's performance opened with a bang at 7 o'clock with the presentation of a special feature film, 'Tell It to the Marines.' Miss Hettie Gray Baker, film editor of the Fox Corporation, came from New York for the occasion. Probably the most amusing thing about the film, aside from the antics of the two kid stars and the marvelous dummies, was the surprise of not finding any honest-to-goodness 'Gyreens' marching through the film."

Robert Liebler and Anita Stewart.

Pathe Program Presents Many Novelties

THE Pathe program for February 2 presents Pearl White in the fifth episode of "The Lightning Raider," called "The Brass Key," which, for ingenious invention, rapid action and surprise, is an excellent example of what Pathe terms "the new perfection in serials."

"The Rest Cure" is the title of the Rolin comedy, featuring Stan Laurel, English comedian, who played in these Rolin creations during his last summer vacation. Hal Roach, author-director, has furnished a high-speed laugh-creating vehicle.

Pathe Review No. 2, magazine of educational scientific, humorous and scenic subjects, is fully up to the promise given by the initial issue, which earned so much pleased expression from all sources. The slow motion pictures are grouped under the heading, "What the Eye Misses." In athletic sports many movements are too rapid for the eye to perceive, but by means of the ultra-rapid Novagraph camera, an American invention, which in projection slows down the action to one tenth of the normal, we can compare what the eye sees to what actually takes place. The subjects are an acrobatic man diver and a diving woman.

The short Diando serial, "The Terror of the Range," featuring George Larkin and Betty Compson, shows the opening episode as "Prowlers of the Night." It is a strenuous Western story of mystery, hidden perils and daring deeds.

Newspapers To Run Serial of "Belle of New York"

ONE of the biggest publicity campaigns ever arranged in the support of a moving picture production, it is claimed, is the one announced by Select Pictures Corporation, by which Marion Davies in "The Belle of New York" gets the advantage of serial publication of the story in thirteen of the largest newspapers in the country.

"The Belle of New York," the Gustave Kerker and Hugh Morton musical comedy hit of twenty years ago, is still playing on the spoken stage in London. During the last score years it has been played in a dozen different languages, and the gallons of ink and tons of paper that have been used in its advertising will now be further added to by the lavish expenditure which brings the story in serial form to the readers of the country's foremost newspapers.

Starting on February 9, "The Belle of New York" in serial form will have its first installment in the Philadelphia North American. The list of foremost national newspapers, with a total circulation estimated at more than three million and averaging in a reading circulation near the twelve million mark, should be a boon to the exhibitors whose theatres are in the prescribed territory of any of the papers.

Big Demand for "The Better 'Ole."

Exhibitors all over the country are sending in a constant stream of inquiries to World Pictures regarding "The Better 'Ole," the screen version of the famous play which is now running to capacity houses at the Cort Theatre, New York City. It is evident that exhibitors everywhere realize that in this production they have the opportunity of securing an attraction of extraordinary drawing powers. "The Better 'Ole, or, The Romance of Old Bill" is internationally known through its great success on the legitimate stage. It is chuck full of entertainment, sentiment and humor, and is the sort of a picture that makes everyone happy. Realizing the possibilities in this remarkable production the Strand Theatre, New York City, booked it for the premier presentation during the week of February 23.

Use of Fox Film Suggested for Proposed Pershing Week

FOLLOWING cabled report that General Pershing may return with President Wilson, and the proposal that a "Pershing Week" celebration be held in his honor, numerous exhibitors have booked "The Land of the Free," the Pershing photobiography, it is stated in an announcement from the Fox Film Corporation. One exhibitor suggested that during the week of Pershing's return exhibitors would profit from the heightened enthusiasm for the general by showing his life story on their screens.

Honored in France and England for his work in organizing and leading the American Expeditionary Force to victory, General Pershing, it is expected, will receive from his own countrymen an ovation that will eclipse anything of the sort ever before attempted. As a fitting feature of this celebration it has been urged that "The Land of the Free" be shown in all theatres during "Pershing Week."

Reports from Fox branch offices are said to show that this picture is proving one of the big money-makers, exhibitors in many cases booking the picture for second and third engagements. Grant H. Harryman, of the Royal Theatre, Enid, Oklahoma, wrote to the Kansas City branch: "Having recently finished an engagement of your 'The Land of the Free' I want to tell you what I think of this great picture. In the face of stiff competition, I not only showed to crowded houses, but also pleased my patrons. I believe 'The Land of the Free' to be one of the biggest productions ever made—and I run nearly all the big stuff."

Four L-Ko Companies Working.

President Abe Stern, of the L-Ko Comedy Co., at Hollywood, has announced that four companies are now at work on location. Vin Moore is working on a comedy release featuring Charlie, the Chinese comedian; M. Golden, former Rolin director, is producing a second comedy, and Noel Smith is directing Dot Farley and Phil Dunn, while Verca Reynolds, formerly with Keystone, is going through the paces on another location. "Hop the Bell Hop" is the L-Ko release scheduled for release February 10.

George Walsh Back from Florida.

Wearing a coat of mid-winter tan, George Walsh has returned from Miami, Fla., where exterior scenes for "Never Say Quit" were filmed under the direction of Edward Dillon. Mr. Walsh and his company, numbering about twenty, were at Miami for two weeks. One of the scenes shows George as a passenger in a hydroaeroplane, loaned by an aviator at the naval aviation camp near Miami.

Arbuckle's "Love" Contains Surprises.

"Fatty" Arbuckle promises some real surprises in his comedy for Paramount, "Love," which is released February 16. There is an automobile driven by "Fatty" while en route to the old farm to see his girl, with whom he is so deeply in love that he has no room for other thoughts. The machine is said to be one of the wonders of the age, but to tell what it is like would be to spoil the fun of the spectator.

Power's Cameragraph on Relief Ship.

The Pensacola sailed from New York for Europe on January 25. This ship was chartered by the American Red Cross for Armenian purposes and it is stated that she sailed with a million dollar cargo. For the purpose of entertaining the officers and crew the Red Cross decided to utilize a motion picture machine. They selected a Power's Cameragraph.

Want anything? Wouldst sell anything? Seek a prompt market through The World's Classified advertising. These small ads have made many a dollar for showmen.

Kitty Gordon in "Mandarin's Gold" (World Pictures).

Select's "The Midnight Patrol" Still Drawing 'Em

SELECT is receiving glowing accounts of its big special attraction, "The Midnight Patrol," produced by Thomas H. Ince, which is reported as having packed every theatre where it has played to date. Instances where "The Midnight Patrol" has been held over, repeated, and even held over after a repeat, are declared to be many.

"The Midnight Patrol" has been booked solid over Poli's entire New England route, and in all of Poli's houses where it has already played the public answered the call of the advertising by jamming the aisles. In New York and surrounding territory the big Thomas H. Ince production more than made good. For instance, at the Hamilton Theatre in Yonkers the special played to packed houses for two days and a week later repeated—which was the Hamilton's first repeat this season. In the New York Majestic it played three days on the regular booking and held over for two more, while at the Greenpoint, in Brooklyn, they had three of the biggest days in the history of the house.

As far away as Detroit, Select is receiving reports which show that "The Midnight Patrol," if properly exploited, is one of the best drawing cards the exhibitor can handle. One instance in particular is the success reported by Charles P. Branham, manager of the Detroit Majestic. Select's branch manager, J. O. Kent, booked "The Midnight Patrol" for a week at the Majestic, after several other Detroit exhibitors had refused to handle it.

The first thing Manager Branham did was to post 100 twenty-four sheets, window cards, one sheets, three sheets, etc., all over the town. Then he arranged for 12-inch newspaper advertisements with special art work, decorated his house to give it an Oriental atmosphere, and wound up by dedicating the week to Detroit's police department. The result was the biggest week the Detroit Majestic has known since the opening of "The Unbeliever."

Mae Marsh Distinguishes Herself as Porch Climber

MAE MARSH is as agile as a professional porch climber. She proves it in "The Bondage of Barbara," her new Goldwyn picture coming. The sight of the appealing star shortening the distance between herself and the roof with all the skill of a lively boy—or an experienced burglar—promises to be one of the many interesting moments in her new play.

What is genuinely amusing is that she did not have to practice the feat, but shinnied up the post like a veteran. As a matter of fact, she was so delighted with the opportunity to do something she had never before essayed on the screen that she became imbued with the spirit of mischief and went the limit. The stunt has an important part in the story, and is not introduced merely to afford amusement.

Many Advance Bookings For World's Kinograms

KINOGRAMS, "the newest news" weekly, which is to be distributed by World Film Corporation, will issue its initial number February 1.

If the advance bookings which are pouring into the home office are to be taken as a criterion, Kinograms will undoubtedly break all records for bookings on single reels.

The camera and field men, who are stationed throughout the country, are constantly on the alert for the newest news.

Kinograms will be made up to a standard and not down to a price, and have been created with the thought of supplying the demand which has been brought forth for news weeklies.

Among the many houses which have booked Kinograms are: Rialto and Rivoli in New York, Stanley theatres in Philadelphia, Rialto in Denver, Majestic in Detroit, Peoples in Portland, Lubliner & Trinz in Chicago, and Clune's in Los Angeles.

Antonio Moreno Riding Sultan.

Conway in "Restless Souls" (Triangle).

Clara Kimball Young Moves from Sunset to Brunton

THE Garson-Young producing forces, who have been operating on the Coast for some time, turning out Clara Kimball Young and Blanche Sweet productions, have changed workshops, moving from the Sunset to the Brunton studios in Los Angeles. This announcement emanating from the New York offices of the companies probably has something to do with the break which recently transpired between Clara Kimball Young and the Select Pictures Corporation.

Miss Young's pictures for release on the Select program have almost all been made in the Sunset studios, the only exceptions being the one or two pictures which were finished under the Select contract at the Thanhouser studios in the East. Miss Young has declared that the Select people are to have no interest whatever in her future pictures, despite the existence of unexpired contracts—which Miss Young claims the Select people have violated—and the move to the Brunton studios may be taken as one to wipe out completely former business associations.

The activities of the Clara Kimball Young organization and the Blanche Sweet company—and more particularly the latter company, which has just finished "The Unpardonable Sin"—have kept the Sunset studios pretty busy lately, and the change is therefore one which is very likely to be quite noticeable.

Miss Young has already begun work on a new picture—the first since her break with Select—and it will be in the market for distribution in the near future, when some more interesting chapters may be expected to be written into the story of the Select-Young controversy. The title of the picture is being guarded jealously, but, as an indication that Miss Young's activities in the future are to be more important than ever before, the word has been passed around that there has been secured as a vehicle for the well-known star one of the choicest pieces of theatrical property which has been developed in a long time.

Buys Two More Dalyrimple Stories.

The Robertson-Cole Company has obtained the rights to two more of the best known stories of Leona Dalyrimple, whose $10,000 prize novel, "Diana of the Green Van," is now being produced by the Winsome Stars Corporation, with Alma Rubens portraying Diana. "The Heart of the Pines" and "White Rose," stories which in every way measure up to the standard set by Miss Dalyrimple with "Diana," are the literary works which the Robertson-Cole organization, in its search for high-class screen material, have purchased. A considerable sum was paid for the stories, which are admirably adapted for screening.

"Diana of the Green Van" will be an Exhibitors' Mutual release. Alma Rubens was accorded the leading role because of her thorough adherence to the type delineated so entertaingly by the pen of Miss Dalyrimple.

To be author of several of the most popular "best sellers" of recent years and still to be recognized as one of the youngest novelists of the day is the reputation of Miss Dalyrimple.

Farrar Wears Made-to-Order Rags.

It is not usual for Geraldine Farrar to appear in rags either in opera or in her series of Goldwyn pictures. When she found that a few scenes in "Shadows" required her to don old clothes she was at a loss to know where to find them. It is well known that the diva doesn't keep any of her costumes longer than is required by a single production.

But it was a simple dress that was needed, and it she must have. In such cases it is customary to draw upon the large wardrobe room at the Goldwyn studios, but Miss Farrar invariably has all her dresses made to order, and she did not care to deviate from her rule in this case.

Henri Bendel, of New York, who is solely responsible for Miss Farrar's sartorial triumphs, was called into consultation and told to make the dress. It must be absolutely plain, yet of good material, and must fit Geraldine Farrar perfectly. Accordingly the proper material was selected, and the gown was put together in short order.

The greater part of the work, however, was to mutilate it. In the end it was nothing more than a rag—and a perfect counterfeit of a garment worn a thousand times, yet it had never been used once.

Do you want a camera? Have you a camera for sale? Are you a camera man seeking a position? Do you need the services of a camera man? The World's Classified advertising is open for your use. Why not?

"Sis Hopkins" a Real Fit For Mabel Normand Role

THE decision to star Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins" closely approximates an inspiration on the part of the Goldwyn organization. It could be foretold that "Sis Hopkins" was everything that a Mabel Normand role ought to be, and the completed production, now ready for release everywhere February 9, bears out all of the Goldwyn advance predictions.

Mabel Normand is preeminently a broad comedy heroine, and there could hardly be a broader comedy than "Sis Hopkins." It calls for animation and action, for ridiculous situations, for superior clowning and fun-making. In the Goldwyn production of the play Rose Melville made famous throughout the land for two generations, you will find Mabel Normand riding the handlebars of a bicycle pedaled at break-neck speed up hill and down dale, in pursuit of Vibert, the sharper, bent on buying Paw Hopkins' farm at what Vibert thinks is a ridiculous figure for land swimming in oil.

A cast of unusual excellence surrounds Mabel Normand in the Goldwyn picturization of this story. Chief honors go to John Bowers for his characterization of Ridy Scarboro, sweetheart of Sis. Thomas Jefferson's Paw Hopkins deserves great praise; Sam De Grasse's Vibert is excellent. The entire production was made at the new Goldwyn studios, Culver City, Cal., under the direction of Clarence G. Badger. Mr. Goldwyn feels he has every reason to feel proud of the result.

Symphony House Greets Blackton.

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 17, 18 and 19, J. Stuart Blackton's big production, "The Common Cause," which is being released through Vitagraph, played at the beautiful new Symphony Theatre, Ninety-fifth street and Broadway, New York.

M. Kashin, managing director of the Symphony, reports that the picture went over splendidly with the audiences, stating that it played to some of the biggest business in the history of the house.

The Seventy-seventh Street Theatre, on Broadway, following the success of "The Common Cause" at the Symphony Theatre, booked the picture for January 27, 28 and 29.

A noteworthy event during the Symphony Theatre run was the appearance at the theatre on Friday evening of Commodore Blackton, Herbert Rawlinson and Lawrence Grossmith. The appearance of the producer and two of the principal members of the cast came as a surprise to the packed house, and when their presence was discovered the audience demanded their presentation and welcomed them with enthusiasm.

"Romance and Rings" Released February 2.

"Romance and Rings," the first of the Paramount-Drew comedies, in which America's favorite domestic comedians, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, return to the screen after an absence of many months, will be released February 2. The comedy has already been shown at the Rialto Theatre, New York, and private screenings have been made in several of the larger cities of the country, and in every instance the picture was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

Additions to "Price of Doubt" Cast.

Some important additions have been made to the cast of "The Price of Doubt," the big all-star feature now being staged at the World Pictures studio at Fort Lee. William Riley Hatch has been engaged to play the role of Captain Arden; Matilda Brundage will appear in the role of Mrs. Vale, while Henry Abe has been engaged for a Japanese character. The following World stars appear in this production: Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Greeley, June Evidge, Montagu Love and Johnny Hines.

Johnson Cannibal Picture Proving Sensational Film

MARTIN JOHNSON'S thrilling picture, "Cannibals of the South Seas," which is being released throughout the United States and Canada by the Exhibitors' Mutual, is proving a sensational feature.

From the Rivoli Theatre, in New York, to Grauman's, in Los Angeles; from the Hippodrome, in Fort Worth, Texas, to the Orpheum, in Sault Ste Marie, Michigan, this highly educational and entertaining photoplay of the most remarkable and least known people on the face of the earth, is breaking records. Every day brings a new report of triumph into the New York headquarters of Exhibitors' Mutual. Exhibitors, as well as the theatregoing public, are enthusing over the production, which, from point of view of novelty, thrills and education, is unusual.

The drawing power of the films is best evidence by a report from Little Independence, Kan., where in two days more than $1,100 was taken in at the box office.

Assistant General Manager A. S. Kirkpatrick, of the Exhibitors' Mutual, has never handled such a live-wire proposition as the "Cannibals" is proving. In a statement issued last week he said:

"Martin Johnson's 'Cannibals' are figuratively running wild throughout the country.

"From every section reports are pouring in to us, telling of the remarkable success which is greeting the thrilling adventure films.

"House records are being swept aside everywhere, and the intense interest shown by the public in 'Cannibals of the South Seas,' to snap which Martin Johnson and his little wife risked their lives, is even second to the eagerness exhibitors are manifesting to book the two-episode thriller."

Cavalieri's Next Is "The Two Brides."

What the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation asserts will prove one of the most notable motion picture presentations of the year is 'The Two Brides," Mme. Lina Cavalieri's new Paramount picture released February 9, in which the beautiful operatic star is said to appear in a new and novel characterization. The story was written by Alicia Ramsey and adapted for the screen by Margaret Turnbull. Edward Jose was the director.

Mme. Cavalieri portrays the role of a daughter of a noble Italian sculptor who lives on an island in the Mediterranean and who has never come in contact with the outer world until her cousin, a dissipated count, seeks refuge at the island in order to escape the consequences of a crime he has committed in Rome.

Mme. Cavalieri's leading man is Courtenay Foote, and the other roles are in the hands of Warburton Gamble, Hal Reid —the father of Wallace Reid—Mrs. Turner, Miss Richards, Sherry Tansey, Robert E. Milasch and Emil Roe. The photography is that of Hal Young.

Ann Luther to Star in Pathe Serial.

Pathe's great serial program for 1919 is now fully under way. Western Photoplays, Inc., has started work at its studio in the Bronx on a fifteen episode serial. The tentative title is "The Great Gamble." Western Photoplays, Inc., produced "Wolves of Kultur" for Pathe and the officials of the company state that in their new serial they expect to outdo that production in every way. The coming subject, "The Great Gamble," will introduce a new serial star to the picture public in Miss Anne Luther, who will be featured with Charles Hutchison. Miss Luther, although making her debut as a serial star is not a stranger to picture audiences. She has been starred in many successful features, including such screen triumphs as "Moral Suicide" and "Her Moment" of which she was the individual star.

Harry Schwalbe, Secretary First National, Mary Pickford as "Judy" in "Daddy Longlegs," and Mrs. Pickford.

Seattle's Liberty Exploits "Cannibals of South Seas"

The Liberty Theatre at Seattle exploited Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" with an effective lobby display built from poster cut-outs on beaver board. Much ingenuity was shown and originality demonstrated in the arrangement of the display. No single poster was used in its entirety, but instead sections were taken from the twenty-four, the six, the threes and the ones, and arranged artistically and with novel effect.

The sensational twenty-four-sheet stand issued on "Cannibals of the South Seas" was mounted in three different sections. One section was used entirely for the big head of the Solomon Island savage. Palm tree decorations were sketched on the beaver board background in colors, and they added materially to the artistic effect of the display.

Above the panels in which the big paper cutouts were used the Liberty built a border of cannibal heads, using cutouts from a three-sheet and a one-sheet. The ferocious looking savage whose head was reproduced in a striking one-sheet had a panel of the border all to himself.

From the border, and around the entrance, were hung tropical foliage, vines and palm leaves. The whole effect carried the atmosphere of the tropics and cannibal land.

"Cannibals of the South Seas" played a week at the Liberty to capacity business, and scored so heavily at the box office that Jenson & Von Herberg wrote a testimonial letter praising its merit as a money maker.

For the dealer in motion picture supplies The World's Classified advertising offers rare opportunities to reach a quick market.

Among Independent Producers

Conducted by C. S. SEWELL

S-L Producers Aim to Meet Canadian Requirements

INTEREST is being manifested by leading exhibitors of Canada in the progress of the initial S-L production, shortly to be presented under the auspices of Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin. Prior to their recent advent in the field of picture-making through the acquisition of E. K. Lincoln as the star of a series of special S-L pictures, directed by Ralph Ince, Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin were recognized as successful distributors of special productions in the Dominion.

For several years they handled the entire feature output of the Metro program in Canadian territory, during which period they were responsible for many successful innovations in the matter of exhibitor cooperation and original film exploitation. Due to the methods of fair dealing during their control of the Canadian Metro franchise the organizers of S-L pictures possess the confidence of the leading showmen in that territory.

In forming an organization for the production of a series of special vehicles presenting E. K. Lincoln as star, under the personal direction of Ralph Ince, Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have borne in mind the peculiar requirements of the Canadian exhibitor. Understanding the type of special picture best fitted to please motion picture audiences of the Dominion and a thorough knowledge of the wants of Canadian exhibitors, it is believed the first S-L picture will carry an appeal to theatre audiences both in the United States and Canada. It is understood that certain scenes have been especially filmed for incorporation in the prints which will go to Canada, and particular care has been exerted in the matter of titling in this respect throughout the entire length of the film.

The producers of the first starring vehicle have endeavored at all times to capitalize their knowledge of the Canadian film situation, and it is believed exhibitors and distributors of the northern country will find S-L pictures adapted to both their commercial and artistic requirements. It is probably the first time that this angle of picture making has been given serious consideration by the various manufacturers.

Adoption of Prohibition Pictured in Gaumont News

HOW the different states ratified the prohibition amendment to the constitution, what will become of some of the big distilleries, and some of the causes resulting in the adoption of this sweeping provision, are included in Gaumont News No. 44. President Wilson's tour through England is also shown in this number, there being many scenes showing his great reception, not only in London, where he and Mrs. Wilson were entertained by King George and Queen Mary, but also in the other English cities, where many thousands greeted him. This subject includes Mr. Wilson in Carlisle, where he visited the birthplace of his mother.

Gaumont Graphic No. 14, released Jan. 24, contains many topics of current interest. In Boston, the emblems carried by the 301st Field Artillery in the European war was turned over to the custody of the State of Massachusetts through Governor Coolidge. In St. Louis the Salvation Army has outfitted a club house for sailors and soldiers. In Washington, D. C., Uncle Sam is selling his surplus stock of airplanes, 1,200 of which, with 2,000 extra motors, are offered to the highest bidders. On the Pacific Coast, Mexico's warship, the "Morelos," has been junked after many battles with the insurrectionists. Views from Hoboken show the embarkation officers under whose supervision nearly two million soldiers were safely embarked for Europe. One of the most interesting installment in Gaumont's popular series, "Flying For Uncle Sam," is covered in this number, showing how airplanes are used for bombing purposes.

Bert Hall Film Begins Run at Chicago De Luxe

FRANK HALL, president of the Independent Sales Corporation, announces that the Carl E. Carlton aerial production, "A Romance of the Air," in which the American Ace, Lieutenant Bert Hall, is co-starred with Edith Day, prima donna of the musical comedy, "Going Up," will have its premiers at the De Luxe, one of Chicago's principal theatres, immediately following its successful run at the Tremont Theatre in Boston.

At each performance, Lieutenant Hall will appear personally and tell the audience of his exploits in the air during three years and on as many different battle fronts. Additional interest is added to this engagement by the fact that Miss Day is at the present time apearing in Chicago in person in "Going Up" at another prominent theatre.

This engagement of "A Romance of the Air" in Chicago is in accordance with the previously announced policy of not releasing the production in any territory until it has an extended run in one of the principal theatres therein. Bookings, however, may be arranged during these engagements for dates immediately following the run, so that the exhibitors may reap the benefit of the intensive advertising and publicity, while the picture is still fresh in the minds of the people.

Filming "Thirteenth Chair" Exteriors at Saranac Lake

LEONCE PERRET, who adapted and is directing the picturization of Bayard Veiller's play, "The Thirteenth Chair" for the Acme Pictures Corporation, has completed the filming of the interior scenes at the Pathe studio in New York. Together with his staff and several members of the company, including Yvonne Delva, the star, Mr. Perret has gone to Saranac Lake, where the exterior scenes will be filmed. It is understood that this picture is nearing completion and that it will be finished in a short time.

During the time between the "shooting" of scenes, much enjoyment is being derived by Creighton Hale, Miss Delva and Miss Frauncie French by participating in the outdoor winter carnival at the Lake, as the snow is now several feet deep. Prior to leaving for Saranac, the company also enjoyed a treat when the celebrated French artists, Messieurs Louis Wins and Edouard Gendron, visited the studio, and while the company was resting conducted an impromptu recital with the violin and piano.

Billy West Working on Two Comedies.

With the completion of "Ship Ahoy," the second of the new series of Billy West comedies which are being released by the Bulls Eye Film Corporation, this energetic comedian is now engaged in making the third and fourth of the series at the same time, under the supervision of Director Charles Parrott.

This speeding up of activity is due to the resourcefulness of Studio Manager Nat Spitzer, who has constructed a sufficient number of sets so that Billy, inasmuch as it is not necessary for him to change his costume, can simply walk from one scene into the other, and keep the two scripts going at once.

Scene from "The Silent Mystery," a Francis Ford Serial (Hiller & Wilk-Burston).

Wettstein Likes Tom Mix Reissues.

Exclusive Features, Inc., are in receipt of letter from R. H. Wettstein, Mid-West Distributing Company, relative to the success of the Tom Mix two reel comedy dramas, which reads in part, "The Tom Mix pictures so far have proved to be as big a hit as you thought they would be in this territory."

S-L Making Feature of Titles in First Special

THE final scenes for the special S-L Production, starring E. K. Lincoln and directed by Ralph Ince, were shot last week, and the important work of assembling, cutting and titling will be begun at once. Due to the importance of the theme which forms the basis of the first special production to be issued under the banner of Sawyer and Lubin, extreme care will be exerted in the editing of many thousands of feet of film.

In order to preserve the secrecy which has surrounded the entire details of the first S-L picture as to the nature of the story, the title, etc., private quarters have been secured to which no one but the actual workers will have access.

Several of the highest class sub-title artists of the motion picture industry have been engaged to co-ordinate their various efforts in turning out a series of exclusive and beautiful pictorial backgrounds to accompany the sub-titles of the production. In order that this art may be in perfect harmony with the theme of the story throughout, preliminary sketches are being prepared to use temporarily while the first S-L picture is in the course of assembling and cutting. When the final editing of the production is begun, the artists will start work on the finished sketches, which will be used to enhance the beauty and pictorial dressing of the film.

Joffre and Clemenceau in Perret Film.

Word has been received by Leonce Perret that Marshal Joffre and Premier Clemenceau are sending him their autographed photographs, having specially posed for a scene to be inserted in "Stars of Glory." In this production Mr. Perret aims to show that the bravery of the American soldier is picturesquely tinged with light gayety and kindness, and that, in spite of the seriousness of the war, the American soldier retains his appreciation of the finer things of life.

"Stars of Glory" is said not to be a war film, but an "After the War" film, founded on a true and impressive story of an incident in the great war, and that it deals with one of our heroes who helped France to victory, and there are no scenes of horror or atrocity.

Well Known Film Men Join Hall's Atlanta Force

OF increasing prominence among the enterprising organizations in Atlanta's film row, is the newly opened exchange of the Independent Sales Corporation, operating through the Film Clearing House, located at 71 Walton street. Carl De Seay is the manager, and he reports excellent business on "Wanted for Murder," the Harry Rapf special, also on the Ten-Twenty-Thirty series.

Associated with Mr. De Seay in the sales organization are two other film men well known in Southern territory—R. M. Simril, formerly manager of the Atlanta and Jacksonville exchanges of the General Film Company, and Nat L. Royster, formerly manager of the Special Features Company in Knoxville, Tennessee. These gentlemen report that they intend to put over their second special, "A Romance of the Air," the Carlton production featuring Lieutenant Bert Hall, in a way that will make the whole territory sit up and take notice.

Start Intensive Campaign on "Once to Every Man"

THE Frohman Amusement Corporation, producers of the six part attraction "Once To Every Man," announce that having determined to pursue their original policy of releasing the production on the state rights market, an extensive exploitation campaign has been put in operation not alone among independent buyers, but among the theatres in the United States as well.

Believing this attraction is one that should prove in great demand W. L. Sherrill, president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation has set aside for the advertising matter a larger amount of money than has been expended on any previous production released by this company. The press book will contain miniature samples of the lithographs and slides in colors as well as vest pocket duplicates of the lobby display photos and several other new ideas.

In order to establish permanent relationship with responsible buyers Mr. Sherrill has determined to first offer to state rights buyers who secure "Once To Every Man" all of the future releases of this company. "The idea of this," said Mr. Sherrill, "is not so much to create a preference for any certain exchanges as it is to confine our business dealings with one exchange in each territory. This will permit greater concessions than if we were to scatter our business connections on each release. We feel that the exchange will appreciate that they can depen upon an independent concern for all of its productions and our enlarged policy which provides for two reel Western dramas together with special features, should place the exchange in a position where it may depend upon a minimum number of releases during the year."

"Once To Every Man" has already been sold in several territories, but not until the major portion of the United States is disposed of will an announcement be made and then only in the way of an advertisement in trade publications, advising exhibitors as to the names of the exchanges handling the attraction.

"Mickey" Breaks Records In a Number of Theatres

IN a letter to the W. H. Productions Company, Harry F. Grelle, of Supreme Photoplay Productions, says: "If Altoona is a fair criterion of what "Mickey" is going to do in this territory, we expect wonderful results." He encloses a report for showing at the Mishler Theatre and states the returns surpassed his expectations. The first day, January 13, the gross receipts were $642.22, second day, a rainy one, $1,005.10 and third day $1,291.20. As a result," continues Mr. Grelle, "we are booked for an immediate return for two days and get back into the same house February 7 and 8. I expect to book Cincinnati for an unlimited engagement and feel confident that "Mickey" will break all records."

The Midwest Greater Features Company of Denver, reports, in addition to the advertisements for "Mickey" showing at American Theatre, we had the music publishers wire us to put on a soloist for four days prior to the showing. Fifty twenty-four sheet stands were used besides five window displays in prominent stores. Also one of the graphophone companies furnished graphophones to play "Mickey" music over each of the two box offices. After the first days showing the following was received, "Mickey" broke house records, hundreds were turned away and crowds waited outside from two o'clock until beginning of the last show. Congratulations to your record breaking "Mickey."

The Strand Theatre in Lynn, Massachusetts, reports to the Boston Photoplay company, "'Mickey' is one of the finest and most pleasing productions we have even shown in our theatre. Our patrons are still talking about it. We broke records for attendance during the week with this picture. Each days business grew until on Saturday we turned away about one thousand people."

Joe Horowitz, who purchased "Mickey" for Michigan at what is said to be one of the largest prices paid for a state rights production in that state, was enthusiastic over the possibilities of this picture when they were outlined to him in detail and states he intends to put "Mickey" on in Detroit for an unlimited run.

Joseph Trinz, of Lubliner and Trinz, Chicago, has written to the "Mickey" Film Corporation of Illinois as follows: "Have just returned from seeing 'Mickey' and consider it the best picture I have seen in years. It is with great pleasure that I am giving you contracts for all of our houses for extended runs, and am looking forward to the biggest business in the history of our theatres.

Gabriele D'Annunzio's Son, Ugo D'Annunzio, Conferring with Dolores Cassinelli and Leonce Perret Regarding Filming of the Italian Poet's Works.

Miss Cassinelli Recovers from "Flu."

Dolores Cassinelli, star of the Leonce Perret Productions, who has been confined to her bed for several weeks with influenza, is on the road to recovery. Miss Cassinelli's mother was also stricken, but is recovering. Both will go to the country for several weeks to recuperate before Miss Cassinelli resumes her camera work. Miss Cassinelli's latest picture, "A Soul Adrift," completed prior to her illness, has now been cut and titled and will soon be ready for release.

Miss Pearson Completing First Independent Film

VIRGINIA PEARSON'S new motion picture, "The Bishop's Emeralds," will be completed in about two weeks, and Jack O'Brien, director general of the Virginia Pearson Photoplays, Inc., says the story gives Miss Pearson an admirable opportunity to show the public how far she surpasses anything she has heretofore done on the screen.

"The Bishop's Emeralds," adopted from the novel by that name, written by Houghton Townley, had a large sale in England. Houghton Townley, the author, was in the present war, and during his absence many offers are said to have been made for the book by various motion picture companies, but as he could not be reached, it was impossible to secure the rights. Louis Meyer, president of the Virginia Pearson Photoplays, Inc., cabled to England and France and finally succeeded in locating Mr. Townley "somewhere in France" with the army. Mr. Townley accepted Mr. Meyer's offer, and the world's rights to the motion picture privilege were in this way secured for Miss Pearon's first picture.

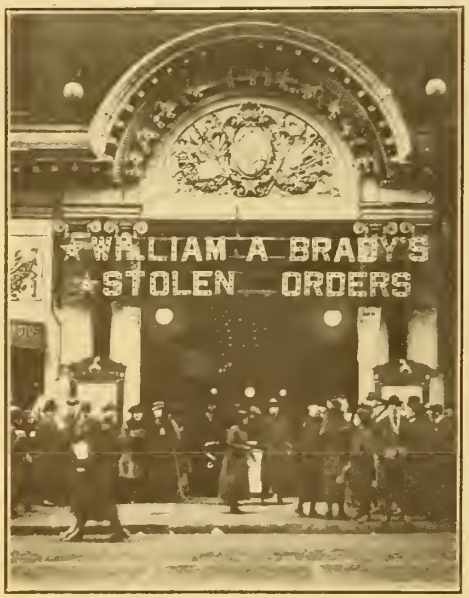
"Satan on Earth" Issued in Two Reels.

The Gaumont Company announce that its photo-novelty, "Satan on Earth," will be issued in only two reels, although more than two months have been spent in its preparation. It has been termed a photo-novelty because it is of an unusual nature and differs materially from the usual dramas and comedies. It is said to be an absorbing and beautifully illustrated story of man's progress and civilization up to the present time in spite of Satan's efforts, also it will be a revelation to theatregoers in showing how much interest can be crowded into two reels, and that it may properly be termed a feature, notwithstanding its short length.

Tourneur's "Sporting Life" Being Shown in Canada

IN order to correct what might lead to an erroneous impression, due to a sentence appearing in our issue of January 25, on page 478, regarding "a recent importation of 'Sporting Life' being shown at the Allen Theatre in Toronto," in connection with the announcement that the Allens are importing films from England, it is desired to call attention to the fact that the picture referred to, "Sporting Life," is a Maurice Tourneur production, which is being distributed as a Paramount-Artcraft special by the Famous Players-Lasky Company, who control the United States and Canadian rights, and is not a production made in England.

Reports received indicate that this picture is meeting with great success wherever shown, and is one of the most successful of this season's motion picture productions.



Park Theatre, Boston, During Showing of Brady Feature.

State Right Sales Reported This Week

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, INC., report the sale of territory on Tom Mix two reel reissues, to Interstate Films, Inc., for New York; All Star Feature Film Company, San Francisco, for California, Arizona and Nevada; Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, for Ohio and Kentucky; Southwestern Pictures Corporation, Dallas, for Oklahoma; Standard Film Company, St. Louis, for eastern Missouri and southern Illinois; Mid-West Distributing Company, Milwaukee, for Wisconsin, and De Luxe Feature Film Company, Seattle, for Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

* * *

Pioneer Film Corporation reports the sale of rights to "Wives of Men" starring Florence Reed, to W. H. Burnside, of Youngstown, Ohio, for Ohio and Kentucky.

* * *

Frohman Amusement Corporation announce the sale of New York rights to the feature "Once to Every Man" featuring Jack Sherrill and Mabel Withee, to Merit Film Corporation, 130 West 46th street, New York.

* * *

Doll-Van Film Corporation of Chicago and Indianapolis, has closed contracts with Exclusive Features, Inc., for the series of two-reel Tom Mix reissues, for Indiana and northern Illinos.

* * *

Arrow Film Corporation reports the sale of considerable territory on several of the productions that they are handling.

Francis Ford Explains Origin of "Phil Kelly"

WITH the releasing of "The Silent Mystery," the Francis Ford serial in which he again portrays the role of Phil Kelly, considerable speculation has been caused as to how he came to originate this character, which he has used in a number of previous productions. In answer to this, Mr. Ford states "Phil Kelly is really an evolution. When I was a boy characters on this order always fired my imagination. 'The Three Musketeers' and 'Monte Cristo' were my favorites, and I think it was shortly after I read the latter that Kelly began to take shape in my consciousness.

"I had always wanted to act since I was old enough to remember anything, and about this time I was filled with an overwhelming urge to impersonate a modern Monte Christo. Kelly began to embody the realization of what I had in my mind—of my most cherished aspirations. I love the character and that's why I have been able to make it apeal to the thousands of friends throughout the country, and it seems that in 'The Silent Mystery' I have had the feeling of him a little more solidly than in previous serials or productions."

Underwood Paints S-L Players.

Clarence Underwood, famous magazine illustrator, has just completed a painting of E. K. Lincoln, Grace Darling and Clara Joel. Miss Darling is supporting the star in his first special vehicle under the S-L banner, and the Underwood painting will be on public view in the lobbies of all first-run picture theatres. It is believed to be the first time that an illustrator of Underwood's reputation has been commissioned to apply his art in exploiting a screen subject.

Jack Weinberg.

Weinberg Tells Why Mix Reissues Sold Rapidly

JACK WEINBERG, secretary and treasurer of Exclusive Features, Inc., who had many years' experience in selling films, states he has never known such an easy-selling proposition as the two-reel Tom Mix comedy dramas that his company has placed on the state rights market.

Mr. Weinberg states it needed no salesmanship to market these short subjects; all that was necessary was to get the buyers to look at the pictures, and a sale was made.

Another interesting fact in regard to the selling of the territorial rights to these two-reel Tom Mix comedy dramas is that the large majority of the state rights buyers were approached through trade paper advertising, almost all the sales being made through the medium of the press.

Reports from exhibitors who have already run the first two releases in the series of sixteen are to the effect that the films are giving universal satisfaction and are excellent material for building up a program.

Ingenue of Rapf Picture Greeted by Harlem Crowd

LILLIAN HALL, the diminutive ingenue of the Harry Rapf production, "Wanted for Murder," in which Elaine Hammerstein is starred, appeared in person at Al Harstn's Harlem Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, one evening last week. The crowd that filled the house greeted both the picture and Miss Hall with much enthusiasm.

Upon being introduced to the audience, Harry Rapf made a short talk, relating several anecdotes in connection with the filming of the picture, and then introduced Miss Hall, who plays the part of Miss Hammerstein's sister in the production. Miss Hall, who is a pretty blonde, then made a few apropriate remarks and immediately won her way to the hearts of the audience.

On leaving the theatre, the crowd assumed such proportions that it required the services of a traffic policeman to enable Mr. Rapf's party to enter the automobile awaiting them.

On account of the success attending Miss Hall's appearance in this house, Manager Harstn has arranged with Mr. Rapf to also have her appear at another of his houses, the Regun.

Critical Reviews and Comments

Conducted by Edward Weitzel, Associate Editor Moving Picture World

"DON'T CHANGE YOUR HUSBAND"

Artcraft Picture Directed by Cecil B. De Mille Is an Amusing Social Satire.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

GREEN onions and cigar ashes play important parts in the De Mille Artcraft picture, "Don't Change Your Husband." It is the little things of life that make for happiness—or the divorce court. Jeanie Macpherson, the author of the scenario, is evidently a firm believer in having these words of wisdom framed and hung up in every home before the newly wedded couple moves in. With such a text for her discourse on the dangers of married life, she has remained consistent to the apparently trivial things of existence and shown that tragedy does not always wear a tragic mask and express itself in sighs and tears and acts of brutal violence, but often lurks in a badly fitting coat, a pair of run down heels or an odor of onions on the breath.

Satirical comedy would seem to be the proper classification of "Don't Change Your Husband," a form of fiction that is practically new to the screen. "Old Wives for New" was on the same order of story, but it followed a novel plan of construction, and had a much greater diversity of characters and incident. The present picture restricts its interest to three people—the eternal triangle of husband, wife and lover. It lacks bigness of treatment in any particular, but there is rare skill in the way every situation and revelation of character is made to advance the mental action of the plot.

Of physical action there is scarcely a trace, but this in no wise detracts from the interest. There is a freshness about the intimate way in which the spectator is taken into the bosom of a family and shown the importance of the commonplace, that will prove a welcome relief from the stock situations of the screen. The unconscious humor of the characters is another excellent quality. Stories of this sort should be encouraged. They are capable of developing entertainment for the mind. Too many pictures are directed solely at the emotions.

The triangle is composed of James Denby, the glue king; his wife, Lelia, and his friend, Schuyler Van Sutphen. Denby is too busy piling up dollars to pay attention to his wife, his personal appearance, his habits or his friend. Leila grows tired of his neglect, gets Denby to let her divorce him, marries Van Sutphen, finds out she has gone from bad to something very much worse, discovers that Denby has come to realize his mistakes and is still in love with her, divorces her second husband and goes back to number one.

The weakest drawn character is Denby. His conduct toward his wife does not appear consistent with his love for her or the mentality he displays in his business and also after he realizes his own stupid neglect. Elliott Dexter, who plays Denby, helps to strengthen this impression by acting the character in the earlier scenes in an indefinite and unconvincing manner. When he reaches the second phase of the man's nature he seems to throw away something that had never belonged to him, and is entirely satisfactory. Gloria Swanson makes Leila appealingly human and full of the arts and graces of lovely womanhood. Lew Cody is the correct type of polished villain as understood by the conventions of the drama.

Cecil DeMille's share of the work accounts for the artistic excellence of the production. He is to be commended for helping the screen to develop a little used form of comedy, and for giving the picture his best endeavors.

Publicity Points.

"Don't Change Your Husband" teaches wives that "out of the frying pan into the fire" is often true of the divorce court. This is told with the saving grace of humor, but the lesson is driven home none the less. The heroine's husband smokes in bed and forgets the anniversary of his wedding day, and it takes a divorce to reform him. But he's honest and really loves his wife, so everyone is pleased when he turns the tables on his rival and wins his wife back again after husband number two shows his true colors.

Gloria Swanson makes her first appearance in a Paramount picture as the heroine of "Don't Change Your Husband." She wears some striking costumes in several imaginative scenes, where she is supposed to be surrounded by all the wealth and pleasure that a lover might dream of showering on her.

IN THIS ISSUE.

Don't Change Your Husband (Artcraft).

Girl With No Regrets (Fox).

The Divorcee (Metro).

Woman! Woman! (Fox).

Creaking Stairs (Universal).

Romance of Happy Valley (Artcraft)

Faith (Metro).

Mollie of the Follies (American).

Mandarin's Gold (World).

Fortune's Child (Vitagraph).

"THE DIVORCEE"

Ethel Barrymore in Metro Screen Version of "Lady Frederick" Scores a Success.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT is fair to suppose that Somerset Maugham, the English playwright, knows the social life of his native land. His stage play, "Lady Frederick," has been put into screen form under the title of "The Divorcee" and produced by Metro, with Ethel Barrymore in the title role. The scenario was made by June Mathis and Katherine Kavanaugh. Herbert Blache directed the production. The story is one of sacrifice on the part of a high-born Irish girl who weds an English nobleman in order to help her family. The noble lord is an out and out cad, and insults his wife at every opportunity when he realizes her heart is given to another, a lover whose poverty kept them apart but who has now come into a title.

Lady Frederick is called upon to make a still greater sacrifice for her family. Her sister, Kitty, now married to a man of position, has been foolish enough to compromise herself with a cad without a title, a certain Robert Montgomery, who forces her to visit him at his rooms under threat of exposing her to her husband. Lady Frederick learns this, and hurries to her sister's aid. She saves her sister by compromising herself. Her husband divorces her.

Later on she is found trying to turn an honest penny at the gambling tables of Monte Carlo. The nephew of her old lover meets her there, and falls in love with her. Lady Frederick does not encourage him, but the young chap will not take no for an answer, and his uncle arrives on the scenes, sent by the boy's mother to save her son from a foolish marriage. This is accomplished by the boy's uncle marrying Lady Frederick himself.

The merit of this picture consists in its perfect balance of story, production and acting. It has the air of good breeding and culture called for by its locale, and deals with men and women in an interesting manner. Ethel Barrymore is as natural and attractive a gentlewoman as one would wish to see. The supporting company is of the best grade. Its leading members are E. J. Ratcliffe, H. E. Herbert, Naomi Childers, John Goldsworthy, Joseph Kilgour and Maud Turner Gordon. Photographed by George Hollister.

"THE GIRL WITH NO REGRETS"

Peggy Hyland the Heroine of Fox Crook Story That Is Full of Sensation.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

MELODRAMATIC from start to finish, "The Girl With No Regrets," a five-part Fox picture taken from a story by Evelyn Campbell, has plenty of live action, and is an excellent specimen of its class of photoplay. Peggy Hyland as Signa Herrick, a young stenographer, who comes to New York to join her sister and finds that she has landed in a den of crooks, plays the part with skill, and is supported by a competent company, of which Charles Clary is the leading member. The production is up to every requirement.

Starting in a small town where Signa Herrick is working in a bank, the scene changes quickly to New York when the heroine goes to join her sister, Janet, who is married to a man named Jim Durling. Jim is a house-breaker, and has taught his wife the art of shop-lifting. Janet has become reconciled to her life, but still loves her sister, and makes her welcome when she arrives. Signa suspects nothing until one day, when she goes shopping with Janet, a gold mesh bag is missed from the store. That night Signa finds it on her sister's bed.

Later in the evening Jim and his pal are chased by a detective, and rush into the house followed by the officer. He can prove nothing against them, but he questions Signa, and, for her sister's sake, she declares that her brother-in-law has been at home all evening.

Signa will no longer remain in such an atmosphere. Through the matron at a rescue mission she obtains a position as secretary to a wealthy man, who has a valuable collection of jewels. Jim, his pal and Janet try to rob Signa's employer, and are caught by the same detective who once questioned the heroine. The officer tries to involve Signa with the others, but the owner of the jewels will not hear of it. He has fallen in love with his secretary, and tells her so then and there. And all ends happily. Harry Millarde directed the picture.

Publicity Points.

There is a sensational shop-lifting scene in "The Girl With No Regrets." Also another neat piece of crook work when the gang start to drill into a safe by making a connection with the electricity and melting the steel around the lock.

"WOMAN! WOMAN!"

Evelyn Nesbit Starred in Fox Picture That Portrays the Seamy Side of Life.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

NORMAN LORMIER is the author of "Woman! Woman!" a five-part Fox picture starring Evelyn Nesbit and directed by Kenean Buel. Life in a small New England town is contrasted with the Bohemian atmosphere of that part of artistic New York known as Greenwich Village. The material used in the story is quite as unconventional as the mode of living followed by a certain element of the colony. Straight laced persons will find the theme anything but agreeable, but the seeker after the sensational and the erotic is assured of a full portion of his favorite food.

While it is probably true that men and women have acted just as they are revealed in "Woman! Woman!" it does not alter the fact that the author's solution of his story is hardly a safe guide to a woman's love and respect. The story is well told, and the acting and production are sufficiently effective to bring out its strong points. Evelyn Nesbit is best in her dramatic scenes, and puts a great deal of real feeling into her work.

Alice Lindsay, a young girl from a New England town, comes to New York and gets a position as governess with Mme. Cecile Langdorf, who introduces her to Greenwich Village. Here she meets Samson Rathbone, a civil engineer, and, becoming apprehensive of the free and easy life around her, accepts Rathbone's offer of marriage. The couple are happy until Rathbone is forced to go to South America on professional duty. The wife, left in New York, becomes the victim of an elderly man of great wealth. Her husband is taken sick when he reaches his destination, and Alice runs out of money. She will not listen to the temptor, Mackay, at first; but when her husband must have funds in order to save his life the woman yields.

Rathbone returns to New York, a child is born to Alice, Mackay betrays that he is its father, and Rathbone turns Alice and her baby into the street. Mackay offers to marry the mother of his child, and Alice accepts him.

Clifford Bruce, Gareth Hughes, William H. Tooker and Anna Luther have prominent parts in the support.

Publicity Points.

The Greenwich Village scenes in "Woman! Woman!" are the real thing, being taken in MacDougal street and the other thoroughfares of New York's Bohemian quarter. There is a story within a story in "Woman! Woman!" a tale of Japan, brief in the telling, but tragic in its effect on the heroine of the main story.

"CREAKING STAIRS"

Six-Reel Universal Special Attraction Presents Mary MacLaren in Gripping Story.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

RUPERT JULIAN, who adapted and directed this offering from the original story by Evelyn Campbell, has already made an enviable reputation for getting strong dramatic effects, and this number will add greatly to that good repute. He has here evolved a gripping psychological situation, which has more thrills and suspense than the best of melodramas often attain. He has developed with striking success the soul-struggles of at least two characters and done it in a way that leaves a marked impression on the observer.

Mary MacLaren is cast in the role of "Dearie" Lane, a girl who marries one man after admitting to mistaken relations with another. Jack Mulhall plays the husband Fred Millard, and Herbert Prior appears as the other man Mark Winfield. These characters all have important work to do and carry it out admirably. Jack Mulhall contributes a surprise of his own in the way he rises to sustained drama, since he has never done much beside rollicking comedy. Two minor characters, played by Clarissa Selwyn and Lucretia Harris, are also well acted.

There is a good contrast in photographic effects running through this picture. The first scenes are bright and full of charm and later, while serious events are progressing, there is a realistic storm, punctuated by flashes of lightning. The night photography is very fine and the wierd atmosphere is unusually good.

The plot is comparatively simple, but powerful in its development. The heroine's first admirer, who is subject to heart attacks, appears after her marriage. He dies while calling upon her, and the wife, having already told her husband of her previous relations with Winfield, despairs of making him believe the truth. The entire suspense is aroused by her efforts, assisted by two other women, to hide the body and keep the story from her husband. In the end he learns the truth, but in such a way that a reconciliation follows.

Publicity Points.

The entire handling of this story is suggestive of the wierd tales of Edgar Allen Poe. The storm scene is wonderfully effective, and barking dogs, a black cat, muffled figures carrying a body through the night—all in a driving rain—altogether constitute a striking picture.

The opening scenes are also appealing in their way, being in exact contrast to those in the middle reels. The flower shop setting is attractive and also the scenes along the river.

"A ROMANCE OF HAPPY VALLEY."

D. W. Griffith's Latest Artcraft Picture Has Much Merit and One Serious Fault.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

WHEN we go to see a D. W. Griffith production we know beforehand — . that whatever the subject matter, its general treatment will be guided by good taste and a certain individual finish that is noteworthy. "A Romance of Happy Valley" is no exception to the rule. This Artcraft picture was taken from a published story. It tells of the simple folk in a small town down South, and how their narrow views of life almost wreck the future of young John L. Logan and his sweetheart, Jennie Timberlake.

The first half of the story is a study in character that delights by its quaintness and truth. Then comes a change in the mood of the picture that is as unexpected as a snow storm in June. And to many spectators it will be as unwelcome. From a well balanced and consistent tale it suddenly turns into a highly colored melodrama with a convenient bank robbery, the mortgage-on-the-farm motive and an attempt on the part of the elder Logan to murder and rob a stranger who turns out to be his own son. The way this situation is juggled and the wounded bank robber made to change places with the native son, who ran away seven years before to make his fortune in the city, will be accepted by a portion of moving picture patrons, but not by all.

John Logan, sire, is very religious, and so is his wife. When their son hints that he wants to go to New York and get rich both parents are shocked. Young John is marched off to church and prayed with until he sees the error of his ways and accepts religion. His sweetheart is afraid he will backslide, and he does. The lure of the city is too strong for him. He is gone seven years and returns a rich man. His father's attempt to murder him does not prove successful, and the young man marries the faithful Jennie, who was commencing to think she would be forced to remain an old maid.

Lillian Gish plays Jennie and once more departs from her old line of work to create a character part that is a compound of wistful awkwardness and inward grace. Some of her business approaches dangerously near to farce, but it is funny and most persons will forgive its introduction. Robert Harron is as likable and effective as ever as a straight-forward young hero. George Fawcett and Kate Bruce, as John Logan's parents, are prominent members of an excellent cast. The picture is in five parts.

Publicity Points.

A new atmosphere devoid of war is one of the features of this Griffith release. There is a church scene that is just about the real thing and has a streak of unconscious humor that is very amusing.

There is a complication in the latter part of the story that will hold the attention and keep the spectator guessing just how things are going to come out.

"FAITH"

Metro Production with Bert Lytell Is a Simple, but Human Story That Will Touch the Heart.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THIS Metro picture lives up to its name. If you haven't lost your faith in human nature and are tired of the war dramas and clever crook plays here is a simple little story told so sincerely by the author and produced in so nearly the same spirit that it will have many admirers. "Faith" was written by Richard Washburn Child, and adapted by George D. Baker and A. G. Kenyon. It shows how one woman, a faithful old school teacher, loved and trusted the son of the man who had once been her sweetheart before they quarreled and parted forever. It is her trust and the trust of his own sweetheart that saves George Farley from the consequences of his own weakness, when he is tempted to steal a valuable necklace.

After leaving the little country town where he was born and went to school George comes to the city. He has risen to be watchman in a safe deposit vault when the story opens. Charity Carvice, the little sweetheart of his school days, is also working in the city. One day they meet and Charity tells him of Martha Owen, his old teacher, who is now blind and poor and is living with her. She asks George to visit Martha, who believes he is in trouble.

The boy goes and, prompted by Charity, pretends he is in great trouble so that his old friend may show her faith in him. He tells about taking a necklace from the vault, and Martha advises him to take it back and acknowledge his fault. He promises. When Charity and he are alone George takes the necklace from his pocket and confesses he has been telling only the truth. Charity and Martha go with him to the banker whose wife owns the necklace. Their influence saves him from punshment and wins him a position with the man of millions.

Such a story depends entirely on the real feeling put into their parts by the members of the cast. Bert Lytell as George Farley, Rosemary Theby as Charity Owen and Edythe Chapman as Martha Owen filled their roles admirably. Equally acceptable are Edwin Stevens as the banker and Nancy Chase as his wife.

Publicity Points.

"Faith," aside from the simple strength of its story, shows the inside workings of a large safe deposit vault and the manner in which its business is conducted.

There is an extra punch at the end of the story that is as pleasing as it is unexpected. It illustrates the kind of tests of honesty any young chap may be put to who occupies a position of trust.

"MOLLIE OF THE FOLLIES."

Five-Reel American Subject Features Margarita Fisher in Light Comedy.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE comedy values in this five-reel subject, "Mollie of the Follies," are strongest at the beginning and in the final reel. It has a good light comedy swing and a fairly strong plot, but the number reaches a very thin point in some of the situations in the third and fourth reels. However, it comes back later with some good twists and should go quite well with the average audience.

Margarita Fisher is cast in the role of Molly Malone, a dancing girl at a beach sideshow. Her particular job is to dance in front of her particular palace of amusement in order to attract crowds, and the opening scenes depict her at this occupation. Lule Warrenton, who plays the mother of the girl, is a Mystic Hindu Seeress, and Molly's lover, Joe, portrayed by Jack Mowrer, is a tank performer, known as the Humane Submarine. It would have carried out the illusion more strongly if there had been a few more "freak" characters, but the settings are admirable and do much to convey a proper atmosphere.

It is while dancing in front that Molly first observes a young man named Milton Wallace watching her with open-mouthed admiration. She presently kicks off a slipper, which strikes Milton in the eye. Later they become acquainted on the beach, and Joe's jealousy is at once aroused. Molly quarrels with Joe, whom she suspects of being in love with her mother, and elopes with Milton. They go to the latter's home where Molly catches a supposed burglar during the night. In the morning other residents of the place appear and she learns that her burglar is in realty the owner of the place and that Milton is only the chauffeur. Then Joe appears and claims her, much to her own delight.

This was adapted from a story by Peter Clark MacFarlane in the Red Book Magazine, and directed by Edward Sloman. Others in the cast are Millard L. Webb, J. Farrell MacDonald and Mary Lee Wise.

Publicity Points.

The "side show settings" and other beach attractions are very good, the producers having used real concessions for the picture. This gives a pleasing atmosphere to the story.

Margarita Fisher has a pleasing style for light comedy, which has been apparent in many previous offerings.

"FORTUNE'S CHILD"

Gladys Leslie Featured in Five-Part Vitagraph Production Gives Pleasing Portrayal of Waif Who Tumbled Into Fortune's Way.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE five-part Vitagraph production, "Fortune's Child," directed by Joseph Gleason, gives Gladys Leslie plenty of opportunity to "spread" the pleasing personality with which she has been endowed. The sceario was written by Lawrence McCloskey, and while it has not the lines of a big story, it has a good plot well supplied with interesting detail. The super-critical observer might accuse the director of instituting an anti-climax in bringing into too great prominence the family life of the Wynnes at the time of the return of the kidnapped baby. Apart from this, however, the production is one that provides good wholesome entertainment. Other members of the cast are Kampton Greene, Stanley Walpole, Frances Mann, Fred Smith, Jessie Stevens, Denton Vane, Frank Norcross and Miriam Miles.

A waif who is only tolerated by the boarding house mistress with whom she has been left, and for whom she slaves, is one day accused of stealing from a boarder and is threatened with the house of correction. She runs away and once again becomes the plaything of fate when a baby is thrust into her arms by a prize-fighter who has rescued it from "Superstitious Louis," its kidnapper. The girl and the child are taken into the prize-fighter's home, and before the latter is able to locate the parents of the child he is badly injured in a prize bout and taken to a hospital. In the meantime the baby is stolen by "Superstitious Louis" and a woman accomplice who has discovered its whereabouts and taken to the boarding house which the waif deserted. The girl, recognizing Louis as a boarder with her former mistress, rescues the child and restores it to its parents with whom she is now employed. As a reward she is made one of the family until Jimme, who has been set up in business by the baby's father, can make good on the romance which has sprung up between the pair.

Publicity Points.

The romance of a waif and a prize-fighter presents a situation that the public will like.

The old saying, "And a little child shall lead them," proves true for a prize-fighter and a waif. The thrilling struggle with the kidnapper for the safety of the little one leads them straight to fortune and happiness.

Human interest, plenty of action among varied characters, and situations which create suspense will make the production a good box-office attraction.

"MANDARIN'S GOLD"

Five-Reel World Picture Features Kitty Gordon and Warner Oland in Celestial Subject.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

A FINE Oriental atmosphere overhangs this pleasing subject, which makes a nice appeal to the imagination and has certain picturesque qualities that should make it generally attractive. It opens with a brief prologue picturing a youth in China reading a Chinese legend about a mysterious woman who has power over a Mandarin prince and his wealth. The story proper is told in New York City, and many of the scenes of Chinatown.

Kitty Gordon is cast in the role of Betty Cardon, a butterfly wife, who plays bridge as though it were tiddledywinks and runs up large debts for her husband to pay. Betty is also toying with the affections of an admirer named Geoffrey North, who is ready at any moment to seriously compromise her. Betty, it develops later, is the woman of the Chinese legend who has power over the Mandarin.

It is while slumming in Chinatown with her friend, Susan Pettigrew, who teaches a school for young Celestials, that Susan becomes interested in Tai Sun, daughter of a Chinese merchant. Tai is beloved by a clerk in her father's store, but Li Hsun, a visiting Mandarin, desires her, and endeavors to take her by force. After falling into the hands of the Mandarin, Tai escapes and goes to Betty, who shields her at the risk of her life until her own desire for gold induces her to sell the girl to the Mandarin. This latter feature is in reality only a dream, and at the close Tai is restored to her lover. The dream feature is, of course, an old device, and rather weakens the effect of the closing scenes, which, we think, would have been stronger if worked out in a more consistent way. However, the story interest is strong.

Warner Oland plays the Mandarin to the life. He has a fine make-up, and makes a great deal of this sort of role. Irving Cummings plays the husband and George MacQuarrie the admirer. Others in the cast are Marguerite Gale, Veronica Lee, Joseph Lee, Marion Barney and Tony Merlo. The story was written by Philip Lonergan, adapted by Lucien Hubbard and directed by Oscar Apfel.

Publicity Points.

This offering may be safely extolled as one with a genuine Chinese atmosphere. Furthermore it has many real Chinese players in it and many of the scenes are laid in a real Chinatown. Its sets and costumes are "right," and there is much appeal to the eye as well as the imagination.

Kitty Gordon has a congenial role in this, and is ably seconded by Warner Oland, whose part as the Mandarin is a splendid piece of character work.

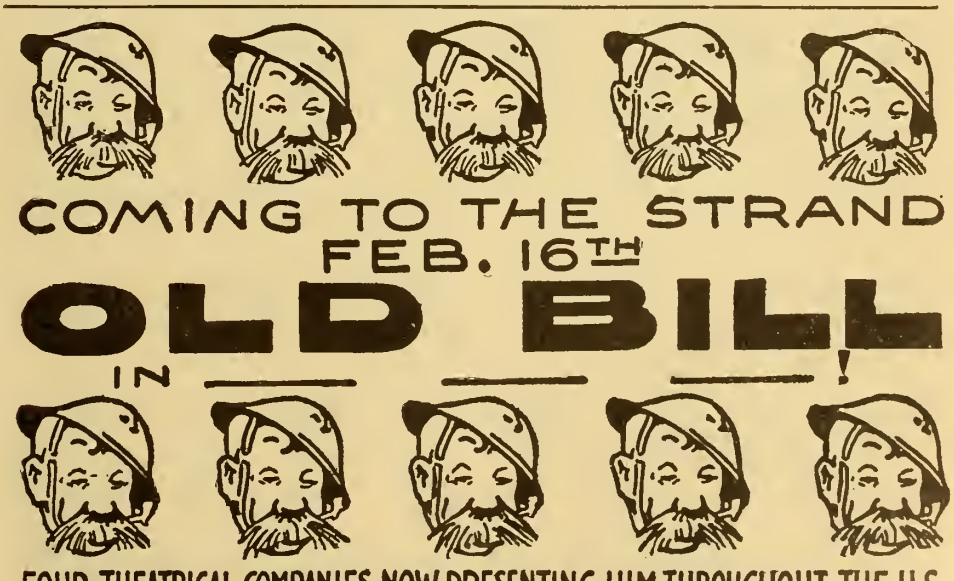
COMMENTS

Fox Film Corporation.

OWHAT A KNIGHT! (Fox Sunshine Comedy), Jan. 26.—A fine two-reel knockout number, produced by Henry Lehrman. Mack Swain is featured as an overgrown mother's boy who eats enormous meals and loves a girl named Susan. There is a lot of laughable burlesque in this, much better than ordinary. The action is also very good. Ethel Teare plays the heroine.

Universal Film Company.

MIXED TALES (Star Comedy), Feb. 24.—A laughable subject featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Gertrude Astor and Mildred Moore. This opens with a "morning after" scene. The young men have been arrested during the night, and one is forced to borrow a wife and baby to make a showing before a detective. One of the real wives appears, and amusing complications follow. A good comedy of the type.



Advertising Aids for Busy Managers

"COME AGAIN SMITH"

Jesse D. Hampton Presents J. Warren Kerrigan in the Story of a Millionaire's Son Who Could Spend Money But Not Make It.

Cast.

Joe Smith.....J. Warren Kerrigan
Ned Stevens.....H. A. Barrows
Franklin Overton.....William Conklin
Anne Stevens.....Winnifred Greenwood
Lucy Stevens.....Lois Wilson
Joe Smith, Sr.....Charles French
John Creighton.....Walter Perry
Directed by E. Mason Hopper.

The Story: Joe Smith, senior, tells his son that he is good only to spend money. He cannot make it. The boy decides to prove his father wrong, but has about concluded that the old man is right, for he is reduced to the level of a vagrant when he is taken up by Ned Stevens, who seeks to reclaim him. Smith is told to invent a story to account for his improved condition and he tells the truth, which no one save Stevens' sister believes. Overton, a mine swindler, hires Joe to travel with him to give the impression that the elder Smith is backing the mine, but Lucy Stevens' inquiry to the old man brings him East and the matter is straightened out.

Feature J. Warren Kerrigan as the spendthrift who tells the truth to help him out in an emergency, but is only believed by the one girl.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Jack Kerrigan Star of Speedy Photoplay in Which Dan Cupid Outwits Opposition.
Thrills and "Punch" in Stirring Drama of New York Society.
Speculation in Stocks and Hearts Reaps Rich Reward.
Sensational Adventures of Society Youth in Winning Freak Bet.
Unusual Outcome of Strange Wager of Hearts Against Stocks and Bonds.

Advertising Angles: Play up Kerrigan, of course, and for the secondary angle play up the character. Tell that he got the name of "Come Again" from his lavish expenditures and then sank to the level of a tramp in his efforts to prove that he could earn as well as spend. Change copy for each advertisement, but center it all upon Smith and his adventures. Get them interested to the point where they want to see the rest.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one and three sheets. One six-sheet. Thumbnail and one to three column cuts in electros or mats. Press book.
Released February 10.

IN THIS ISSUE

Come Again Smith (Hodkinson).
The Call of the Soul (Fox).
Mandarin's Gold (World).
Heart of Gold (World).
Cheating Cheaters (Select).
The Game's Up (Bluebird).
Adele (United Picture Theatres).
The Darling of Paris (Fox).
The Highest Trump (Vitagraph).
Woman! Woman! (Fox).
Todd of the Times (Pathe).
The Roughneck (World).
Don't Change Your Husband (Artcraft).
The Amazing Impostor (American).

"THE CALL OF THE SOUL"

William Fox Presents Gladys Brockwell in the Story of a Dreadful Night and the Years of Suffering Which Followed.

Cast.

Barbara Deming.....Gladys Brockwell
Doctor Clayton.....William Scott
Mrs. Weber.....Lydia Yeamans Titus
Neil McClintock.....Charles Clary
The Baby.....Nancy Caswell
Directed by E. J. LeSaint.

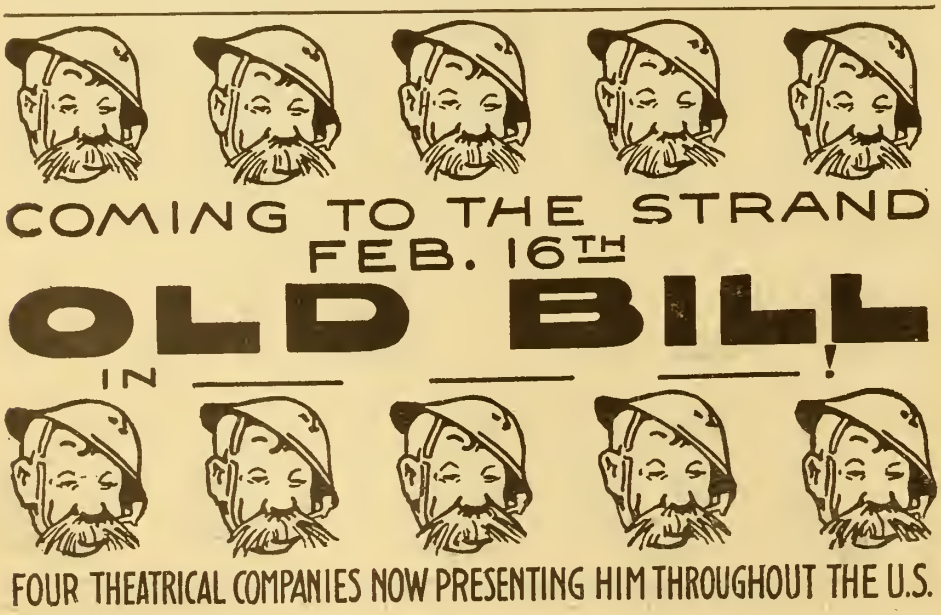
The Story: Barbara Deeming, a trained nurse picnicing with Dr. Clayton, head of the hospital in which she serves, is wronged by him. He offers to marry her, but she refuses. Some years later she marries Neil McClintock, a friend of Clayton's, not telling him of her secret. The child is taken ill, and she enlists Clayton's professional skill. The child is saved, but McClintock has followed them, and discovers all. He is disposed to put his wife away, but Clayton tells him that Barbara has never loved him, and Clayton goes out of their lives forever, leaving Barbara to happiness.

Feature Gladys Brockwell as the nurse, William Scott as the physician and Charles Clary as McClintock.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Beautiful Gladys Brockwell Star of Intensely Sympathetic Story Reflecting a Woman's Wrongs.
A Story of the Inequality of Sex Wherein Woman Pays the Penalty.
Man's Brutal Betrayal Stamps the Life of Helpless Victim with Sadness.
Sunshine of Happiness Flecked with Shadows of the Bitter Past.
A Tale of Mother Love Embarrassed by Wifely Devotion.

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Brockwell. For the story angle offer this: "Barbara Deeming is the mother of Dr. Clayton's child. She has married Neil McClintock, a famous explorer. The child becomes ill, and she calls the father to its rescue. For the first time the husband learns of his wife's secret. She loves one man. The other is the father of her child. To which do you think she should cling? You can find the answer in 'The Call of the Soul' at (house and date)." Elaborate on this and rouse their curiosity, changing the program story to conceal the climax.

Advertising Aids: One, three and six sheets, two styles of each. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Announcement slide. Cuts, mats and press sheets (cuts are made on special order at rate of 20 cents per column; mats and press sheets are mailed gratis).
Released January 19.



"MANDARIN'S GOLD"

World Pictures Presents Kitty Gordon in a Story of Modern Society in Which an Old Chinese Legend and a Modern Chinatown Are Deftly Woven.

Cast.

Betty Condon.....Kitty Gordon
Blair Condon.....Irving Cummings
Geoffrey North.....George MacQuarrie
Susan Pettigrew.....Marguerite Gale
Cherry Blossom.....Alice Lee
Li Hsun.....Warner Oland
Wu Sing.....Joseph Lee
Mrs. Stone.....Marion Barney
Bertie Standish.....Tony Merlo
Directed by Oscar Apfel.

The Story: Betty Condon, a social butterfly, dearly loves her husband, but finds Geoffrey North a pleasant partner at cards, though he invariably wins. He loans her money to pay her losses, and scandal links their names. A friend, Susan Pettigrew, a mission worker, gets her to care for a little Chinese girl about to be sold to a Mandarin. The latter, learning of Betty, offers a rich bribe. In a vision Betty accepts to cover her gambling losses, but she wakens from the terrible dream, and, her lesson learned, promises not to gamble again. The predicament into which she nearly forced little Cherry Blossom has been too horrible.

Feature Kitty Gordon as Betty Condon, Irving Cummings as Blair Condon and Warner Oland as Li Hsun.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Beautiful Kitty Gordon's Back in Newest Photoplay by World Pictures.
Picturing Chinese Legend in Thrilling Scenes and Amazing Episodes.
Picture of Oriental Life and Love With Kitty Gordon Starring.
Highly Sensational Episodes Make "Mandarin's Gold" Exceptional Film.
Kitty Gordon Star of Highly Sensational Picture Play.

Advertising Angles: Here is a vividly picturesque story in addition to a popular star. Work both angles. Miss Gordon will draw business, but if you can announce the play attractively you can make new patrons. Tell that it is a novel blending of old China, the Chinatown of an American city and society. Pick out the Cherry Blossom incident and play that up, with a side angle on the evils of society gambling.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, two six-sheets, two eight-sheets and one 24-sheet. Eight 8x11 black-and-white, eight 11x14 colored, and two 22x28 colored lobby displays. One two-column cut, two one-column cuts. Slides, press sheets and music cues.

Released January 27.

"HEART OF GOLD"

World-Pictures Presents Louise Huff in the Story of a Little Modiste Who Wins a Prize and a Husband with a Famous Costume.

Cast.

Annie Wilkes.....Louise Huff
May Weatherbee.....Grace Barton
Madame Estelle.....Marion Barney
Mike Monahan.....John Hines
Jack Levinsky.....Robert Fischer
Collins.....Anthony Merlo
Madame Estelle's Husband
William Williams
Fleurette of the Follies..Peggy Vaughan
Don Dargent.....Louis Rheinhardt

Directed by Travers Vale.

The Story: Annie Wilkes, left penniless by the death of her mother, is forced to abandon her art studies and turn to dressmaking. Her artistic instinct enables her to design a costume for which a prize is offered, but the prize is awarded her employer, who discharges her when she makes a claim to a share of the profits. An unscrupulous lawyer betrays her interests but in the end her friend, Mike Monahan, gets the newspapers interested and she comes into her own.

Feature Louise Huff as the girl who designs a prize costume and comes near being defrauded of both glory and remuneration by an unscrupulous employer.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Louise Huff Star of Sensational Issue of Thrilling World Photoplay.
How a Pretty Little Seamstress Won Rich Prize in Dan Cupid's Lottery.
Plenty of "Pep and Ginger" Supplied by Dashing Johnny Hines in Photoplay.
Snap and Sparkle in Lively Screen Comedy-Drama with Louise Huff Starring.
How a Prize Design Won More Than Cash Reward When Cupid Stepped In.

Advertising Angles: In addition to the use of Miss Huff's name, spread on the $5,000 prize costume. Make the women want to see it through your talk. Get the women interested and they will make the men bring them. For a side angle tell that this is the inside story of the great dressmaking establishments in New York.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, two six-sheets, two eight-sheets and one 24-sheet. Eight 8x11 black-and-white, eight 11x14 colored, and two 22x28 colored lobby displays. One two-column cut, two one-column cuts. Slides, press sheets and music cues.

Released January 27.

"CHEATING CHEATERS"

Clara Kimball Young and Her Own Company Present a Screen Version of Max Marcin's Great Stage Success.

Cast.

Ruth Brockton.....Clara Kimball Young
Grace Palmer.....Anna Q. Nilsson
Tom Palmer.....Jack Holt
George Brockton.....Frederick Burton
Steven Wilson.....Frank Campeau
Antonio Verdi.....Nicholas Dunaew
Mrs. Brockton.....Mayme Kelso
Ira Lazarre.....Tully Marshall
Mr. Palmer.....Edwin Stevens
Phil.....Jess Singleton
Mrs. Palmer.....Eleanor Hancock
Ruth's chauffeur.....W. A. Carroll

Directed by Allan Dwan.

The Story: "Cheating Cheaters" is one of the most unusual plays ever produced on either stage or screen. In it Miss Young has the role of a clever secret service operative, who apparently is a member of a famous band of crooks. As the leader of one band, she plans to rob the home of the supposedly wealthy Palmers, but at the last minute she learns that the Palmers also are crooks, and are themselves planning to rob the Brocktons, the name which the first band has taken. There is a general mix-up of families, crooks and secret service people, but in the end things are smoothed out, and the seed of an unusual romance takes root.

Feature Clara Kimball Young in the star, Anna Q. Nilsson, Jack Holt, Nicholas Dunaew and Edwin Stevens.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Clara Kimball Young Brings Her Latest and Greatest Comedy Success to the Screen.
Famous Stage Comedy of Great Popularity Brought to the Screen.
Amazing Revelations in the Operation of Rival Bands of Crooks.
Famous Star Supported by the Best Company Ever Seen in Pictures.
Star of Screen Star of a Company of Dramatic Stars in Great Hit.

Advertising Angles: Miss Young is your chief appeal. Work that to the limit. Advertise this widely as a story by Max Marcin, which ran for a season in New York following his "House of Glass." Call attention to the strong supporting cast. Ring the changes on the title such as, "If a cheater cheats a cheater, is the cheater the person who cheats or the cheater cheated or both? How can a cheater cheat a cheater if the cheated is also a cheater? See the play at (house and date) and figure it out for yourself."

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Window cards, 14x21. Heralds. Lobby display photographs, 8x10, 11x14, 22x28. Slides. Cuts, two one-column, two two-column, one three-column, one one-half-column cut of star and one one-column and one two-column cuts of star.

Released in January.

"THE GAME'S UP"

Bluebird Presents Ruth Clifford in the Story of a Young Girl's Success That Never Happened and What Came of Her White Lies.

Cast.

Peter Neyland.....Al Ray
Ruth Elliott.....Ruth Clifford
Mildred Colburn.....Mildred Lee
McQuade.....Harry Holden
Mrs. Peabody Jones..Margaret Cullington
Ted Latham.....Clifford Gray
P. Van Rennselaer Neyland
John Hay Cossar

Directed by Elsie Jane Wilson.

The Story: Ruth Elliott comes to the city to win fortune with her brush and sends back glowing accounts of her great success. Then a girl from the old home town comes to the city and Ruth invests her last fifteen dollars in an automobile tour, persuading the chauffeur to pose as her employe. Then she finds that the girl is to stay a week and is desperate, but the chauffeur helps her out, and though they very nearly find themselves in jail, it all ends as stories should.

Feature Ruth Elliott as the girl who uses ingenious methods to keep up the appearance of success and unexpectedly wins happiness.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Dainty Ruth Clifford Star of Newest Bluebird Photoplay of Love and Adventure.
How An Impoverished Girl Made a "Bluff" to Win Life's Happiness.
Happy Outcome of an Unusual Situation in Which Love Conquers.
Novel Plot in Swift Moving Photoplay of Romance and Excitement.
The "Romancing" of a Foolish Girl Leads to Happy Ending of Cupid's Romance.

Advertising Angles: Play up the situation of the girl who has lied about her

IN LOVING MEMORY OF
JOSEPH KAUFMAN
Died, February 1, 1918
ETHEL CLAYTON KAUFMAN

240 East Ontario Street, CHICAGO
225 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK
In thh Service of Uncle Sam
Uncle Sam needs all the UNIVERSALS we can make. You will have to wait a while; but a Universal Motion Picture Camera is worth waiting for. Get acquainted now. Write for catalog.
BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
240 East Ontario Street, CHICAGO
225 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as are requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC CO.
West 114th Street, Cleveland, Ohio

We Manufacture
Complete EXIT Signs
65 to 70 Cents in Quantity
Also Fire Escape Signs and Other Specialties
T. L. ROBINSON & CO.
105 W. Monroe St., Chicago

GUARANTEED
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—total, 25,300; by States.$3.50 Per M.
1,500 film exchanges..... 5.00
313 manufacturers and studios..... 2.00
368 machine and supply dealers..... 2.00
Further Particulars:
A. F. WILLIAMS, 166 W. Adams St., Chicago

success, being compelled to bluff through a week's visit of one of the home town girls. Use the "What would you do?" style of advertising and get them interested to the point where they will come to see what was done. Don't merely stick to the main theme but pick up such bits as "Suppose the police came and asked you what you were doing in a strange man's house. What would you have done?"

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Stock one-sheet of star. Colored and black-and-white lobby displays. Slide. Heralds. Players' cuts in three sizes. Scene cuts one and two columns wide. Press book.

Released January 20.

"ADELE"

United Picture Theatres, Inc., Presents Kitty Gordon in a Wonderful Story Based Upon Adele Bleneau's Novel, The Nurse's Story.

Cast.

Adele Bleneau.....Kitty Gordon
Captain Fraser.....Mahlon Hamilton
Count von Schulling...Wedgwood Nowell
Doctor Bleneau.....Joseph Dowling

Directed by Wallace Worsley.

The Story: Adele Bleneau has as rivals for her heart Captain Fraser, of the English army, and Count von Schulling, of the Prussian embassy. She enlists as a nurse and does splendid service with the American Red Cross. Learning that Fraser is wounded, she goes with a party which brings him in from No Man's Land. Later von Schulling, also wounded, is brought in and placed in the same room with Fraser, whom he attempts to kill. The Germans capture the hospital and von Schulling gives Adele the alternatives of betraying her country or seeing Fraser shot. How she comes out of the ordeal forms one of the most effective incidents in the catalogue of war plays.

Feature Kitty Gordon as a Red Cross Nurse who finds herself in the dilemma of betraying her country or seeing her sweetheart shot.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Demonstrating the Vital Choice Between Lasting Love and Fighting Loyalty.
Kitty Gordon's Back in Sensational Society Photoplay.
"The Nurse's Story" Transferred to the Screen and Dedicated to Red Cross.
Hun Beastliness and Woman's Strength Measured in Exciting Episodes.
How An American Girl Took the Measure of Treacherous Kultur.

Advertising Angles: Use Miss Gordon's name and make appeal to the girls who went across, the girls who wanted to and didn't and the Red Cross girls at home. Use the term "A romance of the Red Cross" in preference to billing it as a war story. Pick up the thrills for single advertisements, but hold to the Red Cross angle while making it plain that it is the story of a Red Cross nurse and not the organization itself.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one twenty-four sheet; twelve 8x10, eight 11x14 and two 22x28 photos; one one-column and one two-column star and ad cuts, mats and slides.

"THE DARLING OF PARIS"

William Fox Presents Theda Bara in a Revised Version of Her Great Success Based Upon Victor Hugo's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Cast.

Esmeralda .....Theda Bara
Quasimodo .....Glen White
Claude Frollo.....Walter Law
Captain Phoebus.....Herbert Heyes
Paquette.....Miss Carey Lee
Gypsy Queen.....Alice Gale
Clopin.....John Webb Dillion
Gringouier.....Louis Dean

Directed by J. Gordon Edwards.

The Story: Claude Frollo, a priest of historic Notre Dame, becomes enamored of Esmeralda, a gypsy girl. Quasimodo, the hunchbacked bell ringer of the cathedral, also cherishes a hopeless love. Frollo, driven to desperation by Esmeralda's love for Phoebus, kills the latter, and causes Esmeralda to be arrested for the crime, threatening her with the torture unless she yields to his demands. She is rescued by the bell ringer, but recovered by Frollo, who turns her over to punishment, and is dashed to death from the roof of the cathedral by the infuriated bell ringer as Esmeralda is executed.

Feature Theda Bara as Esmeralda, the Darling of Paris, founded on Victor Hugo's well known novel, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Program and Advertising Phrases: Theda Bara, Queen of Vampires, Seen in Her Latest Reflections of Love and Intrigue.
Great Screen Drama Based on Victor Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame."
Tragic Romance and Palpitating Love Plot in Tense Screen Play.
Drama of Profound Human Interest Acted by Cast of Screen Artists.
Theda Bara as a Gypsy Vampire Seen in Her Best Screen Portrayal.

Advertising Angles: Tell that this is one of the Fox reissues brought out in a new version because of the original success of the play. Tell of the fine mob scenes, the accuracy of the settings, and emphasize the fact that this is taken from Victor Hugo's celebrated story often done on the speaking stage under the book title and also as Esmeralda.

Advertising Aids: One, three and six sheets, two styles of each. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Announcement slide. Cuts, mats and press sheets (cuts are made on special order at rate of 20 cents per column; mats and press sheets are mailed gratis).

Released February 16.

"THE HIGHEST TRUMP"

Albert E. Smith Presents Earle Williams in the Amazing Story of a Bride Who Planned to Kill Her Husband on Their Wedding Night.

Cast.

John Paget } .....Earle Williams
Richard Paget }
Lois Graham.....Grace Darmond
Klassig.....Robert Byrem
General Graham.....John Cossar
Von Klem.....C. H. Geldart
Bickers.....Robert Bolder
Anson Dyke.....Miles McCarty

Directed by James Young.

The Story: Richard Paget returns from a long stay in South America just as his brother, John, kills himself. The two men were so alike that Richard hides the identity of the suicide and takes his place, also continuing the courtship of Lois Graham, whom John loved. John has been hopelessly entangled in spy plots, as Richard discovers. He becomes an American aviator, and is downed behind the German lines, but is recognized and returned to the American lines to gain certain desired information. Lois, who has become a Red Cross nurse, discovers that he wears a German decoration, and she determines to kill him on their wedding night, but, with the pistol at his breast, there comes a strange denouement that places matters in a different light.

Feature Earle Williams as the dual spy, Grace Darmond as the girl who determines to kill him.

Advertising Angles: In addition to featuring the players, work the situation of the girl who determines to shoot her

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

No. 478
11/16 Inch
Actual Size

Sample Box of 100 Postpaid 50c.

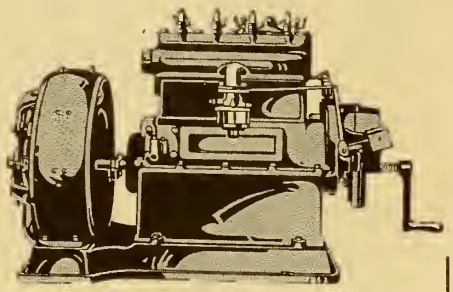
SAVES WEAR AND TEAR ON PAPER

THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK FOR GENERAL USE

SOLIDHED TACK COMPANY
SOLE MAKERS
38 Murray Street, New York

No. 448—½-Inch Tops—30c. per 100
No. 468—⅝-Inch Tops—40c. per 100

Brass-plated to prevent rusting.



4 K. W. Electric Generating Set.

60 or 110 volts for stationary or portable moving picture work and theatre lighting. Smooth, steady current, no flicker. Portable type with cooling radiator all self-contained.

Send for Bulletin No. 26

Universal Motor Co.
OSHKOSH, WISC.

AUTHORS

Recognized photoplay and fiction writers may place their synopses with our Manuscript Sales Department for submission by personal representation to the producers of Southern California. Commission basis.

Unrecognized writers may obtain competent constructive advice and help through the Palmer Plan and Advisory Bureau. Write for our free explanatory booklet.

Palmer Photoplay Corporation
595 I. W. Hellman Bldg. LOS ANGELES, CAL.

husband on their wedding night. Play this up strong, adding that he is a German spy, and asking what caused her to change her mind. Get the hardware store to make a window display of revolvers "for the use of young brides who are about to marry German spies," dressing the window with appropriate stills.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Earle Williams in His Latest Vitagraph Presents Original Screen Theme Delightfully.
Duty Seals War Hero's Lips When His Bride Believes Him Traitor.
Thrilling Story of the Great War Combines Love and Patriotism.
He Served the Stars and Stripes in the Land of the Hun.
Love and Patriotism Combined in a Film of Thrills and Sensations.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six sheets. Window cards. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Heralds. Slides. Plan book. Press sheet.

Released February 3.

"WOMAN! WOMAN!"

William Fox Presents Evelyn Nesbit in the Story of a Girl Who Made a Sacrifice for Her Husband's Sake and Found Only Reproach.

Cast.

Alice Lindsay.....Evelyn Nesbit
Samson Rathbone.....Clifford Bruce
Gwenne Stevens.....Gareth Hughes
Roy Mackay.....William H. Tooker
Bud Hickson.....William R. Dunn
Dr. Langdorf.....Frank Goldsmith
Mme. Cecile Langdorf.....Anna Luther
Mrs. Lindsay.....Nora Cecil
Mr. Lindsay.....Henry Hallam
Marie.....Florence Flinn

Directed by Kenean Buel.

The Story: Alice Lindsay comes to New York from a small town, and is fascinated by the city. She nearly becomes a convert to the free love theories of Greenwich village, but is saved by Samson Rathbone, who sends her back home. But the small town is too small now, and she returns to wed Rathbone. Some years later she seeks help of Roy Mackay that she may support her sick husband. Rathbone learns of her sacrifice and discards her, but in the end Mackay marries the mother of his child, and lasting happiness comes.

Feature Miss Nesbit.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Evelyn Nesbit Star of Tense Dramatic Theme Involving Tempermental Womanhood.
Reflecting the Lights and Shadows of the Great White Way.
An Effective Attempt to Solve the Eternal Riddle—Woman.
Gay Lights and Life of Great City Spells Ruin for Country Girl.
Love's Story Written in Scarlet When Woman's Sacrifice Is Sin.

Advertising Angles: Miss Nesbit is the chief advertising angle. Work on that. For a side angle use the free love discussion, and also ask if Rathbone was fair to the woman in discarding her when she had sacrificed herself for his sake. If you can get a discussion on this you can clean up with the picture on this angle.

Advertising Aids: One, three and six sheets, two styles of each. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Announcement slide. Cuts, mats and press sheets (cuts are made on special order at rate of 20 cents per column; mats and press sheets are mailed gratis).

Released January 26.

"TODD OF THE TIMES"

Pathe Presents Frank Keenan in a Rattling Story of a Newspaper Man Who Found Himself and Turned Things Loose.

Cast.

Theobald Todd.....Frank Keenan
Roy Reynolds.....Buddy Post
Mrs. Todd.....Aggie Herring
Harrison G. Monroe.....Herschel Mayall
Henry Holt.....Geo. Williams
Rodney Plummer.....Joe Dowling
John Watson.....Jay Morley
Janet Milton.....Irene Rich
Lee Martin.....Arthur Milette
Marie.....Ruth Langston

Directed by Elliot Howe.

The Story: Though Theobald Todd has the keenest nose for news in Springfield, he is of such a retiring disposition that his dream of becoming the managing editor of the Times seems little likely to be realized. At home, too, he is henpecked and bulldozed. Then a big story breaks when Todd is temporarily in charge of the office. He "plays it across the page" on his own responsibility, and not only gets the managing editorship, but he uses the blue pencil freely upon the now respectful Mrs. Todd.

Feature Frank Keenan as the modest hero.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Vital Drama of Local Politics in Small Boss-Ridden Cities Throughout the Land.
How a Qualified Newspaper Man Cleaned Up the Town Gamblers.
Fascinating Newspaper Story Illustrated in Photoplay Details.
The Power of the Press Demonstrated in Thrilling Photoplay.
Sensational Events Multiply During Progress of Gripping Photodrama.

Advertising Angles: Get all you can out of Keenan's name, but build up on this by adding that this is a splendid newspaper story with plenty of heart interest and stirring situations. Tell them he had just one chance and took it. Tell them that it is a real story and not just a vehicle for a star, a play splendidly played.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 11x14, both in sepia and color; also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

Released February 9.

"THE ROUGHNECK"

World Pictures Presents Montagu Love in the Story of a Real Man of the Woods Who Was Too Clean for City Politics.

Cast.

John Masters.....Montagu Love
Horace Masters.....Robert Broderick
Armitage.....George DeCarlton
Frances.....Barbara Castleton
Ellery Dale.....Frank Mayo
Ryan.....Albert Hart
"Shark Smith".....James Davis
Toning.....Robert Milash
A Half-Breed Indian.....H. E. Hebert

Directed by Oscar Apfel.

The Story: John Masters, a boss lumberman, is recalled to the city by his father, the political boss, who is dying, and who wishes to turn over to John the position he has won. John is interested in Frances, daughter of Armitage, another politician. Frances does not respond to his advances, but marries him to save her father from exposure. It is not until the real man in John comes out that she realizes that she loves him and takes her place by his side when the gangsters come to his lumber camp to do him up, and he bests them in a terrific fight.

Feature Montagu Love as the lumberman, Barbara Castleton as the wife in name only, Frank Mayo as the rival.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Montagu Love Star of Latest World Film Feature Has Fighting Role.
How a "Rough Neck" Lumberjack Became Political Boss in a Great City.
Beautiful Barbara Castleton Supports Montagu Love in Vital Photoplay.
Lumberjack Beats Political Machine and Wins Fame and Fortune.
Vigorous Romance of the Great Woods Which Turns to Big-City Poltical Life.

"NEWMAN" Brass Frames and Rails

Mr. Exhibitor:

Don't you realize that not alone does "NEWMAN" stand for QUALITY, but also ORIGINALITY?

We are Originators of every conceivable style of frame in which to properly display POSTERS AND PHOTOS.

YOU will eventually use brass frames. WHY not now?

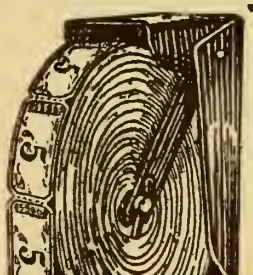
Get our Latest Catalog. It is yours for the asking.

We manufacture the frames in various finishes which do not require polishing.

The Newman Mfg. Co.

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
ESTABLISHED 1882

Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada.
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.
Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings: 5,000, $3.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets: 5,000, $1.25; 25,000, $5.00; 50,000, $7.00; 100,000, $10.00.

PRICES

Five Thousand.....$1.50
Ten Thousand..... 3.00
Fifteen Thousand..... 4.00
Twenty-five Thousand..... 6.00
Fifty Thousand..... 8.00
One Hundred Thousand.....12.00

National Ticket Co., Shamokin, Pa.

Write for our up-to-date price list.

Amusement Supply Co.

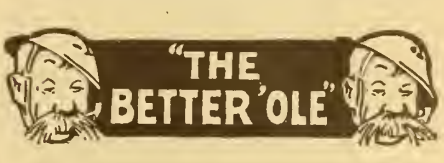
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the
MOTION PICTURE TRADE
300-302 Mallers Bldg.
5 South Wabash Ave.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre
WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe—for authoritative articles by leading British technical men—for brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
Specimen on Application



Advertising Angles: Play up Mr. Love and Miss Castleton in your advertising. Tell that this is the story of a man too big to play petty politics. Try such mystery lines as, "She thought him a roughneck, but she married him to save her father's name." "He was a roughneck, but he was all man." "She cut 'love, honor and obey' out of the marriage ceremony, but the roughneck put it back. See how. The telling makes a mighty story." "A play with the sweet scent of the woods and the reek of the political sewers."

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, two six-sheets, two eight-sheets and one 24-sheet. Eight 8x11 black-and-white, eight 11x14 colored, and two 22x28 colored lobby displays. One two-column cut, two one-column cuts. Slides, press sheets and music cues.

Released February 3.

"DON'T CHANGE YOUR HUSBAND"

Jesse L. Lasky Presents Cecil DeMille's Newest Masterpiece, a Companion Story, but Not a Sequel, to "New Wives for Old."

Cast.

James Denby Porter.....Elliott Dexter
Leila Porter.....Gloria Swanson
Schuyler Van Sutphen.....Lew Cody
Mrs. Huckney.....Sylvia Ashton
The Bishop.....Theodore Roberts
Toodles Thomas.....Julia Faye
Butler.....James Neill

Directed by Cecil DeMille.

The Story: Leila Porter tires of her husband, the glue king. She is romantic and he prosaic. Moreover, he is careless of his personal appearance and eats green onions. What is married life with a husband who eats green onions and then expects to kiss you? She obtains a divorce and marries Schuyler Van Sutphen, but she is only too glad to change back again when she finds what a beast Van Sutphen really is, and is glad enough when Porter is willing to take her back.

Feature Elliott Dexter, Gloria Swanson, Theodore Roberts and Sylvia Ashton.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Cecil DeMille Produces Companion Play to "Old Wives for New" with Great Cast.
Stirring Photoplay Gives New Angle to Ever Present Divorce Problem.
Romance and Mild Adventure Combined in Texture of Society Comedy.
Sociological Problems Blend with Romantic Love in Photoplot.
Where Husbands Get a Chance in Settling Great Domestic Problems.

Advertising Angles: Play this up as a DeMille production, and hook it up with "New Wives for Old" if you have played that, being careful to tell that this is not a sequel. Point to the exceptionally strong cast. But make your strong talking point the lesson of the play. Tell unhappy married women that there are worse masculine traits than eating onions and getting the carpets all full of cigar ash. Tell young girls to see the play that they may know what married life means. Tell the men to take their wives or sweethearts to see the play and get them straightened out. Work all possible changes on this idea. Don't tell too much of the story. Keep them guessing.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released January 26.

"THE AMAZING IMPOSTOR"

American Presents Mary Miles Minter in the Amazing Story of the Romantic Daughter of a Chewing-Gum King.

Cast.

Joan Hope.....Mary Miles Minter
Plinius Plumm.....Plunkett Edw. Johnson
Countess of Crex.....Margaret Shelby
Robt. LaRue.....Carl Stockdale
Kent Standish.....Alan Forrest
Herbert Thornton.....Henry Barrows

Directed by Lloyd Ingraham.

The Story: Joan Hope, whose father is a chewing-gum king, tires of the prosaic and longs for adventure. She is delighted when on the train a countess proposes an exchange of identities. But the countess did not also intend to exchange parcels with Joan, though she gets a box of chewing gum and Joan gets the stolen diamonds the countess is trying to get away with, and which form the reason for her proposed exchange of identity. Joan glories in the situation until some Bolsheviki demand "the papers" and another stranger demands the jewels, but, when she is served with papers in a divorce suit, it is too much, and she is rather glad to be rescued by her father and the detective who has been trailing the supposed countess.

Feature Mary Miles Minter as the little girl who wanted excitement and found more than she bargained for.

Program and Advertising Phrases: How a Beautiful Society Girl Found a Broader and Gayer Life in Her Search for Adventure.
Thrilling Adventures of a Society Girl Who Broke Loose from Tradition.
Problems and Perplexities of Social Adventures Reduced to Photoplaying.
Swift-moving Photoplay Detailing Exciting Adventures in High Society.
Novel Plot Unfolded in Gripping Episodes Combining Romance and Adventure.

Advertising Angles: Make capital of Miss Minter and work hard on the theme of the little girl who wanted adventure and found it. Pick up the things that happen to her, playing them up singly, and always with the hint that there are many more to be told of. Make them want to see just what does happen to the little countess for a week. Put out a couple of street men with bushy, black whiskers, and let them announce to people that they are looking for Mary Miles Minter, who has the papers. Or use a sign for the announcement.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 11x14, both in sepia and color; also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

Released February 2.

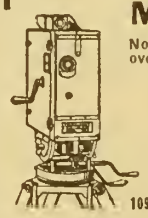
Inventors Will Do Well
TO AVAIL THEMSELVES OF OUR
EXPERIMENTAL DEPARTMENT
Finest Tools, Instruments, Apparatus
TO DO THINGS WITH
ELECTRIC COMPOSITOR CO.
856 BROAD ST. BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
Tools, Jigs, Fixtures, Gages, Punches, Dies
Special Machinery Light Manufacturing

COLOR HOODS ARE BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN ANY DIP

They Slide Over the Lamp
and show Beautiful Permanent Color Effects in Signs, Decorative Lighting, Exit Lights, etc.
Reynolds Electric Co.
422 S. TALMAN AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

PERFECTION IN PROJECTION
Gold King Screen
10 Days' Trial
No. 1 Grade, 75c.; No. 2 Grade, 50c.
Stretchers included
Try before you buy. Sold by all the leading supply dealers throughout the country.
Factory, ALTUS, OKLAHOMA

Watch for coming announcement of
SESSUE HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS
Haworth Pictures Corporation
H. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

See Our Bulletin No. 13 Featuring


M. P. CAMERAS
Now and slightly used. Every one gone over in our OWN SHOP and tested. Yours at BIG BARGAINS
Write for our Bulletin No. 13 Today
BASS CAMERA CO.
109 No. Dearborn St. Dept. 11 Chicago

THE CINEMA
NEWS AND PROPERTY GAZETTE
30 Gerrard Street
W. I. London, England
Has the quality circulation of the trade in Great Britain and the Dominions. All Official Notices and News from the ASSOCIATION to its members are published exclusively in this journal.
YEARLY RATE:
POSTPAID, WEEKLY, $7.25
SAMPLE COPY AND ADVERTISING RATES ON REQUEST
Appointed by Agreement Dated 7/8/14
THE OFFICIAL ORGAN OF
THE CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN & IRELAND, LTD.

Picture Theatres Projected

OPELIKA, ALA.—William Bryan has disposed of Walton Theatre to A. Ginsberg.

KOKOMO, IND.—McGaw & Stevenson, 318 Citizens Bank Building, are preparing plans for one-story moving picture theatre, 66 by 132 feet, to cost $50,000.

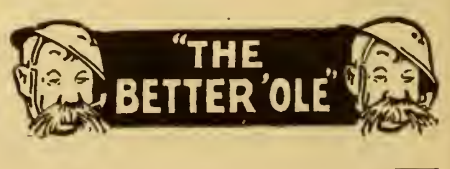
MT. WASHINGTON, MD.—Mount St. Agnes' Institute will remodel theatre attached to building, to cost about $15,000.

DETROIT, MICH.—Otto H. Kavieff, 712 Empire Building, is preparing plans for moving picture theatre, 60 by 85 feet, to be erected on Erskine street, to cost $36,000.

PORT HURON, MICH.—American Theatre is to be enlarged. Improvements include new front and new equipment throughout. When completed house will have seating capacity of over 500.

EVELETH, MINN.—E. Harris Berg is preparing plans for remodeling one-story moving picture theatre, to cost $5,000.

FINLAYSON, MINN.—N. H. Turner has leased opera house and will conduct it as first-class moving picture theatre.



List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

General Film Company, Inc.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

The Heir of the Broken O (Wolfville Tale—Two Parts—Drama).
The Rose of Wolfville (Wolfville Tale—Two Parts—Drama).
A Ramble in Aphasia (O. Henry Story—Two Parts—Drama).

ESSANAY COMEDIES.

Snakeville's New Sheriff (One Part).
Sophie's Birthday Party (One Part).

RAINBOW.
(One-Reel Comedies.)

How She Hated Men.
The Camouflaged Baby.
The Pipe of Peace.
Hooverizing.

OAKDALE PRODUCTIONS.

The Midnight Burglar (Five Parts—Drama).
Wanted, a Brother (Five Parts—Drama).
Little Miss Grown-Up (Five Parts—Drama).

SCRANTONIA FILM COMPANY.
(Featuring Charlie Fang.)

Parson Pepp (One Reel—Comedy).
Fang's Fate and Fortune (One Reel—Comedy).

OFFICIAL WAR PICTURES.
(Committee on Public Information.)

Our Bridge of Ships (Two Reels).

AMERICAN RED CROSS.
(One-Reel Patriotic Films.)

Soothing the Heart of Italy (One Part—Patriotic).
Of No Use to Germany (One Part—Patriotic).
First Aid on the Piave (One Part—Patriotic).
Rebuilding Broken Lives (One Part—Patriotic).
The Kiddies of No Man's Land (One Part—Patriotic).
Victorious Serbia (One Part—Patriotic).
A Helping Hand in Sicily (One Part—Patriotic).
Homeward Bound.
New Faces for Old.
Russia a World Problem.

COSMOFOTOFILM.

I Believe (Six Parts—Drama).

AMERICAN FEATURE FILM CORP.

Hearts of Love (Six Parts—Drama).

MAXWELL PRODUCTIONS.

The Married Virgin (Six Parts—Drama).

Exhibitors-Mutual

STRAND.
(One-Reel Comedies.)

Dec. 22—Beans for Two.
Nov. 17—The Tale of a Hat.
Nov. 24—Just Home Made.
Dec. 1—Are Brunettes False?
Dec. 8—For Love or Money.
Dec. 15—Dan Cupid, M.D.
Dec. 22—Beans for Two.
Dec. 29—They Did and They Didn't.
Jan. 5—Accidental Heroes.

FEATURES.

Nov. 17—The Dare-Devil (Gail Kane—Five Parts—Drama)—29-FK-5.
Nov. 17—Lafayette, We Come (E. K. Lincoln—Six Parts—Drama—Affiliated)—1-SP-L-6.
Dec. 22—The Girl of My Dream (Billie Rhodes—Five Parts—Affiliated).
Dec. 29—And a Still Small Voice (Henry B. Walthall—Five Parts).
Jan. 5—All of a Sudden Norma (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts).
Jan. 12—Life's a Funny Proposition (William Desmond—Five Parts).
Jan. 19—Bonds of Honor (Sessue Hayakawa—Five Parts).
Jan.—Hoop-La (Billy Rhodes).
Jan.—The Eleventh Commandment (Ralph Ince Production.
Feb.—Long Lane's Turning.
Feb.—Tricks of Fate.
Feb.—Diana of the Green Van.
Feb.—Shadows.
Feb.—What Every Woman Wants.

OUTDOOR SUBJECTS.

Nov. 17—Black Feet and Flat Heads—16-O-R-1.
Nov. 24—Bad Men and Good Scenery—17-O-R-1.
Dec. 1—Peaks, Parks and Pines.
Dec. 8—A Maori Romance.
Jan. 5—Teetotalers, Tea and Totem Poles.
Jan. 12—Geesers and Geysers.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASES OF WEEK OF JAN. 5, 1919.

I Want to Be a Lady (Gloria Joy, Two Parts—Comedy Drama—Bartlett).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 1, "The Ebony Block"—Pearl White—Three Parts—Drama—Astra).
Do You Love Your Wife? (Rolin Comedy—Stan Laurel).
Japan of Today No. 2 (Post Travel).
Official War Review No. 28 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 4 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 5 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JAN. 12.

The Midnight Stage (Frank Keenan—Five Parts—Drama).
Wolves of Kultur (Episode No. 14, "The Code of Hate"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 2, "The Counterplot"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
Wanted Five Thousand (Harold Lloyd—Comedy—Rolin).
Shanghai (Post Travel).
Official War Review No. 29 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 6 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 7 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JANUARY 19.

Corinne Comes Home (Gloria Joy—Two Parts—Comedy-Drama—Bartlett).
Wolves of Kultur (Episode No. 15, "The Reward of Patriotism"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 3, "Underworld Terrors"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Love's Young Scream (Alf Goulding—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 1 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 30 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 8 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 9 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JAN. 26.

A Vagabond of Romance (Henri Kraus—Four Parts—Drama).
The Lighting Raider (Episode No. 4, "Through Doors of Steel"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Going! Going! Gone! (Harold Lloyd—Comedy—Rolin).
Official War Review No. 31 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 10 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 11 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 2.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 5, "The Brass Key"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 1, "Prowlers of the Night"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Hustling for Health (Stan Laurel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 2 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 33 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 12 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 13 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 9.

Todd of the Times (Frank Keenan).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 6, "The Mystic Box"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 8, "The Hidden Chart"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Ask Father (Rolin Comedy—Harold Lloyd—One Reel).
The Story of the Orange (One Reel Educational—Leggett Gruen).
Pathe News No. 14 (One Reel—Topical).
Pathe News No. 15 (One Reel—Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 16.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 7, "Meshes of Evil"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 3, "The Chasm of Fear"—Two Parts—Drama—Diaudo).
Toto's Troubles (Toto-Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 3 (Educational).
Pathe News No. 16 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 17 (Topical).

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY.
(Released by Pathe.)

Wives and Other Wives (Mary Miles Minter).
Fair Enough (Marguerite Fisher).
When a Man Rides Alone (William Russell).
Feb. 2—The Amazing Impostor (Mary Miles Minter).
Feb. 16—Molly of the Follies (Margarita Fisher).
Mar. 2—Where the West Begins (William Russell).

Fox Film Corporation

FOX STANDARD PICTURES.

Dec. 1—The She Devil (Theda Bara).
Dec. 15—I Want to Forget (Evelyn Nesbit).
Dec. 29—For Freedom (William Farnum).
Jan. 12—The Light (Theda Bara).
Jan. 26—Woman! Woman! (Evelyn Nesbit).
Feb. 9—Every Mother's Son.
Feb. 23—When Men Desire (Theda Bara).

EXCEL PICTURES.

Dec. 1—Buchanan's Wife (Virginia Pearson).
Dec. 15—Caught in the Act (Peggy Hyland).
Dec. 29—The Danger Zone (Madlaine Traverse).
Jan. 26—The Girl With No Regrets (Peggy Hyland).
Feb. 9—The Love Auction (Virginia Pearson—Five Parts).
Feb. 23—Smiles (Jane and Katherine Lee).

VICTORY PICTURES.

Jan. 5—Treat 'em Rough (Tom Mix).
Jan. 19—The Call of Her Soul (Gladys Brockwell).
Feb. 2—Luck and Pluck (George Walsh).
Feb. 16—The Coming of the Law (Tom Mix).
Feb 16—Hell Roarin' Reform (Tom Mix).
Mar. 2—The Forbidden Room (Gladys Brockwell—Five Parts).
Mar. 16—Never Say Quit (George Walsh).

SUNSHINE & FOX-LEHRMAN COMEDIES

Dec. 15—The Fatal Marriage.
Dec. 29—The Son of a Hun.
Jan. 26—Oh, What a Knight (Two Parts).
Feb. 23—A Soft Tenderfoot.
Feb. 23—A Lady Bellhop's Secret (Two Parts).
Mar. 23—His Musical Sneeze (Two Parts).

MUTT & JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS.

Jan. 19—The Hula Hula Cabaret.
Jan. 26—Dog-Gone Tough Luck.
Feb. 2—Landing an Heiress.
Feb. 9—The Bearded Lady.
Feb. 16—5,000 Miles on a Gallon of Gas.

FOX EXTRAVAGANZAS.

Nov. 17—Fan Fan.
Nov. 24—Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves.

THE GREAT NINE.

Dec. 29—Fighting Blood (William Farnum).
Jan. 5—The Serpent (Theda Bara).
Jan. 12—The Regeneration.
Jan. 19—The Broken Law (William Farnum).
Jan. 26—Under Two Flags (Theda Bara).
Feb. 2—Infidelity (Dr. Rameau).
Feb. 9—The Soul of Broadway (Valeska Suratt).
Feb. 16—The Darling of Paris(Theda Bara).
Feb. 23—Hoodman Blind (William Farnum).

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Metro Pictures Corporation.

METRO ALL-STAR SERIES.

Dec. 16—Sylvia on a Spree (Emmy Wehlen—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 23—A Poor Rich Man (Bushman and Bayne—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 30—Her Inspiration (May Allison—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Gold Cure (Viola Dana—Five Parts).
Jan. 13—The Spender (Bert Lytell—Five Parts).
Jan. 20—The Divorcee (Ethel Barrymore—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—In for Thirty Days (May Allison—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—Faith (Bert Lytell).
Feb. 10—As the Sun Went Down (Edith Storey).
Feb. 17—Johnny on the Spot (Hale Hamilton).
Feb. 24—Peggy Does Her Darndest (May Allison).

SCREEN CLASSICS, INC., SPECIALS.

To Hell With the Kaiser (Laurence Grant and Olive Tell—Seven Parts—Drama).
Pals First (Harold Lockwood—Six Parts—Dr.)
The Great Victory, Wilson or the Kaiser, The Fall of the Hohenzollerns.
Why Germany Must Pay (All Star Cast—Six Parts).
The Great Romance (Harold Lockwood—Six Parts).

NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS.

Revelation (Seven Parts—Drama).
Toys of Fate (Seven Parts—Drama).
Eye for Eye (Seven Parts—Drama).
Out of the Fog (Seven Parts).

Triangle Film Corporation.

Dates and Titles of Triangle Releases Subject to Change Without Notice.

TRIANGLE PRODUCTIONS.

Dec. 15—Irish Eyes (Pauline Starke—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Crown Jewels (Claire Anderson—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—Wife or Country (Gloria Swanson—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 26—Unto the End (Crane Wilbur).
Feb. 2—Restless Souls (Alma Rubens).
Feb. 9—Secret Marriage (Mary MacLaren).
Feb. 16—Child of M'Sieu (Baby Marie Osborne).
Feh. 23—Breezy Jim (Crane Wilhur).

Vitagraph

VITAGRAPH FEATURES.

Everybody's Girl (Alice Joyce—Five Parts).
Miss Ambition (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
The Dawn of Understanding (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
The Man Who Wouldn't Tell (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
The Beloved Impostor (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Hoarded Assets (Harry T. Morey—Five Parts).
The Captain's Captain (Alice Joyce—Five Parts).
The Adventure Shop (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—The Enchanted Barn (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—The Highest Trump (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
Feb. 10—Fortune's Child (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Feb. 17.—Silent Strength (Harry T. Morey).
Feb. 24—The Lion and the Mouse (Alice Joyce—Special).
Mar. 3—The Girl Problem (Corinne Griffith).
Mar. 10.—The Wishing Ring Man (Bessie Love).

BIG V COMEDIES.

Dec. 16—Farms and Fumbles (Two Parts).
Dec. 23—Pluck and Plotters (Two Parts).
Dec. 30—Bumps and Boarders (Two Parts).
Jan. 6—Beauty and Booty (Two Parts).
Jan. 13—Boobs and Bumps (Two Parts).
Jan. 20—Traps and Tangles (Two Parts).

The Iron Test.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Featuring Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway.)

Dec. 16—The Pit of Lost Hope.
Dec. 23—In the Coils.
Dec. 30—The Red Mask's Prey.
Jan. 6—No. 12, "The Span of Terror."
Jan. 13—No. 13, "Hanging Peril."
Jan. 20—No. 14, "Desperate Odds."
Jan. 27—No. 15, "Riding with Death."

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

CENTURY.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Feb. 12—Behind the Front (Alice Howell)—03589.

CENTURY COMEDY.

Dec. 18—The Cabbage Queen (Alice Howell—Two Parts)—03299.

HEARST NEWS.

(One-Reel News Weeklies.)

Dec. 31—No. 2 (Topical)—03454.
Jan. 7—No. 3 (Topical)—03464.
Jan. 14—No. 3 (Topical)—03475.
Jan. 21—No. 4 (Topical)—03490.
Jan. 28—No. 5 (Topical)—03566.
Feb. 2—No. 6 (Topical)—03576.
Feb. 10—No. 7 (Topical)—03588.
Feb. 17—No. 8 (Topical)—03600.

L-KO.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 1—Klever Kiddies (Two Parts—Comedy—Eddie Barry)—03455.
Jan. 8—Fools and Duels (Ford Sterling)—03485.
Jan. 15—Charlie, the Little Dare Devil (Charlie from the Orient)—03476.
Jan. 22—The Freckled Fish (Babe Hardy)—03491.
Jan. 29—It's a Bird (Harry Mann)—03571.
Feb. 5—Hop, the Bell Hop (Billy Armstrong)—03577.
Feb. 19—Call the Cops (Billie Armstrong)—03601.

NESTOR.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

Dec. 23—No release this week.
Dec. 30—It's Great to Be Crazy (All-Star—Comedy)—03453.
Jan. 6—She Wasn't Hungry, But (Victoria Forde)—03463.
Jan. 13—Mixed Nuts (Molly Malone)—03474.
Jan. 20—Only a Janitor (Wallace Beery)—03486.
Jan. 27—He Was No Lady (Bobbie Vernon)—03496.
Feb. 10—Mixed Wives (William Franey)—03583.
Feb. 17—Them Eyes (Ben Wilson)—03595.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION.

Dec. 28—Over the Rhine with Charlie (Cartoon)—03452.
Jan. 2—The Wildcat of Paris (Priscilla Dean—Six Parts—Drama)—03462.
Jan. 11—Rosalind at Red Gate (Ruth Stonehouse—Two Parts—Drama)—03467.
Jan. 13—After the War (Grace Cunard).
Jan. 18—The Ghost Girl (Donna Drew—Two Parts—Society Drama)—03479.
Jan. 27—Roped (Harry Carey)—03483.
Feb. 1—Sure-Shot Morgan (Harry Carey—03569.
Feb. 3—Charlie in Turkey (One-Reel Cartoon)—03572.
Feb. 8—A Proxy Husband (Violet Mersereau—Two Parts)—03581.
Feb. 10—Creaking Stairs (Mary MacLaren—Six Parts)—03586.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Dec. 21—Issue No. 97 (Educational)—03485.
Dec. 28—Issue No. 98 (Educational)—03446.
Jan. 4—Issue No. 99 (Educational)—03456.
Jan. 11—Issue No. 100 (Educational)—03466.
Jan. 18—Issue No. 101 (Educational)—03478.
Jan. 24—Issue No. 102 (Educational)—03493.
Jan. 21—Issue No. 103 (Educational)—03568.

NEW SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Feb. 7—Issue No. 1 (Educational)—03579.
Feb. 14—Issue No. 2 (Educational)—03591.
Feb. 21—Issue No. 3 (Educational)—03603.

SCREEN TELEGRAM.

Jan. 2—No. 1 (Topical)—03456.
Jan. 9—No. 2 (Topical)—03465.
Jan. 16—No. 3 (Topical)—03477.
Jan. 22—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03492.
Jan. 30—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03567.
Feb. 5—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03678.
Feb. 13—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03590.
Feb. 20—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03602.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Dec. 7—The Brass Bullet (Final Episode, No. 18, "The Amazing Confession"—Two Parts—Drama)—03281.
Dec. 7—Fighting for Freedom (Episode No. 6, "Chinese and African Workers Trailing the Hun")—03286.
Dec. 14—Fighting for Freedom (Episode No. 7, "Britain's Battling Bulldogs—The Navy"—03297.

The Lure of the Circus.

Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Eddie Polo Featured.

Dec. 9—No. 4, "The Message on the Cuff"—03294.
Dec. 16—No. 5, "The Lip Reader—03438.
Dec. 23—No. 6, "The Aerial Disaster"—03449.
Dec. 30—No. 7, "The Charge of the Elephant"—03460.
Jan. 6—No. 8, "The Human Ladder"—03469.
Jan. 13—No. 9, "The Flying Loop"—03481.
Jan. 20—No. 10, "A Shot for Life"—03489.
Jan. 27—No. 11, "The Dagger"—03500.
Feb. 3—No. 12, "A Strang Escape"—03575.
Feb. 10—No. 13, "The Plunge for Life"—03587.
Feb. 17—No. 14, "Flames"—03598.

The Red Glove.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Marie Walcamp Features.)

Feb. 17—No. 1, "The Pool of Mystery"—03599.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Dec. 28—Issue No. 85 (Topical)—03448.
Jan. 5—Issue No. 1 (Topical)—03459.
Jan. 12—Issue No. 2 (Topical)—03468.
Jan. 9—Issue No. 3 (Topical)—03480.
Jan. 26—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03495.
Feb. 2—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03570.
Feh. 7—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03580.
Feb. 14—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03592.
Feb. 21—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03604.

STAR COMEDIES.

(One-Reel Comedies, featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.)

Dec. 21—Camping Out—03441.
Dec. 28—Swat the Flirt—03451.
Jan. 5—Straight Crooks—03463.
Jan. 12—How's Your Husband?—03471.
Jan. 20—Sing, Rosa, Sing—03487.
Jan. 27—Marry My Wife—03497.
Feb. 3—Kitchen Police—03573.
Feb. 10—Up the Flue—03584.
Feb. 17—His Body for Rent—03596.

WESTERN AND RAILROAD DRAMAS.

(Two Reels Each.)

Dec. 14—Captured Alive (Helen Gibson)—03293.
Dec. 21—The Robber (Helen Gibson)—03437.
Dec. 28—Wolves of the Range (Helen Gibson—Two Parts)—03447.
Jan. 5—The Secret Peril (Helen Gibson—Two Parts)—03458.
Jan. 8—A Kaiser There Was—03442.
Jan. 25—The Border Terror (Yvette Mitchell)—03494.
Feb. 15—Tapering Fingers (Fritzi Ridgeway)—03593.

CLASSIFIED
3c PER WORD FOR SITUATIONS WANTED AND HELP WANTED
MINIMUM, $0.50

ADVERTISEMENTS
5c PER WORD FOR ALL COMMERCIAL ADS.
MINIMUM, $1.00

SITUATIONS WANTED.

MANAGER AT LIBERTY, twelve years' experience; sober, reliable; best references; go anywhere. Address Christian, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

SALES MANAGER AND EXECUTIVE—Just out of service. 8 years' practical experience in national film distribution, organization, branch management, sales promotion, house organs, publicity. Interview desired to offer concrete evidence of ability and past accomplishments. Highest New York references. Address B. B. B., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER—33 years old, open for proposition, at present director of fourteen units in Army camp; seven years' experience in pictures, vaudeville and legitimate. Know the business. Address E, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED PIANIST to play for pictures and vaudeville. Steady position; short hours. Strand Theatre, Tarrytown, N. Y.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

WANTED—TENANT FOR ATTRACTIVE PICTURE THEATRE, PROMINENT LOCATION, LIVE CITY 40,000. FIRST CLASS CONDITION. READY TO OPEN. LOW RENTAL TO EXPERIENCED, RESPONSIBLE PARTY. NO OTHERS CONSIDERED. McCLELLAN & CO., MOUNT VERNON, N. Y.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—A Moy camera fitted with spiral focusing jacket, reverse drive, film punch, one turn, one picture handle; view finder, four dark boxes, one 2-inch Zeiss lens, one 3-inch Zeiss lens, and English made leather carrying case for outfit: also one Motion Picture Apparatus Company precision tripod with leather cover. Complete outfit practically unused. State best cash offer and address in the first place. Camera, Box 13, Station G, N. Y. City.

SENSATIONAL MONEY SAVING bargains is the title of the latest photographic book just off the press; a 32-page catalog filled from cover to cover with wonderful offers in every standard make of tested and guaranteed motion picture apparatus, cameras, lenses, kodaks, etc. It's the biggest little thing in the current photographic field. Worth its weight in gold to you, and in fact no cameraman in the country can afford to be without a copy. Send for it today; yours for the asking. David Stern Company; in business since 1885; 1027R Madison St., Chicago, U. S. A.

GUARANTEED CAMERAS.—Low prices, Jure, 300-foot outside magazines, $50; Kinograph 200-feet, $60; Pittman, $90; tripod $15; home projector $35. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

SEND AT ONCE for Bargain List No. 13, a true guide for purchasing motion picture cameras and apparatus. Every camera is Bass tested and guaranteed. Eastman negative film, $37.50 per thousand feet. Bass Camera Company. Chas. Bass, Pres., 109 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

I HAVE a genuine Carl Zeiss Tessar F. 3.5 50 mm. for sale. Make offer. Lens, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

A 200-FOOT moving picture camera B. & L. Tessar F. 3.5 focus 2 inches. Sell cheap. J. Janson, 200 W. 99th St., N. Y. City, 'phone 4694 Riverside.

FILMS WANTED.

WILL PAY CASH for five and six-reel negatives whether they have been released previously or not. Also wanted five and six-reel positive prints with or without posters. All transactions treated confidentially. Allied Photoplays, Inc., Room 610, 729 7th avenue, N. Y. City.

WANTED—Negative about fifteen hundred feet, not over three subjects—novelty, interesting, or out of the ordinary subjects (no cartoons). I, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—Second-hand moving picture machine. A Mirror Vitae projector manufactured by Eberhard Schneider, New York. Address C. H. Pattison, Loggieville, New Brunswick, Canada.

SECOND HAND Generator set or Hertner Transverter wanted. Must be in good condition and cheap. Endicott Theatre Co., Endicott, N. Y.

WANTED—Camera and tripod; studio lights, double-arcs or Cooper-Hewitt's. State full particulars including voltage of lamps and cash price. Humphrey, 119 Mayro Bldg., Utica, N. Y.

THEATRES WANTED.

LEASE OR PURCHASE for vaudeville, pictures or both. Must seat at least 800 in town of 50,000 or more. W. A., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

THEATRES FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Lease on theatre, lower New York State, seating 750, suitable moving pictures or attractions. Large stage. Good proposition responsible party. Address Glaes, Box 871, Wilmington, Del.

Order Now!

BOUND VOLUMES
OF THE
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
(The Encyclopedia of the Moving Picture Industry)

Substantially Bound in Cloth

PRICE $1.50 Each

Transportation Charges Additional

This may be your last opportunity, as the supply is VERY limited.

These volumes date back to January 1, 1911.

Four volumes embrace a year's issue.

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., 516 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

STAR SERIES PRODUCTIONS.

Dec. 29—Go West, Young Man (Tom Moore—Five Parts).
Jan. 12—Day Dreams (Madge Kennedy—Five Parts).
Jan. 26—Shadows (Geraldine Farrar—Six Pts.).
Feb. 2—The Bondage of Barbara (Mae Marsh).
Feb. 9—Sis Hopkins (Mabel Normand).
Feb. 23—The Brand (Rex Beach Production—Six Parts).

BENNISON STAR SERIES.

Oh, Johnny (Betzwood).
Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U (Betzwood).
High Pockets (Betzwood).
Speedy Meade (Betzwood).

GOLDWYN SPECIALS.

The Border Legion (Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth—Six Parts).
The Manx Man (Seven Parts—Drama).
For the Freedom of the World (Seven Parts—Drama).
Heart of the Sunset (Rex Beach Story—Seven Parts—Drama).

CAPITOL COMEDIES.

Jan. 12—You Know What I Mean.
Jan. 26—The Big Idea.
Feb. 9—Have Another.
Feb. 23—A Master of Music.

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY.

Jan. 13—What Uncle Sam Will Do for Two Cents.
Jan. 20—The Truth About the Liberty Motor.
Jan. 27—Hang It All.
Feb. 3—Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas.
Feb. 10—Canada's Mountain of Tears.
Feb. 17—Where "The Spirit That Won" Was Born.
Feb. 24—Rough Stuff.

"GO-GET-'EM" POTTS SERIES.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

Mar. 9—The New Breakfast Food.
Mar. 23—The Potum of Swat.
Apr. 6—The Midnight Alarm.

Famous Players-Lasky

PARAMOUNT-SENNETT COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 12—Cupid's Day Off.
Jan. 26—Never Too Old.
Feb. 9—Rip & Stitch—Tailors.
Feb. 23—East Lynne with Variations.

PARAMOUNT-ARBUCKLE COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 5—Camping Out.
Feb. 16—The Pullman Porter.

DREW COMEDIES.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Feb. 2—Romance and Rings.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.

Paramount Features.

Jan. 12—The Secret Garden (Lila Lee).
Jan. 19—The Dub (Wallace Reid).
Jan. 19—Here Comes the Bride (John Barrymore).
Jan. 26—Venus in the East (Bryant Washburn).
Feb. 2—Hard Boiled (Dorothy Dalton).
Feb. 2—Happy Tho' Married (Enid Bennett).
Feb. 9—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Two Brides (Lina Cavalieri).
Feb. 9—The Girl Dodger (Charles Ray).
Feb. 16—Boots (Dorothy Gish).
Feb. 16—You Never Saw Such a Girl (Vivian Martin).
Feb. 23—Maggie Pepper (Ethel Clayton).
Feb. 23—Paid In Full (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 23—The Winning Girl (Shirley Mason).

Artcraft Pictures.

Jan. 12—Under the Top (Fred Stone).
Jan. 19—His Parisian Wife (Elsie Ferguson).
Jan. 26—The Romance of Happy Valley (D. W. Griffith Production).
Jan. 26—Don't Change Your Husband (Cecil B. DeMille Production).
Feb. 2—Breed of Man (William S. Hart).

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIAL.

Jan. 5—Little Women.
Jan. 12—The Silver King (William Faversham).
Feb. 16—False Faces.

PARAMOUNT-FLAGG COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 19—Impropaganda (Two Parts).
Feb. 3—One Every Minute.

SUCCESS SERIES (REISSUES).

Jan. 12—The Sign of the Cross (William Farnum).
Jan. 19—Captain Courtesy (Dustin Farnum).
Jan. 26—Dawn of a Tomorrow (Mary Pickford).
Feb. 2—The Crucible (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Belladonna (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 16—Puddin'head Wilson (Special).
Feb. 23—Are You a Mason? (John Barrymore).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES.

Jan. 5—In a Manilla Wrapper.
Jan. 12—Cane Fields of Colambra.
Jan. 19—Celestial Contrasts.
Jan. 26—Canning Scenery.
Feb. 2—With the American Y. M. C. A. in London.
Feb. 9—St. Dunstan's Happy Blind.
Feb. 16—The War Women of England .
Feb. 23—London Plays Ball.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPH.

Jan. 12—Sugar Growing in the West Indies; Individual Oil Wells; Cartoon.
Jan. 19—Perilous Occupation; Travels in the West Indies; Cartoon.
Jan. 26—The Passing of the Cannibal; Training Women for Canteen Work; Cartoon.
Feb. 2—Winter Sports; The Passing on the Cannibal; Theory of the Long-Range Shell.
Feb. 9—War Brides, Our Picturesque Neighbors and Cartoon.
Feb. 16—Hand Grenades, the Romance of Crater Lake and Cartoon.

World Pictures Corp.

Jan. 6—What Love Forgives (Barbara Castleton—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—Under Four Flags.
Jan. 13—Love In a Hurry (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 20—The Bluffer (June Elvidge—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—Heart of Gold (Louise Huff).
Feb. 3—The Rough Neck (Montagu Love—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 10—Mandarin's Gold (Kitty Gordon).
Feb. 10—What Shall We Do with Him?
Feb. 17—Courage for Two (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts).
Feb. 24—The Moral Deadline (June Elvidge—Five Parts).
Mar. 2—Crook of Dreams (Louise Huff).
Mar. 10—The Unvelling Hand (Kitty Gordon).
Mar. 17—The Hand Invisible (Montagu Love).
Mar. 24—Hit or Miss (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley).
Mar. 31—The Love Defender (June Elvidge).

Feature Releases

BLUEBIRD.

Dec. 30—The Cabaret Girl (Ruth Clifford—Five Parts—Drama)—03461.
Jan. 6—The Nature Girl (Violet Mersereau—Five Parts—Drama)—03470.
Jan. 13—The Craving (Francis Ford).
Jan. 20—The Game's Up (Ruth Clifford).
Jan. 27—Who Will Marry Me? (Carmel Myers).
Feb. 3—Sue of the South (Edith Roberts).

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 30—Know Thy Wife.
Jan. 6—Five Hundred or Bust.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION.

Jan. 31—Bringing the Boys Back Home (Y. M. C. A.).
Feb. 1—First Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement.
Feb.—Indian Life.
Feb.—An Indian Love Story.
Feb.—A Day with Carranza.
Feb.—What is a Mexican.
Feb.—The Washington Air Patrol.

Bruce Scenics.

A Wee Bit Old.
The Wanderer and the Whozitt.
The River Gray and the River Green.
The Little High Horse.
The Restless Three.
The Wolf of the Tetons.
The Pale Pack Train.
An Essay of the Hills.
Men Met in the Mountains.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS'

Shoulder Arms (Charlie Chaplin).
Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany."
Tempered Steel (Madame Petrova).
Italy's Flaming Front—Official Italian War Pictures.
Nov. 25—The Panther Woman (Olga Petrova—Five Parts).
The Fighting Roosevelts.
Romance of Tarzan.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CO.

Times Building, N. Y.
Once to Everyman.

HARRY GARSON.

Aeolian Building, New York.
The Hushed Hour (Blanche Sweet).
The Unpardonable Sin (Blanche Sweet).

W. W. HODKINSON.

(Released Through Pathe.)

Jan. 6—The Drifters (J. Warren Kerrigan—Five Parts—Drama—Hampden).
Jan. 20—The Law that Divides (Kathleen Clifford).
Jan. 27—Fighting Through (E. K. Lincoln—Six Parts—Drama—Cabanna).
Feb. 10—Come Again, Smith (J. Warren Kerrigan—Comedy).
Feb. 17—Made in America (First Episode).

Made in America.

(One-Reel Patriotic.)

Feb. 16—No. 1, "Made in America."
Feb. 23—No. 2, "Nine Million Answer."
Mar. 2—No. 3, "The Rookie."
Mar. 9—No. 4, "Victory Army in the Making."
Mar. 16—No. 5, "Building the Soldier."
Mar. 23—No. 6, "The Hated K. P."
Mar. 30—No. 7, "Overseas to Victory."
Apr. 6—No. 8, "Forward—Always Forward."

INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

(Releasing Through Film Clearing House.)

Specials.

Wanted for Murder (Rapf).
A Romance of the Air (Crest).

Ten-Twenty-Thirty Series.

Life's Greatest Problem (Blackton).
Her Mistake (Steger).
A Woman's Experience (Bacon-Backer).
Suspense (Reicher).

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

For Husbands Only (Six Parts—Drama)—03189.
Crashing Through to Berlin (Seven Parts—Patriotic—Topical)—03188.

LEONCE PERRET PRODUCTIONS.

1402 Broadway, New York.
Stars of Glory (E. K. Lincoln and Dolores Cassinelli).
A Soul Adrift (Dolores Cassinelli).

A SURE THING

There is only one best in all fields of endeavor. In DEVELOPING and PRINTING we lay claim to this distinction.

Our claim is supported by a well known reputation for experience, promptness and quality work. Investigate our service and you will not be long in deciding to have us serve you.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO., 416-24 West 216th St., New York City Telephone: St. Nicholas 3443-44

Moving Picture Machine Patents My Specialty

PATENTS

WILLIAM N. MOORE

PATENT ATTORNEY

LOAN AND TRUST BUILDING

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The first important step is to learn whether you can obtain a patent. Please send sketch of your invention with $5.00 and I will examine the patent records and inform you whether you are entitled to a patent, the cost and manner of procedure.

Personal Attention Established 25 Years

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30% to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W74

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone—Chelsea 3227

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Rothacker Prints

The Best For The Best of Them

Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
Expert Developing, Printing and Coloring

CAMERA OUTFITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED

CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street San Francisco, Cal.

In answering advertisements please mention The Moving Picture World

YOU ARE LOSING OPPORTUNITIES

Opportunities to increase returns from your business efforts;
Opportunities to make your theatre more popular with your public;
Opportunities to present your shows in the most attractive manner;
Opportunities to make more real money on your present investment;
Opportunities to absorb the brightest ideas of other good showmen;
Opportunities that come to Exhibitors, Exchange-men and Operators Through the Service Rendered in the Pages of Moving Picture World.

Send your subscription NOW. Get your paper regularly by remitting your subscription. Regular subscribers get the first issues off the press. Subscribe and save—$4.80. The newsstand price is 15c.

One Year Six Months $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
51 Fifth Avenue New York

.....
.....
.....
Please fill in the name of your Theatre.....

Cut Out and Mail To-day—Now!

List of Current Film Release Dates

GEORGE KLEINE.
Rialto DeLuxe Productions.
Conquered Hearts (Drama).

Edison.
The Unbeliever (Seven Reels).

Essanay.
Young America (Seven Parts).
Triple Trouble (Charlie Chaplin Picture).

SELECT PICTURES.
Dec.—A Lady's Name (Constance Talmadge).
Dec.—Heart of Wetona (Norma Talmadge).
Dec.—In the Hollow of Her Hand (Alice Brady)
Dec.—Code of the Yukon (Mitchell Lewis).
Dec. —The Midnight Patrol (Special).
Dec.—Ruling Passions (Julia Dean and Edwin Arden).
Jan.—Hidden Truth (Anna Case).
Jan.—Who Cares (Constance Talmadge).
Jan.—Cheating Cheaters (Clara Kimball Young).
Jan.—The Indestructible Wife (Alice Brady).

WILLIAM L. SHERRY SERVICE.
729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. City.
Facing Death on the Blumisalp (Burlingham—Travel).
Unknown Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
The Pilatus Railway (Burlingham—Travel).
Allied War Heroes Arrive in Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
Scrambles in the High Alps (Burlingham—Travel).
The Riviera of Lake Leman (Burlingham—Travel).
Lovely Lucerne (Burlingham—Travel).
The Gornergrat Railway (Burlingham—Travel).

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES.
Jan. 5—The Light of Western Stars.
Jan. 26—Adele.

State Right Releases

ACME PICTURES CORPORATION.
The Thriteenth Chair (Yvonne Delva).

ALPHA PICTURES, INC.
130 West Forty-sixth Street.
Reclaimed.

ARROW FILM CORPORATION.
Times Building, New York.
The Perfect Model (Audrey Munson).
Sunset Princess (Margery Daw).
A Woman's Law (Florence Reed—Five Parts—Drama).
The Accidental Honeymoon (Robert Warwick).
The Struggle Everlasting (Florence Reed).
The Demon's Shadow (Serial in Ten Two-Reel Episodes).
Twelve Anna Little Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Million-Dollar Mystery (Marguerite Snow—Six Parts).
Ten J. Warren Kerrigan Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Four Allison-Lockwood Reissues.
Thirty-two Unique Comedies (One Reel).
Finger of Justice (Crane Wilbur—Six Parts).
The Profiteer (Alma Hanlon).
The Commercial Pirates (Mlle. Valkyrien).

BRENTWOOD FILM CORP.
4811 Fountain Ave., Los Angeles.
The Turn in the Road.

CREST PICTURES CORP.
Times Building, New York.
The Lust of the Ages.
A Grain of Dust.

THE FILM MARKET, INC.
403 Times Building, New York.
What Becomes of the Children (Corra Beach).
Suspicion (M. H. Hoffman Production).
The City of Purple Dreams (Selig).
Who Shall Take My Life? (Selig).
Beware of Strangers (Selig).
The Garden of Allah (Selig).
The Spoilers (Selig—Reissue).
The Star Spangled Banner (Gathem—Half reel).
Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean (Gathem—Half reel).
The Battle Cry of Freedom (Gathem—Half reel).
Home Sweet Home and The Girl I Left Behind Me (Gathem).
The Amazon Jungle (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Wonderland of Peru (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Undying Story of Captain Scott (Capt. Scott Antarctic Expedition).
Animal Life in the Antarctic (Capt Scott Antarctic Expendtion).

GAUMONT CO.
Flushing, L. I.
Satan on Earth.
Gaumont News—Released every Tuesday.
Gaumont Graphic—Released every Friday.

"The Hand of Vengeance."
Episode No. 9—The Girl in the Hotel (Two Parts—Drama).
Episode No. 10—A Girl's Aid (Two Parts—Dr.).

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.
Longacre Building, New York.
Mother (Six Parts—Drama—McClure Pictures).
The Warrior (Seven Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).

HILLER & WILK, INC.
Sept.—Sporting Life (Maurice Tourneur Production).
Woman (Maurice Tourneur Productions).
The Silent Mystery (Francis Ford serial in fifteen episodes).

GRAPHIC FILM CORPORATION.
729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.
When Men Betray (Drama).
Ashes of Love.

M. H. HOFFMAN.
Suspicion (Six Parts—Drama).

JAMES KEANE.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
The Spreading Evil (Seven Parts—Drama).

PIONEER FILM CORP.
130 West 46th St., New York City.
The Still Alarm (Selig Production).
Wives of Men.
Little Orphant Annie (Six Parts—Drama).

HARRY RAVER.
1402 Broadway, New York.
The Hand of the Hun (Four Parts—Novelty).
The Master Crook.
The Liberator (Serial Starring "Maciste").

ERNEST SHIPMAN.
17 West 44th Street, New York City.
The Daughter of The Don (Five Parts—Drama).

W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company, Inc., Featuring Shorty Hamilton, One Five-Reeler Per Month.
The Coast Guard Patrol (By Nell Shipman—Seven-Part Patriotic Drama).
A Nugget in the Rough (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Tiger of the Sea (Seven Parts—Drama—by Nell Shipman).
Bill Stingers' Poems (A series of one-reel patriotic comedy-dramas issued semi-monthly)

Al and Frank Jennings.
Lady of the Dugout (Six Parts—Drama).

Lloyd Carleton Productions.
Mother I Need You.

Edwin Frazee.
The Haunted House (Mystic Comedy—Two Parts).

United Film Corporation.
Crime of the Hour (Seven Parts—Drama).

Francis Ford Producing Co.
The Isle of Intrigue (Six Parts).

HARRY RAPF.
Palace Theatre Building, New York.
Sins of the Children.

WILLIAM STOERMER ENTERPRISES.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
The Tidal Wave (Eight Parts—Drama).

SOUTHERN FEATURE FILM COMPANY.
1476 Broadway, New York.
Beyond the Law (Emmett Dalton—Six Parts).

UNIVERSAL FILM COMPANY.
1600 Broadway, New York.
Song Hits in Photoplays.

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CO.
Times Building, New York.
The Belgian.
Those Who Pay.
The Zeppelin's Last Raid.
Just a Woman (Steger Production).
Men.
The Crucible of Life.

W. H. PRODUCTIONS.
71 West 23d Street, New York.
Mickey (Seven Parts).
(The Following Are Multiple Reel W. H. Mert Subjects, Released in Order Listed.)
The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five Parts—Dr.).
Staking His Life (Five Parts—Drama).
Series of two-reel productions.
Satan's Pawn (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
The Straight Road (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
Series of sixteen two-reel Shorty Hamilton two-reel Western comedy-dramas.
Series of twenty-eight two-reel Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies.
Series of twenty-six one and two-reel Charlie Chaplin comedies.
Series of twenty-four single reel Fatty Arbuckle comedies.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Liberty Keystones.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Eagle Keystones.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Union-Kay-Bee Western Dramas.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Columbia-Kay Bee Western Dramas.

WARNER BROTHERS.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
The Kaiser's Finish.

FELIX F. FEIST.
130 West 46th Street, N. Y. C.
Stolen Orders (Eight Reels—Drama).

MINUSA
Gold Fibre Screens

IMPROVE your projection
INCREASE your patronage
INFLATE your receipts
INDORSED by all Leading Exhibitors
INFORMATION and Samples upon request

DEALERS EVERYWHERE

THE UTMOST IN SCREENS

MINUSA CINÉ SCREEN CO.,
Bomont & Morgan St Louis, Mo.

SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

COMMERCIAL LABORATORY WORK

In all its branches, receives INDIVIDUAL attention. Has the QUALITY and PUNCH which SELL prints.

RELEASE WORK

Specially equipped for QUANTITY production. Uniform SUPERIOR QUALITY such as only EXPERTS with scientific supervision can produce.

SPECIALTIES

If you have work requiring EXPERT SCIENTIFIC knowledge, we are BEST qualified to do it.

Empire City Film Lab., Inc.
345 West 40th St., New York City
Bryant 5437 Bet. Eighth and Ninth Aves.

WHITE A.C. SPECIAL
MOTION PICTURE CARBONS
FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT PROJECTION

The White A. C. Special carbon completely covers the field of alternating current projection. No matter what your current requirement may be or whether your house has a long throw or a short throw, the White A. C. Special carbons fill the bill. These carbons are noted for their noiseless and flickerless operation.

The following requirements must be fulfilled by the light source in order that the picture be projected upon the screen perfectly:

1. A rugged light source not affected by any slight changes in voltage.
2. A penetrating, pure white light giving even screen illumination so necessary for clear and sharp definition.
3. A strong, flexible light, variable at the will of the operator according to the thickness of the film.

White A. C. Special carbons fulfill these requirements in every particular. No new current consuming apparatus needed.

COLUMBIA SILVERTIP COMBINATION FOR DIRECT CURRENT Gives a steady arc with maximum brilliancy

CIRCULARS SENT ON REQUEST

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio

PORTER EQUIPS THEATRE FOR GRIFFITH'S

SUPREME TRIUMPH "HEARTS OF THE WORLD." Installs Two UP to The Minute Type S SIMPLEX PROJECTORS with Robin TIME and SPEED INDICATORS in the 44th St. Theatre, New York. The Marvelous PROJECTION of this greatest picture of modern times is synchronized accurately to the fraction of a second with the beautiful music and effects.

B. F. PORTER, 729 7TH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY, 11TH FLOOR

VENTILATE & COOL BY TYPHOONS

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK 281 LEXINGTON AVE.

The Essential Requirements
FOR Improved Projection
ARE
SPEER CARBONS

Speer Alterno Combinations
for A. C. Work
AND
Speer Hold-Ark Combinations
for D. C. Work
Produce Incomparable Results

Write today for descriptive folders.
Read the unbiased opinions of operators.

Place an order now with your Supply House.

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"
MANUFACTURED BY
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

ERBOGRAPH
FOR SERVICE

PRODUCERS OF
MOTION PICTURE FILMS
COMMERCIAL DEVELOPING and PRINTING
Telephone Audubon 3716

ERBOGRAPH CO.
LUDWIQ G. B. ERB, President
203-211 WEST 146th STREET, NEW YORK

THE
Ticket Selling Wonder
The New AUTOMATICKET
Model G-2

New in conception, new in principle, new in simplicity and sure-fire, never miss operation

Direct from Factory To You
EXPRESS PREPAID

The New Perfected 1919 Model
of the
AUTOMATIC TICKET REGISTER is the achievement of the year

The New Model Offers You-
60% FEWER PARTS.
FOOLPROOF OPERATION.
HANDIER KEY SYSTEM.
KEYS NOT USED CAN BE LOCKED SINGLY.
MAXIMUM CHANGE SPACE.
SPECIAL "SURE TOUCH" KEYS
ALL TICKETS LOCKED IN STEEL MAGAZINE.
MASTER LOCK CONTROLS TICKETS, REGISTER, ETC.
SILENT MOTOR - NOISELESS OPERATION.

Get posted on this remarkable advance in ticket handling methods To be up-to-date you need this special information.

NOW - while you think of it send for descriptive advance circular explaining the many new features.

Automatic Ticket Selling Cash Register Company.
1731 BROADWAY. NEW YORK
FACTORY - 235 W. 55TH STREET.

Simplex

THE END OF THE WAR

WHAT SIMPLEX HAS DONE—AND IS DOING

NOW that the War Clouds have almost dissolved, we feel free to speak of the part played by Simplex.

IN VARIOUS GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS at Washington the SIMPLEX was used in showing pictures that helped in developing important plans.

IN THE THEATRES OF THE NATION the Simplex flashed its countless messages on Preparedness to millions of our people.

AT THE TRAINING CAMPS AND CANTONMENTS thousands of our boys were taught and entertained through the use of Simplex.

ON AMERICAN TRANSPORTS the minds and spirits of other thousands were improved through Simplex projection.

"OVER THERE"—Pershing's Doughboys forgot some of war's hardships when through the Simplex were shown the popular features behind the battle lines.

IN THE NORTH SEA—During the long, monotonous vigil in the gray, misty stretches, while laying in wait for the German navy, our American "gobs" obtained relaxation through the pictures projected on Simplex.

OVER HERE—the "Home-Folks" in countless theatres sought comfort and amusement through the medium of Simplex projected photo-plays.

THE LEADING HOSPITALS AND INSTITUTIONS are now using Simplex to assist in bringing back to normal health those boys whose bruised bodies and clouded minds are the result of shrapnel and shell-shock.

THUS—being recognized by the Government, the Military Authority on land and sea, the finest theatres, the greatest producers, and the leading institutions, the Simplex is indeed the

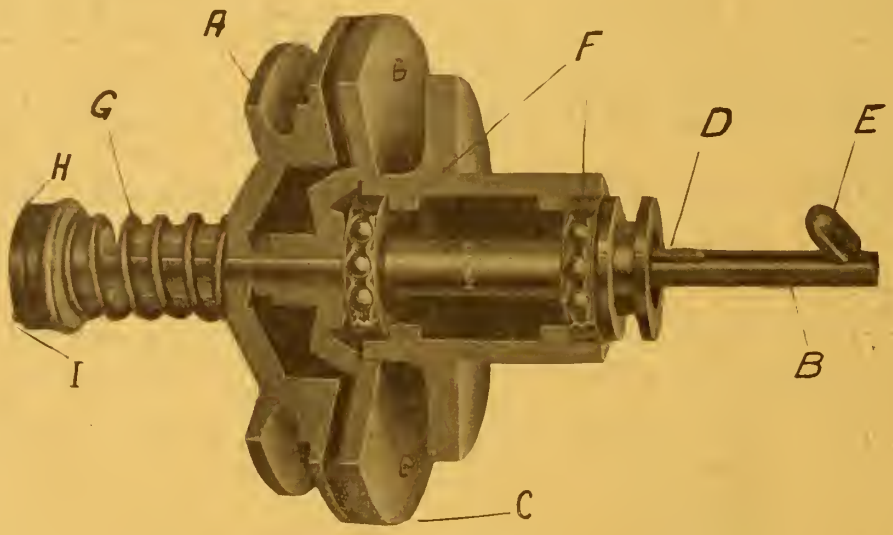
"Aristocrat Of The Projector Family"

Fire-proof Fool Proof Wear Proof

The "Extralite" Shutter is now a part of every new Simplex equipment.

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

6 B
Ball Bearing Take-Up



A—Driving Disc
B—Take-up Spindle
C—Driven Disc
D—Spindle
E—Catch to fasten reel
F—Ball bearings
G—Spring
H—Collar
I—Set screw

A glance at this illustration clearly reveals the details of construction and shows the simplicity of the mechanism of this most important device. It is constructed to offer the most efficient service. The same careful attention to detail in all departments of manufacture, maintains the high standard of

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

Distributed through the United States by United Theatre Equipment Corpn.

Kansas City Machine & Supply Co., Inc.
G. A. Metcalfe
Southern Theatre Equipment Co.
Pacific Amusement Supply Co.
Denver Theatre Supply Co.

CANADA

The Perkins Electric Co.

We will be pleased to send descriptive literature giving full details.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

INCORPORATED

Pioneers of Projection

90 Gold Street, New York, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

Making Patrons

Making friends and increasing the patronage of motion picture theatres is always the first great aim of Goldwyn. From the day of our initial production two years ago have, in the quality of their stories and production and in the reputation of their stars, been builders of permanent business and increased respect for the screen and the men who have fortunes invested in the nation's picture theatres.

Goldwyn Pictures

Published every Friday. Subscription Price: United States and Its Possessions and Mexico, $3 a year; Canada, $3.50 a year; Foreign Countries (postpaid), $4 a year. Entered as second class matter June 17, 1908, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Copyright 1917 by the Chalmers Publishing Company

Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

Any one of these five would make a picture draw—

The Trade-Mark - - - - - SELZNICK PICTURES
The Star - - - - - - - - OLIVE THOMAS
The Play - - - - - - - - UPSTAIRS & DOWN
The Director - - - - - - CHARLES GIBLYN
The Co-operation - - - - NATIONAL ADVERTISING

THERE WILL BE EIGHT LIKE THIS IN THE YEAR.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN FOR A FRANCHISE?

SELZNICK PICTURES
Corporation
MYRON SELZNICK, President
CHAS. GIBLYN, Director Gen.
501 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Our Film Process Gives You Quality Plus Service!

Quality plus service! That is what you are looking for in the printing and developing of your positive prints. You want an artistic effect.

Our new method of processing film, and our efficient New York-Chicago service, give you just that.

At the same time we can show you a big saving

Ask our sales manager, Mr. Charles F. Stark, for details.

Spoor-Thompson Process

LABORATORIES 1333 ARGYLE St. CHICAGO
SALES OFFICE AND SERVICE BUREAU, 110 W. FORTIETH St. NEW YORK CITY. TELEPHONE BRYANT 1490.

The UNIVERSAL despises horse sense Compels us to publish

"STILLMAN" THEATRE FILLED TO CAPACITY MANAGER KUHN COMPELLED TO STOP SELLING TICKETS AT 9 P.M.

The Universal despises comparisons. It has never been and will never be necessary to compare Universal productions with others to establish Universal quality. Rather are other productions compared to Universal's to establish the quality idea, but we have such profound respect and high admiration for David Wark Griffith that we, in this particular instance, feel complimented in the extreme to have "THE HEART OF HUMANITY" pronounced in the same class as "THE BIRTH OF A NATION," which was, and still is, one of the greatest moving pictures ever made.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS
INCORPORATED
Executive Offices. 1600 Broadway. New York City

Showmen Pay More for the WORLD Than for Any Other Trade Paper—and It's Worth It

Comparisons—but ordinary this Big Exhibitor's Statement

PRONOUNCES "THE HEART OF HUMANITY" BETTER THAN "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" AND "BIRTH OF A NATION"

And you may further know that we feel doubly complimented in having Manager Kuhn, of Cleveland, manager of one of Marcus Loew's finest theatres, pronounce "THE HEART OF HUMANITY" better than what we consider the two greatest moving picture productions ever made; "Hearts of the World" and "Birth of a Nation." We've got the biggest picture of the year. AND THAT'S PRECISELY WHAT WE WANT YOU TO KNOW AND TO REALIZE. Six solid weeks at the Broadway Theatre in New York to BIG business—and away from Broadway, it's going even bigger. It's Allen Holubar's Super-production, featuring Dorothy Phillips in the greatest vehicle she has ever appeared in. It's "cleaning up" everywhere. Have YOU your dates arranged?

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS

INCORPORATED

Executive Offices, 1600 Broadway, New York City

You READ the Paper You PAY For—"Sample Copy" Circulation Gets Nowhere

The Man who makes millions laugh

T. A. Dorgan
TAD

Distributed by Universal Exchanges
Everywhere

You'd go Broke

if you had to pay the salary of the famous "TAD" (T. A. Dorgan), the cartoonist who created the great "Indoor Sports," "Silk Hat Harry"—"Judge Rumhauser," and his other nation-wide hits, yet you get in fascinating animated cartoon form TAD'S biggest hits every week in HEARST NEWS.

A House packer

without extra cost that will draw people you've perhaps never seen before in your house, for the effect in drawing power will be precisely the same as getting of extra circulation for newspapers by the printing of these famous TAD cartoons, and by these regular weekly appearances, you can boost this big extra feature to the limit, letting your people know they can see TAD each week in

HEARST NEWS

Book all Three

big news reels—HEARST NEWS—UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—and SCREEN TELEGRAM. Already shown in more theatres than any news reel in the history of the pictures business. Instantly popular, are these BIG THREE, and already proving themselves big weekly attractions. Your nearest Universal Exchange will book you THE BIG THREE, and supply all the advertising necessary to help you put them over.

SELECT SP PICTURES

LEWIS J. SELZNICK

presents

CONSTANCE TALMADGE

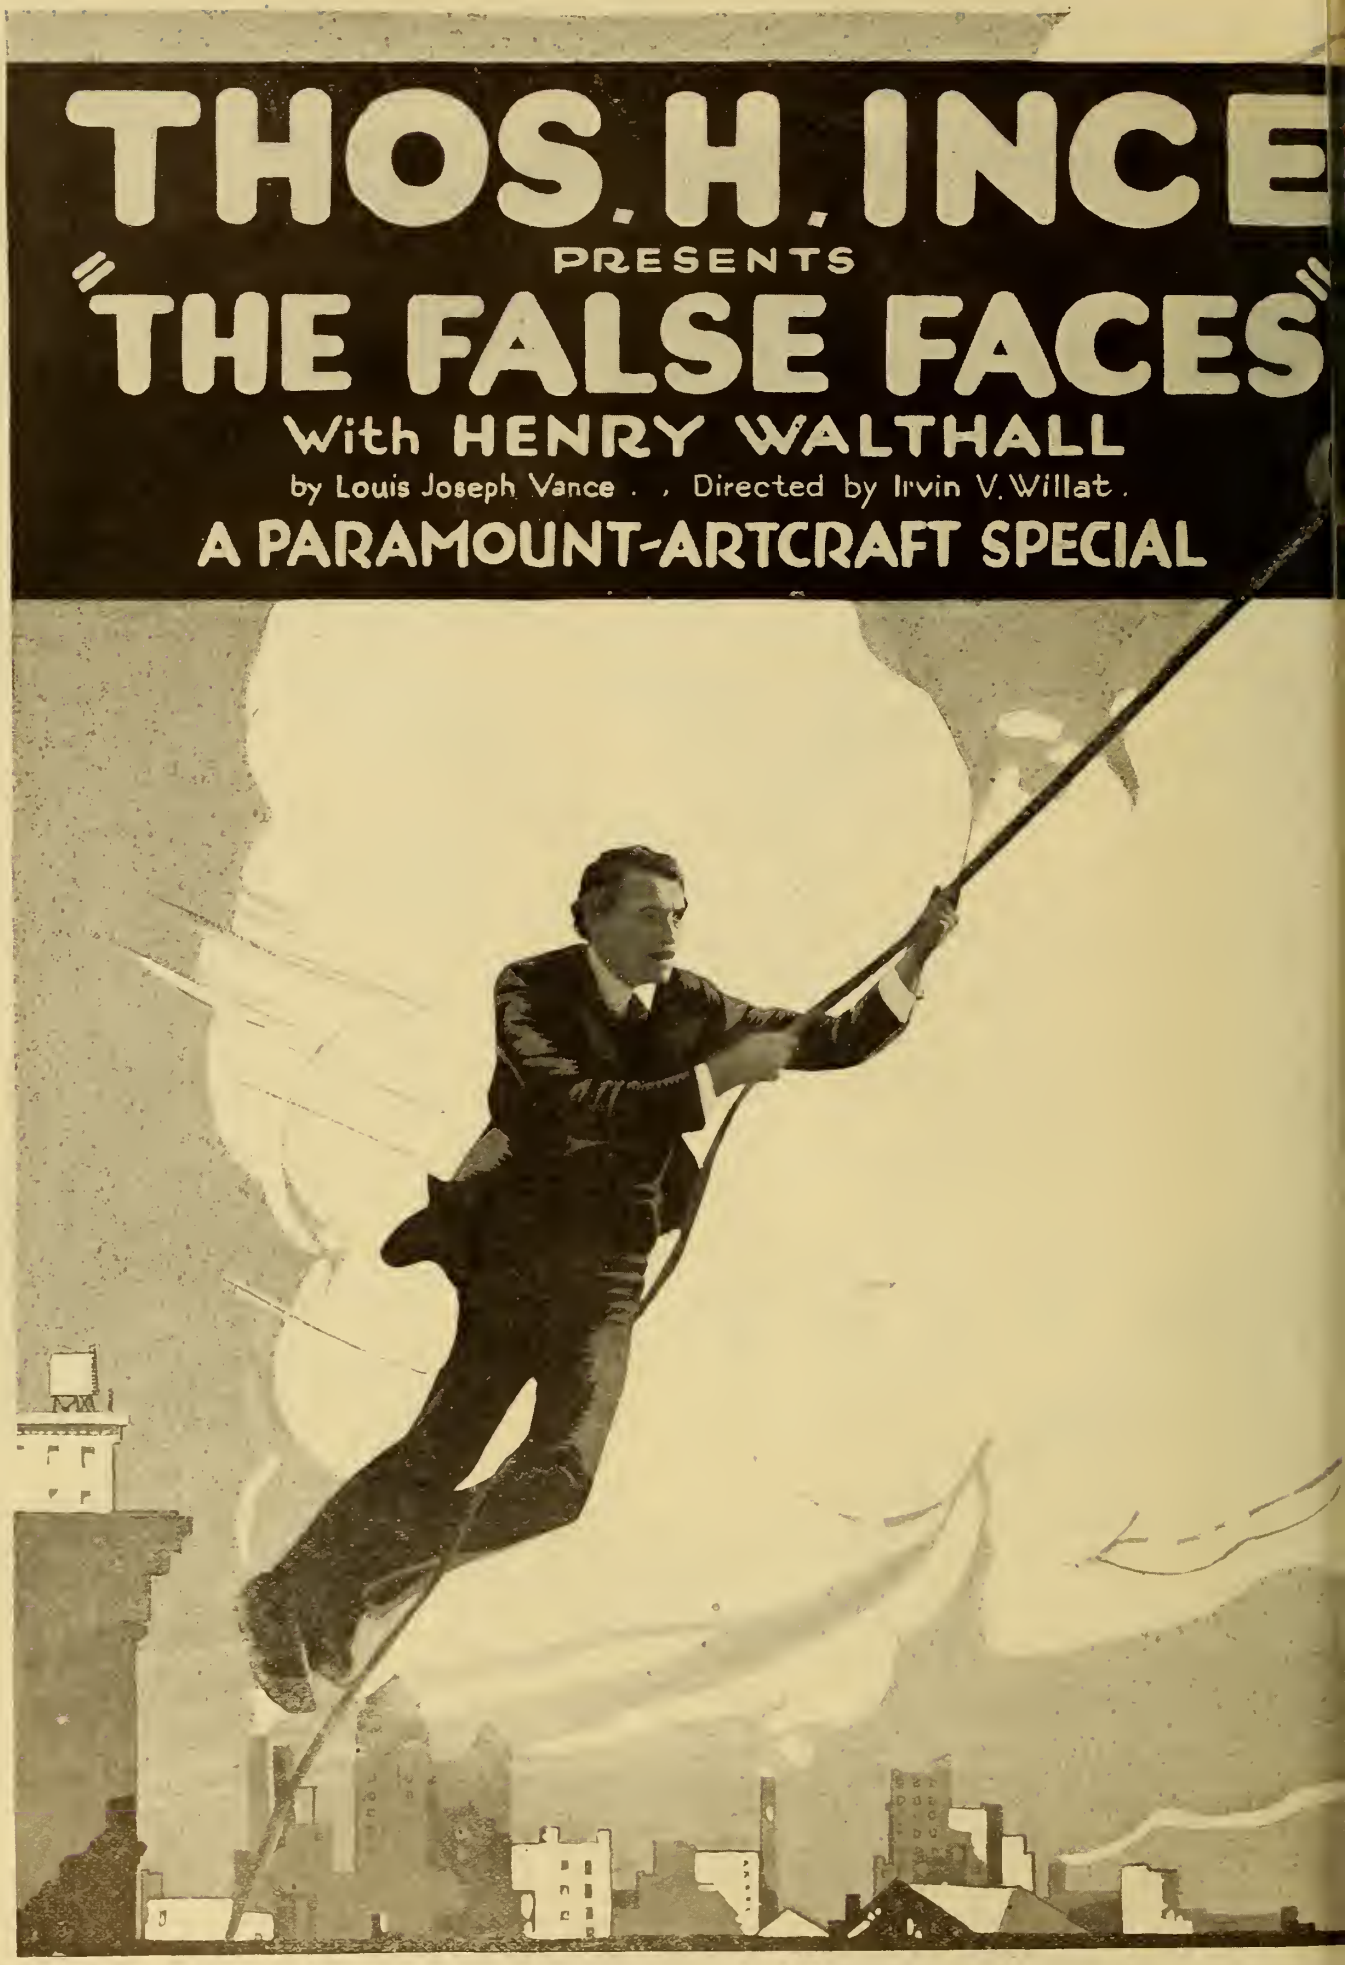
in

"ROMANCE and ARABELLA"

BY WILLIAM J. HURLBUT

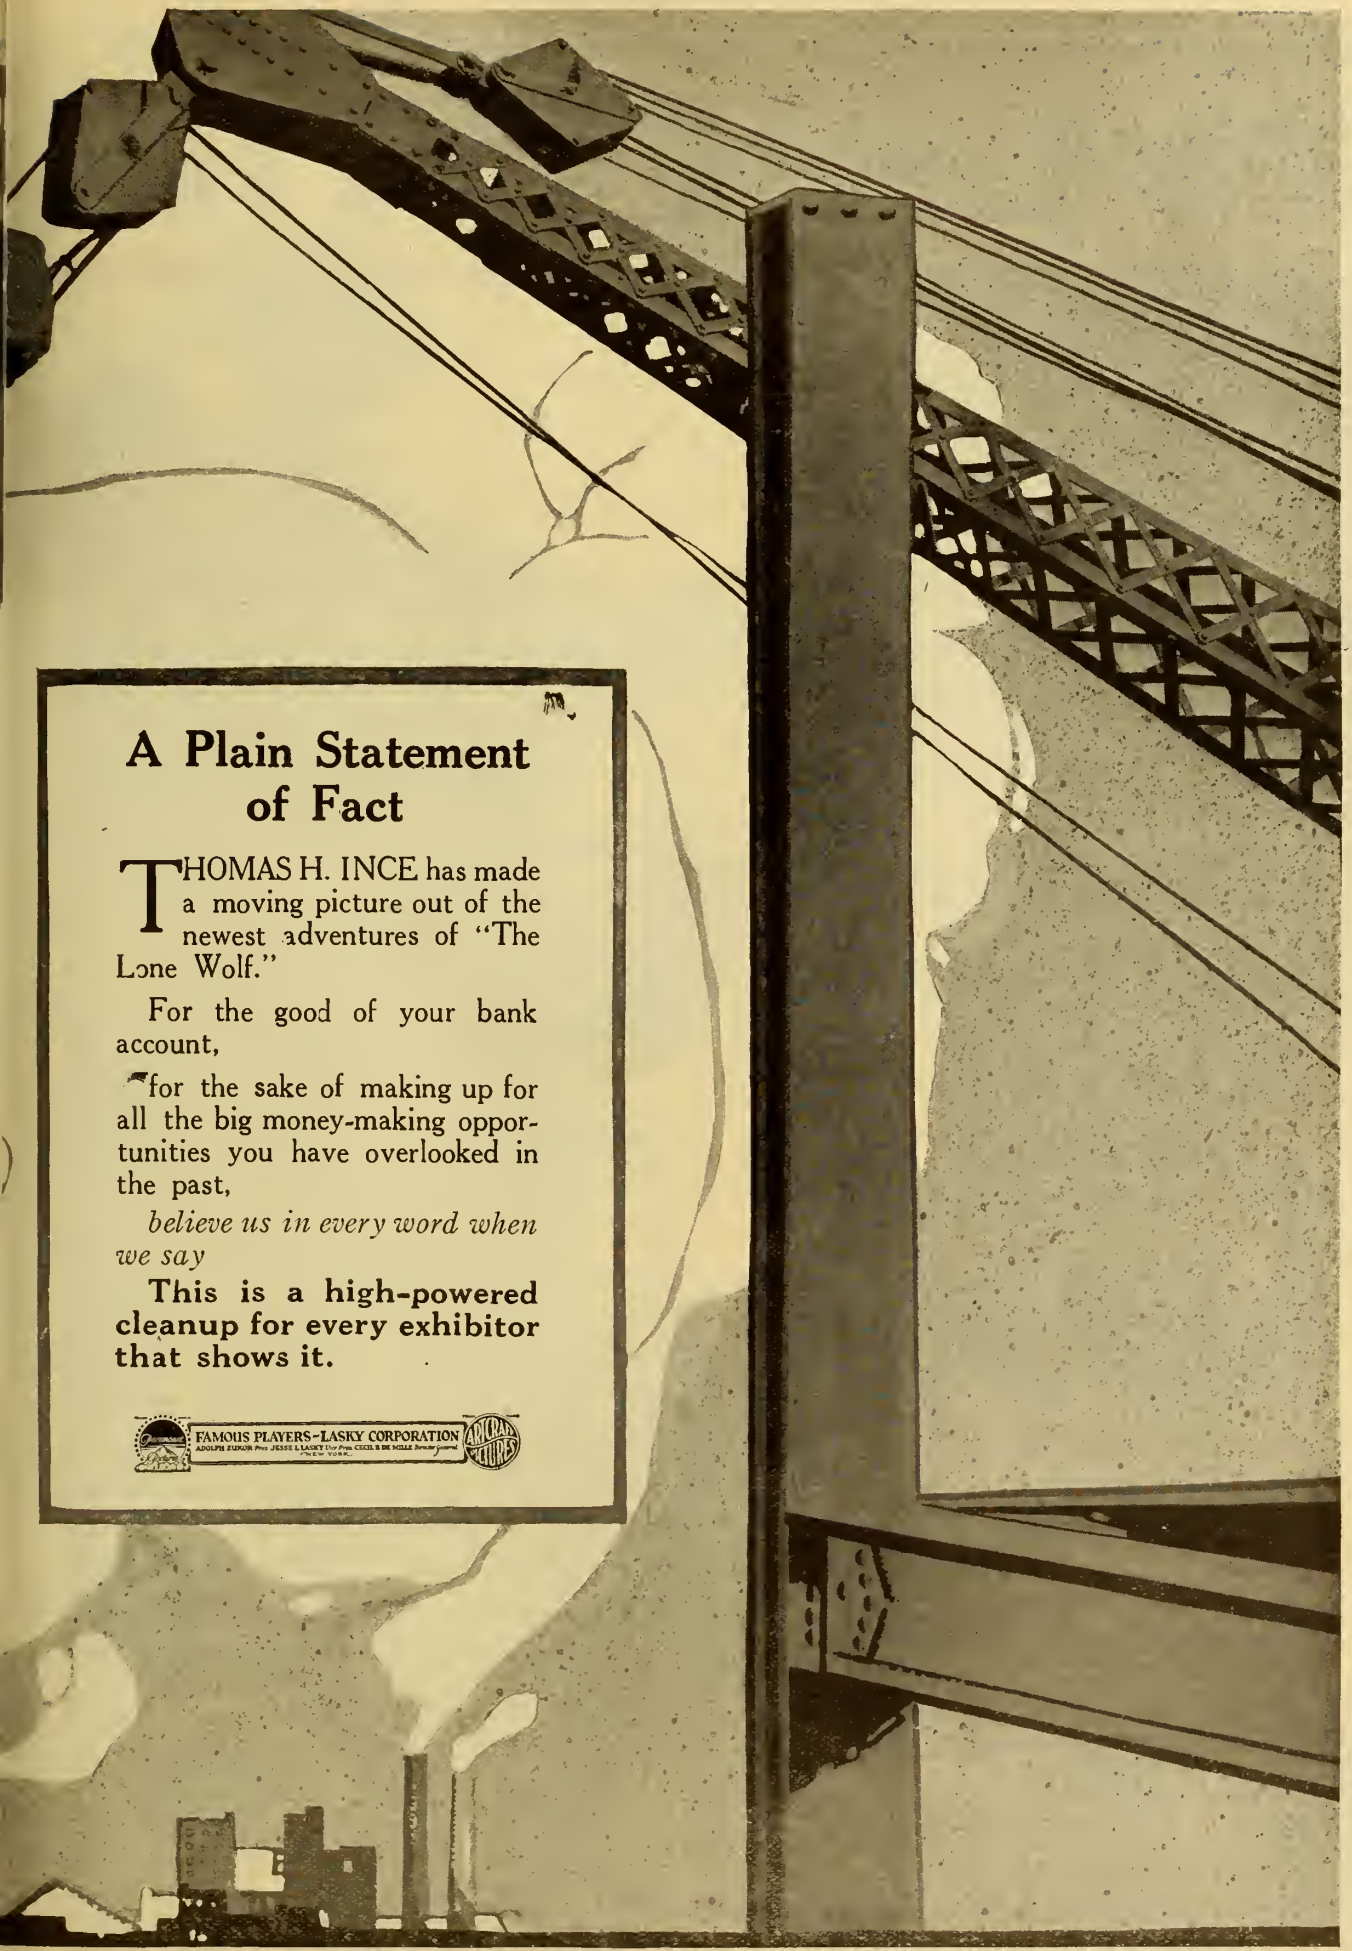
Scenario by Edith Kennedy

Directed by WALTER EDWARDS



THOS. H. INCE
PRESENTS
"THE FALSE FACES"
With HENRY WALTHALL
by Louis Joseph Vance . , Directed by Irvin V. Willat .
A PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIAL

Circular Letters Generally Land in the Waste Basket; the WORLD—NEVER!



A Plain Statement of Fact
THOMAS H. INCE has made a moving picture out of the newest adventures of "The Lone Wolf."
For the good of your bank account, for the sake of making up for all the big money-making opportunities you have overlooked in the past, believe us in every word when we say
This is a high-powered cleanup for every exhibitor that shows it.
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

D.W.GRIFFITH'S

"A Romance of Happy Valley"

A PAGE FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

An ARTCRAFT Picture

The Village of Make-Believe-on-the-Pike

D. W. Griffith has left all war and spectacle far behind and has turned to the simple folk of the cross-roads and the peaceful life of the little town.

It's a quiet tale, big in heart interest, astounding in its grasp and portrayal of the strength of weaklings.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR, Pres. JESSE L. LASKY, Vice-Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE, Director-General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

"ON THE STRENGTH OF RECORD BREAKING BUSINESS I IMMEDIATELY BOOKED IT INTO ALL OF OUR THEATRES."

Park Theatre

Boston, Massachusetts

THOMAS D. SORIERO MANAGER

Jan. 14, 1919.

Mr. Wm. A. Brady,
Play House
48th Street,
New York, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Brady:

I am writing a few lines to tell you that I am playing one of your pictures this week, "Stolen Orders", and the public is certainly taking to it.

We have opened this week to packed houses, and if I had my way, I would break the policy of the house and run it the second week, but the Stockholders object to breaking the policy.

On the strength of record breaking business, I immediately booked it into all our theatres, that would be four runs in Boston, one week after the other.

I took advantage of your name, William A. Brady, in my ads, and it certainly means a lot to the public, and everybody playing this picture should do the same. The audiences were much impressed with the production, and I am sure the mouth to mouth advertising after the first performance did a lot to make a record breaking attendance.

Make some more pictures like that for the public and the Exhibitor are hungry for them.

Very truly yours,

Thos. D. Soriero

MANAGER PARK THEATRE.

For Remaining TERRITORY

Apply
WILLIAM A. BRADY
The Playhouse
New York City

Mentioning the WORLD in Answering Advertisers is Something That Helps Both Ways

HENRY LEHRMAN

Producer of Every Sunshine Comedy to Date

ANNOUNCES

Twelve Two Reel Comedies
Under the Name
of

LEHRMAN COMEDIES

Los Angeles, California

When you book this you get

The Big Little Star

BABY MARIE OSBORNE

in a modern version of Browning's "Pippa Passes," entitled

"CHILD OF M'SIEU"

The popularity of this talented little actress, and the popularity of this well read Browning classic, are sales points that you cannot fail to exploit profitably.

released by the

Triangle Distributing Corporation

1457 Broadway New York

There is REAL Service in the WORLD'S Service to its Exhibitor Subscribers

VITAGRAPH

EARLE WILLIAMS

Albert E. Smith
presents

EARLE WILLIAMS

in

"The Highest Trump"

By H. H. Van Loan and Earle Williams Directed by James Young

A PLAY full of charm and mystery, bristling with action and unfolding a love story that enthralls—that is "The Highest Trump."

The role of Richard Paget is undoubtedly one of the most satisfactory ever essayed by Mr. Williams. Its freedom, its strong characterization, may perhaps be traced to his co-authorship of the story—for the first time, he is enabled to interpret his own dramatic creation.

Earle Williams is a premier box-office star, and his appeal to your patrons will be stronger than ever in this swiftly-moving series of dramatic climaxes.

VITAGRAPH STARS

EARLE WILLIAMS

ALICE JOYCE

CORINNE GRIFFITH

GLADYS LESLIE

BESSIE LOVE

HARRY T MOREY

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 27, 1919.

Vitagraph, New York City.

Thought when you handed us "Over the Top" that you had achieved the acme of film productions both from an artistic and box-office standpoint, but your new one, "THE COMMON CAUSE," has given us one better and leaves nothing to be desired. It topped our previous records at both NIXON'S COLONIAL, SEATING 3100 PEOPLE, and at our new Rivoli in West Philadelphia, and WE ARE HOLDING IT IN BOTH HOUSES A SECOND WEEK AND DOUBLING THE BOOKING DATES IN EVERY HOUSE in which we have it booked in this city and territory. You can conscientiously recommend "THE COMMON CAUSE" to any exhibitor looking for box-office returns. Thanks for the picture. You and Blackton send us some more like it.

Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger.

Dover, N. H., Jan. 20, 1919.

Vitagraph, Boston, Mass.

We played "THE COMMON CAUSE" on January 8th and 9th to the biggest business and the best satisfied audiences that we have had in our nine years in the show business. You have a real 100 per cent. special attraction that is A REAL ASSET to the theatre that shows it. We tried to find one unfavorable criticism, and failed.

M. J. White, Orpheum Theatre.

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 12, 1919.

Vitagraph, New York City.

"THE COMMON CAUSE" opened up with a rush and had to stop selling. Many people waiting outside. REPEAT DATES JANUARY 16th-17th-18th.

Strand Theatre.

New London, Conn., Jan. 20, 1919.

Vitagraph, New York City.

J. Stuart Blackton's "COMMON CAUSE" proved to be an exceptional feature from all angles. It strikes the heart, makes the tears come to the eyes, and through it all a strain of humor convulses the audience. It proved stronger as a puller the second day, and the third WE WERE UNABLE TO ACCOMMODATE ALL OUR PATRONS.

M. Pouzznier, Empire Theatre.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 17, 1919.

Vitagraph, Boston, Mass.

Your special, "THE COMMON CAUSE," which I have just exhibited at this theatre, went over great. I had patrons come to me after viewing the picture and say it was the best picture they had ever seen; in fact, I don't think there was a disappointed patron went away during the engagement, and that is saying much of a picture that I advertised big and naturally prepared the public for something out of the ordinary. I am coming in to arrange A RETURN DATE FOR NEW BEDFORD.

E. D. Davenport, Rialto Theatre.

Niagara Falls, Canada, Jan. 16, 1919.

Vitagraph, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

I played your picture entitled "THE COMMON CAUSE" on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. On Monday I was UNABLE TO ACCOMMODATE THE CROWDS, many being unable to get within reach of the box-office, while the number who did reach the inside blocked the aisles which caused me to be summoned to court, where I was fined. Tuesday night was a repetition of Monday night. I was obliged to get an extension of the picture so that those who could not get in on Monday and Tuesday nights could see it. It is the best picture I have shown. The comments from the audience were most flattering. From a box-office point of view the picture was a most gratifying success. As the picture came without previous advertising, it will be seen that its success was the result of the good qualities of the picture rather than of any boosting from the newspapers or magazines. Wishing you every success to which the picture is entitled.

A. A. Huttelmayer, Queen Theatre.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 28, 1919.

Vitagraph, New York City.

Although we have seldom given a letter recommending any picture, I feel that I will be doing exhibitors in this territory a favor in calling their attention to "THE COMMON CAUSE," which has just finished a most satisfactory week's run at the Metropolitan. The nature of the subject is so pleasing, and so well handled by Herbert Rawlinson and Sylvia Breamer that the word of mouth publicity it received made its showing such a success. The cast is exceptionally attractive from a publicity standpoint, and the production as a whole will rank with anything we have seen this season. The picture played to what will rank as one of OUR BANNER WEEKS.

W. J. Freedman, Metropolitan.

NOW MAKING BIG MONEY
FOR THE EXHIBITOR

THE TWELVE EXTRAORDINARY ATTRACTIONS AT THE FIXED RENTAL PRICES OF $10 $20 $30

PER DAY

No. 3

The Great BACON-BACKER PRODUCTION of

A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

PAUL M. POTTER'S Dramatic Masterpiece

The Famous Author's Most Sensational Story Since "TRILBY" and "ARSENE LUPIN"

STARRING MARY BOLAND

No. 1—Julius Steger's Greatest Achievement
Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell Thaw, in
"HER MISTAKE"

No. 2—The Sensational J. Stuart Blackton Super Feature
"LIFE'S GREATEST PROBLEM"
STARRING MITCHELL LEWIS

No. 4—The Sensational Frank Reicher Production of Isabel Ostrander's world-famous novel
"SUSPENSE"
STARRING MOLLIE KING

All exceptional show propositions with extraordinary advertising angles and recognized box-office value.

Bookings Placed by Independent Sales Corporation

Distributed through
Film Clearing House, Inc.

Foreign Rights controlled by Apollo Trading Co., Longacre Theatre Building, New York City

Exhibitors by the Thousands Pay $3.00 the Year for the WORLD and Get Full Value

Not since Bret Harte wrote "Outcasts of Poker Flat" has there been given to fiction or the drama a story so picturesque, so unreservedly different and unconventional as this, the newest Metro All Star Series Production.

It's the story of a bad girl who is bigger and better and finer than most of the girls you ever saw.

It's

EDITH STOREY

in

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN

Adapted by George D. Baker from his stage drama of the same name and directed by E. Mason Hopper in 5 acts.

RELEASED BY

METRO

FEBRUARY TENTH

Exhibitors Pay $3.00 for the WORLD and Get More Than Their Money's Worth

A significant criticism-

Laurence Reid says in The New York Review "Faith," with Bert Lytell, Is Quite the Finest Picture He Has Seen in Ages

Is Even Better Than This Star's Other Recent Release, "The Spenders," Which Reached a Very High Water Mark—Lytell's Natural Method Should Be Studied by Stagey Screen Heroes.

There is no denying the fact that Bert Lytell is about the luckiest individual upon the screen when it comes to the standard of excellence which his pictures have maintained the past year. His last previous feature, "The Spenders," was so meritorious in every way that we thought it could not be surpassed. But along comes a new offering, "Faith," that is so wholesome in its philosophy, so real in its humanity and so fine in its appeal, and above all, so splendidly produced, that it clearly outshines its predecessors and stands conspicuously as a work of art.

Mr. Lytell is truly uplifting screen dramaturgy with his contributions, for aside from the high standard of his stories, his personality reveals itself with ever-increasing lustre. There is one actor who is an artist in the sense that he always appears natural and convincing. He never indulges in heroics to gain his points, but seems like your fellow clubman, your boon companion, your pal—in fact he resembles the person in the street so carefully does he keep his balance.

The attitudinizing player may well emulate him and gain better recognition and a credited intelligence, and, moreover, left the calibre of his photoplay if he follows this suggestion.

The theme of "Faith" is so simple and so prodigal with truth that it is a wonder it hasn't been thought of before. Here is the motion picture very nearly at its best, for the human note is so vivid and poignant and brought out in such an artistic way that the most captious critic of the screen can give it nothing else but the sincerest praise. There are no plot complications to annoy you; in fact, it moves along serenely and scores for its simplicity and adherence to truth.

THE CAST.

George Farrelly.....Bert Lytell
Charity Garvice.....Rosemary Theby
Martha Owen.....Edythe Chaman
Abner Harrington.....Edwin Stevens
Mrs. Harrington.....Nancy Chase

Story by.....Richard W. Child
Scenario by George D. Baker and A. G. Kenyon
Directed by.....Charles Swickard
Produced by.....Metro

The story is, indeed, as quiet as its setting and goes to prove that pictures are not dependent upon the element of action for their support. The characterization is so true and the conversation that is carried on so emphatic and natural, that the picture rouses an interest that is splendidly maintained to the end. Just think of three or four people carrying on a drama of life without scarcely moving from their tracks. Such a feat spells art. It must also spell something mightly close to humanity.

The picture clearly lives up to its title in that it establishes faith as one of the foundations of society. The hero is a bank clerk, who, by force of circumstance and environment, plods along with little initiative. He has never known romance or the pleasures that come to people who are better situated in the scheme of existence. But a boyhood sweetheart renews her old-time friendship and in a measure succeeds in penetrating beneath his reserve. The young man has not lost his sense of proportion during his slavery in the bank and so he permits himself to bask in the radiance of the girl's personality.

She unfolds a story about their former school teacher who has ever continued to hold them in her affection, particularly the hero, since his father had been her fiance in the springtime of her life. The kind teacher, now old and blind, has maintained her faith in her former pupils, the girl showing a good heart by looking after her in her declining years. However, the heroine has a special mission in seeking out her childhood friend, for the old lady has a premonition that everything is not right with him and that he, particularly, needs to be "mothered."

She thinks he is a thief and wants to restore him to honorable society by revealing her faith in his better nature. Consequently a plan is formulated to humor the old lady that her intuition is correct. The scene attending the confession is poignantly pathetic. The scheme works, but the surprise is that the hero is a thief after all. And so he restores the stolen property to the bank through the faith of the two women that he is sincere at heart. His employer also reveals a faith in his honesty by rewarding him with a more lucrative position. The property had been left in a conspicuous place for no other purpose than to provide a test.

Rosemary Theby as the girl, Edythe Chapman as the school teacher, and Edwin Stevens as the banker give fine performances. "Faith" will endure when many spectacular things are long forgotten.

LAURENCE REID.

Tremendous Popularity is coming to BERT LYTELL

Metro Pictures Corporation

ANNOUNCING A NEW GREAT DRAMA FOR THE
MOST IMPRESSIVE PERSONALITY OF
THE SCREEN
NAZIMOVA

THE Screen's most distinguished artist in a play surrounded by the mystery of the sea, the charm of romance and the mighty power of amazing art.

NOW READY

TO BE DISTRIBUTED BY

METRO

PICTURES CORPORATION

Maxwell Karger

Director General

RICHARD A. ROWLAND
& MAXWELL KARGER
present

The Great NAZIMOVA in OUT of the FOG

Directed by Albert Capellani from the H. Austin Adams stage success
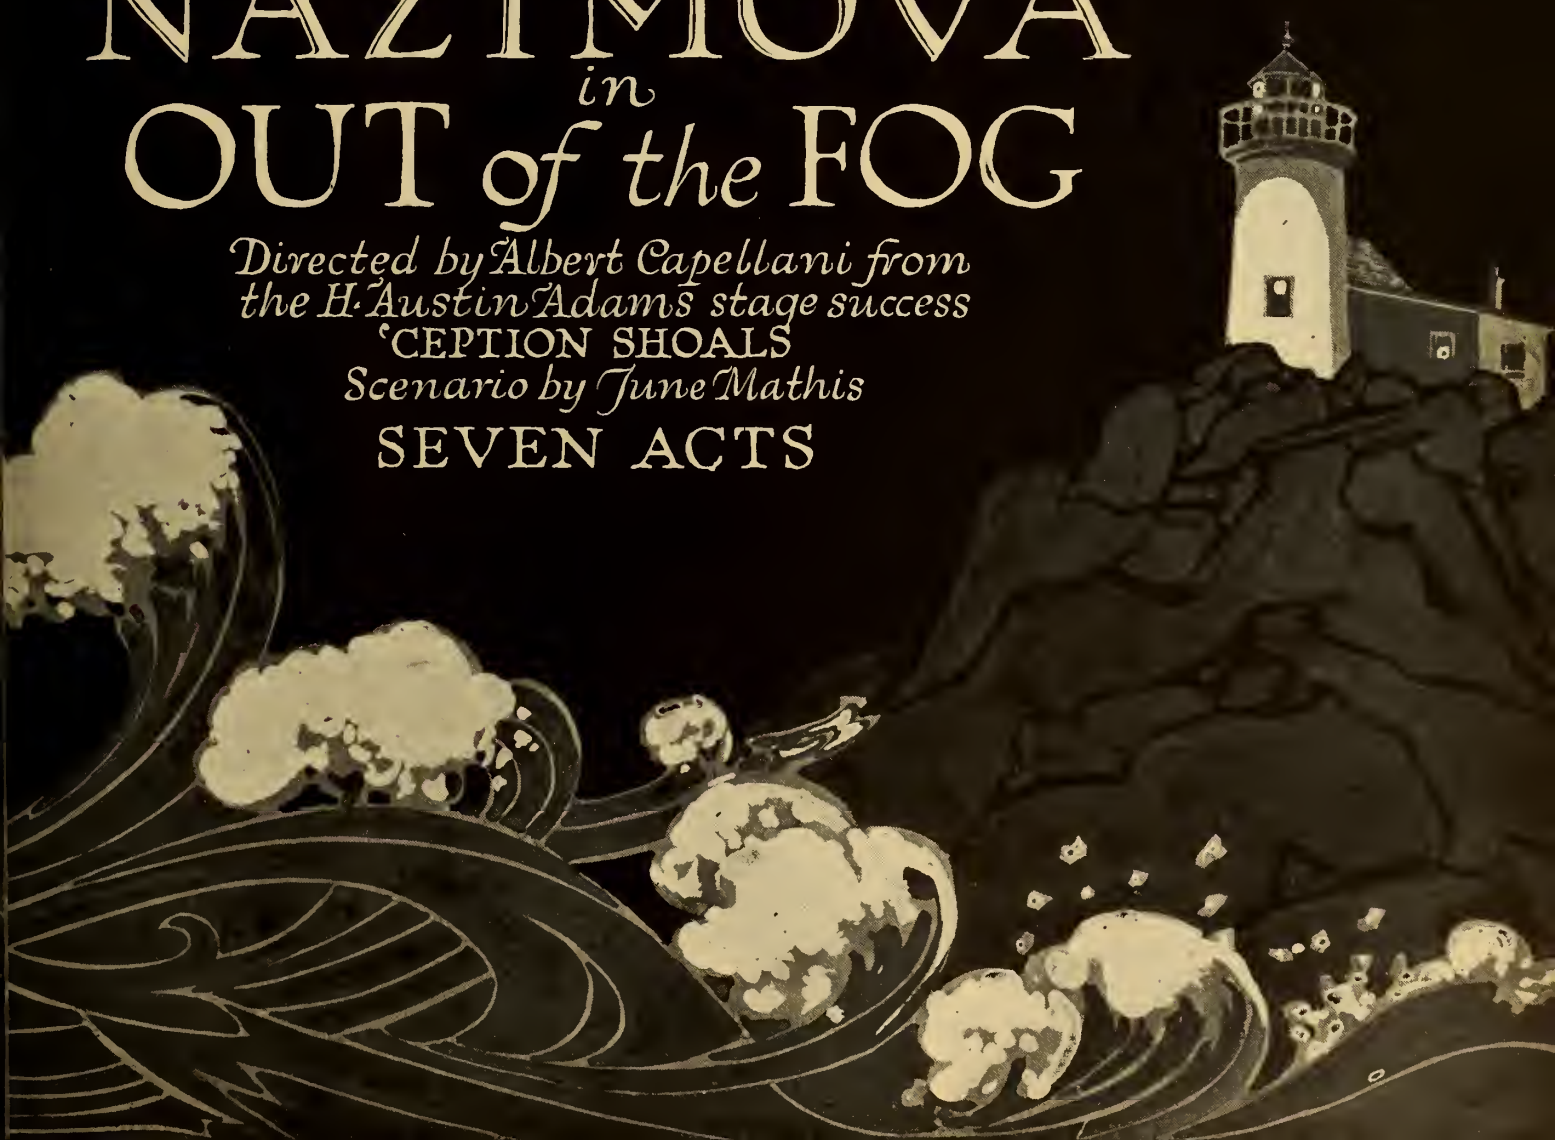
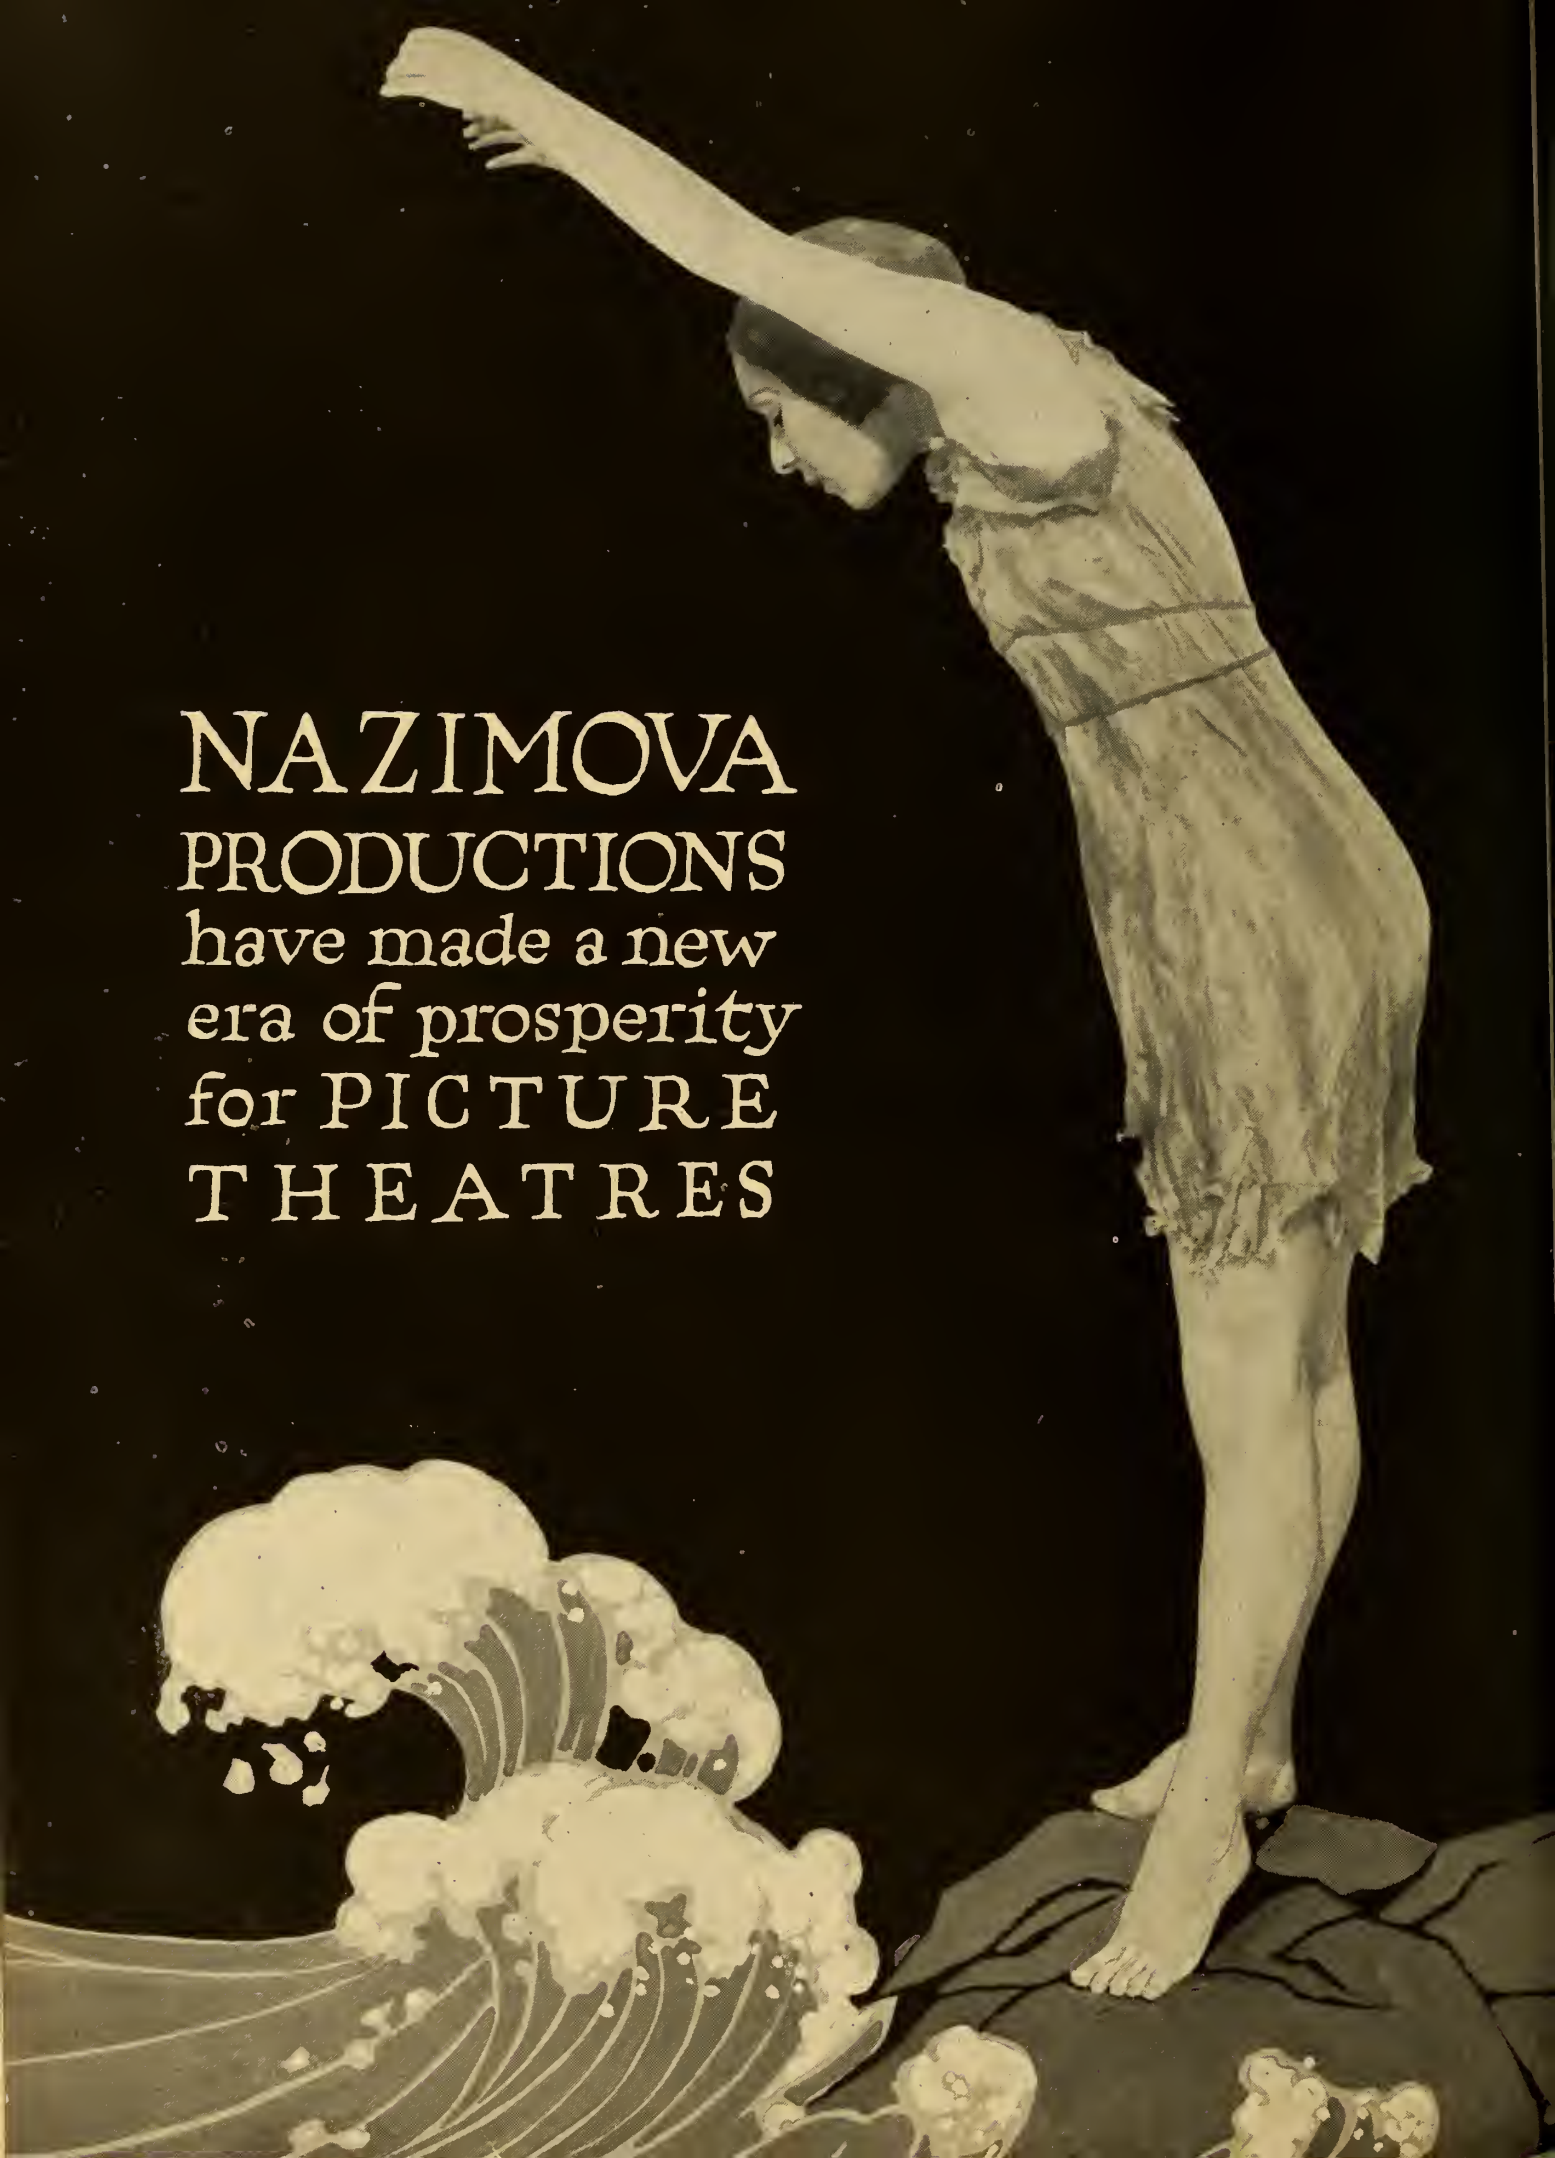
'CEPTION SHOALS
Scenario by June Mathis
SEVEN ACTS





NAZIMOVA
PRODUCTIONS have made a new era of prosperity for PICTURE
THEATRES

Announcing

THE 1919 SERIES

OF

OUTING CHESTER PICTURES

Produced by C. L. CHESTER

In co-operation with OUTING MAGAZINE

Distributed through

FIRST NATIONAL EXCHANGES

FIRST RELEASE

"FROM SCALES TO ANTLERS"

—A Fish Story with a Moose Tale

The WORLD is Edited and Published to Serve Both Advertiser and Subscriber Alike

LOUIS BURSTON presents

Francis Ford

with MAE GASTON and ROSEMARY THEBY

IN HIS NEWEST AND GREATEST SERIAL

"THE SILENT MYSTERY"

The Sure-Fire Serial of the Year

PROOFS THAT THIS IS ONE OF THE SEASON'S

BIG BOX OFFICE SUCCESSES

NEW YORK
$47,000.00 worth of bookings to date.

CHICAGO
105 consecutive days in the Loop. A new record for Chicago.

CLEVELAND
50 theatres already booked in less than a two-weeks' campaign.

WASHINGTON
19 theatres in Washington, D. C., breaks record for number of theatres showing serials in Washington.

CANADA
Opening reports "RECORD BREAKING BUSINESS."

EXHIBITORS

Whether or not you have ever played a serial

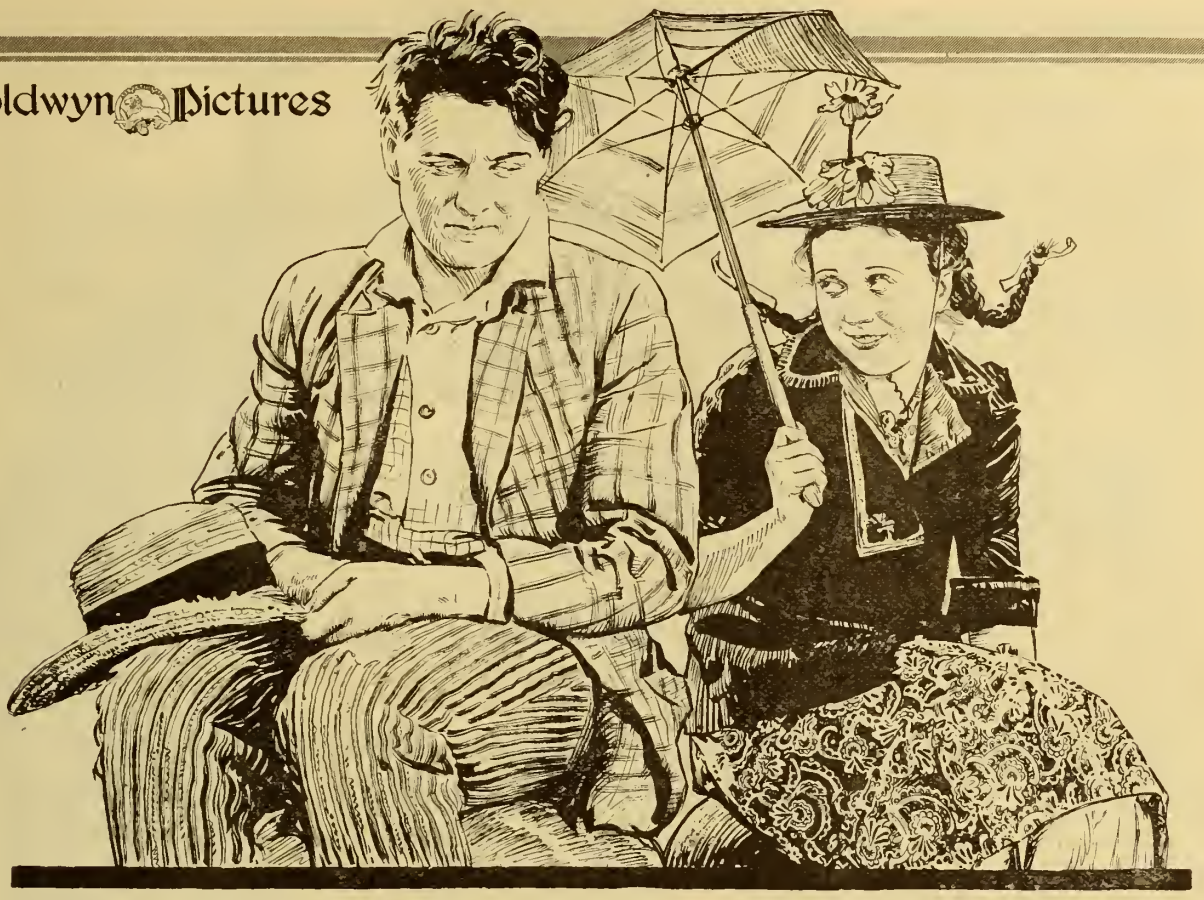
GET IN ON THIS ONE

HILLER & WILK, Inc.

Selling Agents

912 Longacre Building 42nd Street and Broadway New York

Goldwyn Pictures



The Greatest Screen Comedy Mabel Normand Has Ever Had

"SIS HOPKINS" as a role, as a character, as a reputation has been endeared to more than a generation of Americans. It is known to thousands of persons who have never seen it on the stage. Rose Melville has starred in it for thirteen prosperous years.

Stories and plays that implant a smile and a tear in the heart and mind are remembered forever. They take rank as beautiful things in a dull world.

Goldwyn set its heart on getting such a play—beyond any question the greatest of all stage comedy successes of its type—for the one comedienne who could make the character live again in the hearts of the people.

So wonderfully has she succeeded in this, so laughable, human, wistful and pathetic has this little country town waif become on her entry into screenland that

Samuel Goldwyn Presents

Mabel Normand
in
SIS HOPKINS

Directed by Clarence G. Badger with the knowledge that it justifies increased admission prices and extra playing dates in any theatre; that it deserves and should receive extra exploitation from every exhibitor; that it represents the biggest screen achievement in the career of Miss Normand and that it is the kind of production and story that will make friends for the screen and add to the reputation of any house offering it to the public.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

Serving the Smaller Theatres Quickly, Goldwyn's Policy for the FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

IF you, the exhibitor, have a small theatre in a neighborhood or a small house in a little town, you have to wait a shorter time to get the fresher, newer releases of The Ford Educational Weekly than you have ever waited for any other screen attraction.

Henry Ford has a tremendous faith in the small American city and little town. He knows that the seat of the best there is in America is in such places. He proves his feeling for the little communities by buying an unheard-of, but sound and healthy country weekly newspaper to build up its vocal power until it reaches a million subscribers a week.

We are carrying out his ideas when we seek 2,000 more small town exhibitor-customers in the month of February for The Ford Educational Weekly. We have the prints at hand to serve this number of new accounts promptly and effficiently.

The Ford Educational Weekly gives a screen picture of your kind of people and ours; of America and Americans in their bigness and fineness; of people doing the vital, imaginative things that make us lead all the peoples of the world.

The newest issues of the Weekly ahead are these:

Feb. 2: "Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas," The Story of Hog Island Shipyards.
Feb. 9: "Canada's 'Mountain of Tears'" Mt. Edith Cavell.
Feb. 16: "Where 'The Spirit That Won' Was Born."
Feb. 23: "Rough Stuff."

FITZPATRICK and McELROY Chicago
Sole Representatives
FORD MOTOR CO.
Motion Picture Laboratories

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDWYN President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

In All America

No exhibitors overlook booking and playing a real winner just as quickly as producer or distributor can lay down prints in exchanges. This eagerness is evidence of the sound commercial judgment of the country's most successful showmen.

Everywhere exhibitors have learned—chiefly through other exhibitors who have played it—that there is a powerful melodramatic special attraction that is drawing big business into box-offices

ZANE GREY'S
Great Story

The BORDER LEGION

Starring

Blanche Bates

and Hobart Bosworth

Directed by T. HAYES HUNTER

This thrilling action-drama of Golden California in the lawless days of '49 immediately was signed up and is now being played to capacity patronage in theatres like these:

Strand, New York City
Rialto, Washington, D. C.
Strand, Washington, D. C.
Poli's, Springfield, Mass.
Symphony, New York City
Ogden, Ogden, Utah.
Isis, Denver, Colo.
Savoy, Syracuse, N. Y.
Temple, Oil City, Pa.
Liberty, Canandaigua, N. Y.
Strand, Atlanta, Ga.
Poli's, Bridgeport, Conn.
Poli's, Hartford, Conn.
Poli's, New Haven, Conn.
Poli's, Waterbury, Conn.
Olympic, McKeesport, Pa.
Home, Rochester, N. Y.
Rialto, Columbia, S. C.
U. S. Garden, Elizabeth, N. J.
Amusu, Elmira, N. Y.

Instantly this production has been welcomed as a large city and small city attraction. Every Goldwyn manager is ready to let you convince yourself in our own projection room or in your own theatre. Two weeks from now you will have to wait for playing dates—that's how fast it is being signed up.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

The WORLD Has Hundreds of Friends Among Exhibitors Who Have Been Friends for Twelve Years

CAPITOL COMEDIES

Comedies That Maintain Their Standard of Quality

CAPITOL COMEDIES get plenty of fine, hearty laughs decently. They contain intelligent humor of the kind that finds its place in the lives of millions of normal people.

They strive for and attain natural instead of forced humor. You will find this proved in the new series of six consecutive releases with "Go-Get-'Em Potts" as the novel hero—each release separate and distinct; not dependent upon the one before or the one to follow.

"Smiling Bill" PARSONS

in CAPITOL COMEDIES

26 a Year Every Second Monday

is a weekly star visitor in 3300 of the best American motion picture theatres. He has only one comedy rival in the volume of patronage to which he plays.

He is welcomed everywhere by audiences and liberally advertised by exhibitors because they have found that his style of fun-making draws people again into their theatres for relaxation.

Be sure and tag on to your newspaper advertising: "Today! 'Smiling Bill' Parsons in a lively Capitol Comedy."

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Showmen in Small Towns Depend on the WORLD for REAL Service—and Get It

"Bucked the Two Biggest Male Stars of the Screen and Whipped Them for Patronage."

THIS is what Fred J. Hartwick, manager of the Strand Theatre, Taunton, Mass., did with Louis Bennison in "Oh, Johnny!", the first picture of a brand new screen star. The words are his own, not ours.

Mr. Mason, manager of the Lyric Theatre, Pittsburg, Pa., booked this production for a repeat date in the same house four days after its first run and on the strength of its double success signed up his company's houses in West Virginia towns.

Everywhere he has played Louis Bennison is a big bet—a natural, liked and applauded personality. He will continue his success throughout his Star Series of six productions, distributed exclusively through the Goldwyn organization. We caution you to watch his second

Betzwood Film Company's presentation of

LOUIS BENNISON

IN

Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U

By J. Allen Dunn

Directed by Ira M. Lowry

Released everywhere February 23.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

WORLD-PICTURES
WORLD PICTURES
present
KITTY GORDON
in
"MANDARIN'S GOLD"
Supported by IRVING CUMMINGS
Story by PHILIP LONERGAN
Directed by
OSCAR APFEL
PRESS COMMENT—"Unusual atmosphere. Expert handling. Well knit from start to finish." Motion Picture News. "Pleasing subject. Story interest strong."—Moving Picture World. "Good entertainment. Very welcome feature. A mighty good offering"—Exhibitor's Trade Review.

The Subscriber and the Advertiser Are Dependent on Each Other in the Film Game

★ UNITED ★ STATES ★ GOVERNMENT ★

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

The Government's Great Victory Picture

Exhibitor Comment:

"Wonderful picture. Extra Big Business." "A picture that every theatre should play"——M. P. News.

Consensus:

"Powerful production with extra big drawing powers"——M. P. News.

This Great Victory Picture of America and the Allies gives the exhibitors in the smaller towns a remarkable opportunity for box-office profits.

The Government rental price is fixed on a scale that allows a margin not obtainable with any other attraction.

The picture was a sensation with the war-picture-surfeited screen patrons of the larger cities. It was a tremendous box-office success.

Patrons of the smaller towns are not surfeited with war facts. Like the city people, they want to see how the war was won—but their desire is even more keen.

Exhibitors can give their patrons what they want. The rental is figured on a basis that permits high profit at regular admission prices.

OFFICIAL U. S. WAR PICTURES

The Official War Review—(Weekly)—Pathé
Pershing's Crusaders—First National Exhibitors
Our Bridge of Ships—General Film Corporation
America's Answer
Under Four Flags
U. S. A. Series

Available through the WORLD FILM CORPORATION, except FOR CALIFORNIA Sol. L. Lesser, State Council of Defense, San Francisco.
FOR MICHIGAN Michigan War Preparedness Board, Lansing. (Except Detroit and Wayne County, through World Film Corporation)

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION, George Creel, Chairman
Through the Division of Films, Charles S. Hart, Director, Washington, D. C.

The Bureau of War Photographs The Bureau of War Expositions—presented by the United States and Allied Governments

Frank A. Keeney Presents

Catherine Calvert in

A Big New Box Office Attraction

"MARRIAGE FOR CONVENIENCE"

THE BEST MELODRAMATIC SOCIETY PICTURE OF THE SEASON. BY E. LLOYD SHELDON
DIRECTED BY SIDNEY OLCOTT
WITH A SPLENDID CAST INCLUDING EDWARD BURNS ANNA MAY, GEORGE MAJORONI, BLANCHE DAVENPORT, AND GEORGE PAUNCEFORT.

DISPLAYING CATHERINE CALVERT AT HER BEST, GORGEOUSLY GOWNED AND GLORIOUSLY BEAUTIFUL.

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY.

The New York Telegraph:
Miss Calvert Does Superb Work in "Marriage." The tense situations of the play afford her many opportunities.

The Motion Picture World:
"Marriage," with Catherine Calvert, is a bit of Social Drama That Holds Interest In Its Every Phase.

The Chicago American:
Miss Catherine Calvert Certainly Holds the Mirror Up To High Life in "Marriage," and Does It Most Delightfully.

The Minneapolis Daily News:
"Marriage" is a Play with a Big Plot, a Big Star and a Capable Cast. Catherine Calvert Rises To a Great Opportunity.

WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729-7th AVE, N.Y.

NEW YORK, NORTHERN NEW JERSEY AND WESTERN CONNECTICUT BOOKING DIRECT THRU THE WM L SHERRY SERVICE, 729-7th AVE, N.Y.
FOR ALL OTHER TERRITORY APPLY
SHERRY SERVICE
GENERAL FILM EXCHANGE

THEODORE C. DEITRICH PRESENTS

DORIS KENYON

in

"WILD HONEY"

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE AND VINGIE E. ROE

A THRILLING DRAMA OF NATURE'S OWN DOMAIN THAT PLAYS ON THE HEART STRINGS OF HUMANITY.

ALSO MISS KENYON'S GREAT CURRENT SUCCESSES,

"THE INN OF THE BLUE MOON"
ANOTHER LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE TRIUMPH AND

"THE STREET OF SEVEN STARS"
A WONDERFUL MARY ROBERTS RINEHART STORY.

Coming!
"TWILIGHT"
A great Drama of Life and Love.
Written by Vingie E. Roe
Dramatized by
Louis Joseph Vance
Release Date Feb 24

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY!

The Motion Picture News:
Miss Kenyon makes much of her good opportunity in the gathering of "Wild Honey."

The Milwaukee Sentinel:
Doris Kenyon in "Wild Honey" Gives a Very Satisfactory Rendering of a Highly Lovable Character.

The Chicago American:
Doris Kenyon in "Wild Honey" is worth while. It is a Clever Little Play With a Brilliant Star.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch:
Let them talk all they please about the decadence of the Western stuff. Doris Kenyon is East and West in "Wild Honey."

The Cincinnati Inquirer:
A Very Cleancut Little Story With a Very Attractive Star. "Wild Honey" ought to please.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press:
Miss Kenyon's work in "Wild Honey" justifies her reputation. It Makes the Story Live.

WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729 - 7th AVE., N.Y.C.

NEW YORK, NORTHERN NEW JERSEY AND WESTERN CONNECTICUT BOOKING DIRECT THRU THE WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE 729-7th AVE N.Y.
FOR ALL OTHER TERRITORY APPLY SHERRY SERVICE GENERAL FILM EXCHANGE

THE GOLDEN WEST PRODUCING COMPANY,
PRESENTS

GILBERT M. ANDERSON

WORLD FAMOUS AS "BRONCHO BILLY"

IN

"THE SON OF A GUN"

A WONDERFULLY VIRILE WESTERN DRAMA IN FIVE PARTS WRITTEN BY G. M. ANDERSON AND JESSE J. ROBBINS

A PLAY THAT TOUCHES NATURE'S HEART

ALSO IN:- "RED BLOOD AND YELLOW"
ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL OF PLAINS STORIES WITH A VIVID PLOT

MR. ANDERSON IS APPEARING REGULARLY AND EXCLUSIVELY ON THE SHERRY PROGRAM IN A NEW SERIES OF FIVE PART WESTERN DRAMAS.

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY

The New York Herald:

Gilbert Anderson makes the West Come East in "Red Blood and Yellow."

The Cincinnati Inquirer:

"Red Blood and Yellow" is a Bit Out of Old Times in the Badlands That Appeals to All With a Potent Lure.

The Chicago American:

"Red Blood and Yellow" Is One of Those Irresistible Border Pictures With a Good Gun Man and a Beautiful Girl.

The Kansas City Times:

Gilbert Anderson sticks to his last and is at his best in a New Five-Part Western Drama, "Red Blood and Yellow."

WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729-7TH AVE., N. Y.

NEW YORK, NORTHERN NEW JERSEY AND WESTERN CONNECTICUT, BOOKING DIRECT THRU WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE 729-7TH AVE. N.Y. FOR ALL OTHER TERRITORY APPLY

SHERRY SERVICE
GENERAL FILM EXCHANGE

BURLINGHAM TRAVEL PICTURES

THE ASCENT OF THE MATTERHORN

(14,700 FEET HIGH)

Some Press Notices

NEWSPAPERS OF PARIS:

Paris Excelsior.—An extraordinary ascent has just been organized by an expert alpinist. Mr. Frederick Burlingham has just succeeded in reaching the summit of the Matterhorn and has been able to record, in spite of enormous difficulties, a sensational film.

Le Gaulois.—From now on, while seated comfortably in an arm chair, one may watch the ascent of the Matterhorn without doubting the amazing peril risked by the taker of this extraordinary film.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS:

New York Sun (Special Cable Dispatch).—Fred Burlingham, an American, climbed the Matterhorn today and moving pictures of his party were made. He was accompanied by a large party of guides and porters.

Scientific American.—An audacious enterprise!

ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS:

London Times.—A bold undertaking successfully accomplished.

Daily Mail (By Cable).—Mr. Frederick Burlingham yesterday succeeded in recording by cinematograph the ascent of the Matterhorn, the latest achievement to be placed to the cinematograph operator.

London Graphic.—An extraordinary ascent.

London Daily News.—The pictures of the laborious ascent of the roped party to the summit, the negotiation of the precipices, the clouds sweeping the Dent Blanche, provide material that is exciting and wonderfully beautiful.

London Express.—The daring feat of cinematographing the Matterhorn has just been successfully accomplished by Mr. Frederick Burlingham.

SOUTH AFRICA:

Johannesburg Times, Transvaal.—The Matterhorn has been cinematographed from Zermatt to the summit, so what matters if Mr. Frederick Burlingham and party, having been climbing almost without ceasing nineteen hours less fifteen minutes, returned half frozen and too tired to eat?

And Commentaries by Approximately 1,500 other NEWSPAPERS

Expedition approaches the foot of the Matterhorn, 14,700 feet high, by the HORNLI Ridge

WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729 7th Ave., N. Y.

NEW YORK, NORTHERN NEW JERSEY AND WESTERN CONNECTICUT BOOKING DIRECT THRU THE WM. L. SHERRY SERVICE, 729 SEVENTH AVE., NEW YORK, N. Y. FOR ALL OTHER TERRITORY APPLY

SHERRY SERVICE
GENERAL FILM SERVICE

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

Billie Rhodes in "HOOP-LA"

Presented by NATIONAL FILM
CORPORATION
OF AMERICA

Bessie Barriscale in "A TRICK of FATE"

Presented by
B. B
FEATURES
INCORPORATED

A POWERFUL DRAMA WITH AN ODD TWIST

J. V. RANCK

MARTIN JOHNSON'S "CANNIBALS OF THE SOUTH SEAS"
BILLIE RHODES in "THE GIRL OF MY DREAMS"
HENRY B. WALTHALL in "AND A STILL SMALL VOICE"
WILLIAM DESMOND in "LIFE'S A FUNNY PROPOSITION"
SESSUE HAYAKAWA in "BONDS OF HONOR"
BESSIE BARRISCALE in "ALL OF A SUDDEN NORMA"
COMING "WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS" WITH GRACE DARMOND

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCERS

Gaumont News

and

Gaumont Graphic

Are shown in the best theatres everywhere
Why?
Because they are

THE NEWS REELS OF REAL NEWS

FRANK E. WOODS

SUPERVISING DIRECTOR OF

PARAMOUNT PRODUCTIONS

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY, HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS

WILLIS & INGLIS
Personal Representatives
Los Angeles, California

This Announcement Will be Read by Exhibitors Who Never Met a Film Salesman

What A Live Man, Harris Lumberg of Niagara Falls, Says of

PEARL WHITE

in the sensationally successful serial

THE LIGHTNING RAIDER

"Niagara Falls was closed twice because of the 'Flu'. My business has not been anything near what it should be on account of people being afraid to go to theatres.

Last Sunday I opened with the first episode of 'The Lightning Raider'. I broke all records for one day's receipts, holidays or special days included. I could hardly believe it myself that I could play to as many people in one day.

I point with pride to Pathé serials as real money makers."

Mr. Lumberg's theatre, "The New Lumberg" is Niagara Falls best theatre.

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

STRANDENAES

When Pathé announced
PEARL WHITE
in
THE LIGHTNING RAIDER
you were assured that it was Pathé's best serial.
Figures are convincing. Exhibitors assure us that their business with this serial is the greatest in their memory.
Pathé's business on it to date has exceeded anything in the past.
Here, at least, figures do not lie.
See the serial!
Produced by Astra. Written by G.B. Seitz and B. Millhauser
Directed by G.B. Seitz
PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS
STRANDENAES

All that its name implies - and more

PATHÉ REVIEW

The best in travel, science, sport, etc., pictures, all in one "much in little" reel.

The good things in the Second issue;

WHAT THE EYE MISSES (SLOW MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY)

Astonishingly beautiful pictures of an expert girl diver and swimmer showing her skill, slowed down eight times. Taken by Novagraph.

FRANCE - THE PICTURESQUE (IN PATHÉCOLOR)

The most mountainous section of central France, shown in all its natural color.

SOME WADING BIRDS

The whys and wherefores for the long bills and longer legs. Shown by Ditmars, the naturalist.

IN SUNNY SPAIN (IN PATHÉCOLOR)

Male and female costumes of the land of Ferdinand and Isabella, shown on their wearers, and all in natural color.

SUBJECTS ALWAYS DIVERSIFIED AND NOT TOO MUCH OF ANY ONE; A REAL TREAT IN ANY HOUSE.

"FIGHTING THROUGH"

It is a picture. Starring E. K. Lincoln. Released January 27.

Action all through it—Lots of it. Hero trails Mexican bandit to mountain fortress in order to rescue his sweetheart.

Doesn't sound like a coward's job—but he was supposed to be one.

The big houses throughout the entire country are booking "FIGHTING THROUGH."

You'll make no mistake in following their example. Inquire from your nearest Hodkinson representative for prices and dates.

W·W·HODKINSON·CORPORATION

527 Fifth Ave New York City

Through Pathe' Exchange Inc.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC., Presents

"MOLLY OF THE FOLLIES"

An American "Flying A" Picture

FEATURING

MARGARITA FISHER

A five-reel comedy-drama of life as it's lived behind the scenes. From the Red Book story by Peter Clark MacFarlane. Directed by Edward Sloman. Recall the success you had with the other spicy Fisher subjects and bill this accordingly. You're certain to get box-office results.

Produced by AMERICAN FILM CO., Inc.
Samuel S. Hutchinson, Pres.

Distributed by PATHÉ

Other Fisher Successes Now Available:
"Money Isn't Everything" "The Mantle of Charity."
"Fair Enough"

A AMERICAN FLYING "A" PICTURES

IF YOU HAVE NOT

Re-issues of

15 Two Reel

KAY BEE COLUMBIA

Western Dramas

15 Two Reel

KAY BEE UNION

Western Dramas

Produced by

THOS. H. INCE

BOOKED THESE

THRILLING!
VIRILE! FASCINATING!

STORIES OF THE WEST

An epoch-making series of the greatest Western short subjects that ever have been or ever will be produced—

Millions of people never saw them—

Those who have will want to see them again—

Worthy of being featured on the program of any theatre—

Wise, progressive exhibitors are booking them now—

They insure box office profits—

Released through best Independent Exchanges by

W. H. Productions Company

71 West 23rd Street New York, N. Y.

PRODUCTIONS~

Re-issues of

28 Single Reel

KEYSTONE LIBERTY

Comedies

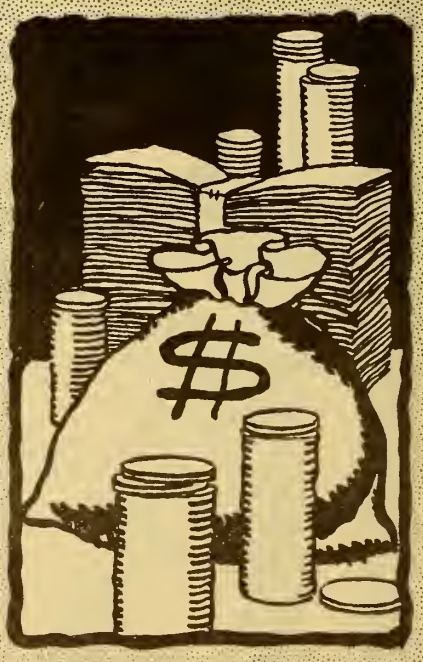
28 Single Reel

KEYSTONE EAGLE

Comedies

Directed by

MACK SENNETT



DO IT NOW!!

STRAND THEATRE

NEW YORK

showing one of them all of this week—

You know them—

The greatest fun-makers in the famous single reel Keystone Comedies—

Each one is saturated with laughs and will spread an epidemic of laughs through your audiences—

Never again will it be possible to produce comedies like these—

They have made the Keystone stars and Director famous and are real box office Attractions—

You can profit by experience.

Released through best Independent Exchanges by

W. H. Productions Company

71 West 23rd Street New York, N. Y.

CHRISTIE COMEDIES

One Reel Each Week

Book thru these Independent Exchanges

SAN FRANCISCO
Peerless Film Exchange
94 Golden Gate
Northern California and Nevada

LOS ANGELES
Peerless Film Exchange
802 S. Olive St.
Southern California and Arizona

SEATTLE
The Greater Features Co.
2020 Third Ave.
Washington, Montana, Oregon and Idaho

CHICAGO
Celebrated Players Film Corp.
207 Sauth Wabash Ave.
Illinois, Indiana, Southern Wisconsin, Iowa.

MINNEAPOLIS
Supreme System Inc.
606 Film Exchange Bldg.
Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, S. Dakota

NEW YORK
First National Exchange Inc.
509 5th Ave., New York City
New York City and Northern New Jersey

BUFFALO
First National Exchange, Inc.
145 Franklin St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Northern New York State

PITTSBURG
Quality Film Co., Inc.
414 Ferry St.
Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia

PHILADELPHIA
Peerless Film Exchange
1339 Vine St.
Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey

CHRISTIE SPECIALS

Two Reels

One Every Month

Special Cast · Special Story
High Class Productions

Well Known and Popular Players under Personal Direction of

Al E. Christie

Watch for announcement of first of these features in 2 Reels

To be released thru the same Independent Exchanges

CHRISTIE FILM CO.
Incorporated
Los Angeles

WASHINGTON, D. C.
Sidney B. Lust, Inc
903 E St., N. W.
Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D. C., and Virginia

ATLANTA
E & H Film Distributing Co.
Moore Bldg.
North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida

BOSTON
Boston Photo Play Co.
52 Broadway
Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
Boston Photo Play Co.
128 Meadow St.
Connecticut and Rhode Island

OKLAHOMA CITY
R. D. Lewis Film Co.
104 South Hudson St.
Oklahoma, Arkansas

DALLAS
R. D. Lewis Film Co.
1815½ S. Main St.
Texas

CLEVELAND
Standard Film Service Co.
316 Sloane Bldg.
Northern Ohio

DETROIT
Standard Film Service Co.
Joseph Mack Bldg., Detroit
Michigan

CINCINNATI
Standard Film Service Co.
Film Exchange Bldg., Cincinnati
Southern Ohio and Kentucky

Tom Mix

rides on house tops—drives off a porch—dives through a roof and performs a score of other dare-devil, death-defying stunts in

Hell Roarin' Reform

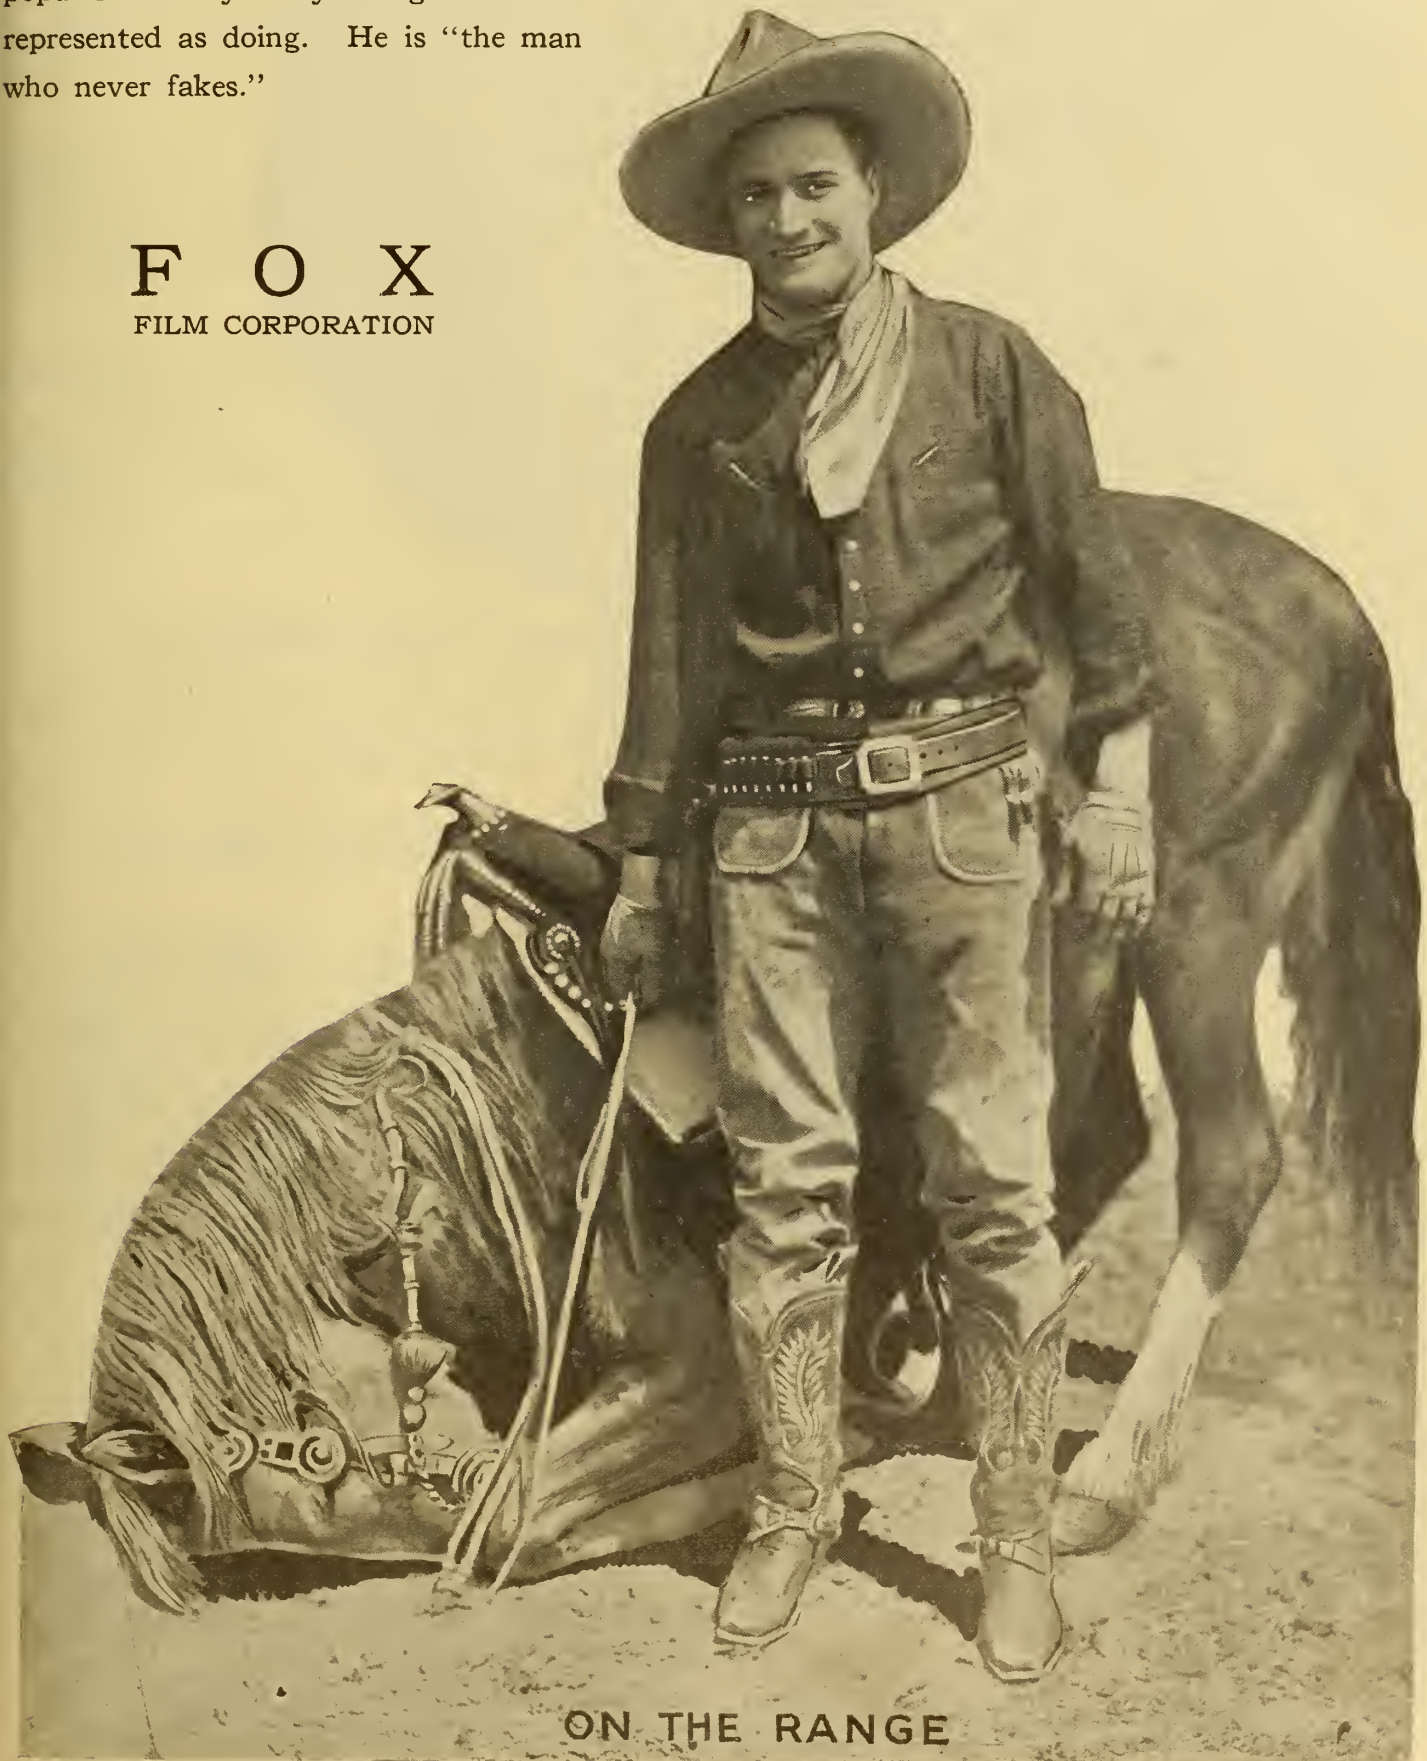
Directed by E. J. Le Saint

Every day you delay booking VICTORY PICTURES you are robbing your own bank account.

F O X
FILM CORPORATION

TOM MIX pictures are in greater demand today than those of any other star in the world. Mix has won popular favor by really doing what he is represented as doing. He is "the man who never fakes."

F O X
FILM CORPORATION



ON THE RANGE

Cleaning Up!

A 299-seat house in Chicago (The Band Box) played SALOME to $2,000 on Sunday, January 26.

Three theatres in two blocks in up-town New York, showing SALOME simultaneously, all put it over big.

At Fay's Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., SALOME broke all Rochester attendance records, even exceeding that of "Cleopatra."

They're all doing it!

The WILLIAM FOX production featuring

Theda Bara

in

SALOME

Directed by J. GORDON EDWARDS

is the biggest clean-up proposition that American exhibitors have had in a year!

It's easy money! Are you getting yours?

INDIVIDUAL BASIS
ALL FOX EXCHANGES

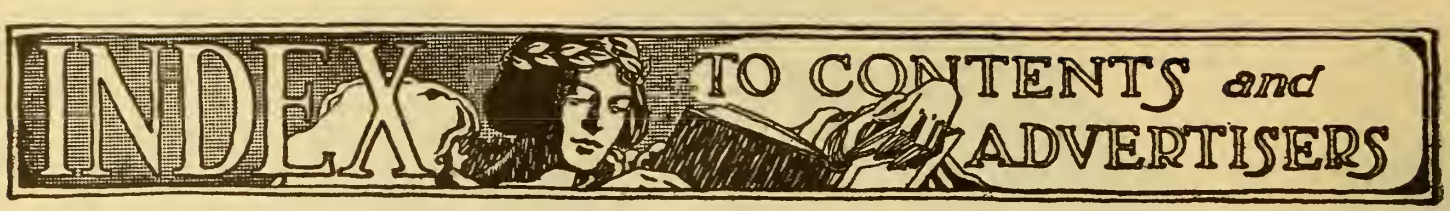
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

WILLIAM FOX presents

Theda Bara

in

SALOME



TO CONTENTS

Advertising Aids and Reviews..... 939
Advertising for Exhibitors..... 903
Among Independent Producers..... 937
Anderson, R. V., Joins International..... 894

"Breed of Men" (Artcraft)..... 941

Canadian Exhibitors Ask for Exchange Charter 893
Cincinnati Protests the Rental Tax..... 921
Comedies and Westerns Reissued..... 918
"Courage for Two" (World)..... 942
Cromelin Believes Australia Will Recover Fast from Flu..... 894
"Crucible, The" (Paramount)..... 942

"Danger Films" Hit Popular Fancy..... 878
Des Moines Express Service is Bad..... 923

"Echo of Youth" (Graphic)..... 944

Facts and Comments..... 899
Famous Players Arrange Special Chaplin Showings 894
Finds Theatre Competition Too Much..... 887
Form Manitoba Theatrical League..... 889
Form Iowa Theatre Men's Association..... 879
Four-Star Combination Enters Field..... 874
Fox Engages Two Bright Youngsters..... 887
Funkhouser, Major, Sues..... 884

"Go West, Young Man" (Goldwyn)..... 945
Glucksman, Jacobo, Going Back to South America 874
Griffith to Make First Nationals..... 881

"Hard Boiled" (Paramount)..... 940
"Heart of Humanity" Going Strong..... 883
How Keane Built Up the Band Box..... 897

Indiana Gets its Sunday Measure..... 889
Initial Kinograms Show Newspaper Quality. 882

Jones, Aaron, Made Good Bet..... 884

Kane Takes Exhibitors Seriously..... 886

Law Deserts Villain Role..... 887
Laying Down Rules for Cost Exhibitors.... 889
List of Current Film Releases..950, 952, 954, 956
Longer Runs Advocated..... 892
Louisville Lifts the Influenza Ban..... 927
"Luck and Pluck" (Fox)..... 945

"Man in the Open" (United Picture Theatres) 941
Manon, Marcia, in Barrymore Support..... 893
Mastbaum Denies Merger Connection..... 872
McAdoo to Advise United Artists..... 871
"Man of Might" (Vitagraph)..... 944
Motion Picture Educator..... 901
Music for the Picture..... 909

National Board Answers Criticisms..... 890
New Telephone Rates Trouble Dallas..... 925
New Orleans Houses to Remain Open..... 924
New Releasing Policy for Universal Special Attractions 888
New York Legislature Not Keen for Tax Regulation 888

"Old Maid's Baby" (Pathe)..... 943
Outing-Chester to First National..... 892

Patin, Claude, Returning to France..... 893
Portraying Mexico's Activities..... 891
Portland Flu Conditions are Better..... 922
Producers' and Distributors' News..... 928
Projection Department 906
Provincial War Tax off Quebec Tickets..... 888
Pulsebeats in Jewel Picture..... 885

"Ravished Armenia" Opens Campaign..... 884
"Red Glove, The" (Universal)..... 945
Reed, Lieut. Luther, Again a Metro Scenarist 888
Reviews and Advertising Aids..... 939
"Romance and Arabella" (Select)..... 943
Rubbernecking in Filmland..... 877

"Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U" (Goldwyn). 942
San Francisco Showmen Indulge in Spaghetti 889
"Shadows of Suspicion" (Screen Classic) 944
Shocking if True..... 900
Showing Goldwyn's "Sis Hopkins"..... 916
"Silent Strength" (Vitagraph)..... 944
Studio Shots 882
Sunday Picture Bill Is Before Senate..... 896

Tips for the House Manager..... 915
Turning a Loser Into a Winner..... 875
To Organize Dallas Board of Trade..... 898

"Venus in the East" (Paramount)..... 940

Warwick, Robert, Back from Europe..... 873
"Wicked Darling, The" (Universal)..... 944
Wright, George D., Has Made Mexican Films 890

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES
Speer Carbon Co..... 958

ELECTRICAL & MECH. EQUIPMENT
Amusement Supply Co..... 948
Argus Lamp & Appliance Co..... 948
Electric Compositor Co..... 948
Federal Sign Co..... 951
Fidelity Electric Co..... 957
Hertner Elec. Co..... 948
Northwestern Elec Co..... 955
Porter, B. F..... 957
Reynolds Elec. Co..... 947
Typhoon Fan Co..... 946
Universal Motor Co..... 947

LENS MFRS.
Bausch & Lomb Opt. Co..... 955
C. P. Goerz American Opt. Co..... 957
Gundlach Manhattan Opt. Co..... 958

MFRS. OF INDUSTRIAL PICTURES
Cromlow Film Lab..... 947
Duhem M. P. Co..... 955
Erbograph Co. 955
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 948
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co..... 955

MFRS OF MOVING PICTURES
American Feature Film Co., Inc..... 857
C. L. Chester 839
Christie Film Co.....864-65
Committee on Public Information..... 847
Essanay Film Mfg. Co..... 823
Famous Players-Lasky Corp.....828-30
First Nat'l Exhibitors Circuit, Inc.....858-59
Fox Film Corp.....868-71
Frank E. Woods..... 854
Gaumont Co. 853
Goldwyn Pictures Corp.....841-45
Haworth Pictures Corp..... 947
Henry Lehrman 832
Hiller & Wilk, Inc..... 840
Independent Sales Corp..... 836
Jewel Productions, Inc.....824-25
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert, 837-38
Palmer Photoplay Corp..... 948
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....Colored Insert, 855
Robertson-Cole Co. 852
Select Pictures Corp..... 827
Selznick Pictures Corp..... 822
Triangle Distributing Corp..... 833
Universal Film Mfg. Co..... 826
Vitagraph Co. 834-35
W. W. Hodkinson Corp..... 856
Wm. A. Brady..... 831
W. H. Productions Co.....860-63
Wm. L. Sherry Service.....848-51
World Film Corp..... 846

MISCELLANEOUS
Automatic T. S. & C. R. Co..... 958
Bioscope, The 948
Cinema, The 946
Classified Page 953
Eastman Kodak Co..... 955
La Cinematografia Italiana..... 955
M. P. Directory Co..... 945
Moore, Wm. N..... 957
National Ticket Co..... 947
Publicity Clock Co., Inc..... 946
Robinson, T. L., Co..... 948
Solidhed Tack Co..... 946
Thos. H. Ince, Inc..... 949
Williams, A. F..... 948

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS
Burke & James, Inc..... 957
Motion Picture Apparatus Co..... 957

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS
American Photo Player Co..... 913
Beynon, George 913
Chalmers Publishing Co..... 913
Greinert, Charles 913
Music Service Exchange..... 913
Oliver Ditson Co..... 911
Professional School of Picture Playing..... 913
Seeburg Piano Co..... 913

PROJECTION MCH. MFRS.
De Vry Corp..... 945
Precision Mch. Co..... 959
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 960

PROJECTION SCREEN MFRS.
Gold King Screen Co..... 948

The Advertisers Who Use the Columns of The Moving Picture World Represent the "Class" of the Industry

We Exercise a Strict Supervision Over the Business Announcements Which We Print
This Protects the Prospective Purchaser It Also Adds Force to Our Advertisers' Messages

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

McADOO TO ADVISE UNITED ARTISTS

Former Secretary of the Treasury To Be General Counsel of Big Five—Action Believed to Forecast Linking Up of "Big Business" With Film Industry

Los Angeles, February 4.

WILLIAM G. McADOO, former Secretary of the Treasury, has accepted an offer to be general counsel to the United Artists' Association, composed of Fairbanks, Chaplin, Griffith, Hart and Mary Pickford.

The offer was tendered to and accepted by the former secretary at a meeting of the Big Five and their attorneys, held at Fairbanks' home, in Beverley Hills, Monday night.

Mr. McAdoo's association with the film industry through his connection with the Big Five is looked upon here as the beginning of a new epoch in picture history. It is generally conceded that the association of a man of the standing, ability and ideals of the former secretary will have the effect of creating added interest for the films, and will result in more stable business methods in production and distribution of pictures.

While McAdoo's connection with the United Artists is only in an advisory capacity it is thought that his action will have the effect of interesting capital to such an extent that one of the strongest financial combinations ever known to the industry will be formed. Rumors are connecting the names of Morgan, Du Pont and Henry Ford, who is spending the winter in Los Angeles, as possible backers of the new combination.

Fairbanks and Griffith announced today that it is not the intention of the charter members of the combine to maintain the organization a close corporation, but that other stars of sufficient importance would be allowed to come in at some future time.

Mr. McAdoo, in speaking of his connection, said:

"When I returned to private life I announced that my law practice would be resumed and told who my associates would be. I am happy to say that my motion picture friends are now among my clients, but they do not expect me to devote all of my time to their interests. I would have taken the case of these artists if for no other reason than the great service they rendered in the various Liberty Loan campaigns."

GIEBLER.

Samuel L. Rothapfel Founds the "Rothapfel Programs"

AS we go to press the news breaks that Samuel L. Rothapfel has completed arrangements to introduce to the screen what he terms "Unit Programs," the fulfillment of complete entertainments to be produced under his direction and supervision. Distribution will be made through Film Clearing House, Inc., of which Frank G. Hall is general manager. The recent "Heart of Wetona" bill at the Rivoli is to a degree the exemplification of Rothapfel's unit program idea.

The Rothapfel Pictures Corporation has been organized as a New York corporation with its principal offices at 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York. Samuel L. Rothapfel is the president. The other officers are Frank J. Hall, vice president; Ashbel P. Fitch, treasurer, and William Seabury, secretary. The concern is soundly financed and thoroughly equipped to go forward in the execution of the idea which brought it into being.

The present policy of the new concern contemplates the issuance of six of the "Rothapfel Programs" a year, each a complete entertainment including a dramatic feature picture, comedy, scenic and news or magazine films, together with complete musical scores, lighting effects, incidental numbers and all that goes to make up a picture theatre entertainment.

William Gibbs McAdoo.
Copyright, Committee on Public Information.

Mr. Rothapfel came to New York as the manager of the Regent Theatre uptown, after a long series of successes in the Middle West. He next opened the Strand Theatre in Broadway, which under his administration was probably the first motion picture theatre to acquire a national repute as an institution.

Opened Rialto, Then the Rivoli.

Then came the opening of the Rialto Theatre, which developed into an important success and led to the opening of the Rivoli Theatre, a companion theatre operated also under the supervision of Mr. Rothapfel. It is from these two latest achievments that Mr. Rothapfel steps into the producing field with the new "unit program" idea.

In this connection it is worthy of note that a number of motion pictures presented with decided success on Broadway in the last few months have been prepared for the public entirely under his supervision, chief among them being "Under Four Flags," the last of the big Government war pictures issued by the Division of Films.

MASTBAUM DENIES MERGER CONNECTION

Says His Company Favors Any Move Making for Better Pictures—Beggs Succeeds Schwalbe

A DISPATCH from Los Angeles, Cal., recently to the effect that a merger of motion picture stars—Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart and D. W. Griffith as managing director—together with the fact that the Stanley Company and Mastbaum interests were part of the proposed merger, is denied most emphatically by Jules E. Mastbaum, president of the Stanley Company.

In reply to statements contained in reports from California Mr. Mastbaum said that he and his interests were heartily in favor of this combination or any other combination that would furnish the exhibitors and their patrons pictures of unquestioned merit; that their concerns were interested in that purpose only, and would strenuously support any movement that was for the betterment of the motion picture industry.

Mr. Mastbaum further said that the Stanley Company or its affiliations had never intended entering the producing field, and felt that if the producers' field was invaded the manufacturers would be compelled to retaliate, as some producers already have, and become exhibitors.

"The Stanley Company was formed," said Mr. Mastbaum, "to stabilize the exhibition of motion pictures throughout the territory in which it operates, and it is the desire and purpose of this organization to encourage the making of the best possible motion pictures, to obtain them at a fair price for the owners of such theatres and to see that the producer of the pictures obtains a fair price and proper rental.

"In order that all persons interested in the industry might understand our position, and that the First National Exhibitors' Circuit's recent actions have not met with our approval, at a meeting of the Peerless Exchange, held on January 31, Lawrence D. Beggs was elected president in place of Harry W. Schwalbe. Mr. Beggs is the son-in-law of George H. Earle, a well-known financier, and he represents him in all of Mr. Earle's theatrical ventures. Mr. Beggs, besides being well known in financial circles, also occupies a prominent place in the field of amusements."

As the president of the Peerless Exchange Mr. Beggs will be in accord with the policy made emphatic by Mr. Mastbaum that the Stanley Company will not enter the field of producing. He will represent the Stanley Company in matters pertaining to the affairs of the First National Exhibitors as president of the Peerless Exchange. Mr. Beggs feels that exhibiting and distributing are one part of the business and producing is an entirely separate function, not to be confused.

Handled 12,000 in One Day.

Dittrich Brothers, owners of the Lyric and leasees of the Ideal Theatre, Endicott, N. Y., have added another link to their chain by the purchase of the Royal Theatre, Union, N. Y. These men have made a specialty of big pictures at the minimum admission, one of their achievements being the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," in Endicott, during one afternoon and one evening showing, to 12,000 people at 5 cents the ticket.

Stoll Film to Distribute Goldwyn for Second Year

FOR a second year Goldwyn Pictures will be distributed in Great Britain exclusively by the Stoll Film Company, Ltd., the organization that bears the name of England's greatest amusement magnate. A contract was signed this week by Samuel Goldwyn, president of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and George King, general manager of Oswald Stoll's organization, under which every Goldwyn production for the second year of the company's existence reaches the people of the United Kingdom under the same successful auspices that marketed them last year.

Mr. King, representing Mr. Stoll and also Mr. Jeffrey Bernerd, the managing director of the Stoll Film Company, Ltd., has been in the United States since mid-November, being the first picture executive to reach the United States after the signing of the armistice in the world war. Throughout his stay in America he has been in daily contact with Goldwyn and its personnel, and has found that Goldwyn regarded him and his powerful principals in London as an integral part of the Goldwyn world organization.

The Stoll Film Company, Ltd., has in England virtually paralleled the career of Goldwyn in the United States. The British organization was formed just a few months after the formation of Goldwyn and its personnel.

President's Ship Carries "Quo Vadis."

The U. S. S. George Washington sailed from New York January 25 to bring President Wilson back to the United States. In fulfillment of a special request for a print of "Quo Vadis," to be used upon the return trip, George Kleine delivered to the officers of the big ship a print of the reissue, which is practically the original film. The changes recently made merely involve up-to-date subtitles and a few eliminations, as well as additions of certain footage which had not been used from the original negative. "Quo Vadis" was issued in 1913, and was the first motion picture to be put before the public in the form of a full evening's entertainment in the legitimate houses.

Harry Rapf Is Ill.

Harry Rapf is at his home with an attack of the grip and bronchitis. His illness came at an inopportune time, as he was about to start a nationwide publicity campaign on "The Sins of the Children." Preparations had been completed to start a production with Elaine Hammerstein, but this also was held up until his recovery.

Indianapolis Lyric Will Be Remodeled at Once

WITH the signing of a ninety-nine-year lease by the Central Amusement Company, operating the Lyric, Alhambra and Isis theatres, Indianapolis, on property owned by the Hogshire estate, adjoining the Lyric building, in North Illinois street, announcement was made this week that the newly acquired property will be torn down soon to make way for extensive remodeling of the Lyric Theatre. The Central Amusement Company is owned by Ben V. Barton and Charles M. Olson, Indianapolis exhibitors.

The Hogshire property has a frontage of 41 feet, and the Lyric Theatre property, on which the Central Amusement Company also has a ninety-nine-year lease, has a 72-foot frontage. The acquisition of the new property will give the theatre a total frontage of 113 feet, with a depth of 120 feet. The cost of remodeling the building will be about $200,000. When completed the Lyric will have a seating capacity of 2,000, making it the largest combination motion picture and vaudeville house in the city.

It is expected the work of tearing down the Hogshire building will be started not later than March 1, and the Lyric will probably continue to operate as at present until about April 1. In the new theatre the stage will face the south instead of the west, as at present. Numerous conveniences will be put in for patrons, including a men's smoking room, a rest room for women and a play room for children.

OPERATORS WON IN CHICAGO CONTEST

Managers Withdraw Injunction Plea—Ninety-Cent Scale Prevails—To Arbitrate Seating Tax Clause

OWING to repeated postponements in Judge Foell's Court for the hearing of the injunction proceedings brought by the Allied Amusement Association against the moving picture operators the case was not heard until Wednesday morning, January 29. Attorney Jacobson then began his argument, which was resumed after noon recess until adjournment, when the case was continued by Judge Foell until Saturday morning, February 1. The case was again postponed until February 3.

At the time of adjournment Wednesday evening January 29, it was fully expected both sides would produce witnesses at the next hearing.

At the opening of court, February 3, Attorney Jacobson for the Allied Amusement Association asked permission to withdraw the plea for injunction, which practically decided the case in favor of the operators.

After the motion was granted the opposing parties talked over a plan of arbitration during which it was agreed that the operators will receive 90 cents an hour.

Officials of the operators' union, it is understood, will collect the new scale in its entirety until adjustment has been agreed upon. The officials have agreed, however, to arbitrate with exhibitors on the matter of the tax on seating capacity which will be added to the 90 cents an hour in the new scale.

McQUADE.

ROBERT WARWICK BACK FROM EUROPE

Discharged from the A. E. F., the Captain Is Negotiating for Contracts That Will Restore Him Again to Pictures

THE first thing Captain Robert Warwick, late of the A. E. F., said to the World man when settled for a chat at the Plaza the other morning was this: "Whatever you may say, please don't say that I have done anything. I have only offered myself and obeyed orders. Beyond anything else that my experience on the western front has taught me is respect and admiration for the American doughboy.

"The soldier in the ranks of the American Expeditionary Force is the greatest achievement of the war. His individual courage, eagerness, efficiency and absolute disregard for obstacles or hardships make him the wonder of wonders in America's share in the glory that is great enough for every nation that was represented in the Allies."

Regardless of Captain Warwick's admonition, this much is to be said of him: He was the only man of his rank in moving pictures who abandoned his personal opportunities and answered the call to the colors. For many months his name has been out of the "fan" magazines; his pictures have been out of the trade papers; he has appeared as star of no new releases—he has been serving his country under orders and doubtless doing more valuable services than his manliness and modesty will allow him to recount.

"Oddly enough," said Captain Warwick, "I was just one year abroad, sailing January 22, 1918, and arriving home, discharged, on the same date last month. In that year I was attached to the generals' staff as liason officer. In all I served seventeen months, going first to Plattsburg to attend the second officers' camp and finishing my term on this side at the War College in Washington.

Coming Back to Pictures.

"Just this moment I am undecided as to my future, but it will be in pictures, that's sure. I have offers for the stage—one to go into an Al H. Woods show in London—but I've had enough of foreign territory for a while, and, like everybody else with the A. E. F., I want to be here at home to take up where I left off and go on with my picture career."

Given a stenographer and Captain Warwick's friendly inclination there could be no end of "copy" turned out in detailing his experiences at the front. But for the purpose of trade-paper usefulness such stories, no matter how interesting or well told, are not available, and must be left to general reading in other mediums. It would be interesting to tell at once where Captain Warwick will "land" in his return to the screen, but that must, perforce, be left for reports of his final decision.

"The 'high spots,' of course," said Captain Warwick, in speaking of his experiences abroad, "were the signing of the armistice and the arrival of President Wilson in Paris. On both occasions I had reached Paris the night before the great events, and the memories of those demonstrations will always be with me. The celebration of the armistice is beyond any power to express or describe. Paris went mad, and the American within the gates of the gay city was an individual hero to the populace.

"President Wilson surprised the French into a complete surrender to his personality. They had expected an austere statesman, cold and reserved. But he won them with a smile—what might be called a 'Doug Fairbanks' smile—that swept them off their feet. For three days Paris celebrated Wilson's advent, and when I left he was still the popular idol with the people of Paris."

Captain Robert Warwick.

Captain Warwick was approaching Paris by automobile on the night of the last air raid, when the most vicious of all attacks was made upon the city by the Hun aviators. It took him three hours to travel fifteen miles, going deeper into the conflict every moment. Another experience that was given to him was to be in Paris that memorable Good Friday when the Hun long-distanced his venom into the church of St. Gervaise and killed so many worshippers.

He Was "In" on Big Events.

He made a trip to America during his year of service, his mission having to do with the presentations of "America's Answer," the film made under direct orders from and supervision of General Pershing. He was, on the trip coming and going, aboard ships that were in submarine attacks launched by Hun craft, and one of the ships sank a U-boat for good measure. Because of his commission Captain Warwick experienced a greater variety of unusual opportunities for excitement and adventure than most men who have served in the A. E. F.

"With General Gouraud," said Captain Warwick, "I was among the first of the allied soldiers to step foot on German soil in Alsace-Lorraine. For a month I was billeted in the home of a German officer just out of the army, who lived at Strasburg. He turned his home over to me, giving me his servants and every possible attention, and would not accept a penny at the end of my stay.

The Lure of Hun Propaganda.

"You will get from this one incident," concluded Captain Warwick, "an idea of the insidious propaganda the Germans are directing toward the American forces of operation. They are doing everything they possibly can to make the American soldier, from officer to doughboy, believe that the German has been maligned. The Yankee is being impressed with the efficiency and thoroughness of the German system of living—and it's working slowly and surely into the ranks. This is now the very worst angle of the present situation along the Rhine. Despite all the brutalities and treachery they have seen and experienced the Yankee soldier is beginning to forget."

Personal and Otherwise

LESTER PARKS has returned from the coast with "Frans," the Lillian Walker production. It is now in process of assembling and titling. It will be released within a month or six weeks.

* * *

Guy Wonders, of the Wilson Theatre, and Bernard Depkin, of the Parkway Theatre, Baltimore, Md., were in New York February 3 and 4. They were in business conference with some of the leading producers. They report splendid business conditions, the best in several winters.

* * *

Bill (Kalem) Wright is located in the sales promotion department of the Vitagraph company, 1600 Broadway, New York. We interviewed him there, and he said: "I am here temporarily anyway, but I have no news for you." Something very mysterious about Bill these days. While he is at the Vitagraph he is not with the Kalem, and we must leave him where he is until he tells us something different.

* * *

A. W. Goff, assistant manager of the Vitagraph distributing branch, is away on a three weeks' vacation, possibly longer.

* * *

C. C. Pettijohn, of the Exhibitors' Mutual, will return from Indianapolis on Monday, February 10.

* * *

George Balsdon, Sr., returned from France January 31, where he has been on the battlefield for almost a year. Mr. Balsdon contemplates a trip to Los Angeles with his wife. We were unable to learn whether the trip is one of pleasure or business, but we surmise it is a little of both.

* * *

Charles Reed Jones, recently discharged from the service, has resumed publicity work, and is now handling several personal accounts of motion picture players, as well as publicizing special features. He is located at 1133 Broadway.

There is a saving of $4.80 to those who pay the annual subscription rate of $3 to Moving Picture World. The news-stand price is 15 cents.

FOUR-STAR COMBINATION ENTERS FIELD

Author, Director, Player and Producer to Share Honors in Features Starring Leah Baird

PLANS formulated nearly two years ago by Harry Raver to create an ideal producing combination, in which author, director, star and producer would be given equal prominence, have now fully developed into an organization, which he claims to be that which editorial writers and students of the picture have been demanding as the salvation craved by the exhibitor.

Mr. Raver, while a pioneer in the star-and-author-dominated type of picture, has always aimed for an even balance in determining selling and entertainment values. More particularly has he championed the story as being entitled to the first consideration, and for that reason his arrangement with Augustus Thomas was made before director or star was thought of. Mr. Thomas' war activities, however, held up the completion of Raver's organization until a few months ago, when the project was again undertaken and negotiations were opened with George Irving.

Mr. Irving saw his first picture when the Thomas-Raver production of "Paid in Full" was given to the screen some five years ago. From an actor George Irving soon became a director, completing "The Jungle" when another director resigned in the midst of production, and then directed Ethel Barrymore's first picture, "The Nightingale," which Mr. Thomas wrote for her. "The Witching Hour," by Augustus Thomas; "Raffles," with John Barrymore, and the recent Artcraft production, "The Silver King," with William Faversham, are among the list of successes which George Irving has staged.

A popular star was the next consideration, and Leah Baird was selected from the list of available leading women as being most suitable. Miss Baird has held stellar honors in many prominent productions, and is considered one of America's best emotional actresses. Given the benefits of a high-class Thomas story, the fine direction of George Irving and the thoroughness of a Raver production, Miss Baird should have full opportunity for the display of her sterling ability and magnetic personality.

Harry Raver, who will have supervision of the productions of the new combination, is best known through having introduced the two-dollar motion picture to America, and was a pioneer producer of the famous star and play type of picture. Mr. Raver's introduction of "Cabiria" encouraged the American producer to bring out massive and costly productions because he demonstrated the possibilities of a market for the high-priced picture entertainment. He brought many stage successes and famous stars to the screen.

Arthur Beck, the business executive of the new combination, has had many years' experience as a distributor and manager of exchanges. He will supervise the distribution and exploitation of the new product.

The "Big Four" production will be limited to six releases each year. "As a Man Thinks," Augustus Thomas' famous stage success, will be the first production offered. Subsequent stories will be written specially for the company by Mr. Thomas. Arthur Beck, when asked concerning the distribution of the new product, made the interesting statement that the entire output of the company has been disposed of for the first year.

Jacobo Glucksmann Going Back to South America

AFTER nearly a two years' stay in this country Jacobo Glucksmann, manager of the New York buying office of Max Glucksmann, of Buenos Aires, is preparing for a trip back to the Argentine. When Mr. Glucksmann came here in April, 1917, it was his intention to stay only a few months, but it soon became evident that the American market offered such good motion picture material that his firm decided to establish a permanent buying office here, with Mr. Glucksmann in charge.

Jacobo Glucksmann.

Max Glucksmann's exchange system very thoroughly covers the territories of Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Chile, Peru and Bolivia, and Don Jacobo has had a complicated task upon his hands in keeping his house supplied with motion pictures of the right kind. He is to be congratulated upon the fact that he has put new force into the concern's old motto: "Quality and Quantity."

Mr. Glucksmann continues to give preference to such subjects as show American life at its best, and it may be said to his credit that the amount of "educational" material he has distributed in his territories has helped to maintain the high opinion and respect of the South Americans toward the United States in spite of all opposing propaganda during the trying times we have just passed through.

Mr. Glucksmann's status in his territory was officially recognized recently when the representative of the U. S. Committee on Public Information selected him as distributor for "America's Answer." With the discontinuing of the many difficult details, up to recently incident to making export shipments, Mr. Glucksmann has decided to make his long delayed trip home to "feel the pulse" of the market he is supplying. He expects to stay there only a month, but the long trip to and from Buenos Aires will keep him away from Broadway for fully three months.

During Mr. Glucksmann's absence the New York office will continue its activities as usual under the direction of Joseph A. Hopfenberg, who joined the Glucksmann organization upon the establishment of its New York office. Mr. Hopfenberg is well acquainted with South America, having made many trips there, and speaks Spanish "like a native."

To Hold Griffith Repertory on Broadway in the Spring

A SPECIAL spring repertory season, at a prominent Broadway theatre, is a probability under the D. W. Griffith banner. If present plans are carried out, the majority of Mr. Griffith's productions, including "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance" and "Hearts of the World" will be presented on an even more elaborate scale than when originally offered, with one of the largest symphony orchestras ever assembled for the interpretation of a film production. Revivals of former Griffith successes are contemplated, and it is not unlikely that several new and heretofore unseen Griffith works will be shown for the first time during the repertory season. "The Fall of Babylon," recently produced by Mr. Griffith in Los Angeles, will doubtless be included among the new offerings. Of the older Griffith features, first shown when Mr. Griffith was directing for Biograph, Reliance, Majestic and Fine Arts, would be included "The Sands of Dee," "The Avenging Conscience," "The Single Standard," "Home" and "The Escape."

The fact that Mr. Griffith has concerned himself with the affairs of the speaking stage also carries its significance in connection with the proposed spring season in New York, and it is quite probable that a number of prologues, episodes, one-act plays and pantomimes written by Mr. Griffith, will be presented in conjunction with the screen offerings.

As a number of present day screen stars first received their training at the hands of D. W. Griffith, and appear in his earlier works, it will be interesting to see them in their original characters. These players include Mary Pickford, Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish, Constance Talmadge, Blanche Sweet, Dorothy Gish, Seena Owen, Miriam Cooper, Robert Harron, Henry Walthal and others whose names are now in electric lights.

Reviews printed in the Moving Picture World may be used by showmen for advance notices or for criticisms in the local paper the day after the show. Clip them out or copy them; have them handy for an emergency. Get full value for the money you spend in local advertising by using World reviews as "reading matter" every time you carry an advert on different pictures.

TURNING A LOSER INTO A WINNER

That's What Hayman, of the Lyda Theatre of Grand Island, Neb., Did—How Long Runs Developed a Bank Account and Also Eliminated a Long List of Debts

FOR five years S. A. Hayman, owner of the Lyda Theatre, a 287-seat house in Grand Island, Neb., had struggled to earn a living as an exhibitor. He had despaired of his ambitions to realize a profit beyond his own domestic expenses.

"It's no use keeping up the battle any longer," he told his wife. "I've tried it now for five years. Every opposition house has a greater capacity than the Lyda. Their locations are better than mine. They can accommodate more people, and consequently they can pay more in rentals. I'm going to ask you to manage the house while I go back to work as an electrician and earn enough to pay some of the debts on the theatre. Creditors are pestering me from morning until night. Advertising bills, taxes, current, rental charges, repairs are all piling up, and I can't stand the strain of constantly stalling the collectors."

So Exhibitor Hayman became Electrician Hayman on a salary, and his wife assumed the responsibility for the Lyda Theatre. She continued her husband's policy of one-day stands, making six changes a week.

All this happened in December, 1917.

What One Short Year Did.

But more things happened between that time and December, 1918. Today Grand Island again has an Exhibitor Hayman, but he is not the Hayman of old. There are no creditors. His bank account is viewed with respectful admiration by officials of his favorite financial institution; and the Lyda Theatre plays no production for less than four days, and five and six day stands are not at all uncommon. The capacity of the theatre remains two hundred and eighty-seven. Its location is unchanged, and the population of Grand Island is still approximately fifteen thousand.

The reason for Hayman's evolution in a twelvemonth from a worried, debt-harassed exhibitor, seeking salvation in his old trade, to a Hayman with a big bank account, first claim on the patronage of practically every motion picture fan in the third city in Nebraska, and the leading exhibitor in the territory is no other than Hayman himself.

Salesman Puts Flea in His Ear.

This story began with Hayman's return to his former work as an electrician, with his wife as the manager of the Lyda Theatre. So that all other exhibitors may know to absolute exactness just what were the details contributing to the phenomenal change in the fortunes of Hayman and the Lyda Theatre he begins the recital of his counter-attack on adversity with mention of a trip made to Grand Island by an exchange representative from Omaha. This was in December, 1917. The salesman was Jake Goldflam, representing the A. H. Blank Enterprises, controlling the First National Exhibitors' Circuit franchise for that territory.

"Why don't you try another prescription for the thing that ails the Lyda?" asked Goldflam after Hayman had told him about his return to the former position as an electrician, with the reasons therefor. "You're playing a daily change, fighting a keen opposition from three other theatres and you're losing money. Evidently your system is wrong."

Getting the Psychology of It.

"Any one can see that there's something wrong, but what is it?" asked Hayman. "I've been waiting five years for the Lyda to return to me some of the money I invested in it; and I have hardly made a living for Mrs. Hayman and myself. I don't believe the exhibiting business is no man's game. I am convinced that it has unlimited possibilities. I hate to give it up, but my creditors have forced me to do something that will guarantee a definite income with which to pay their bills. I can't get the money from the box office of the theatre. Perhaps I have been too close to the whole proposition. Maybe I need another viewpoint—a sort of impartial, unbiased analysis of the situation."

Mrs. S. A. Hayman.

"You'll make money by running special attractions for two days instead of one," Goldflam declared.

"What? Two-day stands when I am losing money with a daily change. It can't be done. Grand Island has only fifteen thousand inhabitants, with four theatres bidding for their patronage."

"Try it for a couple of weeks," persisted the salesman. "You confess to a losing proposition now. It can't be much worse. You are headed for disaster. Try to stop sliding down hill."

Gets Back on the Job.

"Well, I've got to do something radical," Hayman interrupted. "Being an electrician is all right, but I would much rather be an exhibitor again. What you suggest is radical enough. So I'll just take the chance and see if I can't take the managership away from Mrs. Hayman. Shoot!"

Goldflam filled in a contract for two days each on "Empty Pockets," "On Trial," "Alimony" and several other special attractions and departed.

Hayman spent all that he could possibly risk in newspaper advertising to announce the first of the two-day bookings. Then his competitors, who are not the least inclined to vulturism, cautioned him. They said that he was foolish; that he was throwing good money after bad; that the town would not support his policy; that he had better change his mind before it was too late. But Hayman stuck to his own determination until—

Eleven o'clock at night of the second day he played the first attraction on a tri-weekly change. The cash drawer was crammed, jammed, overflowing with bills and silver coins. Money was on the floor, in the corners, on the counter—everywhere in the little coop. The cashier had been too busy selling tickets to stop to sort it. Gone were the neatly stacked piles of dimes and nickels and quarters, symbols of leisure within the box office. Instead chaos of the sweetest, happiest kind prevailed.

Box Office Swamped with Money.

"Look! Look!" he called to Mrs. Hayman. "We're swamped with money. We did three times the business today that we did yesterday. How did it happen?"

"Perhaps the people who were here yesterday went home and told all their relatives and friends and acquaintances that the Lyda had a good picture on," replied the sage little woman who had stood staunchly beside her husband during the darkest and most trying of his troubles.

"Well, by ginger, I'll give them more chances to go home and talk. That fellow Goldflam has handed me a real, honest-to-goodness gold brick, made of real gold."

Nothing like it had ever occurred before in the history of film in Grand Island. Hayman had set a mark for his rivals to shoot at. Intoxicated with his first real success he set out to book every big special attraction he could find. Two-day runs prevailed for a time, and the initial prosperity shower continued and developed into a downpour.

Just a Slight Misunderstanding.

Then Hayman took another brace on the commercial reins, and the Lyda broke into a gallop. A small, dapper man from the A. H. Blank office in Omaha walked into the theatre office while Hayman's back was turned.

"I've got a First National release—" he began, stopped short and fled out of the door at lightning speed. Six feet of solid Hayman had catapulted his way toward the salesman with both hands extended. He was brought up short in the lobby.

"I didn't know you were busy and didn't want you to be interrupted," he said.

"Interrupted? Shake!" roared Hayman. On his face was a broad grin, which had been mistaken for ferocity. "I've been expecting you. What have you got that's big? I'll take it, whatever it is."

"Well, I wanted to talk to you about 'Tarzan of the Apes' for two days."

"No, sir! I'm going to book 'Tarzan of the Apes' for nothing less than four days. Take it or leave it."

Again came his well meaning competitors with admonitions not to attempt the impossible.

Town Was Better Than They Knew.

"There isn't a picture that will run that long in this town," they told him. "The Lyda will be empty the last two days, and it will hurt your reputation. On top of that you can't afford to pay $250 in rental for four days. Don't do it."

Four days later Hayman met two of them on the street. "Do you know," he asked, "that there was not a minute from the time I opened the box office at 1:30 in the afternoon until I closed at 11 o'clock at night, during the last four days, that there wasn't a line in front of the box office? And do you know that I am holding the picture over for a fifth day? It stays on until tomorrow night."

"A five days' run in Grand Island to an S. R. O. business?" gasped one of the two competitors. "Hayman, how the hell do you do it?"

"I'll tell you all about it day after tomorrow," he promised, and went blandly back to the Lyda to measure the length of the box office line.

It was the first time in the history of Grand Island that any attraction of any kind, excepting a stock company, had ever played locally for five consecutive days; and this is how Hayman did it:

Bought a Lot of Printer's Ink.

He candidly admits that he was really afraid of the outcome of the five days' run. He felt certain that he would play to the town's maximum patronage in two days. He decided that it was absolutely necessary for him to reach out and get more prospective patrons, so he arranged for a series of big display ads in the Grand Island Independent, the only daily in the county. Then he went into the smaller communities and bought advertising space in the weeklies, which were subscribed to by the hosts of farmers who abound in that district. Twenty-four sheet stands were literally splattered over the rural thoroughfares.

When the Tarzan print arrived Hayman felt satisfied that every individual in the county knew about the showing. They did!

Town folks flocked to the Lyda. The ranchers came in droves. Automobile excursions were run from Cairo, eighteen miles away. Dust-covered flivvers chugged in from Alba, thirty-two miles away. An enterprising chap with a jitney badge put a hurriedly organized taxi line in operation between Grand Island and Phillips, a town in the next county. Banners on his cars advertised the attraction, and he had all the passengers he could carry. The theatre returned a gross of $825 on the five days. Hayman figured his profit at $375 after deducting all expenses.

He booked "Pershing's Crusaders," and promoted it in the same way. The record of six thousand admissions on the first Tarzan picture was met by this next big special attraction, which ran four days, seven shows a day, to capacity business. Then came "Italy's Flaming Front" to a run of five days. This was followed by "The Romance of Tarzan," which drew crowded houses, with waiting lines, for five days.

Chaplin for Four Days.

But the greatest surprise that Hayman got in the new and fascinating game of smashing unprecedented house records was with Charlie Chaplin's second First National release, "Shoulder Arms." This played an engagement of four days.

"It is a fact," said Mr. Hayman, "that there was not a patron on any day after the first afternoon show who did not wait in line for at least one hour to get in."

Reaching Out for Six Days.

Hayman has just started his advertising campaign on "Virtuous Wives," which is booked for four days, and he is now attempting to outdistance any previous five-day stand by contracting for Mary Pickford in her initial First National attraction for a six days' run.

"I used to think that I could get along without really big pictures," said the former electrician, "but I've got nobly over that costly idea. The best and biggest is none too good for me. I doubted my ability to put over a two days' run and found out it could be done. Then I jumped to four days, then to five, and now I am going to make it six days straight with 'Daddy Long Legs.'

"I never figure any more that the producers and exchanges are robbing me. If I want a good suit of clothes I have to pay for it. If I want a good picture why shouldn't I put up the money?

"There's a peculiar psychology in newspaper advertising. Big ad space makes people think the picture is big. You can't impress the public unless you use lots of space; but don't forget to tell the truth in your ads. That means that people will see exactly what they expect to see, and once confidence of that character is born you can depend upon them to do a lot of boosting for you. Fool them and they'll get out their hammers and knock the theatre to pieces.

Square with the World and Sore.

"I am square with the world now. I'm out of debt, got money in the bank and I'm making money; but still I am sore. Why didn't somebody pound into my head long before Goldflam bumped me the fact that I was missing the greatest chance in the world? I felt that I was losing out when I could be making good, but I didn't know why.

"I had always been under the impression that I had a certain clientele and that it would be a waste of time and money to hunt for more. Now I realize that my greatest mistake was in not giving people a chance to see a good picture when I had one. I always advertised, of course. But I did it in the conventional way. I believe most sincerely in all of the usual methods of advertising. But there is a waste of thousands of dollars annually by exhibitors in patronage lost because they do not play good features long enough to get the advantage of word of mouth advertising. Newspaper ads will develop business for the first day or two, but after that the human tongue is the real salesman. My great mistake was that I had not allowed time for this human leaven to become effective."

And so, the Lyda Theatre, 287 seats, the smallest of four theatres in a town of fifteen thousand population, located in an out-of-the-way spot, is jammed to its capacity at every performance every day in the week just because its owner and manager reversed the conventions and took a chance on human nature. Hayman's venture is a splendid example of what possibilities exist in the policy of longer runs on special attractions.

Lyda Theatre, Grand Island, Nebraska.

Keeney Opens Two Picture Theatres.

The two new Frank A. Keeney theatres at Kingston, N. Y., and Williamsport, Pa., will open about March 1, according to general manager, Ray C. Owens. Each theatre will have a seating capacity of 1,400 and will open with a picture policy.

RUBBERNECKING IN FILMLAND

Los Angeles Correspondent Personally Conducts Our Readers Through the West Coast Studios

By Giebler

TO the casual observer Filmland presents a calm and smooth surface—a surface that is unruffled and unscratched. Indeed, in comparison with the weeks that have just passed things are deadly dull.

It is a deceptive calmness, however—the calm after the storm—a calm that is so sweet and soothing to our tired nerves that we are prone to take it for something which it is not. Would that things had returned to their pleasant, peaceful state. But, alas, there are still rifts in the lute; still flies in the ointment.

We had thought that all of the First National bunch had gone away; in fact, so sure were we of this that we announced their departure in last week's Rubbernecking.

Such is not the case. Some of them are still here—the rear guard—Hulsey, of Dallas; Schwalbe, of Philly; the rear guard—still talking with Tally, still stirring up our stars, still dickering with our directors, still filling the air with rumors, and rumors of rumors.

There is talk of D. W. Griffith going with the First National; talk of Doug doing the same. Not for good. Just to make a few movies for them until such a time as the contracts of Mary, Charlie and Bill expire so they can all start in their new scheme together.

And when this is talked of the wise ones close one eye, put their tongues in their cheek and remark:

The Croaker Gets In His Hooks.

"That's the way it will all end. That First National bunch are a wise lot of birds. They'll get one or two of the stars for short-time contracts and first thing you know the whole thing will go blewie."

However, ours not to question why; ours but to figure the dope as best we may.

The war of words that has been declared between Cecil B. De Mille and Hiram Abrams still rages with unabated fury.

Ten days ago Mr. De Mille declared through the medium of the local press that Mr. Abrams was a nice man.

Mr. Abrams was evidently so stunned by this startling announcement that it took him almost two weeks to reply. Indeed, many of us thought he was going to allow the stinging words to go unrebuked; but no. Only yesterday Mr. Abrams came back in a longer article and said, among other things, that Mr. De Mille is a nice man.

So it goes—an eye for an eye; a tooth for a tooth.

The whole terrible affair seems to have arisen over a rumor (Ah, rumor, what crimes are chalked up against you!) that Mr. De Mille was to leave the Lasky organization and affiliate himself with Mr. Abrams and Mr. Schulberg in their new venture.

This was denied by Mr. De Mille in a letter to the press, in which he said that, while he was sure Mr. Abrams was a nice man, he did not want to and positively would not affiliate with him.

Such Is Courtesy in Los Angeles.

Mr. Abrams' return shot, filled with delicate satire, makes the statement that, while Mr. De Mille is a nice man, he (Mr. Abrams) does not want him in his organization.

All of which moves me to remark that the spirit of those of us who love the industry are deeply grieved at these acrimonies arising between two who are leaders in their respective lines, and it is the wish of all that the chips may soon be removed from the respective shoulders of Mr. De Mille and Mr. Abrams—both nice men—and that a dove of peace may perch thereon instead.

One day during the week I took advantage of a little lull in the rumor market and a P. E. car and went out into the environs where Thomas H. Ince has built his new studio.

What a change from the Rialto and its rumbling rumors to the sylvan solitudes of Culver City. Back in the city wrangling and the vulgar talk of salaries and filthy lucre; at Culver City peace, quiet, solitude—dead bean vines.

Ince a Culver City Benefactor.

Proceeding diagonally from the station I came to the studio.

If Tom Ince doesn't watch out the people of Culver City will erect a monument, with a brass plate or something, to him; or create a park and spell his name out in ornamental foliage on a high bank of lawn; or otherwise set him up as a public benefactor. This is the second big studio Tom has built in that town—first the Triangle plant and now this one.

The new Ince studios are the most beautiful and striking on the West Coast. The administration building, which faces the street, is after the style of architecture used at Mount Vernon, and makes a quaint and pleasing picture.

All the picture needs to be a duplicate of the steel engraving of the home of the Father of Our Country that used to adorn the walls of schoolrooms is for some one to remove the automobiles that are lined up at the curb and put an old-fashioned barouche and a colored man having an awful time with a pair of mettlesome steeds on the lawn.

It is hoped that Mr. Ince's example of studio building will be followed by other builders, and that some of the money spent in the construction of future film plants will be used for the exterior embellishment of the structures. The actual outlay of cash necessary to secure a pleasing and artistic exterior is probably not very great, and if it does not come back in actual dollars and cents it gives an esthetic return greater than dollars.

Plant the Last Word.

The new Ince plant is about the last word in studio construction, and a set of structures that could not have been erected until the present time for the reason that studio construction is a thing that has grown as the industry has grown.

"The Wicked Darling." "The Red Glove."

Scenes from Two Universal Productions.

The late Noah built a very staunch and serviceable ark, but given a second flood and a second ark to build Noah would no doubt have done himself extra proud on his second boat.

Studio building is much the same. A modern, 1919 film plant could not have been built until 1919, and then only by a builder who had built other plants in former years, as Ince has done.

The Colonial idea is carried out very thoroughly in the administration building. The large reception rooms are furnished in Colonial style, as well as Mr. Ince's private suite, on the second floor. All departments have large and well ventilated working quarters of the latest type.

Not all of the stages are finished, but two glass stages, 75 by 180 feet, are finished and in use. The dressing rooms for the players are especially fine. Every lead and all the principal players have special, private rooms, fitted up with all the conveniences. In addition to these there are twenty-two dressing rooms for players who are engaged from time to time in addition to the stock players and two large rooms that will accommodate one hundred persons used in mob and extra work.

There are three projection rooms—one for the private review of films; another for the cutting and editing department, and one for the scenario and sub-title writers.

Plant Has All the Fixin's.

The plant has also a complete electrical system, film laboratory and technical department, a water system, a sewage system, a heating system, ventilating system, a fire department, machine shops, carpenter shops—in fact, every kind of shop that can be needed in the production of pictures according to the best modern practice—and a weather bureau, with a standard barometer, such as is used by the Government for local observations.

Government readings will be secured from other points in the West daily, and forecasts will be furnished each morning, and trips on location will be planned and regulated accordingly.

Out on one of the big new stages Charlie Ray was working under Jerry Storm on a new comedy-drama, called "Hay Foot, Straw Foot," by Julian Josephson, with Doris Lee as leading woman and Spottiswoode Aitken and John P. Lockney as two old Civil War veterans as part of the supporting cast.

Fred Niblo was directing Enid Bennett in "The Ghost of the Whispering Oaks," a Gardner Sullivan scenario that has a real graveyard in it and a real Afro-American in the person of Joe Anthony, a dusky thespian, who says he is not afraid to "projick around a graveyard."

Dorothy Dalton was working out "Miss Marbury and Others," a John Lynch story, under the direction of Victor Schertzinger.

Calvert Carter, the official butler of the movies, was playing his sixth successive butler in this play, and Edwin Stevens, who has had years of correct dancing on the regular stage, was cast in a part where he had to forget all he knew about proper stepping and give an imitation of a dignified banker who takes up terpsichore in his old age.

"DANGER FILMS" HIT POPULAR FANCY

Frederick Burlingham Faces Death to Bring Thrills to Screen from Far-off Lands

FEW people realize the extreme danger some cinematograph explorers encounter in trying to get something new to thrill movie goers who are insatiable in their desire for sensation. Among those who specialize in "danger films" is Frederick Burlingham, the American alpinist, writer and explorer, who has succeeded in recording for the screen scenes taken in places where not one person in a million will ever dare go.

The readers will recall his daring descent 1,200 feet inside the crater of Vesuvius where for twenty minutes he was forced to bury his face in lava dust to prevent being asphixiated by the lung-corroding fumes of hydro-chloric acid gas. Now Mr. Burlingham is showing the American public—with great success, by the way—the perils of crevasses, steep ice-slopes and breaking ice-cornices in the high Alps.

This class of work requires years of apprenticeship. Mr. Burlingham, however, is an expert mountaineer (he has published a book on "How to Become an Alpinist"), and is an active member of the Swiss Alpine Club. He has a few imitators in Europe who work below from safe view points but at present he is the only one who has succeeded in setting up a camera and tripod on steep ice and recording movements in the top of the Matterhorn, Mont Blanc, the Jungfrau, the Blumlisalp and the terrible Zinal-Rothorn at Zermatt. He has a reputation at Zermatt, the world's greatest climbing center, of being a "fool American who will go anywhere."

When seen at the New York offices of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, where lies the exclusive foreign rights for these extraordinary adventure films, Mr. Burlingham said: "Some day I shall possibly not come back from one of these expeditions. Every year the death toll in the Swiss Alps alone exceeds one hundred and sixty, and these are the only climbers who take as few risks as possible.

"It is true I take many precautions, but to get real perilous shots I have had to take chances and unrope in dangerous places. On big climbs we are always pressed for time and as I do the camera work I usually remain alone while my guides negotiate ice precipices.

Great Risks at All Times.

"Take the work on Mont Blanc for instance. In passing an avalanche couloir between Pierre Pointue and the Glacier des Bossons our entire caravan was caught in a shower of immense granite slabs some weighing half a ton. They tore up the moraine and glacier all around us, striking within a few feet of us. The speed of the smaller stones was so great as to render them invisible, but we could hear the msinging. My guides dropped into a shallow crevasse for protection, but I was forced to remain motionless fascinated by the bombardment.

"At the 'Jonction' where the Glacier des Bossons and the Glacier de Taconnaz meet high séracs and deep blue crevasses of unknown depth menaced on all sides. As both glaciers were moving the séracs, some as high as a church, kept falling with terrible crashes. In crossing one of the numerous frail snow bridges over these crevasses, both myself and my guides (fortunately not all at the same time) broke through, leaving us suspended on the rope with legs dangling in the frigid hell-pit.

"At the altitude of 14,000 feet we were caught in an alpine blizzard when at times the wind reached eighty miles an hour. There was nothing to do but fall down with the ice-axe in the snow to prevent being blown off the mountain. For hours afterwards my beard remained frozen solid. We could not see ten feet in advance. Forced to abandon the expedition we returned to Chamonix, when I was asked about a fatal accident on Mont Blanc. I said I knew of none.

"However, another caravan of Swiss climbers, who at the same time unknown to us, were fighting the same blizzard within fifty yards of us had one of their party frozen to death and, forced to abandon the corpse, finally succeeded in descending by the Aiguille de Goûter to St. Gervais. This is not advertising dope. I made four ascents of Mont Blanc before I got this film on the market.

"Personally I prefer this wild life to to the flesh pots of Broadway. When the season is propitious I usually am looking for difficult adventures. Cultivated audiences are keenly interested in what it looks like just under the Matterhorn in the real danger places. There is a personal satisfaction in showing them carefully taken records. Popular audiences, however, like the danger and adventure of such scenes so the appeal is universal."

Metro Getting Ready for Big Things.

Over in the office of Dick Rowland, big chief of the Metro tribe, are twelve enlargements of stills taken during the making of "The Red Lantern," the spectacular Nazimova subject set for issue in the early spring. They are remarkable photographic examples in several ways—in the size of the enlargements, about 26 by 40 inches; in the magnitude of the sets which they portray; and as specimens of the still cameraman's art. One complete set of these big sepia reproductions will be shown in each Metro exchange, in order that exhibitors may have a more comprehensive idea of the bigness of the Nazimova picture, which will follow "Out of the Fog." Arthur James outlined to a World man some of the larger things being done to exploit "The Red Lantern" and also some of the plans of Metro executives to get in line with the demands for "Bigger and Better ones."

L-Ko Moves into Bigger Quarters.

Julius Stern is on the Pacific Coast handling the details of production at L-Ko's studio, while his brother, Abe, is managing the office and sales department in the Mecca Building. L-Ko has lately moved into enlarged quarters on the eighth floor, handy to Universal's distributing headquarters.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

FORM IOWA THEATRE MEN'S ASSOCIATION

Will Combat Proposed 5 Per Cent Federal Film Tax and Also Fight State Censorship and Sunday Closing

SIXTY Iowa exhibitors met in Des Moines last week and formed the Iowa Theatre Men's Association. The object of the organization is to combat the proposed 5 per cent. film tax now being agitated in Washington. Plans are also being made to fight any attempts on the part of the Iowa Legislature, now in session, to renew efforts to force state censorship and the Sunday closing.

That the organization has not got into action any too soon is evident from a bill introduced last week repealing the present "blue" law in this state, which calls for $5 fine, plus costs, for holding Sunday shows and making an out and out fine of $25 for the "offense." It will be recalled that the present attorney-general, H. M. Havner, made a hullabaloo about forcing Sunday closing when he took his office two years ago. His theatrical arrests and raids came to nothing, however, for municipal courts promptly threw out the cases.

Officials Sustain Theatres.

Sunday theatres have continued uninterrupted ever since, and in some cases Iowa exhibitors have taken the bull by the horns and opened on Sunday in spite of protests on the part of church people. In every instance where this innovation has been tried out the city officials have sustained the theatres.

The World correspondent, in conversation with some of the more liberal-minded legislators, learned that a bill is to be introduced that will make Sunday opening a "local option" proposition. It has been this right along, but it is believed that a law to this effect will dispose of the constant wrangling that has been experienced.

The censorship skeleton has not yet stalked from its closet, and little fear is felt along this line, although the present Legislature is not above the average in intelligence, and some lobbying may be necessary.

A concerted fight against these bills inimical to the interests of the theatres and theatregoers will be waged. The public will be the sufferers, it is pointed out, as the film exchanges will pass the buck if the tax should become a law, and the theatre owners will have no alternative but to raise prices.

Officers Elected.

A. Frankle, of Des Moines, was chosen president of the association; L. Weil, of Sioux City, vice-president; W. C. O'Hare, of Des Moines, secretary, and B. I. Van Dyke, of Des Moines, treasurer. A. Frankle, A. H. Blank and A. J. Diebold, of Cedar Rapids, were named as the executive committee. Four-minute men will be chosen to address theatre audiences, and slides and other propaganda will be distributed to patrons.

Maryland Exhibitors' League Names Board of Directors

AT a special meeting of the Maryland Exhibitors' League, which was called by President Louis Schlichter, and held Monday morning, January 20, the directors for the organization for the ensuing year were nominated and elected. As has been customary in the past, ten members of the league, each representing one of the ten sections into which the city is divided, were elected to the board of directors, the officers, of course, automatically becoming the representatives for the sections in which they are situated.

The following were elected: E. B. McCurdy, Northwestern; Louis Schlichter, Western; Julius Goodman, Northern; Frank A. Hornig, Southwestern; Morris A. Rome (league counsel), Southeastern; W. C. Pacey, Southern; W. A. Albers, Highlandtown; J. Rabinowitz, Eastern; C. B. Eyer, Northeastern; B. Cluster, Central.

President Louis Schlichter presided at the meeting, and a good representation of the film men of Baltimore were present. It was announced that the dues had been raised from $6 to $24 per year, payable in monthly installments of $2 each.

The committee, including F. A. Hornig, chairman; B. Cluster and J. Louis Rome, which had been appointed to find permanent headquarters for the league, then reported that a suitable place had been found. It is the whole third floor of 419 East Baltimore street, which is considered a good location as it is right on "Film Row."

Those who attended the meeting were: Louis Schlichter, Thomas D. Goldberg, W. E. Stumpf, J. Louis Rome, E. C. Sandell, W. M. Tyler, B. Rosenbauer, Frank A. Hornig, Louis A. De Hoff, Benjamin Cluster, J. Rabinowitz, W. C. Pacey, C. B. Eyer, C. B. Councilman, Joseph A. Winkel, E. B. McCurdy, Julius Goodman, J. F. Ritterpush, Harry Morstein, M. E. Berger and Morris A. Rome.

Tom Mix in "Hell Roarin' Reform." George Walsh in "Luck and Pluck."
Scenes and Stars of Two Fox Pictures.

Rambles Round Filmtown

With WALTER K. HILL.

The Rambler.

Making Screen Safe for Scenarists.

I SAW a piece in your paper about pitying the poor scenarist," remarked Roy Somerville, one of our best little writers and scenarists, as he sipped his grape juice from a long-stemmed glass in the Claridge grill, and gazed at me with a faraway, July 1, expression.

"It announced that a prominent film company was going to go Prohibition one better and prohibit booze from appearing in any of its pictures, that drink being passe after July 1, the picture would necessarily be passe, and catalogued in the public mind as 'Prior to July 1.'

"Don't pity the scenarist—he's been told funnier things than that—but hold your pity for the poor public, the United Artists, and the brains that conceive these ideas."

"Suppose this rule becomes general? Oh, di mi! Can you see Bill Hart sticking up a passe stage-coach, riding his pinto pony furiously to the passe dancehall and saving the lives of the miners by ordering a round of chocolate sodas?

"And our little Mary will go fluttering across the screen with her passe curls tagged, 'Prior to July 1!'

"Won't it be great to see Fairbanks blowing his passe cowboys to ginger-pop, and Chaplin shaking his passe trousers for a nobby suit of 1919 cut?"

"And isn't it too bad that Griffith didn't know that the Civil War had been passe for more than fifty years when he produced 'The Birth of A Nation?' And that it was historical?

"The possibilities are endless. We will have Bill Farnum braving the blizzard in the passe Northwest to rescue the beautiful girl from a snowdrift, and save her from freezing with a slug of bevo. And when the hated revenue officer discover the still in the Kentucky mountains will he find Our Little Nell, the Moonshiner's Daughter, making hard cider?"

—w s s—

The "policy" for one of our big film releasing systems has been set for 1919 at "Courtesy and Co-operation."

Can it be that this excellent business purpose has not prevailed heretofore?

—w s s—

An Expert Embalmer Kicks In.

The bill recently presented to the Indiana Legislature to provide State censorship was introduced by an undertaker.

In his search for business he wants to bury THE industry.

—w s s—

"I am so sorry to hear you are dead," writes a Philadelphia girl to Norma Talmadge. (Beulah Livingston is our authority.) "My friend Annie, in Baltimore, says influenza has took you off. Please write and tell me if this is true."

Divorces Art; Marries Business.

Mamie Mitchell advises: "Have tendered my two weeks' notice with the 'Oh, Girl' company, to close February 8 in Washington. Will return to New York to marry a business man."—Morning Telegraph.

—w s s—

Rivoli-Rialto Educationals.

"There is a vast deal of dramatic incident, shootings, chorus girls and other things" in "Don't Change Your Husband."

"The tense technique of faro as it was done in the best Western days is carefully presented" in "Breed of Men."—Terry Ramsaye's Publicity.

—w s s—

A Compliment from Texas.

All these film men and exhibitors down here are getting rich in oil. Why don't you New York capitalists get your feet wet?

You can get in from $10 upward.—Phil Fox, Dallas.

—w s s—

The Niceties of Prohibition.

Hopp Hadley is peddling the subjoined nifty:

In a locality where the stuff is scarce a white man gave to a gentleman of color a flask of booze. Later on, when asked how he liked the extract, the G. of C. responded:

"It was just right. If it had-a been any better you wouldn't-a give it to me an' if it'd been any worse I couldn't-a drunk it."

—w s s—

This Accounts for One Lay-Off.

Some one visiting Bull's Eye studios in Hollywood last week took a fancy to Billy West's inseparable hat (of the derby type) and moved away with it when Billy wasn't looking.—Publicity.

—w s s—

"Here Comes the Bride," warns the Strand.

"Don't Change Your Husband," cautions the Rialto.

—w s s—

An Inspiring Subject.

"Even the hotel clerks here in Los Angeles," rambles pretty little Helen Pollock, "'emote' and 'register.'"

—w s s—

Philip Lord, who has the role of Ole Oetersen in "Cappy Ricks," has been engaged for a character role in Florence Reed's picture, now under production.

—w s s—

One Publicist Who Saved His Kale.

Among the cooties who were sorry the armistice was signed may be mentioned Karl Rosner, personal publicist for Bill Hunzollern. Karl must have saved his money, for we have not heard of him joining out any other boss since the open season for violet-picking far back of the western front.

—w s s—

Joe Miller is one of the producers of screen comedies on the West Coast.

We have long recognized some of the scenarios as drawn from his w. k. joke book.

—w s s—

Mabel Normand in Her Element in Farmyard.—Publicity Headline.

Rennold Wolf might call that "Rattling the Skeleton."

Put Some Class in Your Music.

Every time some famed violinist fiddles at Carnegie Hall or some notorious warbler sings at Aeolian ditto we find in the advertisements "Pease Pianos Used Exclusively." Comes a Russian xylophonist to entertain and he also has a special brand of piano to accompany him.

Why not, then, get a little pep and style into the music at our cinemas? Why let the gurglers and fiddlers walk off with all the "class"? Frinstance:

"Sis Hopkins," today and tonight only. Stradivarious Violins used in our three-piece orchestra.

"Don't Change Your Husband" for 10 cents. Besson's Bassoons blown exclusively in our jazz band.

"What Love Forgives" for 5 cents. Conn's Cornets and C-N Disinfectant blown over the audience—continuous.

"The Man Who Wouldn't Tell" for 15 cents. Claxton's Clarinets and Amati Violins zoom it up at every show.

"Cannibals of the South Seas"—Beynon's Music Cues—Our orchestra eats 'em alive!

—w s s—

True to Form in One Night Stands.

D. W. Griffith has been credited with the discovery of a new kind of orchestra, according to the Bucyrus (O.) Evening Telegraph. Through an error the letters s-y-m were omitted from the word symphony, with the result that "Hearts of the World" was announced for presentation at the Opera House "with a special phony orchestra."

—w s s—

Harry Reichenbach has returned from the coast enriched by the royalties he collected on a "Rumor Mask" he invented on the spur of the moment while he was in Los Angeles. He sold hundreds of copies in the lobby of the Hotel Alexandria.

—w s s—

You'll Be Glad to Know That—

Kenneth Webb's "happy family" is all broken up. Of course Corinne Griffith is still a Vitagraph star, but Webb is directing Alice Brady; Frank Kingsley, assistant director, has turned actor and is with the Virginia Pearson company; Tom Molloy, cameraman, is working with another outfit, and Al Linde, property man, is in the depths of despair.

—w s s—

When Nat Rothstein learned that Corbett was to become a Universal star the advertising expert photographed "Gentleman Jim" in special poses, designed to put punch into the Rothstein literature.

"I make these ordinary directors look like thirty-three cents," said Nathaniel.

Asked why not the usual thirty cents Nat said: "The extra three cents is war tax."

—w s s—

The Value of Criticism.

Of John O'Sullivan, a Chicago opera singer, the New York Telegram critiques:

"Yet his voice is often forced; at times he sings throaty and unevenly. Withal he is an attractive tenor with the pure tenor clarity, particularly in the upper register, and his highest notes are beautiful. In the second act he reached the exigencies of the music at its pinnacle in a masterly manner."

Like a good five-reeler; he got better the farther he went from a bad beginning.

—w s s—

This Week's Best Hunch.

Moving pictures would have made a community center at the Tower of Babel. —Kenneth R. Eddy, Menominee, Mich.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By A. H. GIEBLER

GRIFFITH TO MAKE FIRST NATIONALS

To Produce Three Films—Says Contract Was Signed Long Before His Connection with United Artists

IT has been definitely settled that D. W. Griffith will make three films for release on the First National Exhibitors' Circuit program.

Mr. Griffith states that the contract for the films for the First National was agreed on three months ago and that the fulfilment of the contract will make no difference in his connection with the United Artists Association recently formed between him, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, William S. Hart and Mary Pickford. The fact that this agreement entered into between Griffith and the First National officials some months ago has just been made public has caused considerable talk to the effect that Mr. Griffith would desert the five star combination, but according to a statement made by Griffith he has no intention of doing this.

"I signed with the First National before the other matter came up," Mr. Griffith said in speaking of the contract. "Naturally the contract will be carried out and at its expiration I am at liberty to do as I please."

According to the terms of the contract with the First National the three pictures to be made are to be finished between now and November 1, and as the contracts of several other of the stars in the combination do not expire until about that time the Griffith and First National connection will not interfere with the five stars' plans as originally outlined.

Mr. Griffith says that the details as to cast, kind of stories and the price he is to receive for the three pictures are not ready for publication, and that the various figures ranging from $150,000 to $200,000 per picture that have been given out in the press are unauthorized.

Break Ground for New Pantages Theatre.

On Saturday afternoon, January 25, ground was broken for the new Pantages Theatre that is to be built at Seventh and Hill streets in Los Angeles. Little Carmen Pantages, five-year old daughter of Alexander Pantages, turned over the first shovelful of dirt on the site of the new building. Afterwards Mr. Pantages and his wife each took a turn with the shovel, which was of silver and had the names of the Pantages theatres in Seattle and San Francisco on it, and the city dignitaries also helped to break the ground. Short addresses were made by the Mayor and other officials.

As soon as ceremonies were concluded, workmen began at once with the business of preparing the ground for the new theatre.

While not officially announced, it is understood that the present Broadway Theatre, owned by Mr. Pantages, will be given over to motion pictures as soon as the new house is opened. Early fall is set for the completion of the building and the opening of the theatre.

Sullivan Productions.

The Sullivan Productions Corporation, of which Charles E. Sullivan is president, Max Davidson, vice-president, and Charles P. McHugh is secretary and treasurer, has begun production of two-reel comedies featuring Max Davidson, late of the Griffith studios. Specialty will be made of Hebrew characterizations and of Irish stories in the comedies, which will be called "Max's Adventures."

In support of Davidson will be such players as Jack McCready, May Foster, Irene Darville and Bobby Feuror. Troy Brown, formerly with the William Fox and the Larry Semon companies, will turn the camera crank, and the scenario department will be in charge of Ed Durling.

Sunday Organ Recitals.

At the suggestion of a number of patrons of Grauman's Theatre, an organ recital will be given at that house every Sunday morning from 11:15 to 11:45. The first recital was given on January 26.

Weingarten on Tour.

Lawrence Weingarten, connected with Tally's Broadway Theatre, has gone on a tour of the principal cities of California in the interests of the First National Exhibitors Circuit.

Novelist Turns Producer.

Zane Gray, the novelist, is conferring with Benjamin Hampton upon a plan to produce another of the Gray stories for the screen. No star will monopolize the action, and the lines of the book will be followed more closely than was done in the other Zane Gray stories that have been transferred to film, if present plans materialize.

Mayer in Los Angeles.

Louis B. Mayer, manager of the Anita Stewart company, is in Los Angeles, overseeing the work turned out by his star, and making arrangements with Marshall Neilan to take charge of the next Anita Stewart picture, which will be begun as soon as Neilan's work on "Daddy Long-Legs" is finished.

Scenes from "Silent Strength" (Vitagraph).

Home Robbed While Away.

While Winifred Westover and her mother were in San Francisco last week to attend the funeral of Miss Westover's grandmother, their home in Los Angeles was entered by burglars, who carried away the actress's jewels and clothes, as well as jewelry belonging to her mother. The burglary was reported to the police immediately upon the ladies' return, but so far the robbers have not been traced.

To Honolulu for Scenes.

A yacht has been chartered by the National Film Corporation to take a number of National players to Honolulu for special scenes in a story with a South Sea atmosphere. Some of the scenes required will be taken on board the yacht, but most of them will be made in the Hawaiian Islands. Billie Rhodes is to be featured as a dark-skinned heroine in the coming production.

Sends Ponies to McAdoo.

Douglas Fairbanks, having learned that his friend, William G. McAdoo, who is wintering at Santa Barbara, is very fond of the sport of mountain climbing, sent Mr. McAdoo two little mountain ponies that have been especially trained to climb steep mountains.

Hampton Studio Enlarged.

Owing to the rapid increase of work at the Jesse D. Hampton studio in Hollywood, it has been found necessary to build a new inclosed stage in preparation for the coming rainy season, which will be used in connection with artificial light, and which will protect sets and properties from the weather. The company already had one large stage in use, but the new one will facilitate production of the features now in course of filming.

Compromise May End Film Dispute.

The suit between Scott Sidney and the National Film Corporation of America has been continued for a week in Judge Valentine's court, indicating that a compromise is pending between Sidney, who is suing the film company for 5,000 shares of stock or the equivalent of the securities in money, and the producing company. Sidney, who directed "Tarzan of the Apes," claims that he was promised $5,000 worth of stock in addition to his salary of $200 a week if the film was successful. The National Corporation filed a counter suit stating that an enormous quantity of film was used in making the picture, and that this loss was not discovered until after Sidney had quit the company.

Lehrman to Produce Independently.

Henry Lehrman who, until a few weeks ago produced Sunshine Comedies for the Fox Film Corporation, has announced his intention of erecting a new studio in Hollywood.

Mr. Lehrman says that he will produce two-reel comedies of the usual intense character, and that he also will make five-reel comedy-dramas, and that production will begin as soon as his new studio is completed.

Billy West in Old Studios.

Billy West and company have returned to Los Angeles and are again producing comedies at the old King Bee studios at 1329 Gordon street, in Hollywood, which has been renamed "The Bull's Eye Studio."

The comedian has just finished a comedy entitled "The Chauffeur," with Ethelyn Gibson as the feminine lead supported by Stanton Heck and Leo White, under the direction of Charles Parrott.

Reviews.

A private showing of the new Jesse D. Hampton production, "What Every Woman Wants," starring Grace Darmond, was given at the Apollo Theatre in Hollywood last Sunday morning to a number of invited guests.

George Beban gave a private showing of his new film, "A Son of Italy," at the California Theatre at 11 P. M. on January 29 to personal friends and the trade.

Requiem Mass for Actress.

A requiem mass was offered at St. Vincent's Church, Grand and Washington streets, Los Angeles, on January 29, for Myrtle Gonzales, who died last October. At the time of Miss Gonzales' death, the churches of the city were closed on account of the influenza epidemic.

Studio Shots

Alfred Whitman is playing a week's engagement in a dramatic production at the Morosco Theatre between screen engagements.

Jack Pickford is finishing up his first picture for the First National Exhibitors this week, after several weeks' absence from the studio on account of illness.

Betty Compson is leading woman for William Desmond in "The Prodigal Liar," a new Jesse D. Hampton production.

Bessie Love is again at work under the direction of David Smith at Vitagraph, since her brief vacation at Mount Lowe.

Mary Charleson is not playing with her husband, Henry Walthall, in his new production at the National studios, she is at work in a new Selznick production being filmed at Brunton.

Harry Carey, after eight years of Western characterizations, announces that he wants to retire from the screen and devote his time to his ranch in the San Francisquito Canyon, Cal.

Pat O'Malley has just completed his contract with the Universal Film Company.

Claire DuBrey has finished her work in support of Tom Moore at Goldwyn, and has moved her effects to the Vitagraph plant, where she is at work in a coming production.

Helen Jerome Eddy is leading lady for Monroe Salisbury in his new picture, "The Great White Darkness."

Kate Price, who has just recently returned to Hollywood from the American studios at Santa Barbara, has joined the Vitagraph forces, and is supporting Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway in the new serial, "Mystery Mountain."

Jack Kerrigan, who has completed his program of pictures for the past year, is now resting up while preparations for another series of eight productions are getting under way.

Milton Hoffman, Lasky Studio manager, is in New York for a visit of several weeks.

The feature upon which William Russell is at work was written for him by James Oliver Curwood. No permanent title has been given the story.

W. E. Keefe, manager of productions for D. W. Griffith, has gone to Washington to investigate the Federal motion picture censorship measure.

Frank Keenan addressed the members of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, of Los Angeles, at a banquet given at the Hotel Alexandria on January 27.

Bebe Daniels, Rolin comedienne, who is godmother to a regiment of Canadian soldiers, is making arrangements to entertain them at a banquet upon their return from France early in February.

The Monroe Salisbury Company, in charge of Paul Powell, have gone to Flagstaff, Arizona, to shoot snow scenes for "The Great White Darkness."

Frank Lloyd, directing the Gladys Brockwell feature, "Fifty-Fifty," left for San Francisco a few days ago with several members of the company for scenes at the San Quentin prison.

Charles Ray is putting in all his spare time these days in fitting up and furnishing his new home in Beverly Hills.

Zion Meyers, brother of Carmel, Universal star, has been honorably discharged from the army, and is expected home soon. Young Meyers was formerly employed in the publicity department at Universal City.

Initial Kinograms Show Real Newspaper Quality

THE first two reels of Kinograms, the news weeklies of the Kinogram Corporation, have set a standard which if retained will give their new-giving, educational qualities a mark of thoroughness hard to rival.

The Kinogram pictures go into the business of keeping the American public abreast of the fast moving times with the thoroughness of an expert newspaper reporter investigating the side or contributing issues of a story.

For example, after showing pictures of the arrival in Seattle of the famous "Mother" of the Russian revolution, Kinogram shows some excellent views of Levine and Trotzsky, addressing Petrograd crowds, then the New York apartment house in which Trotzsky lived while in America, and then shifts to a clear cut view of the picturesque island in the North Sea which President Wilson suggested as the meeting place for the discussion of the Russian problem. While not a political synopsis of the Russian situation, this series of pictures gives a number of the many angles from which it is possible to view the whole problem.

Again, not content with showing the arrival in New York of one of its aviation heroes, Captain "Eddie" Rickenbacker, Kinogram shoots back to France and shows us Captain "Eddie" being decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross.

The subject matter of the pictures is well distributed geographically, respecting America and foreign fields. Oen reel, for instance, shows scenes in Los Angeles, New York, Hampton Roads, England, France, and Italy. The English pictures include some excellent views of Lloyd George, taken at a seemingly happy moment, if we may judge from the care-free expression of his face. The Austrian withdrawal from Italy is depicted by pictures full of action showing the long column of Austrian infantry winding out of an Italian town under guard of armed Italian cavalry.

The titles of the various subjects are well written and exhibit an artistic arrangement pleasing to the eye. The typography permits the various statements to be grasped readily, since the words, short and well chosen, are ranged down the side of the screen.

Chicago News Letter

by Jas. S. McQuade

"HEART OF HUMANITY" GOING STRONG

Three Universal Executives Visit Chicago in the Interest of the Big Jewel Production

UNIVERSAL was well represented in Chicago last week as, in addition to the regular forces of Universal and Jewel, there were present H. M. Berman, general manager of Universal exchanges; Tarkington Baker, director of publicity for Universal, and D. B. Lederman, special representative of that organization.

Messrs. Berman and Baker came into the city from Pittsburgh, where they attended a trade showing of "The Heart of Humanity" at the Lyceum Theatre. A complete orchestra was used at the presentation which was attended by exhibitors from sections of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, in addition to the exhibitors resident in Pittsburgh. The Lyceum seats 2,400 persons, but capacity was not sufficient to accommodate the large gathering, which occupied all the available standing room. Mr. Berman informed me that great enthusiasm was displayed during the showing of the big picture, which has now been cut to eight-reel length.

Cites Big City Successes.

Mr. Berman stated that "The Heart of Humanity" was in its sixth week in New York, at the Broadway, and that the circuits of Loew and Fox had contracted for 120 days in New York City, after the Broadway run closes. He also informed me that the Stillman Theatre, Cleveland; Loew's Palace, Washington, D. C.; the Hippodrome, Baltimore, and the Alhambra, Toledo, opened with the Jewel picture, Sunday, January 26, for extended runs. He showed the writer a telegram from Manager Kuhn, of the Stillman, which stated that the house was filled to capacity the opening night, and that the picture vied in popularity with the greatest of films.

Stillman to Give Midnight Showing.

All the houses just mentioned, outside of New York, have booked the picture for one week, with the privilege of an indefinite run. Manager Kuhn, of the Stillman, has arranged to give a midnight presentation, every night, during the first week's run at that house.

Mr. Berman also informed me that the picture had been contracted for at the time of the interview by the Rivoli Theatre, Denver, for February 2; the Dayton Theatre, for February 9, and the Shubert, Minneapolis, February 9, each for a week's run.

While in Chicago Mr. Berman arranged for simultaneous runs of "The Heart of Humanity" at the Pantheon, Woodlawn and Twentieth Century theatres, beginning February 9. This is an exceptional happening in Chicago, if not unprecedented. Twenty-six other theatres had contracted for runs later on, at the time of the interview.

Berman Continues Travels.

After a busy week in Chicago Mr. Berman left for Detroit, after which he will visit Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis and Oklahoma City, all in the interest of "The Heart of Humanity."

During our conversation Mr. Berman stated with much emphasis that the business of Universal had improved greatly during the preceding four weeks, and that this applied to nearly every part of the country.

A review of "The Heart of Humanity" will be found in this paper, issue of January 4.

Mr. Baker left for Indianapolis Tuesday, January 28, and returned to New York from that point. He devoted his time to the screening of the first picture of the Stage Women's Green Room series which will be released shortly. There are twelve pictures in the series, which will be released one a month.

Lederman Installs Operating System.

For the past nine months Mr. Lederman, special representative of Universal, has been touring the entire western country, installing in every Universal exchange a uniform system of operation. This system includes the booking of films, billing, distribution, shipping, receiving, advertising, etc., etc., and means the uniform working of every exchange on the circuit. The system originated with President Laemmle himself, and it is now working so smoothly that any employe can be transferred to another office without disturbing the efficiency in either office for a moment. After leaving Chicago Mr. Lederman will work eastward, to New York, where he will visit headquarters.

During my call at the Universal office I learned from Mr. Berman that I. L. Lesserman, manager of the Chicago office, had been appointed general sales manager of the entire product handled by Universal, including Jewel productions. He will continue to make Chicago his headquarters.

Rothacker Organization Elects Heads for Year

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER returned last week from Los Angeles and, after spending several days in the city, left for New York on business.

He informed this office that the board of directors of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company held its annual meeting in this city, January 28, and that it elected the following officers for the current year: President, W. R. Rothacker; vice president, David Beaton, Jr.; secretary and treasurer, H. J. Aldous; assistant secretary, John Hahn, and assistant treasurer, J. G. Mammoser.

Frak Keenan in "Todd of the Times." Pearl White in "The Mystic Box."
Scenes and Stars of Two Pathe Productions.

Mr. Rothacker also announced that J. Wesley Smith, of the technical department of the Chicago plant, left Chicago Wednesday, January 29, for Los Angeles, where he will engage in special service for the convenience of important customers of the organization in that territory, more especially for the Charlie Chaplin and Anita Stewart companies.

Mr. Smith will supplement this work by supervising the taking of some special scenes for James Quirk, publisher of the Photoplay Magazine, the scenes to be used in the photoplay supplement now being released by the Educational Film Corporation in film theatres throughout the country.

Major Funkhouser Sues City for Reinstatement

MAJOR FUNKHOUSER, removed from the position of second deputy superintendent of police by the Civil Service Commission, in July, last year, has begun court action for reinstatement. His attorneys have filed a petition for a writ of certiorari in the Circuit court, asking that the records of the hearing before the commission be brought into court and reviewed and that the order for his discharge be set aside and his job restored.

The petition is directed against the three members of the city Civil Service Commission, and declares that the major at all times complied with the duties of his position and that there is no legal, valid or moral reason why he should not remain in the position. He is represented by prominent counsel, among them being John S. Miller.

Pictures of the Italian Battle Front.

The initial presentation of official moving pictures showing the Italian battle front, collected by Captain Charles E. Merriam, of Chicago, when he was head of the United States Bureau of Information at Rome, was given at Orchestra Hall Wednesday evening, January 29, before a large and enthusiastic gathering. Captain Merriam enhanced the value of the pictures by delivering an accompanying lecture, entitled "The Italian Battle Front." The proceeds for the evening were devoted by the women in charge of the affair to a local institution for girls.

Artistic Settings at Riviera.

Messrs. Balaban and Katz, managers of the Riviera, have created wide and complimentary comment among their patrons for the nice art shown in their presentation of "Bonds of Honor," which features Sessue Hayakawa.

The entire theatre reflected Japanese art and surroundings. There was a typical Japanese garden on the stage, while here and there throughout the theatre were articles of Japanese art, such as vases, lanterns, furniture, etc., all reminiscent of the "Flowery Kingdom." The musical accompaniment and the selected numbers also breathed the atmosphere of the land of the little brown men.

"Ravished Armenia" Opens Campaign for the Helpless

"RAVISHED ARMENIA," the pictured story of the fearful ravages made in that unhappy country by the unspeakable Turks during the great war, was given its first showing in Chicago, Sunday afternoon and evening, January 26, in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone Hotel, the event being in charge of a committee of Chicago women, prominent both in society and in good works.

The presentation was given by invitation and was intended as the opening gun in the campaign for a national fund of $30,000,000 to relieve the distress and anguish of despairing Armenian and Syrian women, of which fund Cook County has been allotted to raise $1,261,500.

Many of those present at the Sunday showing will lead the drive for funds in Cook County, and the appalling sights and tragedies created not only a feeling of hatred and detestation for the abominable Turks, but an unquenchable determination to relieve the suffering and despair of innocent Armenian and Syrian women and children.

This picture cannot fail to arouse pity, commiseration and the determined desire on the part of everyone who sees it to help in this crying campaign of mercy. No one is so poor as to deny his or her mite in swelling the fund that will feed the hungry and care for the broken and defiled victims of Turkish infamy and savagery.

The campaign in Cook County opened informally on Monday, January 27. The Armenian flag has been hoisted on the City Hall and other prominent buildings, for the first time in Chicago's history, as a pledge that this ancient Christian people shall be succored and saved.

Governor Lowden has made a call to Illinois to contribute to the fund as liberally and freely as conditions will permit, and it goes without saying that the men and women of Illinois will respond promptly and in a manner befitting the needs of Armenia and Syria.

The Chicago Clearing House Association has already pledged $25,000; Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick has pledged the same amount, and $40,000 is assured by other prominent people.

The presentations at the Blackstone Hotel are viewed by the holders of tickets which cost $5 each and the ballroom was crowded.

"Mickey" Booked by Lubliner & Trinz.

Lubliner & Trinz contracted last week with the "Mickey" Film Corporation for the showing of the Sennett comedy, featuring Mabel Normand, in their fourteen houses for extended runs. The picture began a week's run at the Pantheon February 4, and all the other houses on the circuit will give runs of two, three or four days, as may be deemed expedient.

Joseph Trinz, of the firm mentioned, after seeing the recent trade showing of the picture at Orchestra Hall, expressed the opinion that it was the best picture of the kind he had seen in years and that he looked forward to the biggest business in the L. & T. houses in their history.

On Friday, January 24, "Mickey" opened a run of eight days at the Castle Theatre, State near Madison, and Manager Weil reported business capacity ever since the opening. He also boosts the picture by saying that during his four years' experience at the Castle he has never received so many compliments on any other picture.

"Mickey" has also been booked at the Woodlawn, Twentieth Century, Jackson Park and Harvard theatres for extended runs, beginning early in February.

General Manager Nielson, of the "Mickey" Film Corporation, is jubilant over the great success of the picture in Chicago, and the prospects for the state of Illinois, the rights for which the "Mickey" Film Corporation has purchased, are also glowing.

Aaron Jones Made Good Bet in Choosing Randolph Site

"OUR TEDDY" has made a big hit in Chicago. The premier showings were made at the Orpheum and the Randolph theatres, which were crowded all day long.

These Jones, Linick & Schaefer houses are turning away, or holding out, crowds of people daily. The Randolph especially is going ahead of all expectations in the matter of business. One can never pass this house without being attracted by the crowds at the entrance, most of the time waiting patiently for a chance to get in.

Aaron Jones made a good bet when he selected the Randolph Theatre site. It is a "psychological spot."

Big Theatre for Aurora, Ill.

Jules J. Rubens, of Aurora, Ill., has announced that the big Sylvandell dance hall in that city will soon be converted into a moving picture theatre and added to the circuit of eighteen theatres now controlled by Thielen & Rubens.

All the seats will be on the ground floor, with not a single post to mar the view of the screen. Mezzanine boxes will be built around the entire floor, from which a good view of the screen may be obtained.

When remodeled at an outlay of $60,000 the Sylvandell will have a seating capacity of 2,250, the largest theatre in the country for a city of Aurora's population.

A pipe organ costing $15,000 will be installed.

Jules J. Rubens is a brother of the Rubens' Brothers of Joliet, who are also enterprising and up-to-date moving picture theatre owners.

Debs Darling Drops In.

Debs S. Darling, who was associated with Ralph Ruffner in Spokane and Butte, was a visitor to the editorial offices this week. Mr. Darling enlisted in the navy when war was declared, and is chief yeoman aboard the U. S. S. Koningin der Nederlander. His ship was laid up in Philadelphia for repairs, and he spent five days' leave in New York—his first vacation in more than a year. Mr. Darling has crossed a number of times, but was never torpedoed, and his worst experience was having to drink sea water when the condensers broke down. He declares that salt water coffee is something very different from the better known salt water taffy. He is under a four-year enlistment and is already thinking of re-enlisting at the expiration of that term.

Thinking of installing a new projection machine? Be rid of the old one through The World's Classified advertising.

PULSEBEATS IN JEWEL PICTURE

Some thoughts on the Vital Forces in "The Heart of Humanity," the War Drama Written by Olga Scholl and Allen Holubar and Featuring Ardent Dorothy Phillips

By Edward Weitzel

TO commence with, "The Heart of Humanity" is melodrama of the best sort. That it has for a background the world war that has just come to an end does not affect its classification. Its appeal is solely to the emotions, and not since the night, forty-five years ago, when "The Two Orphans" was produced in the old Union Square Theatre has a story of such poignancy and depth of heart interest been given to the public. Without intellectual pose of any kind and addressed to the feelings that respond the quickest to the touches of nature that make the whole world kin, "The Heart of Humanity" lives up to its title.

Heart Interest in the Past.

Even to-day most persons are familiar with the pulsebeats, the vital forces of "The Two Orphans." They recall that it contained a series of situations that were as compelling as they were skilfully devised. The arrival of the two orphan girls in Paris, one of them blind; the abduction of one of the sisters, the sightless girl left to grope her way alone; the love stories of the sisters; the heroism of the lame scissor-grinder; the wounded mother love of the Countess; the fight between the two brothers, the weaker battling in defense of the orphans; the beautiful white lie of the Sister of Charity—here are ingredients of which melodrama is made. The Dennery play held the boards for over fifteen years, and no one ever saw it acted without being the better for the experience.

The Firm Foundation of Character.

The Jewel picture has the same vital forces as the French melodrama. Putting aside the appeal to patriotism, which runs all through the story, the first of the pulsebeats in "The Heart of Humanity" is the willing sacrifice of the mother who gives her four sons to the cause of freedom. The marching men and the cheering crowds are fine, but it is the bravely born grief of the woman who smiles through her tears as her boys take their leave of her that brings home to you the real meaning of war and how it sears the soul.

Then, that other woman—the bride of a day, who stands beside the mother of the man she has just married and waves her husband farewell with a courage that is only equaled by her pain. You follow her with sympathetic understanding while she waits and watches at home until the coming of her child. Then, the birth of compassion for the little orphans in the war-torn land across the sea and the firm belief it is her duty to leave her own baby, surrounded by loving care, and go to those suffering children and tend them as she would her own!

In her nurse's costume, with its Red Cross, this young mother risking her life for the sake of the motherless of another land touches very near to the sublime. It is admiration for her beauty of soul that arouses such fierce resentment when the German soldier offers her violence and the Hun officer who had known her in Canada stops her in her work of rescuing the babies in her charge and shows that he is only a beast under his skin.

Whatever else of dramatic situation "The Heart of Humanity" contains it is the character of these two women, the mother of the four boys and the wife of the oldest, their high ideals and devotion to duty, that dominates every incident in the lives of the men they love and awakens so strong an interest in their fates. The mind which conceived the Widow Patricia and her son's wife built a foundation of sincerity and clear vision that is the pictured story's greatest asset.

Dorothy Phillips.

The Measure of Humanity.

When it comes to the finish "The Heart of Humanity" proves, as every properly constructed picture always will prove, it is the story—the fate of two human beings—that comes before all else. After the fighting and the suffering, the triumph and the cheering, the parade past of bodies of soldiers from the different armies of the Allies there is still something of deeper interest for us. Our thoughts go at once to the man and the woman in whose lives is centered the motive power of the story. When the end brings them together, safe and well and happy, we are content and not before. We measure the hearts of all humanity by these two.

This is the art of the dramatist. No matter how vast his background, how diversified his characters or how big his theme, he throws a white light of sympathetic interest on the two people he designs for his hero and his heroine, and does it so deftly they are never lost sight of in the unfolding of the entire tale.

An Incident of Great Power.

Of individual scenes and bits of business in the Jewel picture much may be said in praise. The one incident that stands out above all the rest and excites the spectators to the highest pitch of breathless excitement and then makes them shout aloud is the rush of the Red Cross dog to the rescue of his mistress when the wounded Hun begs her for a drink on the battlefield and repays her by seizing her in his arms. The struggle between the dog and the soldier is short and sharp, as the noble animals tears at the throat of the man on the ground and never relaxes his hold until the brute in human form falls back dead.

No matter if the trick is one of the oldest in the show business and was familiar to the theatre of Garrick and on down to the end of the last century, it remained for the screen to apply it in a manner which dignified a piece of ordinary claptrap and gave it an unsurpassed power to thrill.

Another effective touch is the small American flag the Irish-American recruit carries into battle which is caught up by the daredevil of the four brothers when the first bearer falls. It is like a bright flash of color.

The Director and the Star.

So far nothing has been said about the acting of the cast and the work of the man who directed the picture. The labor of transferring the story from the scenario to the film has fallen in good hands. Were this not so there would have been no occasion to write anything in praise of "The Heart of Humanity." The production is always adequate, and to Allen Holubar belongs the credit of keeping the physical and mental spirit of the scenes harmonious and eloquent of the story's intent.

Dorothy Phillips has cast her impersonation of the heroic young mother in the right mold. Her creation is an ardent, loving and deeply religious woman with no thought of self who makes each sacrifice simply, but cannot hide her suffering while never shrinking her duty. Realizing that the figures about her and the passions that move them are made gigantic by the mighty forces of the world war, she brings her own characterization to the same stature and rises to the full dramatic height of every one of her scenes. The tenderness and spirituality of her heroine are equally well portrayed.

It was real inspiration that took a Canadian backwoods settlement for the locale of the opening scenes of "The Heart of Humanity" and made our brothers and sisters across the northern border the central figures in this tale of the struggle for a freer and a better world. They deserve all praise for the part they played.

KANE TAKES EXHIBITORS SERIOUSLY

Believes in Their Reliability as Barometer to Indicate the Public's Demands in Photoplays

ARTHUR KANE, general manager of Select Pictures Corporation, leaves New York, February 10, on a trip through the South and Middle West. Within the ensuing six weeks he will call upon every exhibitor he can get in touch with in the towns he visits. In a statement Mr. Kane caused to be issued on the eve of his departure it was disclosed that he realizes the importance of the exhibitor as the go-between that should indicate to the producer the type and style of photoplays that the theatregoing public desires.

"I am going out to the fountainhead of all information, the exhibitor," says Mr. Kane. "We in New York know nothing. It's up to us to realize it and keep our lamps filled with the knowledge the theatre managers possess, making them burn brightly with better pictures better distributed.

"'What the Public Wants' is the picture that every manufacturer on earth is trying to produce and each distributor is anxious to present. There is only one way to get this scenario and that is through the man who is in daily touch with the great buying public.

"The exhibitor has an instrument which is as delicately attuned as any wonderful scientific invention; that instrument is the box office. By carefully noting the ups and downs of the various lines at the various hours and days and seasons, and computing from them the theatre manager makes for himself a compass by which to steer his craft.

"The stars to him (the same as to the mariner) point out clearly the direction he shall sail. By intelligent readings of this wonderful device he can forecast as accurately as the weatherman whether it will be fair or stormy the next time a certain star is in perihelion.

"Listening In" on the Lobby.

"Then the showman has other ways of fathoming the intangible predilections and changing moods of the variable playgoer. Keenly alive to every scrap of information about how the battle is going he will linger in the lobby and get the real comment 'from the heart out' as his patrons leave the theatre, unknowing every word they utter is being eagerly drunk in and that they are fixing right there the style and quality of their future entertainment.

"Thus he gets no fulsome praise from some friend of his who thinks that anything the exhibitor does is all right simply because he is connected with it. He may hear things vastly to his own disparagement and that of the house. If he is a wise exhibitor this will benefit him.

The Exhibitor Is Observant.

"Every step forward by the industry has come about through the voice given by the exhibitor to the desires of his clientele. Every retrogression has been checked by him. He is usually an observing man and information is his asset. He has at first hand the recorded opinions of the twenty millions or more Americans who turn daily to the photoplay as their 'next friend.'

"We in New York may build pretty air castles, blow bubbles which reflect all colors of the artistic and financial rainbow, but unless they are founded on the observations of the man standing with watch in hand and with his finger on the pulse of the public, the castles collapse and the bubbles burst. Every scheme, grandiloquent or petty, must successfully answer this test.

Give Heed to the Showman.

"How will this affect Oshkosh? What will the man in Puyallup do with this? Can our friend, the photoplay impresario in Kennebunkport, get away with this? Will the public in Baton Rouge back up the man who tries to put this across?' If that test were applied to many ideas that spring up and are fostered here in New York, they would never be foisted on the industry.

"The trouble is we do not go enough to the first and last word in the business, the man who must face the public with all these wares, good, bad and indifferent, revolutionary, reactionary, Bolshevistic, imperialistic or democratic. If we did, we would know."

Kane's Route Day and Date.

Mr. Kane's first stop is Philadelphia, where Manager Max Milder will show him the fine new offices which are being prepared for Select. After spending February 12 and 13 in the Washington office Mr. Kane expects to visit Norfolk and Richmond, Va., in company with Manager V. P. Whitaker, calling upon Otto Wells, of the Wells and Colonial theatres, and other important Select exhibitors.

At present the itinerary in exchange and important theatre cities where Mr. Kane is anxious to meet all exhibitors is as fellows: Atlanta, February 17-19; Jacksonville, Fla., 20; New Orleans, 28-March 2; Houston and Galveston, 3; Dallas, 4-6; Ardmore, Okla., 7; Topeka, Kan., 9; Kansas City, 10-12; Omaha, 13-15; St. Louis, 17-18; Indianapolis, 19; Cincinnati, 20, 21; Pittsburgh, 22. Mr. Kane expects to be at his office in New York again on Monday, March 24.

Cooper Made Marine Lieutenant.

Courtney Ryley Cooper, scenario author of Chief Flynn's motion picture serial, "The Eagle's Eye," has been commissioned a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps. Cooper gave up remunerative work in New York to get into this service, and when they got his pedigree they put him doing publicity and historical work. He underwent all of the training given to newly enlisted men when they shot him down to Paris Island, S. C., to make a real "Devil Dog" out of him. Apparently he made good, for he has emerged from the chrysalis a lieutenant.

Lieutenant Cooper has departed for the other side on special orders. His duty will be to collate historical data concerning the participation of the Marines in the big fuss. He will remain in France about two months, visiting all of the battlefields over which the "Devil Dogs" fought, spending some time also with the Army of Occupation.

Moving Picture World is known and read in every country on earth where there is a screen. Its message goes to far corners at home and abroad; to the "sticks" and to the towns, big and little.

Hale Hamilton in "Johnny on the Spot" (Metro).

FINDS THEATRE COMPETITION TOO MUCH

Washington City Churches Would Close Picture Houses on the Sabbath by Legislation

THE Sunday opening feature, which gives the one bright ray to the long-suffering residents of Washington, D. C., is again under fire. The churches find that they cannot face the competition of the motion picture theatres and therefore want to drive the theatres from their field. They want this done by legislation rather than by meeting the competition squarely.

The churches have found that while 47 of the Protestant denominations out of 154 such congregations here during night services the past two Sundays attracted about 15,000, the theatres and motion picture shows on each of those nights gathered an attendance of 38,000. These interesting statistics were compiled by the Sunday Observance Committee and reported to the Pastors' Federation at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The report was submitted by the Rev. Dr. Edwards, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who had a corps of assistants at the theatres between 7 and 9.30 p. m., on the two Sunday nights reported upon, these being the hours of church services. He declared that all of the theatres were filled to capacity and that in front of some there were waiting lines.

From 50 to 80 per cent. of the people attending the shows and theatres were below the age of twenty-five, the report stated, and Dr. Edwards condemned some of the shows presented.

The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Steck, pastor of the Epiphany Lutheran Church, reported that the attendance on January 12 was 7,000 at the churches, the attendance of January 19 having increased to 8,000. He recognizes the type of competition that the theatres offer, for he says, "If you want an average attendance at your churches Sunday night, you will have to provide entertainment."

Dr. W. W. Davis, of the National Alliance for Sunday Observance, told the pastors that the alliance stood ready to give its support in a movement for the strict observance of the Sabbath in the District of Columbia, and he urged that each denomination get behind the members of their denomination in Congress, and have Congress enact a Sunday blue law.

William Fox Engages Two Bright Youngsters

ALBERT RAY and Elinor Fair are to appear in William Fox pictures —a series of the good-humored, wholesome, dramatic type of love tales, clean, bright and snappy, that the American public has come to desire. Typical of young American manhood and womanhood, these stories will reflect the virile strength of Mr. Ray and the sweetness and charm of Miss Fair. Both Mr. Ray and Miss Fair have distinctive personalities.

Albert Ray is regarded as typifying on the screen all that is likable and best. Youthful and the possessor of an illimitable fund of pep and vigor, he is regarded as ideally suited for the speedy, good-humored type of American screen entertainment. By backing him with the immense resources of the Fox corporation it is argued Mr. Fox can give him an immeasurably greater opportunity to develop. Mr. Ray was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., August 28, 1894. When he was seven years of age he was engaged for the part of Buster Brown in the stage production of that name. Then he played the title role in "Peck's Bad Boy."

In a way the career of Miss Fair has paralleled that of Mr. Ray. Like him, she is blessed with youth, being only seventeen years old. From her childhood this charming young actress had an absorbing ambition to be a dramatic star or a grand opera singer. Accordingly, during her schooling in private institutions in New York, Los Angeles and Seattle, she bent her studies toward this end. When she finished her education she immediately entered upon a long and exceedingly arduous course of training in dramatic expression under the tutelage of eminent professors.

Mr. Ray and Miss Fair already have begun on their first picture at the Fox studios in Hollywood. The picture is based on an original story by E. Lloyd Sheldon and J. Searle Dawley, and was written especially for the two.

Law Deserts Villain Role To Be Detective for Perret

WALTER LAW, who was selected by Leonce Perret to enact the role of Donohue, the detective-inspector in "The Thirteenth Chair," which is a screen version of Bayard Veiller's sensational stage success of the same name, will be remembered by many for his remarkable portrayals as villain and all-around bad man in many of the Theda Bara and William Farnum releases.

Ever since his entry into the realm of motion pictures, which dates back some six or seven years, Mr. Law, who is a striking specimen of physical and mental manhood, has been fated to appear in films with but few exceptions in the unsympathetic roles of villain of more or less despicability. His "shadow," as Mr. Law's negro valet has come to be known, has perhaps most tritely and uniquely paraphrased Mr. Law's screen activities by boastingly referring to his employer as the "Fighting Fool," which in the vernacular of local Africa is a considerable compliment.

Walter Law.

In the "Thirteenth Chair," however, this paraphrase would not fit. On the contrary the former "Fighting Fool" enacts the role of a detective in a manner which is perhaps new to the screen and which should earn new honors for the one time screen bully and wife-beater, as an actor of broad conception and varied virile interpretation, and not an actor of the "one-part" variety.

Statement Shows Aid of Exhibitors.

An interesting statement has just been furnished by the War Camp Community Service showing the co-operation of the exhibitors of Washington, D. C. During the months of December and January nearly 15,000 soldiers were admitted free to the picture houses.

The War Camp Community Service was instructed to have special tickets printed for acceptance by the Crandall, Moore and Loew strings of theatres. They have agreed to honor tickets daily at each of their houses and the Community Service agents have reserved that number of tickets each day for the wounded men at Walter Reed Hospital for Grandall's Savoy, at Fourteenth street and Columbia road, and Grandall's Knickerbocker, on Eighteenth street.

The War Camp Community Service pays the war taxes on the tickets and the returns show that more than 7,000 men in uniform availed themselves of the kindness of the exhibitors during December and again during January. The arrangement will continue for at least six months more.

Maibelle Heikes Justice Recovering.

Maibelle Heikes Justice, the author and photo-dramatist, has been critically ill for the past five weeks at her home, 41 West Forty-seventh street, New York. She escaped the influenza, then underwent a complete nervous breakdown, caused by her incessant war work.

Miss Justice is one of the hostesses of the famous Comrade Club and Canteen for enlisted men, allied with the War Camp Community; a member of the Stage Women's War Relief, also the Red Cross and "Y" hut canteens, as well as the Navy Club. She is on the road to recovery now, and hopes soon to resume her active screen work, which was laid aside several months for the other duties.

Lyons and Moran Increase Staff.

Lyons and Moran, Universal funsters, have been casting about for the past few weeks to obtain the best studio helpers possible. Recently they added Mildred Moore, a former star of the "Cocoanut Grove" show in New York, to their company, and last week they announced that Clyde Bruckman had been secured to write sub-titles for future comedies emanating from their studios.

New York Legislature Not Keen for Tax Regulation

THE bill recently introduced in the New York Assembly by Assemblyman William F. Brush, of Orange county, seeking to create the office of commissioner of motion pictures, as well as the imposition of a footage tax, will not get far in the Legislature this year if Assemblyman Raymond Kenyon, brother of Doris Kenyon, is any judge of the situation. And it is conceded that no man in the Legislature this year is better versed or better understands the motion picture industry than Mr. Kenyon. So far as can be learned, there are no large interests behind the bill which Mr. Brush has introduced, but Assemblyman Brush up to the present time has been rather reticent in regard to just what interests came to him with the request that he should introduce this one particular measure.

Kenyon Is Keeping Watch.

"So far there has been little talk of any need of a censorship measure," said Assemblyman Kenyon, "and as for the imposition of footage taxes on the industry, I am in position to say that I think, when the matter is once explained to the Legislature, as to just what the motion picture industry has been up against during these last few months, and just what this same industry has done in aiding the Allies in the recent world struggle, I am quite positive that there will be no vote which will create a needless commissioner of motion pictures and the additional tax which is called for in Mr. Brush's bill."

Some few days ago Governor Smith stated that he was against the creation of new departments which would bring additional burdens on the taxpayers. When this is taken in consideration, the likelihood of Assemblyman Brush's bill securing favorable action on the part of the Governor, even if it should pass the Legislature, seems improbable.

Assemblyman Kenyon was in New York Saturday at a meeting of the company of which his sister is a member. At that time the situation, so far as the introduction of bills affecting the industry was concerned, was discussed.

GRANT.

President May See Chaplin Films.

Among the pictures booked for showing on the President's return voyage is "The Immigrant," Chaplin's famous seasick comedy, a Lone Star-Mutual release. It with "The Fireman" and "The Adventurer" has been booked for the George Washington's trip to America.

The booking was made through the Community Motion Picture Bureau, which arranged with A. S. Kirkpatrick, assistant general manager of Exhibitors' Mutual, for new prints of the three comedies for presidential screening.

Kramer Returns to Universal.

Earl W. Kramer, who was represented in Universal's service flag, is back on the payroll with headquarters in the Mecca Building. He was employed in Washington attached to the Surgeon General's photographic division, a branch of the service that devoted itself to scientific photography; picturing the details of important surgical operations and other matters of record in the medical branch of war work.

Luther Reed.

Lieutenant Luther Reed Again a Metro Scenarist

LUTHER A. REED has doffed the khaki of a lieutenant adjutant of infantry, and on the theory that the typewriter is mightier than the automatic pistol is again banging out scenarios for Metro. Reed dropped in suddenly from the East on Maxwell Karger, director general, and all his other buddies in the Metro outfit at the new studios in Hollywood just in time to draw his own office, smelling of fresh paint, with a desk, a telephone and everything.

Reed made a smart-looking officer, with a gold bar on each shoulder and a six months' service stripe on his sleeve. Eleven days after he was selected for service and sent to Camp Upton he was picked out to try for a commission at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va. He qualified and had received his overseas orders when the armistice was signed.

Reed wrote the original story of "In for Thirty Days," recently produced at the Metro plant and was the author also of "A Pair of Cupids."

Into the Far Corners It Goes

With $3 for a renewal of subscription to Moving Picture World came this expression of opinion from B. A. Aughinbaugh, principal of the rural district school of Mingo, Champaign County, Ohio.

"The World is the one best bet in moving picture trade papers, and even we school people who operate shows for either education or profit cannot afford to be without it."

Quimby Goes to Middle West.

Having successfully weathered an attack of Influenza, Fred C. Quimby, sales manager of Pathe, has departed for the Middle West on a tour of the branches, during which he will talk Pathe pictures and the coming feature "Common Clay" and the Harold Lloyd comedies in particular. Pathe is making a great drive on these subjects and Mr. Quimby in his duties of speeding up sales will visit among other cities Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Des Moines and Minneapolis.

New Releasing Policy for Universal Special Attractions

A NEW releasing policy for Universal special attractions adopted this week will go into effect March 10, according to announcement by Carl Laemmle, president of the company.

Though somewhat of a departure from the present releasing arrangement the new releasing policy does not revert from the idea of "the play's the thing," which has been a Universal motto for three years, but adds considerable strength to the idea due to the fact that the best plays obtainable are to feature five stars, whose drawing power will assure the good plays the success they merit at the box office.

The first release of the new star series will be made on March 10, and one Special Attraction of the series will be released each week thereafter until the first of the series of twenty pictures expires. A second series of Special Attractions, featuring a set number of stars, will follow the first series; it is expected that thereafter each succeeding series will feature the same number of stars.

The stars who will be featured in the first series of Special Attractions are Mae Murray, Mary MacLaren, Monroe Salisbury, Priscilla Dean and Harry Carey. Each star will make four pictures for this series and the exhibitor will be given the privilege of booking the entire series or just the picture of certain stars as he desires. None of the stars of the Special Attraction series will be featured in any Jewel productions or vice versa.

Dorothy Phillips will, hereafter, be known only as a Jewel star, and Mildred Harris (Mrs. Charlie Chaplin) will be seen only in Jewel productions. The policy of releasing Jewel productions, which does not specify a certain number of releases per year, will be continued.

"The Scarlet Shadow" with Mae Murray will be the first Special Attraction of the new series plan.

Provincial War Tax Off Quebec Tickets

WALTER MITCHELL, Provincial Treasurer of Quebec, sprang a surprise at the session of the Quebec Legislature on January 30, by announcing that the Province had decided to relinquish the collection of a tax on amusement tickets.

In presenting the budget for the coming year no prospective receipts from the amusement tax were included in the estimates. Mr. Mitchell announced that this omission was due to the fact that the Province had decided not to continue the tax, but that the various municipalities would be permitted to impose a levy on theatre admission tickets as they had before the war.

This tax was first imposed by the city of Montreal and that time it was a one-cent charge on all tickets. After the outbreak of hostilities, the Province took this privilege from Montreal in order to increase its own revenue. The tax was enlarged to a scale of two to ten cents and the receipts were divided with the respective municipalities, the Province retaining a large portion, however. Now that the war is over and no further war contributions are necessary, the Province has decided to permit the cities to revert to the old arrangement.

INDIANA GETS ITS SUNDAY MEASURE

Bill Prepared by Exhibitors May Receive Support from Solons Hitherto Antagonistic

THE Sunday moving picture bill, which has been expected since the opening of the Indiana State Legislature, arrived in the Senate on Thursday, January 30, through introduction by Senator McCray, of Indianapolis, the author of the Sunday bill introduced in the 1917 session of the Legislature After being introduced the bill was referred by Lieutenant-Governor Bush to the committee on rights and privileges.

The bill, which was prepared under the direction of representatives of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, would permit the exhibition of pictures "of a historical, moral or educational nature" on Sundays after 1:30 p. m. The entertainments would be under the supervision of the police authorities, and the mayor of a city or the trustees of a town would have the right to prohibit any moving picture show, provided that in their judgment the pictures are of an immoral nature.

Indications at the state house following the introduction of the bill were that the measure probably will gain support from a number of senators and representatives who previously had expressed themselves as being against an unrestricted Sunday law.

Several petitions protesting against the proposed law have been presented to both the House and Senate from individuals and organizations throughout the state. The petitions were all referred to the committee on public morals.

State organizations affiliated with the Legislative Council of Indiana Women have announced that they are going to oppose the bill. That provision of the measure which gives to the mayor of any city or board of trustees of any incorporated town the right to revoke the license of any house which shows offensive pictures was characterized by Mrs. Edward Franklin White, president of the women's council, as a "sop" to the persons who are working for a censorship law. It means nothing, she said, as every mayor and every chief of police now possess the privilege of closing up a show which they regard as immoral.

Mrs. White said she doubts the constitutionality of the clause which provides that in case a community does not want a Sunday show it must have action from its governing body prohibiting the opening of the show. She contends that it is not within the power of the common council to enact a law that will supersede a state law.

San Francisco Showmen Indulge in Spaghetti

THE film exchange managers of San Francisco were the guests of the North Beach Exhibitors' Association at a midnight Italian dinner on the night of January 16, the affair being held to form a closer bond between exchangemen and exhibitors and to give the former an idea of conditions in the cosmopolitan district of the city. Many of the film exchangemen, particularly the newcomers, did not know that such a unique district existed, and the affair was especially enjoyed by them.

The dinner was held at the Turin Hotel, one of those fast disappearing Bohemian places, where there is but little on the walls, less on the floor, but an abundance on the table. One of the affairs of the evening was a spaghetti-eating contest between William Jennings Citron, of the United Picture Theatres of America, and Louis Reichert, of the Metro. The latter won the event in twenty-seven seconds, Citron dropping his shears at the crucial moment.

Sergeant R. G. Edinger, house manager of the Verdi Theatre, who has just returned from France, told several army stories and sang some new songs. L. C. "Chris" Johnson, of this theatre, who arranged the affair, was toastmaster, and called upon many of the guests for remarks. Among those present were: Ralph Quive, of Vitgraph; H. J. Henrioulle, Pathe salesman; G. C. Parsons and Mr. Perkins, of Goldwyn; H. L. Knappen, of Select; Ben F. Simpson, of Triangle; H. F. Moore, of General; Charles Rosenthal, Jr., and E. B. Mayer, of the M. & R. Feature exchange; William Jennings Citron and Mike Zar, of United Picture Theatres; Charles Muehlman, Fox manager; D. J. Chatkin, of Film Clearing House; Louis Reichert and G. C. Blumenthal, of Metro, and F. E. Samuels, of New York, special representative of the General Film Company.

Laying Down the Rules to Coast Exhibitors

THE San Francisco Film Exchange Board of Trade, recently organized, with a membership that includes every film exchange in business in that city, has issued a statement outlining its purposes, and directing the attention of exhibitors to general rules that have been adopted for the protection of all concerned. The details follow:

In order to protect the responsible exhibitor from the irresponsible and careless exhibitor the following rules have been established and must be observed by all exhibitors in dealings with exchanges comprising the San Francisco Film Exchange Board of Trade:

Contracts — Contracts must be respected. Proper notice of cancellation must be given.

Payments—All checks for film service must be in the office of serving exchange not later than shipping date, otherwise shipment will go forward C. O. D.

Changes in Booking — Requests for changes in bookings cannot be considered unless received by the exchange at least fourteen days before the scheduled playing date.

Exchanges' Liability—When a film is circuited exchanges will not be liable for damages sustained by the preceding exhibitor's failure to ship where specific instructions for disposition have been given.

Long-Distance Calls — Collect telephone calls and wires will not be accepted unless they relate to an error on the part of the serving exchange.

Return Shipments—Films and returnable advertising matter must be returned prepaid immediately after use unless otherwise instructed.

Shipment of Film—No film shall be held beyond playing dates, as per contract. Any and all damage accruing to an exchange or a brother exhibitor through disregard of this rule shall be borne by the exhibitor responsible.

Respect of Property — This organization shall insist that exhibitors shall return film and returnable advertising accessories in as good condition as when received from the serving exchange, barring reasonable wear and tear.

Prompted by the spirit of the Golden Rule let's all co-operate for the good of the industry and to the mutual advantage of all concerned.

Film and Stage Men Form Manitoba Theatrical League

THE moving picture, film exchange, vaudeville and dramatic stage interests of the Province of Manitoba, as well as the interests of the theatrical employes, including musicians, operators, stage hands, electricians and others, have organized the Manitoba Theatrical League. A similar organization has been formed in the Province of Alberta, and there is a movement to seek affiliation between the two bodies. At the same time the formation of leagues in other provinces of Canada is to be encouraged.

The Manitoba league held several preliminary conferences during December and January, and eventually the actual organization meeting was held late in January, when the following officers were elected: President, G. T. Howden; vice-president, W. P. Tallman; secretary, W. S. Jones; treasurer, George A. Graham. President Howden represents the vaudeville houses; Tallman is with the theatrical employes; Jones is with the film exchanges, and Treasurer George Graham is one of Winnipeg's most active exhibitors. Graham also is president of the Manitoba Exhibitors' Association.

Here's the Board of Directors.

A board of directors has been chosen as follows: Legitimate and vaudeville houses, C. P. Walker, G. T. Howden and Walter Fogg; moving picture theatres, H. Jernberg, George A. Graham and R. Kershaw; film exchanges, A. M. Jamieson, W. S. Jones and Mr. Wilbur; moving picture operators and stage employes, W. F. Tallman, P. Wishart and V. Armond.

It is hoped to secure the co-operation of theatrical supply houses and other allied interests so that all features of the amusement business in the province will be represented in the league. The aim of the organization is to protect the theatres and their employes, and several important matters are to receive early consideration.

A general meeting was scheduled to be held in February.

To Head Salisbury's Supporting Cast.

Helen Jerome Eddy and Alfred Allen have been selected to head Monroe Salisbury's supporting cast in his next Universal production, now being filmed at Pinecrest, Cal., the only city within a radius of two hundred miles from Universal City where snow scenes might be obtained.

NATIONAL BOARD ANSWERS CRITICISMS

Responds to Attack Upon Its Work Made by the St. Louis Committee of Fifty on Vice

THE National Board of Review has submitted to Moving Picture World for publication an answer to statements promulgated by the Committee of Fifty on Vice, of St. Louis, to which we referred briefly in our last issue. We were not able to afford space to carry the full complaint as detailed by the Missourians, and we are unfortunately unable now to let run to its full length the statement of the National Board.

We are only able to present a few paragraphs we have extracted from the Board of Review's complete and lengthy statement, intending in this to treat both sides alike and at the same time do an injustice to neither of the participants in the controversy. Here are some of the statements made in defense —or perhaps we might better say in substantiating—of the usefulness and sincerity of the work the Board of Review is conducting:

"The National Board," runs the statement, "has approached the problem of regulating this great commercial entertainment from the standpoint of experience rather than theory. Its rulings and standards have been evolved in the same way that the laws and statutes of municipalities and states have grown. In the course of the conduct of its work hundreds of volunteers have given their best thought and much of their time.

"They have studied the effects of individual pictures and have stated principles which have been accepted as rules of procedure. This pooling of the best thought of fathers and mothers, teachers, social workers, ministers, professional and business men has resulted in an approximation of public opinion duplicated in no other civic or social organization unless it be the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. during war times.

How Its Work Is Done.

"Not satisfied with its own judgment on ethical questions it has striven to obtain the opinions, year by year, of hundreds of dramatic, social, philanthropic, religious and civic leaders throughout the country. There has been a constant search for advice and for intelligent judgment. It is fair to say that no decision has been reached until leaders of the American people have given their indorsement.

"The National Board is the only organization which has had the courage and the skill to formulate standards which would voice the will of the people, would serve as a scientific basis for the treatment of films and would at the same time prevent the producer from taking the first steps toward offending public morals.

Stopping Trouble at the Source.

"This organization has been the one great agency which has told the whole motion picture industry impartially and fairly what the public thinks of definite themes and particular scenes which appear in pictures. Again and again these themes and scenes have been stopped at the source. In the course of its history of ten years the National Board can indicate scores of these which have utterly disappeared from film production.

"The National Board has been able to accomplish this because it respects the character and the business acumen of those who have a tremendous investment in the permanent amusement of the American public."

Mary Pickford

On location for some of the scenes in "Daddy Long Legs," her initial First National Exhibitors' Circuit attraction. As Judy, her hair must be braided and then tied with a shoe string. But the Judy of reality had no nice maid Carolyn to perform that part of her toilet.

George D. Wright.

George D. Wright Has Made Remarkable Mexican Films

GEORGE D. WRIGHT, author of "Mexico Today" and "Typical Mexican Aspects," distributed respectively by the Educational in the United States and by himself in Mexico, was born in Bedford City, Va., in 1885.

He has lived in Mexico City off and on since the age of fifteen, and has devoted the last five years to the study of the country as a field of motion picture operations. His was the first camera brought there for serious work outside the occasional shots of the news weeklies. He has taken about 50,000 feet of travel scenics, political, industrial and religious pictures and current news events, and is going back after more. He expects to organize the first regularly incorporated production company of the Mexican metropolis.

President Carranza Helps.

In making his footage Mr. Wright received most friendly co-operation from President Carranza's government, so that for the first time the high state officials, the public fiesta days and the industries, including the Tampico oil wells, were freely picturized. The first fruits of this material, titled by the Educational as "A Day with Carranza" and "What Is a Mexican?" will be seen in the Rialto-Rivoli theatres in March. The eight reels of the entire series, with Spanish titles, are to be exhibited by Mr. Wright himself in the leading motion picture theatres of Mexico.

Goldwyn Gives Preference to Fighters.

The Goldwyn studios in California are solving the problem of providing employment for discharged soldiers and sailors by giving them the preference wherever they can be used in any department. A man's uniform is a badge of honor at the Culver City gate, and already a number of discharged men are working at the studios. Among the players is Wallace MacDonald, his first screen assignment since leaving the Canadian forces being as leading man for Mae Marsh. Almost every other division of production enlists the services of a returned fighter.

PORTRAYING MEXICO'S ACTIVITIES

George Wright's Illustration of Her Industrial and Civil Life Destructive of Former Illusions

ANY illusions which we may have had concerning the ability of modern Mexico to take care of herself are more than partially destroyed by the picture of her civil and industrial activities presented in George D. Wright's eight-reel collection of views, entitled "Typical Mexican Aspects."

These pictures, privately exhibited on the afternoon of January 30 at Wurlitzer Fine Arts Hall under the auspices of the Mexican Consulate in New York, were procured by Mr. Wright through the courtesy of the Mexican government, and will be distributed by the Educational Films Manufacturing Company as a series of one-reelers. Two Spanish-titled prints of the picture will be taken into Mexico early in February for a tour of the leading picture theatres.

George D. Wright is the first film man who has devoted himself to the filming of conditions in Mexico, and in so doing he has been able to bring to the people of the United States a graphic illustration of Mexico, her people, her industries, her military developments and her mineral resources, which serves as an "eye-opener" to those who believe that Mexico is still far removed from modern methods of existence. He is teaching us that Mexico is making a brave attempt to keep pace with the latest developments of science, commerce and engineering.

"Typical Mexican Aspects" opens in the vicinity of Mexico City, the oldest city on the continent, showing an old map made by Montezuma's order, which still curiously preserves the roads, canals, palaces and buildings of ancient Tenochtitlan, the predecessor of modern Mexico City. Pictures of the elaborate ceremonies attendant on the annual reading of the Act of Independence, showing Carranza and his cabinet leaving the national palace, also reveal the fact that ambassadors and ministers from some of the principal countries of the world participate with the members of the Mexican government in this festival. In the martial review appear the best troops of the republic—the cadets from the military and aviation schools, and at the last fiesta officers and men from the navy of Argentina, who were honoring Mexico with a visit.

There are also pictures of the Aztecs occupied with farming, boating, fishing, spinning and weaving, as well as the middle-class Mexicans at work as artisans and mechanics; the housing conditions of the civil population, and commercial aspects, showing the humble merchant making baskets, jugs, toys, etc., by hand and selling them himself. The retail and stationary market introduces machine-made articles, such as the Mexican hat. The flower market is also interesting.

Most interesting and important of all is the manufacture of aeroplanes, the manufacture of cigars, and the oil wells at the famous oil city, Tampico. Familiar scenes of Carranza in the gardens of his home as well as on public occasions, are of special interest.

Church of the Virgin of Guadalupe (Educational).

"Friend Martha" Out of Court.

A sale of the moving picture rights to the drama entitled "Friend Martha," produced by the Shuberts, will be held in the near future as the result of a decree entered in the United States District Court in a suit filed against the Shubert company by Edgar MacGregor and Edward Peple. Under the terms of the decree, which terminated the legal controversy to the mutual satisfaction of the litigants, and which was approved by Judge Manton, the agreement entered into between the parties to the action with respect to the dramatic production of the play is dissolved, and the Shubert company agrees to pay the plaintiffs $2,597, which represents one-quarter of the losses sustained in producing the drama on the stage.

The decree further provides for the sale of the dramatic and motion picture rights to the play, with the understanding that 50 per cent. of the proceeds shall be paid to Mr. Peple and the remainder is to be divided between the Shubert company and Mr. MacGregor on a basis of 25 and 75 per cent. respectively. The play was produced under an agreement between the parties to the court action and resulted in a financial loss of $11,773, and the aid of the court was invoked to determine the proportionate losses of the parties.

Buys United Kingdom Rights to Johnson's "Cannibals"

H. ROSSON, of the Ideal Film Renting Company, London, England, has just purchased the United Kingdom rights to Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas," according to an announcement from the foreign department of Robertson-Cole Company, who control the world's rights to this exceptional feature. The territory included in the transaction is England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, the Channel Isles and the Isle of Man.

Upon his return to London Mr. Rosson will give a special showing of the Cannibals. Because of their typical British nature he figures they will do a bigger business than any other American picture ever shown over there.

Johnson's pictures are in great demand in every foreign country. Australia particularly is eager to obtain them, and several propositions submitted by Antipodean film promoters are receiving consideration from the foreign department of the Robertson-Cole Company. The Scandinavian rights have already been disposed of.

To Film Conditions in Asia Minor.

G. R. Carrier, staff cameraman for the International Film Service, Inc., has been commissioned special cinematographer by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East.

Mr. Carrier left for Asia Minor last week on one of the relief ships, which is carrying food and clothing—also an investigating committee—to Mesopotamia, Syria, Armenia, Turkey, Serbia, Palestine and Persia, and he expects to record the conditions in these countries as they are found for permanent records of the atrocities of the Turks and Huns during the war.

Mr. Carrier took with him over 75,000 feet of film, and as soon as the relief expedition reaches Constantinople, which will be its first stop, the cameraman will send back to the United States the first pictures of his trip.

All of the pictures Mr. Carrier obtains will be inserted in the International's tri-weekly news service—Hearst News, Screen Telegram and Universal Current Events—released through Universal exchanges. It is expected that the Carrier pictures will be added to the news service regularly after March 1.

Universal Adds to Publicity Staff.

Tarkington Baker, general director of publicity for Universal, has announced the appointment of W. H. Bennett, Jr., as publicity manager of the Salt Lake City exchange and H. W. Ferguson as publicity manager for the Oklahoma City office.

OUTING-CHESTER TO THE FIRST NATIONAL

New Travel Series Has Fine Box Office Values and Photographic Quality Is Second to None

THE new Outing-Chester Series of pictures, all of which are to be distributed through the First National exchanges, are even more delightful in character than the first well-remembered collection presented to the public last year. The photographic quality of the pictures, the toning, the subject matter and the subtitling form a combination of qualities that should put the series "over."

These pictures, as most people know, were made by C. L. Chester in co-operation with the Outing Magazine. For subject matter they range from Alaska to Cape Horn, and from the Far East to the Near West; and while they are scenics in so far as setting is concerned, their principal interest will be found in amazing bits of animal life, odd native customs and trail adventures amusingly presented.

The first four of the series shown to the writer were "From Scales to Antlers," "Teddy Birds," "Ballahooing on the Anarika River" and "Maids, More Maids and Mermaids."

"From Scales to Antlers" takes the observer to the Amatitek river in the Province of Quebec. Pretty scenes in the vicinity of the camp in which a couple of bluejays and a chipmunk figure give place to actual fishing scenes. The astonishing feature of this reel takes us to the moose country, where in a rapidly manipulated canoe the camera after procuring several splendid shots of moose of various ages comes right alongside of a youngster who upon gaining the shore signifies his extreme terror by making a record run into the woods nearby.

Colonel Roosevelt Pictured.

"Teddy Birds" opens with scenes on an island preserve, showing Colonel Theodore Roosevelt making free with the wild bird inhabitants. The main point of this number is the presentation of a new type of American boy who still shoots birds, but with a moving picture camera instead of a gun.

To illustrate this a young boy is shown preparing a blind from which he intends to photograph wild birds at close range. Then come pictures which the boy is supposed to have taken of parent birds feeding their young, and which include some delightful close-ups of different kinds of birds. The reel closes with the boy holding a group of young birds in his hand while the mother bird feeds them, and also with the same group reposing on the top of his head.

Shows Logs That Sink.

"Ballahooing on the Anarika" introduces us to the ironwood forests of British Guiana. Here we see the felling of the trees, the squaring of the trunks for shipment, the hauling of one of the logs to the river where, by the way, they sink instantly owing to their great weight. Men are then put to work diving for the logs which they bring to the surface and fasten securely to the side of the square, shallow boat known as a ballahoo, which takes them to the railroad. The closing scenes show the logs being railroaded away to the mills.

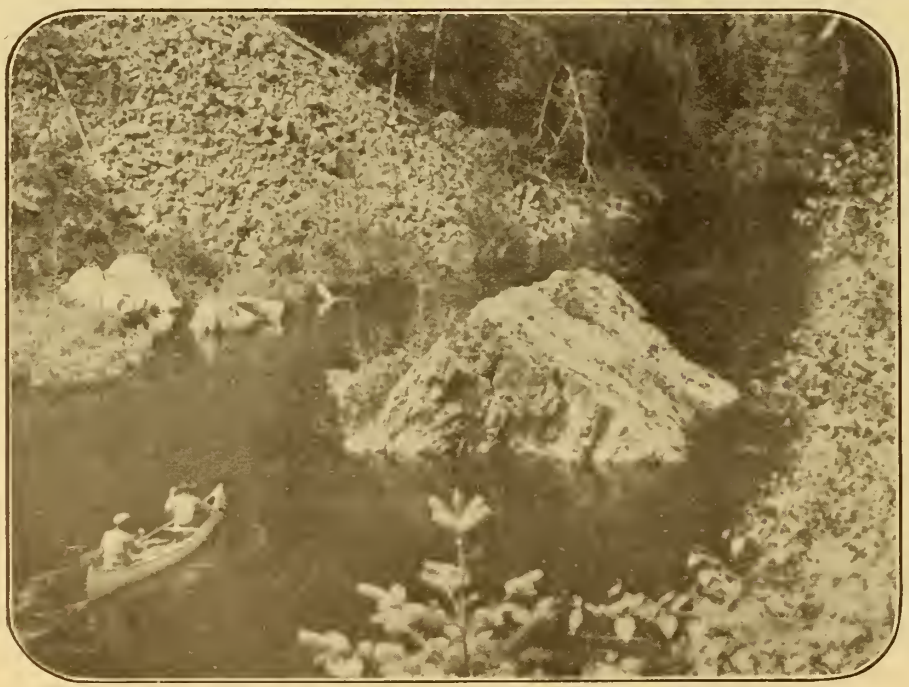
"Maids, More Maids and Mermaids" presents scenes photographed with a party of Campfire Girls at Lake Sebago, Maine. These girls in charge of the late Dr. Luther H. Gulick and Mrs. Gulick, founder of the Campfire Girls of America, are shown participating in outdoor life, with canoeing and swimming scenes forming the most attractive part of the picture.

The first of these weekly releases was issued February 2. They are being subtitled in excellent style by Katherine Hilliker, and the laboratory work is being done at the Lyman Howe Laboratories, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Universal Promotes Barney Rosenthal.

Barney Rosenthal, veteran St. Louis exchange manager, has been appointed district manager for the south-central section by Universal, according to an announcement by J. I. Schnitzer, general sales manager.

Mr. Rosenthal has been St. Louis exchange manager for Universal for about five years and is one of the best known film men in the central section. The offices to be under Mr. Rosenthal's supervision in the future are St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City and Oklahoma City. Mr. Rosenthal will continue to make St. Louis his headquarters.



Scene from "From Scales to Antlers" (Outing-Chester).

Longer Runs Advocated by Broadway Theatre Manager

MAURICE A. KASHIN, manager of of the Broadway Theatre, New York, is advocating longer runs of photoplays. Following the termination of the long run of "The Heart of Humanity" at the Broadway Mr. Kashin is convinced that his theory is correct.

"After studying picture presentation for many years I am firmly convinced that one of the main reasons why some pictures do not prove good drawing cards is that the exhibitors do not give their pictures a chance," says Mr. Kashin.

"'The Heart of Humanity,' which has just wound up a six weeks' showing at the Broadway, has enjoyed tremendous success. At first I figured that a four-week run would be sufficient, but there was such a great demand for showing the film that I held it over two extra weeks, and did bigger business than before.

"In my opinion the exhibitor should book his films carefully, advertise them in a way that will give the prospective patrons confidence in his advertising and then present the films in such a way that people will go out talking about the quality of the show. This advertising is the best obtainable, but most exhibitors kill their chances to 'cash in' on big productions by running them only so long (which is their policy) and no longer whether the picture is deserving of a longer run or not.

"Split-week bookings in the larger cities do not give pictures sufficient chance to prove their real value. Even in neighborhood theatres one and two day bookings do not give the picture a good chance.

"When exhibitors give the good pictures longer runs they will encourage producers to make better pictures."

Kenneth Harlan Mustered Out.

Kenneth Harlan, who became popular with film fans throughout the country last winter and spring as leading man for Mae Murray, Carmel Myers, Mary MacLaren and Mildred Harris, has been mustered out of the army at Camp Kearney, California, and is back at Universal City. Harlan for six months has been a sergeant in the 143d Field Artillery. His future plans have not been announced.

Anthony Kelly Has Been Ill.

Anthony Paul Kelly, who has been seriously ill with the "flu" for the past three weeks, has so far recovered as to be able to chat with his friends over the 'phone. In the meantime the output of moving picture scenarios and additions to the Great American drama have been greatly curtailed.

CLAUDE PATIN RETURNING TO FRANCE

President of Beacon Films Will Consult with Men Preparing to Produce for American Market

THAT France is preparing to profit by her close contact with American business during the war is shown in merely one case by the fact that Claude Patin, one-time soldier in her army that beat back the Hun at the first conflict of the Marne, and for the past three years a picturesque figure in Franco-American film relations, sailed for his native land on February 5 equipped with an ample concept of the needs and standards of the American photoplay market.

Claude Patin.

Mr. Patin is going direct to Paris to be consulted by French film interests, which are preparing to spend the money necessary to get out a product worthy of the American market. This large and jovial person is taking back with him not only a large list of pleasant relations made in our photoplay world, but a keen estimation of what France must produce if she wishes to "invade" the United States with her moving pictures.

When called upon by the representative of the Moving Picture World Mr. Patin, who is president of the Beacon Films, was exchanging exquisite French with a number of friends of his own nationality, come to wish him "Bon Voyage." He quickly opened up in French, however, when said representative turned on some made-in-America French.

No War Pictures for Him.

"It is not the needs, but the standards, of America with which the French moving picture companies must become familiar," he said. "The companies with which I am connected are financially prepared to put out good pictures and bring them to America."

"War pictures?" he was asked.

"No, no, no!" And his hands went up in horror. "I shall stay in Paris for two or three months advising and consulting," he went on, "then I shall return to America."

Mr. Patin served in the French army for sixteen months, and after the first battle of the Marne was given the pleasant task of taking care of German prisoners. Later he was transferred to the interpreters' corps, and was at Dijon with the British.

We have no proof that Mr. Patin waited for an appropriately named ship to leave New York, but if he had done so, what better luck could he have had than the "Lorraine"?

Talented Marcia Manon in Barrymore Support

MARCIA MANON, one of the most popular of the Famous Players-Lasky actresses, has traveled from Hollywood to New York to play the leading feminine role in John Barrymore's next Paramount picture, "The Malefactor."

Those who have seen Miss Manon on the screen will never forget her, because she possesses that rare quality, distinct individuality. Not only does she evince this quality in her manner and facial expressions and in the way in which she dresses her hair and wears her clothes and jewels, but in every minute gesture Marcia Manon expresses personality.

Marcia Manon.

In Cecil B. DeMille's "Old Wives for New," Miss Manon had a splendid opportunity to display her artistic taste in clothes and jewelry. She started her screen career as an extra girl in one of Mr. DeMille's productions about a year and a half ago and has since made an enviable place for herself in motion pictures. She had large parts in "Stella Maris," "The Sunset Trail," "The Claw," "The Girl Who Came Back" and many other well-known pictures and will soon be seen in "Captain Kidd, Jr.," Mary Pickford's latest Artcraft picture, which is yet to be released.

Canadian Exhibitors Ask For Exchange Charter

THE Canadian Exhibitors' Exchange, the new film distributing organization created by the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario, has applied to the Ontario government for a charter and for a capitalization of $250,000. The original intention was to form a $100,000 company, but it has been decided to enlarge the capital, it is declared.

At a special meeting of the committee appointed to proceed with the formation of the company, held at the association's room on January 30, the names of thirty-two prospective shareholders were read. Announcement was also made that each member of the committee had subscribed for the individual limit of stock—namely, $5,000.

A communication was received from a representative exhibitor in northern Ontario, in which he asked that the theatres of that section be given an opportunity to organize a "circle" for releases. At present these houses are getting their films from Winnipeg exchanges, but with the formation of the co-operative exchange at Toronto by the exhibitors the northern Ontario managers are said to be anxious to fall in line.

It was also stated that exhibitors of Montreal and St. John, N. B., contemplated making arrangements to cooperate with the company so that they will be able to take bookings of releases to be controlled by the new exchange.

Forman Re-engaged by Famous Players.

Lieutenant Tom Forman, well-known actor in many Paramount pictures prior to the war, has been re-engaged by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation under a two-year contract to play juvenile leads. Mr. Forman is one of the popular young actors. His many admirers will be glad to know that he is once more to appear. His contract takes effect immediately upon his release from the army, which it is supposed will be in the near future.

Tom Forman.

Subscription for one year to Moving Picture world costs $3. The price a single copy on the news-stand is 15 cents. Subscribe and save $4.80.

Anderson Is International's Sales Promotion Head

E. B. HATRICK, general news manager of the International Film Service Company, Inc., announces the appointment of R. V. Anderson as manager of News Sales Promotion. Mr. Anderson is an old film man and comes to the International well prepared to add materially to the popularity of their three news releases which are released through the exchanges of the Universal Film Company. He was branch manager in Charlotte for both the Universal and Pathe and in Atlanta for the General Film Company and Pathe before coming to New York, which is now his home. He also handled "The Diamond from the Sky" for the American Film Company for the entire Southern section and was sent by the General to both Memphis and St. Louis to install his improved booking system. Since coming to New York he was for a short time with Pathe as editor of their house organ, the Pathe Sun, and since joining the International he has started the publication of a peppy little sales booster called "The International." This is printed weekly for the news gatherers as well as the Universal sales force.

R. V. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson is starting on a tour of all the Universal branches in the United States—for the purpose of promoting the business on the Hearst News, the Screen Telegrams and the Universal Current Events, the three weekly news films produced by the International—the trip will take about four months.

Art Rosson New William Fox Director.

Art Rosson has been added to the William Fox directorial staff in Hollywood. Mr. Rosson has already begun on his first picture, the star of which is Albert Ray, the new Fox star. The picture is temporarily titled "Up Against It," and is a breezy comedy-drama of a young man and his inheritance.

It is understood that after Mr. Rosson completes his present picture with Ray he will alternate with Edward J. LeSaint, who now is directing Tom Mix. This arrangement will minimize the time between Tom Mix's pictures, and is adopted in answer to appeals from exhibitors that they be given more Tom Mix productions. While Mr. LeSaint is making his next picture with Tom Mix, Mr. Rosson will be preparing another, which he will direct.

Cromelin Believes Australia Will Recover Fast from Flu

THAT the Australian picture business will recover quickly from close-down effects through the influenza is the belief of President Paul H. Cromelin of Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, and he bases it on a letter just to hand from special representative H. G. Harper, who is now at Sydney. Mr. Cromelin has given the Moving Picture World the following extract from Representative Harper's letter:

"After the accumulation of war burdens, and the apprehension of increased taxation, there seems to be a strong reaction toward general buoyancy and hope for the future now that there is peace. Australia always had great powers of recuperation after periods of depression, and although things are far from good just at present, the outlook is reassuring for the future."

Another Inter-Ocean traveler is Louis Brock, who leaves this week for Cuba and Central America. Like Representative Harker, Mr. Brock will preach a double gospel of films and accessories on his trip because of the feeling of Inter-Ocean that American film supplies should find the same foreign demand as American films. Mr. Brock's tour will consume two months.

Major A. H. Sowerbutts, who will act as special accessories representative for the Inter-Ocean in London, leaves for that side Feb. 8. He will open a special supply office in the heart of the London film district and eventually create branches elsewhere in Great Britain.

John H. Taylor, managing director of London Inter-Ocean, who is now conferring with President Cromelin in New York, expects to prolong his stay here an additional two weeks, because of interesting developments in the American producing field which bear on the English market.

Establish Emergency Show Stations.

Out in the Pacific Northwest where distances are "truly magnificent" and exchanges far apart, a committee of exchange men in Seattle have hit upon a method to ward off dark houses in various sections of Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho. The idea is simple enough; emergency shows are assembled in certain cities, stored in specific theatres and when an exhibitor finds he is threatened with a "dark" house he has but to wire the distributing theatre and get his show.

Fourteen theatres in the larger towns of Washington, seven in Oregon, eight in Montana and seven in Idaho are so scattered that the more remote sections are all within relatively handy distance from an emergency point. W. A. Mead, Universal; J. A. Koerpel, World, and Harry Siegmond, counsel of the Northwestern Film Board of Trade, Seattle, worked out the plan and supervise its operation.

Famous Players Arrange Special Chapin Showings

THE Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has notified all its exchanges that exhibitors will be allowed to book for special presentation on February 12—Lincoln's Birthday—any single chapter of the Paramount-Benjamin Chapin serial, "The Son of Democracy," known as the Lincoln Cycle. This series of ten two-reel dramas, each a complete story in itself, depicting the life of Abraham Lincoln, was first released a little more than a year ago. The leading characters are Abraham Lincoln, his father, Tom Lincoln, and his grandfather, Abraham, friend of Daniel Boone. The late Benjamin Chapin, famed as the impersonator of the great president, who made Lincoln his life study and bore to him a striking resemblance, enacted the roles of the Lincolns of three generations, the episodes being as historically accurate as the research and dramatic effort of Mr. Chapin could make them.

In making the above announcement to exhibitors Walter E. Greene, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, said: "We are breaking our rule regarding series bookings in this particular instance because this affords the exhibitor a splendid opportunity of putting over some good showmanship."

A Pathe Champion Salesman.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., has an excellent method of speeding up the efforts of its salesmen. A sales contest is on at all times. Each month the records of all the men are checked up and the one with the best percentage is accredited the champion for the month and has his picture in the Pathe house organ. Milton Kronacher of the New Milton Kronacher.

York Exchange won the December honors. Manager Raynor of the New York branch says that Kronacher is absolutely deaf when it comes to hearing the word "no" from the lips of an exhibitor. He adds that Kronacher's only rejoinder to a negative from a theatre owner is an extended contract and the simple request "Sign here."

INCE RE-SIGNS WITH FAMOUS PLAYERS

Under Contract Terms Producer Will Make 30 Pictures, Featuring Ray, Dalton and Bennett

THOMAS H. INCE, who for the past two years has been producing Paramount and Artcraft pictures for distribution through the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has signed a contract with Adolph Zukor to continue the present relationship for the releasing year which commences September 1 next. This arrangement, it is stated, was made just before Mr. Zukor left California for New York. It is said the contract exceeds in magnitude any other ever negotiated between a producer and a distributing organization.

Under the terms of the new contract Mr. Ince will produce during the year thirty pictures, all of which will be personally supervised by himself. These include a number of specials, two personally directed, in addition to productions starring Charles Ray, Dorothy Dalton, and Enid Bennett.

In making a simultaneous announcement in California concerning the closing of the new contract, Mr. Ince says: "My motives in entering into the negotiations whereby my productions will continue to be distributed through Paramount and Artcraft channels were dictated by the fact that I consider the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation the greatest motion picture distributing organization in existence today and my knowledge that Mr. Zukor is the genius who is responsible for that fact. Moreover, I feel confident that Mr. Zukor and his associates on their part are actuated by their confidence that my ideas for the future coincide perfectly with their analysis of the progress of the art and business of motion pictures.

"As to Mr. Ray, Miss Dalton and Miss Bennett, whose contracts I hold, I feel that they have established a popularity among exhibitors and the public which will continue to create an ever-increasing demand for their pictures, and it is my purpose to keep on giving them subjects which, produced under my personal supervision, will still further enhance their popularity as stars and will contribute to the development of the highest art in motion picture production. The special productions which I will make, two of which I will personally direct, I have already started to plan for and I intend to make them fully worthy of the high standard which has been set by the Paramount-Artcraft Specials.

"I will continue, of course, as a strictly independent factor in the producing field, my relation to the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation being only that of producer to distributor."

Schayer to Write for Mix.

The problem of getting scenarios, which, producers say, has reached an acute stage, was solved this week by the Fox Film Corporation in a unique way. In the matter of scenarios Tom Mix, the Western star, is struggling with both supply and demand. As a star, whose popularity is spreading like fire in a field of corn stubble, he demands big stories to enact.

Accordingly, Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, decided that by bringing Tom Mix's scenario needs and Tom Mix's personal adventures together he not only would solve the problem of getting scenarios, but would open a field that never has been touched.

This decision has led to the engagement of Richard Schayer, scenario writer and well-known New York and Chicago newspaper man, as a special scenario writer for Tom Mix. It will be Schayer's duty not only to write scenarios for Mix, but also to convert into scenario form many of the most dramatic incidents in Mix's career.

Artcolor Takes New Quarters.

The Artcolor Pictures Company now has offices on the eleventh floor of the Leavitt Building, 126 West Forty-sixth street, New York, which building, from top to bottom, is thoroughly a moving picture "outfit," as the boys in the service have a habit of saying.

Ed H. Philippi and L. J. Dittmar are preparing exhibits of their product—a color process for the treatment of feature photoplays. They are looking to an output of over ten thousand feet daily.

The Artcolor company was formerly located in the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway.

Kane's Success at Kansas Dinner.

Visitors to the general manager's office at Select Pictures have observed Arthur S. Kane wearing a smile like unto that which adorns the face of a school boy on the first day of vacation. The reason for this extra exuberance on the countenance of Select's seldom-solemn general manager is the tremendous success with which Mr. Kane put over the annual dinner of the Kansas Society of New York, at the Hotel McAlpin, evening of January 29.

Mr. Kane, whose presidency of this society expired with the conclusion of the dinner, showed on this occasion how strong a hold the success habit has upon him. He pulled out an attendance 50 per cent. greater than the highest at any of the previous thirteen annual dinners.

Mannix to Manage Studio.

Arthur H. Jacobs, who recently resigned as studio manager of the Norma Talmadge Film Corporation, at 318 East Forty-eighth street, has been succeeded by Edward J. Mannix, who is now in the thick of his new duties. Mr. Mannix is well known in the amusement world, having been associated with several big enterprises. For the past nine years he has been with Joseph M. Schenck, having acted during this period as manager and treasurer of the Palisades Amusement Park.

Prizma's New Production Manager.

Howard G. Stokes has been appointed production manager of Prizma, Inc., producers of the new natural-color films. For the past seven years Mr. Stokes has been copy manager of the New York Telephone Company, where he was the head of the production branch of the advertising department. He is the creator of "The Voice with the Smile Wins," the national operating slogan of the Bell companies, and of the striking series of advertisements on selling by telephone, correct telephone usage and telephone courtesy used by the New York Telephone Company during the past few years.

Indianapolis Undertaker Would Censor All Films

A STATE commission to censor all moving picture films to be exhibited in Indiana theatres is provided for in a bill which Charles L. Buchanan, an Indianapolis undertaker, introduced in the State Legislature last week. The measure was introduced in the House and was immediately referred to committee, but has not been heard from since then.

The bill provides for the appointment by the governor of a commission of three members, to serve for four years. One of the members, who would act as chairman of the commission, would receive a salary of $2,500 a year, and the two other members would receive $2,000 annually. The commission would also have power to appoint advisory commissions to assist in censoring the films.

According to the provisions of the bill each film shown in Indiana would have to be licensed by the commission, for which a fee of $2 will be charged, with an additional fee of $1 for every duplicate film. The bill appropriates $5,000 for preliminary expenses of setting up the commission for the first year, the future expenses to be paid for by fees from licenses granted. The bill is reported to be backed by members of the Indiana Civic Union.

Local exhibitors say they do not think any successful legislation will be enacted along the lines desired by the advocates of the censorship measure.

Abe Einstein Coming Over.

Word reached New York this week that Abe Einstein, head of the Mastbaum-Stanley publicity works, is due to reach here some time within a few days. The Stanley Booking Corporation is opening offices at 112-116 Forty-second street and getting ready to do business right in the heart of New York town. Einstein is a hustler, one of a hustling bunch—he'll tell you he lives in Philadelphia, and say it fast, too—so the local film colony may be prepared for the addition of a new style of bottle in the pep closet.

Katherine Adams with Vitagraph.

Katherine Adams becomes a member of Vitagraph's interpretive forces with the embarkation of the Earle Williams company on "A Gentleman of Quality," which is a mid-March release. Miss Adams assumes the leading feminine role in this play, in support of Mr. Williams. She is known to screen fans for her work in support of Dustin Farnum. The other supporting players include James Carpenter, Robert Bolder, George Pierce and Ronald Byram and Miss Joyce Moore.

Many newspaper are now using criticisms of photoplays the day after they are first seen at your theatre. Reviews written by Moving Picture World reviewers may be cut out or copied and handed to your local newspaper. They are written by qualified reviewers and deal with salient points in both story and production.

SUNDAY PICTURE BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

It Would Permit of Local Option on Sunday Shows in New York Cities, Towns and Counties

INTRODUCED by Senator James A. Foley at the request of no less a personage than Governor Alfred E. Smith, a bill vesting in the governing bodies of towns, cities or counties, the power to decide for themselves whether or not motion pictures will be permitted on Sunday after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, is now before the Senate. Backed as it is by these powerful interests and considered as a "sensible bill," favorable action can be expected. It is understood, however, from an authoritative source that some of the exhibitors who are now operating Sunday shows, were rather opposed to the introduction of the bill and the airing which must come before final action in the way of a vote is taken. They were perfectly satisfied to continue business as they are under the two conflicting court decisions.

It is understood that the bill making Sunday movies a matter of local option was first presented to the Governor, who after looking over its provisions, suggested to Senator Foley that it should be introduced and come to a vote. "If this law is enacted," said Senator Foley today, "it does not mean that moving picture performances can be given on Sunday, but it does give the boards of supervisors, the board of aldermen, the common council, or such other bodies as regulate local measures, the authority to decide for themselves whether or not Sunday movies shall prevail in that city, town or country, making it entirely a question of local option."

The bill is regarded by many of the Senators as one which will receive most favorable consideration, particularly in view of the fact that many cities in this state do not at the present time enjoy Sunday baseball. There is a widespread feeling that some provision must be made for residents of such cities in order to provide some form of innocent amusement for Sunday. By fixing the hour of opening at 2 o'clock, church services are not interfered with.

Say Brush Bill Will Not Pass.

Republican legislators declare that Assemblyman Brush's bill seeking to create a commissioner of motion pictures and a number of deputies and other officers, and likewise imposing a footage tax, will never pass. If the measure had been divided, that is, if one bill had been introduced creating a commissioner for motion pictures, etc., such a bill would have undoubtedly secured the support of the Democratic faction in both houses, in view of the fact that it offers the possibility of Democratic patronage. Another bill imposing the footage tax would have probably received consideration from both sides of the political fence, for more money is absolutely necessary in view of conditions that will prevail in the Excise department a few months hence. Both Senators and Assemblymen are frank in saying that they favor measures which will increase present day revenues, and when one stops to consider the fact that bills have lately been introduced to license every elevator in the state at $5 each ,and to also license the operator at $3 annually, it is morally certain that a bill imposing footage tax on movies will get more than the ordinary consideration.

Watertown, N. Y., is now the center of a fight in an effort to secure Sunday motion picture shows in that city. Some of the churches openly favor Sunday movies, while others oppose. Rev. E. C. Tuthill, rector of St. Paul's church, in a statement disapproves of action taken by the Ministerial Union condemning Sunday movies, saying that the people were entitled to all freedom and that they should have what they wish, especially when over 5,000 out of the 30,000 population petition for Sunday shows.

The local papers commented on the situation on several occasions, the Watertown Times being editorially opposed to any attempt in this state to further tax the movies. "If the tax is imposed," said the editor of the Times, "it means that both producer and exhibitor will accept it, as they must, and that they in turn will pass it on to the ultimate consumer who, in this instance, is the person attending the movie. The moving picture is the amusement of the masses and is already heavily burdened by ticket tax, but this has been cheerfully paid. It is, however, all that the movie house patron can stand. Adding this tax now proposed means an increase of admission prices that will deprive many thousands of people of their only form of amusement."

C. L. GRANT.

This Is How It Looks to Him

H. E. Boatright, among one of many who lately renewed subscription to Moving Picture World, said in a letter that accompanied his three dollars: "When we get out of the show business we will not need the World. Until that time we would not want to try to run a show without the World."

Look in that card index that eats up the distributors' postage like a pit of quickstand and you'll find Mr. Boatright manages the Glidden Theatre, Tabor, Iowa.

Glenn R. Carrier
International's Special Cameraman with ship carrying relief to Near East.

How Lawrence Beatus Built Demand for Scenic Pictures

SCENICS have never been much in favor with Washington City theatregoers, but Lawrence Beatus, manager of Loew's new Palace Theatre, who formerly had his headquarters at Loew's Columbia, has created a real demand for them among the patrons of these houses.

"At the start," said Mr. Beatus to the Moving Picture World correspondent, "when we opened the Columbia Theatre three years ago, putting on scenics brought protests. I continued with choice subjects and then tried the Burton Holmes series. Our patrons realized that these same pictures were shown at $2 a seat, that they were real pictures and enabled them to see views of foreign lands.

"During the past three years, we have been able, by means of the scenic, to carry our patrons to all of the foreign lands and have also showed them the beauties of our own country. The people who patronize the Columbia have become accustomed to the scenics (I suppose you would say they have been educated up to them) so that now they want them, and a scenic is a part of each show.

"The effect of the scenics is most interesting. During the showing of pictures of the United States—the big parks, for instance—you can always hear members of the audience verbally describing the scenes from a knowledge gained from a visit to the places shown. It is common to hear, 'Why, I remember when I was there.' And, since the beginning of the war, you can also hear, 'I got a letter from my boy who visited that place.'

"Now I consider a good scenic a part of my daily program, well balanced with a feature and a comedy. It is twelve minutes of delightful entertainment."

A Visitor from Seattle.

Louis F. Goldsmith, formerly a Seattle projectionist, now an exhibitor of the square city, was a caller at our office February 4. Louis is visiting the Great White Way and comparing its attractions with those of the city of steep hillsides. He says that New York is the candy all right, but Seattle is the place for home-made bread. He will return to the coast city very soon. Goldsmith is one of the old timers; also he is a good scout. He tells us the Seattle projectionist local is prospering and now has a scale of one dollar per hour for a six-hour day.

Charles S. Hart Returns.

Charles S. Hart, director of the Division of Films of the Committee on Public Information, is due to arrive from Europe February 6. He sailed from Bordeaux Monday, January 27, on the Espagne.

Mr. Hart left November 19 to visit several important centers of Europe in connection with the business of Government pictures. During the trip he visited London, Rome, Paris and a number of other cities.

HOW KEANE BUILT UP THE BAND BOX

Chicago Madison Street Exhibitor Swore Public Would Pay for the Right Stuff and Proved It

BECAUSE of increased taxation, higher rentals, and advances in other phases of picture presentation, close observers within the motion picture industry long have contended that exhibitors should increase their admission prices; only in this way could they maintain the necessary margin between receipts and disbursements that insures a reasonable profit on investment.

Numerous illustrations have been given of the wisdom of this policy; but probably the most striking is afforded by the experience of John Keane, proprietor of the Band Box Theatre, in Chicago.

Because of his readiness to increase his admission prices, and because of the success that has always attended him in this policy, Mr. Keane has come to be known as the "bull" on Chicago's film market. A daring and canny Irishman, he acquired this title years ago when he astonished the Windy City by deliberately raising the price of his newly acquired Star Theatre to 15 cents, while his neighbors in Madison street, "The Street of Pictures," were assessing the public 5 cents.

Says "Nothing Doing" on Nickel Stuff.

Invading Chicago after his pioneer success with three motion picture houses in Evanston, Ill., Mr. Keane swore by the beard of Brian Boru that he never would run a nickel show; that the public would pay for good pictures no matter what was charged. Although unanimously doomed to failure, he put into the Star in 1913 "Tilly's Punctured Romance," charged 25 cents and in three weeks did a $9,000 business. Following this surprising triumph he fixed the admission at 20 cents. But—he booked pictures that justified this step, and haunted the booking offices and studied the producers' release schedules with an exacting eye.

When, later, he obtained the Band Box Theatre, a block west, he decided to bull the market again, and with "And the Children Pay," he raised his standard price from 25 cents to 50, held it there, and once more put his critics to shame for the picture broke records right and left.

But his most sensational performance came when he secured first-run rights to the Theda Bara super-production "Salome." As he was preparing his house for this premiere, the word went out over the street that Keane was going to ask 75 cents morning, noon and night for "Salome." The street roared with laughter. It couldn't be done, the wiseacres said. But Keane sensed the remarkable drawing power in the picture, held fast, and advertised in the newspapers with plunging tactics. It is estimated that he spent about $2,000 in newspaper advertising alone—and his house has a capacity of only 299.

Four Hundred on Line at 9 O'clock.

At 9 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, January 26, 400 persons, by count, were waiting at the door of the Band Box. By night the little theatre, although it seated only 299 at a showing, had done a business of $2,000—which, on an eight-reel feature, smashed all records of the town.

Keane's bulling tactics again were vindicated.

"I take no gambles," said Keane, in discussing his experience with "Salome." "I'm making no wild play, as they seem to think. I know the public will pay for good pictures, that it is only too glad to pay high for satisfaction. It is far better pleased to pay 75 cents for a smashing, high-keyed picture like 'Salome,' than to give 15 cents for a milk-and-water picture with no strong drama in it.

"Better productions are what the public wants. It is willing to pay high enough to allow the producer to make expensive, magnificent pictures. If all the managers would insist on pictures of the splendor and thoroughness and brilliance of 'Salome,' and charge high for them, the whole film world would be bettered. I want to thank Mr. Eckhardt, general Western manager of the Fox Film Corporation for calling my attention to it.

Big Stuff and Long Runs.

"My only plan is constantly raising prices has been to get pictures that were super-features, then book them into the Band Box for long runs at high prices. I have done all in my power to make it possible for the producer to turn out super-features, because I have believed all along that the public likes them and is only waiting to pay for them."

Mr. Keane has been an exhibitor eight years and has been on Madison street as owner of the Star and Band Box five years. At the age of seventeen he emigrated to America from Ireland and, landing penniless, worked on a dairy farm. From this placid pursuit he leaped into the Evanston Police Department and within a remarkably short time had risen to be chief. In 1901 he dropped his police duties, gave up an extensive grocery business and plunged into motion pictures. His success is marked by the two Madison street houses, the three in Evanston and large oil holdings in Oklahoma.

"Pick them good, charge for them good and advertise them in the newspapers strong," has been his motto. He it was who first dared to carry full-page, half-page and quarter-page advertisements—of his little Band Box—in the daily newspapers. The campaign was strenuous and appalling to the orthodox exhibitors; but it paid, many times over; particularly on "Salome."

Mitchell Lewis, with Bessie Eyton and others in his company, riding through the Yosemite country, where Lewis' Select picture, "Children of Banishment," was filmed—for release after "The Code of the Yukon." Lewis is the careless looking lumberman second from the right.

Ince Installs Weather Bureau.

Thomas H. Ince has added another innovation to his motion picture plant in Culver City. He has installed a local weather forecasting bureau. One of the very few standard barometers, such as is used by the Government, has been secured for local observations. Arrangements have been completed to get the government readings from other parts of the West early in the morning. By the time the assistant directors arrive in the morning they are furnished a local forecast. If the day is not to be cloudy or develop rain they have plenty of time to notify all extra people not to report to work. In this way a big useless expense is avoided.

De Haven Writes for National Film.

Carter De Haven has written his first story, to be produced by the National Film Corporation for release by Exhibitors' Mutual, and is now whipping it into shape preparatory to visualizing it. Carter is going to direct himself and wife, Flora Parker De Haven, and, incidentally, the De Haven children, in the breezy stories for which he is best known. Bob McGowan will assist Mr. De Haven in the production of his stories.

Mygatt Joins Hodkinson Corporation.

Gerald Mygatt, formerly promotion manager of Good Housekeeping Magazine and Leslie's Weekly, has joined the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation as director of advertising and publicity.

Mr. Mygatt has recently received his honorable discharge from the Army. He was a captain of the Seventy-fifth Field Artillery. Captain Mygatt enlisted as a private in the Regular Army early in the war, and was successively sergeant, first sergeant, second lieutenant and first lieutenant before receiving his double bars.

TO ORGANIZE DALLAS BOARD OF TRADE

Exchange Managers Declare Body To Be Necessary in Order to Correct Cumulating Inconveniences

A DALLAS Film Exchange Board of Trade will probably be organized by Dallas branch managers early in February. The matter has already been discussed among them and a meeting has been set for an early date. The organization is declared by most of the film exchange managers to be badly needed in order to correct evils and inconveniences in the film business in Southwestern territory which are apparently growing.

It is understood that the Film Exchange Board of Trade when organized will be affilated with the Dallas Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' Association and that all managers will join the organization. The association is to be active in furthering the interests of the moving picture industry of the Southwest as centered in Dallas. Possibly some fifteen branch managers will become affiliated.

Among some of the matters which are scheduled for discussion by the film exchange men at their first meeting is included some concerted action to prevent the returning of films collect on delivery with the C. O. D. charges arranged so as to penalize the film exchange for any grievance, real or fancied, on the part of the exhibitor.

C. O. D. Harasses Producers.

Exhibitors in this territory, so the film men say, have got into the habit of using the C. O. D. system through the express company in such a manner as to harass the film companies. An exhibitor may receive a film a few hours late owing to poor express or railroad service. Promptly he figures that he has been damaged to some extent and shoots the film back to Dallas with his C. O. D. charges fixed so that the film company has to pay what the exhibitor deems right as a damage claim. Film managers says that exhibitors have been collecting money in this way for some while through the express companies and that the situation has become unbearable.

An active fight against this C. O. D. charge practice was launched during the latter part of January by W. S. Wessling, Southern district manager for Pathe. Mr. Wessling found eight films at the Dallas express office consigned to Pathe on which exhibitors had attached grievance C. O. D. charges amounting all the way from $2.50 to $80 each. Instead of paying the C. O. D. charges he consulted his attorneys.

As a result the films were recovered through writs of sequestration issued by a justice of the peace and served on the express company by a constable. The Pathe Company had to guarantee the costs of the suits. Papers were issued and sent to the town where the exhibitor consignees resided and a bill for court costs was served on them by the officers of the various towns. Should the exhibitors refuse to pay the costs of the suit it is assessed against their taxes. When paid the Pathe Company will be reimbursed.

The Film Exchange Board of Trade will also combat the practice of exhibitors in holding film pending the settlement of any damage claim against the company. They will try to put an end to cases where exhibitors have mailed in a check for a film and then stopped payment because it did not suit them. It is likely the credit and open account systems of various Dallas exchanges will be universally tightened up. The subrenting of films by exhibitors for their own profit will also be eradicated if possible. In fact the board of trade will give the film business in southwestern territory a general overhauling.

Navy Seeks Young Men.

Owing to the great publicity given to the demobilization of the army and navy, and the fact that thousands of sailors and soldiers are being released, a large portion of the people of this country are unaware of the fact that the navy is again open for voluntary enlistments and that it is seeking young men who are anxious to enter the service, obtain valuable instruction for which the navy is so noted and have the opportunity of seeing the world at Uncle Sam's expense.

Men between the ages of 18 and 35 years, and who have had a small amount of machine shop experience, may enter the service and go through a complete machinist's course at the machinist school, Charleston.

Opportunity is also offered to men who desire to become electricians by trade between the ages of 18 and 30 years, who have a theoretical knowledge of electricity and who have had some practical experience in electrical work. Men enlisted in this branch of the service are given a complete course in electricity at the electrical school, Hampton Roads, Virginia.

Further information may be obtained by writing to the Navy Department, recruiting division.

Loew Interests to Build a $1,000,000 St. Louis House

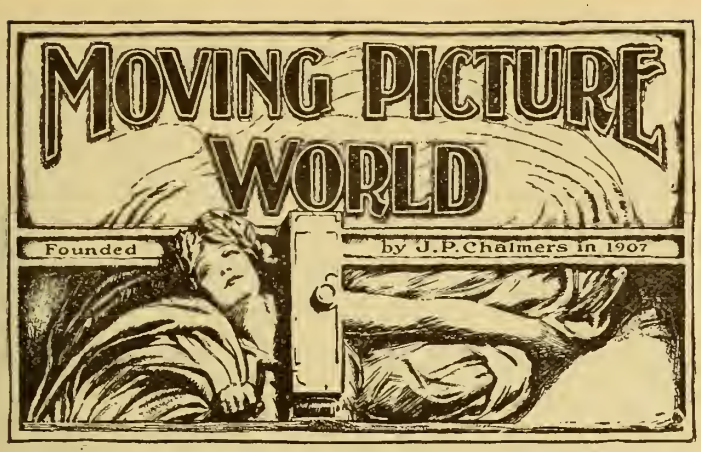
Representatives of Marcus Loew, who were in St. Louis to open the Garrick Theatre, which was taken over by the Loew interests recently, have taken an option on a downtown site upon which Loew intends to build a $1,000,000 theatre shortly.

It was learned that the new playhouse will seat 3,500 people, which will make it the largest theatre in St. Louis and one of the largest in the United States.

Leopold Friedman, of New York, chief counsel for Loew, visited St. Louis and perfected the option on a site for the new playhouse at a meeting with the property agents. It was described by Friedman as "downtown site," but its location will not be announced until ground is broken for the building.

The Garrick Theatre, which has been opened by Loew, built in 1904 by the Shuberts, has been the scene of many notable productions. It has been a two-dollar playhouse for practically all that time, and the Shuberts operated it until the first week in January, this year. The Shuberts have leased the house to Marcus Loew, but the length of the lease has not been made public.

Scenes from "The Brand" (Goldwyn).



Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

516 FIFTH AVENUE, AT 43D STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Telephone, Murray Hill, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President and General Manager
E. J. Chalmers .....Secretary and Treasurer
James L. Hoff.....Assistant General Manager
George Blaisdell .....Editor
A. MacArthur, Jr .....Advertising Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—610-611 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649. G. P. Harleman, Business Representative.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Cuba, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid) ..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time should be allowed for change.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—3 cents a word for Help or Positions Wanted, minimum 50 cents; 5 cents a word for all commercial ads., minimum $1.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-third Street, New York, and not to individuals.

CINE-MUNDIAL, the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 516 Fifth Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American and Spanish-speaking market. Yearly subscription, $2. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, February 15, 1919

FACTS AND COMMENTS

The Big News of the Week—McAdoo

BIG news is the announcement that comes from Los Angeles of the association of William G. McAdoo, War Secretary of the Treasury, with the United Artists' Association. From the day when the film world was told that the director and the four big players had formed an organization it has been a not uncommon belief that in the motion picture industry there was no one man endowed with sufficient capacity, executive and diplomatic, to hold the five together; that if such a man did exist he was unknown to those who gave free expression to their pessimistic opinion. What lent more or less force to these expressions was the fact that they were uttered in some cases by men who had at one time or another been associated with all of the group, who claimed there were temperamental barriers which would prevent the sinking of individual concerns in the interest of that harmony so essential to business success.

Mr. McAdoo brings to his new task more than capacity, both executive and diplomatic. He brings prestige second to that of no other business man in the country. His association marks another step in the progress of the business side of the screen, and it goes without saying his voice will have large influence in many quarters where large influence sometimes is very necessary.

If in the course of time it should come about that Mr. McAdoo's counsel will be available to the leading men of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and for the benefit of the trade at large there will be still stronger reasons for congratulations over the news from Los Angeles.

Chicago Managers and Operators Get Together

THE last word from Chicago indicates that the controversy which for some time has raged between the exhibitors and the operators is in a fair way of settlement, and in a way of fair settlement, by arbitration of the remaining bone of contention, i. e., the rate increase according to the seating capacity. The new scale of ninety cents an hour is in full effect pending the determination of the award.

Nat Goodwin Joins the Majority

WHILE Nat Goodwin's connection with screen activities had not been extended still his was a personality so well known to all concerned in matters associated with the drama in any form that film men were bound to be more than ordinarily interested in his passing. The veteran actor never displayed any strong belief in his drawing power as a screen artist, yet some of his work before the camera reflected the ability he had so many times demonstrated before the footlights. Those who knew him only as an artist saw but one side of a man of many parts. Those whose privilege it was to have been associated with him as a companion away from business found a man of most entertaining qualities.

Goodwin's reputation as a raconteur was international, and it was substantially founded. He had in his lifetime done much to add to the gayety of male assemblages, and the five occasions on which he had in the presence of clergymen directed the big Affirmative seemingly in no wise abated his popularity with menfolk; nor for that matter with womenfolk, for if we may believe what was printed in the daily press Number Six was more of a potent fact than a rumor. Nat Goodwin is dead, but his stories will live from generation to generation.

Elizabeth's Mayor Makes a Promise

OVER in Elizabeth, N. J., there is a mayor who last week said a few things in plain language. Referring to the attempts of the Ministers' Association to put a stop to Sunday theatregoing he talks about "petty provincialism." Mayor Mvarlag says his city has grown beyond the status of early "blue-law" days, an inheritance from the stern New England moralists; but somewhat ungently he points out that these statutes are still in effect. He goes further and promises that if there is interference with the showing of motion pictures on Sunday he will exact reprisal by enforcing these supposed archaic laws, and will put an effective stop to travel or any sort of social affair. The mayor "gives it out" that Elizabeth is not going to slump into the village class if he can help it. To an outsider it looks as if he might be able to do just that.

Theatre Building Will Help General Situation

THE Department of Labor urges upon exhibitors who had delayed the building of theatres owing to war restrictions the importance of proceeding with their plans. The department points out that employment provided now will prove a big factor in stabilizing labor conditions throughout the country. Exhibitors in turn may point out, however, that the prevailing high prices of materials and labor are not factors making for economy in construction.

As to Cutting of Film by Exhibitors

OUR Detroit correspondent sends us a clipping from the Detroit News which bears heavily on a matter that should have interest for producers and exhibitors. The photoplay editor of the News condemns in strong terms the action of a Detroit exhibitor in "slashing" a Griffith film, "The Greatest Thing in Life." The writer assumes that the element of time guided the knife of the exhibitor, but he insists that the spectators who paid to see the production were cheated. He points out, and seemingly with considerable reason, that a fair parallel would be the action of a Detroit theatrical manager should be slash in similar fashion David Belasco's "Tiger Rose."

The critic adds that Griffith himself is merciless with the scissors. Undoubtedly it is that same scissor activity which has imparted to Griffith productions the snap and go so characteristic of them, factors which have given them no small part of their popularity, and which, incidentally, picturegoers expect when they see a Griffith billed. The cutting of film is no layman's job. The reduction of footage by an exhibitor opens up a large question in ethics—one as to which there may be two sides, but in which surely there is much to be said against the practice.

The Major Wants to Come Back

MAJOR FUNKHOUSER, who for the many times he provided material for news stories is not altogether unkindly remembered by those who have to do with the making of newspapers, wants his old job back. That job, it will be recalled, included among many activities the supervision of the motion pictures that were intended for display to the good people of Chicago. His decisions in several cases proved unpopular in the film colony, so much so that a feeling of relief was noted when word came that the major was to be superseded. Now the former second deputy superintendent, through his attorneys, asks that the records of the hearing before the commission be brought into court and reviewed and that the order for his discharge be set aside.

Who Better Than an Undertaker?

AN Indianapolis undertaker has introduced in the Indiana Legislature a measure providing for the appointment of a commission to censor all films to be exhibited in the state. Of course, the fact that the bill has been introduced has interest, but somehow the undertaker part of the story obtrudes itself upon the attention. Possibly the exhibitors of the Hoosier state may show the member from Indianapolis a thing or two about the ancient art of embalming, or otherwise preparing a corpse for burial; also they will probably try to do a little killing and if they succeed in their attempt at snuffing out the light of an objectionable addition to the amusement life of Indiana very likely the coroner's jury, or at least a majority of the people, will declare it to be a case of justifiable homicide.

Shocking—If True

A WRITER, whose letterhead bears the inscription "Producing Author" some weeks ago mailed a three-page communication to the moving picture trade papers. Its opening paragraph is as follows:

"I am presenting herein my personal convictions on a matter which I feel is of vital importance to our industry and art. Similar letters are being addressed to the executive heads of the various producing and distributing organizations."

The crux of the article is contained in the next paragraph:

"The cessation of the great world strife, heralding a gradual return to the normal course of human events, ushers in a new era for motion picture entertainment. The amusements of the American people must now accord with new characteristics shaped out of the destinies of war, and our national viewpoint will unfailingly bring the plain, unvarnished story-drama back to its own."

The rest of the letter takes the industry to task for presenting during the past two years "totally false pictures of life with the laudable but mistaken idea of making a people's burdens easier" . . . the result being "a procession of productions in which inane puerility has been presented in its most advanced form." Another contention reads: "The truth of the matter is that in no way are present-day productions on the high plane of quality that they occupied during the years 1915 and 1916. 'Quality' as here used implies all-around entertainment value." After putting much of the blame for the backward movement of the moving picture on the shoulders of "alleged stars," whom the public at large refuses to accept as such, the closing paragraph states that:

"Now is the time to act upon the realization that through the manufacture of prune-pie meringue plays, not to mention a mistaken policy toward commercial production, we have builded a Tower of Babel on shifting sands. We face a golden era if we only know how to make it so."

* * *

Aside from listing the names of a few of the worthy productions of the past year comment upon the scathing nature of the article will be limited to one line:

Shocking—if true.

The List.

Hearts of the World	The Heart of Humanity
The Hell Cat	The Common Cause
Shoulder Arms	The Whispering Chorus
The Forbidden City	The Blue Bird
Old Wives for New	Up the Road with Sallie
Stella Maris	Revelation
Borrowed Clothes	Mother
The Honor of His House	The Great Love
Blue Blazes Rawden	The Heart of Wetona
Laughing Bill Hyde	Tarzan of the Apes
Lest We Forget	More Trouble
Sporting Life	Carmen of the Klondike

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and MARGARET I. MACDONALD

Historical Branch of War Department Tells of Preservation of Film Records

IN reply to a letter of inquiry addressed to the Historical Branch of the War Department at Washington, the following interesting information has been vouchsafed by Colonel C. W. Weeks, Chief of this branch of the work:

"A motion picture record of the War of 1917, as photographed by United States Signal Corps operators, is being prepared by the Motion Picture Section, Historical Branch, War Plans Division, General Staff, at the Army War College, Washington, D. C.

"After developing and making a record print the Signal Corps' Paris Laboratory ships the original negatives to this branch, where the necessary prints are made for record and for the production of duplicate negatives. The original negatives are then stored away and every precaution is taken to preserve them for future generations.

"The record print, titled with the original confidential data supplied by the photographer, is stored in the confidential files and is used for official shows at the Army War College. A second print from the original negative is used to produce duplicate negatives from which prints are made for instruction and training as requested by the various Corps and Branches of the War Department. An additional print from the original negative is delivered to the Committee on Public Information and from this are produced the duplicate negatives and prints for public distribution.

"A comprehensive index is in process of preparation whereby each and every scene can be quickly located. The historical titles, which give place, dates, organizations, and all data as to activities photographed, are attached to each scene in the confidential file print, and each subject mentioned in the title is listed in an alphabetical index. In addition each scene has a serial number assigned to it. Duplicate negatives will be filed as individual scenes so that any combination of scenes can be quickly assembled and prints made therefrom for purposes of instruction, historical reviews, etc.

"In regar dto public distribution of this material the Committee on Public Information was designated as the means of supplying prints for this purpose, and portions of this material have been shown in the form of features and in the Official War Review. A plan is now under consideration for selling prints and duplicate negatives direct to the public through a branch of the War Department. This arrangement is planned to take over the work of distribution when the Committee on Public Information ceases to function.

"Extensive facilities for handling this material are already planned, and a laboratory devoted to this purpose is soon to be constructed on the War College grounds."

Universal Screen Magazine Subjects.

In the 104th issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will be found a varied assortment of subjects of interesting character. In "Solving Europe's Railroad Problem" we see America shipping hundreds of locomotives to be used in rebuilding the devasted regions of France and Belgium. Interesting details in connection with this subject show the details of loading 30 locomotives, 40 motor trucks and 20 aeroplanes. "A Little Bit of Vaudeville" shows the star performer of a dog troupe performing from the stage and posing for the movies all in the same day. "Touring the Alps of Northern Italy" encompasses a thrilling trip through picturesque snow-clad mountains to the playground of Europe. "William Jerome's Laughographs" "Preserving Your Facial Beauty" and an animated cartoon close this number.

Roosevelt's Life in Film Inspiration to Americans

EDUCATORS everywhere will want to see the much talked of picture, "Our Teddy." Now that the moving picture is the acknowledged portrayer of history there will be a nation-wide—a world-wide—demand for a full series of pictures showing the many sides of the American citizen—the world man—Theodore Roosevelt.

This first picture of "Our Teddy" is a good beginning. Let it be assured that the greatness of the subject will demand many other views of so varied a character. The Literary Digest says that in newspaper editorials from sea to sea summarizing the career and character of the ex-President one word is repeated a thousand times—the simple but eloquent word "American." It is as the "American" that Roosevelt will be sought for most by the schools of the country, and truly the scope thereof will command the widest range of the camera's powers.

Scene from "False Faces" (Ince-Paramount-Artcraft-Special). Scene from "Hard Boiled" (Paramount).

Much has been said in a previous issue of this magazine with regard to "Our Teddy," including a full review of the picture from all angles. W. H. J.

How to Attract and Rear Wild Birds Shown in Film

At the recent exhibition of the New York Poultry and Pigeon Association, Ltd., which was held at the Madison Square Garden, some unusually interesting films belonging to the Audubon Society were shown.

One of these pictures introduced the spectator into the secret of rearing wild birds in captivity. This film is intensely interesting to those who give any thought to the subject.

Another dealt with attracting wild birds and the placing of bird houses of different designs to suit the anticipated occupants in appropriate places.

A third film, in which the general public would be interested in, took the spectator on a journey to the bird preservation off the coast of Louisiana, which the late Colonel Roosevelt was instrumental in establishing. Here we see the colonel walking about the sands with his feathered friends. All kinds of water birds, including their eggs and young as they lie about the sands of the island, are to be seen in the picture.

An interesting address on "The Protection of Birds" was delivered by T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, which the films served partially to illustrate.

"Current Events at Agricultural College.

The Slide and Film Service at the North Dakota Agricultural College recently collaborated with the Department of Public Discussion, to run the Official War Review once a week as a basis for the class discussion of Current Events.

The plan followed is to run the film once through for silent observation. It is then run again immediately and as each new topic appears, the professor calls on a member of the class, who rises, and gives such facts or opinions as he happens to be able to muster.

"A better plan," says A. P. Hollis, who directs the Slide and Film Service, "would be to give out the topics illustrated on the film, several days in advance; this can be done from the official poster. Then students can look up the topics announced and be better prepared to contribute real information. The film should then be run only once, and observed silently by the class. Then as each member is called upon, let him give his discussion, using the film picture only as a point of departure.

A Couple of Burlingham Subjects.

Among the Burlingham series being released by the William L. Sherry Service are a couple of beautiful travel numbers of educational value, entitled respectively "The Riviera of Lake Leman" and "Lovely Lucerne." The former covers extensively the beautiful and varied scenes along the banks of the Swiss lake. Beautiful villas and mansions of different degrees of architectural beauty are to be seen, and gardens and shrubbery bordering the lake crowd into scenes not easily forgotten. High above the shores of the lake a funicular railroad carries the spectator to a resort overlooking its mirrored surface, where from the tea gardens on elevated terraces one can gaze across the waters to the mountains of France. This is a particularly beautiful subject, which will be welcomed wherever it is shown.

"Lovely Lucerne" familiarizes the spectator with the town. The picture emphasizes its quaintness, showing close-ups of its frescoed buildings. Bridges of picturesque type are frequent features of the scenes, and nooks of extreme loveliness are everywhere to be seen.

"Sculptures in Sugar."

The latest number of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph (6102) lets us into the mystery of the candy decorations which embellish the famous dinners of New York's "400." Chef Spronk, of the Waldorf Astoria, is the star actor of this number. Without the slightest camera shyness he demonstrates how, with a genius as remarkable as that of the worker in clay or marble, he converts ordinary sugar, melted and heated to a high degree of temperature, into the most delicately beautiful articles. With the aid of a touch of fruit juice and the deft fingers of Chef Spronk, the well-kneaded substance is transformed into baskets with ribbon and flower trimmings, and fillings of delicately tinted candy roses, tulips or blossoms of some other design; or maybe neatly trimmed hat for a pretty French doll.

"Our Picturesque Neighbors."

Scenes on the Island of St. Kitts, one of the West Indian group are found in No. 6102. The island as seen by the Bray camera man has many points of beauty and interest. Among the ruins is one of a fort and castle that is most impressive as an example of the architecture of its period. Its massive walls and deep dungeons are monuments to the enterprise of the early settlers, who with the crudest of tools were able to hew the great stones, transport them many miles and set them up in place.

"The Story of the Orange."

This is an instructive industrial Pathe subject, taken at one of the big farms in California on which "Sunkist" oranges are raised. It goes thoroughly into the manner in which oranges are grown, beginning with the rearing of trees from mere seedlings. The care of the trees is a feature that will surprise many observers, as the grafting, pruning and other processes of culture are said to make the cost of rearing a hundred trees something like one thousand dollars. The sorting, packing and shipping of oranges is also shown, the entire number being one that will fascinate an audience.

"A Trip to Bird Island with Prizma."

One of the finest of Prizma—World Film releases takes the spectator on a trip to Bird Island, a U. S. Preserve off the coast of Northern California. The picture supplies not alone scenic beauties but the joy of natural color also. The rocky coast of the island and a wide stretch of ocean waters beyond introduce an atmosphere where the wild birds of the picture belong. Then the photographic party is shown climbing the rocky heights to the nesting places of the murre, the puffin or sea parrot, the stormy petrel, the cormorant and the herring gull. The soft colorings of the sea birds are beautifully brought out under the Prizma method, and audiences will be especially interested in the pictures of the young of each species. Contrasting colors among the eggs of the birds are also shown.

New Vocations for Disabled Soldiers.

The Gaumont Graphic No. 45 contains as its feature subject a series of illustrations of disabled soldiers being taught new vocations. These scenes were photographed at the Reconstruction Department of big U. S. hospitals and show men who have lost one leg or one arm learning to do cabinet and carpenter work. Rug weaving, basket making, wood carving and other branches of art are included among the possible vocations which will give these men a place in life. Legless men can make good at motion picture projection. It is also shown how wireless telegraphy can be included in the list. Typewriting, drafting and mechanical drawing, clay modelling, drilling and welding by means of the Oxy-acetylene torch can be learned by some of the disabled. And it is shown that it is even possible for them to take part in such sports as baseball and tennis.

Pauline Frederick Soon Makes Her Goldwyn Debut

It stands to reason that the debut of of Pauline Frederick in Goldwyn Pictures would not be accomplished without giving her public cause to exult in this star's return to modern emotional dramas. Her initial play is "The Woman on the Index," and by all odds it promises to be the most compelling offering Goldwyn has made since Geraldine Farrar aroused the cinema world with a taste of her versatility.

In presenting Pauline Frederick the executives of Goldwyn resolved that once the George Broadhurst play was decided upon care in its production should be carried to the last degree. Every one involved in producing the drama was told that neither time nor money nor effort should be thought of. "The Woman on the Index" must fulfill every promise made to Miss Frederick's admirers when it was announced that she would appear under the auspices of Goldwyn.

To Hobart Henley, as director, fell the greatest responsibility. He determined to embellish the play with evidence of a director's intelligence and sympathy invariably found in details. One of the many will be enjoyed by every spectator.

It occurs when Miss Frederick as Sylvia Martin is telling another character the great changes which have occurred in her life since they last met. Instead of making this known by a caption or the more obvious visualization of the events a map of the United States fades into the screen, various principal cities are focused and a faint suggestion of Sylvia Martin's life in each place is seen as through a haze. It is highly effective, and will be appreciated when "The Woman on the Index" is released.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

"Four Years" in Great Britain.

ROBB LAWSON, of the Film Booking Offices, London, sends in his campaign for the British exploitation of "My Four Years in Germany." The press helps are unusually plentiful. The silhouette cuts used over here are repeated, but the paper is specially printed. Much stress is laid upon "The complete film. Two hours in showing" in much of the special print paper and the same is taken over into the silhouette cuts. Special paper was necessary, as the sizes differ so materially, but the cuts size about the same in all papers. In addition to the catalogue of aids there were two publicity books, offering about the same general campaign, but with different ideas, a four-page folder of London press comment and a complete synopsis, reel by reel, covering ten pages. There is also an additional press sheet with original stories. One of the unusual aids was a copy of the book, probably a condensed version, to be sold for sixpence, and costing the exhibitor 3½ or 4 pence, according to the number purchased. Mr. Lawson writes in part:

> On this side, the film is regarded as the greatest Historic Film Drama that has ever been screened, with the result that it has achieved some very wonderful records. Chief of those results may be regarded the fact that for the first time in the History of Picture Theatres, the intellectuals have been convinced, after seeing this Film, that a great future had opened up for the Picture Theatre as a vehicle of instruction and entertainment. You will see by the Exhibitor's Press Sheet, which we enclose, that it has been favoured with a Royal Command Performance, and that over 200 notabilities have seen it.

The value of the film as a war document was fully appreciated, and the intensive campaign of the Film Booking Offices undoubtedly contributed materially to the wide distribution of this important contribution to propaganda. Any exhibitor, by using the aids given him, had only to follow instructions to clean up.

Double Spaces.

Walter Brooks, of the Auditorium, Coatesville, Pa., is another to use the double space for the current and coming bills. He gets something on the lines of Steve Farrar's double, but takes three nines for each side. This gives a nice arrangement and is more effective than the full cross page space would have been. In the cross page the two displays would have been run in together and each would have lost a part of its power of attraction, but as two displays, separated by type matter, each gets all the value of a three nines and does more than save the cost of an extra nine for that middle column. This is so true that where, for any reason, it may be desirable to take the full cross page space, it would pay to run a reader down the centre instead of getting up a big display for two main titles. This is an even better scheme than that used by Mr. Brooks and shown in a recent issue, but we take it that the larger display is occasioned by the fact that the underline is of unusual importance.

The Top Part of a Page from a Coatesville, Pa., Paper Showing How Walter Brooks Takes Care of His Underlines.

McCormick's.

S. Barrett McCormick is going strong on his colored advertisements and each one seems to be more skilfully handled than the last. Evidently the artist is getting used to working in four colors, and his work for the Caruso picture is the best yet. The black and white reproduction can give no adequate idea of the effectiveness of the display. The frame is a conventionalized holly design in red, yellow and green, with a red and yellow stipple tine for the background for the face. The sign at the bottom is in a bright red and the scenes on either side are properly colored, red, yellow, blue and green being gained with three colors. In both of these displays it will be noted that the comedy is given the illustration while the portait alone is used to announce Caruso. As this was the Christmas week bill, Mr. McCormick probably realized that the comedy would appeal as strongly to the amusement seekers as would the famous tenor. People want to be amused for Christmas, and playing up the comedy will get the patronage of the family parties with plenty of children. There is a strong temptation to make a splash on the first appearance of the greatest tenor, but Mr. McCormick knew that the comedy would probably sell better at this time, and gave an equal showing to the double bill. Now Fatty can brag that he has been co-starred with Caruso and got away with it. Since the Circle advertisement has been taken over to the back page, on account of the color work, many of the other theatres have followed from the former theatrical page to the back; probably at an increased rate, for the greater value that comes from the Circle color display. None of the others have gone into color as yet. If they do, the Indianapolis Star will have the most notable theatrical page in the United States. Much use of Fred Stones' acrobatic skill was made the preceding week. This three sixes uses a cut from one of the mats,

On the Left the Master Plate of a Four Colored Advertisement and on the Right a Three Elevens in Which Caruso and Fatty Arbuckle Share the Space.

EXTRAORDINARY ADDED FEATURE
Complete and official motion pictures of
The Surrender of the German Fleet
From the Flagship to the last damned U-Boat.
The Greatest Naval spectacle The World Has Ever Seen Say!
Fred Stone simply jamped in with both feet and copped some laarel wreathe yesterday!
A Fred Stone hit, just like his big musical comedy successes.
100% entertainment.
FRED STONE
AS
'The Goat'
Jimmy Flagg's
"Independence B'Gosh"
Circle Cinema News
War Review—Topics of the Day.
Neil O'Connell, Soloist.
SIGNOR NATIELLO AND THE CIRCLE ORCHESTRA
ALL THIS WEEK—DOORS OPEN 11 A.M.
The Circle
SHRINE OF THE SILENT ART

A Three Sixes for Fred Stone from the Circle, Indianapolis.

and this works well. The box in the corner announced the Jewel pictures of the surrender of the German navy, "from the flagship to the last damned U-boat." A four nines gives a specially drawn cartoon for the surrender and a scene cut from the play. The silhouettes on either side of the signature are well done, but the goat might have been more clearly shown. Two three sevens show the star as a wire-walker and a skater, each of the displays taking up one feature of Mr.

"The Cold Cream Kid Cut Cold Feet and I Took His Place in the Trenches."
—Chuck McCarty.
The Surrender of the German Fleet
FRED STONE
as "The Goat"
TODAY AND ALL THIS WEEK
The Circle
SHRINE OF THE SILENT ART

A Four Nines with a Special Cartoon for the Surrender of the German Navy.

Stone's varied accomplishments. All of the displays are in the usual McCormick style with plenty of selling talk type-set.

Mr. McCormick manages to get more text than any other manager, and it is all good selling talk. He knows that the best way to sell is to tell about what you have for sale, and to tell it interestingly. He is not afraid to use six and eight point faces so long as he has the usual attractor lines. It is not necessary to set an advertisement in all display to command attention. Some attractor lines are necessary, but once the attention is gained, the average reader will be content to read the smaller faces if his interest has been gained. One reason we reproduce so much of Mr. McCormick's advertising is because he does this so well.

A Pair of Three Sevens Which Take Up the Acrobatic Features of "The Goat."

In Again.

The Third Street, Easton, Pa., comes in with a Christmas card, the first sample we have had for them in several months. It is very well done, with all of the little points looked after, such as dated days, full titles for the small reels and the like. The usual one-two-three arrangement of days is changed to get the actual Christmas bill under the design, and here we should have said "Christams Day and Thursday" rather than Wednesday and Thursday, but that is about the only comment to be offered. We hope that the Third Street is taking its place in line again, for it has been one of the standbys of this department for years. The year has seen many changes at the Third Street, including the death of the owner, but the house is something more than a moving picture theatre and should endure. It lives up to its line: "Unsurpassed for music, pictures and environment." That very happily states the trinity of success, for environment means as much as good pictures or good music.

For Baltimore Kiddies.

The Parkway, Baltimore, beats the usual kiddie matinee with the announcement that for Christmas and New Year's weeks there would be a special children's matinee each morning. "Fan Fan" was used for Christmas week and "Ali Baba" the week following. The schools were closed both of these weeks, and the morning matinee enjoyed plenty of patronage. Of course the announcement was printed in red with green and holly border, but the special matinee was far more in the holiday spirit than mere colored inks.

Double Bills.

The Palace, Orange, N. J., ran a special matinee feature every matinee Christmas and New Year's week, the second picture being one of especial appeal to the children. These subjects ranged from "Shoulder Arms" to "The Blue Bird," with a double bill on Christmas, consisting of "Aladdin," and Chaplin in "A Dog's Life," in addition to "Borrowed Clothes" and a Christie comedy, a news weekly and a travelogue. Some program for the youngsters!

Don't Be Afraid.

The other day a friend brought in an advertisement that a local manager was "too bashful" to send in himself. This is a false modesty that hardly pays. In the first place it is perfectly proper to take a pride in your own good work, and if you don't you can at least help the other fellow. This department has done a lot to help the standard of advertising throughout the country, and we should have been nowhere without the aid of the big advertisers who have so generously contributed to these pages. Do your share. If you have been helped, help others, and don't suffer from the idea that everyone will think that you are suffering from swelled head.

From Omaha.

A correspondent who forgets to sign his name sends in a couple of two sixes from the Strand, Omaha, and wants to know what we think of them, especially as regards their selling values. We think that the displays tell their own story.

A Pair of Two Sixes in Which One Seeks to Sell and the Other Merely Announces.

That for Farrar merely announces that she is at the theatre and states the name of the play in which she is to appear. If you are interested in the star, you can go and see her. The Talmadge advertisement seeks to interest you in the play. It gives a hint of the constituents of the story. It shows you that with such material a good play should result. Very naturally you will be interested in seeing the play. The Talmadge space is an advertisement. The Farrar display is merely an announcement. The announcement has no selling value unless it heralds something already sold through previous advertising. It is not of itself a selling argument. We do not exactly like the cut in the Talmadge space. It is an effort to get something new, but the experiment did not work out as well as was anticipated. It would have been better to have sketched in the lines in the blank space. At that it is a better experiment than this single three made from the drawing for Farrar before the half tones were tacked down. The experiment was not highly successful, but it served for once, and it is only by experimenting that new effects are arrived at. If you always play safe, you never will get much that is new. It is better to fall down now and then than to be always in a rut.

A Single Column Display Made from the Drawing Shown Above, But Without the Portraits.

With a Map.

The Central, St. Louis, managed by Mr. Sweeney, ran a diagram following the influenza to show why the house with its cross currents was perfectly sanitary. This is an excellent idea and should help business. It charts the passage of the air currents and shows how four exhaust fans keep the air in circulation and hustle any possible germs right out of the house. The space is a double four and a half, with the chart taking up about a third of the space, but in an influenza scare a good ventilating system is a better feature than any picture ever made.

A Ventilation Advertisement from St. Louis.

Still Cross Pages.

Lately we gave Mr. Bleich's new weekly advertisement, which runs down the page very nicely, but that does not mean that Mr. Bleich has abandoned the cross page strips that pains one of our contemporaries so much. He knows, as others know, that the cross page gives him greater distinction, as this display shows. Getting across the page you are bound to attract attention, and by splitting up the page you get distinct advertisements for each day. This is an advantage that outweighs the slight gain in sightliness that comes with the perpendicular make-up. Primarily an advertisement is to sell goods. If it also looks well, so much the better, but selling comes first, and if the cross page strip sells to better advantage, it does not matter what uninformed critics may say. The box office alone counts. A change now and then is pleasing, but the cross page is to be preferred. For Fairbanks Mr. Bleich uses ample space; a three fives in the morning edition and a two fives

A Cross Page Weekly Advertisement for the Empress, Owensboro, Ky.

The Smile That Has Made a Million Happy
"He Comes Up Smiling"
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
EMPRESS TODAY
The Smile That Has Made a Million Happy
EMPRESS TODAY
Douglas Fairbanks
"He Comes Up Smiling"

A Three Fives and Two Fives for Fairbanks from George A. Bleich.

for the afternoon issue. The afternoon announcement gives the times only for the evening show, with "Hours of remaining shows" to give emphasis to the limited time left. The text is changed for the second copy to work along the same lines. Mr. Bleich has not yet come to our way of thinking, in that he does not always name the smaller features by title, but there is yet time for him to reform, and we think he will find that to mention the title of a comedy will help business a trifle.

Ruff Stuff.

Ralph Ruffner sends in this home made design for a Zane Grey story, explaining that "all the Fox Exchange in Seattle had was a desire." None of those Zane Grey stories seem to carry any black and white newspaper stills, though this is a special story for which an extra price is charged and Fox is generally free with publicity aids. We have seen letters from the exchange stating that there was no stills to be had. It should get the attention of the New York office, for newspaper stills are essential to the handling of big features by the larger theatres and they are entitled to material with which to work. The sketch was made while Ruff was in New York, which explains why the title is so hard to read.

A Home-Made Newspaper Sketch for "The Rainbow Trail" Made by Ralph Ruffner to Supply the Company's Lack of Material.

Study.

Did you ever figure out how you get sold on advertising? Try it some time. The other day we bought some rubber finger-tips just because we happened to see an advertisement for them some time before and the box was next some typewriter ribbons we went into the store for. It was a good article, well advertised. It did not sell us at the time, but it did sell some six weeks later, and when our better half bought some pancake flour she bought the kind having the prettiest pancakes in its advertisement in the elevated trains. And the reason we know she bought that kind is because we asked her why she did not purchase that brand, because we had seen the pictures, too. Study what sells you and you'll know better what is most apt to sell other people.

Steve's Best.

Steve Farrar writes concerning this advertisement on No Man's Land:

> I didn't think much of it when I was writing it, but I had a packed house that night, on a cold, rainy night, and I had seven people tell me that they had not intended coming to the show until they had read that advertisement and then they wanted to see the film.
>
> That's the way most good advertisements happen. You can try and try to be extra clever and you get a display full of pretty phrases and trick sentences that don't pull any better than a balky mule, and then some day you dash off something with a free arm movement that hits the crowd just right and gets them all in. This is a three tens, not particularly well displayed, but it takes hold. In the first

Tonight Only ORPHEUM Children...10c Adults...15c

The Theatre That Tries At All Times To Give You The Best.

BERT LYTELL in

'NO MAN'S LAND'

If the girl you loved believed you guilty of murder—what would you do?

? ?

One good American against twenty German sailors! Which would you back to win?

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

Two Chinamen and a German! that was all the company a beautiful young girl had on a lonely island. Could you have stood what she did?

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

Suppose your husband were a German agent—working against America—what would you do?

? ? ? ? ? ?

Girls, are you brave! Could you help capture a bunch of raiders?

? ? ? ?

SEE "NO MAN'S LAND" TONIGHT AND YOU CAN ANSWER ALL THESE QUESTIONS.

EXTRA SPECIAL! EXTRA SPECIAL!

THE SURRENDER OF THE GERMAN FLEET

Shown For The First Time In Harrisburg In PATHE NEWS No. 101, Showing In Every Detail Just How The Great German Fleet Came Out.

Sidney Drew Comedy | Big V Comedy

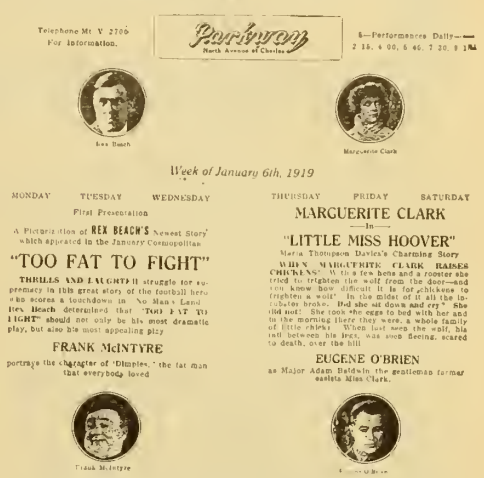
A Simple Three-Tens Which Made Big Business on a Rainy Night for Steve Farrar.

place it has no adjectives. Steve does not even say it is a good film, let alone the greatest and grandest ever. He just picks up a few of the situations and puts them into queries and leaves the rest to curiosity. We think that those lines of question marks are what really did the trick, pointing up the simple questions. The questions alone might not have gotten over, but the questions were good and the extra marks drove them in. It got people interested and they came to see the answers. This is a stunt we often suggest in Advertising Aids because it works well when not overdone. You cannot use it for every film, but you can use it often in different forms, and make business each time. Tell them all about a story and they know the answer. There is nothing to come to the theatre for other than to see it played out, but arouse curiosity and leave that curiosity unsatisfied and you have created a demand. And this leads to another point. If you work too long over an advertisement you are apt to "improve" the life all out of it. It will lack spontaneity. Write it in the first flush of enthusiasm and some of that enthusiasm will get over to the reader.

Arrangement.

The Parkway, Baltimore, is usually happy in laying out its programs, and we particularly like this layout for a two-



Telephone Mt. V. 2706 For Information.

Parkway North Avenue at Charles

5—Performances Daily—2 15, 4 00, 5 45, 7 30, 9 15

Week of January 6th, 1919

MONDAY TUESDAY WEDNESDAY

First Presentation

A Picturization of REX BEACH'S Newest Story which appeared in the January Cosmopolitan

"TOO FAT TO FIGHT"

THRILLS AND LAUGHS in struggle for supremacy in this great story of the football hero who scores a touchdown in No Man's Land. Beach determined that "TOO FAT TO FIGHT" should not only be his most dramatic play, but also his most appealing play portrays the character of "Dimples," the fat man that everybody loved

FRANK McINTYRE

THURSDAY FRIDAY SATURDAY

MARGUERITE CLARK

—in—

"LITTLE MISS HOOVER"

Maria Thompson Davies's Charming Story

WHEN MARGUERITE CLARK RAISES CHICKENS! With a few hens and a rooster she tried to frighten the wolf from the door—and you know how difficult it is for chickens to frighten a wolf! In the midst of it all the incubator broke. Did she sit down and cry? She did not! She took the eggs to bed with her and in the morning there they were, a whole family of little chicks! When last seen the wolf, his tail between his legs, was seen fleeing, scared to death, over the hill as Major Adam Baldwin, the gentleman former easiest Miss Clark.

EUGENE O'BRIEN

The Inside Arrangement of a Four-Page Program for Two Changes a Week, from the Parkway, Baltimore.

change bill. It is simple, effective and tells a lot without seeming to be crowded. You pick it up, feeling that there is not much to read, and you run it through where you might not read the same number of words if they were set to fill the page. The stock is 7¼ inches square, folded to make four pages, and it is printed in brown. A slightly heavier line around the pages might give a still better effect. The hairline is too light.

Good Taste.

About the best patron's greeting to show up on this desk is that of the Rex and Lyric theatres, Duluth, Minn. It was a costly souvenir, yet probably not as expensive as it looks, and it was worth keeping. A green Christmas tree showed upon a brown sheet, with a greeting printed on its surface. At the top was a wintry landscape, and the only advertisement was the imprint of the houses on the tub holding the tree. It was all in excellent taste.

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and typesetting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 Fifth Ave., New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Important Notice.

OWING to the mass of matter awaiting publication, it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second sets of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Editor Enters Last Sleep.

Alfred Cory, Technical Editor Motion Picture News, recently passed into the shadows of the Great Beyond. Pneumonia was the immediate cause. He was interred Tuesday, January 14. Mr. Cory was a cameraman of ability and had delved pretty deeply into the field of technical optics. A paper read by him at the Rochester meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers called forth considerable favorable comment. He leaves a circle of friends who will regret his untimely taking away.

One for Richardson.

From Nomansland comes the following:

"Inclosed find 40 cents, stamps, for question booklets. Here is one for Richardson, but don't put my name in the department, because it might cause a frost around our southland theatre which would render the cooling system unnecessary. How is one to convince a manager that his projection is on the bum and wake him up to the fact that conditions in his theatre are N. G.? There are all kinds of stray light in the auditorium which reaches the screen. On one side are several sidelights which look like Chinese lanterns, with forty (40) watt bulbs in each. With a dark scene on the screen it looks red. Have a fine mirror screen, but a big clock right close to it throws lots of light on its surface, and you know what that means. Have two 6-B projectors and a 9x12 screen, but have a lens for a 12x14 picture and no black border. One of the negative glasses on one of the lenses is broken in half. The distance of projection is less than 40 feet, with a sharp angle, and the opening in lens is exactly one inch. Can't get a decent focus to save my soul. Our (they call it "booth") is 8x10 feet, hung from the roof. When one walks from one side of it to the other the projectors do a St. Vitus dance. You may think I am just making this up, but it is exactly what I have to contend with. Say anything to the manager and—nothing doing. If you ever come down this way I certainly want to meet you. Had order in for first handbook before it was off the press.

Your manager, did you say? You are in error. "My mis-manager" would be the proper term. I am afraid if I came there your mis-manager would be my mortal enemy for life, for what I would say to him would be good and plenty. It is indeed discouraging that such utterly wretched conditions can still be found, and such misfits can still hold their position as managers of theatres. The man has purchased modern projectors, and then, by utterly stupid auditorium lighting and utterly impossible projection room location and construction and broken lenses, makes it impossible to get even a half-way decent result on his screen. If it were himself only who was being injured I would say go to it, and be &*!!! to you. If it were only those foolish enough to patronize such a mis-managed house I would not feel very much like getting excited, but those things are only beginning. In addition he is outraging your profession. He is taking a butcher-knife to the producer. He is murdering the art of the artists so unfortunate as to be on his screen, and is doing his little level best to slug the motion picture industry with a blackjack. It is really hard to confine myself to comparatively mild language in a matter of this kind. The man apparently hasn't brains enough to know that he is losing money hand over fist by such impossible procedure, so how can one expect to successfully argue with him.

You have a lens of extremely short focal length. Such lenses are always of small diameter and their curvature of field is such that sharp focus all over a flat screen is impossible, unless a lens very carefully corrected for such conditions be used. For such a throw your picture should not exceed ten feet wide, which would require about a 3.5 E. F. lens. Even that short a lens is none too good, and anything less is very bad indeed.

Denver Projectionist Honored.

E. A. Shields, projectionist at the Isis Theatre, one of Denver's high-class houses on Curtis street, Denver's Great White Way, and for years active in Denver projectionists' local union, has been elected to the office of vice-president of the Colorado State Federation of Labor. Evidently the State Federation knows how to select good men for its officers.

In this connection let me add that our old friend, Ralph Mosier, of Denver, who has been identified with the labor movement of Colorado for many years, has graduated into the editorial class. He is editor, and as I understand it, also the owner of the Denver Labor Bulletin and is making a success of it. Congratulations, Ralph. Glad of it.

Stork Visits Union Officer.

The stork has visited the home of Morris Rotker, recording secretary, Local Union 306, for the third time in the last few years. This time he again forgot a bundle when he left, and examination thereof disclosed a wee sma' baby who is expected to make some man a good wife one of these days. The newcomer is quite young, baldheaded and speaks a foreign language, consisting chiefly of some word sounding like "goo," which the mother says means "gimme some milk."

My Mistake—Apologies.

John H. Auerbach, a student projectionist of New York City, asks:

"In connection with the lens charts published recently in the World, a point has occurred to me which I should like to submit to you for an opinion.

"Is chart No. 2 complete without the factor of back focus again being taken into consideration. Let us assume we are using 50 amperes D. C. with plano-convex condensers and a lens working at 4 inches B. F. From chart No. 1 we learn that a 6½-7½-inch condenser combination must be used, with a trifle less than 17 inches from condensers to aperture, and that the diameter of the objective lens must not be less than 1.9 inches. We then turn to chart No. 8. Assuming a lens of 3½-inch E. F. we are told that the distance from aperture to condenser image should be 7.7 inches. Now here is the point. How can this distance be stated accurately without figuring on the B. F., which will be different with the same lens for any change in distance of screen from projector. As the condenser and the condenser image are conjugate foci, and the condenser position is fixed, the position of the condenser image is bound to vary as the lens is moved back and forth (back focus changed). I grant you the change will be small, but, after all, what we are working for is the absolutely perfect chart, is it not?"

My mistake. Apologies, friend Auerbach. Guess you got your idea of there being considerable change in back focus from an answer I made to a theatre manager in the department recently. Brother Griffiths has already called my attention to the fact that in ordinary theatre practice, where the front conjugate foci point is very long, the shortening of it by ten or fifteen feet alters the lens position but very little. I answered the inquiry referred to from memory of some experiments made quite a long while ago, and with them I used a screen located but a short distance from the lens. With an average throw of say 70 feet the shortening to sixty feet would require only a very little movement of the lens, and I don't believe a chart could be made which would take care of such matters. Admitting that lack of the B. F. is a weakness in the chart, it seems to me it is a weakness which cannot be overcome. I shall, with these few remarks, leave the matter to Griffith, who is better able to deal with it than am I.

Covert, of Toronto.

Recently the editor had the pleasure of entertaining Brother Covert, fifth vice-president of the I. A., at his home. It was a pleasure to have him with us for himself alone, but doubly so in that through him we felt as though we were in some slight degree returning to the Toronto men the wonderful kindness and courtesy shown the editor on the occasion of his visit to their city. Covert is, you know, from Toronto. And Toronto has just cause to be proud of her son. He is a man who stands for right, regardless of consequences, and that's the sort of man we believe in.

Incidentally, let us say, the I. A. executive board has just finished one of its regular meetings, at which a large volume of business was transacted with neatness and dispatch.

Acting in capacity of Honorary General Director of the Sociedad de Operadores Cinematigraficos of the Argentine Republic the editor extended to the I. A., through the executive board, greetings and best wishes, which same was accepted and proper action taken. Later we will tell you just what it was.

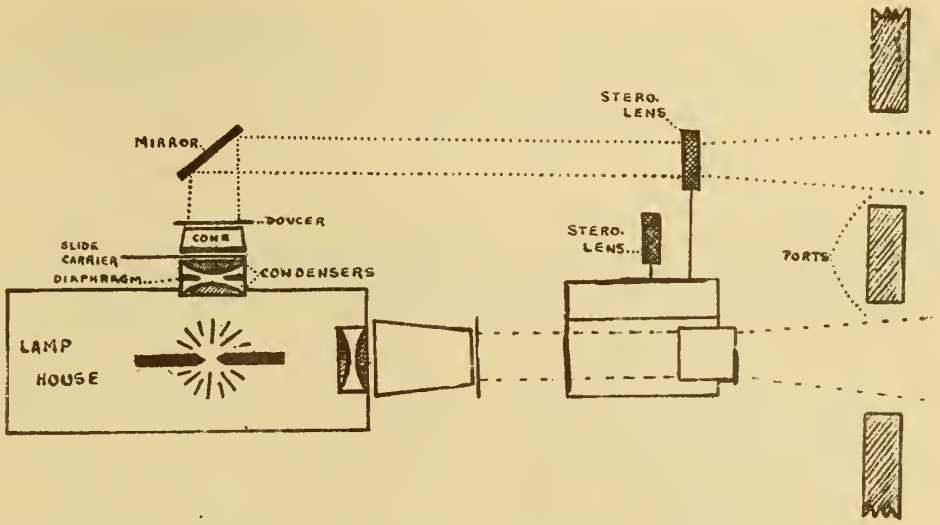
Our executive board is one of which we may feel proud. Viewed as a whole, it will, in the editor's opinion, rank with any similar body connected with organized labor in the entire country.

We find it to have that rather rare combination, executive abilty of high order, moral courage and honesty. These are the qualities which make for smooth running of the organization. Without them the machine will grind and rumble. It is apt to stall on the hills and have frequent breakdowns. These qualities are the chains on the tires which supply traction to force the car of progress along regardless of snow, ice or rain. Without them the wheels will slip, the machine will skid, and danger looms large. And there has been mighty little wheel slipping or skidding of the I. A. machine lately. It is an executive body such as this which will give us an organization builded on the granite-hard rock of justice and fair dealing as between man and man.

Nuisance Well Abated.

Our request for advice as to best method of calling trainmen from the theatre has met with ample response. Aside from the answers already printed the following have arrived: Wm. C. McIntire, manager of the Rose, Fayetteville, N. C., says he steps just inside the door and calls out three times: "Is Mr. John Doe in the audience?" "If he is a railroad man," says Manager McIntire, "he will not feel in the least humiliated, as that is merely a part of his life." For which suggestion many thanks, Friend McIntire. Chas. Decker, manager Majestic Theatre, Grand Junction, Colorado, sends us copy of "The Movie Fan," a house organ of surprising amplitude for a theatre in a town the size of Grand Junction. Neighbor Decker says: "This is a railroad town, and I have been up against the same proposition complained of by the man down South, and during the 'flu' ban I got busy and studied out a solution which I find most practical to take care of the slide proposition. First, I have installed a blackboard in the inner lobby of the theatre. I have a published notice in 'The Movie Fan' requesting all railway and professional men expecting to be called to write their names on the call board; also for two weeks I ran a slide before the picture calling attention to the call board. It is then up to Mr. Man to write his name on same if he wishes to be called, and, unless he does, we positively refuse to run a slide; not because we wish to be unaccommodating, but because it spoils a picture to break off in its middle and run a slide."

Mucha gracias, Neighbor Decker, but it is the slide proposition we want to get away from entirely. Would suggest your consideration of the Griffith scheme. It looks best to me of any of the plans proposed to date. Maybe you can improve your own present plan by substituting his. Anyhow, this little matter shows how we may help each other through the department. On second look, maybe we have misinterpreted Friend Decker's idea. Attached to his letter was a sketch of the call board, and on it is reserved space for "Time Entered," "Section," "Row," "Seat," so I guess he has the usher call the man and wont run a slide at all. If this is it, it is an excellent plan for houses selling reserved seats exclusively, but it would not work in the average theatre where patrons purchase a seat for a given part of the auditorium and within that portion seat themselves at will, which is the practice in most moving picture theatres. The "time entered" is necessary because there are two shows, and if the man entered at the beginning of the first show and the caller came toward the middle of the next show it would be reasonable to suppose that he would be gone.



Still later, here is another way of doing it by Walter C. Michel, Jersey City, New Jersey, who says: "As a possible solution of the problem of notifying trainmen plan, cut a hole in side of lamphouse and install condenser, mirror and lens as shown. Install a small screen near the large one, and you are ready for business. Stero lens for this would have to be of long focal length to give such a small image, but this can be helped out by writing name in small space."

This plan will work, though I, personally, would consider it as not very desirable in practical application for several reasons. One is that it could only be installed on one machine—the left one, for obvious reasons—and when a man was wanted while the left-hand machine was idle the arc would have to be lighted and started going pretty well. But we nevertheless appreciate Brother Michel's good intent and his wide-awakedness in offering it as a possible solution.

Still another. Robert Hoy, Washington, D. C., suggests the installation of a small blackboard on front wall, same to be illuminated by shaded incandescent lamp. Usher or attendant writes name of party wanted on board and lights incandescent for a few seconds. Says same was used successfully in Medical Society of Washington for calling M. D.'s from audience during the years he, Friend Hoy, had charge of projection for that body. This plan has the virtue of simplicity and inexpensiveness.

Confidence Man.

The Lavezzi Machine Works, Chicago, issues advertising matter concerning certain machine parts, one paragraph of which reads: "We do not submit samples to trade journals, since we have positive proof that one of the large moving picture machine manufacturers has an inspector in their factory, and at the same time occupying a position as confidence man to operators, in one of the leading trade journals. This makes it utterly impossible for any competitor to get consideration * * *. In other words, we wish to make it known to all those doing business with us in any way that we may be relied on for permanent dealing."

Well, I've been called about everything else, at one time and another, and now I'm a "confidence man." For it is your humble servant this "permanent dealing" man is taking such a stem-winding wallop at. But in the name of Caesar's ghost, where has the company in question been sleeping all these years. We haven't been inspector for, or had any sort of connection with the Nicholas Power Company for fully four years, and certainly no other "confidence man" of a trade paper either is or ever has been inspector for a machine manufacturer. Might we humbly suggest to the Lavezzi company that its name be changed to "Rip Van Winkle Machine Works." Oh, no, it is not an old circular, because the party who gave it to me had but just received it, and it bears a notary public seal dated November, 1918. We are also amused at the statement contained in the notary public's end of this four-years-behind-the-time document to the effect that the Lavezzi company had obtained the services of an American Car and Foundry Company Mechanical Engineer to make official tests of the Lavezzi intermittent sprocket. Surely the engineer will be credited with a wide knowledge of carewheels or drawbars.

Possible, But Not Probable.

W. R. Crittenden, Marshall, Minn., is in the midst of a scrap with an exchange manager. He submits the matter to us, as follows:

"In sending subscription for another year to the World I take advantage of the opportunity to ask your opinion with regard to a matter which has come up between myself and a Minneapolis exchange. The discussion is just this: The exchange has sent me a bill for $10, claiming that amount of damage to 100 feet of film. Damage consists of sprocket tooth impressions caused by film riding the sprocket for approximately 100 feet. The impressions are in a straight line and about one-quarter inch from the edge of picture. This film was projected on my Simplex machine, serial number 4507, without break or stoppage, and with picture on screen in perfect register all the time. This proves conclusively that if the damage was done on my machine it was caused by the lower sprocket. I, however, claim the damage was done before I received the film. I maintain that no Simplex will carry a film riding on one side of the lower sprocket without tightening the lower loop and causing the film to break in less than three feet of footage. The fact that I noticed the puncture holes on the screen and was aware of the different sound as this piece of film was projected, due to difference of thickness of film at that point, made no impression on the exchange manager. I am therefore taking the liberty of addressing you, asking your opinion as to whether or not such damage could be caused on a Simplex projector under the conditions named. I know nothing about any other make of projector, as my four years of projection work has been under the Simplex banner, guided by the handbook, and in all this time the few occasions when my lower loop has been 'lost' the film has tightened almost immediately; in fact, it requires pretty rapid work to stop the motor before the film breaks. As this is a case of effect instead of cause, I have not mentioned sprocket idlers. They are, however, set as directed, and the fact that I have very little trouble would seem to indicate everything is as it should be. That some projectionist and some machine is responsible goes without saying, for the damage is there, but I don't fancy being made the goat for some one else's fault."

Well, brother, you have handed me a hard one. Given a weak takeup pull and the thing might be possible. But it is nevertheless very improbable; so very much so as to make the probability hardly worth considering. Mind you I am speaking now of the film riding the lower sprocket for one hundred feet. Only with a weak takeup pull and very stiff sprocket idler spring could it be done at all, I think. It therefore follows that, if we accept your statement as to everything being O. K. while projecting the film in so far as concerns the screen, you stand vindicated, because I think we may safely say the film could not possibly ride a Simplex upper sprocket for 100 feet, one-fourth inch inside the picture line without evidence of the fault on the screen. Very evidently, however, the exchange man places no value on your word, since you told him you saw the marks on the screen and heard the difference in sound. Perhaps it might be well to inquire of the exchange manager as to just how thoroughly his inspectors examine each film. In the average exchange "inspection" is done at the rate of from 200 to 500 feet per minute. If that is the case in this instance, then the manager most emphatically does not know that you did the damage, nor has he any right to try to fasten it on you. I might add, however, that my reason for saying that the film could only ride the lower sprocket with a very stiff idler spring (if it could at all) is found in the fact that unless the idler press the film down over the teeth to the same diameter as the face of the sprocket, the greater diameter at outer ends of teeth would quickly take up the lower loop. .

Erroneous Reasoning.

H. Winkelman, Zanesville, Ohio, trails a certain idea out into the tall brush, and then loses the scent entirely. He says:

"Note in recent issue, you recommend the one-and-a-half-to-one revolving two-wing shutter, giving as its advantage the fact that its higher speed will cause it to cut across the light beam more quickly, hence enabling the use of a shutter blade of less width. To my way of thinking, however, it seems reasonable to draw exactly the opposite conclusion. Let us suppose we have a shutter blade of precisely the width necessary to shut off the light during the time the picture moves down. Now, if we increase the speed of the shutter, without increasing the speed of the intermittent movement, cannot you see that the shutter wing will no longer shut off the light long enough for the picture to move down, and that we will therefore be obliged to increase the width of the shutter blade if we increase the speed of the shutter? Trust I have succeeded in making my meaning clear."

Yep, brother Winkelman, you have done that little thing all right. Your reasoning is perfectly good—as far as it goes, but I guess the whistle blew before you finished the job. Certainly the blade width must be increased, but only exactly in proportion to increase of speed. Don't you see that the wider blade will, due to increased speed, pass a given point in exactly the same time, but since there is an appreciable time elapses from the time the blade-edge enters the light ray and the time the picture is off the screen, that time is decreased by the greater speed, hence the blade width may be decreased, and since that action comes both at opening and closing of the ray, it is considerable. It therefore follows that the wider blade is really the narrower blade, in so far as concerns time of picture obliteration. Dost perceive the point, friend? Don't feel embarrassed because you have made an error. I've made a couple of 'em myself in days gone by. If you hadn't set forth your views you would still be holding the wrong one. I don't in the least mind "'sposin' my ignurunce," if in the process I learn something.

Queer Proposition.

California (name and location suppressed by request) submits the following:

"Am having trouble, as follows: When either projector is run at 40 to 60 there is flicker. When they are run at 60 to 75 there is a wave in the picture (Light, I suppose you mean.—Ed.). Throw is 90 feet. Six and a half E. F. projection lens, and one 6.5 and one 7.5 condensing lens. Seventeen inches from centre of condenser to aperture. Using 60 amperes A. C. Have tried both two and three-wing shutters. Mirror screen. Effect is same with either kind of shutter. Please help me out, and do not publish this in the department."

Do you realize that there are between 25,000 and 30,000 projectionists in this country and Canada alone. How many demands do you suppose there are for "reply by mail" every day. I wish I might comply with them all, but unless the rule of a dollar is complied with, or there seems to be some extraordinary reason for a personal reply, I just cannot give my time and energy over to letter writing. Please understand this is not from any wish to be unfriendly. Heavens, man, I would gladly write personal letters if it meant a reasonable number of letters a day or week, but don't you see I have absolutely all I can do to take care of department and Handbook matters and correspondence with manufacturers, societies, unions and things which must be attended to in order that I may keep up to date and a jump or two ahead. If a man sends a dollar, I am led to believe he really wants a personal reply pretty badly, and, unless there has been too many of them, he gets it. The dollar is not payment for advice, which often is worth many times that sum.

As to your trouble, your statement that you have used both 2-wing and 3-wing shutters balls up what seemed a rather simple matter. Until I came to that statement I was saying to myself: "Badly balanced 3-wing shutter, which gives flicker at low speeds and synchronism at high." But—you can't get synchronism with a 2-winger. Who can offer a suggestion? Your lens combination is wrong. Use two 6.5 condenser lenses set with apexes not to exceed 1/16-inch apart, with 18.5 inches from centre of lenses to aperture. Your projection lens should have a 2-inch opening. Your revolving shutter may be reduced to its lowest light-cutting dimensions by setting it as per chart No. 2, December 28 issue. Your E. F. will probably be about 5 inches, with a shutter position 11¼ inches from aperture of machine. Can't tell without measuring E. F., however.

Projection Experience
MOTION PICTURE
HANDBOOK
For Managers and Operators
By F. H. RICHARDSON
The recognized standard book on the work of the operator. Complete descriptions and instructions on all leading machines and operating equipment.
There isn't an operator's booth in the universe in which this carefully compiled book will not save its purchase price each month.
Buy It Today $4 the Copy, Postpaid
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
516 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Wright & Callender Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
To save time, order from nearest office.

For Just Three Pages.

Victor Travis, Sterling, Colorado, says:

"Attached find money for one year's subscription. I want the World for just three pages, and you know what three they are. Can you send me the lens chart published last year? Lost mine. Wont take no for an answer. Just have to have it! I have a progressive manager (Lyric Theatre), and one who is able to do first class work in the projection room himself. As a consequence, I get what I want, and no money is spared to produce the goods on the screen. Just installed a 2-arc, 50-ampere Wagner Converter. Have a Power's 6 and a De Luxe Motiograph. We have the dope on screens and motor attachments. They work perfectly. Will send dope to you later and see what you think of it. Don't think because I've never written that I am a new one. Have been reading the department for years. Am for you, strong. Let the disgruntled ones knock. It injures no one but themselves. Have been in projection room for nine years, but am still deeply impressed with the fact that I have much—Oh, very much—to learn. Was originally a member of Local Union 230, Denver, Colorado, but later was in No. 419, Decatur, Illinois."

You are wrong in taking the World for "just three pages." The paper is full of good stuff. Epes Winthrop and Benyon are all swelled up over the dazzling brilliancy of their respective departments. Readum, brother, readum. They're well worth it. But, Friend Travis, where you make you're great b-i-g error is overlooking the Motion Picture Educator Department. Man, man! rea dit, rea dit. One of its editors is a very excellent man indeed, and the other is—well, we're constantly in a state of funk here lest some wise motion picture director see her and we thus lose an able assistant. If you saw MacDonald just once you'd read that department six times in seven minutes. Verily I say unto you, Brother Travis, you should start at the front cover title and read straight through to "90 Gold street, New York City" on the back cover. It's all good, though this department is, naturally, a bit better than the rest. Har-r-r-rumph!

Papers Not to Be Published.

John C. Jacobson, Kansas City, Missouri, says:

"Am a regular reader of your department, although not just at present engaged in projection work. Expect to go back to it soon, however, and am keeping right up with progress, or trying to. Have been patiently waiting for some of the papers read before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at its last meeting. Seems to me it would be fine for us all if such papers as are pertinent were published in the department, commented on by you and discussed by your readers. How about it?"

Sure thing, Neighbor Jacobson, when the time comes. I asked permission to publish them at the time of the meeting, but the society decided that the papers must not appear in any publication before they were published in the proceedings of the society. We must, of course, respect the wish of the society, as the papers are their property. When the proceedings are issued we will, if we can find space, publish parts of certain papers, and invite discussion thereon by our readers. The papers are both interesting and instructive, and we hope the society will hurry up and release them for publication.

Projectionists Will Eat.

The American Projection Society, an organization of high-class projectionists, will give its second annual banquet at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City on the Twelfth of April. The last banquet is remembered as a distinctly classy affair. It did credit to Broadway, which is the home of the high-brow spread. The society is taking on new life and bids fair to become a real factor for advancement in the projection field.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by GEORGE W. BEYNON

Through Evolution in Picture Music the Scenic Comes Into Its Own

THE musical setting for the feature has received some consideration since the inception of photoplays. The Pictorial Review, the Comedy and the Scenic were not deemed of sufficient importance to warrant anything more distinctive than a march, a two-step and a waltz. The music for the Scenic was last in the list, as far as musical requirements were concerned, and it received only a mediocre setting.

But these ideas are long since defunct, and what was considered "good enough" even six months ago is decidedly passe in this age of wonderful achievements in picture playing.

Scenics are divided into classes and, if educational subjects be regarded in the same category, there is to be covered a wide field that calls for a diversity of adaptable music. The tendency has been to shirk the responsibility found in Scenic setting; in many cases turning it over to the harassed organist. No field of film endeavor covers the wide range to be found in educationals. There is the panorama of nature; zoological film; fishery scenes; industrial plants; foreign lands, their customs and points of interest; and many other varieties of educational subjects.

It has been the custom to portray all these by introducing a waltz as the accompaniment and regard the problem as well solved. Propositions so easy of solution are usually inaccurate and erroneous, as is the case in this instance.

A waltz as the accompaniment to the Scenic is just that—an accompaniment, and a poor one. It cannot knit the minds of the patrons to the panoramic beauties displayed, neither can it portray the atmosphere of the great outdoors. It usually speaks of love or sensuality, or has in it a touch of sadness. It may also depict joy, gladness or piquancy while many waltzes have been merely written to accompany the dance. Wherein do these emotions fit the grandeur of nature, the strength of towering mountains or the peaceful content of sylvan glades? Were these scenes found in a feature, the musical director would come in for grave censure should he attempt to play a waltz. Then, why expect the leopard to change his spots? If it cannot properly fit a nature scene in the feature, it surely cannot fit one thousand feet devoted entirely to nature.

By the same process of reasoning, the waltz cannot fit animal scenes, oriental cities, flower gardens, or any situation wherein no physical or mental emotion is called into play. Therefore, one is forced to admit that this form of music cannot with justification be further used as Scenic accompaniments.

What material is available? By a process of eliminating all the musical selections breathing emotion; all marches, one-steps and two-steps which in no way fit; and side-stepping waltzes of all kinds, there is but one class remaining. This class embodies all kinds of descriptive numbers but, unfortunately for picture players, it is somewhat limited in quantity. It owes its existence to those true musicians who, scorning the heart interest and disdaining the world's applause, have given to us gems of art, tone pictures. Just as Scenics are the reproductions of nature in animated form and closely allied to oil paintings, so descriptive pieces are musical landscape portraits.

For example, "Morning" by Grieg, is distinctively pastoral and paints the rising sun as clearly in tones of beauty as that seen from the artist's brush. It has the added advantage of length sufficient for a complete reel of nature in the early dawn. We have many pieces dealing with sheep and the shepherd watching them graze. Rushing streams and falling cascades are easily depicted while sluggish rivers and dark forests give little difficulty in setting.

Such selections as "A Shepherd's Tale" by Nevin, "Nymphs and Fauns" by Bemberg, "Birds and Bees" by Levy, and "Pastel Minuet" by Paradis, are musical gems that fit most perfectly the requirements of the Scenic. By going into Grand Opera fields, one finds such numbers as "Berceuse" from Jocelyn, "Siegfried's Idyll," "Tribut de Zamora" and others admirably suited to depict nature in its varied moods. For light breezy scenes, use "Murmuring Zephers" by Jensen, or "April Moods" by Eugene; while for big wind storms at the seashore, "Scotch Poem" by MacDowell is most appropriate. For bird life, why not play "The Magpie and the Parrot" by Bendix, "The Squirrel Parade" by Crosby, "Butterflies" by Steinke, "Dance of the Moths" by Weidt, "The Robin's Farewell" by Bendix? For distant lands, the selections should be chosen with a view to the characteristics of the countries shown. For India, oriental music; for Japan, Japanese music; or for Egypt, Egyptian music, would be the natural and should be the only selections chosen.

There is always some action even in Scenics, and this should be a guide for the tempo chosen. If the waves of the ocean quietly lave the feet of the crags and the Island of Malaita is shown in its noontide listlessness, it would spoil the picture to play a bright allegretto even though the music be most appropriate from the standpoint of atmosphere. The laziness and sense of ennui must be carried out musically to obtain the best results. On the other hand, when the business section, the wharfs and peopled streets of Tokio are shown, it would be a fallacy to attempt to fit the lively scene with an atmospheric andante. The activity of the Japanese calls for an equal degree of activity in the music.

The playing of the Scenic need not tax the mind of the musician to any appreciable extent. He has no cues to worry him, and his attention may be given over to the artistic rendition of his selection. This is one chance in the program given to the musician to show what he can do as a virtuoso. Many times has the writer heard the applause of the audience at the conclusion of a well played number during the Scenic.

As a rule, the Scenic runs for fifteen minutes. When the picture holds an idea in continuity, long numbers should be chosen so that "once through" will be enough. A selection that contains a motive suitable for the picture, reiterated and embellished by various instruments, is the kind to be sought.

Do not use two numbers when one will do, even if it be necessary to repeat it once. The association of ideas plays a large part in the fitting of scenes where no plot is given. Panoramas are very much alike on the screen and music alone can lend the required atmosphere as a distinguishing mark.

If the organist be required to play for this class of picture, he should follow the lines laid down for orchestra leaders. Too many organists merely strike chords containing little or no melody and the picture does not receive the stamp of individuality. There is always more lee-way given to the organ than to the orchestra for the former has a greater scope for changing its registrations and range.

Sometimes both organ and orchestra may be used to splendid advantage together and separately. In any case, the Scenic motive should be held and when the orchestra finishes and the organ picks up the accompaniment, the latter should continue playing that motive until the picture has been projected.

Cello, Violin and French Horn solos may be used most effectively in the playing of Scenics. Sometimes a solo instrument with a harp and organ accompaniment will bring results not to be obtained in any other way.

It is more vitally important to hold the atmosphere of the Scenic than to portray the action in the feature, for the latter speaks for itself while the former must be determined. The very fact that the program is selected to give variety for the patrons makes it imperative that the music should change with each picture and emphasize the ideas depicted in the various scenes.

CUE SHEETS for CURRENT FILMS

"Divorcee, The."

Released by Metro—Five Reels.

Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Silent Sorrows.....Andante .....Borch
1. AT SCREENING.....Waltz Divine ....Rosey
3 min. Waltz.
2. T. YES, MY DEAR, IT WAS NOT...THEME
2 min. 15 sec.
3. T. SO YOU'VE COME BACK HOME.Gondoliera .....Saar
3 min. 45 sec. Allegretto.
4. D. WHEN GUESTS LEAVE.....Dramatic Tension.....Levy
1 min. 30 sec.
5. T. ROBERT LAWTON.....Menuetto .....Grieg
2 min. 45 sec. Menuetto Piu Lento.
6. T. WE'RE GOING OVER TO TALK Dramatic Recitative.....Levy
3 min. 45 sec.
7. T. SO THE GENTLEMAN HAS NOT. Dramatic Tension No. 64.Borch
3 min.
8. T. BY GAD, I'M APT TO.....Tragic Theme.....Vely
3 min. 30 sec.
9. T. LADY FREDERICK HAS JUST..Dramatic Agitato.....Hough
1 min. 30 sec.
10. T. THREE YEARS LATER AT.....Valse-Idylle .....Razigade
4 min.
11. T. TO THINK MY SON SHOULD....THEME
3 min.
12. T. YOU'D BE IRRESISTIBLE.....Dramatic Andante.....Berge
2 min.
13. T. KEEP YOUR LECTURE TILL...Canzonetta .....Godard
2 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
14. T. I PROMISED MY SISTER.....THEME
2 min. 30 sec.
15. T. SHE GAVE ME THESE LETTERS.L'Ermite .....Gruenwald
3 min. 15 sec. Moderato.
16. T. YOU CAN'T OBJECT TO MY SON.Dramatic Andante No. 24.Borch
1 min. 45 sec.
17. T. PLEASE, BETSY, BE A GOOD....THEME
3 min. 15 sec.
18. D. WHEN LADY FREDERICK RETURNS .....Andante Dramatico No. 62,
2 min. 15 sec. Borch
19. T. IN THE MORNING AT TEN.....Flirting Butterflies.....Aletter
3 min. 15 sec.
20. T. IN THE LANGUAGE OF THE....
2 min.
21. T. YOU KNOW THAT YOU.....Kathleen .....Berg
4 min. 45 sec. Valse Lento.
22. T. I HAVE BROUGHT A LEASE OF. THEME
CHARACTER .....Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE .....Society.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS.....Door-bell.

"Dub, The."

Released by Paramount—Five Reels.

Prepared by Filmusic Studios.

THEME—Bowl of Pansies.....Moderato .....Reynard
1. AT SCREENING.....Furioso .....Shepherd
3 min. 45 sec.
2. T. WHILE MARKHAM.....Agitato .....Kiefert
3 min.
3. T. FOR TWO DAYS.....Dramatic Agitato.....Minot
1 min. 45 sec.
4. T. GOUT, NOTHING.....Hurry No. 26.....Lake
2 min. 15 sec.
5. T. LET US NOW DIGRESS.....Andante Appassionato..Castillo
3 min.
6. T. MY GOD, I FORGOT.....Low roll on bass drum or 30 sec. tympani.
7. T. I BEG YOUR PARDON.....Air de Ballet.....Borch
1 min.
8. T. THE OFF AGAIN.....Mysterioso No. 1.....Langey
2 min.
9. T. I'M OFF.....Agitato No. 4.....Minot
1 min.
10. T. BLEAKHURST, THE BLEAK....Dutch Windmill.....Zamecnik
3 min. 15 sec.
11. T. BACK ON THE JOB.....Dramatic Tension.....Andino
2 min. 45 sec.
12. T. NOW IT'S TRUE.....Gavotte Piquante.....Pierson
2 min. 15 sec.
13. T. AND NOW COMES.....Mysterioso No. 2.....Minot
4 min. 30 sec.
14. T. RUN, RUN, SOMEONE'S.....Play piu mosso.
45 sec.
15. T. THAT DEVIL MAY COME.....Mysterioso No. 3.....Andino
2 min. 30 sec.
16. D. GIRL TOUCHING REID ON.....THEME
2 min. 30 sec.
17. D. MARKHAM SURPRISES REID...Slimy Viper.....Borch
3 min.
18. D. SPOT LIGHT PLAYING.....Pizzicato Mysterioso.....Minot
3 min. 15 sec.
19. D. REID LIGHTS MATCH TO.....Mysterioso .....Andino
3 min. 30 sec.
20. T. SAY, WHO IN BLAZES.....Mysterioso No. 15.....Lake
3 min.
21. D. MARKHAM ARRIVES.....Agitato No. 3.....Langey
3 min. 30 sec.
22. T. WHILE THE WOLVES.....Serenade .....Saint-Saens
1 min. 15 sec.
23. D. THEY DISCOVER "HOG-TIED"..Agitato .....Smith
2 min.
24. T. PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED.....Dramatic Agitato No. 1.Hough
3 min. 30 sec.
25. T. MARKHAM HAD JUST ABOUT..Silent Sorrows.....Borch
2 min.
26. T. GET BUSY, GET BUSY.....THEME (last 22 bars)
30 sec.
CHARACTER .....Comedy Drama.
ATMOSPHERE .....Neutral.

"Gold Cure, The."

Released by Metro—Five Reels.

Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Birds and Butterflies.....Intermezzo .....Vely
1. AT SCREENING.....THEME
1 min. 15 sec.
2. D. AS SCENE FADES TO CHURCH.Organ only.
30 sec.
3. T. ANNICE, SOMETHING MUST....THEME
2 min.
4. T. THE BEGINNING OF A.....Hunkatin .....Levy
1 min. 45 sec. One-Step.
5. T. VANCE DUNCAN FROM NEW YORK .....Comedy Allegro.....Berg
1 min. 45 sec.
6. T. DR. PAISH, ANNIE'S FATHER..Indianola .....Onivas
3 min. Intermezzo.
7. T. BLONDE, YES, THE KIND YOU. Sachem .....Rosey
1 min. 45 sec. One-Step.
8. T. I'M SO SORRY.....THEME
1 min. 45 sec.
9. T. POP-EYED HAWKINS.....Eccentric Comedy Theme,
2 min. 45 sec. Roberts
10. T. WHY ARE YOU LINGERING....Babillage .....Castillo
1 min. 30 sec. Intermezzo.
11. T. A FEW DAYS LATER.....THEME
3 min.
12. T. THE END OF THE WEEK.....Capricious Annette.....Borch
3 min. Moderato Caprice.
13. T. HE'S TALL, DARK AND HANDSOME .....THEME
1 min.
14. T. YOUR UNCLE MIKE SEEMS TO BE .....Impish Elves.....Borch
2 min. Intermezzo.
15. T. HE DIDN'T HURT YOU.....THEME
1 min.
16. T. NOW FOR THE DIRTY WORK..Rondo .....Berge
3 min.
17. T. PUT ON THESE CLOTHES.....Hurry No. 33.....Minot
3 min. 15 sec.
18. T. LISTEN, WE ARE GOING TO....Savannah .....Rosey
2 min. 45 sec. One-Step.
19. T. MY FRIEND, I NOW PRONOUNCE .....Wild and Wooly.....Minot
4 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
20. T. HERE YOU HAVE ANOTHER...A La Mode.....Rosey
3 min. 30 sec. One-Step.
21. D. WHEN KEEPER ENTERS.....Galop No. 7.....Minot
3 min. 15 sec.
22. T. IT'S ALL RIGHT TO LAND.....THEME
1 min. 45 sec.
CHARACTER .....Comedy.
ATMOSPHERE .....Pastorale.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS.....Auto, telephone, door-bell.
SPECIAL EFFECTS.....Organ only for No. 2.
DIRECT CUES.....None.
REMARKS .....None.

"Life's a Funny Proposition."

Released by Exhibitors' Mutual—Five Reels.

Prepared by Joseph O'Sullivan.

THEME—Berceuse .....Lento .....Karganoff
1. AT SCREENING.....Passepied .....Delibes
1 min. 15 sec. Allegro.
2. T. JIMMIE HAS BEEN PLAYING...The Shepherd's Pipe....Gregh
4 min. Allegretto.
3. T. A MORNING AFTER A LARGE..Oh, How I Hate to Get Up.
2 min. 15 sec. Popular song.
4. D. JIMMIE LOOKING AT BILL.....Piccolo Pic.....Slater
3 min. 30 sec. Moderato.
5. T. JIMMIE'S UNCLE IN.....When You and I Were Young,
2 min. 45 sec. Maggie. Popular old song.
6. T. MARY'S MOTHER BELIEVING..Petite Serenade.....Horton
3 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
7. D. MARY AND MOTHER COMING..Fairy Phantoms.....Friedman
1 min. 15 sec. Allegretto.
8. T. WHOSE BABY ARE YOU.....THEME
3 min. 15 sec.
9. D. DOOR-BELL RINGING.....Humoreske .....Tschaikowsky
2 min. Allegretto.
10. T. A GUILTY CONSCIENCE NEEDS. An Afternoon Tea.....Keiser
2 min. Allegretto.

Violin Remains Unchanged During Three Centuries

THE violin has a long lineage. It is thought to have had its inception in ancient Indian, but we date the instrument as we know it from the thirteenth century. During the last three hundred years it has remained practically unchanged. But it has witnessed many radical alterations in the world of musical instruments. Lutes, spinets and harpsichords have been relegated to history. There have been very appreciable improvements in the harp, and the piano has been given birth. But the violin made by Stradavari was so graceful in form and so lovely in tone that it has defied all attempts to improve it. However, the violin existed for one hundred years before the clever workmen of Cremona added their charmed touch and perfected the work already begun.

The troubadours, who were poets as well as musicians, played on instruments known either as violes or guitar fiddles. The body was pear-shaped and over it were stretched five strings. Sometimes the instrument was played by the fingers, by a crude bow or by a wheel attachment, which was a clumsy invention. Gradually, the box-like instrument was made larger and the sides were cut out, forming a waist. This was the first step toward the present-day violin. In the fifteenth century blocks were added. These were glued to the back and front and served to strengthen the instrument, and added much to the resonance.

At the beginning of the sixteenth century the violin began to assume its present form, but even yet the two carved openings or sound holes on either side of the bridge were not in place. These "F holes" were subjected to a great deal of experiment. At the time of the troubadours they occupied practically the same place as today. But subsequent workmen, believing that they weakened the instrument, discarded them entirely.

The center of the violin-making industry from 1560 to 1760 was in three little shops on a street in the Italian town of Cremona. There all the great violins of the world were made by Amati, Stradivari or Guarneri. The two latter were at one time apprentices of the former, but eventually Stradivari became the most celebrated of all violin makers, and his instruments are now as valuable as crown jewels. Stradavari's most comprehensive improvement consisted of lowering the height of the arch and altering this flattened curve to a more uniform shape so as to afford greater resistance to the pressure of the strings. When Amati died, he bequeathed all his tools to Stradivari. The latter is supposed to have put out over two thousand violins, making every detail of his instruments, even the pegs.

Until the invention of the modern bow there was no brilliant violin playing as we understand it in our time. The earliest model of bow was shaped like that from which the arrow is drawn, and it was extremely unwieldly and unsatisfactory. The first improvement was made in the thirteenth century, when the one end was made blunt and a hair was substituted for the cord formerly used. Corelli, the Italian composer and violinist, later used a straight bow, which was not at all elastic although it was made of very thin wood. It had a screw by which the hair could be regulated. But at the end of the eighteenth century Francois Tourte introduced the modern bow. His invention completely revolutionized violin playing. So until his day there was no real art of violin bowing, although Tartini wrote a book on it. The world was very slow to adopt Tourte's bow, and it remained for Paginini, the Italian violin wizard, to cause a furore for the method. He utilized every imaginable movement of the bow and developed a remarkable dexterity and flexibility of the wrist.

The strings of the violin are four in number, the lower being wound in wire to increase its weight. The range is from G below the treble stave up to A in alt, and all soloists and virtuosos go to C in alt and even to D, and Eb above that in rare instances.

Beyond doubt the violin is the most important instrument in the orchestra. The first violinist, or concert master—as he is called—is considered second only to the conductor in rank and importance.

Arthur Kay Directs Grauman's Music.

We all know Arthur, perhaps not by the name of Kay, but at least we know him, for he proved himself to be a fine conductor and a thorough musician while directing at the Lyric, in New York.

This talented young man is the musical director at the Grauman's Theatre, in Los Angeles, and has under his baton a fine orchestra of forty men. He has a very extensive library from which to work and two librarians aid him in his selections for the picture.

When we received the program, our Eastern sophistication was given a jolt. Such a fine aggregation was not expected in a theatre where top prices are 35 cents in the evening and 25 cents at the matinee. It is wonderful how the large orchestras are springing up all over the country. The musical influence for good has far-reaching possibilities.

Our curiosity has been aroused by the name of the second organist. Jesse J. Crawford we know by reputation, but will some kindly disposed soul tell us who C. Sharp Minor is? Can it perchance be the "nom de organ" of some great organist who wishes to conceal his identity in key signatures? Could he be a young man whom the law regards as a sharp-seeing minor or is he related to the famous Bach fugue? Then again there might be a possibility that inasmuch as C sharp minor is enharmonically B minor, he did not want to be minor because of its stigmatic allusions. Whether he be minor or major the question is paramount in our mind. Who is he? With a name like that he must be a wonderful organist.

Joking aside, we are delighted with the musical program offered at Grauman's and take this belated opportunity of expressing our good wishes for its success.

Count Tolstoy to Be Heard in Recital.

A talk on "The Significance of Music in Russian Life" will be given by Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of the great Russian author, Count Leo Tolstoy, at Sacha Votichenko's Musical Concert at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, on February 23. Two of Votichenko's compositions, "March Slave" and the "Battle Hymn of Free Poland," dedicated to Madame Olga Petrova, the Polish star, will be heard on this occasion.

Yeggmen Visit the Rivoli Theatre.

The art of picture presentation having become a science has naturally developed a quota of rules and a few fundamental principles. These usually act as a guide to the blase critic, but the performance given at the Rivoli during the week of January 26 made criticism an exceedingly difficult task.

Opening with the Raymond Overture, superbly played under the direction of Erno Rapee, until the organ solo closed the bill with "Fanfare," things went so smoothly and so unobtrusively that we could find little fault—not that fault-finding is our particular vocation.

Bird Island, the scenic, was atmospherically held by the playing of some light fantastic selections suitable in every respect and in keeping with the flying fowl and salty sea. Here synchrony prevailed as usual, and the closing of the picture brought to an end the pretty music.

Mr. James Harrod, a tenor of somewhat remarkable ability, sang that old Scotch folk song, "Bonnie Sweet Bessie." His voice is pure in quality and particularly sweet. He has a fine mezzo voce, which he uses with telling effect in his top register. The song was well interpreted and merited a better accompaniment than was given by the orchestra. There is only one fault in his work and that is a closing of the eyes while singing upper tones—a mannerism much affected by church singers, but which detracts from concert work.

The usual excellent setting was given to the Pictorial Review, and especially noticeable and effective was the imitation of a "Merry-go-round," performed by the drummer with the aid of scaled whistles. Another innovation was the use of a piano string accompaniment only during a scene showing aeroplanes at bomb practice. Evidently the upper part of the grand piano had been thrown back and the fingers of the pianist kept up a continuous light scratching of the strings. Try this on your piano and you may readily imagine the flight of aeroplanes.

As a symbolic prelude for the feature with Clara Kimball Young in "Cheating Cheaters," there was staged the "Dance of the Yeggman," accompanied by the theme of the picture," My Name Is Jimmy Valentine." The house was darkened. Suddenly, a spotlight appeared and flitted about, flashing everywhere, symbolic of the flash light. The curtain was drawn and a darkened stage was shown with a safe at one side. Enter the yeggmen, with flash lights, masks, and all the paraphernalia of their trade. They gave the characteristic dance. The idea was beautifully worked out in detail and prepared the audience for what was to follow.

The feature was given the usual excellent setting, and the program closed with a comedy and the organ solo.

It was a pleasing show, well presented, and carried the dignity always to be found at the Rivoli performances.

Some Numbers Are Peculiarly Inspired.

The well known orchestral numbers, "Meditation," "Springtime" and "Reverie," all by George Drumm, were suggested and inspired by—cherchez la femme—no wonder they are popular numbers among the handsome musical directors.

WE WILL SEND FREE OF CHARGE

A Piano Part of One of Our Special Photoplay Numbers and Complete Descriptive Circular

If you mention this advertisement and date of issue

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, 178-9 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MASS.

11. D. WHEN JIMMIE RUNS OUT..... Overture—Suzanne's Secret, 2 min. 45 sec. Vivacissimo. Ferrari
12. T. UNCLE TOBIAS HAS AN..... By Heck.....Richardson 1 min. 45 sec. Fox-Trot.
13. D. CLOSE-UP JIMMIE SEES..... Sliding Jim. 4 min. 15 sec.
14. D. JIGGS DISCOVERS BABY..... Agitato No. 3.....Breil 1 min. Andante.
15. T. IF YOU DON'T PUT THE..... THEME 1 min. 30 sec.
16. T. BLITHELY STEPPING FORTH.. The Slimy Viper.....Borch 1 min. 15 sec. Allegro.
17. T. IN DESPERATION..... The Irish Washerwoman. 1 min. 45 sec. Old Irish comic.
18. T. THE 'ORSPITAL 'AS JUST..... Agitato (short). 30 sec.
19. T. AT THE END OF A WEEK..... Prelude .....Damrosch 4 min. 45 sec. Andante.
20. T. I DON'T KNOW..... Shepherd's Pipe.....Gregh 1 min. 15 sec. Allegretto.
21. T. REHEARSING FOR THE..... Scene de Ballet...Tscherepnine 1 min. 45 sec. Maestoso.
22. T. HERBERT AUSTIN HAS..... Agitato No. 1.....Langey 1 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
23. T. THE ONE WAY OUT..... Wedding March pp. 1 min.
24. T. THERE'S A LITTLE BIT OF..... Chasing the Chicken...Walker 1 min. Fox-Trot.
25. D. SCENE WITH BABY..... THEME 30 sec.
26. T. JUST BEFORE DINNER..... The Slimy Viper.....Borch 2 min. Allegro.
27. D. CLOSE-UP JIMMIE AND MARY. Shepherd's Pipe.....Gregh 1 min. 15 sec. Allegretto.
28. T. NO-O, I AM GOING TO MARRY.. Cavatina .....Bohm 3 min. 45 sec. Moderato.
29. D. WHEN JIMMIE RUNS OUT..... Dramatic Agitato No. 43. Borch 2 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
30. T. I'M A FOOLISH OLD MAN..... Atonement .....Zamecnik 1 min. 15 sec. Andante.
31. T. WHOSE BABY ARE YOU..... THEME 1 min.
32. D. WHEN HERBERT ENTERS..... Agitato No. 6.....Kiefert 1 min. 15 sec.
33. T. I SENT THE BABY HERE..... THEME 1 min.

CHARACTER ..... Comedy.
ATMOSPHERE ..... Neutral.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS..... Door-hell, baby crying.

"Love in a Hurry."

Released by World—Five Reels.

Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Sleeping Rose..... Valse Lento.....Broch
1. AT SCREENING..... Florindo .....Burgmein 3 min. Allegretto.
2. T. THE VIRGINIANS ALL..... Impish Elves.....Borch 3 min. 15 sec. Intermezzo.
3. T. DARTRIDGE CASTLE..... Selection of English Airs. 3 min. 15 sec.
4. T. CHARLES CONANT, BORN IN.. THEME 2 min. 45 sec.
5. T. GEORGE TEMPLAR..... Nymph and Satyr....Rollinson 3 min. 15 sec. Allegretto Moderato.
6. T. HOME, MY LADY..... Birds and Butterflies.....Vely 3 min. Intermezzo.
7. D. WHEN JOAN STOPS GEORGE... Bleeding Hearts.....Levy 3 min. 15 sec. Andantino.
8. T. JOHN MURR, FARMER..... Dramatic Tension.....Levy 3 min. 15 sec.
9. T. YOU KNOW I MUST REMAIN... Pierrot-Serenade ...Randegger 2 min. 45 sec. Allegretto Moderato.
10. D. WHEN JOAN SEES CHARLES... THEME 2 min. 15 sec.
11. T. AND PEREDUR, THE..... Poppyland .....Kiefert 1 min. Gavotte.
12. T. AND THEY HEARD A GREAT.. Furioso No. 11.....Kiefert 1 min. 30 sec.
13. D. AT END OF FIGHT SCENE..... Babillage .....Castillo 3 min. 15 sec. Intermezzo.
14. T. YOU HAVE STOOD TOO MUCH.. THEME 3 min. 45 sec.
15. D. WHEN CHARLES ENTERS..... May Dreams.....Borch 3 min. 15 sec. Moderato.
16. T. THE U-BOAT ISN'T DUE..... Dramatic Narrative...Perment 2 min. 30 sec.
17. T. WANTED FOR ESPIONAGE..... THEME 1 min. 45 sec.
18. D. WHEN JOAN RIDES AWAY..... Perpetual Motion.....Borch 2 min. 15 sec. Allegro Agitato.
19. T. BUT THE MORROW FINDS..... Tendre Aveu.....Schutt 4 min. 30 sec. Andantino.
20. T. YOU ARE CHARLES CONANT.. Among the Roses.....Lake 3 min. 15 sec. Andante.
21. T. HER YOUNG LADYSHIP..... THEME 2 min. 15 sec.
22. T. AND I ASK YOUR..... Caressing Butterfly. Barthelemy 4 min. 15 sec. Andantino.
23. T. AND IF YOU DON'T..... Love's Wilfulness..Barthelemy 4 min. Andante.
24. T. THE TITANIUM IS UNDER..... Dramatic Recitative.....Levy 3 min. 30 sec.
25. T. AND WHERE GOETH..... THEME

CHARACTER ..... Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE ..... English.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS..... Donkey braying, auto, shots.

"Spender, The."

Released by Metro—Five Reels.

Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—My Dreams..... Characteristic Moderato Caprice .....Borch
1. AT SCREENING..... Mon Plaisir.....Roberts 1 min. 30 sec. Allegretto Moderato.
2. T. THE NEPHEW, ONLY..... THEME 1 min. 45 sec.
3. T. W. BISBEE WITH THOSE..... Impish Elves.....Borch 3 min. 45 sec. Intermezzo.
4. T. THERE'S NO SENSE IN..... To a Star.....Leonard 3 min. 45 sec. Moderato.
5. D. WHEN DICK CALLS AT..... THEME 2 min. 15 sec.
6. T. THAT ROOM YOU SPOKE OF.... Basket of Roses.....Albers 2 min. 15 sec. Gavotte Moderato.
7. T. DICK DIDN'T LOSE HIS..... THEME 1 min. 45 sec.
8. T. I LOST MY MOTHER TOO..... Dramatic Narrative....Pement 3 min.
9. T. I'M ALL RIGHT, ROBBINS..... Dramatic Recitative.....Levy 2 min. 15 sec.
10. T. COME BACK TO ME, I WANT... THEME 2 min. 30 sec.
11. T. THE ROOM T. W. HAD FOR..... Birds and Butterflys.....Vely 3 min. 45 sec. Intermezzo.
12. T. WHEN THE TRUNK WAS..... Knick Knocks Ray...Schwartz 3 min. 15 sec.
13. T. DOLLING UP UNCLE..... Joy of Youth.....Raymond 2 min. 15 sec. Intermezzo.
14. T. THE REJUVENATION OF T. W.. Hunkatin .....Levy 2 min. 45 sec. One-Step.
15. T. I'M GOING TO LOOK THE OLD.. A La Mode.....Rosey 2 min. 15 sec. One-Step.
16. T. AND AFTER HIS NEPHEW..... Sleeping Rose.....Borch 2 min. 15 sec. Valse Lento.
17. T. I WISH I HAD A MILLION..... THEME 2 min.
18. T. WHILE T. W. WAS ON HIS..... Scherzetto .....Berge 1 min. 15 sec.
19. D. WHEN DICK SEES STETSON.... Dramatic Tension No. 36, 2 min. 30 sec. Andino
20. T. MIDNIGHT ..... Gruesome Misterioso No. 31, 3 min. 45 sec. Borch
21. D. WHEN DICK ANSWERS 'PHONE. Hurry No. 3.....Levy 3 min. Hurry.
22. T. STETSON'S BIRTHDAY..... Tendre Aveu.....Schutt 2 min. 15 sec.
23. T. I HAVE DONE WHAT YOU..... THEME 2 min.

CHARACTER ..... Comedy.
ATMOSPHERE ..... American.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS..... Steam, whistle, china crash, telephone, automobile horn.

"Under the Top."

Released by Paramount—Five Reels.

Prepared by Filmusic Studios.

LOVE THEME..... Serenade .....Widor
JIMMIE THEME..... Fads and Fancies...Gruenwald
1. AT SCREENING..... Kisses Waltz.....Zamecnik 1 min. 45 sec. Waltz.
2. D. BOY GRABS PHOTO FROM..... Allegro Agitato.....Klefert 30 sec. Allegro.
3. T. HE WONT BOTHER YOU..... LOVE THEME 1 min.
4. T. BURSTING FROM GREAT..... Capricious Annette.....Borch 1 min. 15 sec. Moderato.
5. D. BOY JUMPING ON TIGHT ROPE. Repeat Kisses Waltz. 45 sec.
6. D. BOY BEING HIT WITH CABBAGE ..... Silence. 15 sec.
7. T. TEN YEARS LATER..... JIMMIE THEME 3 min. 30 sec.
8. T. MEANWHILE JIMMIE'S..... Popular Jazz One-Step. 30 sec.
9. T. THE INCOMPARABLE KING.... Withered Flowers.....Kiefert 1 min. Andante.
10. T. THE REFINED GENTLEMANLY. Repeat Jazz One-Step. 1 min.
11. T. THE MASTER OF EQUESTRIANS. Silence. 15 sec.
12. D. ENTRANCE OF O'NEILL..... Kathleen Waltz.....Berg 45 sec. Waltz.
13. T. O'NEILL'S FALL OFF..... Andante Pathetic No. 10. Berge 1 min. 45 sec.

WE FURNISH

Musical Service

High-Grade Printing
Legible Copying
Fine Autographing

Musical Scores Printed

MUSICAL NUMBERS ARRANGED for Band or Orchestra

CALL, WRITE OR PHONE

CHARLES GREINERT

306 West 48th Street New York

MUSIC SERVICE EXCHANGE

PROVES A BIG SUCCESS

We knew that the idea was right, but frankly, we doubted its feasibility. All innovations are experimental and the principle of a central buying station had never before been applied to the musical industry. We tried it, and the hearty response from musicians everywhere has been both gratifying and convincing.

AT PUBLISHER'S PRICES

WE SUPPLY

Orchestral Numbers
Anthems Organ Solos
Operatic Arias Oratorios
Piano Pieces Songs

In fact, any music in print.

Piano and Orchestral arrangements made.
Programs selected for concerts and recitals.

Special Rates to Teachers.

MUSIC SERVICE EXCHANGE

505 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

EXHIBITORS

If you want a real picture organist or pianist, write us. Endorsed by biggest exhibitors East and West.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL of PICTURE PLAYING

Strand Theatre Los Angeles

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th Street New York City

GEORGE W. BEYNON

The name that stands for quality in

MUSICAL SCORES

SEND IN YOUR SUBSCRIPTION NOW

FOR

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

presenting

MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES

A Real Music Service to the Leader

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

516 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One year.....$3.00
Canada $3.50
Foreign $4.00

THE WORLD'S STANDARD THEATRE ORGANS

Unified Theatre Organs

SEEBURG

Automatic Pipe Organs

SIMPLICITY • RELIABILITY • ENDURANCE

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO - REPUBLIC BLDG. CHICAGO

The WORLD Points its "Policy" in the General Direction of HELPFULNESS to ALL

14. T. AND SO MARY.....JIMMIE THEME
1 min. Allegretto.
15. D. FADE IN CIRCUS.....Sinister Theme.....Vely
2 min. Moderato.
16. T. CIRCUS DAY AT.....JIMMIE THEME
1 min. 30 sec.
17. D. FADE IN OF LOTTA CRUST....Repeat Sinister Theme.
45 sec.
18. T. YOU WANT SOME NEW HIPS..Dramatic Recitative.....Levy
1 min. Andante.
19. D. FLASH TO MARY.....LOVE THEME
1 min. 30 sec.
20. D. JIMMIE STARTS TO CLIMB.....JIMMIE THEME
3 min. 30 sec.
21. T. AT THE HOME OF LOTTA.....Serenade .....Frommel
3 min. Allegretto.
22. T. AND SO POOR LITTLE.....Dance of Navarre...Zamecnik
1 min. 30 sec.
23. T. LOTTA CRUST'S OWN BOY.....The Vampire.....Levy
4 min. 15 sec. Andante.
24. T. DURING THE NEXT.....Repeat Dance of Navarre.
3 min. 30 sec.
25. T. AND SO JIMMIE.....Mysterioso No. 2.....Minot
1 min. 45 sec.
26. T. MARY'S GARDENS GOT.....Andante Appassionato..Castillo
3 min.
27. D. INSERT PICTURE OF STILL-MORE .....Allegro Agitato.....Andino
2 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
28. T. WHERE'S MARY.....Hurry .....Minot
1 min. 45 sec. Allegro.
29. T. MORNING TWENTY-FIVE MILES.Continue Hurry pp.
45 sec.
30. D. JIMMIE JUMPS ON HORSE.....Repeat Dramatic Recitative,
3 min. Levy
31. T. LOTTA STARTS TO.....Hurry .....Lake
2 min. Allegro.
32. T. WELL I'VE GOT THE.....Allegro No. 1.....Minot
7 min. 30 sec. Twice through, follow by Hurry by Simon and Hurry by Lake.
33. D. FLASH TO CLOCK IN TOWER..Silence until crowd exits—
1 min. then LOVE THEME.
CHARACTER .....Comedy.
ATMOSPHERE .....Circus Life.

"When a Girl Loves."

Released by Universal—Six Reels.

Prepared by James C. Bradford.

THEME—Love is Best of All.....Valse Lento..... ...Herbert
1. AT SCREENING.....Bal De Noces.....Burgmein
1 min. Allegro.
2. T. MINISTER'S DAUGHTER.....Le Tour.....Bizet
4 min. 15 sec. Allegro.
3. D. RYAN ENTERS HUT.....Valse Triste.....Sibelius
2 min. 15 sec. Valse Lento.
4. T. BEN GRANT.....Oh, My.....Wells
1 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
5. T. MORNING AT OASIS.....Sometime .....Friml
2 min. Tempo di Valse.
6. D. STATION AGENT RECEIVES....By Heck.....Henry
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato.
7. T. MAKING MINISTER'S FATIGUE.Little Serenade.....Grunfeld
3 min. 45 sec. Allegro.
8. D. RYAN LOCKS DOOR.....Serenade Badine.....Marie
1 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
9. D. MEN CHANGING CLOTHES.....I Love Sand.....Frey
1 min. 15 sec. Allegro.
10. T. THE NEXT DAY.....Intermezzo .....Onivas
2 min. Allegro.
11. D. RYAN MEETS STATION MASTER.Calico .....Frey
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato.
12. D. STATION MASTER LEAVES RYAN .....Pas de Feux.....Rubner
1 min. 45 sec. Allegretto.
13. D. MINISTER ILL.....The Tempest.....Lake
1 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
14. T. MORNING .....Habanera .....Herbert
1 min. 30 sec. Habanera.
15. D. STREET SCENE.....Huetama .....Ancliffe
2 min. Allegretto.
16. T. NOW YOU'RE PREACHING.....Beautiful Ohio.....Kaiser
1 min. 30 sec. Tempo di Valse.
17. T. THE PUBLIC LOVES.....America .....Zamesnik
1 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
18. D. MINISTER AND DAUGHTER....Un Peu D'Amour.....Silesu
1 min. 15 sec. Moderato.
19. D. WORKERS LEAVING SHAFT....Hurry No. 33.....Minot
1 min. 30 sec. Vivace.
20. D. BANDITS WAITING.....Habanera .....Herbert
2 min. 15 sec. Habanera.
21. T. EVENING AT OASIS.....Little Billiken.....Loter
2 min. 30 sec. Intermezzo.
22. D. RYAN AND GIRL ON DESERT..THEME
1 min. 45 sec.
23. T. ON SUNDAY.....Rhapsody .....Schytte
2 min. 14 sec. Allegro.
24. D. RYAN STARTS PREACHING....Intermezzo .....Grieg
2 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
25. T. HARKING BACK.....Pathetique .....Borch
4 min. Andante.
26. T. IF YOU WANT TO.....The Hobbledehoy.....Olson
1 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
27. T. AS THE MINISTER.....Springtime .....Drumm
2 min. 15 sec. Tempo di Valse.
28. D. RYAN AND GANG.....Havanola .....Frey
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato.
29. D. GIRL JOINS RYAN.....THEME
1 min. 30 sec.
30. D. BULLY AT WINDOW.....Hurry No. 1.....Langey
1 min. 30 sec. Allegro.
31. T. YOU DON'T REMEMBER ME....Romance .....Karganoff
2 min. 15 sec. Andante.
32. D. GIRL AT DOOR.....Adagietto .....Bizet
2 min. Adagietto.
33. T. I'M SOME REFORMER.....Mother's Garden.....Frey
1 min. Tempo di Valse.
34. T. AT LAST.....Prelude .....Jarnfelt
3 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
35. D. GIRL JUMPS ON HORSE.....Hurry No. 33.....Minot
2 min. 30 sec. Vivace.
36. T. I AM THE LEADER.....THEME
1 min. 30 sec.
37. D. BANDITS ENTER.....Dramatic Tension No. 36,
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato. Andino
38. T. ITS DANGER SIGNAL.....Hurry No. 26.....Minot
1 min. 15 sec. Vivace.
39. T. SOME TIME LATER.....THEME
2 min. 15 sec.
40. T. I AM A THIEF.....Romance .....Tschaikowsky
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato.
41. T. YOU GOT ME.....The End of a Perfect Day..Bond
1 min. 30 sec. Moderato (or Theme).

"Zero Hour, The."

Released by World—Five Reels.

Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME A—Love Theme.....Andante Moderato.....Lee
THEME B—The Crafty Spy.....Mysterioso .....Borch
1. AT SCREENING.....THEME A.
2 min. 45 sec.
2. IN THE CITY MICAH.....Birds and Butterflies.....Vely
3 min. 15 sec.
3. T. YOU KNOW YOU.....The Golden Youth.....Rosey
3 min. 30 sec. Valse Lento.
4. T. BRAND'S DEN OF.....THEME B.
3 min.
5. T. THIS FIFTY DOLLARS.....Forest Whispers.....Losey
2 min. 30 sec.
6. T. I KNOW A WONDERFUL.....A Summer Dream.....Flath
3 min. 15 sec.
7. T. MY DEAR LADY.....In Cupid's Net.....Armand
3 min. Andantino Amoroso.
8. T. YOU ARE ALWAYS.....Kathleen .....Berg
3 min. 45 sec. Valse Lento.
9. D. WHEN BRUCE SEES.....THEME B.
2 min.
10. D. WHEN POLICE ENTER.....Agitato No. 49.....Shepherd
2 min.
11. D. WHEN GIRLS RETURN.....Spring Flowers.....Wood
2 min. 30 sec. Allegretto.
12. T. SEVERAL DAYS LATER.....Bowl of Pansies.....Reynard
4 min. Allegretto.
13. T. YOU ARE A WONDERFUL.....Divine Waltz.....Rosey
2 min. 30 sec. Valse Moderato.
14. T. ON THE FOLLOWING.....THEME A.
2 min. 15 sec.
15. D. AS SCENE FADES.....Chanson sans Paroles, Tschaikowsky
3 min. Allegretto Grazioso.
16. T. I FELL FOR YOU.....Sleeping Rose.....Borch
4 min. 30 sec. Valse Lento.
17. T. INSIDE INFORMATION.....Perpetual Motion.....Borch
1 min. Allegro Agitato.
18. T. IT'S ALL RIGHT.....THEME A.
2 min. 30 sec.
19. T. HAVING DISCOVERED.....Bleeding Hearts.....Levy
3 min. Andante Sentimento.
20. T. ON THE WAY TO CHURCH.....Hurry No. 33.....Minot
30 sec.
21. T. WITH THE PASSING DAYS.....Scherzetto .....Berge
2 min. 30 sec.
22. T. IT'S JAIL FOR YOUR.....Dramatic Tension No. 9..Andino
2 min. 45 sec.
23. D. WHEN EVELYN APPEARS.....THEME B.
4 min.
24. T. DARLING, I LOVE YOU.....Agitato No. 69.....Minot
1 min. 15 sec. Allegro Agitato.
25. D. WHEN BRAND AND.....THEME A.
45 sec.
CHARACTER .....Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE .....Neutral.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS.....Phone bell, automobile.
SPECIAL EFFECTS.....None.
DIRECT CUES.....None.
REMARKS .....None.

Tips for the House Manager

Conducted by E. T. KEYSER

HOW TO LIGHT THE PICTURE THEATRE

Progressive Managers Realize the Importance of the Proper Illumination of Their Houses

TO THE picture theatre proprietor contemplating the renovation of his house and also the prospective theatre owner planning the equipment of a new building the following extract from the bulletin 43409 of the Edison Lamp Works of General Electric Company will prove of interest and value:

Aside from the fact that in many localities adequate lighting is required by law, it has the advantages of making the theatre more attractive, reduces the liability of panic in the case of fire, eliminates the gloom which is attendant with a darkened room, and, lastly, these qualities will be features that increase the attendance, which, of course, is the end to which the management strives.

It is not the peculiar construction of these buildings that makes the problem of illumination somewhat difficult, but rather the exacting conditions and requirements. While the pictures are being shown on the screen the illumination must be such as not to interfere with the vision of the spectator, neither should it destroy the contrast brightness of the screen itself. It is a foregone conclusion that there should be some illumination in the theatre while the pictures are being shown so as to facilitate the continuous entrance and exit of patrons. Then, too, there is the psychological effect on the patrons to be considered. Rarely, if ever, would persons prefer to view an entertainment in total darkness, and the public would much rather attend a theatre which presents a bright, cheerful appearance than to spend several hours in a room which is dark and gloomy. Therefore, the ultimate outcome from a well illuminated theatre, other things being equal, would mean increased patronage with a corresponding increase in revenue.

Another very important argument in favor of provision being made for good lighting is its necessity in times of panic, which are apt to occur at the least expected moment.

Fires, smoke, explosions, etc., are factors that may cause an audience to become panic stricken and unmanageable. At such times, if the auditorium can be flooded with light, an audience can see for themselves their proximity to danger, which usually means that calmness is immediately restored, thereby eliminating the liability of accidents.

Type of Unit.

The two types of fixtures which are most satisfactory for moving picture theatre lighting are the totally indirect and the semi-indirect, as with these systems the light is soft and well diffused. Any degree of even illumination can be obtained, there are no glaring light sources visible to the spectators, and by illuminating the ceiling and side walls the decorative features of the room are well shown.

Both the totally indirect and semi-indirect fixtures are made to accommodate one or more lamps, so that with proper sizes of lamps and wiring the desirable intensities of illumination may be obtained.

If side wall brackets are used the reflectors should be of opalescent diffusing glass, either white or tinted, of sufficient density to render the light source unobjectionable.

Wiring.

It is quite desirable that provision be made so that, at least, two different intensities of illumination may be obtained; a low intensity for the period during which the pictures are being shown and a higher intensity for use during interims and in case of emergency. One quite common method is to install two or more lamps in each fixture wired on two separate circuits. In this way one circuit only need be used when a low intensity of illumination is desired, and when more light is necessary the second circuit may be turned on. The intensity for either period may easily be governed by installing the proper size of lamp on each circuit.

For the low intensity lamps should be chosen of such a size that 0.1 to 0.2 watts per square foot of floor space are provided; for the high intensity about 0.5 watt per sq. ft. will be satisfactory.

Another method in common use is the employment of dimmers. This consists of resistance connected in the circuit by which the voltage on the lamps may be reduced, which in turn will lower the intensity of illumination. Any degree of illumination from darkness to the maximum may be obtained by such an arrangement.

The front portion of the house will usually receive sufficient reflected light from the screen, consequently lighting fixtures near the screen need not be wired for dim lighting, as they will be lighted only when bright illumination is desired.

With the narrow theatre where the ceiling is low, it is often desirable to locate the lighting units in two rows, rather than in one row down the center, or use bracket fixtures of the indirect type, in order to keep all lighting units out of the angle of projection of the picture.

Special Features.

Colored or tinted lamps are used to considerable extent in motion picture lighting. These have a number of distinct advantages, among them their novelty and decorativeness. Large totally indirect bowls with several mirror reflectors can be installed with different colored lamps on different circuits. The lighting can be switched from one circuit to another as deemed advisable. Some theatres have found that green lamps furnish suitable low general illumination, which does not interfere with the projection of the picture.

A Simple Type of Entrance Lighting.

Plain Exit Light and Illuminated Door Sill.

Effect Produced by 1200 Ten-Watt Mazdas.

SHOWING GOLDWYN'S "SIS HOPKINS"

Advertising and Publicity Helps to Aid Exhibitors in Getting the Most Money Into the Box Office on Clever Mabel Normand's Latest Starring Vehicle

By Epes W. Sargent and Walter K. Hill

GOLDWYN has made an American picture of a typical American character from one of the most successful American stage comedies ever produced. The state of Indiana has turned out no end of national types in literature; its Riley, famous poet; Booth Tarkington and George Ade, famous writers of purely American literature, and other Hoosiers have made their place secure in popular favor. Rose Melville, in her stage-day, created a character that had only been exaggerated sufficiently to "get across" as a stage creation.

"Sis Hopkins" is as true to Indiana types of rural character as was Joseph Arthur's "Blue Jeans." It is as faithful to its kind as "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was to its reflections of slavery days. In the years that Rose Melville played, first her vaudeville sketch to be later developed into the play Goldwyn has screened with Mabel Normand, "Sis Hopkins" became known to thousands. This screen version will revive pleasant recollections of the past decade and will bring delight to the newer generation of followers of the silver screen.

The editor of every newspaper where "Sis Hopkins" may be shown will be willing to co-operate in spreading the news of Mabel Normand's coming in a play without a villain; a play that reflects real American characters and will provide wholesome and satisfying entertainment without any "problem" or special "lesson" camouflaged in its unfolding. For the newspaper man will know that he is promoting a picture that will make life just a little brighter for those who see it and will bring hearty laughs to mingle with the smiles and "chuckles" of satisfied audiences.

Ready-to-Use Press Notices.

There will be a grin, a chuckle and a laugh for everybody who sees Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins" at the (insert theatre and date). For here is an American comedy, full of life and snap, quaintness and wholesomely engaging without a villian and without a hint at crime committed. The "punch" that most pictures depend upon to stir the imagination of theatregoers is supplied in the broadly human, thoroughly natural encounters of an ignorant and honest Hoosier girl with forces that would trick her father into an unsatisfactory business deal. The scheming of a grasping, money-mad skinflint who is beaten at his own game supplies the intrigue; then there is the courtship of a clerk in a country store who loves in his gawkish way the ungainly girl who shambles through her circumscribed limits with a smile on her face and gladness in her heart.

When a gallon can filled with coal-oil rolled down hill and splashed into the pool that marked a bubbling spring, life took a new twist on the run-down Indiana farm that had been the Hopkins homestead for generations. The money-grasping skinflint (who lives in every rural community) drank from the spring, tasted the oil, and connived to beat the Hopkins family out of what he thought was a good thing. How "Sis Hopkins" saved the day and turned the tables will be demonstrated by Mabel Normand when that famous play is presented at the (insert theatre and date).

The screen will reflect a liberal slice of rural Indiana at the (insert theatre and date) when Mabel Normand comes to impersonate "Sis Hopkins" in the film-version of the play that brought Rose Melville into fame and has made millions laugh. There has been no town of 5,000 with a stage to show it on where "Sis Hopkins" has not been played in the past few years. Now the screen will take the wholesome story into every community to make life happier, to shed a glint of sunshine and to make screen fans rejoice in the happiness and triumph of the gawkish country girl.

Advertising Information to Aid Picture Showmen

"SIS HOPKINS" is one of the best advertised titles in the play catalogue. For several years the comedy-drama of that name toured the country, and in some sections is almost as well known as "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The vaudeville sketch has been played from coast to coast several times, and for a considerable period Judge, the comic periodical, issued a Sis Hopkins Quarterly, which took the name into the towns the show did not reach.

Everyone knows
Sis Hopkins
Everyone loves
Sis Hopkins

the gawky little girl Rose Melville made famous the country over, and

Everyone will want to see

MABEL NORMAND

as

Sis Hopkins

in the new Goldwyn production of the comedy classic, in which you see the many clever happenings the stage version could only hint at. It's a solid laugh even in its most exciting parts.

It's a real Comedy.
Don't miss it.
(Name of House and Date)

Practically every one knows of Sis Hopkins. To sell the film it is only necessary to establish that this is the same Sis Hopkins and that it is as well played. But it will also be advisable to play up the fact that the production does not draw its whole appeal from the past reputation.

Make it known that this is a really good production employing one of the best-liked comedy stars. You are safe in playing up this feature, for the production is good. It would be a good play without the past reputation to help it. There are plenty of clever twists to the story and a number of clever spoken titles of the sort that originally made Sis famous, including the "There ain't no use doin' nothin' for nobody that won't do nothin' for you." This is the Sis Hopkins trade mark. If it does not appear in the company advertising, play it up yourself.

Making a Good Start.

Use this to start your campaign. Before you make other announcements run the line as teasers in the newspapers, as snipes, as throwaways, on cards and in the lobby. Use one or more forms, but the more widely you spread it the better it will work. Then go on to add, "The Blank Theatre says: There ain't, etc. And we'll prove it to you, date." Don't mention Sis Hopkins yet.

If you can lead people to think that you are stealing Sis' comment, so much the better. If they come and tell you that line belongs to Sis, tell them you thought Lincoln wrote it, along with the "can't fool" epigram. Let this run for three or four days, and then flash the title.

And when you flash the title do it right. Get your newspaper advertising, your billboard and lobby display, your program announcement and window work all at the same time. Start with the morning papers, post your lithographs late the night before, work your lobby display to be ready at the same time, and do the same with your window showings.

Keep most of the paper away from the house. Get it into windows and on boards where every one will see it, and keep it there. Keep a few sheets in reserve to guard against a wash-down. Get every man, woman and child in your territory in touch with the fact that Sis is coming.

Get the Girls Interested.

The Sis Hopkins costume "stunt" as outlined in the plan book is a good idea, but work it before the showing, preferably the Saturday before. Don't run it during the showing, for that will be too late. Even before you flash your title announcement for the first time begin to talk about competition, and warn the girls to get ready for it. Tell them the boys have had their chances with Chaplin in the past, and that they are going to be given an opportunity. Then the day you spring the title spring the "stunt" announcement.

Announce that the details of the costuming can be gained from the stills. This will help you to get your extra stills and a lithograph in store windows. Get out special cards for the windows, and in your newspaper advertisements or throwaways announce that the photographs giving details can be seen in the windows of Jones' grocery, Smith's drug store, Green's bakery and wherever else you put them.

In arranging for the window displays tell the tradesmen that this will be done. It will help you to plant. Have cheap cards printed up with a two-column picture of Sis, and announce that these can be had from the stores. Do not spoil this by giving them out at the house. Make them go to the stores. In making the awards, do not use your house unless admission is free to all. It would be better to work in the public square or in front of the house.

Making the Trees Help.

One prominent and effective scene is worked before a tree upon which Sis' sweetheart has carved her name within a heart. If there is a public park or some fine shade trees in your vicinity, work this idea in putty, making a heart and the letters "S i s" in the centre. These can be prepared in the theatre in the afternoon and affixed at night, permitting quick work in the open. The putty will not injure the trees, and the effect upon the public will be marked. Place the putty well above the reach of the smaller children. Work your newspapers for an account of the stunt. Arrange with the proper authorities in advance, and send a man out to take down what putty the children leave.

The barnyard scheme for the lobby as suggested in the press book is good if you work it on a small scale. Too many animals will probably become too odorous, but a few live animals in the lobby will help. Do not give too much prominence to the animals, though, or the public will be led to expect something along the trained animal line as shown in Sennett and other comedies.

What a Dog Can Do.

You can play up the dog, however. Tie a string to the collar of a small dog and run it down his back, fastening to the tail. Then affix a battered kerosene can to the cord, and lead the dog about the streets, with a sign explaining that the dog and the can are the real plot of "Sis Hopkins." If you want, send out a follower, with a banner reading, "Sis Hopkins fed this dog ham at 60 cents a pound. Sure she's crazy. She'll prove it to you at (house and date)." If you are afraid that people will kick about your "cruelty," have the street man lead the dog in one hand and drag the can with the other. Put some pebbles in the can to help the noise.

Hook up with drug stores and groceries selling spring water with displays announcing that "Our Bubbling Spring is not on the Hopkins' estate. You never taste kerosene or anything else but water in our product. See what happened to 'the best spring in the state' when old man Hopkins gave Vibert a drink. It cost Vibert $16,000. We sell our (prices here)." You can get several entire windows at the cost of a sign and a set of stills for each.

Stunts on a Bicycle.

If you can get a couple of clever boys, dress one as "Sis" and the other as Ridy, and let them ride the streets with "Sis" on the handle bars of the bicycle, carrying a banner, "See how we fooled Vibert and made him pay big money for worthless land. House and date." Don't use a girl for street work. It will arouse adverse comment in certain directions, and you don't want that.

Hook up with stores selling school supplies, using plenty of slates on which are crudely yet plainly written the sayings of Sis Hopkins. Work these with stills and a big sign, and offer post cards of Miss Normand as souvenirs to all children making purchases. The cards are inexpensive, and will be advertisements. It is a cheap and good hook-up.

If you can get some old circus posters with women gymnasts, show these with a sign telling that this is what Sis wanted to be, adding "See her at (house and date) and see if you think she would make a queen of the air." If you cannot get circus posters, you may be able to get some old film stuff that will work, such as a cut-out from "Polly of the Circus."

But don't let stunts and window shows obscure the fact that newspaper work is the real selling medium. Take good space, and talk with enthusiasm. You do not have to be afraid of a come back on this story, for it is certain to please from all angles. Don't overboom it and lead them to expect a super-production, but you can tell them it is a better than average production with a favorite star in one of the most amusing comedy characters of the speaking stage.

If the show has played your town, tell them that the film shows what they could only talk about in the play. If it has never been seen in your territory, tell them they will see the play plus. Take the angle that this is a comedy classic which should be seen by every one, just as every one should read standard literature. Hammer hard on this fact. Tell them that Sis is as much a classic of the stage as "Hamlet" or "The Lady of Lyons."

Mable Normand Back to Comedy.

And don't forget Miss Normand. Play to her extensive following. Tell them that it is one of the best low comedy roles she has played. If you had "Peck's Bad Girl," tell them that here is something better. Get her admirers interested in contrasting her work with that of Rose Melville, the creator of the part. Make them want to see her in this if they never see her again. Try and get some extra cuts into the papers, and remember that the picture of Sis is a trade mark of real value.

Use it freely to sell it to the best advantage. It will appeal to all who know the play through past association and to those who do not, the oddity of the figure will excite curiosity that will mean cash in the box office. Use a cut in every advertisement, unless the cost of space is absolutely prohibitive. If it is, resort to throwaways and posted paper to remedy this, but make it impossible for people to avoid seeing Sis as many times through the day as you can arrange. The figure will sell better than text, so sacrifice text if necessary.

But above all remember that lithographs count in this. If you have a limited appropriation, cut out expensive stunts and put the money into paper, using the larger sizes for preference—three sheets rather than ones, and sixes where you can. Better post one large stand where it can be seen by every one than three smaller displays where comparatively few will notice them. If the local posting company has all of the good boards, buy in some of these stands.

Tell Them What You Have.

You do not sell so much on argument as on past performance plus persistence. You do not have to conduct an educational campaign. Everyone knows of Sis. All you have to do is to tell that you have it, but tell that fact in as many and as varied ways as possible to the end that all may know. Hammer away until even the people in the hospital know you have Sis. Don't stop short of that. Be willing to spend extra money to make more extra money.

For the day before and showing days use a street wagon with some sort of noise producer, and cover your entire territory. A small boy with a hammer and a crowbar hung by a cord will do just as much work as a brass band, but get a strong boy who delights in noise. If you can get two boys, give one a lion roar to supplement the crowbar. And keep on plugging until the last show of the last night. Don't let down after the opening and convey the suggestion that you are disappointed in the film. Just keep plugging.

Gasoline costs
{ Fill in local price } cents
But what would you pay for a Gallon of Kerosene?
Would you pay
$13,000 a Gallon?
That's what Vibert paid Sis Hopkins' Paw in the famous story, for that was the difference between the $3,000 he was willing to pay and the $16,000 she made him pay.
But she threw in the can.

Suggestion for Top of Advertisement.

Program Synopsis.

LOVE is love and business is business with Sis Hopkins, and when her dog upsets the market basket and a can of kerosene rolls into the spring while Sis is letting Ridy Scarboro, the grocer's boy, make love to her she blames him for the oil shortage, never realizing that the missing can is to become a short road to comparative fortune. Vibert, the town financier, tastes oil in the spring when he asks for a drink, and supposes that an oil stratum which has been making a fortune for some of the nearby farmers has cropped up here. He plans to marry the gawky Sis if no other plan will work, but he manages to persuade her father to sell the farm, though Sis arrives just in time to give the price a substantial boost, and Vibert buys one can of oil at a price that would gladden even the heart of a food profiteer, while Sis marries Ridy with the proceeds.

Catchlines for Advertising.

The Old Skinflint Set Fire to the Earth and Burned Up His Own Money.

Sis Wanted to Be a Circus Performer and Turned out to Be Just a Wife.

Sis Rode the Handlebars to Happiness on Her Beau's Bicycle.

Oil in the Can; Oil in the Spring, and Sis Hopkins Struck Oil.

Sis Fed Her Dog on Ham at 60 Cents the Pound While Hoover Raged.

Sis Hopkins Had a Big Heart—It Was Carved on the Bark of a Tree.

How the Old Cellar Door Led to Happiness and Wealth for Sis Hopkins.

Sis Hopkins, with Sharp Ears, Heard the Plot That Cost the Skinflint Much Money.

When Accident "Salted" a Spring Sis Hopkins Hit a Greenback "Gusher."

Mabel Normand as Sis Hopkins Has an Ideal Comedy Role.

Mabel Normand, the Peck's Bad Girl of the Screen, Plays Sis Hopkins.

Fortune Came When a Bubbling Spring Turned Into a Gallon Oil "Gusher."

"There Ain't No Use doin' nothin' for nobody That Won't Do Nothin' for You."

COMEDIES AND WESTERNS REISSUED

W. H. Productions Has Revised and Retitled Former Kay Bees, Dominoes and Keystones With Good Result —Honestly Advertised, They Promise Satisfaction

By Epes W. Sargent and Walter K. Hill

NOTHING has aroused more contention in the trade press than the matter of reissues, and the controversy has run all the way from mild protests to threats of libel and damage suits. It has been contended that the reissue is barely this side of grand larceny, and it has been argued that the reissue is to be the salvation of the small exhibitor. Both statements are moderately true.

To give an old picture a new title and then to advertise it directly or through inference as a new feature is misleading, to say the least. If the patron is attracted to a title and finds that the title is the only new thing about the story, then he has been swindled and has the right to complain. If a story is offered under the old title, as a reissue, then there is no false pretense.

But there is a third course, which the release of the reissued Kay-Bee and Keystone stories by the W. H. Corporation raises. Here the stories are generally given new titles, but are offered as "formerly ——— ——— ——," the old and new titles appearing on the advertising, but with the new title considerably larger than the old. Here a new factor enters into the calculations.

Honesty Best Policy.

Here there is no intent to defraud, and often the new titles are merely given that they may match the new story, for often the story is so materially changed that the old title is no longer applicable. At first reading, perhaps, this statement may appear to be untrue, but it must be remembered that the motion picture, unlike the stage play, is no exact form and combination of words. It is action, more or less self-explanatory, but dependent upon the text of the titles to give exact and definite meaning to that action.

Subtitles Make Many Films.

To take a crude example. We see a man and woman in bed together. If they are known to be married, the good taste of the situation may be questioned, but the morals of the scene are impeccable. If, on the other hand, the scene is prefaced by a leader to the effect that they are not married, then the pictured action is highly objectionable, though it has not been changed in the slightest.

It is well known that on one occasion a studio presided over by one of the leaders of production produced a two-reel picture entirely made up of cuttings and discards from two other pictures in which the same players were employed. The story was written to fit the material at hand and not an inch of new film was made.

In the same way these old stories can be changed to give new or partly new plots, and to offer them as the old title will be almost as misleading as to offer an old play with a new title. In such a case, to offer a new title and to say that the play is based upon a former success is not to practice an imposition.

The Standards of Production.

The only remaining objection, then, would seem to be that the product of four and five years ago is not up to the standard of the production methods of today. Against this it may be said that some of the old one and two reel stories of five years ago contain all of the meat and none of the padding of the present average five-reel feature. Moreover, some stories lend themselves to stupendous productions and some do not. The latter class may be no better made today than they were five years ago.

The other night this writer sat before a Keystone reissue in which Mabel Normand and Roscoe Arbuckle were joint stars. The photography was as perfect as the best of the camera work today. The acting average was as good, and there were no interiors to invite contrasts. It would be absurd to contend that this story was poor merely because it had been photographed before the leads had attained stardom.

It would seem that the question of the reissue is dependent largely upon the reissue itself, upon the manner in which it is exploited and on the choice of the subject.

Work of Famed Directors.

There is this difference between the stage play and the reissued film. If a modern play of the stage is revived, it is dressed in the fashion of the day. If a motion picture is reissued, the costuming may be out of date. More than one otherwise good play has been spoiled because the women were more interested in the costuming than in the story and declared the play old-fashioned. This argument does not hold in the case of comedy, nor with the old Kay-Bee and Domino subjects, most of which offer Western settings and Western costumes.

Many if not most of these stories were actually directed by Thomas H. Ince, and not merely under his supervision, while the Keystones were made by Mack Sennett, who stood over the scenes. It is the work they did then which gained them their present positions as leaders, and it would be absurd to say that it is not good.

The reissue question is simply a matter of material and handling. If offered as a reissue, and carefully chosen, it will hold its own, and it will provide excellent one and two reel material for program building. It is only the reissued drama which may be had in shorter length than five reels, and some of these short lengths are more gripping than the present-day five-reel pictures.

Advertising Reissues to the Best Advantages

THERE is just one rule in handling reissues which does not admit of qualification. Do not apologize. Explain, if necessary, and probably it will be necessary, but do not apologize. If you have to apologize it would be better not to run the material.

On the other hand, it is better to make a glorification of the reissue than to make excuses. Do a little educational work at the start and in no time at all you will have your patrons ready for the reissues. Do not make the error of trying to run wholly on reissues. This is not possible at the moment and never will be practicable, but the public demands a certain amount of new material, and must have it. On the other hand no part of the public has ever seen all of the stories of three to five years ago, and many of these are as well worth looking at today as they were then. Tell them so.

Make capital of that fact. Announce that you have booked a series of reissues and that these are presented as special features. Don't try to sneak them on to your program. Lead them into your house with a brass band. If they have no merit, you do not want them. If they possess features of value, make the most of those values.

Play Fair and You Will Profit.

If you book the Keystone series, offer them as the stories that made Mack Sennett famous. Point to the galaxy of stars you will offer. Tell them they can get Mabel Normand and Fatty Arbuckle, Conklin, Mack Swain, and other favorites, not as stars, but as hard-working members of a stock company which did much to raise the standard of comedy production. Tell them they can see Mabel Normand and Ford Sterling, Miss Normand and Fatty Arbuckle, Swain and Murray, with others, all in smart one-reels which are cut down from the old two-reel productions, giving the meat of the entire story.

Hundreds of his admirers do not realize that Sessue Hayakawa played in the old Kay-Bee Westerns. They do not know that he has played a wide range of parts, including Indians and Mexicans, before his skill gained him the right to select his own roles. Many do not realize that Charles Ray was a utility actor long before he attained stardom.

Make appeal to their curiosity by announcing these facts. Tell your patrons that they will see stars in the making. You might add that some worked far harder to gain fame than they are now working to keep it, and that they were better in the two-reelers than they are in the longer features.

Explain, But Don't Apologize.

Work an educational campaign both in your advertising and in the press stories. Then, when you have a reissue, make it a feature. Put it on for a dull night and boom it over the top. But boom it right. Work it as a reissue and not as a new feature. Make them want to see it because it is such. Make them curious to compare the work of the stars in their formative stages with their present-day appearances. Curiosity is the basis of all amusement selling. Work to curiosity.

But don't make the mistake of offering these as antiquities. Do nothing to create the suggestion of age. Do not refer to the "good old days" and suggest that these are relics of the past. Tell that these pictures show the stars when they were working for the success they have now gained, when their talents were new and strong; but do not seek to create the impression that you have dug into the remote past.

Make use of the press opportunities in these reissues. Run reading paragraphs telling about the players who will be seen. Tell how Arbuckle used to get $75 for working harder than he does now. Point out how the Keystone was the cradle of comedy and tell of stars who have gone to other studios from that organization. Your exchange can name the players in each release. Get these lists and make the most of them.

Hammer on the fact that these are new prints from the original negative. Tell that they are newly titled by experts to give new strength to the old stories and that some of the comedies are even funnier now than when they were made because the art of titling has progressed so rapidly. Make them realize that these are not worn commercial prints, but new copies.

Ask your readers how many times they have seen "Uncle Tom's Cabin" or "East Lynne" or "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." Ask them if the plays were not as good the second or third time. Point out that very probably they did not see these stories the first time, in which case they are as new now as they ever were. Use the slogan, "The Story You've Never Seen Is Still New."

Films New to Latter-Day "Fans."

You can double up and use a new release and a reissue of the same star and invite contrast. The contrast generally will not be detrimental to the reissue, and you can drive home the fact that the reissue is still good.

You can even go to the extent of offering season tickets for the series of reissues. Probably nothing will more strongly emphasize the fact that they are worth talking about. The cards are not costly and the advertising will be strong. If you have both the dramas and the comedies, and use these on separate nights, then have two tickets printed, but it would be a better plan to book both the dramas and comedies for the same night, preferably a weak one, and then feature "reissue night," adding to this series some of the other reissues made by different companies, though most of the other reissues date back only a year or so. It would be better to offer a new feature and these old N. Y. M. P. hits, making the latter the feature.

This may seem a risky thing to do, but you can get a way with it, and even make the reissues a star above the modern feature. It is largely the idea of the reissue you have to combat. Offer them under some such title as "Fighting for Fame" series.

You can get another angle of this by having printed up a card of membership in the "I Knew Him When" club. Have the front a formal membership, patterning after some local lodge card, and on the reverse print up a list of the plays with the new and old titles. Give these a wide distribution and some advertising, or you can offer them as souvenirs at the showing of the first reissue.

Having a voting contest some night on the relative value of the stars then and now, issuing ballots. Give these out at the door and announce the count through the newspapers. You can naturally control the count, and probably you will find that you do not have to, if you get a good subject. Announce the voting a week in advance and plug away on it. Get the patrons interested, then when the vote is announced, those who voted against reissues will swing over to the majority. No man likes to confess himself in the minority, and he will go over and join the winners.

And, above all, drive home the slogan, "Reissued because it was good then and good now." Get that in the minds of your patrons and you can collect with ease.

Some Advertising Catch Lines.

Snappy Pictures Telling Stories With Quick Punch.

Plays That Made Possible Some Present-Day Stars.

Breezy Western Stories That Tell Story Quickly.

Short Stories Told With the "Punch" That Counts.

Comedies People by Present-Day Screen Stars.

Stars of To-day Who Were Brought to Fame by Keystone.

Stories You Have Never Read Are New Stories Still.

Films That Were Good When Made Just As Good Now.

Straight Shooting; Wild Riding; Real Western Stories.

See All Your Favorite Comedy Stars When They Began.

Comedies Show How Great Film Stars May Grow.

Some Newspaper Helps for Reissue Exhibitors

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO. are now releasing their reissues through about fifty state rights exchanges throughout the country. There is little more W. H. can tell about reissues. Showmen have already had proof of their values, so that it will require but little negotiation with exchangemen to dispose of the series. For this reason, W. H. Productions Company are releasing a carefully laid-out campaign to aid the exhibitors to help the exchanges. This campaign is proving of great value to both the exchanges and to the exhibitors.

Every subject, although excellent in every detail, is brought up to the minute, re-edited, reconstructed and retitled, and new prints are also being made. The advertising material, such as lobby display, posters, etc., surpasses everything ever done in the reissue line, and the usual co-operation with exchangemen and exhibitors is being extended.

We are appending two prepared newspaper notices ready to be copied off and submitted for publication to the local papers in conjunction with advertising.

Film Stars In the Making.

The management of the (name) theatre has arranged for presentation of a series of "Western" film revivals, now reissued from their first form, retitled, and given under new names, with former titles to identify them.

In these reissues Thomas H. Ince discovered many of the famous stars of to-day; and in this series, too, the combination of stars in a single picture has never been attained since. Their casts contain a combination of some of the greatest screen stars featured today, among whom are Charles Ray, Clara Williams, Rhea Mitchell, Richard Stanton, Anna Little, Walter Edwards, Sessue Hayakawa and a great many others.

Making the Screen Attractive.

The days of snappy screen entertainment are returning and the management of the (name) theatre are taking advantage of an opportunity to diversify the program. Just as many tastes are to be suited in the actual necessities of life, so is it necessary in entertainment to supply the varying demands of the general public. Some theatregoers like long plays, slow moving and worked into fine detail; others prefer comedies that raise laughs and drive off dull care.

Preparations have been made for presentations of dramas screened without lost motion or deferred action; there will be seen some of the best of plays that made pictures popular entertainment when stars of to-day are working their way to fame. These are reissues of plays that have been seen heretofore; plays that have been edited and revised and are presented under new names, with the former title to guide patrons who may have seen them under previous titles.

The latter-day fan knows nothing about the pictures shown a few years ago. Not all who were going to pictures in those days witnessed all of the plays that were presented. So there is good reason to believe that there will be a large following for these reissues of famous "Westerns"—plays that have in their cast two or three men or women who are to-day stars. No expense was spared in the original presentations of these "Western" photoplays when Thomas H. Ince was making his early fame in Inceville.

The settings were genuine. A whole tribe of Indians were maintained right near the studio, and when there was any Indian scene needed, it was produced naturally and genuinely. Those were the days, too, when cowboys were real. They maintained many in their neighborhood, from the nearby California mountain ranches, and the cowboy scenes have the genuine old-Western punch and thrill. These are the productions that made famous the American cowboy Western pictures all over the world.

Showing How W. H. Productions Advertise Reissues (New Title and Old).

Trade News Brevities

TWO NEW EXCHANGES OPEN IN CLEVELAND

Bert Barnett Has Organized Star Features—Capitol Film Company Locates in Sloan Building

By M. A. Malaney.

TWO new film exchanges have been opened in Cleveland.

Bert Barnett has established the Star Feature Film Company at 510 Sloan Building, while the Capitol Film Company has opened its branch on the fourth floor of the same building.

Mr. Barnett, who has purchased Ohio and Kentucky rights to the Houdini serial, "The Master Mystery," is an old timer in the film business, having owned the Paramount Exchange in Minneapolis previous to its sale to the Famous Players-Lasky Company.

Sterling Branches Out.

Following the consolidation of the Sterling Film Service Company with the Ohio Ivan Company and the Foursquare Cleveland exchange, which gave Ohio another big independent film company, the Sterling Film Company, which is now operating the new exchange, announced that it had established an agency at the Columbus Feature Film Company, Arcade Building, Columbus, and another at the Toledo Film Exchange, 107 Chamber of Commerce Building, Toledo.

Manager Joseph Diener, speaking of the deal, said he and his partner, Bert Stern, who ran the Sterling, had bought out the other companies, thereby acquiring more than fifty popular and moderate price features.

"We are also dickering with several New York producers for additional pictures new in the territory," he announced.

"The Heart of Humanity" Takes Well.

"The Heart of Humanity" opened in northern Ohio at the Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, January 26. The theatre was thronged all week.

All of the newspapers spoke highly of this super-feature.

Manager Smith, of the Universal, is going to great length in putting over this picture in his territory. He has assigned men from his office to handle advance publicity and to work with exhibitors.

A plentiful supply of press material has been received and many special stunts are being worked up.

The Alhambra Plays Up "Eye for Eye"

Nazimova's "Eye for Eye" opened up in Cleveland the week of January 26 at the Alhambra and Mall theatres, and played to excellent business throughout the week. District Manager Bachmeyer was in the city for the opening.

The Alhambra presented a Bedouin dancing prelude to the evening performances, a dance of the desert girl being performed by Mlle. Dorothe, a local girl.

Richards Handles "Stolen Orders."

M. A. Richards is handling "Stolen Orders," the Brady production, for the Argus Enterprises in Ohio. He announces that the first runs in Cleveland, Dayton and Cincinnati have been signed up.

Standard Handles "Fit to Win."

The United States Government picture, "Fit to Win," which is being handled by the Standard Film Service Company in Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan, after having played long runs in large cities, is now being booked broadcast.

This picture played four weeks in the Gaiety, Cleveland; four weeks in the Star, Cincinnati; ten days in the Bank, Akron; three weeks in Detroit, and seven days in Canton, Ohio.

Horwitz, of Toledo, Dies.

J. Horwitz, a pioneer show man of Toledo, died suddenly in that city last week at the age of forty-eight.

Mr. Horwitz at the time of his death was operating the Colonial, a downtown theatre. He formerly ran the Crown also.

He leaves six children. A nephew, Harry Horwitz, Cleveland exhibitor, also survives.

Guilla Is a Papa.

G. Guilla, owner of the Venice Theatre, Cleveland, is going around inviting film men to a spaghetti and wine supper to be pulled off in his theatre soon. It's because he is the father of a new eight and a half pound baby boy.

Deutsch and Rosenthal Boost the Census.

Among the Cleveland film men are two pals who are wearing smiles which are hard to eradicate. They are Sam Deutsch, of the Sun Theatre, who is the father of a new baby girl, and Syd Rosenthal, of the United Picture Theatres, Inc., who is the father of a bouncing baby boy.

Ohio News Notes.

E. Mandelbaum, president of the Ohio First National, has recovered from a week's illness, and is back on the job again.

John Mooney, former Cleveland film man, is at Camp Sherman in the hospital. He was pretty badly gassed in the fighting in France, but hopes to soon be home and back in the film game.

The Standard Film Service Company has contracted for 56 single-reel Keystone comedies, which will be released at the rate of one a week. These are in addition to the Arbuckle and other Keystones now handled by the Standard.

George M. Fenberg, owner of the Auditorium, Newark, has acquired the Alhambra Theatre, that city.

Baltimore News Letter

By J. M. Shellman.

Sonin Represents Paramount.

C. J. SONIN, who for the past two years has been located in the Baltimore territory, has now succeeded Lester Rosenthal as the Famous Players-Lasky Company representative in Baltimore. Mr. Rosenthal has gone to Washington to act as salesmanager in the office of the same company there. Before becoming associated with the Famous Players Mr. Sonin was connected with Select and then with Goldwyn.

Does His Own Cutting.

Louis J. Frederick, the Pathe representative in Baltimore, makes the eliminations ordered by the Maryland Censor Board right in his Baltimore office, instead of having the reels shipped back to Washington for the purpose. "This means," says Mr. Frederick, "I have a better print, for when someone clips the film in the office too much is sometimes taken out. This makes the action bad. But now I always know that I have a good print."

Solax in New Hands.

The Solax Theatre, 1204 West Baltimore Street, at one time operated by Harry Reddisch for Bradshaw & Johnson, is now being operated by Henry Weiss, a newcomer in the film business in Baltimore. Mr. Weiss has redecorated the house interior and is running plays with such stars as Charles Ray, Frank Keenan and the Gish sisters.

Will Show to Small Towns.

C. W. Simpson, who has been associated with L. Garman, at the Pimlico Theatre, Park Heights and Belcedere avenue, has resigned, and will start on the road with several reels to visit small towns. Mr. Simpson has been associated with the film business since 1908 and has managed the La Trobe and Huntington theatres, now out of business. He will begin his town showings at New Freedom on Saturday night, February 7, and then go to Stewartstown and Shrewsbury, Pa.

Haefele Selling Simplexes.

N. C. Haefele, proprietor of N. C. Haefele & Co., has been doing good business during the past month with the Simplex projection machines, having placed the following: Two in the Red Wing, Monument and Patterson, Park avenue, George Geartner, manager; one in Lafayette, 1433 West Lafayette avenue, E. B. McCurdy, manager, and one in the Idle Hour, 223 North Howard street, C. C. Waskey, manager.

Dusman in New Offices.

New offices have been taken by J. F. Dusman, consulting electrical engineer, on the ground floor of 213 North Calvert street. His son, J. Maurice Dusman, who is the proprietor of the Cut-Out Slide Company, is also established at the same address. Mr. Dusman and his son were formerly located on the third floor of the Wilson Theatre Building.

Price Joins Metro Forces.

Edward R. Price, who recently doffed his uniform, has now joined the forces of the Metro Film Company as their Baltimore representative. Before being called to the colors Mr. Price was associated with Paralta.

Maas Now a Benedict.

Louis O. Maas, the Vitagraph representative here, went to New York on Saturday, January 18, and was quietly married, to Miss Constance A. Reid, of that city, at Christ Church, Broadway and Seventy-first street. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Maas will reside at 511 Cathedral street.

Baltimore Personals.

George Benjamin, formerly manager of the Red Moon, before that property was sold to the Hotel Caswell, had an attack of influenza recently, but is up and back on the job, operating at the Grand Theatre, Highlandtown.

Milton Caplon made a trip to New York recently.

Maritime Provinces Notes

By Alice Fairweather.

Changes in Exhibitors' Distributing.

CHANGES in the local office of the Exhibitors' Distributing Corporation include the appointment of Albert Donaghy, the popular manager, as special representative for Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and the installation of Edward Teel, formerly with the Regal here, as local manager of the Exhibitors' Distributing Corporation.

Lieberman Has Successful Trip.

Joe Lieberman, of the Fox Film Exchange, returned home with the following contracts for the Excel and Victory pictures: Palace, Chatham; Opera House, Newcastle; Imperial, Campbellton; Opera House, Pictou; Roseland, New Glasgow; Palace, Sydney; Strand, Sydney Mines; Russell, Glace Bay; Orpheus, Halifax; Royal, Dartmouth; Gaiety, Fredericton; Opera House, Springhill Mines. The Imperial, St. John, has also contracted for these pictures.

Theatre Man on Health Board.

That the interests of the theatres will be well looked after on the Provincial Board of Health is assured by the appointment recently of Walter H. Golding, manager of the Imperial Theatre, St. John, to that board.

Items of Interest.

S. W. Dimock, of Campbellton, has jumped into the game again by purchasing from G. A. Margetts, of the Universal Film Company, the Maritime Provinces rights for "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," the picture which was recently successful at the Imperial.

The Strand Theatre, Truro, N. S., is running regularly showing pictures. The Princess Theatre has vaudeville two days and special attractions two days, being dark the other two days. Both these theatres are controlled by the F. G. Spencer Amusement Co.

New Glasgow will have one theatre the less shortly, as the Itsit is being turned into a factory. This house is owned by the N. W. Mason interests, who also control the Roseland, which runs pictures, and the Academy, which shows stock.

Fred Trifts, of the Gem Theatre, contemplates the erection of a concrete theatre on the site of the recently burned house on Waterloo street. The new theatre is to seat eleven hundred.

A. B. Farmer, of the Star Theatre, did good business recently with the Fox feature, "A Daughter of the Gods," on its third run in St. John.

According to the Fox policy, Ernest Whelpley has stepped right back into his former position in the local office after leaving the Canadian forces.

Friends in St. John of J. J. Ungar will be glad to know that he has returned safely from overseas. He will probably be located somewhere in the United States.

T. Conway, of "Hearts of the World," is at present in the city.

Louis Rosenfeldt, special representative of the Famous Players, who was called to Toronto on account of the serious illness of his mother, is back in St. John.

The Famous Players have a new contract with W. L. Rogers, of the People's Theatre, Yarmouth, N. S., for Paramount and Artcraft pictures.

"That's Good" Is Hamilton's Next.

"That's Good" is the title of Hale Hamilton's next starring vehicle in the Metro all-star series. The smiling star has started work at the Metro studios in Hollywood, directed by Harry L. Franklin. The story is by Richard Washburn Child. It was adapted for the screen by A. G. Kenyon, of the Metro scenario staff.

"The story of a wisely foolish man and a foolishly wise woman and what happened when they met" is the way the new Hamilton vehicle is described. Maude Fealey plays opposite Hamilton.

CINCINNATI PROTESTS THE RENTAL TAX

City Is Up in Arms Against Proposed Measure Fearing That It Will Increase Film Charges

By Kenneth C. Crain.

THE news from Washington that Congress had decided to permit the tax on amusements to remain at its present level, 10 per cent., instead of increasing it to double that amount, as proposed in the revenue bill before the conference committee, came to Cincinnati just in time to forestall the shipment to Washington of a monster petition against the tax for which thousands of signatures had been secured. The action of the conference committee made this unnecessary. Moving picture men are still up in arms, however, against the proposed tax on film rentals, which they declare will simply make necessary a higher rental charge, to come out of the exhibitor or the public, and action will be taken to secure some modification of this tax, if possible, as local film men and exhibitors are actively interested in the fight on this feature of the revenue bill.

Importance of Ventilation Realized.

The lessons of the epidemic of influenza last fall, on the necessity and usefulness of thorough ventilation, were pointed out to Cincinnati exhibitors by Dr. Peters, Cincinnati health officer, at a meeting of the organization, and the exhibitors assured the head of the health department of their intention of co-operating with him in every respect. Dr. Peters is an advocate of monthly inspections of the theatres by the health department, as he is of the opinion that they have a powerful influence for good or bad on the health of the community.

Zimmerman's New Orchestra.

C. V. Zimmerman has become secretary of the Film Exchange Managers' Association of the Chamber of Commerce, and will have charge of the plans of that organization for educational work designed to increase the demand for better pictures, and will also promote its plans for improving service to the exhibitor.

Minneapolis News Letter

By William Edward Mulligan.

State Censorship Is Opposed.

WITH their influenza troubles ended, temporarily, at least, the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, Inc., and the Theatrical Protective League have a new fight on their hands at the present session of the Minnesota State Legislature. They are vigorously opposing a big providing for state censorship of moving pictures, sponsored by the State Federation of Women's Clubs under the leadership of Mrs. George J. Allen, president.

Northwest News Brevities.

D. G. Rodgers, manager of the Minneapolis branch of the United Picture Theatres of America, reports that he has Dustin Farnum booked nearly solid for the next two months.

C. O. Hammens, properitor of the Princess Theatre, at Glencoe, Minn., has returned from France, where he has been serving with the Y. M. C. A.

A. Engler, proprietor of the Blue Bird Theatre, St. Paul, a pioneer exhibitor of the Twin Cities, has been discharged from the army and resumed the management of his theatre.

Peterson & Faythe have purchased the Orpheum Theatre at McHenry, N. D., from A. K. Boyd.

B. E. Dawson, pioneer exhibitor of Waseca, Minn., has retired from the moving picture business, disposing of his Palace Theatre to V. B. Valleau, of Albert Lea.

After a week's run, during which it played to big business at the Minneapolis Strand, "Lafayette, We Come," was booked for a week's showing at the St. Paul Princess Theatre, beginning Sunday, January 26. I. F. Mantzke, manager of the Minneapolis Mutual exchange, also says that Ruben & Finkelstein have booked all the new Mutual productions, including Walthall and Barriscale.

George Gasseen has purchased the Regent Theatre at Prairie du Chien, Wis., from Mr. Harris. Gasseen formerly owned and managed the Fox Theatre at Black River Falls, Wis., which he sold last April to H. L. Boch, of Glenwood, Wis.

"Pals First," the Metro production starring Harold Lockwood, opened for a first-run showing at the Minneapolis Strand Sunday, January 26. Ruben & Finkelstein have also booked Hale Hamilton's first production, "Five Thousand an Hour," for the Strand Theatre, to be shown the first week in February.

Philadelphia News Notes

By F. V. Armato.

Buhler Appointed Chairman.

FRANK W. BUHLER, managing director of the Stanley theatres, has been appointed as chairman of the motion picture committee for the Fifth Liberty Loan. Steps are already being taken to organize the exhibitors and the exchange-managers into one solid body in order to secure the best co-operation. During the last Liberty Loan drive the motion picture men in Philadelphia secured nearly half a million dollars' worth of subscriptions.

Some Philadelphia Hits.

"The Romance of Happy Valley," D. W. Griffith's production, which made its initial presentation at the Stanley Theatre on Monday, January 27, was a decided success and was highly commented upon. Gaby Deslys, in "Infatuation," which played at the Palace last week went over big and did a rip-roaring business. Annette Kellerman, in "Queen of the Sea," is now playing its second week at the Victoria Theatre and is credited with doing a remarkable business, even going stronger upon its second week.

House Warming Coming.

The Universal and Fairmount exchanges, which are housed in one building, have had extensive alterations made. A house warming will be given by V. R. Carrick and Wm. Sachsenmaier to the local exhibitors next week, when it is expected to have the first two episodes of the "Red Glove" and "Hearts of Humanity" shown at a private review.

Sam Blatt, of the Owl Theatre, will give a benefit performance at his theatre to aid one of his neighbors. John Clark, manager of the Paramount and Artcraft exchange, has willingly donated a Mary Pickford production for the occasion.

Philip Greenberg, formerly of the Wm. Fox exchange, has been appointed to take charge of the new exchange which will be shortly opened by Ike Schlang, of New York. Comedies and dramatic productions will be released regularly each week.

Manager Evans, of the Dreamland Theatre in West Philadelphia, has succeeded in putting over this house on a fair paying basis. Although this theatre was run down considerably he has retored its popularity.

Ben Harris, who is in charge of the shipping department of the Masterpiece Film Attractions exchange, is celebrating the arrival of his son Jack, who first saw daylight a few weeks ago.

Lieut. A. A. Millman, who has just been released from the service, is now connected with the Jewel Productions as manager in this territory.

PORTLAND FLU CONDITIONS ARE BETTER

Suburban Picture Exhibitors Report Business as Becoming Normal—New Legislation Planned

By Abraham Nelson.

TOWNS in the Portland territory, some closed three and four times by rulings of local health boards, have been reopened to the transaction of business, and indications are that they will not be closed again.

Hasty decisions of health boards, gross discrimination against theatrical enterprises, and even the alleged satisfaction of personal and political grudges held by municipal officials against theatre men have been features of Oregon's latest "flu" epidemic. Exhibitors have voiced their opinion that these conditions will never happen again. The public has become thoroughly disgusted with the actions of public officials in these matters. This is particularly true in Idaho, where a general lifting of the "flu" ban against theatres is scheduled to take place February 1.

At La Grande, Oregon, where the Leiter interests have been taken over by E. H. Ford, theatres that had been closed by public order were recently reopened to big business.

A feature of the first Portland theatre closing order which has just come to light is that theatres which were delinquent in paying their city license until after reopening were charged only for the portion of the quarter during which they were opened, while those who paid on time and before the closing order have been unable to get a rebate for the portion of the license period during which they were closed.

Portland suburban managers report business improving. Exhibitors interviewed on this subject were W. E. Tebbetts, Alhambra; Joe Bradt, Echo; W. W. McCredie, Jr., Multnomah; W. A. Ayres, Sunnyside, and Wenzel Kollross, Empire. Decrease in business during the last "flu" epidemic in suburban theatres is estimated by these men to be from 25 to 35 per cent.

Pathe Enlarges.

The futility of attempting to handle the Oregon business through Seattle has finally been realized by Pathe, and Portland will again have a full-fledged exchange to handle the film with the rooster trade mark. About a year ago Pathe consolidated its Portland and Seattle business under the one head at Seattle, leaving one man in Portland to look after the territory. Later, B. J. Sperry, former manager, opened a small office, routing some of the reels through Portland.

Fred Quimby, general sales manager, recently authorized a fully equipped office which will be located at 392 Burnside street, the employes of which will be a manager, booker, shipper, cashier and inspector. Portland will be furnished with prints directly from the home office, and only in a few instances will interchange with the larger Coast exchanges.

L. O. Lukan, Seattle manager for Pathe, was a recent caller on Manager B. J. Sperry, arranging the details for the Portland expansion.

Talbot Gains Promotion.

Frank Talbot, for the past four years bookkeeper for Universal, has been appointed traveling auditor for the Pacific Coast District and will have supervision over the bookkeeping end of the Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Butte, Salt Lake, San Francisco and Los Angeles offices of Universal.

Film Shipments Delayed.

Washouts in the Puget Sound district and between Portland and Seattle delayed films coming from Seattle exchanges to exhibitors in the Portland territory, and the Portland exchanges were swamped with rush orders for shows. Delay of films from Seattle exchanges, due to storm conditions, is an annual occurrence and an annual source of worry to exhibitors south of Puget Sound. Every time it happens Oregon exhibitors faithfully pledge themselves to patronize the home exchanges thereafter; but good resolutions are soon forgotten. There were no trains between Seattle and Portland two days during the week of January 25.

Film Row Visitors.

Because his theatres were closed by order of local health authorities during the "flu" epidemic, J. B. Sparks, controlling the theatrical situation at Condon and Heppner, Oregon, has been a visitor in Portland. He is arranging to install a photoplayer in each of his theatres.

For the same reason, Lew Cullins, Casino Theatre, The Dalles, Oregon, has been sojourning in Portland, making valuable use of his time by gathering the latest metropolitan ideas and viewing the new releases.

F. E. Samuels, special representative for the General Film Company from New York, is visiting in Portland for 10 days, and Jack Tillman, the G. F. manager, is showing him the sights.

Oregon Short Notes.

L. A. Samuelson, the shipwrecked hero of the steamer Dumaru, was a recent visitor in Portland, en route to Seattle as booked at the Pathe exchange.

Paul E. Noble, director of publicity for the Jensen and Von Herberg interests in Portland, and A. E. Lafler, manager of the Columbia, are listed among the "flu" convalescents.

Carl Stern, Seattle manager for Metro, was a recent caller on the Portland trade.

Louis Rosenberg, De Luxe Feature Company, is exploiting 16 two-reel Tom Mix subjects recently purchased. De Luxe has had four "Hearts of the World" companies out, three of which were called in on account of the "flu."

The Service Film Company reports the installation of new equipment in the Bungalow Theatre, Woodburn, and projectors in two state institutions at Salem.

Charles Clayton, road man for Pathe, reported 52 theatres closed in the Oregon territory on account of the "flu."

The Service Film Company reports the installation of new equipment in the Bungalow theatre, Woodburn, and projectors in two state institutions at Salem.

New Theatres.

The Derby Theatre Portland, in the Kenton District, has reopened under the management of Jefferson and Brozine. This showhouse, which is in a district adjacent to a factory center, has been idle for a year.

The O. K. Theatre, Enterprise, Ore., opened January 25 under the management of Mr. Van Wee, an Eastern theatre man. The theatre has been completed for some time, but the opening delayed because of "flu" conditions.

The Bungalow Theatre, Woodburn, Ore., has been sold by F. E. Gatchell to A. Hunauska, of Salem.

Buffalo News Letter

By Joseph A. McGuire.

Buffalo Film Men Are Optimistic.

DESPITE uncertain business conditions that mark post-war times in Buffalo and the fact that several thousand men are idle on account of the closing of factories which worked on war orders, local film men are bent on making this "a bigger and better than ever" business year. They therefore are turning a deaf ear to the calamity howler who would see signs of depression during the reconstruction period. These film enthusiasts declare that if high-powered energy, extensive advertising and big show values will do the trick, they will carry their plans to a successful issue.

Kaliska Wins Decoration.

William G. Kaliska, former assistant manager of the Strand Theatre, Buffalo, when the late Harold Edel was manager of that house, was among those who won honors in the world war. Captain Kaliska is wearing the insignia of the British Distinguished Service Order and the French Croix de Guerre.

Kaliska is in New York, awaiting orders to return home. He is the son of Max Kaliska, deputy collector of customs of this city.

First National Activities.

J. H. Simmon, who formerly covered the Eastern territory for the First National, has been transferred to the office of G. R. Germain, Buffalo manager of that company. W. G. Schmit has resigned his position with the Universal, Buffalo, and is now a First National salesman in the Southern territory.

The First National reports a specially heavy booking on the Chaplin series and the Stewart series and "Our Teddy." This office has closed a deal with Harold B. Franklin, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, by which the Hippodrome will secure the first run on all First National series as soon as they are released.

Weinberg Plays Up Stars.

E. O. Weinberg, manager of the Elmwood moving picture theatre, Buffalo, recently printed the following announcement on his program: "Have you noticed that the cast of characters has been omitted from the Elmwood program? You have. And you'd rather have them in? All right. We figured out you might care to know more about the play than the players—but, after all, it seemed as if something was missing about them. And, besides, it isn't a bad stunt to find out what you are seeing on the screen. Because—you wouldn't go to the speaking theatre without knowing the stars who were to appear, would you? The Elmwood isn't ashamed to print the names of the players, so you'll always find them inside."

Buffalo Notes.

J. McCarthy has been appointed assistant manager of the Fox exchange, Buffalo. He was formerly assistant manager of the Boston office of that corporation.

Buffalo and Rochester houses are booking the new Mutual productions, "Cannibals of the South Seas" and "Lafayette, We Come."

San Francisco News Letter

By T. A. Church.

New Studios Planned.

SEVERAL projects are on foot for the moving picture studios in this city and its environs. The furthest advanced of these projects is the plan of the Liberty Feature Films Company, which is negotiating for a tract of land at Piedmont, a suburb of this city. Offices have been opened in the Pacific Building and a company is being formed. Arrangements have been made to star Mervyn I. Levy, a cousin of Jesse L. Lasky, in comedy productions. Young Levy has worked in several productions, including Artcraft pictures, and also took part in the Pathe serial, "The Lightning Raider."

Portable Projector in Demand.

A heavy demand continues for the De Vry projection machine, many of these being sold for use in places where use could not be made of the larger machines, thus opening new markets for film. The Board of Health of Honolulu, T. H., has ordered one of these, as has also the Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy, of Mill Valley, Cal.; the William Schmidt Ranch, of Salinas, which will use it for the entertainment of farm hands; Ben Brodsky, of the Sunrise Film Manufacturing Company, San Francisco; M. B. Moon, of the St. Francis Hotel, San Francisco, and John Von Herberg, of Seattle, Wash.

Exhibitor Died in Action.

Dave Solari, of the Empire Theatre, Napa, was killed in action in France, according to information received by relatives from the War Department. Mr. Solari was well known in the amusement field in Northern California, at one time having a chain of seven moving picture theatres.

Legislature Would Regulate Ticket Selling.

A bill has been introduced into the Legislature, now in session at Sacramento, which provides that no theatre shall be allowed to sell a ticket to a patron unless there is a seat available at once. A similar bill was introduced two years ago and passed the Assembly, only to be lost in the closing shuffle. The proponent of the measure declares that it is the habit of moving picture and vaudeville houses to sell tickets and to require patrons to stand for a long time before giving them an opportunity to sit down.

Trade Briefs.

Samuel Whitehead, special representative of the M. & R. Feature Film Exchange, has left for a visit of several weeks to Los Angeles, where a branch is maintained.

Harry Carney recently returned from a trip through the San Joaquin Valley and states that a fair business is again being done in places where theatres are open. He represents the Universal on the road.

C. N. Williams has remodeled the Photo Play Theatre at Fresno, Cal., and will rename this the Strand.

L. Holt, formerly of the People's Theatre, Colusa, Cal., has purchased the Liberty Theatre at Manteca, Cal.

The Circle Theatre at East Fourteenth street and Thirty-fifth avenue, Oakland, was badly damaged by fire recently. Charles M. Denney, the proprietor, estimates the loss at about $5,000.

Washington News Letter

By Clarence L. Linz

Crandall Takes Them Back.

WHEN the employes of the Crandall Amusement Company donned the olive drab of the army or the blue of the navy they were assured of their old places upon their discharge from the service. These men are coming back and are being absorbed in the Crandall organization. Some of the men are receiving appointments to other positions in the organization which represent promotions the men would have received had they not been called away, and these appointments carry with them increased pay.

"We are glad to get our old men back again," said Harry M. Crandall. "We are proud of them. It makes no difference to us whether these boys went abroad or were retained in this country—they all went into the thing with the belief that some time or another they would be called upon to go into the trenches—and we are going to show our appreciation of their services to the Government by giving them their old places back again when they want to return.

"I think that it is the duty of every employer of labor to take his employes back when they are discharged from the Government service, and I am advertising the fact that 'We are taking the stars out of our service flag—are you?' in the hope of inducing others to do the same."

Emmett Jasper Marries.

Emmett Jasper, who was connected with the film business in Washington, and who joined the army after the United States got into the war, has enlisted in another army—the army of married men. His new commanding officer was Miss Sally Belt. Lieutenant Jasper is now in the merchant marine service, and it is understood is about to leave for Australia on an extended trip.

DES MOINES EXPRESS SERVICE IS BAD

Film Shipments Are Routed All Over the Map and Travel Hundreds of Miles Out of Their Way

By J. L. Shipley.

EXPRESS conditions seem to grow steadily worse in making shipments out of Des Moines over the state. There is not so much trouble in getting prompt pickups, but whoever is routing the films seems to have lost all sense of proportion since the amalgamation of the different lines. Shipments are sent a hundred miles out of the way and re-routed over different lines when they could be shipped on a direct route and arrive hours ahead of the present arrangement.

Shows shipped to Cedar Rapids, a direct jump without change of cars of 160 miles, have been sent by way of Davenport, making it necessary to send the film back by another road with every chance of missing opening performances. Complaints at the depot offices bring only the information that the films have been receipted for by messengers. No time is given and the exchanges have to guess on what trains shipments are made. It is costing Universal, the Blank Enterprises and others a nice sum for long distance calls explaining their helplessness to the exhibitor who is waiting for his show at the other end of the line and also trying to wheedle express agents at terminal points into giving a little information as to whether the cans of film in question have reached their offices and been transferred.

This Is Truly a One-Man Show.

M. J. Kenney, of Carlisle, comes as near running a one-man show as any manager in Iowa. He is a contractor and built his theatre, which seats 500. Showing three nights a week, Manager Kenney personally reviews every film he books, and when they are shown he runs the machine. In addition, he maintains his own billboard plant and still finds time to superintend his contracting business. Mr. Kenney has a church town and has to be particular about the class of films he shows. He has turned the trick with careful picking, and packs his theatre regularly.

No Picture Show, No Local Trade.

The town of Lewis, Iowa, for some weeks without a picture show, has gone to the front for the new manager and has guaranteed him against loss. When the house closed in October through lack of patronage merchants noticed that the farmers did not come to Lewis to trade because there was no amusement to offer them. In a publicity campaign calling attention to the show being open, merchants have gone after the farmer trade, and the proprietor of the house, instead of having to call on the committee for assistance is now making money.

Strauss Reports Good Business.

Walter H. Strauss, newly appointed Iowa road man for the Westcott Film Corporation of Minneapolis, was in Des Moines this week in the interest of "Intolerance" and other subjects controlled by the Westcott exchange. Strauss reports that this picture is booking up rapidly, as many Iowa towns were played by the road show of the picture at $1.50 top prices, and these can now offer it at 25 cents to good profit.

"The Heart of Wetona" Goes Big at Garden.

Norma Talmadge broke her own high records during the four days' run of "The Heart of Wetona" at the Garden. Extra morning shows and an extra night show the closing day were necessary, and despite the efforts of the management to extend the run, it was necessary to take the film off when it could have stood three days more good business.

Local News Notes.

The first United Pictures subject to be shown locally, "The Light of the Western Stars," packed the Rialto for five days.

Charlie Chaplin, with three previous showings to his credit, held them out at the Majestic, where Manager O'Hare was forced to extend his run to three days instead of two. O'Hare has made the Majestic with an exclusive second-run policy one of the most popular houses in Iowa.

L. Weil, of Sioux City; A. J. Diebold, of Cedar Rapids; Hal Kelly, of Creston; W. A. Matlock, of Ames; J. A. Price, of Indianola; Pete Lemen, of Newton; J. B. Julius, of Fort Dodge, were visitors at Des Moines film exchanges recently.

A. H. Blank was a Chicago visitor the past week, stopping in Davenport to look after his three theatres there.

Wm. Skirboll, manager of the Omaha Metro exchange, was a Des Moines visitor the past week.

St. Louis News Letter

By Richard D. Howe.

THE Capitol Film Company, of Indiana, of which Ike Schlank is president and general manager, has opened a branch office at 3431 Olive street, St. Louis. The new company will release short subjects and Western and sensational dramas.

E. H. Hoyt, an old-time film man, has been appointed manager of the St. Louis branch. Mr. Hoyt has been in the film business for more than eight years, having worked for Pathe, Universal and Metro.

In keeping with their usual progressiveness, Select Pictures has installed in the St. Louis office a Rex Film Renovator for cleaning old film and treating new film instead of waxing it.

L. C. Davis, of the Cozy Theatre at Paducah, Ky., was a recent visitor in St. Louis.

George Colovos, who owns the Hippodrome at Benton, Ill., visited St. Louis' film district last week to arrange some future bookings.

The Liberty Theatre, Fox's beautiful St. Louis house, offered two productions for the week, "I Want to Forget" and "The Danger Zone." "Raffles" was billed at the New Grand Central, "The Silver King" at the West End Lyric, "When a Girl Loves" at the Royal and "The Racing Stream."

As a special attraction for the week the seven-act drama, "Innocence," was shown at the Odeon.

Spokane News Letter

By S. Clark Patchin.

TWELVE ushers of the Clemmer theatre "walked out" January 19 in order to enforce their demands for twenty cents an hour for ushers and twenty-five cents an hour for head ushers instead of fifteen and twenty cents. The boys claimed that the Woodward Theatre pays twenty-five cents an hour for two hours work at night; the Clemmer worked its boys four hours. Dr. Clemmer said the boys gave but fifteen minutes notice, and that while he was willing to pay the highest price he would not be dictated to and had filled the places of the strikers.

Showing of "The Heart of Humanity."

Fully one hundred newspapermen and theatre men of the city, including exhibitors from surrounding towns, spent a couple of hours in the Clemmer Theatre, starting at 11 P. M. the night of January 23, to witness a private showing of the latest Jewel production of the Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., entitled "The Heart of Humanity."

NEW ORLEANS HOUSES TO REMAIN OPEN

The Health Authorities Have Seen the Light Agreeing That Theatres Are Safe as Any Place

By N. E. Thatcher.

THE second round of the influenza scare in the New Orleans section has made marked inroads upon motion picture theatre attendance, and for some time the managers were in fear that the authorities would again close places of amusement. The second visitation of the influenza has been more virulent than the first, but the health authorities have at last virtually decided that a motion picture theatre is just as safe a place as any other, and it is not likely that the shows will be closed.

In other cities in this territory the managers have not been so fortunate. At Pensacola, Fla., the order went forth to close all of the motion picture theatres, and the Saenger Amusement Company was under the necessity of securing an injunction against the health department in order to keep their theatres open. After three days the injunction was sustained by the courts and the theatres were permitted to open and operate as usual. The same experience was had at Hattiesburg, Miss., with slight variations. It was necessary to threaten the injunction and to hold up the Pensacola case as a precedent before the authorities at Hattiesburg were convinced that the Saenger ground was well taken. In isolated spots in this territory smaller theatres have been closed for the time being, but they do not amount to enough to change the general situation.

Saengers Take Over Three Houses.

As was told in the World last week the Liberty Theatre, one of the most magnificent theatres in the South, has been taken over by the Saenger Amusement Company and is now being operated under the management of that organization, with Maurice Barr, who has lately returned from service in France, as the manager. The Liberty is to be operated on the same high plane that has characterized the operation of the beautiful Strand Theatre here at standard prices and with the best features obtainable. It has had a rough time since its opening in July of last year, partly because of the closing of theatres on account of the influenza and partly because it was in the hands of inexperienced persons after the ban was lifted, who were averse to the sustaining of the losses that naturally attended the getting under way for the second time. It is the intention of the Saenger interests to make the Liberty a sister show house to the Strand, thus, in a measure emulating the policy of the Rialto and Rivoli, in New York, so far as it is practicable. The musical program of the Liberty, under the direction of Lieutenant Finch, will be a feature of the entertainment.

The Saenger Amusement Company has added two other splendid theatres to its big chain of houses in this territory, and the details of taking them over have about been completed. They are the Baker Grand, at Natchez, and the Marion, at Clarksdale, Miss., both of which are complete in every detail. The Marion has a $15,000 pipe organ and is equipped with every known appliance for the pleasure and comfort of its patrons. Both of these theatres have been under the management of E. M. Clark, one of the best and most successful motion picture men in the South.

The Saenger interests will conduct the two houses on the high plane that characterizes the operation of all of their theatres.

Fox Has a New Exchange.

The Fox Film Corporation has completed arrangements for one of the most pretentious film exchanges in the New Orleans territory. Winfred R. Sheehan, general manager for the Fox organization, was a recent visitor here and authorized the renting of the three-story building at 715-17 Poydras street, which will at once be transformed into one of the most convenient exchanges in the city. The lower floor will be devoted to the offices and reception rooms where Manager Moritz will extol the virtues of the Fox productions. The second floor will be a stock room and inspection division, while the third floor will be fitted up for a complete projection room with comfortable chairs and all accessories for the showing of pictures. Work of remodeling the building will be hurried, and the removal of this exchange will bring Poydras street into prominence as the principal center of the motion picture industry here, as the Goldwyn, Metro and Select already have exchanges directly across the street from the new Fox location.

Personal Items.

Leon J. Rubenstein, special representative of the Anita Stewart productions, was a visitor here during the week of January 31.

Mrs. Violet Crawley, for three years secretary of the Boehringer Amusement Company and later the Liberty Amusement Company, fell on the marble stairway at the Liberty Theatre and sustained a serious fracture of her arm. The irony of fate was manifested in the accident, for Mrs. Crawley was leaving the building for the last time, her connection with the theatre having ceased with the advent of the Saenger Amusement Company as lessees of the house.

Herman Fichtenberg, accompanied by Mrs. Fichtenberg, has arrived from New York and will make an extended visit among their host of friends here, returning to the metropolis about March 1.

Pittsburgh News Letter

By Elmer H. Mayer.

Conditions Are Good in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH is getting to be a real movie town, and the theatres here of this class are coming into their own at last. Higher admission prices and extended runs are a common thing now in this city and are proving quite successful from every standpoint. For a time even some of Pittsburgh's largest picture theatres were apparently afraid of extended runs, many of them changing as frequently as three times a week.

But things are different now. For instance, during the week of January 27, out of twelve of the city's largest houses, seven of them were using the same attractions for the entire week, including the Pitt, which was in its third week of "The Birth of a Race." The East Liberty Cameraphone and Olympic theatres were using Goldwyn's "Shadows," premiere presentation in Pittsburgh all week. Another premiere presentation was at the Liberty and Grand theatres, which were using Anita Stewart's "Virtuous Wives." Loew's Lyceum ran Elsie Ferguson in "His Parisian Wife," and the Minerva, Mutual's "Lafayette, We Come." Every one of these houses had a successful week, and this was especially the case at the Grand and Liberty.

Most of the theatres in Western Pennsylvania's larger towns are also quite progressive, many of them using extended runs with great success.

On the whole the movie business in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania is fine, and prospects for future success among the exhibitors here are good.

A noteworthy feature of the moving picture business at the present time is the fact that very few exhibitors wish to sell out. A number of men desire to get into the game, but are unable to get suitable houses at anything near reasonable prices.

The Garden Changes Hands.

Nathan Friedberg, and his associates, David Adler and Frank Tooker, sprung another surprise in film circles of Pittsburgh by taking over the large Garden Theatre, one of the finest houses of Pittsburgh's Northside. The deal was a straight cash proposition, and is said to have involved more money than any theatre purchase in Pittsburgh in the history of the game.

The Garden is a large and beautiful house of 1,000 seats and is one of the best moneymakers on the Northside. C. W. Beatty, who has owned and managed it for the past several years, will probably retire from the film business. The new owners took charge February 1.

This is the fifth house of the Friedberg chain, the others being: Alhambra, East Liberty; American, Mt. Oliver; American, Southside; Fairyland, Cleveland, O. These are all good houses, and the Garden will no doubt prove a valuable addition to this list.

Shrader in Charge of Pathe Branch.

Robert Shrader took charge of the Pittsburgh Pathe branch Monday, January 27, succeeding G. W. Fuller, who resigned his office the preceding Saturday. Mr. Shrader was formerly manager of Pathe's Indianapolis branch and came here with F. C. Quimby, general sales manager of the Pathe Exchange, Inc.

A Good Lobby Stunt.

Manager H. B. Kester, of the East Liberty Cameraphone, has recently provided his lobby with a rather novel and original attraction. He employs an artist who paints in oil a large picture, about 6 by 4 feet, for every feature shown, which describes the nature or the title of the film being run. Sometimes a large portrait of the star is painted.

Skelton Marries.

Thomas J. Skelton, booker at the Fox exchange, joined the ranks of the benedicts Wednesday morning, January 29, when he married Miss Lucinda Marie Schubert in the Holy Trinity Church. Among the many wedding gifts received by the newly married couple was an elegant chest of silver, given by his coworkers at the Fox exchange, also a beautiful cut glass fruit dish from Mr. Feitler.

News Notes.

Dave Adler, formerly of the Quality Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, and now living in Norfolk, Va., will be married there shortly to Miss Edna Glasser. Congratulations, Dave.

George A. Ranshaw, who was released from the navy recently, is now connected with the selling staff of the Fox Film Corporation in the Pittsburgh territory. Prior to Mr. Ranshaw's enlisting in the navy he was connected with the Detroit office of the Fox Film Corporation in the capacity of assistant manager. He was also connected with the Famous Players-Lasky as office manager of their Chicago branch before joining the Fox forces.

W. L. Russell is the new manager of the Film Clearing House, Pittsburgh, succeeding Frank Burhans, who resigned recently. Mr. Russell is a Pittsburgher, but for the past year has been engaged in the film business in New York.

Other changes at the Clearing House are as follows: Miss Marshall has resigned to accept a position as secretary to Mr. Burhans, who has charge of the showing of "The Birth of a Race" picture at the Pitt Theatre. W. S. Dietz, formerly of the Fox exchange, is in charge of the bookings. J. H. Norwood is the sales manager of the Independent Sales Corporation, releasing through the Clearing House.

Frank Windstein, a well known film man of the Pittsburgh section, is now connected with the Day Film Corporation in the capacity of road man. He was formerly with the Fox exchange here. Windstein states that he is having excellent success with the Houdini serial, "The Master Mystery."

The Grand at Pascoe, Pa., reports big business with Geraldine Farrar's Goldwyn production, "The Turn of the Wheel."

G. W. Smith arrived in Pittsburgh Monday morning, January 27, from Dallas, Tex. He came at the instigation of Manager Burhorn, of the General office, located here, and will join the salesforce of that organization. Mr. Smith formerly worked under Burhorn in the Dallas Kleine office.

Manger C. C. McKibbin, of the Pittsburgh Goldwyn exchange, states that their latest special, "The Border Legion," starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth, is already booked practically solid throughout the territory.

O. R. Hanson, exchange supervisor of the Exhibitors' Mutual home office, is in Pittsburgh, assisting local manager, Wm. H. Rippard, in getting things in shape at the new Mutual home here.

The Alhambra Theatre, New Kensington, Pa., recently ran Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" for two days at 50 cents admission and they cleaned up.

The new Simplex Extralite shutter is a great success in this territory. At the present time the Hollis, Smith, Morton Co., who handle the Simplex here, report that the orders exceed the demand.

"The Lady of the Dugout," recently bought for the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia exhibitors by the S. & S. Film & Supply Co., Inc., Pittsburgh, has passed the Pennsylvania Board of Censors without an elimination.

The Rowland and Clark chain of theatres, Pittsburgh, have booked the Christie comedies at the Quality exchange.

"The Kaiser's Finish," handled in the Pittsburgh territory by the Quality Film Corporation, is still smashing records here. The latest houses to perform this feat are: Strand, East Liberty; Oakland, Pittsburgh, and the Rex at Corry, Pa.

S. A. Stoughton opened the Star Theatre at Vandergrift, Pa., Saturday, February 1, with Fox's "Les Miserables," and turned 'em away. The Star is an up-to-date house in every way, and music is furnished by a Seeburg-Smith pipe organ.

D. C. France, manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the United Theatre Equipment Corporation, has just returned from a business trip to New York City.

J. B. Hill opened the Bridge Theatre, at Petersburg, W. Va., Saturday, February 1.

Harvey B. Day, of the Day exchange, Pittsburgh, is in New York, looking over the feature market.

A. R. Cherry has severed his connections with the Pennsylvania Film Market and is now on the road for the Supreme exchange here.

Detroit News Letter

By Jacob Smith.

Trade Showing of "The Heart of Humanity."

ONE thousand people, exhibitors and exchangemen and their wives, attended the trade showing of "The Heart of Humanity" at the Majestic Theatre, Detroit, Tuesday evening, January 28. Paul Bush, Universal manager in Detroit, had the full orchestra stay, also the organist and Henry Santrey. He distributed cigars to the men and boxes of candy to the ladies.

Personal and Trade Notes.

L. F. Sunlin, of Flint, will break ground soon for a new theatre that will seat 800. He will be the sole owner and manager. He now has two theatres in Flint—the Savoy and Elite.

The Penniman Allen Theatre, in Plymouth, seating 800, opened for business February 1 with a Mary Miles Minter production.

Tom D. Moule has booked the Sidney Drew comedies for the Madison Theatre, Detroit.

The week ending January 26 was the biggest in the history of the Detroit Paramount exchange for collections, gross business and new contracts. Again, congratulations to H. A. Ross.

William Kent is now office manager and city salesman at the Detroit exchange of Select.

Howard Sheehan and Clayton Sheehan, of the Fox Film Corporation, were Detroit visitors the week of January 28. Both were on their way to the home office.

J. W. Heisman, of the Triangle home office, was in conference with H. K. Moss, Detroit manager, January 24 and 25.

Tom Lancaster, now operating the Grande Theatre, Detroit, has leased the new Fernadale Theatre, in West Detroit.

The Majestic Theatre, Detroit, has booked Kinograms and Prizma pictures first-run through the World.

John H. Kunsky, of the Kunsky Enterprises and president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit of Michigan, has returned from an extended Los Angeles trip—incidentally, he attended the board of directors' meeting.

Joe Horwitz, 303 Film building, Detroit, has purchased the lower Michigan rights to "Mickey." He is said to have paid in excess of $6,000 for the rights. He already has just about closed for a two weeks' run in Detroit.

NEW TELEPHONE RATES TROUBLE DALLAS

Tariff on Messages Is Declared Prohibitive and Long Distance Calls Have Been Eliminated

By Phil Fox.

THE new telephone rates have proved a serious handicap to the motion picture business in Texas. A state of great distances, the telephone bills have always been high, but Burleson's new rate regulations appear to be the straw which breaks the camel's back.

To speak to an exhibitor in person means that the film exchange must pay from 25 cents to $1.50. Naturally the film man does not want to talk to the cashier or the operator of same far-distant picture show and has to demand the manager in person. Rates are the same as formerly for merely calling any given number or any given theatre without demanding conversation with any particular person. Should an appointment be made to speak over the wire at any given hour and the film exchange manager happen to be out of the office for a minute he misses his call and is assessed the additional charges both on that call and the one which must follow.

"The telephone rates are simply prohibitive," says Manager Lew Remy, of Goldwyn. "We have been forced to cut out our long-distance business entirely and depend on the telegraph, also operated by the Government and which is entirely unsatisfactory."

Similar opinions are expressed all along film row.

Express Service Also Bad.

Because the express service out of Dallas has been so unsatisfactory under Government control, film exchange managers are planning to handle their film shipments through the parcel post.

Various film men consulted Postmaster B. M. Burgher with a view to ascertaining what accommodations can be afforded them in the way of quick postal collections through automobile truck or wagons.

It is estimated that film shipments to and from Dallas average in excess of $1,500 a day. This would increase the postal receipts of the city to the tune of some $900 a day, making it well worth the while of the postal authorities to co-operate with the film men.

Only Five Houses Stay Closed.

Only five theatres in Texas have failed to reopen following the recent epidemic of influenza. They are the theatres at Huntingdon, Kountze, Henderson, Big Sandy and Mount Vernon. Dallas film exchange men will lend the exhibitors at these places every assistance in reopening their shows.

The last week in January the theatres at Comanche, Rusk, Mission, Carthage and Daingerfield were closed on account of influenza. Theatres at San Augustine have been closed recently, owing to the breaking down of the electric light plant at that city.

T. A. M. Convention Postponed.

Owing to the rush of oil speculators and promoters to North Texas no rooms can be obtained at present in hotels either in Dallas or Fort Worth. Because hotel accommodations are lacking the convention of the Texas Amusement Managers' Association, scheduled for Dallas in January, has been postponed until some date late in February or early in March.

Dallas Trade Notes.

So brisk has business become along Dallas film row during the past couple of weeks that almost every film exchange is working practically every department overtime. Girls in the inspection departments are making good money on their overtime pay.

Manager James Hill, of Pathe, has put on a regular night crew, including a night booker and shipper with other clerks. This is an innovation in film exchange circles, and indicates the great amount of business which has come to this territory since the influenza waned.

Fred Haller, formerly assistant credit man with one of the large Dallas department stores, has taken a position in the Pathe shipping department.

Manager LeRoy Bickel is back from a tour of Arkansas and reports that the moving picture business in that state is flourishing as never before.

James Hill, Pathe manager, during the last week in January made a trip to various towns along the Mexican border and found business good.

E. T. Peter, formerly of Dallas film row but now a prominent South Texas exhibitor, is enlarging his theatrical holdings. He has bought the Queen Theatre at Yoakum and has bought the Dreamland Theatre at Cuero from B. V. Grunder. He also owns the Cuero Queen.

W. G. Underwood, formerly of Dallas film row but who now owns an exchange of his own in Oklahoma City, visited old Dallas friends during the last week in January.

The following exhibitors visited Dallas film row during the third week in January: E. T. Peter, Dreamland, Cuero; William Stuckert, Rex, Brenham; F. M. Phipps, Queen, Childress; Jim Reynolds, Lyric, Van Alsyne; Jack Lilly, Hipodrome, Commerce.

Texas News Items.

New theatres continue to go up in the great Texas oil fields, where home folks and visitors alike are growing rich and where the towns are thronged with men from every part of the globe.

At Eastland, Ball and Barry, who already own one house in the town, announce they have started work on a new theatre of 700 seating capacity.

Ranger is to have two new shows. J. L. Olive, of the Sugg Theatre, Chickashaw, Okla., will open a theatre there. Gus Peterson, of Strawn, will also build a new house.

J. A. Powers opened his new Victory Theatre at Henderson February 1.

C. E. Tandy, of Atlanta, formerly division manager for the S. A. Lynch enterprises, is in Texas. He has large oil interests in the Ranger fields.

KANSAS CITY BUSINESS HITS TOP NOTCH

The Influenza Is Over, the Ban Is Raised and Picture Theatres Are Playing to Big Houses

By Kansas City News Service

BUSINESS has been the biggest during the past week in Kansas City that it ever has been since there was a movie in the city. The theatre, both downtown and those in the residence parts of the city, have been playing to big houses every performance. This pleasant change from a few weeks back is due not only to the passing of the "flu" and raising of the ban, but to the pleasant weather and ease of travel. The past two weeks have been ideal for the city, which advertises itself as a winter resort. The thermometer has been kind and neither snow nor rain has fallen. The easing up of the street car situation has aided materially in filling the theatres. And the people were glad to get out once more after their enforced retirement.

Why New Theatre Men Go Broke.

They are telling sad tales about the moving picture brokerage business in Kansas City. One broker, it is alleged, make a point of buying a house, taking out all the good machinery and good seats —refitting with cheap material and then selling the theatre to some one from the country on the strength of what the house had done in the past when in good condition. Of course the stranger loses out. Patrons drop off. Expenses are higher than the receipts, and when the broker appears and offers to take it off his hands for a small sum he is glad to let the house go. In another case a broker offered a man $500 for his theatre, but this man took disinterested advice before closing the sale. He learned that the broker had a customer who was willing to pay $2,000 for the place.

Picture Men Join Chamber of Commerce.

The moving picture men, not being able to get as much support as they wished from the Chamber of Commerce, have found a way of doing so. During the drive for membership in that civic institution they have fallen in line and joined! It is their desire to have a committee on moving picture shows in the Chamber of Commerce which will handle their affairs instead of a local organization composed only of picture men. Among those who have already become members are E. W. Werner, of the Warwick; Mr. Berkey, of the Summit; Frank Newman, of the Royal; Samuel Harding, of the Liberty; Harry Taylor, city salesman of the Pathe; John Hays, of the Elsworth; Carl Weis, of the Linwood Boulevard; Wm. Andlauer, of the Bonaventure; George Curtis, of the Doric, and Wm. Flynn, of the Twelfth Street and the Wonderland theatres.

Personal and News Items.

The Colonial has been sold by Miss M. Alpine to A. G. Medgel, who will change the policy of the theatre and show a cheaper grade of pictures than the former management has been presenting.

Joe Silverman has purchased the Prospect Theatre from Mrs. K. E. Brinnig.

The Whiteway Theatre, of Belleville, Kan., has been sold to C. W. Bartlett & Son, by G. A. Chapin, and will be closed from February 1 to 14 while improvements and decorations are being made.

Miss Teresa O'Sullivan, the popular bookkeeper of the Pathe exchange, has the sympathy of all in the tragic death of her father, Timothy O'Sullivan, a fireman, who was run over by an engine while returning from a fire.

Sherman Wiggins, formerly of the Bowersock Theatre, Lawrence, Kan., has purchased the Golden Belt, at Ellsworth, Kan., and will take possession February 1.

Charles Barron, of the Isis, Augusta, Kan., was a visitor in the city this week. He is doing such a flourishing business in that town that he could not be hired to leave. Recently the oil men of Ranger, Tex., offered to build him a $50,000 theatre in that place if he would go down and manage it. But he declined.

Col. P. J. Kealy, president of the Kansas City Street Railway, gave a moving picture show at his residence Saturday for the little friends of his daughter. Charlie Chaplin was the star who entertained them.

Salesmen who have returned from trips over the Southwest since the "flu" has subsided all report an immense business at the theatres. The improvement in the roads and in the weather has allowed the rural patrons to come into town, and they have increased the daily attendance.

Jerry Abrams, of the New York office of the Universal, was in Kansas City for a few days this week. He is traveling over the West, arranging for an extensive campaign for the next seven releases by this company. A. McConnell, advertising man of the home office, was also in the city exploiting the three new pictorial weeklies. He is placing a number of halftones with the newspapers as advertising of the plays.

Robert King, who has been the poster boy for the Pathe, has been promoted to the position of assistant booker, and Russel Borg, who also has been in the poster room, has taken his place as poster man.

A fine lobby display has been arranged to advertise Gaby Deslys in "Infatuation," at the Liberty Theatre, Feb. 16.

W. W. Smith, of the Empress, Tulsa, Okla., has wired, asking that Martin Johnson come to Tulsa in February, when the second episode of his play, "The Cannibals of the South Seas," will be put on. The Rialto, of that place, has been crowded at every presentation of the first episode.

Lew Nathanson, of the Cozy, Topeka, Kan., has booked up all the Bill Rhodes features for his house.

City salesman, Samuel Bronstein, of the Universal, met with a mishap while visiting patrons in the city. In cranking his Ford his left arm was dislocated, but he has lost no time, appearing at the office next morning.

The Billy Rhodes features are taking well in this territory. The first release interests the patrons immediately and managers have, on the strength of her success, ordered features of other stars by the same exchange.

Martin Johnson's popular "Cannibals of the South Seas" opened in the Doric January 26 to crowded houses. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be in the city the whole week, appearing at the theatre at each performance. Mr. Johnson will deliver a thirty-minute address before each show.

Activities of the Southern Mid-West.

Mayetta, Kan.—J. C. Mulryan is remodeling a room in which he will open a picture show about February 1.

Baird, Tex.—Mrs. R. L. Griggs and Mrs. J. P. Work will open a picture show in the McGowen Building. The building will be remodeled. Equipment has been purchased.

Clarksville, Tex.—The Mission Theatre is being remodeled and enlarged to seat 500 persons.

Wichita, Kan.—The management of the Wichita Theatre has contracted for Select pictures, Goldwyn Distributing Corporation pictures, Broadway Star Vitagraph Features and the presentation of the United Picture Theatres Company's productions.

Osceola, Mo.—The Electric Theatre has been sold by L. H. Cruise to George Vannice.

Le Mars, Ia.—A. Hormold has bought the Royal Theatre from Six & Berry, of Cherokee.

Cleveland, Tex.—Mrs. Sornborger, manager of the Pythian Theatre, announces the addition of an orchestra as a permanent feature.

Abilene, Tex.—R. W. Haynie, Abilene, Tex., receiver, will receive bids at any time for moving picture show business complete, located in the town of Stamford, Jones county, Texas, formerly belonging to Herbert Chester Johnson, now in bankruptcy. Property includes chairs and machinery. The theatre is known as the Royal.

Macon, Mo.—Carl Muff, proprietor of the McDowell Cafe, has recently leased the Logan Theatre, which has been closed for several weeks.

Monroe City, Mo.—A new picture show is to be opened in the near future. The show is to be opened by a stock company, already organized and the stock sold. A new and modern building will probably be built and up-to-date equipment installed.

Wichita, Kan.—Arrangements are being made for the opening of Wichita's beautiful winter garden, Jan. 25. The work on the interior is rapidly nearly completion.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Carl Mensing, owner of the Orpheum Theatre, is having a new $5,000 pipe Moller organ installed for his patrons which will be in use in a short time.

Newark News Letter

By Jacob J. Kalter.

Newark Suburb to Censor Film.

EAST ORANGE, suburb of Newark, may inaugurate a board of censors to pass upon moving picture productions. Mayor Martens has recommended the creation of such a board in his first annual message to the city council. An attempt was made several years ago to form a censorship board, but failed because of lack of support. This time the official is determined to put his project through. There are about half a dozen theatres in East Orange, the proprietors of which are opposed to the movement, and will fight it strenuously.

Amsterdam Renamed Anita.

The owners of the former Amsterdam Theatre at 77 Sixteenth avenue, Newark, have decided to change the name to Anita Theatre. The place is scheduled to open February 15. It will be under the control of Herman Flax, a local business man, and Theodore Taxier, of New York City.

Mrs. James J. Lyons Dead.

Mrs. Adele E. Lyons, wife of former Assemblyman James J. Lyons, owner of the Park Theatre, Morristown, died February 1 at her home in the Park Apartments. The burial took place Monday, February 3.

Farmer at Warren Square.

G. M. Farmer, who has been a moving picture exhibitor in the State of Maine for many years, is now operating the Warren Square Theatre, 384 Warren street, Newark.

T. M. A. Has Successful Ball.

The annual ball of Newark Lodge, No. 28, Theatrical Mechanical Association was held February 3 at Kreuger's Auditorium, and a record attendance was on hand to see the various theatrical stars.

First Run for Fox's Terminal.

W. Wilkerson, representative of Jewel Productions, informs the Newark correspondent of the Moving Picture World that the statement that "The Heart of Humanity" will have its Newark premiere at the Anita Theatre, formerly the Amsterdam, is erroneous. We take this means of correcting any wrong impression that our readers may have formed. The Jewel production will be first seen in Newark the week of February 2 at the William Fox Terminal Theatre, 84 Park place. Mr. Wilkerson also informs us that the Goodwin Theatre, 863 Broad street, will show "The Heart of Humanity" the week of March 2.

Dayton News Letter

By Paul Gray.

Business Good in Dayton.

SUNDAY, February 2, was a good day for local theatres and all of the downtown houses played to large crowds. The Columbia opened with "Salome," the much heralded and locally criticised Bara film. "Salome" has been advertised extensively for the past two weeks starting with a review by Mrs. Perrill, of the Dayton Journal, who gave the picture quite a boost. The regular scale of admission at the Columbia is fifteen cents, but a top price of twenty-five cents is being obtained for the Fox film. The Strand (management Clay Brehm) opened Sunday with Marguerite Clark in "Little Miss Hoover." That house played to capacity all day. The writer visited the Dayton last Sunday to see the opening of Mark Gates' big double bill and the house could not handle the crowds. The Dayton played Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" with Billie Rhodes in "Hoopla" as a double program and cleaned up with it. The special music for the Cannibal picture proved very popular when rendered by the Dayton Concert Orchestra.

With the Boys.

G. G. Rich is no longer manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Exchange at Cincinnati. It is said that a special representative of that company is handling the Cincinnati office at present.

J. A. Kent is making a success as manager of the Cincinnati Exhibitors' Mutual Exchange and reports heavy bookings in this territory.

Sam Sax, manager of the Metro Exchange at Cincinnati is to go west for his health.

H. T. Snowden, of the World Film Corporation, invaded Dayton last week, introducing that company's news weekly—Kinograms.

J. Maurice Ridge, of the Film Clearing House, has booked the Ideal Theatre, this city, with a first run. Maurice joins in with Charley Schwerin, of Cleveland, to say that his company is not the Film Cleaning House as they were addressed recently by Gawdge Nann of The Strand.

Salt Lake News Letter

By W. H. Bennett,

Managers to Fight Tax.

LOCAL theatre managers this week launched a vigorous fight against the proposed 5 per cent. film tax as provided for in a bill now pending before Congress. Petitions protesting against tax, which it is contended is discriminatory against moving picture theatres, are being signed by patrons of all theatres. It was estimated by George E. Carpenter, manager of the Paramount-Empress theatre, and by George Mayne, manager of the American, Strand and Liberty theatres, that 25,000 signatures to the protests were obtained during the week.

The managers have announced that they intend to have speakers appear before the footlights and explain to the audiences what this tax means and also what the film industry has done for the nation during the war. They will endeavor to show the public that the tax would mean an unwarranted burden on the industry and would eventually result in increased admission charges if theatres are to remain in business.

Local Business Is Improving.

Excellent business was reported at local moving picture houses during the week. A material reduction in the number of new influenza cases has helped the business greatly, the managers say, and conditions begin to look more or less normal again. For several days it was feared that another quarantine might be declared, but this danger seems to have passed.

Much of the territory adjacent to Salt Lake City is still closed, and exchange managers report that in the open cities of the territory, business as a whole is little better than 50 per cent. normal. A steady improvement is noted, however, they say, and by spring they hope that the effects of the epidemic on the industry will have worn off.

Turner Takes Over Heyfron's Interests.

Henry Turner, a Missoula capitalist, has taken over Gilbert Heyfron's interest in the Missoula Amusement Company—theatres Empress, Isis and Bijou—and will manage them.

LOUISVILLE LIFTS THE INFLUENZA BAN

The Population of Camp Taylor Has Increased to Thirty Thousand and Exhibitors Benefit Thereby

By A. W. Williams.

Prospects Good in Louisville.

NOW that influenza regulations have been entirely lifted from Louisville theatres there is an excellent run of business.

Whereas the population at Camp Taylor was down to seventeen thousand men a few weeks ago, there are now about thirty thousand men quartered there due to the breaking up of many of the Southern tent camps and transfer of the divisions to Louisville. It has been definitely settled that Camp Knox will be a permanent camp for the regular army and from present indications Camp Taylor will be retained, with the result that local exhibitors are figuring on maintaining a fair percentage of the military business which has made business good in Louisville for two years.

Schuberts to Enter Lexington.

A recent report from Lexington, Ky., is to the effect that the Schuberts are planning to get into Lexington, and that they have sent Charles Scott, formerly manager of Lexington theatres, and the Liberty Theatre, at Camp Taylor, to enter negotiations for the purchase of the Strand Theatre, of Lexington. This house was formerly owned by the Switow interests of Louisville. It has been learned that an option has been given the Schubert organization on the Strand Theatre at a price of $150,000. John B. Eliott, manager of the Strand, is negotiating for the purchase of the Columbia and Capital Theatres of Frankfort, which is taken to mean that the Schubert deal at Lexington is close to consummation.

Albert Lowenthal Is Dead.

Albert Lowenthal, 60 years of age, manager of the Casino Theatre, on Fourth street, recently died at his residence, 233 South Second street, following a short illness. The Casino is the oldest operating house on Fourth avenue today, and one of the oldest in the State, having been established about 1906.

Royal Theatre Company Dissolves.

Notice has been filed by the Royal Theatre Co., incorporated, to the effect that the corporation has been dissolved and is winding up its business. Louis F. Steuerle is president and Henry Reis is secretary-treasurer. This house is controlled by the Broadway Amusement interests, and will continue operating as a firm.

New Theatre for Owensboro.

At Owensboro, Ky., George A. Bleich has purchased a site on Frederica street, and plans to erect a new theatre, 65 by 136 feet, of Rugby brick, stone facings and trimmings, with main auditorium, balcony and gallery, mirrored lobby and foyer, and costing in the neighborhood of $40,000. Mr. Bleich has been the leading exhibitor of the Western section of the State for several years and controls several houses.

New Bijou Company Incorporated.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., the New Bijou Co., recently incorporated with a capital of $60,000 by J. F. Johnson, Paul J. Kruesi, C. C. Bearden and others, has purchased the old building of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, and plans to convert it into a theatre. Charles C. Bearden, of Chattanooga, has drawn the plans.

To Legalize Sunday Pictures.

Michael Switow, head of the Switow Amusement Co., of Louisville, which operates several theatres in Jeffersonville and New Albany, Ind., is a strong supporter of the movement through which a bill has been introduced into the Indiana legislature to legalize operation of moving picture theatres after 1.30 o'clock p. m. throughout the State on Sundays. Senator McCray, of Marion County, introduced the bill, which has many strong supporters.

Canadian News Letter

By W. M. Gladish.

Music Receiving Greater Attention.

A number of Canadian exhibitors are giving more serious consideration to the subject of music, judging by recent developments. The Allen Theatre, Toronto, leading theatre of the string of Allen theatres throughout the country, recently added vocal numbers to its program. One of the artists engaged during January was Harold Jarvis, Canada's most famous tenor soloist.

The Regent Theatre, Ottawa, added vocal selections by special artists to its bill, starting with the week of January 13. Manager Moxley, of this theatre, declares that all the leading moving picture theatres of the country will find it advisable, sooner or later, to add vocal music to their list of attractions, as the singing rounds out the program and attracts still another class of patrons, he believes.

The Imperial Theatre, Ottawa, had been making use of its large organ exclusively for some time, but now this leading theatre of the Canadian capital has installed a large orchestra. The Imperial also had a singing act starting with the week of January 13, during which week the attraction was "Romance of Tarzan."

Regal Extending Its Holdings.

Interests embodied in Regal Films, Ltd., Canadian moving picture distributors of importance, and the Paramount Theatres Company, Ltd., have acquired still another moving picture theatre in Toronto, the latest addition to its lengthy string being the Family Theatre, Queen Street East and Lee avenue. The proprietor of this theatre was W. F. Sexton, a prominent member of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario.

The Regal interests have been adding to its list of theatres almost weekly and the following houses in Toronto are now controlled: Regent, Strand, New Garden, Teck, St. Julien and Family. The first two named are large downtown houses.

Theatre Notes.

Anouncement is made that the Francais Theatre, Montreal, which was acquired not long ago, will be the home of French Dramatic Stock until further notice. This house was used recently for the presentation of "Hearts of the World" and the "Birth of a Nation."

H. E. Stonge, a Toronto moving picture theatre manager, is now in charge of the Palace Theatre, 1383 Queen Street East. Stonge was the first manager of the Oakwood Theatre and formerly had the U-Kum Theatre.

About those seats you have stored away. Somebody needs them and you are likely to find the customer through an advertisement in The World's Classified.

Producers' and Distributors' News

Nazimova's Sea Story Opens at Rialto Theatre

ALLA NAZIMOVA will appear in the sensational super-production, "Out of the Fog," presented by Richard A. Rowland and Maxwell Karger, at the Rialto Theatre, New York, the week beginning February 9.

The exhibition of this feature in the newest big metropolitan photoplay theatre is but a confirmation of the predictions of the producers that this powerful drama, adapted from the stage play, "'Ception Shoals," by H. Austin Adams, would prove one of the most striking motion picture productions of the year.

A great star in a great play, a drama so masterfully handled that there need be in it only four characters especially prominent, a production hitherto unapproached in the artistry of its presentation and photography—these are the first outstanding features which come to mind in considering "Out of the Fog."

The three principal characters besides Eve, the central figure, are played by the same persons who shared with the star, Mme. Nazimova, the enormous success of "'Ception Shoals" when it was presented a season or so ago at the Princess Theatre, New York. They are Charles Bryant in the role of Phillip Blake; Henry Harmon, whose work on the stage as the religious, fanatical old Job Coffin brought unanimous praise from New York dramatic critics, and Nancy Palmer in the part of Maude Standish.

Despite the ability of this supporting personnel the great burden of making the drama live before the audience falls upon Nazimova. Just as she scored in the stage play and in her many decisive and widespread successes on the screen, the great Russian artist again has contributed something big and significant to the art of acting.

Besides those immediately in the support of the star the unusually excellent cast includes George W. Davis, T. Morse Koupal, Charles Smiley, Tom Blake, Hugh Jeffrey, Dorothy Smoller, J. O'Connor, Harry Weise, Ada Scovill, Marie Gynt and Lydia Wellmore. The direction of the production was intrusted to Albert Capellani, who is at present directing Nazimova in the drama to follow this one, "The Red Lantern."

Cheerful Atmosphere for Fairbanks' Next.

Artistic photography is quite in vogue, but Douglas Fairbanks believes in bright, cheerful backgrounds for his particular type of pictures rather than dim, indefinite settings. It is his theory that to try to spread the gospel of good cheer in a dark room is even more ridiculous than expecting people to laugh during a funeral procession.

Therefore his Artcraft photoplay, "Something for Somebody," will be laid in bright, cheerful interiors, and for his exterior scenes, representing a Mexican settlement, he is having built an idealistic Mexican town, in preference to the typical setting that usually exploits negligence and filth on the part of the natives and is bound to be distasteful to screen patrons. This town is being erected on the side of a California hill, vivid with colorful touches that will be pleasing, and automatically will have its effect on the action of the play.

Marjorie Daw appears opposite Fairbanks. Albert Parker directs.

Hugo Riesenfeld.

Riesenfeld Books Seven Extra Selected Pathes

COMMON CLAY, the A. H. Woods screen production of the prize Harvard play, starring Fannie Ward, which on account of its stage popularity is being widely booked by Pathe Exchange, Inc., has been selected by Hugo Riesenfeld, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York, as the attraction at the Rialto for the week of March 2. And in addition seven of the Pathe extra selected star photoplays have been booked for the same theatre, covering a period from March 9 to July 27. They feature Fannie Ward, Frank Keenan, Bessie Love and Bryant Washburn.

Those who have witnessed private showings of "Common Clay," which is a Pathe special, have been unstinted in their praise of both the virile, intensified photo version and the notably fine emotional work of Miss Ward.

Teddy and Pepper Are Featured.

Teddy, the Great Dane dog which has been seen in so many Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies, is one of the stars of "Rip & Stitch, Tailors," the next release in the series, which is scheduled for February 9.

Teddy does some things in this picture that never would be believed without the film to prove it.

Pepper, the Maltest cat, and the adorable two-year-old youngster who was seen in "Her First Mistake," are also conspicuous, not to mention the featured comedians, Harry Gribbon, Myrtle and Hughie Mack.

Select Announces Three Productions for February

SELECT announces three new productions for distribution during February, with Constance Talmadge, Mitchell Lewis and Alice Brady as the stars. These attraction are, respectively, "Romance and Arabella," "Children of Banishment" and "The World to Live In."

"Romance and Arabella" is a screen version of William J. Hurlbut's popular stage success of three seasons ago. Miss Talmadge is seen in the part of Arabella Cadenhouse, a young widow, who is determined that her second marriage shall be filled with romance. She has suitors by the score, among whom is the very prosaic "Bill." Harrison Ford, who makes his sixth successive appearance as Miss Talmadge's leading man, is the "Bill" in the case, while the other members of the cast are Gertrude Claire, Monte Blue, Arthur Carew, Antrim Short and James Neill. The direction is by Walter Edwards.

"Children of Banishment" is a screen version of Francis William Sullivan's novel of the same name, which was prepared for the screen and directed by Norval MacGregor. As in "The Barrier," the picture which made Mitchell Lewis famous, Mr. Lewis is a rugged type of Northwoodsman who is interested in a "Y" of valuable timber land. There is a love interest in the story—and a fight—and, according to reports which emanated from the lumber camp in the high Sierra, where "Children of Banishment" was made, the scrap is one of the kind on which "Mitch" Lewis' reputation is based. The other members of the company are Bessie Eyton, Herbert Heyes, Arthur Morrison, Tom Bates, George Nichols and Jane Keckly.

Alice Brady's "The World to Live In" is by W. Carey Wonderly. It is the story of a girl who works by day and plays by night, one of the "tinpan" sort with which New York is filled.

Miss Brady is supported by an unusually capable cast in "The World to Live In," including Anne Cornwall, Virginia Hammond, Zyllah Shannon, W. P. Carlton, Earl Metcalfe and Robert Schable. The scenario was written by Margaret Turnbull, and the direction was by Charles Maigne.

Vitagraph's Billboard Campaign Is On.

Billboards over the country are beginning to show the effects of the monster campaign exhibitors are putting over in the interests of their first showing of "The Man of Might," latest of the Vitagraph serials.

Exhibitors have been alive to the unusual advertising aids extended them, and scores of showmen have begun an intensive campaign on billboards and in newspapers.

The rush of bookings of the serial, which again brings to the fore the athlete-star, William Duncan, with his all-star supporting cast, which includes Edith Johnson and Joe Ryan, whose past Vitagraph serializations have won for them quite a niche in the affections of screen fans, have been beyond the most sanguine anticipations of Vitagraph.

The first episode is entitled "The Riven Flag," and graphically introduces the plot which grows in interest and in suspense with each succeeding episode.

Lois Weber's Latest Film Is Strong Western Story

MRS. CHARLIE CHAPLIN, nee Mildred Harris, is the featured star of "When a Girl Loves," a Jewel production soon to be given a general release. Lois Weber wrote the story and directed the film play.

"When a Girl Loves" was produced under the tentative title, "The Man Who Dared God." The theme of the story was both unusual and forceful. William Stowell, leading man for Dorothy Phillips in her Universal and Jewel productions, is cast as Miss Harris' male lead in this offering. Stowell is cast as the leader of a band of outlaws.

In the Chicago territory, where "When a Girl Loves" has been given an early release, the Jewel film has proved an extraordinary box office magnet, according to exhibitors' reports.

New Griffith Story Is of Youth.

The girl who stayed at home and wrote letters to her boy "over there" is one of the conspicuous figures in D. W. Griffith's new Artcraft. The production is in seven reels. The story deals with the average American boy and some types of American girls, and it is predicted that it will find a sympathetic reception on the part of Young America in general and will be watched by the older people with the keenest of good-natured interest.

When the new feature is released it is possible that two new stars will find their way into the list of the fans' favorites. Carol Dempster, a pupil of Ruth St. Denis and student of a well-known school of expression, is the balance opposite Clare Seymour, who came to the Griffith studio after several years of stage experience and several appearances in short comedy subjects on the screen.

Two Rupert Julian Features Announced.

Two Rupert Julian features are on the Universal schedule for February 10, "Creaking Stairs," featuring Mary MacLaren, supported by Jack Mulhall, is the special attraction, and the other is "The Millionaire Pirate," featuring Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford. "Creaking Stairs" is Miss MacLaren's first film play in three months, while "The Millionaire Pirate" brings Ruth Clifford and Mr. Salisbury together on the screen for the first time in over eight months. The MacLaren vehicle relates a story of love in the modern home and of a woman's love of finery, while the Salisbury-Clifford play deals with piracy, ancient and modern, as adapted from the Hungarian story by Emil Nyitray.

Viola Dana Plays Tomboy Vampire.

Viola Dana in her latest Metro feature, "Diana Ardway," has an entirely novel role, that of a tomboy vampire. The story concerns the efforts of a girl who is just about to grow up, still full of the spirit of early youth, to cast aside on occasion her undignified exuberance and assume in its place some degree of stateliness and manner. Supporting Miss Dana in "Diana Ardway" is Milton Sills, who appears on the Metro screen through arrangement with Goldwyn.

"Diana Ardway" is an adaptation by John H. Collins from the novel by Van Zo Post. In the supporting cast are Lloyd Hughes, Alice Knowland, Frank Currier, Lilie Leslie and George King.

Arbuckle's Next Is "Love."

"Love" is the title and love is the theme of Fatty Arbuckle's next Paramount comedy, released February 16, which promises to be one of the most amusing ever provided by the rotund comedian. Winifred Westover is leading woman. The story is a concoction by "Fatty" himself, and the comedian was his own director.

Scene from "The Eleventh Commandment" (Exhibitors' Mutual).

MacGregor, Lewis' Director, Knows Backwoodsmen

DURING the filming of Mitchell Lewis' forthcoming Select picture, "Children of Banishment," which was completed on location in the Yosemite National Park Reserve last week, the big Select Pictures star had the services of Norval MacGregor as director.

Like Mitchell Lewis, Norval MacGregor, who is a "canny Scot," has spent a great deal of his life in the Northwoods, and is thoroughly familiar with the life and customs of backwoodsmen. When Mitchell Lewis left New York for the coast more than a month ago he had not selected his director, but it was known at that time that he was trying to obtain the services of Mr. MacGregor, and shortly after Mr. Lewis reached his Los Angeles office he obtained a wire from Mr. MacGregor saying that the latter would report.

Norval MacGregor is one of the best known directors in the moving picture business. He has been associated with the industry for more than seven years, and before this he was a prominent figure in the life of the spoken stage, having been actor, manager and director. He played in stock with Rose Coghlan, Henry E. Dixey and Mauricc Barrymore, and later he became associated with Nance O'Neil, first as her leading man and then as her manager and stage director.

With this wealth of dramatic experience, Mr. MacGregor turned to the photoplay industry, starting as Kathryn Williams' director at the old Selig Studio. Mr. MacGregor was then engaged to direct Hobart Bosworth at Universal City, and produced for him "Colorado" and "The Sea Wolf." Last year he was enticed back to the speaking stage by John Steven McGroarty's offer to him of the leading part of Father Junipero Serra in the "Mission Play." Then came the call from Mitchell Lewis, and Mr. MacGregor left the footlights to join the company of actors who went with Mr. Lewis to the Sierras.

McGrail to Play in Pathe Serial.

Walter McGrail, who has just been engaged to play opposite Pearl White in her new Pathe serial, "In Secret," by Robert W. Chambers, is one of the best known young screen actors. He has been featured in many successful screen productions and made a hit in the famous O. Henry series. Among the recent pictures in which he played are "Within the Law," "Brown of Harvard," "Over There" and "Womanhood." This will not be the first Robert W. Chambers picture in which Mr. McGrail has played, as he was a member of the cast that supported Alice Joyce in "The Business of Life." Mr. McGrail has had many engagements on the speaking stage and appeared in vaudeville and in several Shubert musical productions.

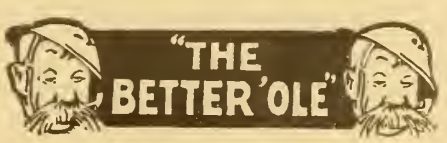
Prepare Art Advertising for "Lion and the Mouse"

EXPLOITATION aids that represent the last word in craftsmanship are being prepared by the Vitagraph Company in behalf of "The Lion and the Mouse," the big special production in which Alice Joyce appears, scheduled for release on February 24. Extraordinary activity along this line is taken by the observant technical clan that tackles the typographical and color problems heaped on it by fertile advertising schemers as a sure indication of Vitagraph's confident belief that in "The Lion and the Mouse" it has truly a "special feature."

Departing from usual practice and appropriation limits the Vitagraph Company has placed a record order for a full line of hand-colored lobby prints, both in 22 by 28 and 11 by 14 sizes.

Not alone is the company extending itself in the direction of lobby embellishment, but a striking herald has been devised and the order place for an unusual line of paper. The drama depicted by these sheets is heightened by the sympathetic color treatment given the subjects.

All in all, Vitagraph's campaign to bring itself and its clientele a merited return on its big investment in "The Lion and the Mouse" strikes a new note in art standards as applied to photoplay advertising.



Bessie Barriscale in "A Trick of Fate" (Exhibitors' Mutual).

Doris Kenyon Makes Horse Yawn at Great Expense

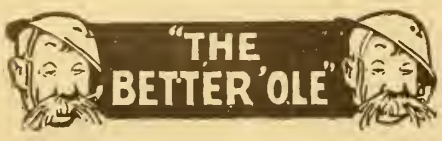
THE little difficulties of picturemaking, not to mention the item of expense that go into production, is made clear by Doris Kenyon, now heading her own company, De Luxe Pictures, Inc., who tells how it cost a total of $1,150 (an average of $100 per film foot) to make a horse yawn, down in North Carolina, that her forthcoming production, "Twilight," might be exact in realism and true to nature. Listen to Miss Kenyon herself as she explains:

"We had started out early one morning and the first scene that we took showed Frank Mills, my leading man, and I, returning from a buggy ride. In 'Twilight,' I am a mountain girl, and Mr. Mills is a lumberman in love with me. In our parts we were so engrossed in each other that we failed to notice when we reached the barn. We finally realized where we were and jumped out, only to renew the love-making while we were standing at the horse's head. It was while this was being taken that the horse accidentally yawned. Of course, the camera was not in action at the time, but we all realized what a splendid bit of comedy it would be to get that yawn into the picture.

"J. Searle Dawley, the director, decided to try for it. All other work was stopped and for eight hours every member of the company practiced every artifice imaginable to make that old white horse yawn. We worked mental telepathy, auto-suggestion and moral suasion. But still that horse merely looked bored. We yawned ourselves until our jaws ached and offered a reward of $50 to any one in the neighborhood who could make the horse yawn.

"All of this time the camera was trained upon him for a close-up, but he heeded it not. Finally, when the sun was just about to disappear and we were to give up in despair, the old horse switched his tail, looked around at Mr. Mills and me, who had been standing there all this time, and then gave three of the most disgusted yawns in which a bored horse ever indulged.

"There was no more work for us that day, but we all felt perfectly satisfied for we had secured one of the best bits of comedy that ever went into a picture. Just wait until you see it and I think you will agree with me."



"The Girl Problem" (Vitagraph)

Corinne Griffith is said to have given herself the greatest artistic boost of the year by her work in "The Girl Problem," a forthcoming Vitagraph release. The play was especially written for Miss Griffith by Joseph Franklin Poland, and in its interpretation brings to the surface not only the ultimate graces and charms of Miss Griffith, but affords striking evidence of Kenneth Webb's directorial abilities and technical proficiency.

There is much artistic overlapping and blending of scene in the picture, and the apparently unconscious prettiness of pose and masterly composition of pictures that occur in the course of the action of the play, without any divergence from the story, will make the film a joy to all with an artistic eye as well as for those looking only to the story for entertainment.

In support of Miss Griffith will be seen Walter McGrail, Julia Swayne Gordon, Eulalie Jensen, William David, Agnes Ayres, Frank Kingsley and Harold Foshay.

Another Dual Role for Walthall.

Henry B. Walthall has another dual role in "The Long Lane's Turning," his forthcoming National Film Corporation production for release through the Exhibitors' Mutual exchanges. "The Long Lane's Turning" is a photoplay version of the novel written by Hallie Erminie Rives (Mrs. Post Wheeler), and was made into screen form by E. Magnus Ingleton, and produced as a dramatic five-reeler under the able directorship of Louis William Chaudet.

"The Long Lane's Turning" is particularly timely because of the attention it directs to the prohibition legislation which its author with her customary foresight saw so far in advance of its actual incorporation into the constitution of the United States.

Mollie King, "Suspense" Star, Appears in Broadway Play

MOLLIE KING, the star of Frank Reicher's mystery drama, "Suspense," which will be released as the fourth of Independent Sales Corporation's famous 10-20-30 series and distributed through the Film Clearing House, seems to alternate her time between studio and stage.

Recently, when Miss King was gaining popularity through a serial production in which she starred at the same time, she was gathering fresh laurels as a headliner on the Keith circuit.

After completing "Suspense," we now find Miss King as the soubrette "Joy" of "Good Morning, Judge," which was given its premiere at the Shubert (New York) Theatre, Thursday night, Feb. 6.

In "Suspense" Miss King has a part that is directly opposite to the role of the light- hearted little "Joy" of the musical play, in that it is an intensely dramatic role, giving Miss King every opportunity to display her wonderful ability as the daring heroine of Isabel Ostrander's celebrated story.

Bigger Sunshine Comedies Under Way.

In accordance with the announced plan of William Fox to make his Sunshine Comedies even bigger and faster than they have been, two new comedy directors began work this week at Hollywood on two comedies that are expected by the Fox offices to mark a new era in film fun.

Jack Blystone began directing "Virtuous Husband," which, according to report, will have more plot and more hilarious gags than are usually found in film comedies. This picture also will show lions and other animals in action in a mirth-provoking way.

What is described as one of the biggest comedies ever attempted for the screen is in preparation on the Fox lot at Hollywood. Fifty carpenters and a force of electricians and other workmen are busy erecting the sets for this production—photographing for which will begin in the near future. The nature of the picture and the title will be withheld until the production is ready for release; but the plot is said to be unique in motion picture comedy.

Fred Fishback, who has been added to the William Fox staff of Sunshine Comedy directors, has this production in charge.

Lillian Walker Tames Lions.

Lillian Walker, who heads her own company, has played many varied roles in her career before the camera, but it remains for "The Love Hunger," her next picture, to cast her in the role of a lion tamer. Miss Walker is nothing if not game, and even though her knees seemed inclined to wobble and her heart was beating faster than usual, she entered the cage with five lions and even put her arms around the biggest and fiercest representative of the king of the jungle.

The film will be released on February 24 by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation. The story is adapted from J. Breckenridge Ellis' novel, "Fran," which was directed by William P. S. Earle.

Report Heavy Bookings on "Ruling Passions."

With contracts from first-run theatres in the foremost cities in the country calling for five, six and seven-day runs, Select's big special attraction, "Ruling Passions," written and directed by Abraham S. Schomer, promises to be one of Select's most extensively distributed specials of the season. According to the tabulation of reports from Select's different branches, booking on this special seems to be running about even in the various sections of the country.

Cast Announced for "Upstairs and Down"

"LET'S not announce this as an all star cast," Myron Selznick, president of the Selznick Pictures Corporation, said in a night letter to the New York office of the company, in which was given the names of the players who will support Miss Olive Thomas in the production, "Upstairs and Down." "We are much more entitled to this description than many of those who use it, but it has become so hackneyed that it means nothing. The players in this cast are well enough known so that their names stand for real talent without being called an all star aggregation."

The principal role in "Upstairs and Down," played by Olive Thomas, is that of Alice Chesterton, a flirtatious young woman who is always looking for adventure, and who finally finds all she is looking for in the person of Captain Terrence O'Keefe, a young Irish officer who is in America buying horses for the British Army. This role is played by Robert Ellis, who played it in the original stage production.

The part of Betty Chesterton, Alice's sister, is played by Rosemary Theby. Mary Charleson will be seen as a French maid who takes a prominent part in the escapades of Alice and Terrence. Andrew Robeson will be seen as Sprang, a butler. David Butler, who plays the part of Alice's boob sweetheart, had the same role in the stage production.

Other members of the cast are Bertram Grassby, Kathleen Kirkham, Donald MacDonald, Mildred Reardon, Harold Miller, Miss Travers and Ernest Pasque.

This cast was organized by Director Charles Giblyn in Los Angeles and work has been begun on "Upstairs and Down" at the Brunton Studios. It is expected that this picture will be completed and ready for the market by the middle of March, and the intention is to have one release every six weeks thereafter, making eight in the year.

Big Fist Fight in "The Border Legion."

Stirring fist fights are not uncommon in screen productions, but for ferocity and damage wrought the battle of brawn and science staged in "The Border Legion," the picturization of Zane Grey's widely read story, will stand as a record to be punched at by aspiring screen fighters for a long time to come.

One of the principals in the thrilling battle is Eugene Strong, and it took but a few wallops from his mighty fist to convince his opponent, Russell Simpson, that he wasn't misnamed. Strong has the role of Jim Cleeve, sweetheart of Joan Randall, played by Blanche Bates, who is making her first screen appearance as co-star with Hobart Bosworth in "The Border Legion," which Goldwyn is distributing. Simpson is cast as Overland Bradley, a miner who also covets Joan.

"Fixing It" Changed to "The Love Hunger."

The title of Lillian Walker's second picture on the Hodkinson program has been changed from "Fixing It" to "The Love Hunger." This title has been chosen because it is believed to better describe the heroine's search for a home and her determination to keep it, in spite of obstacles.

The action of "The Love Hunger" takes place in a small town where the monotony of country life is relieved when the circus comes to town. In the role of a lion tamer Miss Walker has one of the most thrilling and dangerous parts in her long career as a comedienne of the screen.

Hampton Builds Another Inclosed Stage.

With the rapid increase of work at the Jesse D. Hampton productions studios in Hollywood, and to make room for the coming of H. B. Warner and his company, it has been found necessary to add another inclosed stage, not only to protect the sets and properties from the rainy season, but to get better light effects.

Hampton is now producing features for Exhibitors' Mutual release, starring William Desmond and Grace Darmond. In a few weeks H. B. Warner will be on the scene to begin the first picture under his new contract which calls for eight productions.

Alice Brady in "The World to Live In." (Select).

Big Serial Publication for Select's "Belle of New York"

SELECT PICTURES announces that it has arranged an extensive newspaper advertising campaign to back up the serial publication of Marion Davies' forthcoming picture, "The Belle of New York," which will be published serially in thirteen newspapers in the leading cities of America, beginning on February 9, in the Philadelphia North American.

To back up this big display of story matter each of the thirteen named newspapers will carry, in different issues, advertising totaling three thousand lines for each paper, with the exception of the Philadelphia North American, which will carry four thousand lines to be distributed over the period during which "The Belle of New York" is playing at Pittsburgh and vicinity theatres. This amount of space will be divided into quarter-page displays.

Altogether the thirteen newspapers included in Select's extensive advertising campaign have a total circulation estimated at more than three million, averaging in reading circulation more than twelve million.

Aubrey Completes Vitagraph Comedy.

Razors and roller-coasters, coquettes and corsairs of the sky—all are mingled to make laughs in the first of the new series of comedies Jimmie Aubrey is making for Vitagraph. His inaugural Big V Special comedy is entitled "Soapsuds and Sapheads" and has just been finished. It is now in the assembling rooms at the West Coast studio, having been made on the Pacific seaboard with a wide diversity of beautiful locations.

Pathe Selected for Turner & Dahnken.

The Turner & Dahnken Circuit of California has signed contracts booking all of the Pathe extra selected star photoplays which feature Fannie Ward, Frank Keenan, Bessie Love and Bryant Washburn. "Infatuation," starring Gaby Deslys, which proved a big success, is also included in the booking.

Pathe Has Three Serials Scheduled for Issue Soon

PATHE'S announced policy of making the year 1919 the greatest in its serial history is being adhered to. Three serials are now in course of production, all of them scheduled for early release during the current year.

Work has been started on the most ambitious serial project in the history of the company—the Pearl White serial by Robert W. Chambers, "In Secret." Director George B. Seitz has changed his base of operations from Pathe's Jersey City studio to the Pathe studio at 134th street and Park avenue, where the first scenes of "In Secret" are now being taken. Miss White has returned from Palm Beach. Meanwhile scenes in which the star does not take part are being filmed. Mr. Seitz, who, in addition to being the director, is also president of the producing company which will make this serial, lays particular emphasis on the fact that this is to be a serial de luxe. The settings are to be done on a plane with those of the best five-reel features.

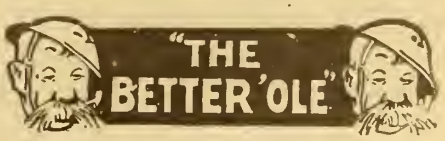
Out at Glendale, Cal., the Astra Company is making headway on Ruth Roland's new serial. The first episodes have been completed and sent on to Pathe's home office, and Director Ellis is rushing the work so that the serial can follow "The Lightning Raider" on the screens.

Anne Luther and Charles Hutchison and the members of their company are hard at work at the Crystal studio in the Bronx on "The Great Gamble," the third of the serial trio which are being produced for Pathe. This serial is being produced by Western Photoplays, Inc., and is being directed by Joseph Golden, who is also its author.

In addition to this trio of productions Pathe has two serials on the screens now. Pearl White's "The Lightning Raider" and Diando's "The Terror of the Range," featuring Betty Compson and George Larkin.

Shumway Plays Role of Hero.

L. C. Shumway, last seen on the Hodkinson program as leading man opposite Bessie Barriscale in "Two-Gun Betty," plays the role of the hero in "The Love Hunger," starring Lillian Walker.



Scene from "Making a Nation Fit" (Official).

"Shadows of Suspicion" Shows Lockwood at Best

NEVER before in the course of his screen career has Harold Lockwood, the popular Screen Classics, Inc., star, been seen to so splendid advantage as in his latest picture of intrigue, adventure and romance, "Shadows of Suspicion," to be released in February by Metro. It was written by George Gibbs and adapted for the screen by Finis Fox. The picture was made under the direction of Edwin Carewe.

It is a story of wide scope, giving the principal actor free range for his unusual abilities. Set against a background of luxury, the drama is shot with many moments of absorbing tenseness and remarkable power. There is action, atmosphere, mystery and romance throughout.

The settings are magnificent throughout. The earlier scenes were filmed upon one of the most beautiful private estates in the East. There are Italian gardens, through whose foliage one may see a fountain playing in the sunlight, rose-bordered paths winding through formal hedges of box, wide smooth lawns, and, above all rises a great country house, ivy-clad, almost feudal in its grandeur.

The interiors are no less fine. Never has a more convincing air of restrained luxury and good-living been translated to the screen. The great dinner scene at Heathcote Manor, with the hall's oak panelling, the massive silver service on the table, the liveried servants and the striking appearance of the guests is an artistic achievement.

The merit of the cast supporting Lockwood is responsible for much of this Naomi Childers, who plays opposite the star, gives a particularly effective and charming performance. And no less commendable is the work of the rest of the players: Helen Lindroth, as Lady Betty Heathcote; Henneth Kealing, as Goeffrey Mathers; William Bailey, as the traitorous Captain Byfield; Bigelow Cooper, as the ringleader of the German spy system, and Capt. Leslie Peacock, distinguished veteran of the Boer War, as the chief of Scotland Yard's secret service.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle has again given his art to the Metro screen in the decorative titles. His work may be recalled in the Nazimova picture, "Revelation." He, too, did the scenic effects for the picture production of Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird."

Pathe Selects Title for Serial.

After many long discussions and the consideration of hundreds of titles by Pathe's scenario and sales departments, a title has at last been obtained for Ruth Roland's new fifteen-episode serial which will go on the screens in the spring immediately following Pearl White in "The Lightning Raider." The serial has been titled "The Tiger's Trail."

Pathe executives believe that they have selected a name for this serial which will have a splendid exploitation value and at the same time comprehensively sum up the Arthur B. Reeve-Charles Logue story. The entire action centers around a band of East Indian natives who worship the Tiger as their God. A live Bengal tiger is one of the important members of the cast.

Robert Ellis is Miss Roland's director, and the cast includes Harry G. Moody, George Field, Frederick Kohler, Mark Strong, George Larkin and Easter Walters.

Another Good Role for Lytell.

A wronged man's long fight for restitution and revenge is the basis of "The Blind Man's Eyes," a Bert Lytell picture under production at the Metro studios in Hollywood, with John Ince directing. As Hugh Overton, also known as Phillip D. Eaton, Lytell has a strong acting part.

Frank Currier, veteran character actor, and a familiar figure in many Metro films, has the role of a blind lawyer; Naomi Childers plays "the blind man's eyes," and Joseph Kilgour is Matthew Matron, the money master and rogue.

Change Title of Priscilla Dean's Latest.

The title of Priscilla Dean's latest Universal Special Attraction has been changed from "The Rose of the Night," its working title, to "The Wicked Darling." Tod Browning directed the film, and Wellington Playter is seen as Miss Dean's leading man. "The Wicked Darling" is scheduled for release February 24, but was given a prerelease showing at the Broadway Theatre, New York, beginning February 2.

Famous Players to Release "Woman Thou Gavest Me"

THE Woman Thou Gavest Me," Hall Caine's famous novel, is soon to appear on the screen as a Famous Players-Lasky production. A strong cast has been assembled in order that the powerfully drawn characters of the novelist may not lose any of their original quality.

Readers of Caine's work will recall that the woman, Mary; Lord Raa, her husband, and Conrad, the young explorer, constitute not only the foundation of the story, but present in themselves unique examples of strongly defined character delineation.

Katherine MacDonald, remembered as Lady Diana in "The Squaw Man," has been engaged for the role of Mary, a part requiring the ability to win sympathy and keep it to the end.

The explorer of the novel, Mary's lover, young, but with the romantic element of his youthful self dominated by stronger and more virile qualities, is to be portrayed by Milton Sills, unquestionably suited for the part.

Jack Holt, always able to clothe himself in the garb of the aristocratic young libertine, was decided upon as the man to present Lord Raa, in which unpleasant role he will find opportunity to show his dramatic powers.

Theodore Roberts, whose portrayal of "old" personalities is well remembered from his many successes in white-headed roles, should make another success in the part of Mary's father. He will appear as a stern, unyielding commoner who has risen to a position of wealth and attending power, and although previous roles have shown him with a more or less kindly disposition, he should be effective in this newest part.

Next Gladys Leslie Film from Popular Novel.

Gladys Leslie, her director, Jack Gleason, and an artistic and technical entourage has just returned from a Southern trip in the screening of "Miss Dulce from Dixie," work on which is in progress at the Brooklyn studios of Vitagraph. The story is from the popular novel of the same title by Lulah Ragsdale.

Among those accompanying Miss Leslie and her director on the excursion into the Old South were Jack Abbott, assistant director; Charles Kent, who plays Miss Leslie's father in the new photoplay; Jules Cronjager, cameraman, and Emma Robinson, Miss Leslie's colored maid, who takes part in the play.

"The Winning Girl" for Shirley Mason.

Now comes Shirley Mason, the tiny Famous Players-Lasky star, in a brand new Paramount picture called "The Winning Girl." It was Miss Mason's first picture made in California. The story is by George Weston. Will M. Ritchey wrote the scenario. It is a wholesome story of home life.

Niles Welch is the hero, and there is a fine supporting cast. Robert G. Vignola directed.

"Berlin" Film Does Big Business.

Milton Feld, of the Universal Kansas City exchange, has received word from Manager N. B. Morris, of the Morris Theatre, Mankato, Kan., that "Crashing Through to Berlin" drew packed houses January 6 and 7 despite the fact that all roads leading to Mankato, a city of 14,000, were in poor condition, keeping many from coming into the city for the showing.

Moving Picture World covers its field like a picture covers the screen. It is read in every country and in every clime.

"Under Four Flags" Is a Big Film for Small Towns

IT is being pointed out to the exhibitors of the smaller towns by the Division of Films that they are offered an unusual opportunity to both make money and secure popularity for their houses by showing the great victory picture of the Government, "Under Four Flags."

It is now a part of motion picture history that this picture created a new record in the industry by its distinctive feat in its presentation in New York City. The people of the nation's largest city displayed a keen desire for this war fact picture. Similar interest was displayed by the patrons of a number of the country's largest picture houses, the managers of which all wrote glowing letters to the Division of Films relating their success and testifying to the true worth of the picture and to its remarkable box office value.

The Division of Films believes that the people of the smaller cities and thousands of towns, both the motion picture fans and those who are not, are as keenly interested in the facts of the war as are the people of the larger cities.

Because of its great and proven box office value, "Under Four Flags" gives the exhibitors of the smaller cities and towns an opportunity to help both their house and bank account, and at the same time to give their patrons what they want. The Government rental is fixed on a basis that allows the exhibitor a large margin of profit, and is so arranged that he can play the picture at his regular admission prices and gather his profits. This feature has been recognized by exhibitors throughout the country, and the Division of Films states that bookings from the smaller cities and towns are coming in at a rapid rate.

Shirley Mason Having the Mechinics of Photography Explained to Her by James C. Van Trees. Director Walter Edwards at Right.

Novelty and Thrill in "Hitting the Pike."

There is novelty and thrill in "Hitting the Pike," a Rothacker outdoor picture released by Exhibitors' Mutual.

The audience literally "rides the jack-rabbit" at Riverview Park, Chicago, in one of the scenes of the reel, and it does it so realistically that the average spectator has a hard time averting dizziness.

The cameraman who shot the scene mounted his camera on the front of a "jack-rabbit" car, and when the car began to do its hilarious stunts he simply cranked.

The spectator goes over the eccentric route of the giant coaster with all the thrills and none of the danger of a personal trip. He makes the curves and does the dips as though he were perched on the dashboard of the coaster.

Expect Big Business on New Morey Film.

A new Morey record means much as a matter of achievement to the sales forces of Vitagraph. Such a record is predicted in regard to "Silent Strength," Vitagraph's imminent Morey release. Much has been said and written about the controversion of all established rules of double-exposure, an unprecendental technical feat which is accomplished in the picture, and this undoubtedly has something to do with the flood of inquiries and advance bookings which have been flowing in steadily increasing volume into home and branch offices of that company.

Vitagraph points out, however, that the technical novelty of the film is but an incident; the big success of the drama will result from the power and poignancy of it as a whole. Harry T. Morey is said to have a role surpassing all his past characterizations in the demands it makes on his talents.

The film is to be seen on the screens beginning February 17. It was directed by Paul Scardon, and in support of Mr. Morey are seen Betty Blythe, Robert Gaillard, Bernard Siegel, Herbert Pattee, James Costello and others.

Peerless Starts First World Picture.

World Pictures announce that the Peerless Company is making a super-picture which will be released by the World entitled "Glories of the Sea," the exteriors of which are to be made in Boston and Cuba. It will be in seven reels, and will require about eight weeks to make it. An all-star cast, including Montagu Love, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley, Carlyle Blackwell, Johnny Hines, Madge Evans and Jack Drumier, will play the principal parts. This will be the first picture especially made for the World by the Peerless Company under the agreement recently made whereby the Peerless Company will make six pictures a year to be distributed by the World.

Desmond to Make Comedy-Dramas.

William Desmond, Jesse D. Hampton's star, whose productions are released through the Exhibitors' Mutual exchanges, will devote his talent in the future to producing comedy drama. Stories with a tinge of the romantic or with a Western flavor, are favored by Desmond, who thus far has contributed "Life's a Funny Proposition" to the list of Exhibitors' Mutual successes. For his next offering, Desmond has selected "The Prodigal Liar," a story of the West from the pen of the popular George Elwood Jenks.

Betty Compson in the supporting cast has an important part as the girl from the East.

Harold Lloyd Puts On "Ask Father."

If it is so, as the newspapers declare, that a great wave of matrimony will follow the return of the American Expeditionary Force—and the boys are coming in rapidly—the Rolin comedy, "Ask Father," featuring Harold Lloyd, should prove immensely popular with the returning soldiers. It is a brisk satire, which shows the misadventures of the boy and "The Girl," Harold Lloyd in his own spectacled self and vivacious Bebe Daniels. Much of the business is strikingly original and, once started, the laugh-making goes at high speed. "Ask Father" will be released by Pathe on February 9.

Goldwyn Program Offers Three Strong Adaptations

OCCASIONALLY the gods smile on a picture producing organization and permit it to release an unbroken chain of productions fore-ordained to success. Such an event now comes in the career of Goldwyn, which is releasing, as the forerunner of its spring season, Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins," Pauline Frederick in "The Woman on the Index" and Rex Beach's "The Brand," with Kay Laurell and Russell Simpson.

To Release "Sis Hopkins" February 16.

"Sis Hopkins," which is released February 16, is the peak screen achievement of Mabel Normand. This perennial old favorite of the stage, the comedy that provided Rose Melville with her greatest role for thirteen successive seasons, has become such a remarkably fine and laughable production that Rose Melville, herself, when seeing it, turned to Mabel Normand and said: "My child, I would give anything I possess to play 'Sis' on the screen as you have played her. You are going to make millions applaud and love her all over the world."

Into the screen picturization of the country waif who blossomed like a weed and grew up like a flower have been introduced several novelties both of drama and technique that could never have been attained in the play. This production was directed by Clarence G. Badger, and supporting Miss Normand are Thomas Jefferson as "Paw" Hopkins, John Bowers as Ridy Scarboro, her sweetheart; Sam De Grasse as Vibert, Eugenie Ford as Miss Peckover and others.

Miss Frederick's First Goldwyn.

Pauline Frederick's first Goldwyn picture, "The Woman on the Index," is an acquisition from the legitimate theatre. The play is the joint work of two successful dramatists, Lillian Trimble Bradley and George Broadhurst, and it had a successful run at the opening of last year's theatrical season at the 48th Street Theatre, New York, besides runs in other cities. This play contained all of the emotional elements that Goldwyn and Miss Frederick wished her first production under the Goldwyn name to have. It is a story of love and intrigue, with a well sustained mystery or surprise element and a variety of production novelties, for which Williard Mack, as the author of the scenario, is mainly responsible. The direction is by Hobart Henley, and supporting Miss Frederick are Wyndham Standing as leading man, Willard Mack as the revolutionary propagandist and Jere Austin. This production is released February 23.

Rex Beach's "The Brand" is a big action drama of the Yukon directed by Reginald Barker. It is issued in seven reels, because, when completed, the Goldwyn editorial department and Mr. Beach could not find a spot anywhere in which the length could be shortened.

"The Brand" a Drama of the Yukon.

"The Brand" is a vivid story of love and retribution in gold-mad Alaska. The central figure of McGill is played by Russell Simpson, one of the greatest character actors of the screen. Kay Laurell, making her debut on the screen, plays the role of Alice Andrews, the girl in as primitive a triangle as ever found its place in drama, and Robert McKim, one of the screen's best villains, has the role of Bob Barclay. Issued as a regular number in the Goldwyn production output, every exhibitor will have a big "special" production to offer to his patrons and one of the most ideal pictures of the past two years for long runs and heavy exploitation. "The Brand" is released everywhere March 2.

These three productions are but the forerunners of the strongest sequence of big Goldwyn productions that the organization has had since its formation two years ago. They possess all of the technical style and beauty that has been associated with Goldwyn, as well as the power of brilliant authorship and successful direction.

Lubliner & Trinz Like Prizma.

The following telegram was received by Ricord Gradwell, president and general manager of the World Film Corporation, from Lubliner & Trinz, managers of the Pantheon Theatre, Chicago, Ill.:

"Pantheon, on opening with Prizma Sunday, broke the house record. Thousands of movie fans from every section of city crowded the lobby and street before doors were open, and the hold-out was continuous from opening until nine-thirty at night. Enthusiastic expressions of approval from patrons extremely gratifying to us. With the advent of Prizma Pictures we believe you have reached the supreme achievement of the motion picture art, and certainly should offer exhibitors greatest opportunity of their theatrical career."

Finish Seventh Photoplaylet.

William Courtenay and Jane Grey, featured in "The Inner Circle," the seventh photoplaylet of the Stage Women's Green Room Series, have the past week been putting the finishing touches on the film play at the Estee studios, New York, under the direction of George W. Terwilliger. Richard Turner, Alphonz Ethier, Charles Wells and Lorraine Frost are in support of the two stars. Wallace Clifton is the author of the film story, and it was scenarioized by Calder Johnston.

Through an error it was announced last week that Fay Bainter was featured in "The Inner Circle." Miss Bainter recently signified her willingness to appear in one of the Green Room pictures, but found her stage appearances and other duties would not permit her to work in the studios. Hence, Miss Grey was selected to play opposite Mr. Courtenay in "The Inner Circle."

Shows Opening of Peace Conference.

The first pictures of the formal opening of the peace conference are contained in Hearst News No. 6, recently released through Universal exchanges.

This release shows in addition to the ceremonies the arrival of the most prominent diplomats at the hall where the peace conference is in session. Close-ups of President Wilson as he is greeted by M. Pichon, French foreign minister; President Poincare, of France; Col. House, Secretary of State Lansing, Baron Sonnino, Italian minister of foreign affairs; David Lloyd George and Arthur Balfour, of Great Britain.

U. K. Whipple, special cinematographic representative with the American peace delegation, who secured the pictures of the peace conference opening, has followed President Wilson to France, England and Italy, obtaining some of the best news films ever taken. It is expected Mr. Whipple will return to the United States with the President's party in about a week.

Stage and Screen Show "Better 'Ole."

World Pictures announce that on March 16, "The Better 'Ole,' screen version of Bruce Bairnsfather's cartoons, will be released throughout the United States. This will mark the distribution of the picture, which in play form is a great success in Broadway's theatricals. There are now five companies playing throughout the United States, including the organization at present running at the Cort Theatre, New York, to capacity houses. This is the first time in the history of the motion picture industry where a play and a screen version of the same subject will run simultaneously.

Liberty Theatres Book "Lafayette" Film.

"Lafayette, We Come," the big spectacular peace production starring Dolores Cassinnelli and E. K. Lincoln, an affiliated production released through Mutual, was booked by Edward S. Hyman, director of Liberty theatres.

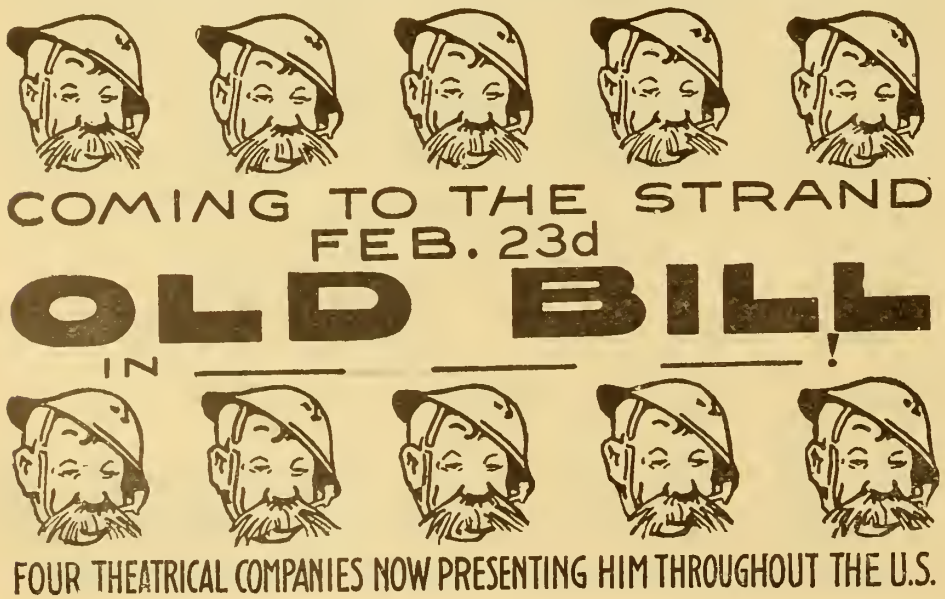
W. A. V. Mack, manager for Exhibitors' Mutual at New York, consummated the booking with Mr. Hyman, and the spectacle has been shown at every one of the forty Liberty theatres at cantonments throughout the United States, where it created a profound impression.

Screen Some Peace League Themes.

The McClure picture, "What Shall We Do with Him," is attracting no little attention, because the subject matter of the picture, which, by the way, is not a war picture, is receiving attention from the entire civilized world. The deliberations now going on at the peace conference involve the very questions on which "What Shall We Do with Him" motivates. World Pictures announce that advance bookings indicate a profitable investment both by the McClure Company and World Pictures, who are the distributing agents.

Shange Title of Hayakawa Production.

Complications have been averted by the generous act of the Haworth Pictures Corporation in changing the title of its next Sessue Hayakawa production for Exhibitors' Mutual release, from "Shadows" to "A Heart in Pawn."



Rivoli and Rialto Sign Up Harold Lloyds for a Year

CLOSELY following the news that Pathe Exchange, Inc., will, beginning March 9, release a Harold Lloyd comedy once a week instead of at two-week intervals comes the announcement that the Rivoli and Rialto theatres have signed a year's contract for these one-reel Rolin features for the year. The success of these laughmakers, featuring Lloyd with Snub Pollard and Bebe Daniels, has been notable.

The supply of features for a year is amply assured, and with the change of release to a weekly basis a new form of contract will be made by which these features will be booked for a year solid, as in the case of the Rialto.

Pathe Exchange announces nineteen of the comedies which will be released under the new contract, covering a period of issue for March 9 to July 13. They begin with "I'm On My Way," a breezy travesty of the open road and the adventures of a studentlike youngster who apparently does not care where he goes or what might happen to him. It is clean, wholesome, and abounds in ludicrous situations and novel bits of business. Harold Lloyd, Pollard and Bebe Daniels really make their initial bow here in the one-a-week schedule. It is an excellent medium of introduction to the quality and abundant laugh quality of the Lloyd comedies.

"What Every Woman Wants" (Mutual).

Accuracy of detail is the keynote of the six reel Jesse D. Hampton special, "What Every Woman Wants" which features Grace Darmond. It is a forthcoming Exhibitors' Mutual release.

One of the big scenes in the social melodrama takes place in a court room. Before writing his original story, William Parker, author of the picture, consulted with James H. Pope, the city public defender of Los Angeles, and obtained some pointers regarding court room scenes that will give a new angle to this feature of the Darmond production.

Billie Rhodes Off to Honolulu.

From the circus lot to the enchanting South Sea Isles is the big leap which little Billie Rhodes will make for her next production under the banner of the National Film Corporation, for release by the Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing Corporation. For real local color, Miss Rhodes and her entire company will journey to Honolulu.

Miss Rhodes is to appear as the dark skinned heroine of a story that will once more bring to the screen her winning personality in surroundings that show her off to the greatest advantage.

Viola Dana in Story of Paris.

Viola Dana has started work at the new Metro studios in Hollywood in a screen romance of Parisian life entitled "Jeanne of the Gutter." This five-part production in Metro's all-star series is an original story from the pen of June Mathis, scenarioized by Finis Fox. It follows "Diana Ardway" and "The Gold Cure," although the theme is widely removed from either.

Herbert Blache, who directed Miss Dana in "Diana Ardway," is again directing her. The titular role is that of a frail outcast of the underworld of Paris. Playing opposite the star is "Bob" Walker. A strong "heavy" role is in the hands of Henry Kolker.

Bulletin Boards for Universal Exchanges.

Tarkington Baker, director of publicity for Universal, has ordered bulletin boards placed in all Universal exchanges. For over two months "The Universal Bulletin," a news and feature press sheet, has been sent to every editor in the country, and so much of the material contained in the sheet is of interest to exhibitors as well as film fans that Mr. Baker has ordered a copy of each bulletin posted in a conspicuous place in each exchange.

Marguerite Clark and Her Husband, Lieut. H. Palmerson Williams.

Strong Morey Subject Coming.

Exhibitors are taking a lively interest in the early release of "Silent Strength," a Vitagraph picture featuring Harry T. Morey, set for release February 17. It was directed by Paul Scardon, and in support of Mr. Morey are Betty Blythe, Robert Gaillard, Bernard Siegal, Herbert Pattee and James Costello. Its plot deals with the mistaken marriage of a woman to a man who is the prototype of the one she loves.

Theda Bara Making Scenes for South Sea Island Feature

THEDA BARA, who is at Miami, making scenes for a big South Sea Island feature, has written back to New York expressing delight at the wonderful exterior locations that have been discovered there. J. Gordon Edwards, who is directing Miss Bara in this super-production, says he believes he has obtained in this some of the finest scenic effects the screen has known.

John H. Deering, head of the Deering plow and harvester interests, is one of the permanent winter residents of Miami, having a great estate there. He has assisted Miss Bara and her company in obtaining the finest jungle atmosphere by placing a tropical island at their disposal. In addition to a score of players taken from New York, Mr. Edwards is using in some of the big scenes several hundred men and women engaged locally.

Some splendid water scenes have been obtained, and the picture will be notable for its great variety of scenic effects on land and sea. This production, the title of which has not yet been selected, is declared by Miss Bara and her director to be a radical departure from anything she has done before, and will present her in a character which will call into play an entirely new phase of her art. The role of Zara, princess of the pearls, is an admixture of tragedy and pathos, with a deft touch of light comedy—and in it Miss Bara's versatility is given.

Dissolves Tell Story of Martial Woes.

"Smiling Bill" Parsons' Capitol Comedies are never without one or more pleasing novelties—some clever innovation that differentiates them from the run of short comedy subjects. In his newest production, "A Master of Music," released by Goldwyn, the ever-smiling funmaker pictures the reasons for the failure of himself and three of his chums to lead as many winsome lassies to the alter. By the use of dissolves "Smiling Bill" added four novel and highly amusing situations to a production already full of funny incidents.

No need to be without the Moving Picture World. If your newsdealer will not supply regularly, send $3 for annual subscription and save $4.80 on the deal.

Bookings Piling in on "The Lion and the Mouse"

THE big circuits are booking heavily Vitagraph's super-production of "The Lion and the Mouse," starring Alice Joyce. Impressed with the picture's powerful appeal and fully cognizant of its unusual advertising value, representatives of the Poli and Fox circuits, who attended the first private showings of the picture a few days ago, forthwith closed for their circuits.

Last minute 'phone information from the Fox booking offices states that already dates for the showing of the picture have been fixed for four houses in local territory. These are the Ridgewood, the Bedford, the Folly and the Jamaica. Manhattan bookings are to follow.

Poli bookings of "The Lion and the Mouse" will cover all of New England on the entire circuit. Special advertising is to be done in behalf of the production, and Poli officials are confident that the past popularity of the play in stage form, which will serve to whet interest in its presentation in the wider scope of the screen, coupled with the high esteem in which the star, Alice Joyce, is regarded, will result in record business.

Reports received at the home office of Vitagraph indicate that bookings are piling into the branch offices of the organization in numbers that exceed even the highest expectation. Chicago is cited as an especially shining example of the popular appeal of the new Alice Joyce feature. Within the space of two days, and supplementing the already liberal bookings recorded from that centre, the photoplay was booked into the De Luxe, the Howard, the Parkside and the Plaiser for varying runs.

For the most part the production is being booked for week runs. Houses with a one-day policy, which occasionally make an exception in favor of a two-day showing of the same feature, are being written up for half-week runs.

Vitagraph has singled out for mention on bookings received in one day to show the wide territorial spread of the picture. Wilmington, Del., is represented by the Victoria, where "The Lion and the Mouse" has been reserved for one week. The Colonial in Easton, Pa., has booked in the picture for a half week's run. In Schenectady, the Palace will show it for three days, while the management of the Orpheum and Lorenz theatres in Bethlehem, Pa., will divide a week between these two houses. Pottsville, Pa., too, was represented in the day's returns.

Scene from Screen Telegram.
The President in England greeting the only surviving member of his grandfather's Sunday school class.

Bessie Love Charms in "Enchanted Barn."

The latest Vitagraph picturization of a best-seller novel is that of "The Enchanted Barn," the author of which is Grace H. L. Lutz. It is the second Bessie Love subject on Vitagraph's star series schedule, and already laudatory reports are reaching the branch offices.

Miss Love, ingratiating and winsome always, is said to be captivating beyond words in this new release. The surest test possible of the appeal of the picture lies in the reception it was accorded by those privileged and unimpressionable few who witnessed its advance showing recently in Vitagraph's private projection room. It aroused actual enthusiasm among them.

The youthful atmosphere of the book is faithfully transferred to the screen in all its quaintness and homeliness, its sincerity and simpleness. David Smith directed the picture, and in Miss Love's support are seen J. Frank Glendon, Joe Singleton, William T. Horne, Frank Butterworth, Ella Wolbert, Darbey A. Walker and Jene Hathaway.

Longer Runs for "Wanted for Murder."

As an example of the fact that many exhibitors in smaller towns usually running a picture for only one day are showing the Harry Rapf production, "Wanted for Murder," for longer periods, the Independent Sales Corporation reports the receipt by their Minneapolis unit of the following from Lein and Coats, who operate the Strand Theatre in Grafton, N. D.: "'Wanted for Murder' went over big—played a big house the first night and the second. We had to turn people away, so you can sure boost this production. Everybody went away satisfied."

This picture is also reported as having opened "standing room only" business on Sunday at the Newark Theatre, Newark, N. J., all matinee records for the house being broken. For Thursday night the entire house has been sold out to the Newark Lodge of Elks.

Saleswoman Role for Dorothy Dalton.

At the new Ince studio at Culver City Dorothy Dalton is well along in the production of her comedy-drama which presents her in the part of a traveling saleswoman, decidedly capable of taking care of herself in all emergencies. In this photoplay, which was written by John Lynch and is being directed by Otto Hoffman, Miss Dalton has the good fortune to be surrounded by a strong cast, Douglas MacLean being leading man and Edwin Stevens having an old-man comedy role.

Michelson Paintings for "S-L" Film.

Robert Michelson, well known newspaper artist, has been commissioned by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin to execute a series of paintings to exploit their initial "Ralph Ince Film Attraction." These paintings will portray E. K. Lincoln, star of the first S-L picture, in a series of special poses to be used for lobby display and twenty-four sheet stands. Michelson has been responsible for some of the striking cover portraits used on well-known magazines.

Hart Finishes Barbary Coast Story.

William S. Hart is finishing up work on his next Artcraft picture following "Breed of Men," which is released February 2. The title of the new play is "The Poppy Girl's Husband." It is a story of the Barbary Coast of San Francisco, and one of the many interesting settings is one representing Mother McGinn's hotel, a famous resort of that section.

Juanita Hanson is Mr. Hart's leading woman.

Keith Theatres Get Kinograms.

The biggest contract ever executed for a news weekly was recorded when, on a showing of Kinograms at the Palace Theatre, this de luxe screen news weekly will from now on be seen in the theatres of B. F. Keith and the Orpheum Circuit, together with the affiliated theatres of this extensive booking organization.

The Moving Picture World carries a message to exhibitors in small towns by the hundred where salesmen seldom, if ever, visit in their travels. It is to benefit this great prosperous exhibitor element that the World is complied—as much to help the little fellow as to help the "first run" man in the larger cities.

Among Independent Producers

Conducted by C. S. SEWELL

Several Sales on Gaumont's "The Real Roosevelt"

THE Gaumont Company announces that a very large percentage of the territory of the United States has been sold already on its two-reel special feature entitled "The Real Roosevelt," which is being distributed on the State right market. The list of buyers and territory disposed of follows:

Gordon-Mayer Film Corporation, Boston, for the New England States; Gardiner Syndicate, Buffalo, for New York State (exclusive of Greater New York, Long Island and the counties of Westchester and Rockland); Electric Theatre Supply Co., Philadelphia, for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey; First National Exhibitors, Pittsburgh, for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; Super Film Attractions, Washington, for Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia; Eltabran Film Co., Charlotte, for North and South Carolina; Savini Films, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., for Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee; Pearce Films, New Orleans, for Louisiana and Mississippi; Doll-Van Film Corporation, Indianapolis, for Indiana; Celebrated Players Film Corporation, Chicago, for Illinois and Wisconsin; R. D. Lewis Film Company, Oklahoma City, for Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas; Ben S. Cohen, Denver, for Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico; De Luxe Features Company, Seattle, for Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho; Metropolitan Company, Detroit, for Michigan.

Arrow Film Announces Many Additional Sales

THE Arrow Film Corporation reports another long list of sales of territory made recently on the various productions it is handling: Thirty-two Unique Comedies to Quaker City Film Co., Philadelphia, for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, and to Premier Feature Film Company, Boston, for New England states; Four Allison-Lockwood five reel reissues to Mid-West Distributing Company, Milwaukee, for Wisconsin, and to Quaker Film Company, Philadelphia, for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey.

"The Profiteer" starring Alma Hanlon and Jack Sherrill, to Special Attractions Company for northern New Jersey, to Silee Film Exchange, Chicago, for Illinois and Indiana, and to Premies Feature Film Company, Boston, for the New England states; "The Finger of Justice to P. B. Elliott for Missourri and Kansas, and to Premiere Feature Film Company, Boston, for the New England states.

"The Demon's Shadow," a reissued serial in ten episodes, to Day Film Corporation, Pittsburgh, for western Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey; "The Perfect Model," a reissue of "Inspiration," to Eastern Feature Film Company, Boston, for New England states, and to Keystone Distributing Company, Philadelphia, for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey; "The Woman's Law" starring Fiorence Reed, to Unity Photoplays, Chicago, for Illinois and Indiana.

Twelve two-reel Anna Little reissues to Quaker City Film Exchange, Philadelphia for eastern Pennsylvania, and to S. & S. Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, for western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; "Right Off The Bat" to the Sipe Film Company, Atlanta, for Georgia, Florida, Alabama, North and South Carolina.

"Tiny" Sanford with Francis Ford.

Stanley Sanford, known generally in the motion picture world as "Tiny" on account of his size (6 feet 5½ inches, and weighing 285 pounds), has joined the Francis Ford Serial Company to play second leads and to help in the solving "The Silent Mystery." Mr. Sanford has been with the Universal Film Company for the past three years.

Paul Clerget Will Present American Films in Belgium

PAUL CLERGET, the famous French actor, who was but recently won over to the films by Maurice Tourneur, is prominently known on the French and Belgian stages, and is the owner of a number of Belgian theatres, including two in Brussels.

Mr. Clerget is making plans to return to Belgium and do all in his power to aid in the rehabitation of the country. "After the staggering oppression of four years under the iron heel of the Kaiser, with public life destroyed, business wiped out, everything beaten to the ground," says Mr. Clerget, "the Belgians will need relaxation and amusement more than ever when they take up the burden of starting anew. Most of all, they will need amusement that they can afford. The American motion picture is the thing, and I am going to show motion pictures in my theatres."

Mr. Clerget received great praise for his interpretation of the role of Pierret, Sr., in "Pierret, the Prodigal," a season or two ago. He made his film debut in the Maurice Tourneur production, "Woman," and also has a prominent role in the third Tourneur production, "My Lady's Garter." He is an enthusiastic Tourneur admirer, and he is planning to show in Brussels "The Blue Bird," "Prunella," "Barbary Sheep," "Sporting Life," "A Poor, Little Rich Girl," "Trilby," "The Whip," "The Rise of Jenny Cushing" and other Tourneur productions. It is interesting to note that "The Blue Bird" was adapted from the drama of Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright, so that the story is really coming home via the American films.

Film Market Announces Many Territorial Sales

SEVERAL sales are announced by Robert W. Priest, president of the Film Market, Inc., Room 807, Times Building, on the various production handled by that organization: "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Battle Cry of Freedom" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," Gathem Film Corporation's miniature productions and one combination split-reel to be issued monthly for the next twelve months to M. & R. Feature Film Exchange, 107 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, for California, Arizona and Nevada, and to L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, 2022 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash., for Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Alaska.

"The Spoilers" (reissue) to Liberty Feature Film Corporation, Shreveport, for Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and to Standard Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, for western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. "The City of Purple Dreams" (Selig) and "Who Shall Take My Life" to Bernard C. Cooke, Pennsylvania Film Market, western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Five big serial productions of fifteen episodes each to Gonzalo Varela, S. en C., Mexico, for the Republic of Mexico, San Salvador and Guatemala. The titles of these serials will be announced later.

Ralph Ince Explaining a Scene in First "S-L" Picture.
Group includes A. H. Sawyer, E. K. Lincoln, Robert Cummings and Clara Joel.

Brockliss Buys Foreign Rights on Frohman Film

WHAT is said to be one of the quickest deals for foreign rights was the one recently concluded by the Frohman Amusement Corporation with J. Frank Brockliss, Inc. Immediately after viewing the screening of "Once to Every Man," Sidney Garrett, president of the Brockliss Company, conferred with W. L. Sherrill, of the Frohman organization, regarding the production. Mr. Sherrill named the price, and added that the continental European rights to "The Witching Hour" and "God's Man," two other Frohman productions, were also open. The price for these two being satisfactory the deal was immediately closed, and prints for "Once to Every Man" are said to be already on their way to France and England.

Mr. Garrett advises in connection with the purchase of rights to "Once to Every Man," the six-part production adapted from Larry Evan's novel of the same title: "The story is altogether human, it starts out, figurately speaking, with a smash between the eyes, because in the first reel there is a fight without parallel for intensity and realism, and then the story develops along a soul-gripping line leading up to a climax that will appeal to the home-loving as well as the sporting element throughout the world. I intend exploiting this production along lines that must bring a substantial return, and know I have made no mistake in taking over this production at a price that might be considered extravagant."

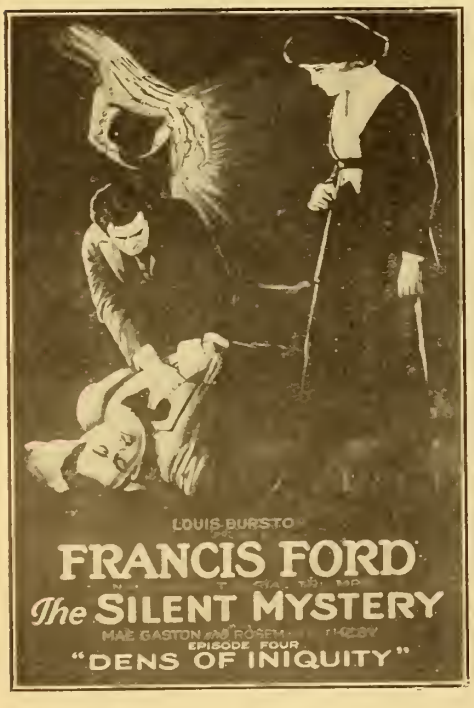
Title of Lincoln Film To Be Announced Soon

THE curiosity which has been rife during the past few weeks relative to the title of the initial "Ralph Ince Film Attraction" starring E. K. Lincoln is to be satisfied next week, according to Herbert Lubin.

"The title of the inaugural S-L picture, which will present E. K. Lincoln as star under the personal direction of Ralph Ince, has been selected. Following the method adopted at the formation of S-L Pictures in deciding all matters of importance pertaining to productions by a majority vote, the title was put to a similar test. We considered a list of over a hundred titles suggested as being appropriate for the first production. It was desired to secure a title which for interest-compelling power and real "punch" would stand out in newspapers, on posters and other forms of advertising. In announcing next week the title of the first "Ralph Ince Film Attractions" a sensation is promised.

The title consists of two words, but in point of strength and interest will create a lasting impression. It is believed it will create country-wide debate among exhibitors, and arouse the greatest curiosity on the part of the public.

Following the announcement of the title of the first S-L vehicle starring Lincoln, the important details of the story will be divulged.



Striking Poster for Francis Ford Serial.

"Maciste" Proves Popular in "The Liberator" Serial

FOUR sales from every five buyers who have seen the new "Maciste" serial is the record made by Harry Raver, who has owned and exploited the "big fellow's" productions in the United States and Canada for more than five years. This does not prove superior salesmanship, according to Mr. Raver, but rather indicates the entertainment value of "Maciste" as a picture personality and the fairness of the selling policy. He has no sliding scale of prices, but has determined what the twelve episodes must bring, and territories are apportioned accordingly, so that the total sales will bring that figure.

"I can save a great deal of time by this method," says Mr. Raver, "because I save a lot of argument. I have fixed a price for this serial much lower than the cost to make a serial in America, and am only able to do this because our foreign sales have been tremendous. My reputation for selling film of quality at a fixed price has been established after many years of dealing with responsible exchange men. I have faith in my product, and can sell every territory at the figure determined, perhaps not to the seeker for a bargain, but to the show man who can sense the value of 'Maciste' as a star."

Lincoln Has Strong Role in Ralph Ince Attraction

IN the star role of the forthcoming "Ralph Ince Film Attraction," E. K. Lincoln has been afforded an opportunity, it is said, to do the most excellent acting of his picture career. The part offers him a chance to typify the American man, filled with the joy of living and the knack of doing things. The production, a finely mounted society melodrama, teems with excitement and action, and contains fast-moving and dramatic situations.

Lincoln is called upon to portray the athletic, up-and-doing young American who overcomes all obstacles, and in the face of difficulty and danger, accomplishes through sheer spirit and courage the most impossible.

The star is said to display unsuspected athletic ability, and in the making of the production several times narrowly escaped serious injury by the chances he took to secure real "punch" scenes. He engages in two tremendous fights with Robert W. Cummings, in the role of the villain, which will send a thrill through audiences.

The various melodramatic situations which occur in the course of the production afford Lincoln the opportunity to display great versatility, and to prove himself equally at home in evening clothes and as a red-blooded fighter.

Be rid of that old projection machine and get a new one. Find a market through The World's Classified advertising department.

Emmett Dalton.

Foreign Rights Sold on "Beyond the Law"

A NOVELTY in motion picture negotiations is the announcement that the foreign rights to a special production have been sold in advance of the domestic rights. This occurred on "Beyond the Law," the Southern Feature Film production starring Emmett Dalton, and the purchasers are the Apollo Trading Company.

"The reason we made the purchase so quickly," says Mr. North, "was that we knew the foreign market lacked a subject of this kind. We have been asked for a picture of this kind by many buyers, and expect to make shipments of prints almost immediately. The story from which the picture was made had wide international publicity, it ran serially in a prominent magazine published in New York and London, and in countries not English-speaking we found the adventures of Mr. Dalton had also received unusual notice."

Speaking of the American distribution, Mr. Dalton, who is general manager of the Southern Feature Film Company, said: "This picture must be worked as a big special. To demonstrate just what I mean, I am going to open the picture myself in the leading cities of each of the big territories, showing the exhibitors how to get the maximum of publicity. I will be about two months on this mission, but feel it is the only plan to adopt in relation to an unusual film. It will be easy for the exhibitor to follow up the publicity my trip will produce."

Mr. Dalton is the author as well as the star of "Beyond the Law." In his support appears Harris Gordon, Virginia Lee, William Dunn, Mabel Bordine, Jack O'Laughlin and Dick Clark. The story deals with the four Dalton brothers, Emmett being the youngest. The act which branded the Dalton brothers as outlaws occurred in a Western gambling den, where Bob, discovering he had been fleeced, took the gamblers' money at the point of a revolver. Later, a train robbery was attributed to them, when they were several hundred miles away from the scene, and they decided to live up to their reputation. As the result of a bank robbery in Coffeyville, Kansas, several of the band were killed and Emmett sentenced to prison for a long term. A pardon was later granted him for good conduct, and since then he has been a law-abiding citizen.

Southwestern Orders Additional Prints.

The Southwestern Film Corporation, of Dallas, Texas, has ordered extra prints of the Tom Mix two reel comedy-drama released through Exclusive Features.

"Stolen Orders" Sold for Ohio.

William A. Brady announces the sale of the Ohio rights for his big picture, "Stolen Orders," to Robert McLaughlin. Mr. McLaughlin, who is interested in several of the largest motion picture theatres in Cleveland, plans an extensive campaign of exploitation on behalf of "Stolen Orders."

Southwest Likes Tom Mix in Exclusive's Reissues

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, INC., exploiting the series of two-reel Tom Mix reissues, are in receipt of the following letter from J. M. Sanford, manager of the Southwestern Film Corporation, which secured considerable territory on these productions:

"We have never handled any two-reel Westerns in this territory with better success than the sixteen two-reel Tom Mix reissues, and in several of the leading cities we have first, second and third run on them.

"These added attractions have been recognized by some of the largest theatres as real drawing cards, and we are contracting for them only on a regular schedule to use the entire series at the rate of one per week.

"We congratulate you on the splendid advertising matter, and assure you our experience with these two-reelers has proven you understood fully exactly what the exhibitor wants."

Good Business Reported on "Romance of the Air"

FOLLOWING a four weeks' run at the Tremont Temple in Boston the Independent Sales Corporation announces that "A Romance of the Air," starring Lieutenant Bert Hall, opened at the De Luxe Theatre, Chicago, on Sunday to exceptional business. Lieutenant Hall appearing in person and reciting some of his thrilling exploits in the air service. These personal appearances of the famous "Ace" will continue throughout the engagement, and the picture will not be released in Chicago territory until the engagement is concluded.

The Chicago office of the Independent Sales Corporation wired Frank Hall, president of the company, that bookings placed by exhibitors have far exceeded their expectations, and from present indications it looks as if records will be broken.

Title Selected for New Ford Serial.

The new serial to be started about March 1 by Francis Ford will be called "The Mystery of the Purple Cross." This production will take the entire company to Honolulu, Japan, China and India. Miss Mae Gaston will play the leading role opposite Mr. Ford.

M. H. Hoffman Is Now General Manager of Pioneer

THE Pioneer Film Corporation announces that M. H. Hoffman has merged his own interest with that organization, and is now the general manager of the company's business, Nathan Hirsh, former president and general manager, having resigned and being no longer connected with the organization.

Mr. Hoffman has for several years been prominently identified with the film business, having been successively general manager of Universal exchanges and Bluebird, general manager of Foursquare, and more recently engaged in the state rights field as head of his own organization.

New plans are being made for the company, which are said to be far-reaching in scope, and which will be announced within a short time. This organization has successfully marketed a number of special productions, including "Wives of Men," "The Still Alarm" and "Little Orphant Annie."

Beauty with Virile Story in Initial "S-L" Picture

HERBERT LUBIN, one of the moving factors in the S-L Pictures organization, believes that when the initial Ralph Ince Film Attraction, starring E. K. Lincoln, is presented that this production will contain all of the prime elements essential to a feature worthy of the designation "special." In summing up the factors which go to make screen entertainment of the highest class, Mr. Lubin points out the following details of this production.

Particular emphasis is laid on the scenic beauties and pictorial dressing. Unfolding a story of rugged virility, American manhood and remarkable power, the action and suspense, it is claimed, would suffice to interest and entertain the public. However, the producers have given the film a setting of beauty rarely equaled.

"The film is marked throughout by interior sets of magnitude and beauty," says Mr. Lubin. "Particular pains were taken to dress the sets in a manner to suggest the atmosphere of the real home rather than the impression frequently conveyed by the studio properties. Several of the sets occupied the entire studio. The furnishings and properties are in accord with refinement and good taste.

"Scenically, the inaugural 'Ralph Ince Film Attraction' is superb. Using as part of the locale the lumber forests of the Northwest, the grandeur and beauty of the exteriors will make a lasting impression. Exquisite sunrise effects, remarkable views of the great redwood forests and effective night scenes add materially to the scenic value of the production.

"Filling the eye with gorgeous costumes, magnificent decorations and beautifully gowned women are the scenes of the Great Victory Ball, secured exclusively for this production.

It is the belief of the sponsors of this production that the combination of beautiful scenic exteriors, massive interior settings and a thrilling and virile story give to the first S-L offering the necessary elements for perfect screen entertainment.

Star to Appear in Person in Several Large Cities

FOLLOWING the success of Lieutenant Bert Hall's personal appearances in connection with "A Romance of the Air," the Independent Sales Corporation announces that arrangements have been made for Elaine Hammerstein, star of "Wanted for Murder," the Harry Rapf production, to appear in person in some of the leading theatres where this picture is being shown.

It was at first thought that Miss Hammerstein would not be available for engagements of this kind outside of New York City on account of her studio work in connection with another production. However, as this picture is nearing completion, she will be able to devote a few weeks to appearances in first-run houses where "Wanted for Murder" is booked for one or two weeks' engagements.

Her first engagement will probably be at a large theatre in the Middle West, where this picture is booked for an indefinite run. No definite decision has been reached as to whether she will appear at each performance or only on the opening night; in the latter event, she will visit as many houses within a reasonable distance as possible.

Following these engagements, Mr. Rapf will arrange for Miss Hammerstein to visit several of the larger cities in other sections where "Wanted for Murder" will be given special runs, provided there is sufficient time before commencing work on the next production. On account of the number of bookings, it has been decided to divide Miss Hammerstein's time on the "first come, first served" basis.

Bulls Eye Announces Gale Henry Comedies

THE Bulls Eye Film Corporation announces a new series of comedies featuring Gale Henry, the well known character comedienne, who gained a large following among moving picture audiences by her inimitable work in Universal comedies. Miss Henry is now at work in Hollywood on the first picture of the series, and it is expected that this subject will be ready for release early in March. Territory is now selling on this series, which will be marketed on a state rights basis, the same as the series of Billy West comedies, which Bulls Eye controls.

Milton L. Cohen, president of Bulls Eye, reports the receipt of numerous letters and telegrams from all sections indicating the success of Billy West in his latest comedies. "It is especially gratifying," says Mr. Cohen, "to have such splendid reports from exhibitors and exchangemen. It was our desire to place the first comedy on the market without preliminary promises, and we met with greater success than we anticipated. When the second comedy, "Ship Ahoy," was shown, there was another pleasing demonstration. From the South, Southeast, New England, middle and central states reports bear out the predictions of exchangemen, while Sol Lesser's reports from the Pacific Coast are unusually good.

Bigelow Cooper and Freddie Verdi in "Satan on Earth" (Gaumont).

When you cleaned house during the "shut-down" did you decide to put in new seats? Dispose of the old ones through The World's Classified advertising.

Reviews and Advertising Aids

Conducted by Edward Weitzel, Associate Editor Moving Picture World

Sidelights and Reflections

PLOTS exist that are almost proof against unskilled handling by the scenario writer; but there is only one of this kind of plot to a hundred that require expert treatment, application of the rules of construction, to insure them a successful career. Wandering off down some attractive but misleading side path has caused many a screen story to lose its hold on the spectator.

An example of sticking to the main road of the story is the Metro picture "Faith." Of physical action it has barely a trace; its theme is of the simplest and without side issues. It is told by five characters, but holds by reason of the straightforward way its human interest is brought home to the spectator. "Faith" does not belong to the class of moving pictures that should be repeated as often as those of more vigorous action and wider scope of treatment, but it is excellent of its kind and furnishes an agreeable contrast to its more active rivals.

It is gratifying to record the fact that the New York Tribune now has a writer on the screen who approaches her subject with sympathetic understanding and sets down her impressions of the picture under discussion with keen intelligence and delightful lucidity of style. Virginia Tracy is the name of this new and welcome recruit to the ranks of the Tribune's moving picture section. In an article on Geraldine Farrar's performance in "The Hell Cat" the writer pays her this tribute:

"She shows us the soul of the unhappy girl with a sober sensitiveness and simplicity which holds a light that reveals without glare or dazzle, and if she finally recovers the temperamental Farrar splendor it is only to put it to the gravest uses—to a vigorous, a somehow classic naturalism like the still vigor of a statue.

So that when, in the rusty old old wagon in which the villain has been driving her across the prairie to a new life of his fashioning, she stands above the body she has just struck dead and takes the reins into her own hands to drive where she will, the movement is not only as bold, but as fine as that in which Lucretia lifts her knife."

The information obtainable in this department should enable the exhibitor to learn the character and all practical points of showmanship concerning the pictures reviewed without hampering his unbiased judgment, which alone is the arbiter of his success.

WEITZEL.

IN THIS ISSUE.

Venus in the East (Paramount).
Hard Boiled (Paramount).
Breed of Men (Artcraft).
A Man in the Open (United Picture Theatres).
Courage for Two (World).
The Crucible (Paramount).
Sandy Burke of the U Bar U (Goldwyn).
Romance and Arabella (Select).
The Old Maid's Baby (Pathe).
Shadows of Suspicion (Screen Classics).
The Wicked Darling (Universal).
Silent Strength (Vitagraph).
Go West, Young Man (Goldwyn).
The Echo of Youth (Graphic).
The Man of Might (Vitagraph).
Luck and Pluck (Fox).
The Red Glove (Universal).

THE stories of the pictures reviewed in this department are written from the pictures themselves and not the press books, and are correct in every case.

"VENUS IN THE EAST"

Paramount Presents Bryant Washburn in a Comedy of Contrasting Social Life.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

ONE of those stories which bring into contrast the supposed ultra-refinement of the so-called "East" with the supposed crudities and mannerisms of the supposed "West," "Venus in the East" affords Bryant Washburn opportunity to portray the embarrassment of a manly and untutored young countryman, suddenly grown enormously rich, invading the Metropolis, and up against both its charms and its wiles. That he makes good use of his opportunity is entertaining, so also is the local atmosphere, views of Fifth Avenue bus life and that of Riverside Drive. There is an element of humor in the story and it is handled with directorial skill.

Cast.

Buddy McNair.....Bryant Washburn
Martha .....Margery Wilson
Mrs. Pat Dyvenot.....Anna Q. Nilsson
Doc Naylor.....Guy Oliver
Pontius Blint.....Clarence Burton
Doris Blint.....Julia Faye
Mrs. Blint.....Helen Dunbar
Middy Knox.....Arthur Carewe
Terrill Overbeck.....M. A. Barrows
Jass .....Clarence Geldart

Directed by Donald Crisp.

The Story.

An imaginative and enthusiastic young man from the West, who has inherited an enormous fortune, becomes infatuated with a New York woman he has never met, Mrs. Pat Dyvenot, whose picture he has seen in society reports of the metropolis. He starts for New York on a wager, carrying thousands of dollars in cash, and is relieved of his roll on the way by gamblers, his suspicions falling on a girl he believes to be their accomplice. This distresses him little—his check is good for many hundreds of thousands. He finds his way to Mrs. Pat through her advertised loss of a pearl necklace valued at two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. He goes to a jeweler and has it duplicated for that amount, takes the necklace to her and pretends to have found the lost jewels. She guesses at his great wealth and leads him on to propose marriage.

The young man is game until Mrs. Pat's duplicity is discovered—she makes a business of losing that same pearl necklace. He then encounters the girl he suspected of complicity in taking his roll. It transpires that she did take it, but only to protect him from the gamblers. She takes him to her private safe-deposit vault and returns it. Her name is only Martha, but she is the girl for him, and we last see the two on the top of a Fifth avenue bus, his arms encircling her waist.

Feature Mr. Washburn as Buddy, Anna Q. Nilsson as the divorcee and Margery Wilson as Martha.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The Romantic Ending of a Trans-Continental Walking-Wager Atop a Fifth Avenue Bus.
Where the Polite East Meets the Rugged West and Wins.
Bryant Washburn Star of Rattling Good Comedy Romance.
How an Enthusiastic Westerner Made His Way in Eastern Competitions.
Plenty of Excitement in Romance of Daring and Adventures in Love.

Advertising Angles: Play up Washburn; but you can make much capital of the fact that this is a story by a well known author which enjoyed great popularity when it ran in the Saturday Evening Post as a serial. Work this angle strongly. Get your jeweler to dress up a plaster cast of Venus and add a string of pearls. He can advertise the imitation pearls and you the play with the same display.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released January 26.

"HARD BOILED."

Dorothy Dalton's Latest Paramount Release Portrays Amusingly the Joys of a "One-Night-Stand" Actress.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

A NUMBER of sure-fire situations help "Hard Boiled," Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount picture, on the road to success. It portrays amusingly the joys and sorrows in the life of a "one-night-stand" actress, and also displays a number of the familiar rube type of characters that never fail to earn a large quantity of laughs. Good judgment has been shown in getting away from the theatre atmosphere at just about the right time in the story, and the change to the quiet and peacefulness of the small town, where the troupe strands and its leading lady takes up the useful occupation of washing dishes, is introduced cleverly. The bit of drama which follows is worked out by a well-worn but always funny device.

"Hard Boiled" will prove easy of assimilation for the average spectator. Its title so thoroughly indicates the nature of its theme and it sticks so close to the original motive and local color no one can mistake the order of story to which it belongs. It is well acted and produced.

Dorothy Dalton fits the character of Corinne Melrose, the star of the show, admirably. She is sufficiently attractive in her stage character to account for her position at the head of the troupe, and shows simple, human traits in Corinne's private life that account for her success with the country folk. The supporting company is best represented by Gertrude Claire and Billy Courtwright.

Cast.

Corinne Melrose.....Dorothy Dalton
Billy Penrose.....C. W. Mason
Deacon Simpson.....Billy Courtright
Aunt Tiny Colvin.....Gertrude Claire
Hiram Short.....Walter Hiers
Directed by Victor L. Schertzinger.

The Story.

"Hard Boiled" opens with a representation of the glory and profit of playing a one-night stand in a town that refuses to go to the show unless handed a free ticket. All the humor of being stranded and left to walk home is displayed. Corinne Melrose, the leading lady, gives all her money to send one of the company to her sick baby and is lucky enough to find a home with Tiny Colvin, an old maid with a big heart. The usual moneylender, this time in the person of Deacon Simpson, turns up and threatens to foreclose on the old lady's property if his note isn't paid. Corinne accommodates him with the money by first taking it from the old skinflint's secret horde in a vase on the mantel and paying him back with his own banknotes. Her young man, the tenor of the troupe, turns up in time to thrash a local youth whose snubbing by Corinne brings out the sneak in his nature. Billy Penrose, he of the high top-notes, gets a job as clerk in the leading hotel, and Corinne and he marry and settle down in Nilesburg.

Feature Dorothy Dalton as Corinne Melrose and C. W. Mason as Billy Penrose.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Dorothy Dalton Famous Screen Queen Star of New Sensational Photoplay.
Thomas H. Ince Presentation Brings Dorothy Dalton Back to Please Fans.
Cleverly Contrived Photoplot Will Awaken Keen Interest in Newest Queen Stranded in a Jay Town.
Adventures of a Show Girl Who Made Her Own Way to Fortune.

Advertising Angles: Miss Dalton will bring in a good following. To those who do not follow the stars make your appeal with word pictures of the musical comedy star in a small town, and play up the vamping of the deacon. For a novelty advertisement sketch a face on eggshells and provide them wtih whiskers. Mount on cards and letter, "Yes, this is the hard boiled egg, Deacon Simpson, in Dorothy Dalton's 'Hard Boiled.' See him cooked some more by the musical comedy vamp at the (house and date)." Get them into as many store windows as possible, or offer a small prize for the best egg portrait of the deacon, and display the entries in a case in the lobby or a nearby window.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released February 2.

"BREED OF MEN."

Artcraft Presents William S. Hart in a Story of Simple American Manhood.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THE ruling idea of "Breed of Men" is that the American type is one of strong protective instincts and sympathy for the weak; a fine theme and admirably exemplified by Hart in his own personality; but the story lacks most of the elements of drama, especially that essential one—suspense. Interest thus depends largely upon Hart's characterization and that of Seena Owen as the girl. There is no doubt from the outset that he will get the girl, and this limits audience interest to the development of an expected sequence of events.

The playwright has attempted something on right lines, but is either limited by time or in his conception of the subject he is handling. Hart represents a young sheriff, who takes the law into his hands and forces a swindling land shark to make restitution to a small group of victims, notably a young girl with whom the sheriff is in love. The theme itself is popular because the idea of fairness prevails in all American audiences.

Hart saves the girl and her neighbors by abducting the swindler and carrying him all the way to Arizona by unknown means, all of which could be simplified and made more forceful by confining action to Arizona and having the efforts of the leading character result in a general readjustment and a dawn of better things for his community.

The play pleased a large audience at the Rivoli to the extent that it presented a manly American actor in a sympathetic role.

Cast.

"Careless" Carmody.....William S. Hart
Ruth Fellows .....Seena Owen
Wesley B. Prentice .....Bert Sprotte
Bobby Fellows .....Buster Irving
Story by J. G. Hawks.
Directed by William S. Hart.

The Story.

"Careless Carmody," a boss rider impersonated by William S. Hart, is made sheriff of a small Arizona community by the machinations of a land swindler, Wesley Prentice, in order to cover a large crooked deal. The sheriff in all honesty believes Prentice to be his benefactor. To Ruth Fellows, who has settled on a small tract and works it herself, after investing all she has in the land, he declares Prentice worthy of trust. When it comes to light that Prentice is a large swindler and has escaped to Chicago, she accuses "Careless Carmody" of complicity in the deal. He is in love with the girl, and to justify himself he makes a journey to Chicago alone, finds a group of congenial acquaintances in the stock yards, and enlists a number of them to assist him in abducting Prentice. The latter's house is surrounded by guards, but the cowmen lasso them and tie them, while Carmody invades the house and coerces Prentice at the pistol point to leave with him for Arizona. He saves the swindler from mob fury in the settlement, and compels him to make full restitution to the swindled settlers, including Ruth. She regrets the injustice done the young sheriff, and her gratitude becomes love at his pleading.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Bill Hart Presents His Latest Picture of Western Life with Accustomed Realism.
Odd Twists in an Unusually Interesting Western Photoplay.
Thrills Thick and Fast Follow Sensations in New Hart Drama.
How Sheriff Hart Made Millionaire Land Grabber Disgorge.
Bill Hart Star of Another Whirlwind Drama of Western Life.

Advertising Angles: Get all you can out of Hart's name. Work such lines as "Girls: If you want a man to love you, shoot him. See how it's done in 'Breed of Men' at (house and date." "A crooked politician made him Sheriff, and the Sheriff made him sorry." Don't try special stunts, just work on Hart's name.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released February 2.

"A MAN IN THE OPEN."

United Picture Theatres Present Dustin Farnum in Well Produced Romance of the West.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

There is much to praise in "A Man in the Open," a six-part production released by the United Picture Theatres and featuring Dustin Farnum. Romance of the most pronounced type, this story of Roger Pocock's speaks little in favor of its author's originality. It is fashioned from material that has served the stage since before Samuel French started in the play publishing business. This is not to insinuate that the situations lack interest. On the contrary, they seldom miss fire, and the mass of moving picture patrons will be deeply interested when the woman who nearly wrecks the hero's life by marrying him turns out not to be his wife after all, and is denounced by the villain with his dying breath. It is the only way the hero can be left in happiness with the heroine, who is married to him when he believes his first wife has committed suicide. Too many threads from the original story are used and left hanging loose in the scenario.

On its credit side "A Man in the Open" has a full stock of melodramatic thrills that have been handled with excellent artistic effect by director Ernest C. Warde. Its scenic surroundings are out of the common and often of rare beauty. The incident of Trevor's drowning is an unforgettable thrill, a bit of real tragedy that is a master stroke. The acting is of even excellence. Dustin Farnum's embodiment of Sailor Jesse, the man who is cast ashore on the coast of Texas, shows a romantic figure whose mental short-comings make him an easy victim for a designing woman. Irene Rich, Hershall Mayall and Joseph Dowling are the best of the supporting company, the latter doing a character part that will stick in the memory.

Cast.

Sailor Jesse.....Dustin Farnum
Trevor .....Hersall Mayall
"Bull" Brookes.....Lamar Johnstone
James Brown .....Joseph Dowling
Polly .....Claire DuBrae
Kate .....Irene Rich
Story by Roger Pocock.
Directed by Ernest C. Warde.

The Story.

A shipwrecked sailor, of an unusually confiding and short-sighted nature, becomes a cowboy in Texas. He falls in love with an unworthy woman, who marries him on a bet, and, when he discovers her true character, gets an old lover to tell her husband she has killed herself rather than go with him out into the open and start life over again. The hero next meets the Trevors. Mrs. Trevors is an opera singer, who has come West with her husband in hopes to lengthen his life. Despairing of getting well, the husband has taken to drinking and treats his wife like a brute. The hero defends her against him. When Trevor is drowned while trying to kill the ex-sailor, the hero marries Mrs. Trevor. They are very happy until the first wife turns up and tells the bridegroom his new wife has no right in his house. The hero accepts the situation meekly and permits the woman to run a tough saloon, but gets into action when he finds her old lover trying to make love to the former Mrs. Trevor. The first wife finds it out also. She shoots the fellow, and he clears up matters by confessing, before he dies, that the woman ran away from her real husband when she first took up with him.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Rugged Dustin Farnum Heroic Star of Vigorous and Vital Photoplay.
How Wifely Love Caused a Career To Be Abandoned for Happiness.
Picturization of Roger Pocock's Story of the Rugged West.
Famous Story Gives Vigorous Role to Favorite Film Hero
Rugged Types and Characters in Vital Story of Love and Romance.

Advertising Angles: Emphasize the fact that this is Dustin Farnum through the use of italics or an underline of rule below the name wherever used. Give prominence to the fact that this is taken from the novel by Roger Pocock. Use such catch phrases as "the man who wasn't built for cities." "It took all outdoors to hold this big-souled man," and similar lines. Pick up the big points of the book such as Jesse's entanglement, his plan to redeem his wife and his meeting with the operatic artist for individual treatment.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one twenty-four sheet; twelve 8x10, eight 11x14, and two 22x28 photos; one one-column and one two-column star and ad cuts, mats and slides.

"COURAGE FOR TWO."

Five-Reel World-Picture Features Carlyle Blackwell in Story of Mixed Identities.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

CARLYLE BLACKWELL is given opportunity for some very good individual acting in this five-reel World-Picture, "Courage For Two." He plays a dual role, and despite the handicap of a certain conventionality, the story interest is strong enough to hold the attention quite well. The double-exposure photography, which has also lost something of its novelty, is so well timed and skilfully executed that it will undoubtedly attract. The plot as a whole is one of average interest. There are some strong dramatic moments, such as the opening raid on the dance hall, and the fight in the barn, but the continuity is weak in places and this interferes with the suspense. The business episodes, in which the cousins are trying to get revenge upon the villain, Nichols, are rather sketchy and indefinite, but will probably pass with an uncritical audience.

The story was written by Harry O. Hoyt and directed by Dell Henderson. In the assisting cast are Evelyn Greeley, Rosina Henley, Henry West, Jack Drumier, and others.

Anthony Hopkins / Calvin Douglas .....Carlyle Blackwell
Marion.....Evelyn Greeley
Olive Herrick.....Rosina Henley
Hubert.....Arda Lacroix
Buck Comas.....Henry West
Smiley Reilly.....Albert Gaston
Nichols.....Jack Drumier
Mrs. Herrick.....Isabel O'Madigan
Marion's Grandmother.....Lettie Ford

Story by Harry O. Hoyt.
Directed by Dell Henderson.

The Story.

Carlyle Blackwell plays the dual role of Cal Douglas, a rough-and-ready young fellow brought up in Hell's Kitchen, and his cousin, Anthony Hopkins, a rich and cultured youth. The villain, Nichols, has swindled both branches of the family, and when the cousins meet they determine to get a proper revenge. For this reason they exchange places, Cal assuming the role of Anthony, upon whom Nichols has further designs at the moment. The ruse proves successful, and in the end they bring Nichols to time. The cousins exchange sweethearts, with general satisfaction to both girls. Marion is delighted with the cultured ways of Anthony, and quickly suspects that it is not Cal, though the resemblance is absolute; Olive, on the other hand, falls in love with Cal's courage and business ability. The scenes carry a good contrast in conditions of life in two sections of the metropolis.

Publicity Points: There is a realistic raid in the opening scenes on a dance hall in which a large cast of characters participate. When the police come, all hands flee for safety and the hero rescues the girl by carrying her between two high buildings on a wire.

Much can be said for the splendid double-exposure photography in this subject, which is accurately timed and contains some surprisingly good effects. Carlyle Blackwell does some pleasing work in differentiating the two characters he plays.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Carlyle Blackwell Star of Dual-Role Feature Drama of Absorbing Interest.
Sensational "Escape" Scene Surpasses "Stunts" of Thrilling Serials.
See Blackwell as the "Tough" and as the Cultured Youth of Society.
Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley in Roles That Fit Them Exactly.
Fast Moving Alliance of Sensations, Romance and Requited Love.

Advertising Angles: Play up Blackwell in his dual role. Hammer on this in your advertising, and tell how a change of environment altered a weakling for the better when he saw the girl he loved threatened. This is the big advertising point in the story, so play it up. For side angles tell that it shows the inside of gang life and high finance and proves that the difference is only one of degree; that it is merely that one thug is better dressed than the other and a trifle more refined in his methods.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, two six-sheets, two eight-sheets and one 24-sheet. Eight 8x11 black-and-white, eight 11x14 colored and two 22x28 colored lobby displays. One two-column cut, two one-column cuts. Slides, press sheets and music cues.

Released February 17.

"THE CRUCIBLE."

Paramount Reissue Starring Marguerite Clark Has Harold Lockwood as a Member of the Cast.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

AS Lean Fanshaw, the leading character in "The Crucible," Marguerite Clark makes her first entrance from a dog house, where she has hidden to escape the consequences of some tomboy trick. So well does she deserve the name she is wearing a pair of overalls cut off at the knee. The story is somewhat overdrawn, her mother and sister treating Jean with such unnatural severity as to weaken its effect. The girl was brought up by her father as nearly like a boy as possible, and when Mr. Fenshaw dies his younger daughter has a hard time of it. Her boyish manner offends her mother and her sister, and they nag the girl and threaten to punish her so often that one day she picks up a sickle and without really intending to hurt her sister cuts her on the hand.

Jean is sent to a reformatory. The rest of the story tells how she escapes, meets an artist in the woods, and goes through all sorts of trials and tribulations until she proves she is worthy of the love of her friend, the painter.

Marguerite Clark puts all her sincere and artistic method into the part of Jean, and the picture ranks among the most entertaining of her reissues. It was made about four years ago. Harold Lockwood plays the part of the artist.

Cast.

Jean .....Marguerite Clark
Craig .....Harold Lockwood
Amelia .....Justine Johnstone
Mrs. Fanshaw .....Lucy Parker
Miss Van Ostyn.....Barbara Winthrop
Stella .....Helen Hall

Program and Advertising Phrases: One of Marguerite Clark's First Great Successes Reissued to Fulfill Popular Demand.
A play That Was Good When First Issued; Is Still New and Good.
Wholly Delightful Photodrama Brings Marguerite Clark in Revival.
Seeing Again One of the Early Plays That Brought Fame to Marguerite Clark.
How a Girlish Prank Unjustly Condemned the Man She Loved.

Advertising Angles: Offer this as a reissue of one of Miss Clark's successes, and offer that success as a reason for bringing it forward again. If you have played the picture before, recall the story to those who have seen it and urge those who have not seen it to be sure to get it this time. For a lobby display get any large iron or copper kettle and in it place a head of Miss Clarke cut out from a lithograph. Below have the usual wood fire or construct a brick furnace with red globes or colored medium.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one or three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released February 2.

"SANDY BURKE OF THE U-BAR-U."

Stirring Western Drama on Goldwyn Program Features Louis Bennison in Heroic Role.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE pleasing personality of Louis Bennison fills its intended niche in the Betzwood-Goldwyn production, "Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U," forming what might be called the "drawing card" of the picture. The story by J. Allen Dunn and directed by Ira M. Lowry, is not a perfect model of dramatic construction, but follows rather the narrative form. The production is stirring in quality, containing plenty of action such as lovers of Western tales are looking for. It is also of a wholesome type, making the hero a perfectly good man with real red blood in his veins.

Cast.

Sandy Burke.....Louis Bennison
Molly Kirby.....Virginia Lee
Jim Giggs.....Alphonse Ethier
Jeff Kirby.....Herbert Horton Pattee
Cyril Stammers.....Echlin P. Gayer
Widow Mackey.....Lucy Beaumont
Sheriff Quinlan.....Wilson Bayley
Dolly Morgan.....Nadia Gary
Lafe Hinton.....Philip Sanford

Story by J. Allen Dunn.
Directed by Ira M. Lowry.

The Story.

A letter received by a Westerner from his dying wife states that she is sending their little girl to him, and begs that he will treat her kindly. Shortly after receiving the letter he is shot dead by Jim Diggs, the bad man of the settlement. Sandy Burke, an adventurous cowboy, elects himself foster father of the child after it has been kidnapped by Diggs and rescued by Burke. He thereafter figures not only in this capacity, but as benefactor to Widow Mackey, with whom he leaves the child, winning money from Lafe Hinton, the holder of a mortgage on her property, to help her pay it off. The love interest of the story originates at the ranch of his employer, Jeff Kirby, when he falls in love with Molly Kirby, and finally succeeds, through a series of heroic acts, in convincing her that he is worthy of her love.

Publicity Points.

A round-up in the cattle country in which the cattle thieves re-brand a steer in a thrilling close-up is a feature of the picture.

Sandy Burke's winning of the girl he loves through daring heroism proves that the brave deserves the fair."

Feature Louis Bennison.

Program and Advertising Phrases: "Quick-on-the-Draw" Bennison Star of Wild Riding, Straight Shooting "Western" Melodrama.

Excitement and Daring Adventure in Rugged Film Drama.

He Used Both His Smile and Two Guns in the Defense of Love.

Wooing, Fighting, Shooting and Riding in the Land of Do or Die.

Western Pluck and Luck Set Forth in Thrilling Screen Drama.

Advertising Angles: Hook this up with Bennison's first release if you showed that, and hammer on the star to establish him. If you can fix the police, use a huge rubber stamp made of printer's roller composition showing the U—U of the brand and stamp this on the sidewalk all over your territory. To mould the stamp build up a sheet of putty a quarter inch thick on a sheet of glass, cut out the letters and the bar, then pour in the composition. Tack to a board with a handle. Get it large enough to be easily seen. If you cannot work the stamp, try water-color put down with a brush. Get a big pasteboard brand for the lobby front, and decorate with stills. For advertising work you can repeat the brand with gothic letters and hyphens. Get the U—U all over town, and let the story ride on that.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six and one 24-sheet. Rotogravure one-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Coming and current slides. Advertising and scene cuts. Photographic line-cut copy for ads. Press book. Music one-sheet.

"ROMANCE AND ARABELLA."

Select Picture Presents Constance Talmadge As a Cheerful Widow and Is Full of Fun.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE old warning, "Beware of widows," would also be an appropriate title for "Romance and Arabella," a five-part Select picture taken from a stage comedy by William Hurlburt and featuring Constance Talmadge. While not the most amusing story given this demure young woman, who knows so well how to save an unconventional situation by use of her wholesome personality and refreshing sense of humor, the Hurlburt work is smartly written, and the star loses none of the good points of the character. That she is a widow when first introduced is not permitted to weigh on her spirits in the slightest degree, and her manner of setting out in search of husband number two holds an unexpected number of comic possibilities. She is wooed by four candidates for the slippers and dressing-gown of the late Mr. Cadenhouse before she gets her eyes opened to the astounding fact that the man she really loves has been right at her elbow all the time. It will readily be understood, here is a part that fits Constance Talmadge as neatly as do the modish frocks she provides for her personal adornment.

The production has the air of good breeding that is always associated with this young star's pictures and, in consequence, will please the loyal following her former screen comedies have created. Harrison Ford as Bill, Gertrude Claire as Aunt Effie and James Neill as Doctor Henry are the leading members of the able supporting company.

Cast.

Arabella Cadenhouse.....Constance Talmadge
Bill .....Harrison Ford
Aunt Effie .....Gertrude Claire
Harry Atteridge .....Monte Blue
Claude Estabrook.....Arthur Carew
Peter Harper .....Antrim Short
Doctor Henry .....James Neill

Story by William Hurlburt.
Scenario by Edith Kennedy.
Directed by Walter Edwards.

The Story.

Romance is the breath of life to Arabella. When set free from the elderly and uninteresting husband of her first marriage she starts out to replace him with a number two who shall be all her fervent fancy paints. In the meantime her young neighbor, Bill, a fine chap who is deeply in love with her, stands no show at all. Arabella regards him as a good friend and nothing more. Bill is wise enough to accept the situation and await his chance. It comes after Arabella has been provided with four different suitors by Bill, who sees to it that she is introduced to a new admirer before the old wooer makes her his wife. An impulsive Westerner, a soulful gentleman who expounds free love, a very young chap who plays the mandolin, and an elderly but absent-minded scientist form the quartet. Bill gets Arabella on the rebound when her aged bridegroom forgets to be present at his own wedding.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Constance Talmadge Star in Her Latest and Most Appealing Photoplay.

Constance Talmadge Makes Most Charming Widow in New Drama.

Film Hero Overthrows Saying About Faint Heart and Fair Lady.

Famous Comedy Given Super-Production in Newest Photoplay.

Captivating Star Wins New Laurels in Her Latest Screen Drama.

Advertising Angles: Get all you can out of Miss Talmadge's name. For the play angle announce that it is a comedy by William Hurlburt which gained fame on the stage. Try liners of snipes with "Bill's all right" as a prelude to your campaign. Then start in to tell the girls that it is all right to marry for romance, but that they had better see Arabella first. Ring the changes on this in your advertising, and run slides with change of copy. Don't tell them why Bill was all right. Make them want to find out. You have all sorts of chances here to get up a curiosity campaign that should be a winner. Work it hard. It will repay the little extra trouble. Get a cubist picture for the lobby and ask "Could you marry a man who painted like that? Arabella didn't. See why (date)."

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Window cards, 14x21. Heralds. Lobby display photographs, 8x10, 11x14, 22x28. Slides. Cuts, two one-column, two two-column, one three-column, one one-half-column cut of star and one one-column and one two-column cuts of star.

Released in February.

"THE OLD MAID'S BABY."

Baby Marie Osborne Featured in Charming Little Five-Reel Pathe-Diando Subject.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

BABY MARIE OSBORNE is fortunate once more in this number in having a story well adapted to her requirements. "The Old Maid's Baby" is quite certain to make a wide appeal to both young and old. The opening scenes depict circus life in an attractive matter, and later along there follows a love story of strong heart interest. Baby Marie is natural and effective in the role assigned her, that of a child whose mother and father do circus stunts, one of which is to make a daily balloon ascension. The colored boy, "Little Sambo," makes but one or two appearances, but gets the usual laugh when he does. The way he contends that a man "chased him into" the circus tent is very amusing.

The story and scenario were written by Agnes C. Johnson and William Bertram directed. Others in the cast are Jack Richardson, Marion Warner, Jack Connelly, Claire Du Brey, William Quinn and Georgia Woodthorpe.

Cast.

"Tiny," pet of the "Big Top,"
Baby Marie Osborne
Her Father.....Jack Richardson
Her Mother.....Marion Werner
Frank Dodge.....Jack Connelly
Sylvia Deana.....Clarie DuBrey
Professor Caldwell.....William Quinn
Mrs. Caldwell, her mother,
Georgia Woodthorpe
Washington Joffre Foch Pershing Johnson .....Little Sambo

Story by Agnes C. Johnson.
Produced by William Bertram.

The Story.

Little Christine is the daughter of a circus clown and a lady balloonist. In the mother's home town her sister, Sylvia, snubs her because she is a circus performer. Later, both mother and father are killed in a parachute drop, and the child thinks they rode to heaven in the balloon. Christine goes to live with her Aunt Sylvia, who receives her reluctantly. Sylvia has a mathematical mind, and is very intellectual. She is loved by Professor Caldwell and also by Frank Dodge, the latter being a "regular fellow." The professor tries to steal her mathematical discoveries, and blames Christine. Frank comes to the rescue, saves Christine and wins Sylvia's heart.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Photoplay of Remarkable Appeal to Both Old and Young Has Little Marie Osborn as Star.

Marie Osborne Favorite of the Grown Ups and Delight of the Kiddies.

Take the Kiddies to See This and Enjoy the Great Circus Scenes.

Youth and Maturity Will Find Agreeable Entertainment Here.

Favorite Child Star Featured in Her Best Screen Opportunities.

Publicity Points: There are any number of things in this that will particularly delight children. The circus scenes are all bright and entertaining, with a good parade feature. Anyone who has attended one of the old-fashioned balloon ascensions will enjoy thoroughly the one pictured here.

There is a very intelligent dog in this, and his part in the rescue of Christine from drowning is certain to please.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 11x14, both in sepia and color; also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

Released February 23.

"SHADOWS OF SUSPICION"

Screen Classics, Inc., Presents Harold Lockwood in Well Conceived Spy Story.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE late screen favorite, Harold Lockwood, is the star of "Shadows of Suspicion," produced by Yorke Film Corporation and released by Metro. The picture is a quick action melodrama with scenes laid in England, its hero being a young Englishman of the upper class, and the heroine a spirited American girl. The story does not depart from the accepted form for spy plots, but the incidents are woven together cleverly and, although the hero is side-tracked by the heroine in the last reel, there is plenty of excitement to hold the attention. The locations are excellent and the scenes of English social life have been faithfully reproduced. Harold Lockwood as Cyril Hammersley plays the English hero, whose courage is under suspicion, with more than a hint of American origin. His ease in the earlier scenes and his energy when the time for action arrives are well contrasted; he gives a fine all around performance. Naomi Childers as Doris Mathers is a credit to the country she represents and to the picture as well. American girls of her stamp are about the finest thing we export. Bigelow Cooper as Sir John Rizzio is a convincing representative of the real article.

Cast.

Cyril Hammersley.....Harold Lockwood
Doris Mathers.....Naomi Childers
Lady Betty Heathcote.....Helen Lindroth
Goeffrey Mathers.....Kenneth Kealing
Capt. Walter Byfield.....William Bailey
Sir John Rizzio.....Bigelow Cooper
Chief of Scotland Yard,
Capt. Leslie Peacock

Story by George Gibbs.
Scenario by Finis Fox.
Directed by Edwin Carewe.

The Story.

Cyril Hammersley, an Englishman of high social standing, is engaged to Doris Mathers, an American girl, who wonders why her lover is not fighting for his country. The young man is in the British Secret Service and is after a group of German spies whose head is Sir John Rizzio, a naturalized Englishman. The titled gentleman has been an unsuccessful suitor for the hand of Doris, and tries to discredit his rival by intimating that he may be a tool of the Huns. A packet of cigarette papers bearing a code message for the Germans becomes the centre of interest. Hammersley gets it from a traitor in the British War Office, who passes it to him at a dinner party. The next morning the traitor is shot. Sir John, who expected to receive the message from Hammersley, has his suspicions aroused that the Englishman is really serving his own government. Assisted by thugs Sir John tries to take the packet away by force. Cyril confides it to the keeping of Doris before he is seized and locked up in a tower of the baronet's country seat. Learning that Doris has the message secreted on her person, Sir John goes to her home and forces the packet from her. Doris summons help from Scotland Yard, the message—which is a plan for blowing up London—is recaptured, and Cyril is set free. Happiness for Doris and Cyril follows.

Publicity Points.

A night raid by aeroplane and Zeppelin on an Eiglish coast town is realistically shown.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The Late Harold Lockwood, Idol of Screen Fans, in One of His Last Picture Plays.
Raids in Screen Melodrama.
Energetic and Convincing Action in Thrilling Photodrama.
Graphic Mingling of British Secret Service with Hun Propaganda.
Spy Plots and Hun Intrigue Exposed and Punished in Thrilling Scenes.

Advertising Angles: Play up on Lockwood's popularity. For the play angle take that of the young man suspected of cowardice by his sweetheart and of his loyalty by others. Set a package of cigarette papers on a lobby card and letter, "This seems a small thing to form the plot of a play, yet a book of cigarette papers is the hub around which revolves one of the most gripping stories Lockwood has ever played. See 'Under Suspicion' (house and date)." You can work the same idea for window cards, especially in cigar stores.

Advertising Aids: Four styles one-sheet, three three-sheets, two six-sheets, one twenty-four-sheet. Photos. Slides. Music cue sheets. Special heralds. Special hand-colored lobby displays. One, two and three-column ready made advertisements. Scene cuts.

"THE WICKED DARLING."

Six-Part Universal Special Features Priscilla Dean in Absorbing Slum Story.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS new six-part Universal offering, "The Wicked Darling," is an exceptional tale of slum life in the city. Priscilla Dean is cast in the role of a beautiful young girl, a flower growing among weeds. She is a thief by force of training and environment, but a lady at heart. The part is a pleasing variation from other roles previously played by Miss Dean, and handled just as effectively. The entire cast co-operates with some of the best character work shown on the screen in a long time, Lon Chaney as "Stoop" and Spottiswoode Aiken as "Uncle Fadem" being especially good.

The story interest is well developed, though slightly obvious in character. The plot could have been told in five reels and would have gained in suspense as a result, but the character work is so excellent that there is much in favor of the more leisurely method of presentation. Many of the incidents are dramatic—the theft of the pearl necklace, the shooting of Mortimer by Stoop, the fighting scenes, and the sudden appearance of the burly bartender toward the close. Despite its picturing of the seamy side of life, the picture is full of human sympathy and marks a long step ahead for this type of photoplay.

Cast.

Mary Stevens.....Priscilla Dean
Kent Mortimer.....Wellington Playter
Stoop.....Lon Chaney
Fanem.....Spottiswoode Aiken
Adele Hoyt.....Gertrude Astor

Story by Evelyn Campbell.
Scenario by Waldemar Young.
Directed by Tod Browning.

The Story.

Mary Stevens, known as "The Wicked Darling," is a slum girl beloved by "Stoop." On the night of a big reception she dashes away with a pearl necklace dropped by Adele Hoyt. She finds refuge in the home of Kent Mortimer, who bought the pearls for Adele. Mary learns that Adele has broken her engagement with Kent, and she falls in love with him, determining to lead a decent life thereafter. Mary becomes a waitress and afterward meets Kent, who is down and out, having spent his last money on Adele. Stoop learns of their love and shoots Kent in the arm. Later he tries to get the necklace from Mary, but she recovers it and confesses her theft to Kent. He is at first repelled, but after further dramatic events forgives the girl.

Publicity Points.

The slum scenes, in which the subject abounds, are fascinating, and carry conviction. There is a fine blend of humor and dramatic interest.

An unusual feature of this offering is the fact that practically all of the outdoor scenes are "night" scenes. The photography is at the same time clear and attractive.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Priscilla Dean Star of Sensational Photoplay of Impelling Interest.
Oddity in Screen Photography Showing a Succession of "Night Scenes."
The Best Traditions of Dickens Recalled in Atmosphere and Characterization.
Slum Girl Rises to Respectability by Merit of True Worth.
Love Blends with Sensationalism in Appealing Photodrama.

Advertising Angles: Make plenty of use of the star. Tell that this is the story of a girl of the underworld who went straight for love of a down-and-out society man. Tell also that he found the girl of the slums far better worth while than his fiancee of fashion who cast him off when he lost his money. Hook up with jewelry stores on a display of real or imitation pearls with, "Pearls mean purity, and the pearl necklace in "The Wicked Darling' brought a desire for better things to a girl of the slums."

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six sheets. Stock one-sheet of star. Colored and black-and-white lobby displays. Slide. Heralds. Players' cuts in three sizes. Scene cuts, one and two columns wide. Press book.

Released February 24.

"SILENT STRENGTH."

Harry Morey Plays Double Role to Good Advantage in Five-Part Vitagraph in Story of Crooked Deal.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

VITAGRAPH'S five-part feature for February 17 was directed by Paul Scardon from a story of Lawrence McCloskey's. Harry Morey plays a double role with a capable supporting cast consisting of Betty Blythe, Robert Gaillard, Barnard Siegel, Herbert Pattee and James Costello.

After introducing the hero in an agreeable manner, and sufficiently establishing the atmosphere in which he belongs, the director has swung into the romance of the story with very little preliminary detail. Considerable care has been taken with the double exposure scenes of the picture, which have been so well done that they may be considered a feature of the production. On the other hand, the methods of arriving at dramatic situations are not always convincing, with the result that the suspense of the story is impaired. Harry Morey's work on the whole is good, although a more marked differentiation of character, in the two men of similar identities would have been an improvement.

Cast.

Dan La Roche }
Henry Crozier } .....Harry T. Morey
Ruth Madison .....Betty Blythe
Corp. Neville .....Robert Gaillard
Tom Tripp .....Bernard Siegel
Inspector Burke .....Herbert Pattee
Jenkins .....James Costello

Directed by Paul Scardon.

The Story.

Dan La Roche, living alone in a cabin in the mountains, after falling in love with a pretty girlish visitor in the vicinity, finds himself joint heir with his cousin in an estate left by his uncle. The cousin, who is the exact double of La Roche in appearance, is a man of warped and unscrupulous character. He double crosses La Roche at the first opportunity, signing over to him his share of timber lands when it is eaten up with mortgages. It also happens that he meets Dan's sweetheart, who, owing to the similarity in appearance of the two men, mistakes him for Dan without being enlightened. A marriage takes place between the two, and when her husband leaves for his mining property, telling her that he is going to the timber lands, she follows him, causing peculiar complications to arise. Through the perfidy of his cousin Dan is arrested and put in jail. He escapes. In a pistol bout Dan receives a scalp wound. The cousin is shot dead by a woodsman, leaving the interrupted romance to continue on its way.

Program and Advertising Phrases: How a Dougle-Crossing Swindler Double-Crossed His Trusting Cousin in Love and Business.
Fate Ruled the Girl Should Marry Two Men, but Gives Her Love to One.
Unfair in Love and Business, Swindler Meets Just Deserts.
How a Rugged Mountaineer Was Double-Crossed by Cruel Fate.
Vitagraph Presents Harry T. Morey in Remarkable Photoplay.

Advertising Angles: Meet the rather implausible foundation of the story by asking your readers if they think that any girl could marry the double of the man she loves and not discover the deception. Then tell them they can see this done in "The Silent Strength." Work up their interest strongly and then cash in on it. Make especial appeal to Mr. Morey's following by telling what a fine part the star has in the dual role.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Window cards. Lobby display, 11x14 and 22x28. Heralds. Slides. Plan book. Press sheet.
Released February 17.

"GO WEST, YOUNG MAN."

Tom Moore Makes Goldwyn Five-Part Comedy-Drama Consistently and Highly Entertaining.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THIS Goldwyn picture gets a familiar start. The hero is told, "Go West, Young Man," for the same reason that impels the wealthy fathers of all wasteful sons to turn them out to shift for themselves, after the boys have tried to break the money burning record on the Great White Way. Dick Latham, as impersonated by Tom Moore, takes his father's advice with a show of philosophy that argues well for his reformation by the suggested trip. The star's light-hearted but manly bearing prevents the situation from becoming melodramatic, and the scenes which follow, although open to argument on the grounds of improbability, lose none of their entertaining qualities. Tom Moore's way of handling them saves the least likely incidents from too serious consideration. Even when he is appointed sheriff of a turbulent Western town as a joke and subdues the badmen of the place with neatness and in short order, the wise spectator will take the incident for what it is worth in the way of enjoyment and applaud the tenderfoot who turns the laugh on the villain and his companions. There are humorous or exciting bits of life all through the story, and Willard Mack's skill as a dramatist is apparent in every reel. Harry Beaumont has directed the production with excellent results, and the supporting cast and general atmosphere of the picture are up to the required standard. Ora Carew is delightfully natural and likable as the Western heroine. Melbourne MacDowell and Jack Richardson furnish effective support in important roles.

The Story.

Dick Latham, spoiled by an unlimited supply of money, quarrels with his father, boards a freight train in Jersey City and starts West. Arriving at a settlement known as Twin Bridges, he is glad to go to work as a dish washer. While here he meets Rosa Crimmings, whose father is an invalid and who owns a ranch which Hugh Godson, a crooked lawyer of the town, wants to buy. There is valuable ore on it, of which the girl and her father know nothing. Seeing that Dick is attracted by Rosa, the lawyer determines to get him out of the way. When Dandy Jim and his gang of outlaws make it too warm for the sheriff and he quits office, Godson has Dick elected. The new sheriff is the surprise of the town's lifetime. He closes up the saloons on Sunday, whips the bully of the place, finds out Godson's scheme to cheat Rosa's father, blocks it, wins the girl's heart, and arrests his own father when that man of wealth arrives to buy the Crimmins land and is found playing poker on Sunday. This touch is one of the cleverest in the picture.

Advertising Aids published on page 117 of issue of January 4.

"THE ECHO OF YOUTH."

Graphic Film Corporation Presents Ivan Abramson's Six-Part Screen Story with Expensive Cast.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

VITALITY is the keynote of the moving pictures written and directed by Ivan Abramson. "The Echo of Youth," produced by the Graphic Film Corporation, is the latest work to his credit. This is not to be taken as an unqualified endorsement of the new picture, but its author understands what constitutes effective drama and is conversant with the weaknesses of human nature. Not all of his material is of an agreeable nature, however, and he is influenced by the continental standards of theatrical fare in his choice of characters and situations. He is to be commended for endeavoring to tell his stories in action rather then by titles, but he often insists on throwing in incidents that are not necessary to the understanding of the plot by the average intellect.

It is only fair to state that the Abramson brand of pictures has made a distinct place for itself in its own field, and "The Echo of Youth" averages up well with the rest. In one respect, it is an advance on the others—the story is less difuse and is consequently more easily followed. Its big scene is not played with the dramatic force generally secured by the Graphic director, although he has not been at all niggardly in the matter of cast and the engaging of actors of reputation.

The honors of the performance go to Leah Baird. As Olive Martin, an adventuress who blackmails a wealthy New York judge by passing her brother's boy off as the magistrate's son, the actress is easy, forceful and sufficiently alluring to account for the fall of her victim. Charles Richman, as Judge Graham, does well enough in the lighter scenes, but barely indicates the full tragedy when he is confronted with the terrible thought that the man his daughter hopes to marry is her own brother. This highly dramatic, but decidedly unpleasant state of affairs is the well-worn central point of the story. The attitude of mind toward it will decide the spectator's estimation of the picture's merit.

The remaining parts are taken by Pearl Shepard, Marie Shotwell, Jack McLean, Howard Hall, Peggy Shanor, William Bechtel and Phillp Van Loan.

Cast.

Peter Graham.....Charles Richman
Olive Martin .....Leah Baird
Anita Graham .....Pearl Shepard
Mrs. Graham .....Marie Shotwell
Harold Martin .....Jack McLean
Uncle John Carlisle.....Howard Hall
Marian Ducet .....Peggy Shanor
Thomas Donald .....William Bechtel
Marcel Ducet .....Philip Van Loan

The Story: Olive Martin, a cabaret singer, learning of Peter Graham's elevation to the Supreme Court bench, comes to New York and demands that he divorce his wife and marry her under pain of exposing the fact that he has a son by her, Harold, who is a reporter in Boston, where Anita, Graham's daughter, is completing her education. He meets and falls in love with her and they come to New York to announce their engagement, but the horrified Graham forbids the ceremony. Olive tells Harold that he is Anita's half sister, but Donald Martin, Olive's brother-in-law, comes in time to explain that Donald is really his own son, used by Olive in her blackmailing scheme, and the exposure comes just in time to prevent Graham's suicide.

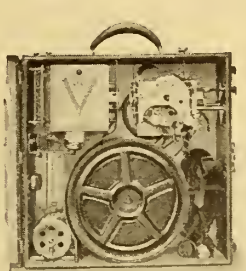
Feature: Charles Richman, Leah Baird and Pearl Shepard.

Advertising Angles: Play up the strong cast and announce this as an Ivan Abramson story, to those who follow this producer. Tell the story briefly in your advertising, but do not announce the climax, asking the reader how he supposes the tangle was unraveled. Work with startling catch-lines in heavy type, such as "Blackmail!" "Dough to wreck four lives!" and similar phrases, since you must sell

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30% to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W74

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY
80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone: Chelsea 3227
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting



PERFECTED PROJECTION
The country's leading theatres are using
THE DE VRY PORTABLE PROJECTOR for pre-viewing film, and reaping the reward of their foresight by increasing patronage.
Let us show you how you, too, can profit by its use. No obligations. Write to
THE DE VRY CORPORATION
1256 Marianna Street DE V CHICAGO, ILL.

upon sensation and appeal to sensation lovers.

Program and Advertising Phrases: When an Attempt at Blackmail Worked More Ways Than One in Defeating Intrigue.
Mistaken Identity Reveals Story of Intrigue and Deceit.
All-Star Cast Seen in Gripping Photodrama of Social Intrigue.
Tangled Webs of Intrigue and Deceit Unraveled in Gripping Play.
Sensational Photoplay Reveals Startling Intrigue in Amazing Details.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet and one twenty-four sheet; show cards in two colors; heralds, press sheets, music cues; ten 8x10 black and white, eight 11x14 sepia and two 22x28 colored photographs.

"THE MAN OF MIGHT."

New Vitagraph Serial Starring William Duncan Gets Away at Top Speed.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THAT industrious pair of serial constructors, Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady, have been at it again. "The Man of Might" is the title of their latest joint product in which William Duncan, assisted by Edith Johnson and the ever faithful Joe Ryan, tries to break his record and his neck both at the same time. The story gets away at top speed, and the rough-and-tumble fight in the first chapter is as fast and furious as the most determined pacifist would denounce as the climax of unpeacefulness. All the Duncan skill in picking out locations, arranging thrills and taking the lead in the daredevil stunts is shown at its best in the opening chapters of this serial, which give assurance of loads of excitement to come.

The Story.

"The Riven Flag" is the name of the first chapter of "The Man of Might." A hidden treasure on an uninhabited island starts the trouble in the story. An old sea captain who knew where the treasure was hidden drew a map of the place on a flag, and then gives his companions pieces of the map. One of the survivors turns up when the uncle of the heroine dies and tries to gain possession of the piece of flag left her by the dying man. Her sweetheart happens in about that time, and a dead-in-earnest William Duncan-Joe Ryan scrap gets into action at once. The hero is shot at the end of the episode.

Chapter two is called "The Leap Through Space." It is made in an automobile across a chasm by the hero and the girl when the villains blow up the bridge. The young couple are now man and wife, having been married after the death of the girl's uncle. The third episode is called "The Creeping Death," and shows a jump from the edge of a precipice to a tall sapling. At the close of this episode Van Brunt and his wife are prisoners in a cabin and the villains have lighted a charge of dynamite under the place, and there is nothing for the spectator to do but wait a week for the next installment to see what happens next.

"LUCK AND PLUCK"

George Walsh as "An Honorable Crook" Dashes Entertainingly Through Fox Comedy.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THAT winsome young gentleman who is so often met with on the screen or the stage, but never in real life, the "honorable crook," is the captivating hero in "Luck and Pluck," a five-reel comedy-drama written by George Scarborough and produced by William Fox. George Walsh impersonates the handsome and daring housebreaker who is able to fracture the laws of the land and pose as a hero at the same time, and dashes through the scenes of the picture at a fine rate of speed and display of muscular action. Known as "Velvet," the crook proves that he is a smooth article, and ends up by breaking his way into an innocent young girl's heart and going in for matrimony and the honest but peaceful life.

The character, of which "Raffles" is the accepted type, is own cousin to the swashbuckling heroes of the old melodramas. They are arrant rogues all, but such likable rascals by virtue of their wit, strength and cunning that many persons are willing to forgive their crimes for the sake of the enjoyment they furnish. "Velvet" is a younger and more athletic "Raffles," and George Walsh smiles and springs and acts as though he was having such a good time himself all through the story. If you are a Walsh "fan" you'll cast your vote in favor of "Luck and Pluck." A pretty little girl named Virginia Lee as the heroine, Joe Smiley as her father and George Halpin as "Velvet's" valet are the outstanding members of the support.

The Story.

Joe Grim, alias "Velvet," is content to attend strickly to the business of housebreaking until he rescues a good looking girl in a runaway in Central Park. After that he does his best to steal the girl's heart. Her father is chief of the United States Intelligence Bureau, and her fiance is Karl Richter, a German spy, who belongs to a band that is trying to steal the plans of an aeroplane invented by Professor Slade. Countess Briand, a member of the band, is another supposed friend of the heroine's, and the young girl is taken to her house after the runaway. Joe goes to the home of the countess to steal a photograph of his charmer, believing that she lives there. The countess covers him with a revolver and learns his errand. She tells him that Slade is trying to blackmail his Laura, and has letters belonging to the girl. Joe rushes to Slade's house, steals the plans in mistake for the letters, and gives them to the countess. When he discovers his mistake he steals the plans back again and returns them to the half-crazed inventor. The crook goes on stealing his way through the story to help his love affair, and his quick action is the means of saving Laura and catching the German conspirators when they kidnap the girl. Joe receives his reward by marrying Laura.

Publicity Point.

There is a laughable and exciting squirrel hunt during which George Walsh shows that he can climb trees just about as fast as the four-footed little thief he is chasing for stealing his bag of peanuts.

"THE RED GLOVE."

New Universal Serial Features Marie Walcamp in Fine Adventure Story.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

MOST lovers of serial stories will remember Marie Walcamp as the dashing and romantic heroine of "Liberty," though she has since appeared

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

No. 478 11/16 Inch Actual Size

Sample Box of 100 Postpaid 50c.

SAVES WEAR AND TEAR ON PAPER

THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK FOR GENERAL USE

SOLIDHED TACK COMPANY
SOLE MAKERS
38 Murray Street, New York

No. 448—½-Inch Tops—30c. per 100
No. 468—⅝-Inch Tops—40c. per 100

Brass-plated to prevent rusting.

THE CINEMA

NEWS AND PROPERTY GAZETTE

30 Gerrard Street
W. I. London, England

Has the quality circulation of the trade in Great Britain and the Dominions. All Official Notices and News from the ASSOCIATION to its members are published exclusively in this journal

YEARLY RATE:
POSTPAID, WEEKLY, $7.25
SAMPLE COPY AND
ADVERTISING RATES ON REQUEST

Appointed by Agreement Dated 7|8|14

THE OFFICIAL ORGAN OF
THE CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN & IRELAND, LTD.

WANTED

Agents for all parts of country to further a legitimate advertising proposition. $500 should return a comfortable living.

Publicity Clock Co., Inc.
105 West 40th St., New York City

VENTILATE & COOL BY TYPHOONS
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK 281 LEXINGTON AVE.

in other successful offerings as well. This present serial, "The Red Glove," of which the writer has seen four instalments, promises to repeat her great success in "Liberty." From the standpoint of compelling action, romantic atmosphere and scenic grandeur, it is a serial that will satisfy the most exacting. The photography of Virgil Miller and J. E. Perkins is consistently clear and attractive, and the photographers have contributed a new "fade-in" that is both beautiful and mystifying. The first instalment is to be released in a few weeks.

The story, which is purely one of romantic adventure, was adapted from a novel by Douglas Grant entitled "The Fifth Ace." It has been capably directed by J. P. McGowan. The supporting cast for Miss Walcamp is strong, and includes Pat O'Malley, Thomas G. Lingham, Alfred Allen, Leon De La Mothe, Evelyn Selbie, Andrew Waldron and Edgar Allen.

The Story.

There is just about the right amount of plot in this offering for a rapid-fire adventure story. The chief scene is a Western town adjacent to some great oil fields. The girl's supposed father is Gentleman Geoff, proprietor of an establishment known as "The Blue Chip." It develops later that there is a mystery concerning her birth, which is partially explained at the time of Gentleman Geoff's death. The steady flow of exciting incidents that arise in the story all emanate from the activities of a picturesque band of outlaws known as the "Vultures." These bandits wear masks and headpieces of eagle's wings, and are under direction of Starr Wiley, agent of a certain oil company, and his confederate.

Publicity Points.

There are many individual stunts that may well be mentioned, including a burning oil well, the crash of a wagon over a cliff, the leap of the heroine across a chasm on horseback, an auto explosion, defense of "The Blue Chip" and many others.

COMMENTS

GEYSERS AND GEEZERS (Rothacker), Jan. 12.—In this number of the Outdoor series Yellowstone National Park is made to reveal as much of its beauty as is possible by photographic means. The geysers and terraces of the park which are shown include Hymen terrace, Jupiter terrace, Grotto geyser, Grand, Jewel, Castle, Giant, Squirrel Hill and Old Faithful geysers; the Paint Pots and Fisherman's Cone are also shown, as well as many other scenes of interest in the park.

LIFE'S A FUNNY PROPOSITION (Mutual), January.—A five-part comedy featuring William Desmond. The picture is not a particularly well-constructed one, but the story is wholesome and carries considerable entertaining quality. A full review will be found elsewhere.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

TOTO'S TROUBLERS (Rolin), February 16.—A knockabout comic, number, featuring Toto in some of his acrobatic clowning. He invades an artist's studio, carrying an easel, where he creates havoc among the models and other occupants. This strikes about an average in entertainment value.

THE MYSTIC BOX (Astra), February 9.—Episode No. 6 of "The Lightning Raider." This opens with Lightning and Tom swimming to safety after their dive from the moving train. The scene then changes to a country cabin, which they discover, after meeting two lovers, Amarilly Hopkins and Wingate Cobb. Wu Fang and his accomplice appear. The shack is blown up and some desperate fighting follows, in which the country lovers participate.

THE BRASS KEY (Pathe), Feb. 2.—Episode No. 5 of "The Lightning Raider." Lightning and Tom finally succeed in getting possession of the ebony block and open it only to discover that it contains a small brass key. The key is apparently hollow and they believe it contains something of value. Wu Fang pursues them, however, and they dive from a moving train at the close of the installment.

IN ALSACE-LORRAINE (Pathe French Pictorial).—One of the best films yet shown demonstrating the manner in which the Allied troops entered Mulhouse and other cities on the German front. This gives an idea of the magnitude of the entire operation of policing Germany. It shows scenes from various occupied cities.

Universal Film Company.

UP THE FLUE (Star Comedy), February 10.—A very funny subject, which deals with the recent influenza epidemic. Eddie and Lee are at a wedding, at which Eddie is groom, when the latter sneezes violently. A panic follows, and the wedding ceremony is later resumed with everybody wearing gas masks. This is a laughable subject.

Additional Advertising Aids

"FORTUNE'S CHILD.

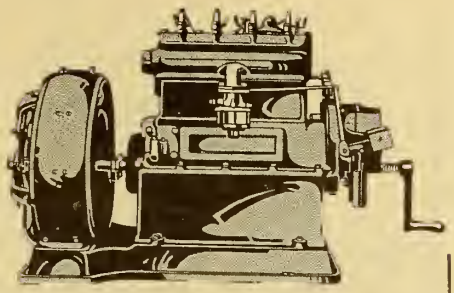
Albert E. Smith Presents Gladys Leslie—the Sunshine Star—in the Story of a Girl Whose Dreams Came True.

Cast.

Beth .....Gladys Leslie
Jimmie Vernon.....Kempton Greene
Bob Wynne.....Stanley Walpole
Mrs. Wynne.....Frances Mann
Carter Demarest.....Fred Smith
Mrs. Gamp.....Jessie Stevens
"Superstitious" Louis.....Denton Vane
Gallagher.....Frank Norcross
Clarice.....Miriam Miles

Directed by Joseph Gleason.

The Story: Under suspicion of being a thief, Beth steals away from the boarding house where she has slaved. A sneak thief steals little Bob, the heir of the wealthy Wynnes with an idea of ransom, but the child comes into possession of Jimmie Vernon, who is an artist by nature and a prize fighter through force of circumstances. He takes Beth off his doorstep to care for the child. Mrs. Wynne becomes demented over the loss of the child. Jimmy is taken to a hospital and the thief again steals the child. Beth, deserted, as she thinks, is befriended by the Wynnes. She "borrows" Bob from the boarding house to comfort Mrs. Wynne,



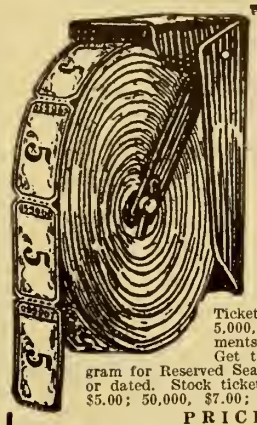
4 K. W. Electric Generating Set.

60 or 110 volts for stationary or portable moving picture work and theatre lighting. Smooth, steady current, no flicker. Portable type with cooling radiator all self-contained.

Send for Bulletin No. 26

Universal Motor Co.

OSHKOSH, WISC.



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings: 5,000, $3.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets: 5,000, $1.25; 25,000, $5.00; 50,000, $7.00; 100,000, $10.00.

PRICES

Five Thousand	$1.50
Ten Thousand	3.00
Fifteen Thousand	4.00
Twenty-five Thousand	6.00
Fifty Thousand	8.00
One Hundred Thousand	12.00

National Ticket Co., Shamokin, Pa.

COLOR HOODS ARE BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN ANY DIP

They Slide Over the Lamp

and show Beautiful Permanent Color Effects In Signs, Decorative Lighting, Exit Lights, etc.

Reynolds Electric Co.

422 S. TALMAN AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

Watch for coming announcement of

SESSUE HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS

Haworth Pictures Corporation

H. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

"WE NEVER DISAPPOINT"

TELEPHONE BRYANT 5576

CROMLOW FILM LABORATORIES

INCORPORATED

220 WEST 42ND STREET NEW YORK

ALLAN A. LOWNES GEN. MGR.

not knowing the child to be the Wynne's own, and in the examination which follows Beth comes into her own—her dreams of fairy knights come true.

Feature Gladys Leslie as Beth. Kempton Green as Jimmy.

Program nnd Advertising Phrases: One of Fortune's Children Who Made Fairy Dreams Come True.
Dainty Gladys Leslie Star of Vitagraph's Latest Screen Offering.
How a Boarding House Waif Courted Fortune and Won Happiness.
Fairy Tale Fiction Turned Into Reality By Gripping Photodrama.
"Rags Are Royal Raiment When Worn for Virtue's Sake."

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Leslie. For the story angle deal with the adventures of the baby, telling the story in such a way that the reader wants to see how the child got back home. You might also try the "Do you believe in fairies?" style of appeal, telling that Beth's fairy dreams came true.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Window cards. Lobby dispay, 11x14 and 22x28. Heralds. Slides. Plan book. Press sheet.

Released February 10.

Reviewed on page 805 of issue of February 8.

"HERE COMES THE BRIDE"

Adolph Zukor Presents John Barrymore in a Screen Version of the Famous Stage Success by Max Marcin and Roy Atwell.

Cast.

Frederick Tile, a Lawyer.....John Barrymore
Robert Sinclair, a Corn Magnate,
Frank Losee
Ethel Sinclair, his Daughter.....Faire Binney
Nora Sinclair.....Francis Kaye
James Carleton.....Alfred Hickman
Thurlow Benson.....William David
Ashley .....Leslie King
Sevier .....Harry Semmels

Story by Max Marcin and Roy Atwell.
Scenario by Charles E. Whittaker.
Directed by John S. Robertson.

The Story: Frederick Tile madly loves Ethel Sinclair, daughter of the corn magnate who opposes the match on the grounds that the impecunious Tile is after her money. When Tile is offered $20,000 to marry a four-times widow, who promises to get a divorce, he sees a chance to makes some money and prove that his love is not mercenary. Meanwhile Ethel has withdrawn her money from the bank, written her father that she has eloped with Tile and comes to his apartment with the good news. He cannot tell of the marriage and puts her off. She goes to her chum. Tile takes refuge with her brother, and his new wife, who is dissatisfied with the $500 offered her, comes to raise the ante. It looks pretty black for Tile until his aged wife's real husband gets out of Sing Sing and comes to claim her, but he has let himself in for a twelve months' delay in his real marriage.

Advertising Angles: Play up Barrymore, and add that he is seen in a stage success that had New York howling. Make the most of the many funny angles of the play. Try something along the lines of "He got $20,000 to marry her. She was to get $500 to divorce him. When she found out he had $19,500 the best of it she went on strike and only one thing saved the unfortunate husband. What do you suppose that could have been?" If you can do so cheaply, get a marriage bell for your lobby and offer to provide a license and a minister for anyone who will get married beneath it. Work with the dry goods stores on trousseaux, and bakeries with wedding cakes for hook-ups.

Program and Advertising Phrases: John Barrymore Star of Play That Won Fame Throughout the Country.
Would You Take a Chance on $100,000 and a Quick Divorce?
Marrying a Veiled Woman for Good Pay Worked Out Oddly Enough.
Unique Plot in Photoplay Unravelled All-Star Screen Cast.
Showing What a Man Will Do Who Needs Money Quickly and Urgently.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released January 19.

Reviewed on page 674 of issue of February 1.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY."

Jewel Presents Dorothy Phillips in Allen Holubar's Super-Production, Direct from Its Long New York Run.

Cast.

Nanette.....Dorothy Phillips
John Patricia.....William Stowell
Paul Patricia.....Robert Anderson
Jules Patricia.....Lloyd Hughes
Maurice Patricia.....Frank Braidwood
Louis Patricia.....George Hackathorn
The Widow Patricia.....Margaret Mann
Father Michael.....Walt Whitman
Clancy.....Pat O'Malley
Lieut. von Eberhard..Erich von Stroheim
Also 3,000 Soldiers, Marines, Refugees, Civilians, etc.

Story by Allen Holubar and Olga Scholl.
Directed by Allen Holubar.

The Story: Nanette, the ward of Father Michael, loves John Patricia and weds him as the war breaks out. His

Write for our up-to-date price list.
Amusement Supply Co.
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the
MOTION PICTURE TRADE
300-302 Mallers Bldg.
5 South Wabash Ave.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre
WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Inventors Will Do Well
TO AVAIL THEMSELVES OF OUR
EXPERIMENTAL DEPARTMENT
Finest Tools, Instruments, Apparatus
TO DO THINGS WITH
ELECTRIC COMPOSITOR CO.
856 BROAD ST. BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
Tools, Jigs, Fixtures, Gages, Punches, Dies
Special Machinery Light Manufacturing

PERFECTION IN PROJECTION
Gold King Screen
10 Days' Trial
No. 1 Grade, 75c.; No. 2 Grade, 50c.
Stretchers included
Try before you buy. Sold by all the leading supply dealers throughout the country.
Factory, ALTUS, OKLAHOMA

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe—for authoritative articles by leading British technical men—for brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read
THE BIOSCOPE
The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
Specimen on Application

AUTHORS
Recognized photoplay and fiction writers may place their synopses with our Manuscript Sales Department for submission by personal representation to the producers of Southern California. Commission basis.
Unrecognized writers may obtain competent constructive advice and help through the Palmer Plan and Advisory Bureau. Write for our free explanatory booklet.
Palmer Photoplay Corporation
595 I. W. Hellman Bldg. LOS ANGELES, CAL.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC CO.
West 114th Street, Cleveland, Ohio

NEW AND IMPROVED EQUIPMENT FOR Mazda Lamp Projection
ARGUS LAMP & APPLIANCE CO.
815-23 Prospect Ave. Cleveland, Ohio

We Manufacture
Complete EXIT Signs
65 to 70 Cents in Quantity
Also Fire Escape Signs and Other Specialties
T. L. ROBINSON & CO.
105 W. Monroe St., Chicago

GUARANTEED
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—total, 25,300; by States, $3.50. Per M.
1,500 film exchanges.....$5.00
313 manufacturers and studios..... 2.00
368 machine and supply dealers..... 2.00
Further Particulars:
A. F. WILLIAMS, 166 W. Adams St., Chicago

Clean Cut Facts
A picture is finished only when perfection of DEVELOPMENT and PRINTING is attained.
Save time, and lots of worry, by entrusting this work to EVANS—in the first place.
EVANS FILM MFG. CO., 416-24 West 216th St., New York City Telephone: St. Nicholas 3443-44

four older brothers enlist, and one by one are killed. Then John goes in his turn and Nanette, reading of the sufferings of the French and Belgian children, goes to care for them, leaving her own little son in his grandmother's care. John, who is in the aviation, is shot down, and the convent in which Nanette ministers to the orphans is taken by the Germans in command of Lieutenant von Eberhard, who had sought to win Nanette from John n peace days. Now he determines to win by force what he could not win in honorable suit; but John arrives just in time to save his little bride, but not in time to prevent her from stabbing herself, though she is not injured seriously.

Feature Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell, Erich von Stroheim.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The Photoplay That Made Its First Success in Conquering New York's Theatregoers.
Dorothy Phillips, Beautiful and Talented Screen Star in Her Greatest Role.
The Greatest Product of the War's Flood of Love Stories.
Story of Sacrifice and Devotion Illumined by Tragic Sequences.
An Appaling Story of Mother-Love Glorified by the World War.

Advertising Angles: Don't make the mistake of advertising it as another "Hearts of the World" or as "better than" that play. The play can stand comparison, but if you invite it the comparison will be detrimenta' Simply announce it as one of the biggest and best produced war stories yet presented. Boom it generously, but let the audience make their own comparisons and they will be more strongly in your favor. Tell that it ran for several weeks beyond the originally planned run at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and that it ran to big business, crowding out other bookings, but make most of your appeal with the material from the press book, which gives you an ample supply of really good material. Use at least two or three sheets if you cannot take more, and build up with threes.

Advertising Aids: One, three, five and twelve-sheets, and one twenty-four sheet. Various stills. Heralds in rotogravure. Window cards. Lobby displays. Advertising book. One, two and three-column cuts.

Released February 15.

Reviewed on page 113 of issue of January 4.

"RESTLESS SOULS"

Triangle Presents Alma Rubens in a Screen Version of Cosmo Hamilton's Magazine Story, Marriage.

Cast.

Marion Gregory .....Alma Rubens
Judith Wingate.....Katherine Adams
Hugh Gregory .....Jack Conway
Chester Wingate .....Harvey Clarke
Dr. Robert Calvert.....J. Barney Sherry
Oliver Sloan .....Eugene Burr

Story by Cosmo Hamilton.
Directed by William Dowlan.

The Story: Judith and Marion are schoolgirl chums. Judith marries Chester Wingate for his money and Marion weds Hugh Gregory because she loves him. But she tires of love in a cottage and when Hugh devotes more and more time to his business to provide those luxuries she desires she drifts away from him, spending more and more time with the fast set Judith has gathered about her. Then Judith plans that she shall be found in a compromising position with Wingate that she may gain a divorce and marry Oliver Sloan, but when the trap is sprung she finds to her horror that it is Sloan and not Wingate who is with Marion and does not realize that the situation is wholly innocent on Marion's part.

Advertising Angles: Feature Miss Rubens and gain interest for the play by making a mystery of the man who was found in Marion's room. Tell that Judith planned to have her old friend compromise her husband that she might gain a divorce, but that when the trap was sprung there was a vastly different outcome. Keep away from the husband-engrossed-in-business angle. It has been overdone. Play instead to Judith's surprise without telling what that was. Play up her plan to get rid of her husband, her treachery to her old school chum and her own chase after pleasures, always ending with the suggestion of her rude awakening.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Disaster Comes to Love in a Cottage When Society's Glamor Beckons.
The Fast Set and Bright Lights Fail to Compensate for True Love.
Alma Rubens Star of Gripping Sociological Photodrama of To-Day.
Wealth Reveals Discontent in the Mirror of Luxury and Frailty.
Stirring Drama of High Moral Purpose Furnishes Gripping Photoplay.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art heralds. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Photographs. Slides. Electros and mats. Triangle magazines. Press sheets.

Released February 2.

Reviewed on page 671 of issue of February 1.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

I hereby notify all producers, distributors, and exhibitors of motion pictures, and any persons, firms or corporations intending to enter in any branch of said business, that I hold a contract between Charles Ray, a motion picture star, and myself, a motion picture producer, under which I am entitled to receive the exclusive services of Charles Ray, from August 21, 1919, to August 21, 1920.

I understand that certain producers are seeking to secure the services of Charles Ray for the period named, and are offering him inducements to make contracts with them, for said period; and I hereby notify all producers, distributors and exhibitors, that I intend to protect my interests in said contract with Charles Ray, and my property right in his services, to the fullest extent allowed me by the Courts, not only by injunction against his employment and against the exhibition of pictures in which he has taken part, but further, by holding any person, firm or corporation contracting or seeking to contract with Charles Ray for the period above stated, for all damages or interests that I may be deprived of through any breach of contract on his part, or any interference with his contract with me.

Signed

THOMAS H. INCE

Culver City, California,
January eighteenth,
Nineteen Hundred
Nineteen.

"MOLLY OF THE FOLLIES"

America Presents Margarita Fisher in an Adaptation of Peter Clark McFarlane in The Red Book.

Cast.

Molly Malone .....Margarita Fisher
Joe Holmquist .....Jack Mower
Kate Malone .....Lulu Warrenton
Milton Wallace.....Millard L. Webb
Swannick.....J. Farrell MacDonald
Emily Ewing (Aunt Henrietta),
Mary Lee Wise

Story by Peter Clark MacFarlane.
Directed by Edward Sloman.

The Story: Molly is a dancer in a Coney Island show. Her mother is a fortune teller with the same show and both are interested in Joe Holmquist, "The Human Submarine." Molly loves Joe, but when she sees him in her mother's arms she refuses to accept any explanation and elopes with Chauncey Ewing, a young society man, who takes her to his aunt's home to spend the night, promising that they will get a license and a minister in the morning. She will sleep in the house, deserted by the family for the summer, and he will sleep in the garage. Joe comes to dissuade her, but she helps Chauncey throw him out. During the night she captures a burglar, but it turns out to be the real Chauncey Ewing, while her admirer proves to be his chauffeur, and Molly, cured of social ambitions, gladly turns to Joe.

Feature Miss Fisher as the side show dancer, Jack Mower as Joe.

Advertising Angles: Use Miss Fisher's name and tell that this is a rattling story of life behind the scenes in a Coney Island side show. Work on this angle with such catch phrases as "Would you Marry the Human Submarine?" "Did you ever dance on the ballyhoo?" "See what happened inside the tent while the Rubes were listening to the barker." Play up the Coney Island atmosphere. There is magic in the name, so work it strong. A little bunting will give you a good show "front" and be in keeping. If you cannot get a hand organ try a phonograph with lively band airs. If your house is not too dignified you might even put in a hot plate and set someone up in a hot dog concession.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Dainty Margarita Fisher Star of Intimate Photoplay Detailing Stage Secrets.
How a Coney Island Ballyhoo Led to Adventure in Love and Life.
Scenes in Show Life Reveal True Heart of Frivolous Actress.
Popular Magazine Story Brought to the Screen by Famous Star.
Unusual Photoplay Brings Novel Situations Into Screen Drama.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 11x14, both in sepia and color; also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

Released February 16.

Reviewed on page 805 of issue of February 8.

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

General Film Company, Inc.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

The Heir of the Broken O (Rolfville Tale—Two Parts—Drama).
The Rose of Wolfville (Wolfville Tale—Two Parts—Drama).
A Ramble in Aphasia (O. Henry Story—Two Parts—Drama).

ESSANAY COMEDIES.

Snakeville's New Sheriff (One Part).
Sophie's Birthday Party (One Part).

RAINBOW.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

How She Hated Men.
The Camouflaged Baby.
The Pipe of Peace.
Hooverizing.

OAKDALE PRODUCTIONS.

The Midnight Burglar (Five Parts—Drama).
Wanted, a Brother (Five Parts—Drama).
Little Miss Grown-Up (Five Parts—Drama).

SCRANTONIA FILM COMPANY.

(Featuring Charlie Fang.)

Parson Pepp (One Reel—Comedy).
Fang's Fate and Fortune (One Reel—Comedy).

OFFICIAL WAR PICTURES.

(Committee on Public Information.)

Our Bridge of Ships (Two Reels).

AMERICAN RED CROSS.

(One-Reel Patriotic Films.)

Soothing the Heart of Italy (One Part—Patriotic).
Of No Use to Germany (One Part—Patriotic).
First Aid on the Piave (One Part—Patriotic).
Rebuilding Broken Lives (One Part—Patriotic).
The Kiddies of No Man's Land (One Part—Patriotic).
Victorious Serbia (One Part—Patriotic).
A Helping Hand in Sicily (One Part—Patriotic).
Homeward Bound.
New Faces for Old.
Russia a World Problem.

COSMOFOTOFILM.

I Believe (Six Parts—Drama).

AMERICAN FEATURE FILM CORP.

Hearts of Love (Six Parts—Drama).

MAXWELL PRODUCTIONS.

The Married Virgin (Six Parts—Drama).

Exhibitors-Mutual

STRAND.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 5—Accidental Heroes.
Jan. 12—Some Mother.
Jan. 19—No Man's Land.
Jan. 26—Easy Payments.

FEATURES.

Dec. 29—And a Still Small Voice (Henry B. Walthall—Five Parts).
Jan. 5—All of a Sudden Norma (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts).
Jan. 12—Life's a Funny Proposition (William Desmond—Five Parts).
Jan. 19—Bonds of Honor (Sessue Hayakawa—Five Parts).
Jan.—Hoop-La (Billy Rhodes).
Jan.—The Eleventh Commandment (Ralph Ince Production.
Feb.—Long Lane's Turning.
Feb.—Tricks of Fate.
Feb.—Diana of the Green Van.
Feb.—Shadows.
Feb.—What Every Woman Wants.

OUTDOOR SUBJECTS.

Dec. 8—A Maori Romance.
Jan. 5—Teetotalers, Tea and Totem Poles.
Jan. 12—Geesers and Geysers.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JAN. 12.

The Midnight Stage (Frank Keenan—Five Parts—Drama).
Wolves of Kultur (Episode No. 14, "The Code of Hate"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 2, "The Counterplot"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
Wanted Five Thousand (Harold Lloyd—Comedy—Rolin).
Shanghai (Post Travel).
Official War Review No. 29 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 6 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 7 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JANUARY 19.

Corinne Comes Home (Gloria Joy—Two Parts—Comedy-Drama—Bartlett).
Wolves of Kultur (Episode No. 15, "The Reward of Patriotism"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 3, "Underworld Terrors"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Love's Young Scream (Alf Goulding—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 1 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 30 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 8 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 9 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JAN. 26.

A Vagabond of Romance (Henri Kraus—Four Parts—Drama).
The Lighting Raider (Episode No. 4, "Through Doors of Steel"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Going! Going! Gone! (Harold Lloyd—Comedy—Rolin).
Official War Review No. 31 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 10 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 11 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 2.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 5, "The Brass Key"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 1, "Prowlers of the Night"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Hustling for Health (Stan Laurel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 2 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 33 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 12 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 13 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 9.

Todd of the Times (Frank Keenan).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 6, "The Mystic Box"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 8, "The Hidden Chart"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Ask Father (Rolin Comedy—Harold Lloyd—One Reel).
The Story of the Orange (One Reel Educational—Leggett Gruen).
Pathe News No. 14 (One Reel—Topical).
Pathe News No. 15 (One Reel—Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 16.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 7, "Meshes of Evil"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 3, "The Chasm of Fear"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Toto's Troubles (Toto-Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 3 (Educational).
Pathe News No. 16 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 17 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 23.

The Old Maid's Baby (Marie Osborne—Five Parts—Comedy—Diando).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 8, "The Cave of Bread"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 4, "The Midnight Raid"—Two Parts—drama—Diando).
On the Fire (Rolin Comedy—Harold Lloyd—One Reel).
Pathe News No. 18 (Topical—One Reel).
Pathe News No. 19 (Topical—One Reel).

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY.

(Released by Pathe.)

Wives and Other Wives (Mary Miles Minter).
Fair Enough (Marguerite Fisher).
When a Man Rides Alone (William Russell).
Feb. 2—The Amazing Impostor (Mary Miles Minter).
Feb. 16—Molly of the Follies (Margarita Fisher).
Mar. 2—Where the West Begins (William Russell).

Fox Film Corporation

BIG TIME PICTURES.

Why I Would Not Marry.
Queen of the Sea (Annete Kellerman).
The Land of the Free.
The Prussian Cur.

STANDARD PICTURES.

Jan. 12—The Light (Theda Bara).
Jan. 26—Woman! Woman! (Evelyn Nesbit).
Feb. 9—Every Mother's Son.
Feb. 23—When Men Desire (Theda Bara).
Feb. 23—The Man Hunter (William Farnum—Six Parts).
Mar. 23—Thou Shalt Not (Evelyn Nesbit).

EXCEL PICTURES.

Jan. 26—The Girl With No Regrets (Peggy Hyland).
Feb. 9—The Love Auction (Virginia Pearson—Five Parts).
Feb. 23—Smiles (Jane and Katherine Lee).

VICTORY PICTURES.

Jan. 5—Treat 'em Rough (Tom Mix).
Jan. 19—The Call of Her Soul (Gladys Brockwell).
Feb. 2—Luck and Pluck (George Walsh).
Feb. 16—The Coming of the Law (Tom Mix).
Feb. 16—Hell Roarin' Reform (Tom Mix).
Mar. 2—The Forbidden Room (Gladys Brockwell—Five Parts).
Mar. 16—Never Say Quit (George Walsh).
Mar. 30—Fighting for Gold (Tom Mix—Five Parts).

SUNSHINE & FOX-LEHRMAN COMEDIES

Jan. 26—Oh, What a Knight (Two Parts).
Feb. 9—A Roman Cowboy (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
Feb. 23—Money Talks (Two Parts).
Mar. 29—Six Cylinder Love (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
Mar. 23—His Musical Sneeze (Two Parts).
April. 6—A Soft Tenderfoot (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
April 20—The House of Terrible Scandal (Two Parts).
May 4—A Lady Bell-Hop's Secret (Two Parts).
May 12—Tom and Jerry Mix (Tom Mix—Two Parts).

MUTT & JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS.

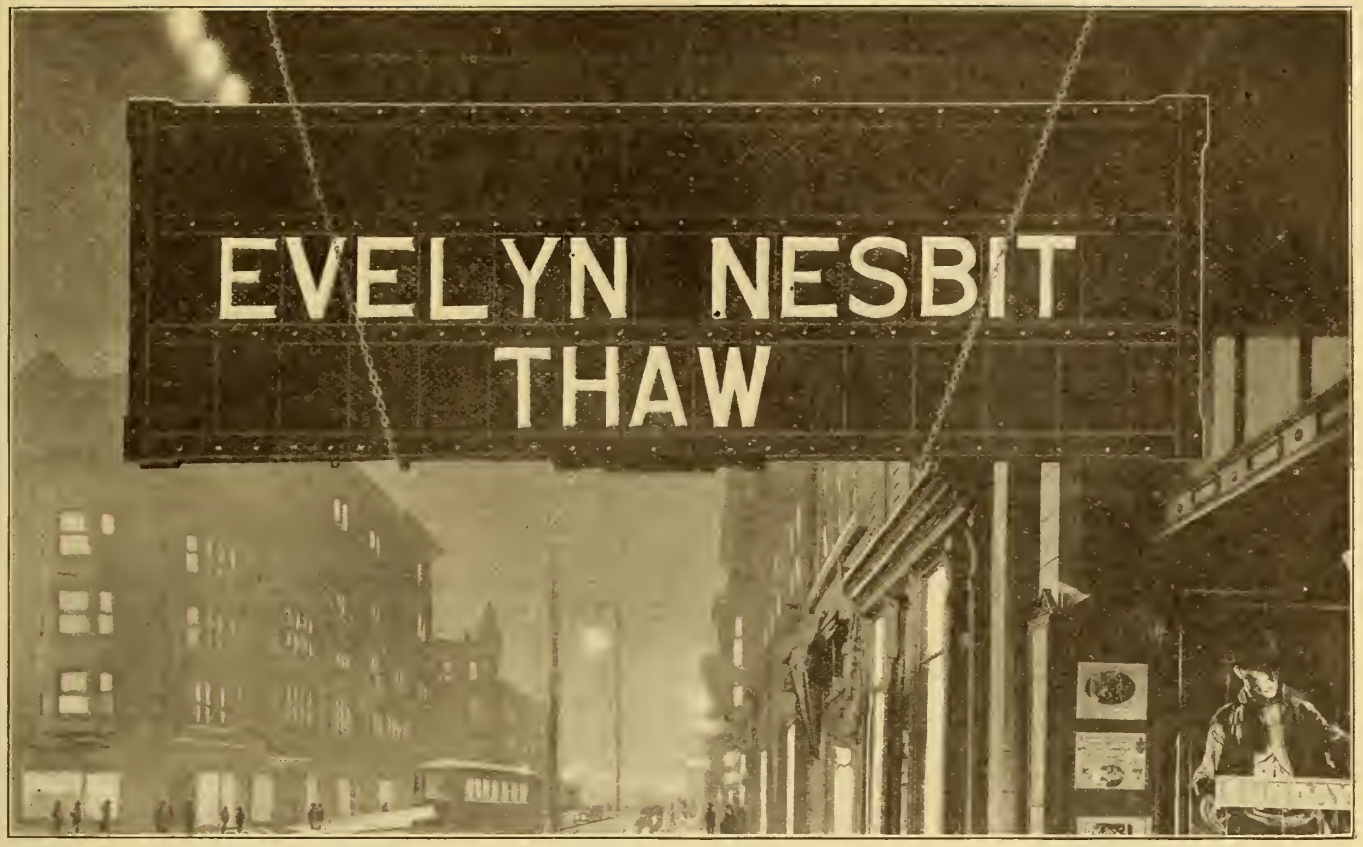
Jan. 19—The Hula Hula Cabaret.
Jan. 26—Dog-Gone Tough Luck.
Feb. 2—Landing an Heiress.
Feb. 9—The Bearded Lady.
Feb. 16—5,000 Miles on a Gallon of Gas.
Feb. 25—The Pousse Cafe.
Mar. 2—Fireman Save My Child.
Mar. 9—Wild Waves and Angry Women.
Mar. 16—William Hohenzollern, Sausage Maker.

THE GREAT NINE.

Jan. 5—The Serpent (Theda Bara).
Jan. 12—The Regeneration (All-Star).
Jan. 19—The Broken Law (William Farnum).
Jan. 26—Under Two Flags (Theda Bara).
Feb. 2—Infidelity (All-Star).
Feb. 9—The Soul of Broadway (Valeska Suratt).
Feb. 16—The Darling of Paris(Theda Bara).
Feb. 23—Hoodman Blind (William Farnum).

PRODUCTIONS EXTRAORDINARY.

Salome (Theda Bara—Eight Parts).
Cleopatra (Theda Bara—Eight Parts).
Les Miserables (William Farnum).



Announce Each Night's Attraction in Letters of Fire with a

Federal Changeable Letter Silveray Sign

Theatre owners! With an ordinary fixed electric sign you are not realizing the full possibilities of Electric Advertising. You need a sign which announces your daily attraction—not to the people already at your door but to people a block or two away, to bring them to your box office.

Advantages of Federal Silveray Sign

Opalescent glass letters legible at maximum distance. Letters changed quicker and easily. Current cost low—one lamp for each letter. Sold by largest electric sign company in America, assuring future supply of replacement letters.

Sold on plan allowing 12 months to pay.

FEDERAL SIGN SYSTEM (ELECTRIC)

Lake and Desplaines Streets, Chicago, Illinois
627 West 43rd Street, New York
Branches in All Large Cities

Please send me full particulars about Silveray Opalescent Signs.
Name
Address
MPW

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Metro Pictures Corporation.

METRO ALL-STAR SERIES.

Dec. 23—A Poor Rich Man (Bushman and Bayne—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 30—Her Inspiration (May Allison—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Gold Cure (Viola Dana—Five Parts).
Jan. 13—The Spender (Bert Lytell—Five Parts).
Jan. 20—The Divorcee (Ethel Barrymore—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—In for Thirty Days (May Allison—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—Faith (Bert Lytell).
Feb. 10—As the Sun Went Down (Edith Storey).
Feb. 17—Johnny on the Spot (Hale Hamilton).
Feb. 24—Peggy Does Her Darndest (May Allison).

SCREEN CLASSICS, INC., SPECIALS.

To Hell With the Kaiser (Laurence Grant and Olive Tell—Seven Parts—Drama).
Pals First (Harold Lockwood—Six Parts—Dr.)
The Great Victory, Wilson or the Kaiser, The Fall of the Hohenzollerns.
Why Germany Must Pay (All Star Cast—Six Parts).
The Great Romance (Haroid Lockwood—Six Parts).

NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS.

Revelation (Seven Parts—Drama).
Toys of Fate (Seven Parts—Drama).
Eye for Eye (Seven Parts—Drama).
Out of the Fog (Seven Parts).

Triangle Film Corporation.

Dates and Titles of Triangle Releases Subject to Change Without Notice.

TRIANGLE PRODUCTIONS.

Dec. 15—Irish Eyes (Pauline Starke—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Crown Jewels (Claire Anderson—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—Wife or Country (Gloria Swanson—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 26—Unto the End (Crane Wilbur).
Feb. 2—Restless Souls (Alma Rubens).
Feb. 9—Secret Marriage (Mary MacLaren).
Feb. 16—Child of M'Sieu (Baby Marie Osborne).
Feb. 23—Breezy Jim (Crane Wilbur).

Vitagraph

VITAGRAPH FEATURES.

Miss Ambition (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
The Dawn of Understanding (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
The Man Who Wouldn't Tell (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
The Beloved Impostor (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Hoarded Assets (Harry T. Morey—Five Parts).
The Captain's Captain (Alice Joyce—Five Parts).
The Adventure Shop (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—The Enchanted Barn (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—The Highest Trump (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
Feb. 10—Fortune's Child (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Feb. 17.—Silent Strength (Harry T. Morey).
Feb. 24—The Lion and the Mouse (Alice Joyce—Special).
Mar. 3—The Girl Problem (Corinne Griffith).
Mar. 10.—The Wishing Ring Man (Bessie Love).
Mar. 17—A Gentleman of Quality (Earle Williams).
Mar. 24—Miss Dulcie from Dixie (Gladys Leslie).
Mar. 31—Fighting Destiny (Harry T. Morey).

BIG V COMEDIES.

Dec. 16—Farms and Fumbles (Two Parts).
Dec. 23—Pluck and Plotters (Two Parts).
Dec. 30—Bumps and Boarders (Two Parts).
Jan. 6—Beauty and Booty (Two Parts).
Jan. 13—Boobs and Bumps (Two Parts).
Jan. 20—Traps and Tangles (Two Parts).

The Iron Test.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Featuring Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway.)

Dec. 23—In the Coils.
Dec. 30—The Red Mask's Prey.
Jan. 6—No. 12, "The Span of Terror."
Jan. 13—No. 13, "Hanging Peril."
Jan. 20—No. 14, "Desperate Odds."
Jan. 27—No. 15, "Riding with Death."

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

CENTURY COMEDY.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Dec. 18—The Cabbage Queen (Alice Howell—Two Parts)—03299.
Feb. 12—Behind the Front (Alice Howell)—03589.

HEARST NEWS.

(One-Reel News Weeklies.)

Jan. 7—No. 3 (Topical)—03464.
Jan. 14—No. 3 (Topical)—03475.
Jan. 21—No. 4 (Topical)—03490.
Jan. 28—No. 5 (Topical)—03566.
Feb. 2—No. 6 (Topical)—03576.
Feb. 10—No. 7 (Topical)—03588.
Feb. 17—No. 8 (Topical)—03600.
Feb. 24—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03611.

L-KO.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 1—Klever Kiddies (Two Parts—Comedy—Eddie Barry)—03455.
Jan. 8—Fools and Duels (Ford Sterling)—03485.
Jan. 15—Charlie, the Little Dare Devil (Charlie from the Orient)—03476.
Jan. 22—The Freckled Fish (Babe Hardy)—03491.
Jan. 29—It's a Bird (Harry Mann)—03571.
Feb. 5—Hop, the Bell Hop (Billy Armstrong)—03577.
Feb. 19—Call the Cops (Billie Armstrong)—03601.
Feb. 26—Lions and Ladies (Babe Hardy)—03612.

NESTOR.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

Dec. 30—It's Great to Be Crazy (All-Star—Comedy)—03453.
Jan. 6—She Wasn't Hungry, But (Victoria Forde)—03463.
Jan. 13—Mixed Nuts (Molly Malone)—03474.
Jan. 20—Only a Janitor (Wallace Beery)—03486.
Jan. 27—He Was No Lady (Bobbie Vernon)—03496.
Feb. 10—Mixed Wives (William Franey)—03583.
Feb. 17—Them Eyes (Ben Wilson)—03595.
Feb. 24—The Movie Queen (Jane Bernoudy)—03606.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION.

Jan. 2—The Wildcat of Paris (Priscilla Dean—Six Parts—Drama)—03462.
Jan. 11—Rosalind at Red Gate (Ruth Stonehouse—Two Parts—Drama)—03467.
Jan. 13—After the War (Grace Cunard).
Jan. 18—The Ghost Girl (Donna Drew—Two Parts—Society Drama)—03479.
Jan. 27—Roped (Harry Carey)—03483.
Feb. 1—Sure-Shot Morgan (Harry Carey—03569.
Feb. 3—Charlie in Turkey (One-Reel Cartoon)—03572.
Feb. 8—A Proxy Husband (Violet Mersereau—Two Parts)—03581.
Feb. 10—Creaking Stairs (Mary MacLaren—Six Parts)—03586.
Feb. 24—The Wicked Darling (Priscilla Dean)—03609.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Dec. 28—Issue No. 98 (Educational)—03446.
Jan. 4—Issue No. 99 (Educational)—03456.
Jan. 11—Issue No. 100 (Educational)—03466.
Jan. 18—Issue No. 101 (Educational)—03478.
Jan. 24—Issue No. 102 (Educational)—03493.
Jan. 21—Issue No. 103 (Educational)—03568.
Feb. 28—Issue No. 107 (Topical)—03614.

NEW SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Feb. 7—Issue No. 1 (Educational)—03579.
Feb. 14—Issue No. 2 (Educational)—03591.
Feb. 21—Issue No. 3 (Educational)—03603.

SCREEN TELEGRAM.

Jan. 2—No. 1 (Topical)—03456.
Jan. 9—No. 2 (Topical)—03465.
Jan. 16—No. 3 (Topical)—03477.
Jan. 22—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03492.
Jan. 30—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03567.
Feb. 5—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03678.
Feb. 13—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03590.
Feb. 20—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03602.
Feb. 26—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03613.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

The Lure of the Circus.

Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Eddie Polo Featured.

Dec. 9—No. 4, "The Message on the Cuff"—03294.
Dec. 16—No. 5, "The Lip Reader—03438.
Dec. 23—No. 6, "The Aerial Disaster"—03449.
Dec. 30—No. 7, "The Charge of the Elephant"—03460.
Jan. 6—No. 8, "The Human Ladder"—03469.
Jan. 13—No. 9, "The Flying Loop"—03481.
Jan. 20—No. 10, "A Shot for Life"—03489.
Jan. 27—No. 11, "The Dagger"—03500.
Feb. 3—No. 12, "A Strange Escape"—03575.
Feb. 10—No. 13, "The Plunge for Life"—03587.
Feb. 17—No. 14, "Flames"—03598.
Feb. 24—No. 15, "The Stolen Record"—03610.

The Red Glove.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Marie Walcamp Features.)

Feb. 17—No. 1, "The Pool of Mystery"—03599.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Dec. 28—Issue No. 85 (Topical)—03448.
Jan. 5—Issue No. 1 (Topical)—03459.
Jan. 12—Issue No. 2 (Topical)—03468.
Jan. 9—Issue No. 3 (Topical)—03480.
Jan. 26—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03495.
Feb. 2—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03570.
Feb. 7—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03580.
Feb. 14—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03592.
Feb. 21—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03604.
Feb. 28—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03615.

STAR COMEDIES.

(One-Reel Comedies, featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.)

Dec. 21—Camping Out—03441.
Dec. 28—Swat the Flirt—03451.
Jan. 5—Straight Crooks—03463.
Jan. 12—How's Your Husband?—03471.
Jan. 20—Sing, Rosa, Sing—03487.
Jan. 27—Marry My Wife—03497.
Feb. 3—Kitchen Police—03573.
Feb. 10—Up the Flue—03584.
Feb. 17—His Body for Rent—03596.
Feb. 24—Mixed Tales—03607.

WESTERN AND RAILROAD DRAMAS.

(Two Reels Each.)

Dec. 14—Captured Alive (Helen Gibson)—03293.
Dec. 21—The Robber (Helen Gibson)—03437.
Dec. 28—Wolves of the Range (Helen Gibson—Two Parts)—03447.
Jan. 5—The Secret Peril (Helen Gibson—Two Parts)—03458.
Jan. 8—A Kaiser There Was—03442.
Jan. 25—The Border Terror (Yvette Mitchell)—03494.
Feb. 15—Tapering Fingers (Fritzi Ridgeway)—03593.

CLASSIFIED
3c PER WORD FOR SITUATIONS WANTED AND HELP WANTED
MINIMUM, $0.50

ADVERTISEMENTS
5c PER WORD FOR ALL COMMERCIAL ADS.
MINIMUM, $1.00

SITUATIONS WANTED.

PROJECTIONIST AT LIBERTY, twelve years' experience, married, age 34, sober, reliable. Reference, go anywhere, prefer town of 50,000 population. State fully proposition first letter. Raymond Laurie, Box No. 12, Crum-Lynne, Pa.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATOR—New York license, eight years' experience, sober and reliable, wishes position. Write Mr. Nicholas, 1228 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

OPERATOR AT LIBERTY March 1st. Fourteen years' experience, best references. Handle and repair any machine. Ed. Daniels, Sr., Bennington, Vt.

CAMERAMAN—Fourteen years' practical experience, wishes to connect with producer who is desirous of obtaining the services of a thoroughly reliable man with exceptional ability. Address Camera, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CONCERT ORGANIST open for theatre engagement. Experienced, reliable and efficient. Large repertoire. Good organ and salary essential. Address Efficient, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER—Vaudeville and pictures, having ten years' experience in my own theatre, at liberty after March 25th owing to theatre being sold and termination of lease. Thirty-seven years of age, good habits, strictly sober. Only first-class proposition desired. Address Vaudeville Manager, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER AT LIBERTY, twelve years' experience, knows business thoroughly; never handled a failure, can increase your receipts, expert on projection, handle one or circuit of houses. Best references, go anywhere. Address Expert, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER, American, 40, who understands the business and has sense enough to attend to it, desires position first-class Vaudeville or Moving Picture Theatre Greater New York. Address "H," care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN—Beginner, wishes position as assistant. Address Lerso, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—A Moy camera fitted with spiral focusing jacket, reverse drive, film punch, one turn, one picture handle, view finder, four dark boxes, one 2-inch Zeiss lens, one 3-inch Zeiss lens, and English made leather carrying case for outfit; also one Motion Picture Apparatus Company precision tripod with leather cover. Complete outfit practically unused. State best cash offer and address in the first place. Camera, Box 13, Station G, N. Y. City.

SENSATIONAL MONEY SAVING bargains is the title of the latest photographic book just off the press; a 32-page catalog filled from cover to cover with wonderful offers in every standard make of tested and guaranteed motion picture apparatus, cameras, lenses, kodaks, etc. It's the biggest little thing in the current photographic field. Worth its weight in gold to you, and in fact no cameraman in the country can afford to be without a copy. Send for it today; yours for the asking. David Stern Company; in business since 1885; 1027W Madison St., Chicago, U. S. A.

FOR SALE—One Pathe studio camera, like new, Carl Zeiss lens, two-inch Pathe tripod, one double dissolving stereopticon. Western Film Co., Providence, R. I.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS from our shop are BASS TESTED and BASS GUARANTEED. Prices we offer are unequaled. Cameras as low as 70c. down to 40c. on the dollar. Our monthly Bargain Bulletin lists specials which you should know about. A splendid assortment always on hand. Shipments prompt. Estimates cheerfully furnished on special equipment. Write for our monthly Bargain List TODAY. BASS CAMERA CO., DEPT. 11A, Chicago, 109 N. Dearborn St.

SEND AT ONCE for Bargain List No. 13, a true guide for purchasing motion picture cameras and apparatus. Every camera is Bass tested and guaranteed. Eastman negative film, $37.50 per thousand feet. Bass Camera Company. Chas. Bass, Pres., 109 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

FILMS WANTED.

WILL PAY CASH for five and six-reel negatives whether they have been released previously or not. Also wanted five and six-reel positive prints with or without pasters. All transactions treated confidentially. Allied Photoplays, Inc., Room 610, 729 7th avenue, N. Y. City.

THEATRES WANTED.

LEASE OR PURCHASE for vaudeville, pictures or both. Must seat at least 800 in town of 50,000 or more. W. A., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

THEATRE WANTED in exchange for 40 acres good land, with building, near Detroit; price, $5,000. Charles H. Palmer, Mulliken, Mich.

THEATRES FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Lease on theatre, lower New York State, seating 750, suitable moving pictures or attractions. Large stage. Good proposition responsible party. Address Glaes, Box 871, Wilmington, Del.

We have reason to believe the figures below will interest every one of our readers. They truthfully indicate the steady growth of our circulation. They prove that the MOVING PICTURE WORLD is a much desired trade paper. They are the best encouragement a paper could possibly get. They prove conclusively the various departments and editorial policy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD meet exactly the approval of the majority of exhibitors.

Tabulation of subscriptions both new and renewed for the month of January, 1919

	New subscriptions	Renewed subscriptions
January 1st to 11th	108	121
January 11th to 18th	81	78
January 18th to 25th	102	80
January 25th to 31st	90	124
	381	403

Total 781 for the first month of 1919

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

STAR SERIES PRODUCTIONS.

Jan. 12—Day Dreams (Madge Kennedy—Five Parts).
Jan. 26—Shadows (Geraldine Farrar—Six Pts.).
Feb. 2—The Bondage of Barbara (Mae Marsh).
Feb. 16—Sis Hopkins (Mabel Normand).
Feb. 23—The Brand (Rex Beach Production—Six Parts).

BENNISON STAR SERIES.

Oh, Johnny (Betzwood).
Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U (Betzwood).
Speedy Meade (Betzwood).

GOLDWYN SPECIALS.

The Border Legion (Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth—Six Parts).
The Manx Man (Seven Parts—Drama).
For the Freedom of the World (Seven Parts—Drama).

CAPITOL COMEDIES.

(Two Reels each)

Jan. 12—You Know What I Mean.
Jan. 26—The Big Idea.
Feb. 9—Have Another.
Feb. 23—A Master of Music.

"Go Get 'em Potts" Series.

Mar. 9—The New Breakfast Food.
Mar. 23—The Potum of Swat.
Apr. 6—The Midnight Alarm.

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY.

Jan. 13—What Uncle Sam Will Do for Two Cents.
Jan. 20—The Truth About the Liberty Motor.
Jan. 27—Hang It All.
Feb. 3—Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas.
Feb. 10—Canada's Mountain of Tears.
Feb. 17—Where "The Spirit That Won" Was Born.
Feb. 24—Rough Stuff.

Famous Players-Lasky

PARAMOUNT-SENNETT COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 12—Cupid's Day Off.
Jan. 26—Never Too Old.
Feb. 9—Rip & Stitch—Tailors.
Feb. 23—East Lynne with Variations.

PARAMOUNT-ARBUCKLE COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 5—Camping Out.
Feb. 16—The Pullman Porter.

DREW COMEDIES.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Feb. 2—Romance and Rings.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.

Paramount Features.

Jan. 12—The Secret Garden (Lila Lee).
Jan. 19—The Dub (Wallace Reid).
Jan. 19—Here Comes the Bride (John Barrymore).
Jan. 26—Venus in the East (Bryant Washburn).
Feb. 2—Hard Boiled (Dorothy Dalton).
Feb. 2—Happy Tho' Married (Enid Bennett).
Feb. 9—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Two Brides (Lina Cavalieri).
Feb. 9—The Girl Dodger (Charles Ray).
Feb. 16—Boots (Dorothy Gish).
Feb. 16—You Never Saw Such a Girl (Vivian Martin).
Feb. 23—Maggie Pepper (Ethel Clayton).
Feb. 23—Paid in Full (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 23—The Winning Girl (Shirley Mason).

Artcraft Pictures.

Jan. 12—Under the Top (Fred Stone).
Jan. 19—His Parisian Wife (Elsie Ferguson).
Jan. 26—The Romance of Happy Valley (D. W. Griffith Production).
Jan. 26—Don't Change Your Husband (Cecil B. DeMille Production).
Feb. 2—Breed of Man (William S. Hart).

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIAL.

Jan. 12—The Silver King (William Faversham).
Feb. 16—False Faces.

PARAMOUNT-FLAGG COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 19—Impropaganda (Two Parts).
Feb. 3—One Every Minute.

SUCCESS SERIES (REISSUES).

Jan. 12—The Sign of the Cross (William Farnum).
Jan. 19—Captain Courtesy (Dustin Farnum).
Jan. 26—Dawn of a Tomorrow (Mary Pickford).
Feb. 2—The Crucible (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Belladonna (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 16—Puddin'head Wilson (Special).
Feb. 23—Are You a Mason? (John Barrymore).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES.

Jan. 19—Celestial Contrasts.
Jan. 26—Canning Scenery.
Feb. 2—With the American Y. M. C. A. in London.
Feb. 9—St. Dunstan's Happy Blind.
Feb. 16—The War Women of England .
Feb. 23—London Plays Ball.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPH.

Jan. 12—Sugar Growing in the West Indies; Individual Oil Wells; Cartoon.
Jan. 19—Perilous Occupation; Travels in the West Indies; Cartoon.
Jan. 26—The Passing of the Cannibal; Training Women for Canteen Work; Cartoon.
Feb. 2—Winter Sports; The Passing on the Cannibal; Theory of the Long-Range Shell.
Feb. 9—War Brides, Our Picturesque Neighbors and Cartoon.
Feb. 16—Hand Grenades, the Romance of Crater Lake and Cartoon.

World Pictures Corp.

Jan. 6—Under Four Flags.
Jan. 13—Love in a Hurry (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 20—The Bluffer (June Elvidge—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—Heart of Gold (Louise Huff).
Feb. 3—The Rough Neck (Montagu Love—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 10—Mandarin's Gold (Kitty Gordon).
Feb. 10—What Shall We Do with Him?
Feb. 17—Courage for Two (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts).
Feb. 24—The Moral Deadline (June Elvidge—Five Parts).
Mar. 2—Crook of Dreams (Louise Huff).
Mar. 10—The Unveiling Hand (Kitty Gordon).
Mar. 17—The Hand Invisible (Montagu Love).
Mar. 24—Hit or Miss (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley).
Mar. 31—The Love Defender (June Elvidge).

KINOGRAMS.

Issued every Tuesday and Saturday (Topical).

FEATURES.

April 7—The Little Intruder (Louise Huff).
April 14—The Scar (Kitty Gordon).
April 21—The Quickening Flame (Montagu Love).

Feature Releases

BLUEBIRD.

Jan. 6—The Nature Girl (Violet Mersereau—Five Parts—Drama)—03470.
Jan. 13—The Craving (Francis Ford).
Jan. 20—The Game's Up (Ruth Clifford).
Jan. 27—Who Will Marry Me? (Carmel Myers).
Feb. 3—Sue of the South (Edith Roberts).
Feb. 10—The Millionaire Pirate (Monroe Salisbury)—03585.
Feb. 17—The Sealed Envelope (Fritzi Brunette) 03597.

CAPITAL FILM COMPANY.

Indianapolis, Ind.

(Two Reels each)

Through the Storm.
Vengeance of Hate.
The Outlaw's Sacrifice.
Railroad Raiders.
Running Wild.
Struck by Lightning.
Secret Service Dan.
Faithful Unto Death.
Escaped Convict.
The Square Gambler.

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 30—Know Thy Wife.
Jan. 6—Five Hundred or Bust.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION.

Feb. 1—First Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement.
Feb.—Indian Life.
Feb.—An Indian Love Story.
Feb.—A Day with Carranza.
Feb.—What is a Mexican.
Feb.—The Washington Air Patrol.

Bruce Scenics.

The Wanderer and the Whozitt.
The River Gray and the River Green.
The Little High Horse.
The Restless Three.
The Wolf of the Tetons.
The Pale Pack Train.
An Essay of the Hills.
Men Met in the Mountains.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS'

Shoulder Arms (Charlie Chaplin).
Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany."
Italy's Flaming Front—Official Italian War Pictures.
The Fighting Rooseveits.
Romance of Tarzan.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CO.

Times Building, N. Y.
Once to Everyman.

HARRY GARSON.

Aeolian Building, New York.
The Hushed Hour (Blanche Sweet).
The Unpardonable Sin (Blanche Sweet).

W. W. HODKINSON.

(Released Through Pathe.)

Jan. 6—The Drifters (J. Warren Kerrigan—Five Parts—Drama—Hampden).
Jan. 20—The Law that Divides (Kathleen Clifford).
Jan. 27—Fighting Through (E. K. Lincoln—Six Parts—Drama—Cabanna).
Feb. 10—Come Again, Smith (J. Warren Kerrigan—Comedy).
Feb. 17—Made in America (First Episode).

Made in America.

Ashley Miller Productions—One Reel—Patriotic.

Feb. 16—No. 1, "Made in America."
Feb. 23—No. 2, "Nine Million Answer."
Mar. 2—No. 3, "The Rookie."
Mar. 9—No. 4, "Victory Army in the Making."
Mar. 16—No. 5, "Building the Soldier."
Mar. 23—No. 6, "The Hated K. P."
Mar. 30—No. 7, "Overseas to Victory."
Apr. 6—No. 8, "Forward—Always Forward."

INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

(Releasing Through Film Clearing House.)

Specials.

Wanted for Murder (Rapf).
A Romance of the Air (Crest).

Ten-Twenty-Thirty Series.

Life's Greatest Problem (Blackton).
Her Mistake (Steger).
A Woman's Experience (Bacon-Backer).
Suspense (Reicher).

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

An Announcement

OUR ACTIVITIES for the past year have been nearly 100 per cent. devoted to war production of vital importance to the government, compelling us to discontinue regular manufacture in practically all of our lines.

The cessation of hostilities has now enabled us to begin the readjustment to a peace production basis. While this adjustment must be gradual, we are pressing it with all possible speed in order to satisfy the requirements of our normal trade at an early date.

We appreciate the patience and understanding with which our patrons have reacted to the situation and trust they may continue to exercise such consideration until our manufacturing facilities are once more on a pre-war footing.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.

New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Microscopes, Projection Apparatus (Balopticons), Photographic Lenses, Ophthalmic Lenses and Instruments, Range Finders and Gun Sights for Army and Navy, Searchlight Reflectors, Binoculars and Other High-Grade Optical Products.

MARTIN" ROTARY CONVERTER FOR REAL SUN-LIT PICTURES
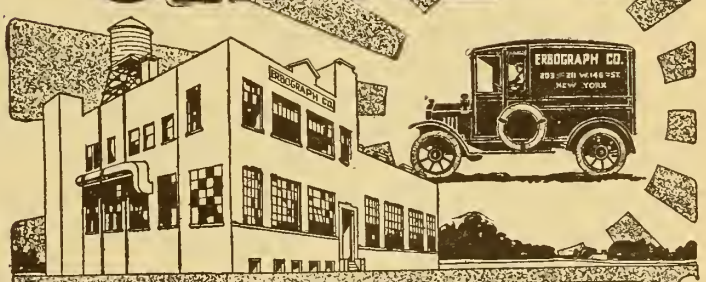
PERFECT REEL DISSOLVING
WRITE FOR FURTHER INFORMATION
NORTHWESTERN ELECTRIC CO.
412 S. Hoyne Ave., Chicago 1010 Brokaw Bldg., New York

ERBOGRAPH FOR SERVICE



PRODUCERS OF
MOTION PICTURE FILMS
COMMERCIAL DEVELOPING and PRINTING
Telephone Audubon 3716

ERBOGRAPH CO.
LUDWIG G. B. ERB, President
203-211 WEST 146th STREET, NEW YORK

Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
Expert Developing, Printing and Coloring

CAMERA OUTFITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED
CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street San Francisco, Cal.

Rothacker Prints
The Best For The Best of Them

La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera
Official Organ of the Italian Cinematograph Union
PUBLISHED ON THE 15th AND 30th OF EACH MONTH
Foreign Subscription: 20 francs per annum
Editorial and Business Offices: Via Cumiana, 31, Turin, Italy

List of Current Film Release Dates

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb. 15—The Heart of Humanity (Dorothy Philips—Six Parts)—03594.
—When a Girl Loves (Mildred Harris).

LEONCE PERRET PRODUCTIONS.

1402 Broadway, New York.

Stars of Glory (E. K. Lincoln and Dolores Cassinelli).
A Soul Adrift (Dolores Cassinelli).

GEORGE KLEINE.

Rialto DeLuxe Productions.

Conquered Hearts (Drama).

Edison.

The Unbeliever (Seven Reels).

Essanay.

Young America (Seven Parts).
Triple Trouble (Charlie Chaplin Picture).

SELECT PICTURES.

Jan.—Hidden Truth (Anna Case).
Jan.—Who Cares (Constance Talmadge).
Jan.—Cheating Cheaters (Clara Kimball Young).
Jan.—The Indestructible Wife (Alice Brady).
Feb.—Romance and Arabella (Constance Talmadge).
Feb.—The World to Live In (Alice Brady).
Feb.—Children of Banishment (Mitchell Lewis).

WILLIAM L. SHERRY SERVICE.

729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. City.

BURLINGHAM.

Unknown Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
The Pilatus Railway (Burlingham—Travel).
Allied War Heroes Arrive in Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
Scrambles in the High Alps (Burlingham—Travel).
The Riviera of Lake Leman (Burlingham—Travel).
Lovely Lucerne (Burlingham—Travel).
The Gornergrat Railway (Burlingham—Travel).

FEATURES.

Red Blood and Yellow (Broncho Billy).
Wild Honey (Doris Kenyon—Six Parts).
Son of a Gun (Broncho Billy).
Marriage for Convenience (Catherine Calvert).
The Troop Train (Six Parts).
Calibre 38 (Six Parts).

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES.

Jan. 5—The Light of Western Stars.
Jan. 26—Adele.

State Right Releases

ACME PICTURES CORPORATION.

The Thriteenth Chair (Yvonne Delva).

ALPHA PICTURES, INC.

130 West Forty-sixth Street.

Reclaimed.

ARROW FILM CORPORATION.

Times Building, New York.

Sunset Princess (Margery Daw).
A Woman's Law (Florence Reed—Five Parts—Drama).
The Accidental Honeymoon (Robert Warwick).
The Struggle Everlasting (Florence Reed).
The Demon's Shadow (Serial in Ten Two-Reel Episodes).
Twelve Anna Little Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Million-Dollar Mystery (Marguerite Snow—Six Parts).
Ten J. Warren Kerrigan Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Four Allison-Lockwood Reissues.
Thirty-two Unique Comedies (One Reel).
Finger of Justice (Crane Wilbur—Six Parts).
The Profiteer (Alma Hanlon).
The Commercial Pirates (Mlle. Valkyrien).

BRENTWOOD FILM CORP.

4811 Fountain Ave., Los Angeles.

The Turn in the Road.

CREST PICTURES CORP.

Times Building, New York.

The Lust of the Ages.
A Grain of Dust.

THE FILM MARKET, INC.

403 Times Building, New York.

What Becomes of the Children (Corra Beach).
Suspicion (M. H. Hoffman Production).
The City of Purple Dreams (Selig).
Who Shall Take My Life? (Selig).
Beware of Strangers (Selig).
The Garden of Allah (Selig).
The Spoilers (Selig—Reissue).
The Star Spangled Banner (Gathem—Half reel).
Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean (Gathem—Half reel).
The Battle Cry of Freedom (Gathem—Half reel).
Home Sweet Home and The Girl I Left Behind Me (Gathem).
The Amazon Jungle (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Wonderland of Peru (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Undying Story of Captain Scott (Capt. Scott Antarctic Expedition).
Animal Life in the Antarctic (Capt Scott Antarctic Expendtion).

GAUMONT CO.

Flushing, L. I.

Satan on Earth (Two-Part Novelty).
Gaumont News—Released every Tuesday.
Gaumont Graphic—Released every Friday.

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.

Longacre Building, New York.

Mother (Six Parts—Drama—McClure Pictures)
The Warrior (Seven Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).

HILLER & WILK, INC.

Sept.—Sporting Life (Maurice Tourneur Production).
Woman (Maurice Tourneur Productions).
The Silent Mystery (Francis Ford serial in fifteen episodes).

GRAPHIC FILM CORPORATION.

729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

When Men Betray (Drama).
Ashes of Love.

JAMES KEANE.

220 West 42d Street, New York.

The Spreading Evil (Seven Parts—Drama).

PIONEER FILM CORP.

130 West 46th St., New York City.

The Still Alarm (Selig Production).
Wives of Men.
Little Orphant Annie (Six Parts—Drama).

HARRY RAVER.

1402 Broadway, New York.

The Hand of the Hun (Four Parts—Novelty).
The Master Crook.
The Liberator (Serial Starring "Maciste").

ERNEST SHIPMAN.

17 West 44th Street, New York City.

The Daughter of The Don (Five Parts—Drama).

W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company, Inc., Featuring Shorty Hamilton, One Five-Reeler Per Month.

The Coast Guard Patrol (By Nell Shipman—Seven-Part Patriotic Drama).
A Nugget in the Rough (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Tiger of the Sea (Seven Parts—Drama—by Nell Shipman).
Bill Stingers' Poems (A series of one-reel patriotic comedy-dramas issued semi-monthly).

Al and Frank Jenninga.

Lady of the Dugout (Six Parts—Drama).

Lloyd Carleton Productions.

Mother I Need You.

Edwin Frazee.

The Haunted House (Mystic Comedy—Two Parts).

United Film Corporation.

Crime of the Hour (Seven Parts—Drama).

Francis Ford Producing Co.

The Isle of Intrigue (Six Parts).

HARRY RAPF.

Palace Theatre Building, New York.

Sins of the Children.

WILLIAM STOERMER ENTERPRISES.

729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

The Tidal Wave (Eight Parts—Drama).

SOUTHERN FEATURE FILM COMPANY.

1476 Broadway, New York.

Beyond the Law (Emmett Dalton—Six Parts).

UNIVERSAL FILM COMPANY.

1600 Broadway, New York.

Song Hits in Photoplays.

W. H. PRODUCTIONS.

71 West 23d Street, New York.

Mickey (Seven Parts).

(The Following Are Multiple Reel W. H. Kerr Subjects, Released in Order Listed.)

The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five Parts—Dr.).
Staking His Life (Five Parts—Drama).
Series of two-reel productions.
Satan's Pawn (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
The Straight Road (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
Series of sixteen two-reel Shorty Hamilton two-reel Western comedy-dramas.
Series of twenty-eight two-reel Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies.
Series of twenty-six one and two-reel Charlie Chaplin comedies.
Series of twenty-four single reel Fatty Arbuckle comedies.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Liberty Keystones.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Eagle Keystones.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Union-Kay-Bee Western Dramas.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Columbia-Kay Bee Western Dramas.

WARNER BROTHERS.

220 West 42d Street, New York.

The Kaiser's Finish.

FELIX F. FEIST.

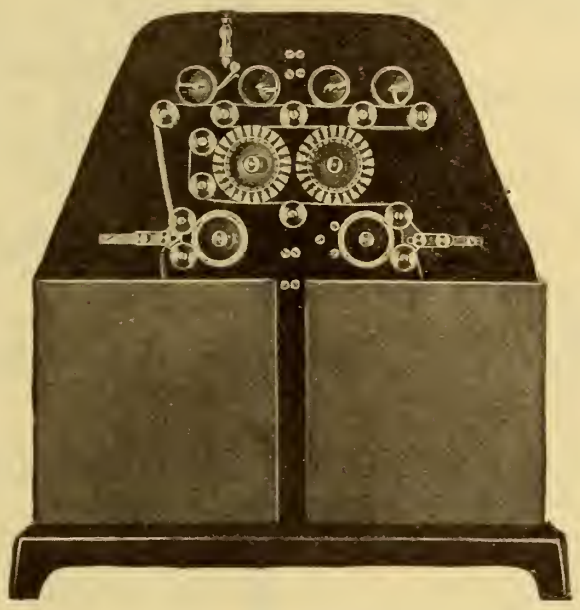
130 West 46th Street, N. Y. C.

Stolen Orders (Eight Reels—Drama).

ANNOUNCING A NEW

CLEANING AND POLISHING MACHINE

FOR THE FILM LABORATORY



No Sprockets

Film Fed by Rubber Rolls

Cleans a Reel in About Half Time Required on Other Machines.

Film is Cleaned Four Separate Times Before Reaching Buff Wheels.

About Half the Size and Weight of Other Machines.

Price $450.00 Price $450.00

CIRCULAR ON REQUEST

MOTION PICTURE APPARATUS CO., Inc.

110 WEST 32nd STREET FARRAGUT 4779 NEW YORK, N. Y.

DRAFTED

UNIVERSAL MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

Uncle Sam wants all the Universals we can make; but it will pay you to get acquainted with these wonder cameras now. They are worth waiting for.

"THREE YEARS' PROFIT IN ONE"

is a booklet with a real message to every theatre owner. Get it today.

BURKE & JAMES, Inc.

240 E. Ontario St., CHICAGO 225 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Moving Picture Machine Patents My Specialty

PATENTS

WILLIAM N. MOORE

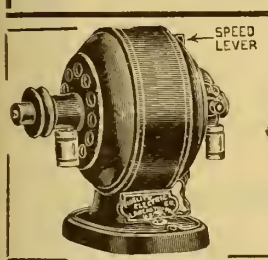
PATENT ATTORNEY

LOAN AND TRUST BUILDING

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The first important step is to learn whether you can obtain a patent. Please send sketch of your invention with $5.00 and I will examine the patent records and inform you whether you are entitled to a patent, the cost and manner of procedure.

Personal Attention Established 25 Years



Electric Motors for Moving Picture Machine. 1/10 H.P., Variable Speed, Alternating or Direct Current. Price, $18. Also all styles of Fans.

Fidelity Electric Company

Lancaster, Pa.

GOERZ KINO HYPAR F:3.5

The ever-increasing importance of the motion picture compels the cameraman to equip himself at all times with the best obtainable lens. The GOERZ KINO HYPAR F:3.5 has met the most exacting tests in the studio and in the field. It is made in 1⅝, 2, 2⅜ and 3 inch focus and can be fitted to nearly every standard outfit on the market. Used in connection with the well-known GOERZ VIGNETTING DEVICES, it leaves nothing to be desired in the way of an up-to-the-minute outfit for the progressive cameraman. Call or write for our latest descriptive matter.

C. P. Goerz American Optical Company

318 EAST 34TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

PORTER EQUIPS THEATRE FOR GRIFFITH'S

SUPREME TRIUMPH "HEARTS OF THE WORLD." Installs Two UP to The Minute Type S SIMPLEX PROJECTORS with Robin TIME and SPEED INDICATORS in the 44th St. Theatre, New York. The Marvelous PROJECTION of this greatest picture of modern times is synchronized accurately to the fraction of a second with the beautiful music and effects.

B. F. PORTER, 729 7TH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY, 11TH FLOOR

The Essential Requirements
FOR Improved Projection
ARE
SPEER CARBONS

Speer Alterno Combinations
for A. C. Work
AND
Speer Hold-Ark Combinations
for D. C. Work
Produce Incomparable Results

Write to-day for descriptive folders.
Read the unbiased opinions of operators.

Place an order now with your Supply House

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"
MANUFACTURED BY
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

Gundlach
Projection Lenses

Can not be surpassed for critical definition, flatness of field, brilliancy of image and illumination, and we maintain absolute uniformity of quality. That's the reason they are used in nearly every theatre in the United States and Canada.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 So. Clinton Ave., Rochester, N.Y.

THE
Ticket Selling Wonder
The New AUTOMATICKET
Model G-2
100
NEW CONCEPTIONS

Direct from Factory To You
EXPRESS PREPAID

The New Perfected
Victory Model
of the
AUTOMATICKET REGISTER

is new in standards new in principles - built to correct all Box Office shortcomings by experts and able engineers who have been working for years to perfect it.

A revision that adds 50 per cent. to strength, 75 per cent. to endurance, 25 per cent. to economy and 20 per cent. to beauty & comfort.

Operated with a worm gear along the most advanced mechanical principles used in machinery of today with a rotary motion. A new outer casing entirely encloses the machine, making it dust-proof.

Send for special information on this remarkable advance in ticket handling methods. Or, send in your order NOW direct to us, or through your dealer.

AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING &
CASH REGISTER CO.
1731 BROADWAY
NEW YORK
FACTORY
235 W. 55TH ST.

Simplex

"THERE IT IS"!!

* * * an imperfection has just shown on the studio screen—

* * *

* * * the projectionist dowses his light and truns off the motor switch, and what a moment before was a softly purring, live projector, smoothly running at the highest possible speed is instantly brought to a halt.

* * *

* * * the photographic imperfections on the film are noted and with another snap of the switch the mechanism again becomes a thing of glistening, pulsating life through which miles of newly developed film pass during the day, stopping and starting, stopping and starting with never a scratch inflicted upon the valuable prints and only demanding lubrication and minimum care from the projectionist.

* * *

* * * this is what daily takes place in the finest studio projection rooms throughout the country.

* * *

* * * what absolute confidence the director must have in the workmanship of this projector to entrust his priceless prints to its mechanism.

* * *

* * * what wonderful trust must the projectionist repose in the endurance of this projector that uncomplainingly does its work for years.

* * *

* * * the peerless SIMPLEX has earned this confidence and trust by performing similar duties in fully 88% of our American film studios. One of the largest producing companies in New York employs nine Simplex Projectors to run off these new prints as a final checking-up of detail before they are assembled.

* * *

* * * the strain imposed through this constant stop and start—the quality of material that is needed to withstand the sudden impulse that sends a loaded mechanism from a dead stop to high-speed without the use of a speed control, speaks volumes for the ever-growing demand for Simplex for studio use.

* * *

* * * the Simplex has been chosen by the leading Producers—Managers—Exhibitors and Projectionists for its

SIMPLICITY ENDURANCE QUALITY

It is indeed

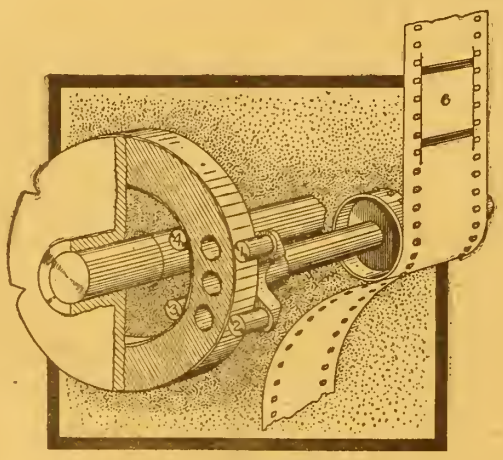
"The Aristocrat of the Projector Family"

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

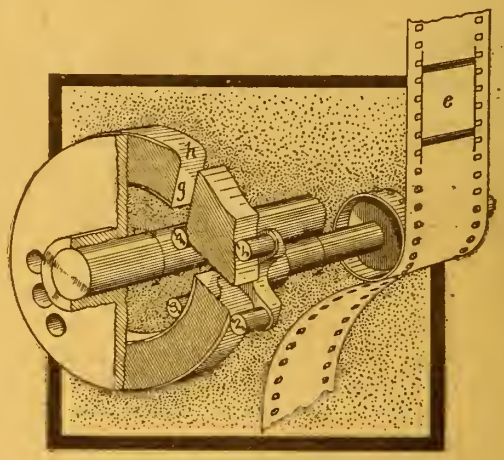
Four Reasons Why

Power's Intermittent Movement

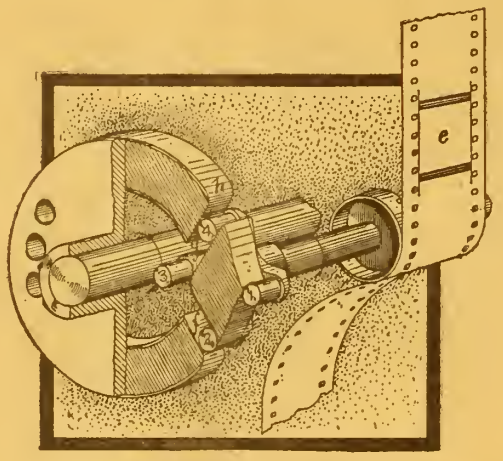
"Puts The Picture On The Screen"



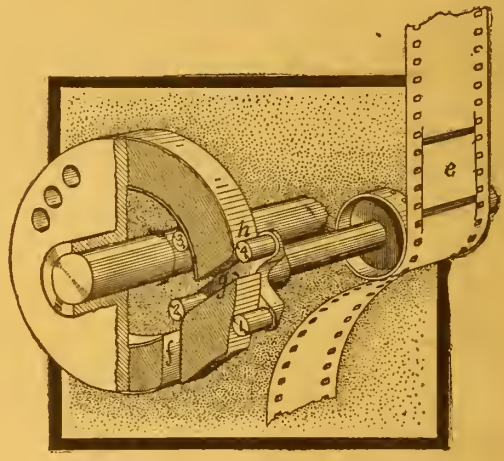
LONGER EXPOSURE



STEADIER PICTURES



LESS STRAIN ON FILM



GREATER DURABILITY

The longer period of rest for each picture accomplished by this EXCLUSIVE movement is a vital factor in the achievement of the wonderful projection of

Power's Cameragraph

We will be pleased to send Catalogue B, giving complete details.

Nicholas Power Company

INCORPORATED

Pioneers of Projection

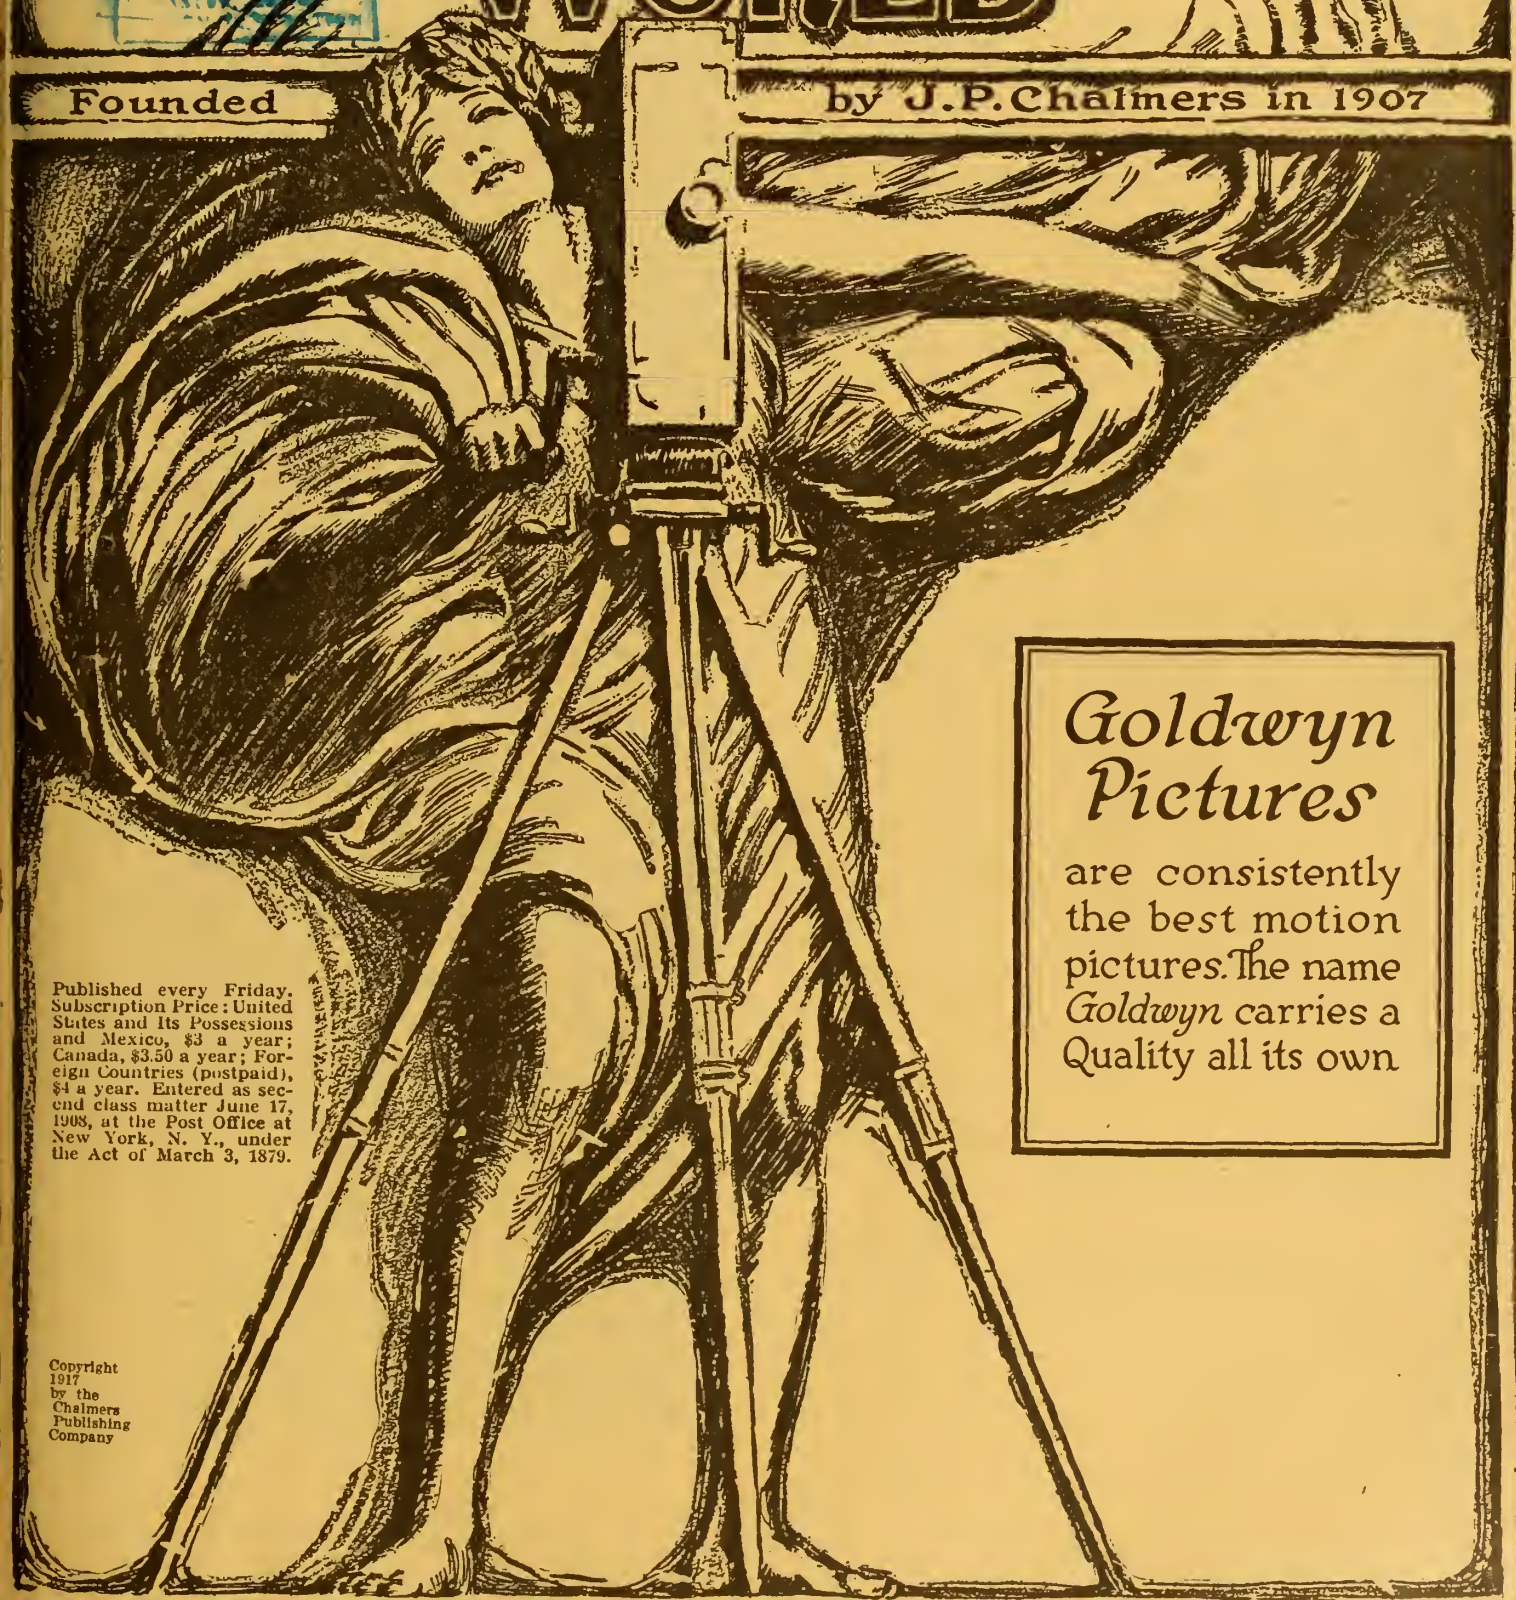
90 Gold Street
New York, N. Y.

Vol. 39, No. 8 February 22, 1919 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907



Goldwyn Pictures

are consistently the best motion pictures. The name Goldwyn carries a Quality all its own

Published every Friday. Subscription Price: United States and Its Possessions and Mexico, $3 a year; Canada, $3.50 a year; Foreign Countries (postpaid), $4 a year. Entered as second class matter June 17, 1908, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Copyright 1917 by the Chalmers Publishing Company

Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

SELZNICK PICTURES

$ELZNICK MEAN$ DOLLAR$

OLIVE THOMA$

IN

UP$TAIR$ & DOWN

DIRECTION CHARLE$ GIBLYN

Will Bring Dollar$ to
All Franchi$e Holder$.
Have You Applied?

SELZNICK PICTURES
CORPORATION
MYRON $ELZNICK - - President and General Manager
CHARLE$ GIBLYN - - - - - - - Director General

The Case for
First National

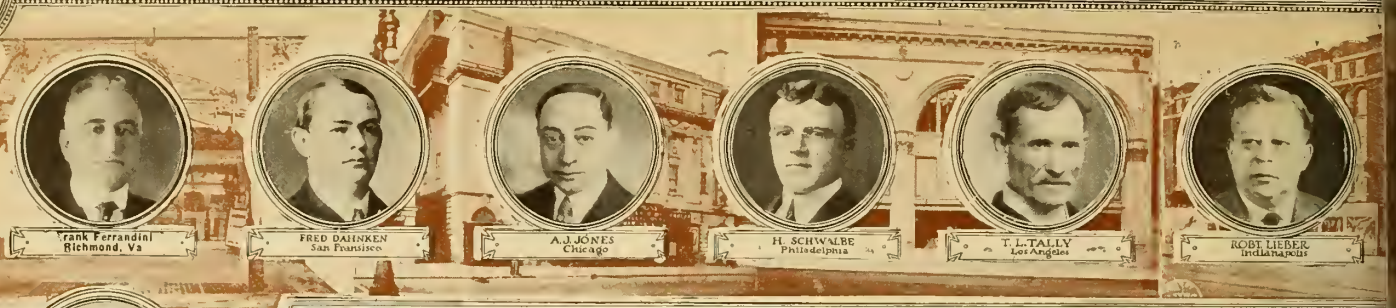
Its reasons for being, and its achievements and policies for the betterment of the Motion Picture Industry.

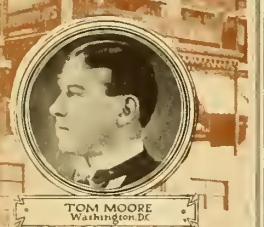
How much are Stars worth?

What of the Independent Producer?

Where does the Exhibitor get off?

The First National's attitude toward these problems is briefly set forth on the following pages.





Our organization, composed entirely of successful exhibitors, was brought into being less than two years ago for the purpose of breaking the domination of a would-be trust which, in its rapidly increasing control of production and distribution, threatened the business existence of each of us as individuals.

It is the League of Nations idea applied to the show business.

The grip of the trust has been broken. The open market is here.

Having been forced into the distributing field to protect our investments in theatre property we naturally have employed our collective capital and energy to obtain the best attractions available. Our long experience as showmen has taught us that the public does not wish to economize on its amusements. We found our newest, most expensive theatres well patronized while the older ones operating at less prices went empty. Our success has depended on high class "first release" theatres. Therefore the organizers of this Circuit enlisted the individual or firm in each territory which was most firmly entrenched in first-run theatres, for these first-run theatres are the market the old line producing-distributing companies sought to dominate. Although we do not claim to control a majority of the first-run theatres in this country our holdings do constitute the balance of power.

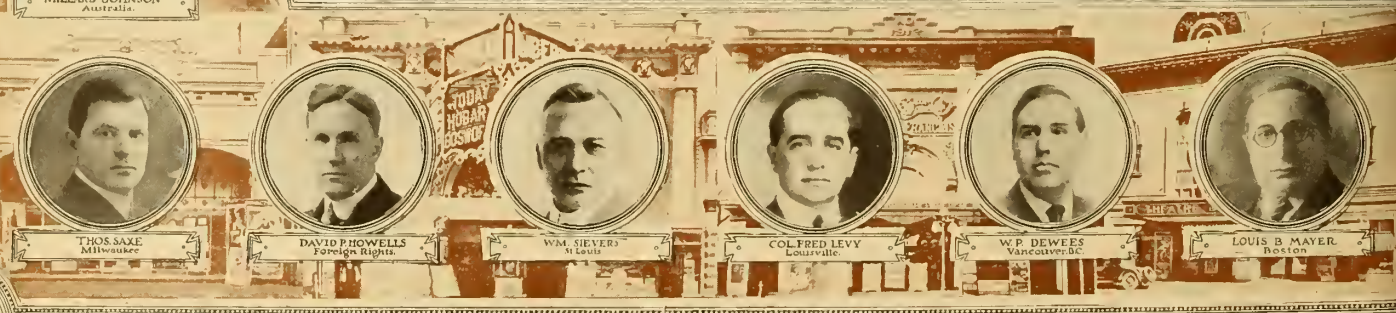
The key to the open market is in the doors of First National's Theatres.

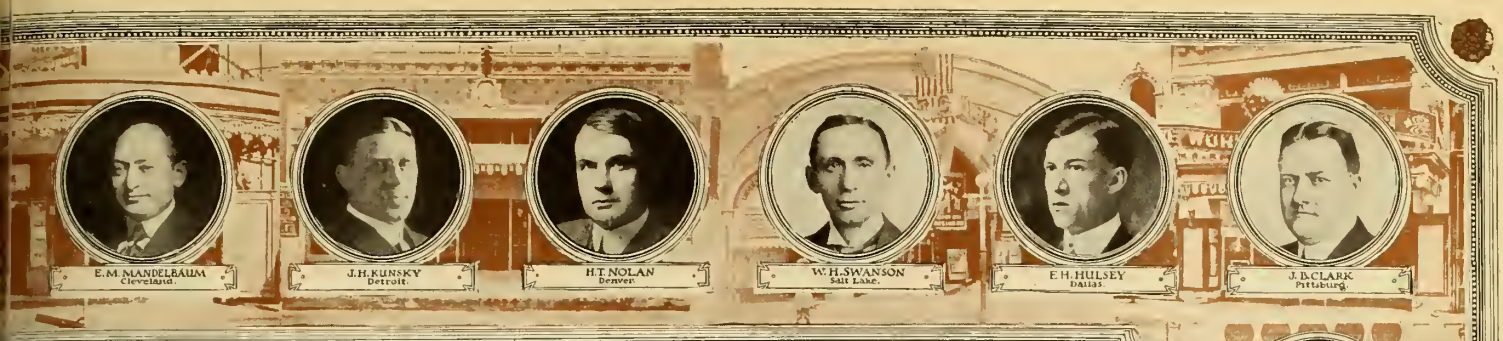
Our history is the history of men fighting together for a common purpose and ideal. Our members are men who during the past years of fierce exhibitor competition have won first place in their communities. Their collective experience usually finds the correct solution of our problems.

Having seen one-man or one-group control wreck previously attempted co-operative organizations we have written our corporate laws to provide for majority rule. Self interest is the motive that holds us together. Our policies are clearly defined. What benefits one is for the good of all. We know that, united, loyal to our organization, we cannot fail to progress. During the past two formulative years the members' loyalty has withstood every competitive onslaught. Now that the organization's power and collective capital is fully marshaled its members view the future with every confidence in its ability to maintain the open market and fight domination.

The "First National's" strength is the strength of business democracy.

Independent producers recall their precarious future of a year ago. The program ogre then threatened their very existence.





An article of our constitution reads: "This company shall not engage in the production of motion pictures." We realize that the business of production can be most successfully conducted by those who have been learning to make pictures while we have been learning to exhibit them. We believe in specialization. We place the responsibility for his or her success squarely up to the producer. We attempt no dictation. Our experience, as advisors, is at his or her disposal. We strive to encourage the production of bigger and better pictures by securing maximum profits for the producer. Our policy of open market bookings on an individual basis secures for each producer all the profits to which his or her product is entitled.

First National stands for the open door and fair returns for the producer.

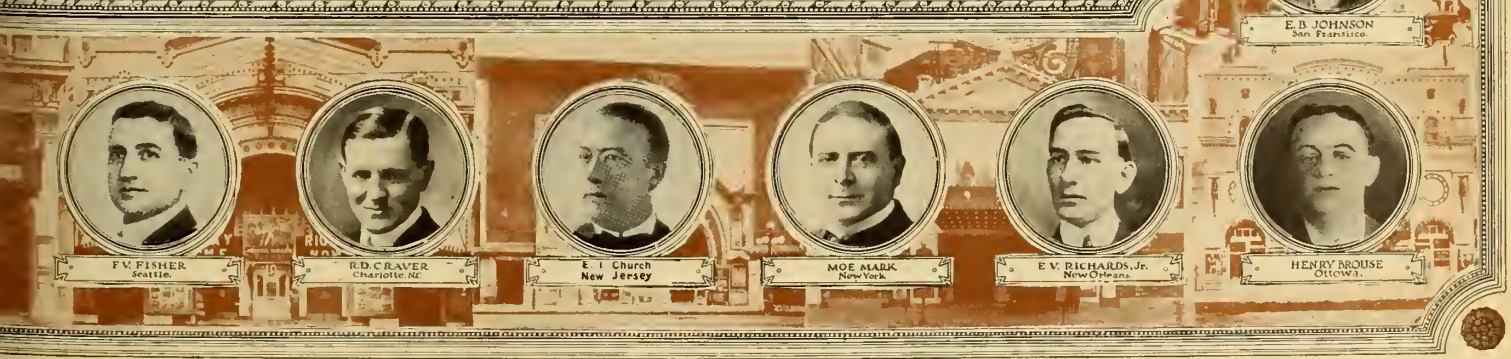
Before the First National era, artists who had attained eminence on the screen found themselves confronted with the necessity of adapting their genius to the ill-paid demands of machine production. These creators were dominated by men who cared only for the profits they might wring from the stars and exhibitors who had to market their product. This condition has passed. The producing artist now is, thanks largely to First National, a free agent. He may now develop his art to its utmost, with no task master but his own standards and none but the public to limit his financial reward. His productions of this year set the price of the ones he will make next. The public will pay what they are worth at the box office and no more.

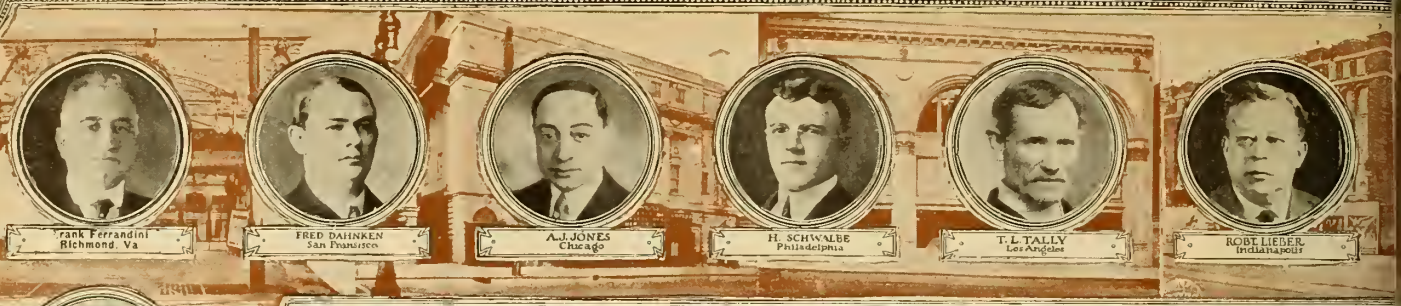
The public sets the price First National pays to stars.

What exhibitor desires the return of conditions existent before First National entered the field? Who among us, dependent on the box office for a livelihood, does not realize the benefits for which this organization is responsible? The problems of the exhibitor are the problems of the members of this Circuit. We are exhibitors above all else. Men in the exhibiting business who have still to qualify as showmen criticize the prices we pay for stellar productions. As rapidly as our cities experience the drawing power of Class A, First National attractions they realize that profits, not rentals, are what count. It is true that not all First National attractions have been big money getters. But as no exhibitor is forced to run any First National release except on an individual basis rentals have always been properly adjusted. It must be remembered that the class of super releases now offered by First National did not exist before we entered the field. Every exhibitor knows this and why. Every exhibitor knows the "program" has failed at the box office.

We are building bigger and better theatres. We must have bigger and better attractions to make them pay. We cannot get better pictures at the old hand-me-down prices. Everything is costing more now-a-days, even pictures. We expect to pay more for pictures next year than this. But we know better pictures will earn longer runs at higher rentals and pay bigger profits to exhibitors.

We stand for bigger exhibitor profits regardless of cost.





Mr. Charles Chaplin rightly believes that his pictures are now worth more than he is receiving for them. This is a condition for which both himself and First National are responsible. The liberal terms this Organization gave Mr. Chaplin on his current contract with us made it possible for him to put forth his best efforts. Freed from the conditions which had forced him to limit his art to a schedule his product attained a degree of merit which was immediately recognized by the public. His popularity outstripped his deliveries.

Our agreement with Mr. Chaplin called for eight pictures for which we agreed to pay $1,075,000. (He has delivered two.) We in turn contracted to deliver eight Chaplin releases to several thousand American exhibitors at a stated price. We contracted for the foreign rights at a stated price. His contract became a world-wide promissory note between him and the men who collect his remuneration from the public.

Being an honorable business man as well as the world's greatest and most popular actor, Mr. Chaplin will fulfill his obligation to the world's exhibitors. He desires that we state on his behalf that he does not now and never has contemplated the repudiation of his agreement.

Mr. Chaplin patriotically gave much of his time last year to the service of the government. His generosity delayed the completion of his pictures for us. Now that the war is over he will devote his entire working time to the completion of the six remaining productions.

He is a young man, barely embarked on a career the possibilities of which may not be gauged by precedent. He realizes that his future popularity depends on his present efforts. He has many years before him in which to reap the reward he merits.

Whether or not this organization may be privileged to serve him as distributors at the completion of our existing agreement he has our sincere good wishes. But we believe we are his best bet, at that.

We can't print his name yet—

It's a big name; he is the daddy of them all.

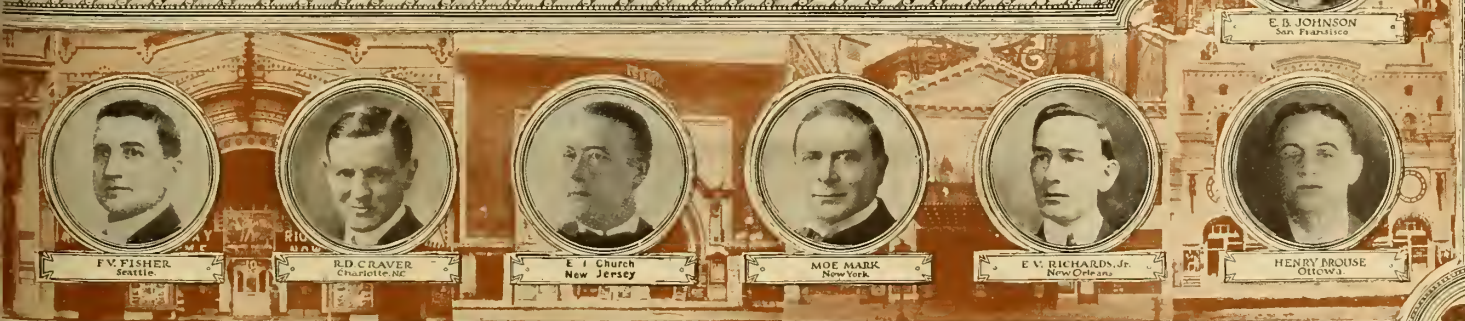
He is going to make some pictures for First National because, well, because he wants to.

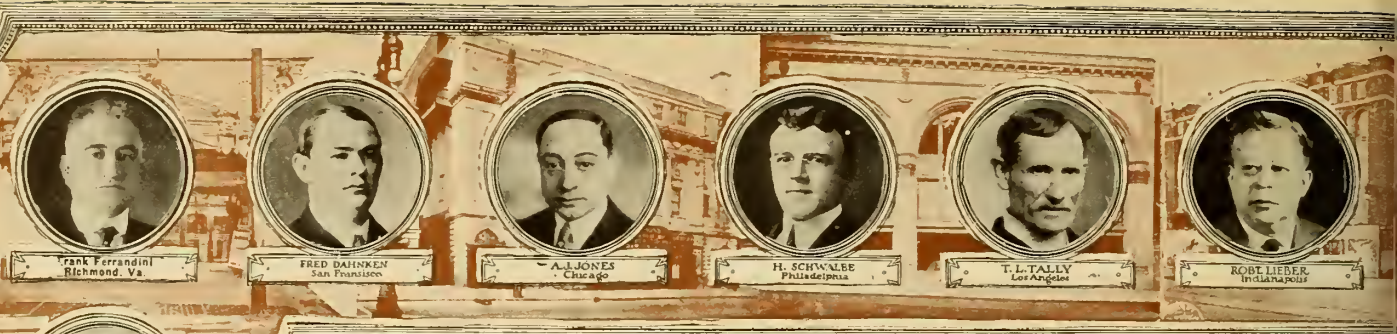
He wouldn't want to unless we had made it worth his while. He wouldn't want to unless he considered this organization big enough to properly present his works.

First National realizes his worth. First National wants him because he stands in the very forefront of the movement for better pictures.

He has a great future—so have we. We want to march on together. We both have much at stake. We are glad to progress with him.

His name?—Watch and wait.





It is our proud privilege to present

Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs"

From the celebrated story and play by Jean Webster.
Directed by Marshall Neilan.
Photographed by Charles Rosher

Miss Pickford is the darling of the screen fans for the very good reason that she is a consummate artist.

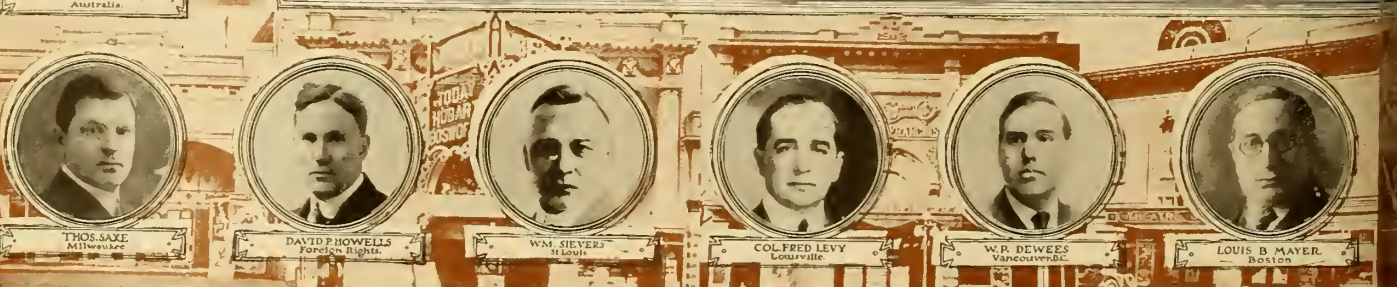
Mary can act.

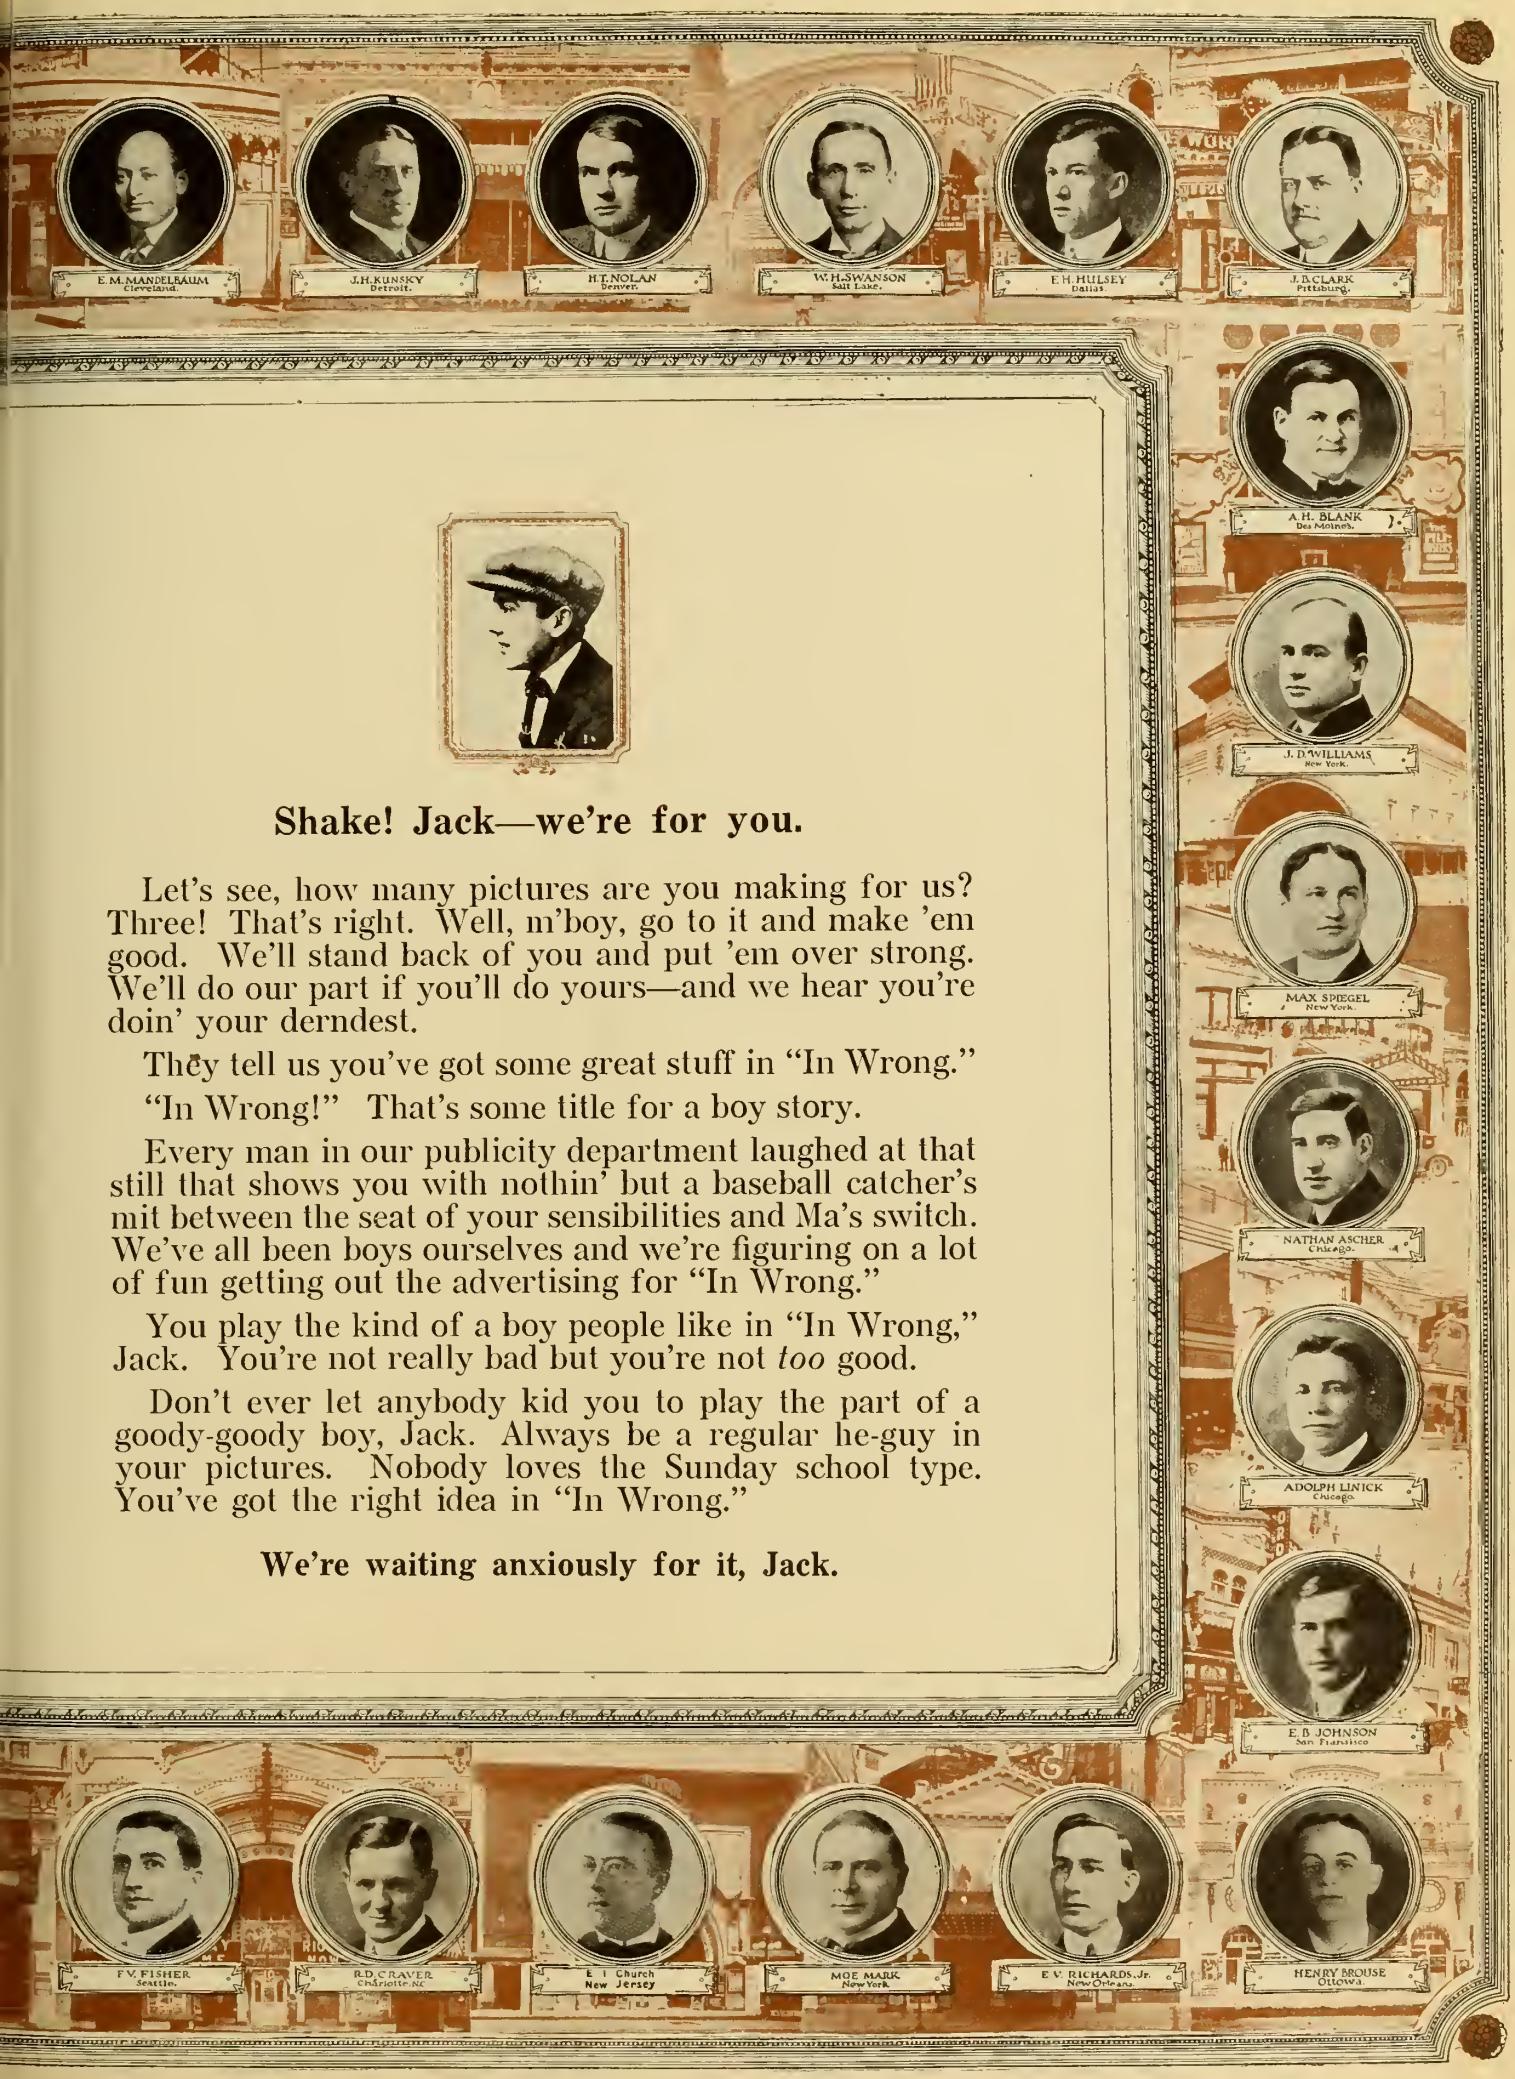
Being a true artist, she wants to make better and bigger pictures. She knows the value of a really big story.

The whole country knows and loves "Daddy Long Legs." Mary's comedy in this picture will make most comedies sad by comparison. The pathos she puts into some of the scenes will bring tears to the eyes of the whole world.

Mary Pickford is making three pictures for us. If they are as good as we believe they will be, Mary will be a bigger star than ever. It will pay her to do her best. We will tell the public Mary produced them herself. We'll give her all the credit.

It's up to you, Mary!





Shake! Jack—we're for you.

Let's see, how many pictures are you making for us? Three! That's right. Well, m'boy, go to it and make 'em good. We'll stand back of you and put 'em over strong. We'll do our part if you'll do yours—and we hear you're doin' your derndest.

They tell us you've got some great stuff in "In Wrong."

"In Wrong!" That's some title for a boy story.

Every man in our publicity department laughed at that still that shows you with nothin' but a baseball catcher's mit between the seat of your sensibilities and Ma's switch. We've all been boys ourselves and we're figuring on a lot of fun getting out the advertising for "In Wrong."

You play the kind of a boy people like in "In Wrong," Jack. You're not really bad but you're not too good.

Don't ever let anybody kid you to play the part of a goody-goody boy, Jack. Always be a regular he-guy in your pictures. Nobody loves the Sunday school type. You've got the right idea in "In Wrong."

We're waiting anxiously for it, Jack.

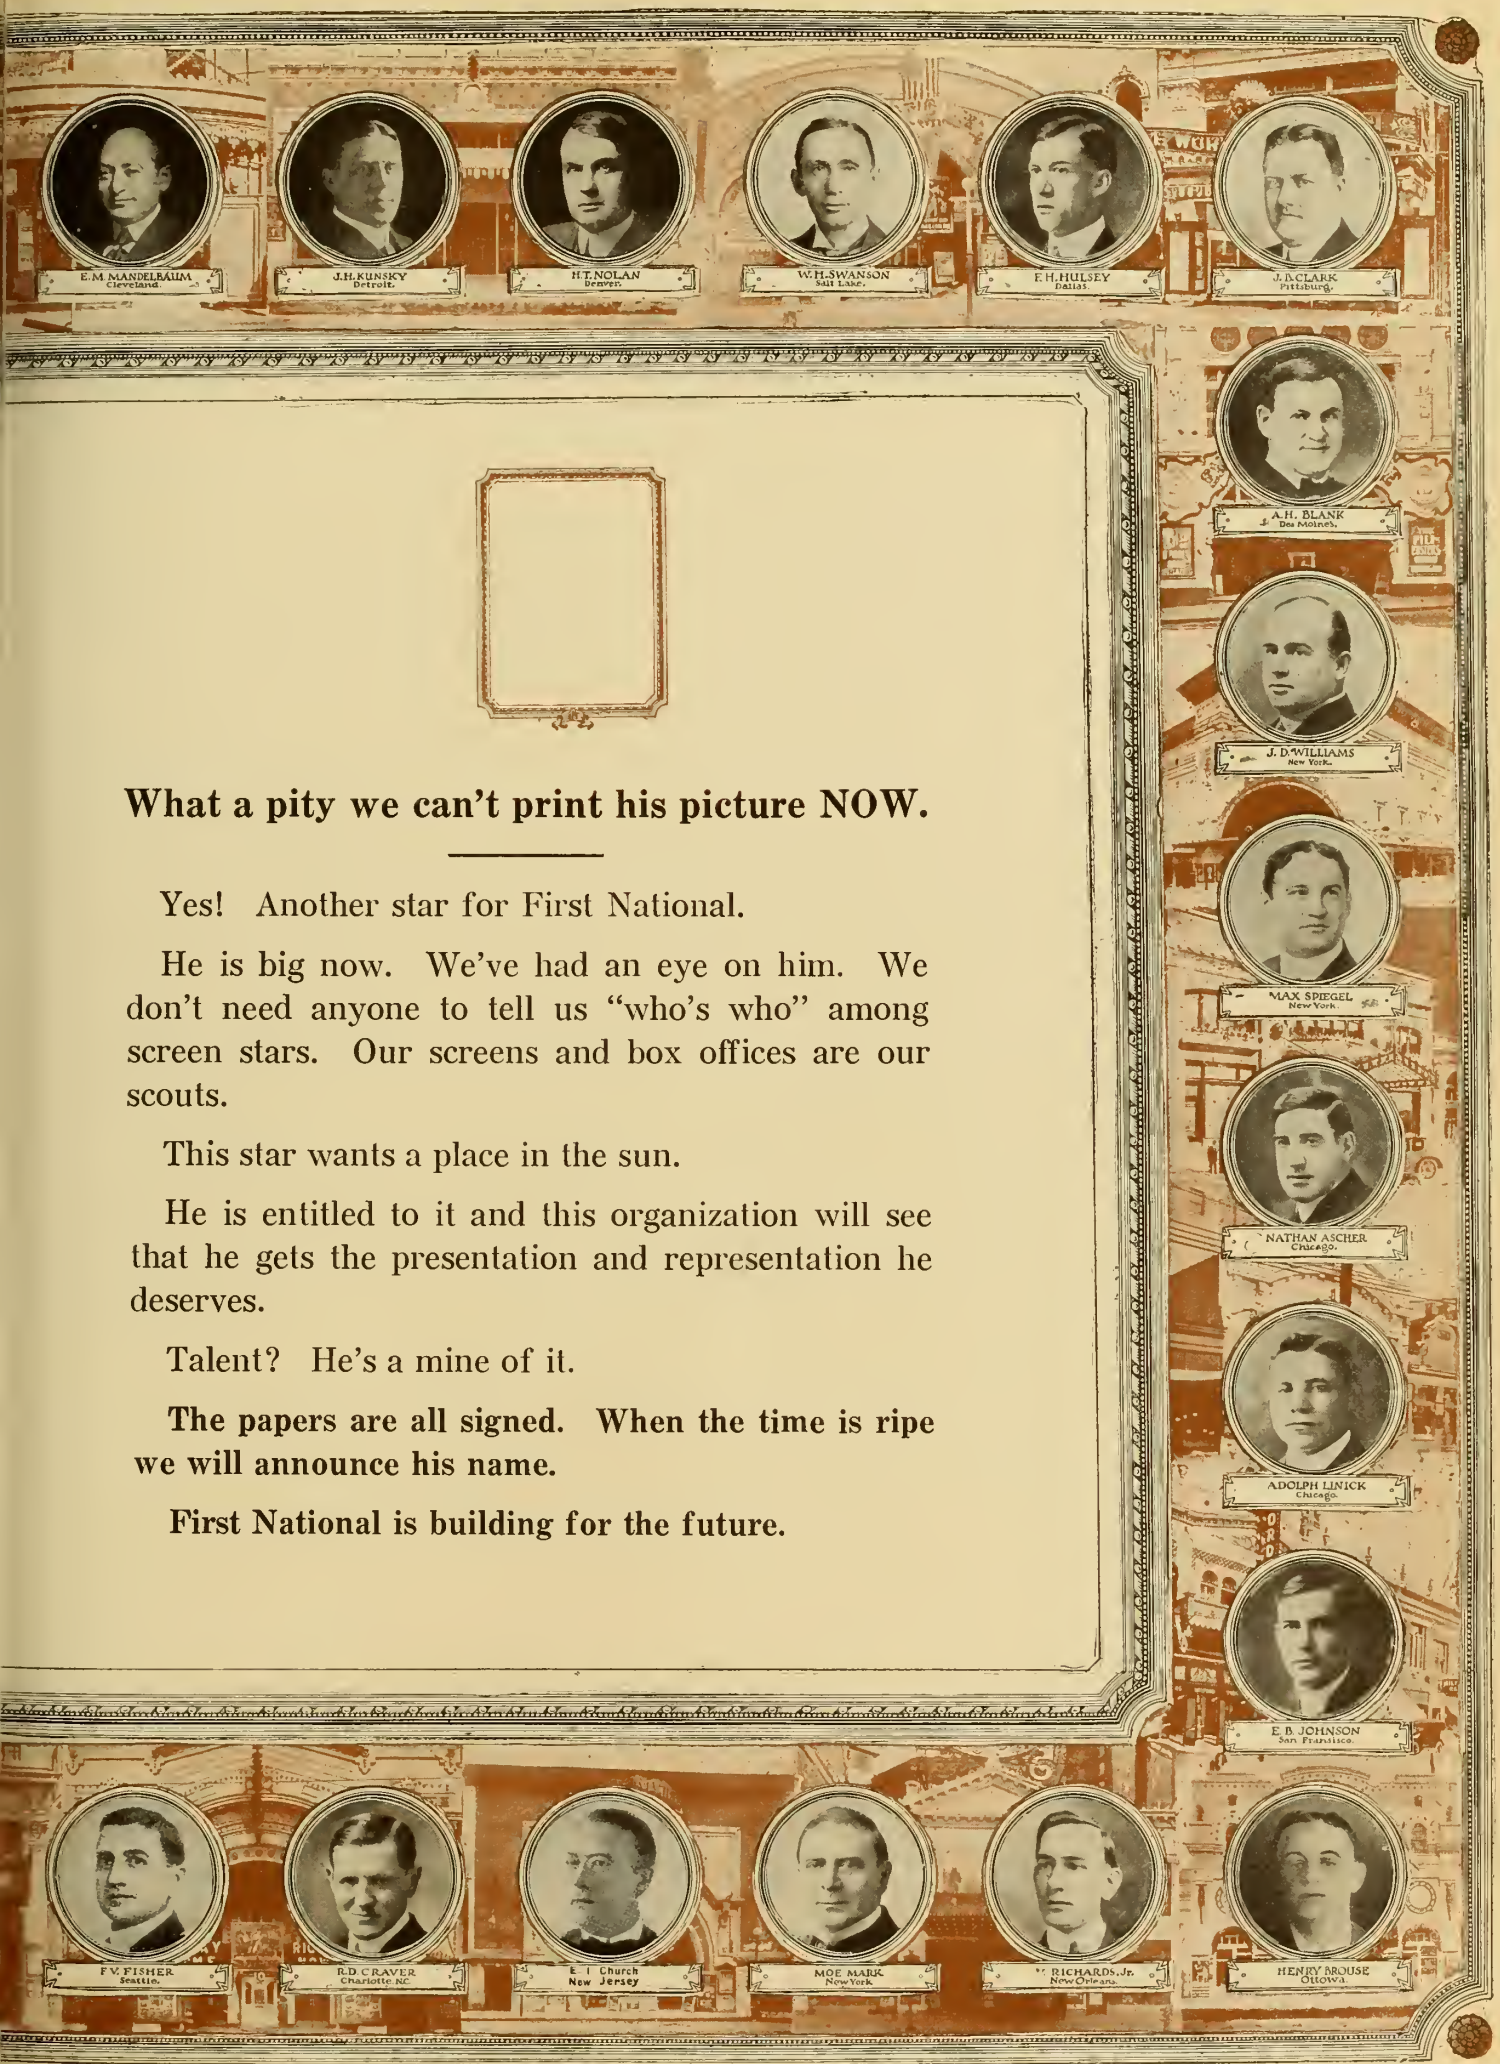
We are proud of Anita Stewart's Pictures.

The public was mighty quick to appreciate "Virtuous Wives" and Miss Stewart's work in it. Besides being one of the screen's cleverest artists, Miss Stewart showed real discernment when she selected Louis B. Mayer as her producer.

Mr. Mayer knows the game. He made his money at it. He's like the small boy who worked his way up from back-lot to big league baseball—he knows it takes team-work to win. His idea of a winning team is a combination of Big Star, Big Story, Big Director. Mr. Mayer won't hand exhibitors any lemons. He'll give them a run for their money.

First National values its connection with Mr. Mayer. We know it will be a profitable connection to Mr. Mayer, Miss Stewart, the Exhibitors and ourselves.

"A Midnight Romance," Miss Stewart's second First National release is almost ready. It was directed by Lois Weber, maker of money-makers.



What a pity we can't print his picture NOW.

Yes! Another star for First National.

He is big now. We've had an eye on him. We don't need anyone to tell us "who's who" among screen stars. Our screens and box offices are our scouts.

This star wants a place in the sun.

He is entitled to it and this organization will see that he gets the presentation and representation he deserves.

Talent? He's a mine of it.

The papers are all signed. When the time is ripe we will announce his name.

First National is building for the future.

We have been watching you for years, Norma.

Ever since your work began to stand out as better and different than that of most other girls who took to the screen we have known you would become a headliner if you got the chance.

Getting the chance on stage or screen is largely a matter of an artist selecting the right manager. You picked the right manager when you signed up for life with Joseph M. Schenck.

You have blossomed like the rose under his guidance.

Every picture he has made with you has been better than its predecessor.

Norma Talmadge pictures produced by Joseph M. Schenck have our entire confidence.

This organization is with you body and soul.

We expect great things of you. We want you both to be happy with us.

We are counting the days until you come home to First National, upon whose screens you have always been a welcome guest.

The famous people of the screen whose names we have the privilege of presenting in this announcement have joined us primarily for their own betterment. That is right and proper and as it should be.

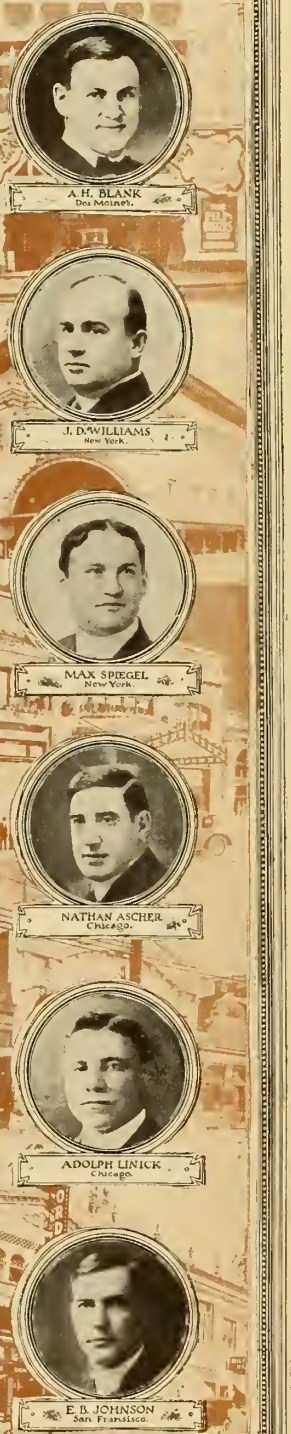
We have induced them to leave their former associations because we felt the system of which they were becoming a part was wrong.

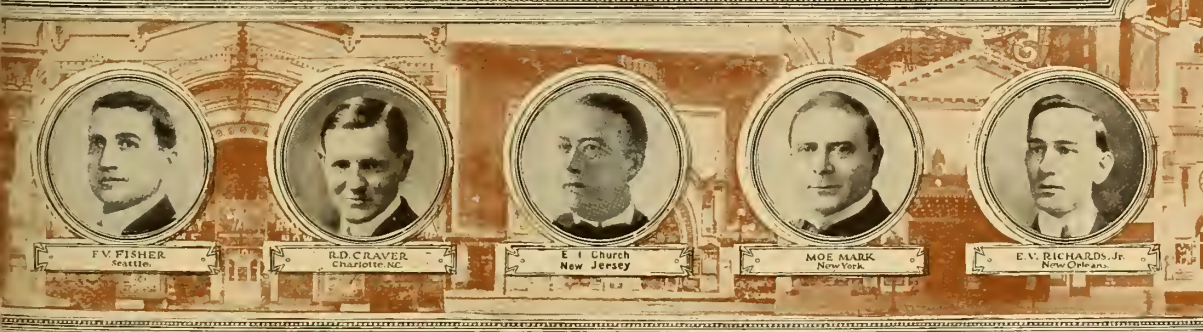
We believe First National will endure; we trust the artists and producers now affiliated with us will find the relationship so pleasant and profitable as to justify a longer association than they at first anticipated.

We know of no organization with which they may more safely associate.

But whether or not we all stick together, the purpose of this organization has already been achieved.

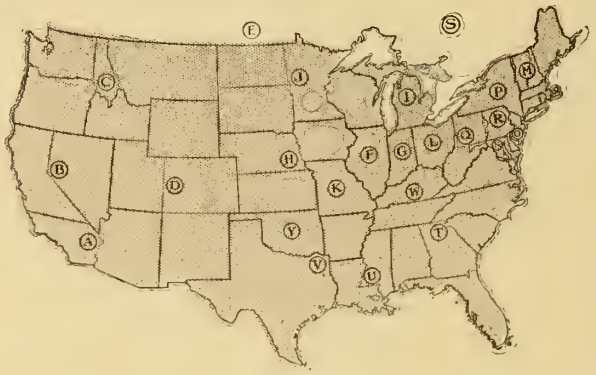
The open market is here. The security of the producing unit is assured. Monopoly has been deposed. The First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., has attained its objective and will keep a watchful eye on the future.





The First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

A NATION-WIDE ORGANIZATION OF EXHIBITORS



C. ALASKA, WASHINGTON, OREGON, MONTANA, IDAHO. Exhibitors Film Exchange. All of Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Montana. All counties in Idaho north of and including Idaho county.

A. ARIZONA and SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. T. L. Tally. Southern California, including counties of San Luis Obispo, Kern, San Bernardino and all south thereof. All of Arizona.

X. AUSTRALIA. Australasian Films, Ltd. All of Australasia.

B. CALIFORNIA, NEVADA, HAWAII. Messrs. Turner & Dahnken. California north of counties of San Luis Obispo, Kern and San Bernardino. All of Nevada and Hawaii.

E. CANADA (Western). W. P. Dewees. All Canada west of and including Fort William and Port Arthur.

S. CANADA (Eastern). Henry Brouse. All Canada east of but not including Fort William and Port Arthur.

D. COLORADO, NEW MEXICO, UTAH, WYOMING and part of IDAHO. Messrs. Swanson & Nolan. All counties in Idaho south of Idaho county.

T. GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, SOUTH CAROLINA, VIRGINIA and NORTH CAROLINA. R. D. Craver and F. Ferrandini.

F. ILLINOIS. Messrs. Jones, Linick & Schaefer.

G. INDIANA. H. Lieber Co.

H. IOWA, KANSAS and NEBRASKA. A. H. Blank.

W. KENTUCKY and TENNESSEE. Col. Fred Levy.

U. LOUISIANA and MISSISSIPPI. E. V. Richards, Jr.

I. MICHIGAN. J. H. Kunsky.

J. MINNESOTA, NORTH and SOUTH DAKOTA, WISCONSIN. Thomas Saxe and Rubin & Finkelstein.

K. MISSOURI. Wm. Sievers.

N. MARYLAND, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA and DELAWARE. Tom Moore.

M. NEW ENGLAND STATES. N. H. Gordon and Louis B. Mayer.

P. NEW YORK. First National Exchange, Inc.

O. NEW JERSEY. Jacob Fabian and E. I. Church.

L. OHIO. E. Mandelbaum.

R. PENNSYLVANIA (Eastern) and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY. H. O. Schwalbe. All counties in Pennsylvania east of Fulton, Huntington, Center, Clinton and Potter.

V. Y. TEXAS, ARKANSAS and OKLAHOMA. E. H. Hulsey.

Q. WEST VIRGINIA and WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA. J. B. Clark and R. A. Rowland. All of Pennsylvania, counties west of and including Fulton, Huntington, Center, Clinton and Potter.

FOUR GREAT CHAPLIN RELEASES

First Showing of New Prints of These Great Charlie Chaplin Pictures:

SHANGHAIED Released Feb. 15

A NIGHT IN THE SHOW Released March 1

THE BANK Released March 15

POLICE Released March 29

Screened Three Years Ago Now Just Like New

ALL NEW PAPER

Will be enjoyed again by all who see them

BOOKING NOW!

George Kleine System,
Distributors,
Representatives at All General Film Exchanges

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

Perfection Pictures

This is the famous "TAD" the brilliant comic cartoonist who makes millions laugh daily

Looks rather sober, doesn't he? Yet he makes more people laugh every day than any other living cartoonist. His famous "Indoor Sports," "Silk Hat Harry," Judge Rumhauser" and others appear every week in enabling you to make a ballyhoo on this feature big enough to draw regular patronage to see this feature alone; yet this is but one item you get each week in HEARST NEWS that covers the globe and brings you everything in news pictures FIRST to your house. Add to HEARST NEWS the big popular widely-known and eagerly-sought-for weekly release

HEARST NEWS

UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS and to that add the popular Screen Telegram, and you have the cream of the world in news reels that dominate the entire field of news pictures. Contract NOW for the BIG THREE—Hearst News, Universal Current, and and tell your public that you show all the world's news in pictures three times a week. You can book any one or two or all three at a rental that enables you to pack your house and make money every week. Talk now to your nearest Universal Exchange.

SCREEN TELEGRAM

BOOK THESE THREE BIG NEWS REELS THROUGH ANY UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE

Both the Subscriber and Advertiser Benefit Alike Through Every Issue of the WORLD

"The Red Glove"

"It's the Money!"

"Take it straight from me, you'll have no bigger serial attraction this season than 'THE RED GLOVE.' Read Douglas Grant's wonderful fiction success, 'The Fifth Ace,' on which 'THE RED GLOVE' is based, and you'll instantly see the reason. Last week I told you that the release date had been postponed from February 17th to March 17th, and that gives you more time to boost this winner and prepare your house for capacity when you open with it. I don't care how many serials may be offered you, you won't get a serial so artistically produced (by the great McGowan) as 'THE RED GLOVE,' nor with such terrific punches nor such magic advertising and publicity props all ready for you in the big Ad Campaign Book, procurable free at any Universal Exchange. Take my tip and BOOK IT NOW, and also GO SEE WITH YOUR OWN EYES some of the episodes already completed. You'll book it or else I'm all wrong."

Marie Walcamp

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
Largest Film Manufacturing Co. in the Universe
Carl Laemmle, President
1600 Broadway, New York

SIXTY THOUSAND DELIGHTED IN ONE WEEK AT LOEW'S

"The HEART of HUMANITY"

The Picture that will Live Forever

Allen Holubar's Super Production

featuring DOROTHY PHILLIPS

Released thru JEWEL Productions INC 1600 Broadway. New York City

PATRONS HIPPODROME

says George McDermit
Loew Manager in Baltimore.

"THE Heart of Humanity' proved one of the strongest and best attractions ever shown in Loew's Hippodrome. It stamps Allen Holubar as one of the greatest Directors in the world---and Dorothy Phillips as Filmdom's foremost emotional actress. Sixty thousand delighted patrons during the past week agree with me that this combination in 'The Heart of Humanity' ranks with the best ever produced".

GEORGE McDERMIT,
Manager, Loew's Hippodrome

There is a Whole Lot of Country West of the Hudson—and it is Covered by the WORLD

Produced by ACME PICTURES CORP.

Room 808 Brokaw Building
1457 Broadway New York

THE "SHOW" ANGLE

—OF—

HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED

Introduced in the large cities by long runs, with the famous aviator, BERT HALL, appearing in person, and heralded far and wide by press and billboard

Its Exceptional Drawing Power Means Capacity Houses for Exhibitors Everywhere

BOOKINGS PLACED BY
INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
FILM CLEARING HOUSE, Inc.

Foreign rights controlled by Apollo Trading Company, Longacre Theatre Bldg., N. Y. City

The WORLD Carries its Message of Practical Showmanship to Thousands Who Need It

INSANE!

ON COMEDIES

GALE HENRY

WILL BREAK OUT EVERY TWO WEEKS

IN TWO REELS

STATE RIGHT MEN GET BUSY

BULLS EYE FILM CORP. 729 7TH AVENUE NEW YORK

The WORLD Serves Both Advertiser and Subscriber to the Very Best Advantage

HERBERT LUBIN

Presents

E. K. LINCOLN

in the pre-eminent screen attraction of the year

VIRTUOUS MEN

personally directed by

RALPH INCE

PICTURES

FOREIGN DISTRIBUTORS
J. Frank Brockliss, Inc.
Sidney Garrett, President

The Girl ~ Grace Darling

The Man—E. K. Lincoln — The Flame—Clara Joel

PICTURES

Announces

E. K. LINCOLN

Supported by a notable cast, including

GRACE DARLING - CLARA JOEL
W. B. MACK - ROB'T W. CUMMINGS
JOHN P. WADE - IRVING BROOKS

in the initial

RALPH INCE FILM ATTRACTION

Arthur H. Sawyer
Supervisor of Productions

FOURTEEN SEVENTY-SIX BROADWAY
New York

VITAGRAPH

Albert E. Smith
Presents

HARRY T. MOREY
in
"Silent Strength"

Written by Lawrence McCloskey Directed by Paul Scardon

A Feature Without Let-Up!

"Silent Strength" is the same kind of a story that Harry Morey is a star---it's big, it's virile, there's no artificiality in its make-up.

It is not a picture with merely one big, dominating situation. It's big scene after big scene --- drama --- thrill --- suprise --- action --- power gaining momentum from its very first flash to its great crashing climax.

"Silent Strength" is universally conceded to be the strongest Morey release of months. It is the kind of a feature that always has and always will mean box-office success and satisfied audiences.

VITAGRAPH STARS

A Super Production of one of the Greatest Stage Successes in Dramatic History

Albert E. Smith presents

ALICE JOYCE

in

"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"

From the Famous Frohman Stage Success of the Same Title

By CHARLES KLEIN

Directed by Tom Terriss

As a stage production,
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"
brought millions of dollars into theatre box-offices.

As a screen production,
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"
will make new records in your box-office.

VITAGRAPH

The Stage Play Set the Whole World Talking. Picturized, it Actually Gains in Dramatic Intensity

ALICE JOYCE
in
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"

Your Patrons Know
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"
as one of the greatest dramatic successes of all time

THEY are waiting to see Vitagraph's super-production of this classic. It is a feature of features that will first get them in, then hold them, then make them talk about it.

Supporting Miss Joyce in this greatest of all modern dramas is a notable cast which includes Anders Randolf, Conrad Nagel, Templer Saxe, Henry Hallam, W. H. Burton, T. W. Carleton, Mona Kingsley and Jane Jennings.

VITAGRAPH

Albert E. Smith, President

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

BESSIE BARRISCALE

in

"A TRICK of FATE"

Presented by
B. B. FEATURES INCORPORATED

HENRY. B WALTHALL

in

"A LONG LANE'S TURNING"

Presented by NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION OF AMERICA

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

ROBERTSON – COLE COMPANY
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCERS

JACK SHERRILL and MABLE WITHEE
IN
"ONCE TO EVERY MAN"

From the Novel by LARRY EVANS

Screen Version by ANTHONY PAUL KELLY — Direction by T. HAYS HUNTER

An Extraordinary Special State Right Production in Six Parts—

THEY SAY:

"The fight sequences will figure as the most memorable passage in films."—"Wid's."
"It's a stand-up-and-fight picture. The best possible measure of entertainment."—Moving Picture World.
"Carries a punch in each reel, with a knockout wallop in the final episode."—New York Review.
"Exhibitors and 'fans' alike will vote this an excellent screen entertainment."—New York Telegraph.
"The picture should be billed as a very special feature."—Exhibitors Trade Review.
"One of the best 'fighting' pictures ever turned out. A virile story."—Motion Picture News.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION
TIMES BUILDING, TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY

Exhibitors Pay $3.00 for the WORLD and Get More Than Their Money's Worth

THOS. H. INCE
PRESENTS
"THE FALSE FACES"
With HENRY WALTHALL
by Louis Joseph Vance . . Directed by Irvin V. Willat.
A PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIAL

We Shall Say "We Told You So!"

HANG this page on a hook for reference—just to check us up if we're wrong.

We declare that Thomas H. Ince has made in "The False Faces" a stirring melodrama that will be a sensational money maker for exhibitors—that every exhibitor will find it worth extra days' bookings—that it is the sort of picture that draws larger crowds the longer it runs—that it will be held up for years as an example of a perfect "money picture," that it will set new marks for big profits in hundreds of theatres.

Remember what we've said. One of these days we'll say "We told you so!"

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
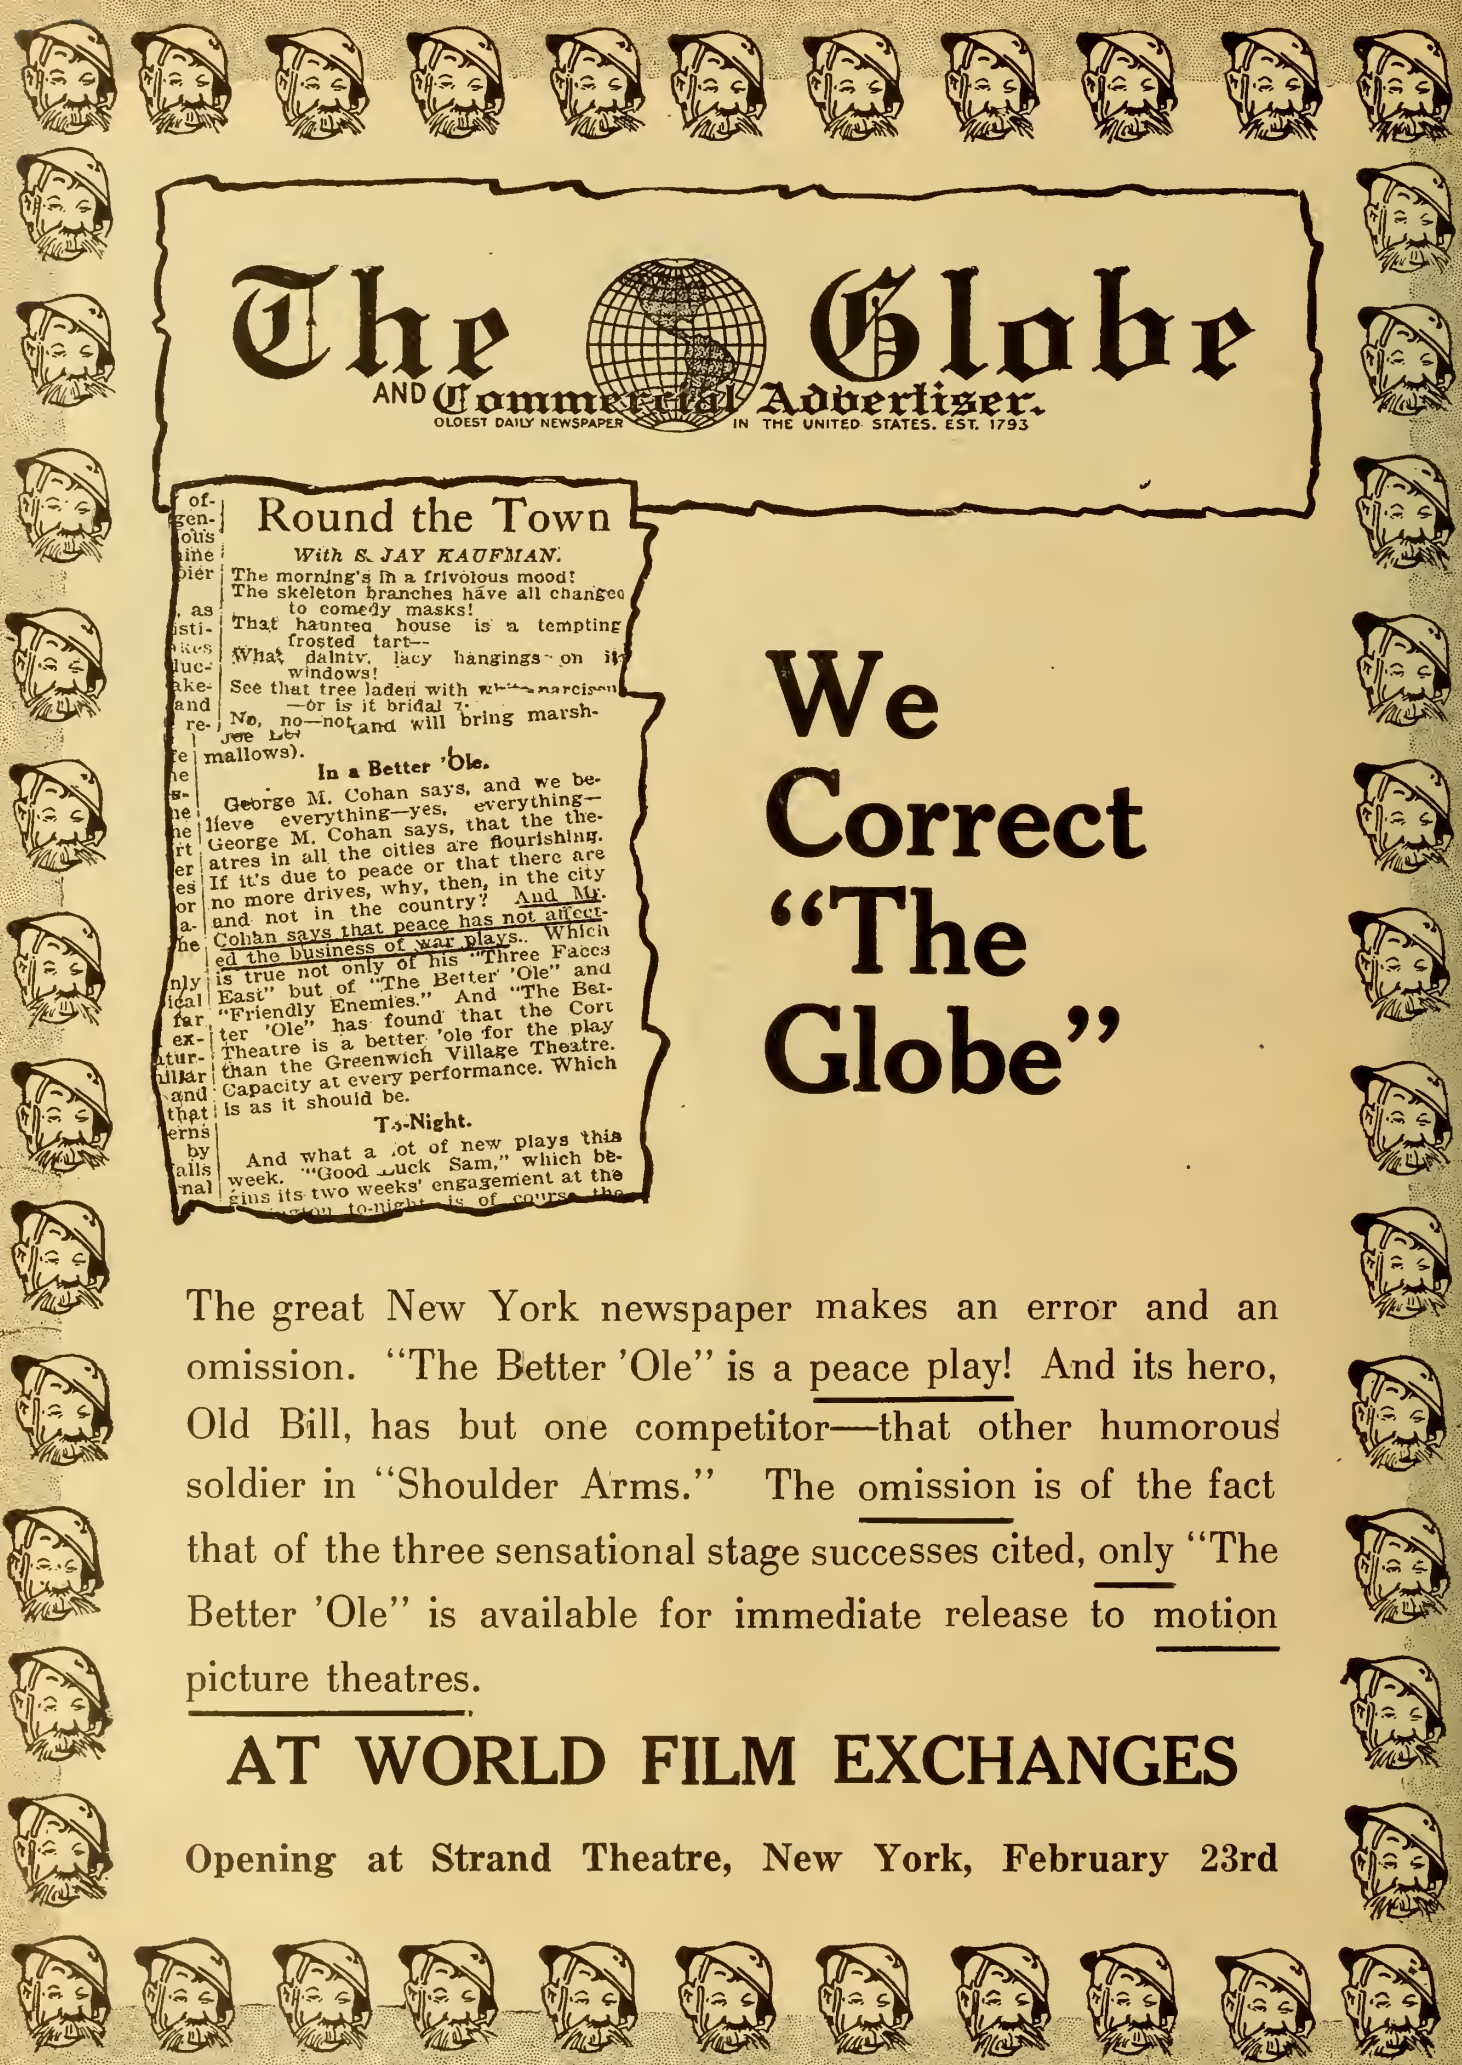
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES



The Globe
AND Commercial Advertiser.
OLDEST DAILY NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES. EST. 1793

Round the Town

With S. JAY KAUFMAN.

The morning's in a frivolous mood!
The skeleton branches have all changed to comedy masks!
That haunted house is a tempting frosted tart—
What dainty, lacy hangings on its windows!
See that tree laden with white narcissus—or is it bridal ?.
No, no—not and will bring marshmallows).

In a Better 'Ole.

George M. Cohan says, and we believe everything—yes, everything—George M. Cohan says, that the theatres in all the cities are flourishing. If it's due to peace or that there are no more drives, why, then, in the city and not in the country? And Mr. Cohan says that peace has not affected the business of war plays. Which is true not only of his "Three Faces East" but of "The Better 'Ole" and "Friendly Enemies." And "The Better 'Ole" has found that the Cort Theatre is a better 'ole for the play than the Greenwich Village Theatre. Capacity at every performance. Which is as it should be.

To-Night.

And what a lot of new plays this week. "Good Luck Sam," which begins its two weeks' engagement at the [illegible] to-night is of course the

We Correct "The Globe"

The great New York newspaper makes an error and an omission. "The Better 'Ole" is a peace play! And its hero, Old Bill, has but one competitor—that other humorous soldier in "Shoulder Arms." The omission is of the fact that of the three sensational stage successes cited, only "The Better 'Ole" is available for immediate release to motion picture theatres.

AT WORLD FILM EXCHANGES

Opening at Strand Theatre, New York, February 23rd

"Adaptation of Stage Success Goes Over Big in Film Form," says Wid, of This Superb Feature!

A. H. Woods presents

FANNIE WARD

in

COMMON CLAY

the prize play by Cleves Kinkead.

"Strong in heart interest, well produced throughout, and altogether of genuine, special caliber." Wid's, Jan. 25

7 parts

Produced by ASTRA Directed by Geo. Fitzmaurice Scenario by Ouida Bergere

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

"A good example of what can be done with a good star, a good story and a good production", says the Morning Telegraph of

FRANK KEENAN

in the extra selected photoplay

TODD OF THE TIMES

"Far above the average" says Variety; "Fine vehicle for Keenan", says the Trade Review. "Many comedy situations throughout draw good laughs", says M.P. News; "Comedy is excellent", says the M.P. World.

Story by Jack Cunningham and John Lynch Directed by Eliot Howe Produced by Robert Brunton Co.

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

EXTRA SELECTED
FRANK KEENAN
PHOTOPLAY

Booked by New York's famous Rialto Theatre for one solid year —

HAROLD LLOYD COMEDIES

Quality tells!

One one reel comedy every week beginning March 9th.

Produced by Rolin

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

DIANDO presents
a Western serial in seven episodes
THE TERROR OF THE RANGE with
BETTY COMPSON and GEORGE LARKIN
Directed by Stuart Paton
Incomparable riders, a beautiful heroine, a hero who is ultra daring and the bold, free adventurous life of the last frontier.
PATHE
DISTRIBUTORS

LESTER PARK PRESENTS

LILLIAN WALKER

IN

"the love hunger"

DIRECTED BY WILLIAM P. S. EARLE

ADAPTED FROM THE NOVEL

fran

BY JOHN BRECKENRIDGE ELLIS UNDER ARRANGEMENT WITH BOBBS-MERRILL CO. DISTRIBUTED BY THE W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION, THRU' PATHE' EXCHANGE INC.

This is one instance where newspaper expression will not vary—where the opinion of the press—north, east, south and west will be substantially the same. Have a Hodkinson representative show you "Made In America," and KNOW WHY.

THE NEW YORK HERALD SAYS:

"It is the first complete pictorial revelation of the methods by which the United States drafted and trained its army, transported the men to the front and brought the world war to an end. * * * It will interest every returning hero, his family and his friends for the next two years, because it visualizes almost every interesting detail of his career in the service and answers practically every question that may be asked of him as to how he lived while playing his part in the greatest of war dramas. * * *"

THE MORNING TELEGRAPH SAYS:

"'Made in America' is one of the finest and most thrilling celluloid transcriptions of the United States' preparation and participation in the war. In addition to being a faithful representation of the stages through which a citizen passes from the declaration of war till his own active part in the war, this new serial has real entertainment value. It is not simply a dry presentation of facts. It is not just the ordinary historical document which concerns itself merely with what was done and how it was done.

"'Made in America' is told in story form, and the story is an excellent one, and it has the saving grace of humor. At the end of the eighth episode you do not feel that you have had a terrible session of it, that you have had a vast amount of valuable information hurled at you, and that you can't get into the air quickly enough to blow cords away from your bulging head. When the picture is over, you are genuinely sorry. You have learned a lot of America, about its ways and means and its methods of preparing its men for a great conflict. You have a profound respect and a deep reverence for a nation that could go about it all so quietly and so methodically, and you feel proud that you have the privilege of living in such a country. * * *"

Need We Say More For "MADE IN AMERICA"?

A THRILLING SERIES IN EIGHT EPISODES

REMEMBER: "MADE IN AMERICA" HAS NOW A GUARANTEED AUDIENCE OF 4,000,000 DOUGHBOYS.

RELEASED FEBRUARY 16TH PRODUCED AND DIRECTED BY ASHLEY MILLER
PUBLISHED AND DISTRIBUTED BY

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

THROUGH PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.

SELECT SP PICTURES

presents

MITCHELL LEWIS

in his second Select Picture

"CHILDREN OF BANISHMENT"

from the novel by

FRANCIS WILLIAM SULLIVAN

Scenario and direction by

NORVAL MACGREGOR

A stirring tale of the deep-snow lumber lands

Public Opinion

Unanimous Criticisms of "OUT of the FOG" proclaim

Moving Picture World

"The luminous and forceful acting of Nazimova in the screen version of "CEPTION SHOALS" accentuates her enviable position as leading tragic star of the silent drama.... It is a big theme which rises up from "Out of the Fog," the birth of a woman's soul The range of human emotions Nazimova encompasses is remarkable for its breadth and for its depth."

Motion Picture News

"A great performance, one that leaves no room for doubt regarding her rank in the files of screen actresses.... an oasis in the desert of less artistic productions... easily ranks as one of the triumphs of pictorial art."

Wid's

"Impressive picture, finely produced and superbly acted... One of the finest screen performances she has ever given in a role of strong, sympathetic and dramatic quality.... By all means get this."

Exhibitors Trade Review

"Highly dramatic and shows Nazimova to her best advantage. No opportunity has been missed to make the picture stand for what is best in motion pictures."

Morning Telegraph

"Out of the Fog" will probably be remembered as one of the best pictures of the year. It is poetic, beautiful, sympathetic, imaginative and romantic."

shapes Destiny-

NAZIMOVA

The greatest star in motion pictures-

N.Y. Tribune

"Nazimova's work in the new picture is really remarkable"

N.Y. Sun

"Nazimova has found a medium for the unrestricted display of her emotional powers-"

N.Y. World "Intensely dramatic"

Evening Telegram

"Unforgettable is the acting of Mme. Nazimova in "Eye for Eye", a Metro picture, in which this stage and screen star appeared at the Rivoli Theatre Christmas week. So it is not going to be an easy task for this fine actress to better her superb work in that drama. Yet it must be admitted the Russian actress has balanced this performance by the one she is giving in Metro's "Out of the Fog" at the Rivoli this week-"

N.Y. Times "A work of exceptional merit"

N.Y. Globe "At last a perfect film for Nazimova"

The complete triumph of a marvelous artist-

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

TEN TRIANGLE KEYSTONES

Re-Issued

The World Famous MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Fatty Arbuckle, Mable Normand, Ford Sterling, Mack Swain, Charles Murray, Chester Conklin, Gloria Swanson and many other celebrities.

Think of the value of these stars to your box-office. Were funnier situations ever created than their presentations in these Keystones?

Any Exhibitor can please his audiences with these.

Let Your Audiences Laugh Again at—

"My Valet"
"Safety First Ambrose"
"Nick of Time Baby"
"His Feathered Nest"
"The Hunt"
"Fickle Fatty's Fall"
"His Wife's Mistake"
"Tug Boat Romeo"
"A Bath House Blunder"
"Crooked to the End"

The real showman will find these creators of enthusiasm and profits.

Profits! Say, fellows, that's where you come in. When your audiences are laughing at the antics of these high-salaried stars, you can laugh, too. For with these, you obtain their services at a reasonable rental.

You're not gambling with these. Their value has been proved by past performances.

"My Valet" available March 2nd. One each week thereafter. With new prints and snappy advertising material.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION 1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

"THE ITALIAN DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS"

—N. Y. WORLD.

"MACISTE"

is the Greatest Novelty on Stage or Screen."

—MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

IN HIS NEW SERIAL

"THE LIBERATOR"

He will break your box-office records of the past and set a new pace for others to follow.

LIVE SHOWMEN ARE PREPARING FOR A CLEAN-UP!

WRITE FOR A HANDSOME BOOK OF FACTS

DO IT TODAY!

HARRY RAVER, Inc.

1402 BROADWAY
NEW YORK

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE CO., INC.
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

OFFICE OF
VICE PREST. & GEN. MGR.

February eight, 191[illegible]

Mr. E. W. Hammons,
Educational Films Corporation of America,
729 7th Avenue,
City.

Dear Mr. Hammons:-

The contract as entered into between the Educational and International for the distribution of our single reel cartoons pleases me indeed.

Our cartoon department has enlisted the services of those foremost in the production of this form of comedy, which assures you of an exceptional proposition to offer Exhibitors.

In addition, the humorous title reel produced by one of the country's leading humorists, and which will be attached to the cartoon, will make this the most novel and entertaining product on the market today.

Best wishes to the success of our venture, and with kind personal regards, I am

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) C. F. Z I T T E L .

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION
OF AMERICA
729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

REX BEACH PICTURES

My Biggest Picture Since "The Spoilers."
Rex Beach

These are Rex Beach's own telegraphed words about one of his greatest stories; a drama of stormy passions and frozen trails; of the primitive days in the silent White North, where man made his own laws and wrought his own vengeance.

Under Goldwyn Direction

there has been produced for nation-wide release on March 9

A tremendous seven-reel picturization of

Rex Beach's

Powerful Drama of the Yukon

THE BRAND

Directed by Reginald Barker

This is so strong a picture, so worthy of extra playing time and of being exploited in all houses as an exceptional special production that we would not consider releasing it in less than its seven vital reels. It is one of our Rex Beach Star Series, but if you booked it singly as a special production you would willingly pay greatly advanced rentals. This production will mark an event in the life of every theatre.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

The Place in the Program Exhibitors Assign to the FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

WE suggest to several thousand exhibitors in whose theatres we wish to book The Ford Educational Weekly that they give attention to the reasons why other exhibitors have booked it. This weekly release has a definite place in a house program; a place made doubly valuable by its exclusiveness.

Here you are listening to the logic of the box-office; the logic of experience:

BERNARD DEPKIN Jr.: Parkway, Baltimore—"No one can announce in competition with it any feature that matches it for exclusiveness of topic. It finds the drama and human interest in the overlooked things of American life."

FRANK BUHLER: Stanley Co., Philadelphia—"It pictures the big, solid things and people always being talked about in the great daily newspapers of the country."

AARON J. JONES: Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Chicago—"The Ford Weekly is the great teacher of the screen and audiences never realize that they are being taught by it.... It is playing in 200 theatres in Chicago."

SID. GRAUMAN: Grauman's Theatre, Los Angeles—"Our audiences watch it as closely as they watch a tense play, which proves its human interest."

In other words: Every exhibitor has a reason of his own for running The Ford Educational Weekly in his theatre. This accounts for the fact that it has the greatest circulation any screen product has ever received. Goldwyn is its exclusive distributor. We advise you to sign it up promptly.

FITZPATRICK and McELROY Chicago
Sole Representatives
FORD MOTOR CO.
Motion Picture Laboratories

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDWYN President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

"Bennison At His Best!"

PHILA. PRESS: Rich, breezy, handsome, dare-devil Louis Bennison, famous from Coast to Coast, is a conquering hero in "Sandy Burke Of he U-Bar-U" at the Arcadia. The picture wins high favor.

PHILA. INQUIRER: They should call Louis Bennison "the smiling star." His newest picture, "Sandy Burke," is a reputation-maker for him.

THE NORTH AMERICAN: Louis Bennison is setting the fashion for a different kind of star; he is a welcome change from the general run of so-called favorites.

PHILA. RECORD: All the lively interest of the true West is found in "Sandy Burke." Louis Bennison more than fulfills all the predictions that were made for him.

PHILA. LEDGER: Louis Bennison is going to be, by all odds, the most popular of the younger stars portraying virile American roles.

THE BULLETIN: Louis Bennison who scored a hit in "Oh, Johnny!" adds to his popularity with "Sandy Burke." He has an always-on-top sort of breeziness.

This represents the unanimous newspaper voice of America's third largest city on

Betzwood Film Company
presents:

Louis Bennison
in
SANDY BURKE of the U-BAR-U

By J. Allen Dunn Directed by Ira M. Lowry

The Bennison Star Series of six productions is released exclusively through Goldwyn. Exhibitors everywhere are signing their Bennison contracts.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDWYN President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

Snap!

This is the word your audiences apply to fast, laughable comedies that get the good, hearty, deep chest-laughs.

Your patrons' eyes want diversion from heavy drama; from fluffy ingenues; from grim villains and curly-haired heroines—just as your palate craves an occassional sharp sauce.

You make the remainder of your entire bill "taste better to the eye" by presenting regularly

"Smiling Bill" PARSONS

in CAPITOL COMEDIES

26 a Year Every Second Monday

You can get an idea how good the entire twenty-six are after seeing these four latest releases in any Goldwyn office: "Have Another," "A Master of Music," "The New Breakfast Food," "The Potum of Swat."

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

"Give Us Zane Grey!"

"FROM the military camps here and abroad, from battleships, from hospitals, from nurses and even the civic organization—this is the demand everywhere," reports the Assistant Director of the American Library Association.

The same cry comes from the American people for the stories of one of the country's most popular authors.

Exhibitors in all parts of America are now playing to capacity business with the latest and most powerful of this author's screen productions, distributed exclusively by Goldwyn:

ZANE GREY'S
most exciting story
The BORDER LEGION
Starring
Blanche Bates
and Hobart Bosworth
Directed by T. Hayes Hunter

Proof of an exhibitor's feeling about a picture is always found in the volume of his newspaper advertising. Tom Moore, the successful Washington, D. C. showman, spent more money advertising "The Border Legion" than he has spent on any production in the past twelve months.

Wire or write your Goldwyn office immediately for prices and playing dates.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDWYN President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

An Open Letter to

WILLIAM G. McADOO

Dear Mr. McAdoo:—

The Motion Picture Nation rises to welcome you as its Coming Chief Executive, a man whom every Picture Citizen should feel proud to acclaim Leader. And, as counselor to a representative group of artists it may occur to you that the Motion Picture is a Human, a Personal product; too fluid, too flexible for any man or group of men to control, however seriously your published statement concerning trusts may have been intended. If that is so, then the only Monopoly possible is one of Quality, and to create such a Monopoly through Quality THE FOUR ESSENTIALS of the Motion Picture must be given EQUAL CONSIDERATION. These are, Author, Director, Star, Producer, but the Author must dominate, for Director, Star and Producer are wholly dependent upon him for the quality of their picture.

Such a UNION OF ESSENTIALS has just been formed to satisfy a growing demand for the Evenly Balanced picture, of which the STORY shall be the foundation stone. AUGUSTUS THOMAS was the greatest man we could find to represent the First and most important Essential, the Author. George Irving, whose record for finely staged productions is well known, was selected as the Director. Leah Baird, young, talented, magnetic, the Star. Harry Raver, a pioneer in the making of the famous play and star type of picture, the Producer.

Each of these FOUR ESSENTIALS will share in the prestige and profit of Six Productions each year. Does this not appear to you a better formula than the old method of Star domination, Producer control or Exhibitor control?

We believe our idea of Co-operation is directly in line with the big thought now being expressed on National issues and we feel confident a first class Motion Picture will always find its market, "trusts" notwithstanding.

We have disposed of our first year's output of Six productions, throughout the world, as an indication that our ideas are sound. The American distribution will be controlled by a man who is free from Producer or Exhibitor Domination, and therefore valuable to both.

YOURS FOR BETTER PICTURES

(And less politics)

ARTCO PRODUCTIONS, INC.,

1400 Broadway, N. Y.

Producer of FOUR-STAR Pictures.

Charles Richman and Leah Baird in a tense scene from IVAN ABRAMSON'S Stirring drama

"THE ECHO of YOUTH"

A SIX ACT PRODUCTION FEATURING

Charles Richman, Leah Baird and Pearl Shepard

Record breaking box office attraction with

WONDERFUL ADVERTISING POSSIBILITIES

PLAYING WEEK STANDS ONLY, all first class houses in GREATER NEW YORK

STATE RIGHT BUYERS PUT LIFE IN YOUR EXCHANGES

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

GRAPHIC FILM CORPORATION
729 SEVENTH AVE., - - NEW YORK

For Foreign Rights—Apply to Inter Ocean Film Corporation, 220 West 42nd Street, New York

MICKEY

IS MAKING MOTION PICTURE HISTORY

With "MICKEY," State Right Buyers and Exhibitors are reaping their greatest harvest since the beginning of the Film Industry

For List of Exchanges Address

W. H. PRODUCTIONS COMPANY

71 West 23rd Street, New York, N. Y.

THE ONLY TERRITORY STILL OPEN FOR

MICKEY

IS

Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas,
Louisiana, Mississippi,
Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia,
Florida, North and South Carolina

Address all communications to

W. H. PRODUCTIONS COMPANY

71 West 23rd Street, New York, N. Y.

WORLD-PICTURES

IN NATURAL COLORS

PRIZMA

THE SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT

Now Showing

RIVOLI, New York
STANLEY and ARCADIA, Philadelphia
PANTHEON, Chicago
SHEA'S HIPPODROME, Buffalo
REGENT, Rochester
MAJESTIC, Detroit
PROCTOR'S NEW YORK CIRCUIT Twenty Theatres
ECKEL, Syracuse
CLEMMER THEATRES, Seattle
COLONIAL and VIRGINIA, Atlantic City
PARKWAY, Baltimore

"THE BETTER 'OLE"

or The Romance of Old Bill

The Biggest International Theatrical Success in 50 Years Is Now Ready for Bookings

PREMIER SHOWING—STRAND, New York, Week of Feb. 23d

CURRENT WORLD RELEASE

KITTY GORDON

in

"MANDARIN'S GOLD"

Supported by IRVING CUMMINGS

The 100% Showman's Picture

Not a War Picture

A Screen Review of All Civilization
The Problem of the Peace Conference
"Cash In" on McClure's National Publicity Campaign
Start a Voting Contest in Your Theatre

"AMERICA'S ANSWER"

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

"U. S. A. SERIES" (2 Reels)

THE FASTEST GROWING MOTION

A CLEAN SWEEP

The

ENTIRE B. F. KEITH,

ORPHEUM and

AFFILIATED THEATRES

TAKE

KINOGRAMS

SCREEN NEWS
OF ALL THE WORLD

THE REASON?

BECAUSE—THEY ARE THE BEST

PICTURE COMPANY IN THE WORLD

★ UNITED ★ STATES ★ GOVERNMENT ★

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

The Government's Great Victory Picture

Exhibitor Comment:

"Wonderful picture. Extra Big Business." "A picture that every theatre should play"——M. P. News.

Consensus:

"Powerful production with extra big drawing powers"—M. P. News.

This Great Victory Picture of America and the Allies gives the exhibitors in the smaller towns a remarkable opportunity for box-office profits.

The Government rental price is fixed on a scale that allows a margin not obtainable with any other attraction.

The picture was a sensation with the war-picture-surfeited screen patrons of the larger cities. It was a tremendous box-office success.

Patrons of the smaller towns are not surfeited with war facts. Like the city people, they want to see how the war was won—but their desire is even more keen.

Exhibitors can give their patrons what they want. The rental is figured on a basis that permits high profit at regular admission prices.

OFFICIAL U. S. WAR PICTURES

The Official War Review—(Weekly)—Pathé

Pershing's Crusaders—First National Exhibitors

Our Bridge of Ships—General Film Corporation

America's Answer

Under Four Flags

U. S. A. Series

Available through the WORLD FILM CORPORATION, except FOR CALIFORNIA Sol. L. Lesser, State Council of Defense, San Francisco.

FOR MICHIGAN Michigan War Preparedness Board, Lansing. (Except Detroit and Wayne County, through World Film Corporation)

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION, George Creel, Chairman

Through the Division of Films, Charles S. Hart, Director, Washington, D. C.

The Bureau of War Photographs The Bureau of War Expositions—presented by the United States and Allied Governments

THE VIRGINIA PEARSON PHOTOPLAYS INC.

PRESENTS

VIRGINIA PEARSON

IN

THE BISHOP'S EMERALDS

ADAPTED FROM THE FAMOUS NOVEL OF CAPTAIN HOUGHTON TOWNLEY

WITH SHELDON LEWIS

SUPPORTED BY A CAST OF PROMINENT PLAYERS.
THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF EIGHT PHOTO-PLAYS TO BE PRODUCED DURING THE COMING YEAR, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF

JOHN B. O'BRIEN

VIRGINIA PEARSON PHOTOPLAYS, INC.
112 WEST FORTY-SECOND STREET, NEW YORK

A Box Office Star

Victory Pictures have been the sensation of the season! Never have exhibitors been offered a greater combination of stars and stories. Tom Mix, George Walsh and under the direction of WILLIAM FOX have been seen in success after success—a dazzling series of pictures that have packed theatres everywhere from Broadway to the Golden Gate! Know success! Book VICTORY PICTURES now at any Fox Exchange!

Gladys Brockwell

F O X

FILM CORPORATION

A Box Office Title

And a drama that lives up to expectations! You want to get people into your theatre—and you want them to be so well entertained they will come back!

The Forbidden Room

Directed by LYNN REYNOLDS

shows a thrilling rescue of a girl from drowning—a tremendous court scene—a graphic unwinding of an absorbing political plot—and a love story so tense your audiences will gasp!

BOOK THIS WINNER NOW!

F O X
FILM CORPORATION

MAKE CERTAIN! INVESTIGATE!

Don't take our word for it that

Captain Bud FISHER'S MUTT AND JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS

Released by Fox Film Corporation are helping scores of exhibitors to put their programs over.

Ask any of these first-run houses:

THEATRE	CITY	THEATRE	CITY
Rialto	New York	Strand	Tampa
Cherokee	Louisville	Lyric	Fall River
Rialto	San Francisco	Olympia	Cambridge
Liberty	Portland, Ore.	Empire	Portland, Me.
Colonial	Seattle	Rand's	Troy
Strand	New Orleans	Bijou	Jamestown, N. Y.
White Eagle	Toledo	Royal	Rockford, Ill.
Strand	Washington	Apollo	Dayton
Wells	Norfolk	Majestic	Springfield, O.
Hippodrome	Baltimore	Liberty	Cleveland
Fenway	Boston	Idle Hour	Fort Wayne
Blue Mouse	St. Paul	Hickory	St. Joseph, Mo.
Shea's Hippodrome	Buffalo	Palace	Wichita
Boston	Chicago	Cabrillo	San Diego
Idle Hour	Kansas City	Liberty	Dubuque
Dreamland	Oklahoma City	New Empire	Montgomery
Miller's Garden	Los Angeles	Strand	Jersey City
Bonita	Atlanta	Life	Meriden, Conn.
Star	Nashville	Olympic	Altoona, Pa.
Regent	Rochester, N. Y.	Royal	Des Moines
Liberty	Columbus	Victoria	Harrisburg
Savoy	Philadelphia	Empress	Springfield, Ill.
Majestic	Pittsburgh	Globe	Richmond, Va.
Regent	Scranton	Claremont	Oakland, Cal.
Strand	Tacoma	Rialto	Butte, Mont.
Crown	Mobile	Broadway	Charlotte, N. C.
Grand O. H.	St. Louis	Dixieland	Charleston, S. C.
Colonial	Cincinnati	Colonial	New Bedford
Savoy	Syracuse	Olympia	Lynn
Odeon	Birmingham	Clinton Square	Albany
Alhambra	Indianapolis	Auditorium	South Bend
Family	Worcester	Lyric	Covington
Odeon	Savannah	Liberty	Youngstown
Fine Arts	Chattanooga	Hippodrome	Joplin
Strand	Erie, Pa.	Strand	Pasadena
Sun	Omaha	Poli's	New Haven
Colonial	Reading	Star	Paterson
Erber's	East St. Louis	Liberty	Bridgeport
Edison	Sacramento	Class A	Spokane

Next release: "5,000 MILES ON A GALLON OF GAS."

F O X
FILM CORPORATION

NEGATIVE STOLEN

On Friday afternoon, January 17, 1919, a Sunshine Comedy negative, measuring 1,800 feet, was stolen either from the Fox Studio, 1401 North Western Avenue, Los Angeles, California, or while in transit, care American Railways Express Company.

Shipment of negative was made from Fox Studio in a sealed wooden case. When the case was opened the cans were found to contain gravel and dirt.

The negative was entitled "A Lady Bell-Hop's Secret," valued at $50,000.

Notice is given to all branches of the trade that if this negative, or positive prints thereof, be offered for sale, hire or lease, immediate telegraphic notice should be given to the undersigned.

The robbery is now under investigation by Criminal Authorities. The title of this Sunshine Comedy may be changed by those responsible for the theft. Briefly, the story is that of a girl who works as a bell-hop in a hotel. Her sweetheart has knowledge of the location of six million dollars in gold hidden in a sand pit. The gold is recovered by the villain, who escapes in an aeroplane and drops from the parachute into an open cage of lions, etc., etc.

Information with reference to the theft or location of negative may be given to either the nearest Police Authorities, the Sheriff or direct to

FOX FILM CORPORATION

130 West 46th Street New York City

TO CONTENTS

Advertising Aids and Reviews.....1079
Advertising for Exhibitors.....1033
Among Independent Producers.....1076
"As the Sun Went Down" (Metro).....1108

Beadell, Ben W., Talks of Trip.....1024
Bedless Oil Boomers Crowd Theatres.....1061
Bill Puts Sunday Question Up to Cities.....1059
Blank Enlarges Theatre Holdings.....1016
Brandt Again Elected Brooklyn League Head.1050
"Breezy Jim" (Triangle).....1107
Bruenner, Lieutenant, Out of Service.....1007

Camera to Record Scenes of Crime.....1025
Chalmers, Alfred, Returns from France....1029
"Child of M'Sieu" (Triangle).....1108
Chicago League Has Annual Meeting.....1023
Chicago Managers and Operators Still Agreeing.....1007
Clean Up Campaign for "Our Teddy".....1053
Cleveland Gets Another Big House.....1063
Congress Has No Time for Censorship Bills..1054
Crandall Pushes "Mickey" Forcefully.....1064

Defend "Salome's" Lack of Clothing.....1059
Difficulties of a War Cameraman.....1058
Drastic Fire Rules for Pittsburgh Exchanges.1012

Elimination of Rental Tax Sought.....1014
Engel, Joe, Visits Chicago.....1024

Famous Players to Screen "Secret Service"..1057
Film Men in France Are Keeping Up to the Minute.....1030
Five Famous Players on Broadway.....1055
Fox Invades More South American Territory.1055
Fox's Pittsburgh Branch Forms Picture Navy League.....1054

Goldwyn Enlarges Its Home Office Facilities.....1021

"Happy, Though Married" (Paramount)....1079
Hampton and Perry Form Great Authors Picture.....1020
Hart to Dissolve Division of Films.....1056
Hess Seeks Aid of Advertising Men.....1021
Highlights from "Out of the Fog".....1015
Hoosiers Argue for Sunday Shows.....1011
How Grauman Put on "Cannibals" Film....1055

"In for Thirty Days" (Metro).....1109

Kalem Properties Absorbed by Vitagraph...1048

"Lion and the Mouse" (Vitagraph).....1082
Liists of Current Film Release Dates, 1114, 1116, 1118, 1120
Looking Over the Fort Lee Studios.....1025
Lose Heavily Through "Bicycling".....1007
"Love's Auction" (Fox).....1108
Lubin Goes to Florida.....1012

"Made in America" (Ashley Miller).....1082
"Maggie Pepper" (Paramount).....1110
Marion, Frances, Returns to Task.....1013
"Mickey" First as a Musical Tie-Up.....1057
Milwaukee's White House Features Its Ventilation.....—
Ministers Working to Close Theatres.....1051
Minneapolis League Has Large Membership Gain.....1050
Minneapolis Manager Uses Novel Advertising Stunt.....—
Minneapolis Film Bodies to Fight Adverse Legislation.....—
Motion Picture Educator.....1031
"Moral Deadline, The" (World).....1081
Music for the Picture.....1041

Nazimova to Make Five De Luxe Pictures..1052

Offer Means for Improving Mail Service to Exchanges.....1030
Ontario Exhibitors Hold Meeting.....1049
Open Forum to Adopt Film as Substitute for Lecturer.....1032
Orchestras Proved Drawing Cards.....1060
"Out of the Fog" (Nazimova).....1080
Ottumwa will Have a Fine New House....1065

Pathe Enlarges Kansas City Offices.....1066
Photoplaywright, The.....1040
Philosophy of the Picture Showman.....1022
Pittshurgh Houses Pay More Attention to Short Films.....1018
Producers' and Distributors' News.....1067
Projection Department.....1036

Rambles Around Film Town.....1026
Record Crowd Attends Ball of Operators' Union.....1059
Reformative Illinois Zealous for Censorship 1023
Report Heavy Booking for "Under Four Flags".....1052
Review Board to Oppose Censorship.....1050
Reviews and Advertising Aids.....1079
Rothapfel, Samuel, Program Producer.....1048
Rubbernecking in Filmland.....1017

San Franncisco Free of Influenza.....1014
San Francisco Trade Board Completes Organization.....1048
Seek Exhibitor Aid in Story Policy.....1030
"Sealed Envelope, The" (Universal).....1082
"Shadows" (Goldwyn).....1080
Stolte of Omaha Puts on Griffith Film Effectively.....1058

Tells Plans of Pearson Photoplays.....1014
Tips for the House Manager.....1039
To Erect Studio in San Francisco.....1052
Trade News Brevities.....1060
"Trials of Fate, A" (Exhibitors' Mutual)..1080

United Artists Formally Organized.....1019

Vitagraph Engages Ince.....1058

"Where the West Begins" (Pathe).....1081
Williams Hits Out from Shoulder.....1009
Wilson Ideas form Picture's Basis.....1051
Woods, Frank E., Organizing Fund for Photoplayers.....1056

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES

National Carbon Co.....1121
Speer Carbon Co.....1119

ELECTRICAL & MECH. EQUIPMENT

Amusement Supply Co.....1107
Electric Compositor Co.....1110
Flexlume Sign Co.....1119
Hertner Elec Co.....1109
Porter, B. F.....1107
Reynolds Elec. Co.....1109
Typhoon Fan Co.....1109
Universal Motor Co.....1110
Westinghouse Lamp Co.....1113

MFRS. OF INDUSTRIAL PICTURES

Duhem M. P. Co.....1108
Empire City Film Lab.....1121
Erbograph Co.....1117
Evans Film Mfg. Co.....1110
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.....1122

MFRS OF MOVING PICTURES

Artco Prod., Inc.....994
Bull's Eye Film Corp.....970
Commitee on Public Information.....1000
Educational Films Corp.....988
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....963
Famous Players-Lasky Corp.....976-77
First Nat'l Ex. Circuit, Inc.....Colored Insert
Frank A. Keeney Pic. Corp.....1119
Frohman Amusement Corp.....975
Fox Film Corp.....1002-03
Graphic Film Corp.....995
Goldwyn Pictures Corp.....989-93
Haworth Pictures Corp.....1109
Harry Raver, Inc.....987
Independent Sales Corp.....969
Inter-Ocean Film Corp.....978
Jewel Productions.....966-67
Metro Pic. Corp.....984-85
Palmer Photoplay Corp.....1107
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....Colored Insert, 979-80
Perret Productions.....968
Robertson-Cole Co.....974
Select Pictures Corp.....983
Selznick Pictures Corp.....962
S. & L. Pictures.....Colored Insert
Triangle Distrib. Corp.....986
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....964-5
Virgina Pearson Photoplays Corp.....1001
Vitagraph Co.....971-73
W. H. Productions.....996-97
World Film Corp.....998-99
W. W. Hodkinson Corp.....981-82

MISCELLANEOUS

Automatic T. S. & C. R. Co.....1121
Bioscope, The.....1107
Cinema, The.....1110
Classified Page.....111-
Eastman Kodak Co.....1117
La Cinematografia Italiana.....1121
Moore, Wm. N.....1117
National Ticket Co.....1109
Publicity Clock Co.....1110
Solidhed Tack Co.....1112
"Theatre Opportunity".....1109
Williams, A. F.....1107

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS

Burke & James, Inc.....1110

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

American Photo Player Co.....1047
Astoria Publishing Co.....1047
Beynon, George W.....1045
Chalmers Publishing Co.....1047
Harms, Francis, Day & Hunter.....1047
Music Service Exchange.....1047
Professional School of Picture Playing.....1047
Seeburg Organ Co.....1047

LOBBY DISPLAYS

Newman Mfg. Co.....1112

PROJECTION MCH. MFRS.

Precision Mch. Co.....1123
Power, Nicholas, Co.....1124

PROJECTION SCREEN MFRS.

Minusa Cine Screen Co.....1117
Gold King Screen Co.....1109

The Advertisers Who Use the Columns of The Moving Picture World Represent the "Class" of the Industry

We Exercise a Strict Supervision Over the Business Announcements Which We Print
This Protects the Prospective Purchaser It Also Adds Force to Our Advertisers' Messages

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

LIEUTENANT BRUENNER OUT OF SERVICE

Biograph Official in Association with T. A. Persons Will Undertake Special Productions

LIEUTENANT H. H. BRUENNER, treasurer of the Biograph company, again is in "cits." He was discharged from the Chemical Warfare service February 10 after nine months in service. Lieutenant Bruenner already is in film harness again, feeling better physically than ever before and preparing for business activities greater in extent than any with which he personally before has been connected.

Associated with Thomas A. Persons, Lieutenant Bruenner has made from the ground up several productions that have been markedly successful. Under their general supervision or with their active co-operation there have been made in the Biograph studio "My Four Years In Germany," "Our Teddy," and the latest Doris Kenyon subject "Twilight"—and the lieutenant remarks incidentally that President Deitrich and Director Dawley have in this picture a subject that will be heard from, that it is "mighty pretty stuff."

It was due to Lieutenant Bruenner's long experience in the film world—seventeen years in the Biograph alone—that he saw the value to the exhibitor of the Gerard picture, that he was quick with advice when it was sought by B. Nichols of England. He informed him by cable that the story of the Ambassador's German experiences was an exceedingly good buy, and the film man lost no time in forwarding by wire the full amount of the purchase price. It may be remarked incidentally that results in England have justified in abundant form the prediction made to Mr. Nichols—"My Four Years in Germany" has cleaned up.

Mr. Parsons' experience in the film industry has matched that of his associate to a year—most of the time being with the Selig company, of which organization he was for a long time in charge of production. So it will be seen the two men are peculiarly qualified for the work they have in mind, and that is an extension of their present activities.

These plans include the production of three or four special productions each year, made on a scale that will satisfy the increasing demand for elaborate subjects. Coincident with this work the combination will be prepared to take on the supervision of independent subjects, from the script up or to take care of the technical or staging side for companies possessing an otherwise complete organization.

Chicago Managers and Operators Still Agreeing

ON February 4 the following agreement was entered into by the Allied Amusement Association of Chicago and Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., through their respective representatives, Messrs. Schaefer and Choynski for the exhibitors and Messrs. Reynolds, Green, Maloy and Johnston for the operators.

That the members of the A. A. A. will pay the operators of Local 110 all claims due them, as stipulated in the individual contracts signed by each exhibitor about January 11, and becoming operative Monday, January 13; also that the increase in wages for the weeks of January 13 and 20 shall be held in escrow pending the findings of an arbitration board, which shall be composed of three members of the A. A. A. and three members of the operators' union; also that in case a finding cannot be arrived at by this board a seventh person, not connected with either side, shall be chosen by the board to decide.

The arbiters are Messrs. Clifford, Havill and Reynolds for the operators, and Messrs. Choynski, Ascher and Levy for the A. A. A.

The committees comprising the arbitration board have decided to recommend to their respective organizations that the compensation for operators shall be 92½ cents per hour and that the seating tax be abolished.

Peter J. Schaefer, president of the A. A. A., left for Florida, Friday, February 7, and will not return for several weeks.

Making Things Lively for Thieves and Pirates

THE F. I. L. M. CLUB of New York has during the past few weeks been carrying on a quiet, but extensive campaign in an effort to wipe out the film thieves and pirates who have become such a great menace to the industry.

Several weeks ago the Universal feature "Fires of Youth" was stolen from one of the wagons of the Reel Delivery Co. Through various private investigations one of the officers of that company secured certain information as a result of which William Burns was arrested. I. E. Chadwick, President of the F. I. L. M. Club, took this matter in hand, and Magistrate Corrigan held Burns for the Grand Jury. Frank Dolan was apprehended for stealing a Paramount picture featuring Wallace Reid, and pleaded guilty. He was also held for the Grand Jury.

Various films which have not been returned have found their way frequently to such foreign countries as South America, Mexico and Cuba. A very prominent citizen of Philadelphia had a raid upon his place of business last Saturday and among other films found in his place for which no good reason could be given except the fact that he "bought films from everybody and paid $10 or $15 for the same" was the Fox production, "A Parisian Romance," and the seven-reel production of "Snow White" with Marguerite Clarke, which had been missing from the New York Paramount Exchange for some time. The Philadelphian was placed under arrest and is at the present time out on bail pending his trial.

Credit must be given to Mr. Chadwick, president of the F. I. L. M. Club, for his initiative in this matter in going after these thieves and pirates who have proved such a great detriment to the industry.

Lose Heavily Through "Bicycling" of Film

HARRY SCOTT, Detroit manager of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, releasing through the Madison Film Exchange, points out that Detroit film exchanges sustain a loss of not less than $25,000 annually in rentals through the "bicycling" of film.

Not less than twelve distinct cases of just this sort of thing were uncovered by Mr. Scott. He has consulted two of the leading attorneys of the state, who contend that exhibitors can be prosecuted in the civil court for financial revenue, and also in the criminal court for embezzlement, as they say it is nothing more or less than embezzlement to take an extra day when the contract calls for a specified number of days.

Scott to Start Action.

Mr. Scott expects to start proceedings shortly against the offending exhibitors, not so much for the financial revenue, but because he wants to make an example of one or two in order to put a stop to the practice. "This sort of thing is what makes the exchanges take such drastic methods," said Mr. Scott, "and it is the old story of the good exhibitor suffering with the bad. Still, how are you going to discriminate? You send a man a film as per his contract and trust to his honesty. He abuses it. It may be a year before the exchange finds it out. We just had cases against two of the biggest exhibitors in the state who had resorted to stealing extra days, and when questioned put the blame on the managers."

The Detroit Board of Motion Picture Exchange Managers expect to get right behind the movement and will have several investigators through the state checking up. The secretary has been instructed to waste no time, but immediately to bring legal action against any violators.

ASSOCIATION IS BUSY ON CENSORSHIP

State Organizations Are To Be Allied in Great Nation-Wide Co-Operative Movement

GABRIEL L. HESS, chairman of the Censorship Committee of the N. A. M. P. I., is meeting with an enthusiastic response from the exhibitors of the country in his efforts to organize a committee nation-wide in extent to battle all censorship legislation wherever it may appear throughout the country. In response to telegrams that have been sent out requesting the prominent exhibitors in the forty-eight states to organize state committees to keep in touch with the censorship situation twenty-nine acceptances have been received.

Replies have been received to the telegrams that were sent to exhibitors in the other states, and in cases where there has existed an inability to serve as chairman of these committees the exhibitor to whom the telegram was addressed has suggested other exhibitors to undertake the work. Chairman Hess is now in telegraphic communication with these gentlemen and expects that he will have his entire national committee organized in the near future.

As soon as the organization of this committee has been completed active work will be inaugurated in those states in which there is a danger of censorship during the present session of the various legislatures. The condition throughout the country this year is in far better shape than at the same time last year. Then censorship measures had been introduced into the legislatures of thirty-three states.

Good Work by Griffith's Men.

All of these were killed as a result of the efforts of the work of the Censorship Committee of the Association last year under the chairmanship of D. W. Griffith. A canvass of the entire country this year which has just been completed by the Association Committee shows that there are only six states in which censorship measures have been introduced into the legislatures thus far.

The states in question are: Colorado, one bill; Indiana, two bills; Massachusetts, one bill; Nebraska, one bill; North Carolina, one bill, and New York, one bill. The situation is being watched very closely and at the right and proper time the necessary measures will be undertaken.

Programs Show Photos of Fox Stars.

Combining the house program and the letter-to-patrons form of advertising, each of the chain of Michigan theatres owned by the Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company is issuing an exceptionally attractive folder to its patrons.

This folder, printed on heavy colored paper, is five by nine inches, and is folded into three panels. In the center panel is the photograph of one of the theatre's favorite stars—William Farnum, Gladys Brockwell, Tom Mix, or any other star who has a big following in the town.

The coming attractions are listed in the two other panels, and on the other side of the folder is given data regarding prices, time of performance and other information for patrons.

An Inventive Small-Town Showman.

Down in Electra, Texas, Manager E. N. Collins, of the Liberty Theatre, invented a novel method of attracting attention to Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms" when that attraction played his house. The scheme involved a piece of compo board, a three sheet cut-out, an old motor, a speed control and a motor-driven attachment from an old Power machine.

By this method Chaplin was made to "shoulder arms" regularly and with precision, making what Manager Collins declares was the most effective display he has ever used. No doubt Mr. Collins will supply his fellow exhibitors with detailed descriptions in the event they would like to adopt the "ballyhoo" for their own uses.

The Educational Films Will Distribute Hearst Cartoons

ANNOUNCEMENT is made in a bulletin issued by E. W. Hammons, president of the Educational Films Corporation, that all of the Hearst cartoons will henceforth be distributed by the Educational corporation. This transaction was consummated the early part of last week. The deal involves the distribution of "The Shenanigan Kids," "Judge Rumhauser" and the "Happy Hooligan" cartoons, together with a three-hundred-foot novelty film, the titles of which will be written by one of America's foremost writers of humor.

E. W. Hammons.

The Educational Films Corporation had, up to the time of the outbreak of Spanish influenza, been distributing the International's animated cartoons with great success; but when the situation reached a critical stage the Educational ceased releasing these cartoons, and subsequently the International Film Service, Inc., stopped making them.

When the danger period had passed the International forces renewed making these cartoons, and let the Educational Films Corporation handle the cartoons.

"There were several reasons for this step. One reason was because the Educational Films Corporation had shown themselves capable of handling the Hearst cartoons before. Another reason was because the Educational Films Corporation had earned a national reputation as specialists in the distribution of short subjects. For example, the Robert Bruce Scenics and the other films of an educational nature which they are at present releasing are concrete evidence of the fulfillment of their policy.

In connection with the distribution of the Hearst cartoons the Educational has opened branch offices throughout the country, and will henceforth release these cartoons in conjunction with its other product through its own exchanges. It will not release its pictures on the states right plan, but through the Educational Distributing Corporation, which now operates exchanges in every important film center in the country.

Minneapolis Film Bodies to Fight Adverse Legislation

THE Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, Inc., the Theatrical Protective League, and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest have united in a campaign against proposed legislation which, if enacted, would seriously impair the moving picture industry in that territory.

Adverse measures which have already been "killed" through the combined efforts of these organizations include a bill framed by the labor element which would compel everyone in Minnesota to rest on the Sabbath, and another measure barring all children under 16 years of age from theatres.

The moving picture men are still fighting bills providing for state censorship of moving pictures, and for Sunday closing of theatres, now before the Minnesota Legislature. They also made a strong fight against the 5 per cent. for rental tax.

At a joint meeting of the legislative committees of the three organizations held recently, a definite program of action was outlined. It was decided to handle jointly all matters of a legislative nature and that a committee of one with an alternate be appointed by each of the respective boards to represent his organization. Delegates appointed were Al Steffes, Benjamin Friedman and Theodore L. Hays.

The three committees, it was agreed, will meet once a week and discuss all legislative matters bearing on the moving picture business. Permanent officers to preside at these meetings were elected as follows: President, Benjamin Friedman, and secretary, Fred S. Meyer.

Goldwyn Club to Dance.

The Goldwyn Club, comprising members of the home office staff and branches of Goldwyn Distributing Corporation throughout the country, will have a masquerade dance in the Winter Garden of the Hotel McAlpin Saturday night, February 15. The entertainment committee, composed of John G. Rohlfs, president of the club; Benjamin P. Schoenfein, Lucien E. Blumenfeld and Elizabeth Klein, has arranged a number of novelties. Prizes will be awarded for costumes adjudged the best.

The dance is the second social affair of the club.

WILLIAMS HITS OUT FROM SHOULDER

Manager of First National Pays Respects to Those Whom He Charges Would Create a Monopoly—Praises Schwalbe for His Adherence to Circuit Associates

ORGANIZATION politics, with its attempts to influence individuals through coercion, unfair tactics employed in efforts to create monopolies, and the obvious but vaguely recognized necessity for individual effort in production, are among the subjects of unusual exhibitor interest which were discussed by J. D. Williams, manager of First National Exhibitors' Circuit, in an interview with Moving Picture World shortly after his return to New York from the meeting of circuit directors in Los Angeles.

Business Can't Be Dominated.

"An effort was made last year to corner the motion picture industry," said Mr. Williams, "and it failed. To any one who investigates the causes of that failure it will become a conviction that the business never can be dominated by an individual or by any one group of individuals. In the last twelve months First National has succeeded in breaking up a trust. We did it with an open market policy, which put every production on an individual merit basis with our members; and it gave to capable producers an outlet, from which they have received financial returns exactly in proportion to the value of their products to exhibitors.

First National Opposed to Trust.

"We are absolutely opposed to a trust of any character or description. In view of the progress First National has made with methods that are equitable not only to exhibitors but to the sources from which comes the entertainment they put on their screens, it was only natural, I presume, in view of numerous precedents, for a number of organizations and individuals to throw the weight of their carefully advertised honor and sincerity into the balance to discredit First National by false insinuations and deliberate misstatements.

"What started the fuss in Los Angeles? Why did Miss Pickford, Mr. Chaplin, Mr. Fairbanks, Mr. Griffith and Mr. Hart seek protection in the United Artists' Distributing Company? Primarily, it was because they had been warned from seemingly authentic and reliable sources that First National intended to merge with one or more other big organizations. Overtures looking to an amalgamation were made to First National several months ago. We listened to the proposals, which were immediately referred to the circuit members. Their unanimous opinion was that First National's open market policy had nothing in common with the distribution methods of the concerns from which came the suggestions for a merger. Circuit members agreed that First National would succeed or fail without help or handicaps from any other organization.

"But in Los Angeles much capital was made of the fact that merger offers had been made to First National. It was declared by individuals whose integrity should be above reproach that in our contracts with stars we were acting in secret concert with other organizations to create another monopoly.

Gives Stars Credit.

"Do you blame the stars? Not a bit. They deserve a great measure of credit from every exhibitor for the allegiance they manifested to fair treatment in their creation of a weapon of defense against the very thing over which they had been aroused by deliberately false statements. They did not lose a moment in declaring themselves unequivocally for First National's policy of an open market or nothing. Today exhibitors realize as never before the value to them of an open market, and they should be truly appreciative for the way

J. D. Williams.
Manager First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

the stars responded when it was made to appear that this open market principle was threatened.

"We denied the reports of a merger, but the subtle seeds of suspicion had been planted, and as I look back now upon the result I cannot conceive of any action the leaders in production genius could have taken which would constitute a stronger or more emphatic indorsement of the principles of legitimate business practice advocated by First National.

Says Rumors Were Aimed at Circuit.

"The merger rumors were aimed to prevent First National from consummating contracts with other stars. Whoever did the aiming had defective mental vision. He or they missed the target by yards."

"What do you think of Mr. McAdoo's affiliation with the United Artists?" the interviewer asked.

"It leads me to believe that the stars said to each other: 'We are declared for independence in our production work, and we want our pictures to be released on their merits, unhandicapped by the burdens of the old order of exchange methods. We will be sought by persons who hide ulterior motives beneath masks of convincing plausibility. We are for the new era of equity in relationship between the producers and exhibitors. We are told that the one organization which we believed could accomplish this for us is considering an alliance with the old regime; therefore we will not accept the advice or counsel of this regime's patrons. We will get one of the shrewdest minds we can find to help us clarify the atmosphere and hew a straight course.'

"And so they asked Mr. McAdoo to represent them.

A Promise for Mr. McAdoo.

"If he begins an investigation of film conditions in New York City he will find national politics an angel of purity by comparison with the methods of many of the leading lights in our industry. He will find organization politics reigning to the subjugation of the best interests of many concerns and individuals. He will find that the question is rarely 'What can we do to further the interests of our producers and the exhibitors, who are our customers?' Instead it is 'What do I get out of it and will So-and-So stand with me to slip it over on these poor dubs we have hooked?'

Cites Organization Politics.

"Organization politics was attempted among certain members of First National. We have just had a most illuminating experience with it. Mr. Schwalbe, our secretary and treasurer, was the 'goat.' Because he advocated the First National policy and contributed to its success, thereby helping in the revelations to stars, producers and exhibitors of the unfairness of a competing system, he was literally impeached by his associates in another enterprise. He was declared guilty of lese majeste. There were inducements for him to swerve, in but a slight degree, from First National's purpose, but he remained loyal to First National, and every one of our directors and members are intensely proud of his staunchness and his allegiance to them as individuals and as a unit.

Says Schwalbe Was Right.

"He is in the right, and the consequence is that it is going to be comparatively easy for him to win out.

"First National never will be dominated by any moneyed clique. There never will be a time when two or three individuals can presume to dictate our activities because they control finances. There are twenty-six financial units in First National, most of whom are just as strong and capable in resources as any of the others. These twenty-six members elect a board of directors, in which is vested the executive control of the organization.

"One-man domination in an organization in the motion picture business is extremely dangerous. The temptations are without precedent. But an organization that is built up around a group of capable men, all answerable to each other and all playing fairly and squarely, is the kind of organization that this industry needs. The effect it would have abroad would be phenomenal entirely apart from its value in the domestic market. The business needs a J. P. Morgan & Company, and First National is not in the least hesitant in declaring that it hopes sooner or later to justify this appellation through the consistent practice of fairness, honesty, honorable dealing and loyalty to the cause of equity between the exhibitors, who own it, and the stars and producers, with whom it holds contracts.

Denies Statement of Mastbaum.

"Competing interests have charged time and again that First National is a producing company. Mr. Jules E. Mastbaum, of the Peerless Feature Film Exchange of Philadelphia, in which Mr. Schwalbe is a stockholder, implied in an interview in the February 15 issue of Moving Picture World that First National is about to enter the producing field, if it has not already done so. It is subtly suggested as the reason for the change in the presidency of the company that Mr. Schwalbe's office with First National would indirectly make the Peerless a party to any production activity by the circuit.

"There is not an officer or a director or a stockholder in the Peerless Exchange, whether they are in Philadelphia or New York, who does not know to a certainty that this intimation is unfounded in fact and intended to cover the real reason for the action which deposed Mr. Schwalbe as president. The actual fact is that First National is moving too fast along popular lines to suit interests associated with Mr. Schwalbe in the Peerless, and that a discredit of this kind, after all means of winning him over had failed, might result in difficulties for him with First National members and directors. The real result was another fiasco, of equal thoroughness with the fiasco that resulted in Los Angeles.

Circuit Is an Exhibitor.

"If First National had any interests in the producing field it most certainly would exercise the perogative of providing executive representation for itself in the studios. But we have no more to say about what Miss Pickford, Mr. Chaplin, Mr. Mayer or Mr. Schenck shall or shall not do as producers than has the editor of Moving Picture World.

"Our only affiliation or combination of interest with them are in our contracts for the distribution of their pictures; and I want to emphasize this fact because it has been repeatedly stated, in attempts to create false impressions among exhibitors about First National, that the circuit produces as well as exhibits pictures. It does only the latter.

"The stars and producers with whom we have contracts for pictures know what our standards of quality are. They know that they must produce money-makers. They know they have the time and latitude to attain this result. But any one or all of them could and would tell us to mind our own business if we endeavored to interfere with them as producers. We have no more rights in their studios, no more reason for attempting to tell them how to make pictures than they would have for telling Mr. Kunsky or Mr. Lieber or any other franchise holder how to conduct their theatres.

Future Rests with Individuals.

"We believe implicitly in encouraging the individual stars and producers. The future of the industry rests with them. Such men as Mr. Griffith, Mr. Chaplin, Mr. Mayer and Mr. Schenck; such notable feminine stars as Miss Pickford, are bound to give to the screen a better product when it is made by them as individuals, responsible to no one but themselves, than they could possibly achieve working as a unit under the producing control of any one organization, which, in effect, is nothing less than an ambitious attempt at monopoly.

"Individual time, individual effort, individual interest, personal responsibility, are now recognized essentials to quality pictures. Rushing to meet release dates, sacrificing quality to quantity, meeting the studio dictates of a machine-made production policy have made the industry stand still in the last year.

"Take the ten big successes of the recent season. They were made by as many different producers and stars, working as individuals, without machine regulation. How many program productions stand out as truly special attractions?

"The open market is the acid test of ability, and the exhibitors are slowly but surely forcing every producing and distributing concern to adopt the policy of letting every release stand alone on its own merits as a box-office attraction. When a little more progress in this direction is made we will have a business, not a plaything."

Adverse Legislation Faces California Film Industry

THE California legislature, now in session, is commencing to make trouble for the film trade, and several measures have been introduced that would be a menace to the business if adopted. These measures were gone into quite fully at a special meeting of the United Motion Picture Industries of Northern California held in the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, on Jan. 31, and attended by leading film exchangemen and exhibitors.

The proposed Sunday closing measure promises to bring about a lively battle in the legislative halls, and while amusements are on the favored list exhibitors are united in their opposition to the bill, since it is already being rumored that in case it is adopted theatres will be the next to receive attention. There is also a measure that makes it unlawful for a theatre owner to sell a ticket unless there is a seat in the house ready for a patron. Another measure prohibits the exhibition of battle scenes, unless they be real, while another is directed against the showing of pictures that may arouse race hatred. All of these are opposed by the film trade, and the necessary steps will be taken to induce the legislature to reject them.

Handsome Theatre Planned by Hildingers of Trenton

THE Hildinger Enterprises of Trenton, N. J., have recently completed the purchase of a block of properties from 228 to 238 East State street in that city, and have already prepared plans for the erection of one of the finest theatres in the country.

The property has a frontage of 82 feet on State street with a depth of 142 feet running to Wood place. Present plans call for the erection of a five-story brick building, with a basement that can be used for some commercial purpose. The theatre itself will have a seating capacity of 3,000. Above the theatre will be a ballroom, while the third floor will be occupied by the offices of the company.

Among the many innovations to be introduced are noted the ventilation system, insuring a complete change of air every two minutes, with a register beneath each seat; the mezzanine floor, which promises to be one of the beauty spots of the building, with its rest rooms, and a marble balustrade opening to the main floor; and the colored lighting effects.

The policy of the house will be feature photoplays run with the musical programs of a high class symphony orchestra and a specially constructed pipe organ, similar in design to that of the Auditorium, Ocean Grove.

Milwaukee's White House Features Its Ventilation

THE White House Theatre, Milwaukee, advertising itself as "The House That's Different," not only has a big "different" ventilating system, in fact the only one of its kind, but also a manager who knows how to advertise the virtues of his theatre.

Strange, but true, the name of the White House's manager is not Wilson or even Woodrow, but O. L. Meister. Not content with getting out attractive postcards showing a view of his theatre, and giving a description of its ventilating system, Mr. Meister has a one-reeler which he runs at every performance featuring himself in a reel exposition of the advantage of his system.

In this picture he is seen pointing out the various parts of the theatre, which has a seating capacity of 2,000. Judging from the various pictures which Mr. Meister showed to Nat Bregstein, traveling representative of the Moving Picture World, one of them revealing him in a stunt with Chaplin and another with Mabel Normand, he is an old acquaintance of the stars. He confessed to having known them on the Coast where he was an exhibitor.

The White House ventilating system delivers per minute 95,000 cubic feet of pure fresh air. Should Mr. Meister want a name for his one-reeler, "Ventilation," a la "Infatuation," "Going Up," "The White House Air-Loom" are a few suggestions.

The World's Classified Advertising section is a sure means to quick communication between the man who would sell and the man who wants to buy. Moving picture accessories are quickly disposed of; theatres sold and rented; many wants are weekly supplied through this excellent medium.

HOOSIERS ARGUE FOR SUNDAY SHOWS

Legislative Committees Hold Joint Hearing On Proposed Law Permitting Picture Shows to Open Seven Days a Week with Sunday Hours Restricted

BEFORE a crowd that packed the Senate chamber to capacity, supporters of the measure to legalize the operation of motion picture theatres in Indiana on Sunday after 1:30 p. m., practically smothered with arguments the opposition at a public hearing before a joint meeting of the rights and privileges committee of the Senate and House on Thursday night, February 6. The exhibitors are well satisfied with the success of the hearing and hope the committee will base their report on the result of the facts then brought out.

As an answer to the petitions of the various church organizations and Sunday schools of the state, which have been pouring in the Indiana General Assembly, protesting against the bill, the motion picture exhibitors carried into the Senate chamber five big bushel baskets of cards signed by approximately 125,000 persons favoring the operation of Sunday shows, and placed them before the committee.

State Exhibitors Wide Awake.

In opening for those advocating the passage of the bill, S. Barrett McCormick, managing director of the Circle Theatre, read an open letter to the Legislature from the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, reviewing the status of the motion picture theatre in the state, the nation and the world. In the letter he recited the fact that there are 16,000 such shows in the United States to which "fathers, mothers and children turn for rest, recreation and amusement."

Mr. McCormick pointed out that the motion picture theatre of today is the most formidable enemy of Bolshevism and the only effective agent of the United States in Russia, where many hundreds of thousands of people, who cannot read, are reached through the medium of the films. Work of the motion picture industry in aiding war work, the Red Cross drives, food conservation and all other patriotic activities were referred to briefly. Mention was also made of the fact that before the United States troops were able to reach France motion picture films, showing activities and preparations here, were used to keep up the morale of the British, French and allied troops.

As evidence of the demand for Sunday motion picture shows in Indiana, Mr. McCormick's letter stated that 80,000 people attend the motion picture theatres in Indianapolis every Sunday and that in other cities of the state where shows are open on Sunday the attendance on that day is nearly 50 per cent. of the total attendance for the entire week.

The Opposition Speaks Up.

T. C. Day, president of the Church Federation of Indianapolis, opened the case for the opponents of the bill, saying that he had listened to Mr. McCormick's "rhapsody" in regard to the shows and that he was willing to admit many of the things said about them. The vital point about the proposed legislation was not touched, he thought, and that was that whereas at present some thirty-eight cities and towns in the state have permitted Sunday shows, the pending bill would permit such exhibitions to be forced on all the other small towns of the state that do not wish them.

He also objected strenuously to the fact that there is no provision for a censorship and no assurance that the pictures shown on Sunday would be educational or moral.

Charles C. Pettijohn.

Objection was made to the measure also as a discrimination in that it selected a certain class of amusements and proposed to let that class only operate on Sunday with the sanction of the law.

Mr. Day made the point that the argument was not against the picture show itself, which he believed can do a great deal of good. Any educational force, he said, could educate in the wrong way as well as the right one, and he added that the educated criminal was more dangerous than the ignorant one. Said Rev. Mr. Day: "Once in a while there are people so attacked with moral stabisms that they can't see the meaning of a thing of this kind.

The Rev. Mr. Day was followed by the Rev. F. S. C. Wicks, pastor of the All Souls Unitarian Church, of Indianapolis, who spoke in favor of the Sunday shows. The Rev. Mr. Wicks took issue with Rev. Mr. Day on his statement that only those in favor of the bill are those who are financially interested in it. Pointing to the picture show petitions in the baskets, he said:

Minister Defends Sunday Shows.

"I point here to the signature of 125,000 citizens of the state of Indiana who are in favor of Sunday motion picture shows and say they are not financially interested in them."

The Rev. Mr. Wicks said that he saw no more objection to a good show Sunday than to a good show during the week. He said he takes this stand because it "looks toward an American Sabbath," adding: "And I hold that the Americanized Sabbath is one on which each is privileged to spend the day as he pleases as long as he does not infringe on the rights of others."

Upholding An American Sabbath.

Under the laws, he continued, there was plenty of legal amusements for each person on Sunday—golf, tennis, baseball and other games, trips in autos to the country and other recreations. He himself had friends who take him to the country when he wished, but these were advantages the majority of his fellow-citizens did not have, he said, and for them the Sunday motion picture show is a source of real recreation. The very fact that 80,000 attended such shows in Indianapolis on Sunday was proof, he said, that the Sunday picture show has the approval of the people.

"I depreciate the attitude taken by some ministers and some churches in opposition to such amusement," he continued, "because I do not believe any minister is entitled to speak for all the churches in a matter of this kind."

Makes Argument for Censorship.

D. B. Johnson, superintendent of the Indiana State Civic Union, the organization which is back of the censorship bill pending in both houses of the Legislature, who spoke next, said he thought it unmanly to shift the burden in regard to the Sunday matter to the small towns of the state, turning loose on them the "aggregation of wealth" of the motion picture interests. He said unclean pictures were shown because there is a demand for them and cited this fact as a plea for the censorship bill.

Charles C. Pettijohn, former Indianapolis lawyer, who is now general counsel for the Affiliated Mutual Company, figuratively "took the hide off" of Johnson for an article printed in the Sovereign Citizen, a paper which Johnson edits, in regard to the bill before the last Legislature.

Mr. Pettijohn quoted from the article, which he said reflected not only on him but on the members of the last House and Senate, some of whom are in the present general assembly. He urged that men like Johnson should not be permitted to make veiled charges of the kind about the use of money and then hide behind the phrases "it is said," "it is common talk," "it is reported" and other similar phraseology. He read one excerpt where it was said the picture show men had hired an unscrupulous attorney, paying him $1,000

Pettijohn Warms Things Up.

"That's me," said Mr. Pettijhon, and he then proceeded to say that if the things which Johnson said about the motion picture men are true, they should not be permitted to come before the Legislature and ask for anything. Nor, said he, should the legislators referred to be permitted to hold their seats. The whole matter, he said, should not go unchallenged.

Getting to the argument of the motion picture show question, he said there were more than 600 churches in the country that have film exhibitions for Sunday service. Seeing the Rev. Morton C. Pearson in the audience, Mr. Pettijohn referred to him as one who enjoyed pictures and said he thought he had seen him at the Sunday shows. The Rev Mr. Pearson, who is head of the Indianapolis Church Federation, said he was mistaken. Pettijohn said he might have been mistaken as to the Sunday part of it but he was sure he had seen the Rev. Mr. Pearson much interested in pictures. He might have been investigating them, he added, "but jurors do not usually applaud the evidence."

In closing Mr. Pettijohn said the motion picture shows had done one big thing and that was that they had kept out of politics. He predicted that the church would need the motion picture industry badly in the next year or so and that the motion picture industry and the church should work hand in hand against Bolshevism.

The Rev. E. L. Williams, executive secretary of the Indiana Church Federation, said he agreed to the educational value of motion picture shows and that he somtimes went to the Circle Theatre during the week. He said, however, he thought the bill gave special rights and privileges to one class. If there was such a feeling for the laboring men on the part of the exhibitors, he asked why the shows were not run free for them on Sunday.

"Cream" and Skim-milk" Petitioners.

Signatures in favor of the bill should not be measured by the bulk, he said, as he had a petition, with only 30,000 names, against the shows and said the signers of it represented "the cream of the people of Indiana." This remark brought forth severe rebukes from all the other speakers and did more than any other thing to kill what little argument against the Sunday opening that the opposition had presented.

Lieutenant Sneed, an army officer from the aviation repair depot at the Indianapolis motor speedway, said he had never touched a drop of intoxicating liquor in his life and had not missed going to church on Sunday for the last twenty-seven years, but that he desired to be included in the "cream" in the baskets containing the petitions for the operation of Sunday shows. He said that if the men overseas were asked about the matter he believed every one of them would vote for Sunday shows.

Michael Butler, of the E. C. Atkins manufacturing plant, and Walter Harding, of the G. & J. Tire Company, told of the workingmen's desire for Sunday motion picture shows. Butler said that if the Sunday shows were closed people would go to the unclean places which have never been cleaned up. Harding said the welfare workers at his plant had told him of the unrest over the prospect of closing Sunday shows. More than 90 per cent. of the employes of his plant, he said, are for Sunday motion pictures.

Soldiers Favor Sunday Shows.

Captain King, of the quartermaster's corps, spoke for the Sunday shows, saying the men in the Service had no other time to attend the exhibitions. He said he and the members of his family are for Sunday shows and wished to be included in the "cream" represented in the baskets of petitions favoring the shows rather than the so-called "cream" referred to by the minister.

Representative Decker, of Evansville, Ind., told of the storm of protests that arose at Evansville when Mayor Bosse announced that he would close the motion picture shows on Sunday and said that he considered the 25,000 persons who protested "just as good cream as ever came from mother milk."

"I think the Sunday motion picture is something which the majority of the people want," continued Mr. Decker, "and I hope they get it. Let those who are not in favor of Sunday shows go to church or remain away from the shows, but do not let them take away that pleasure from those who like to go."

Opponents Close Their Case.

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, of Upland, Ind., of the Legislative Council of Indiana Women, and Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of the same organization, closed for the opponents of the Sunday show measure. Both admitted the picture shows had done patriotic work, but said that banks and stores had also aided and were not asking a reward that they be permitted to open on Sunday. Mrs. White expressed doubts as to the constitutionality of the bill.

At the close of the presentation of the case by both sides opportunity was afforded for questions to be asked. Representative Johnson, minister-lecturer from Gas City, inquired of the motion picture theatre men's attorneys as to the provisions of the pending bill. He asked why, if the measure provided for opening at 1:30 o'clock p. m. in order to avoid conflict with the morning church services, similar provision had not been made for not interfering with the evening church services.

Mr. Pettijhon said that the bill as it is drafted enables those who wish to go to church on Sunday morning or Sunday night to go to the picture shows in the afternoon and those who go to church in the morning and the afternoon can go to the show on Sunday night.

Backs Rule of the Majority.

Representative Johnson then asked what provision there was in case the people of a town do not wish picture shows, but the city officials did not heed their wishes. He asked whether there was any provision for a remonstrance. Martin Hugg, one of the attorneys, answered this by the statement that he could conceive of no situation where the people would so completely lose control of their officials.

"If the majority of the people were against the shows," he added in answer to a further question, "there would not be any Sunday motion picture shows, for there would not be enough people there to patronize them."

Blackton Film on Transports.

Signal recognition of the value of J. Stuart Blackton's "The Common Cause" has just been accorded that Vitagraph release by the United States Government. The picture has been placed on transports bearing returning United States soldiers and in the army camps and cantonments throughout the country on special instructions from General Munson, head of the Morale Division of the General Staff, United States Army.

Drastic Fire Rules for Pittsburgh Film Exchanges

FOLLOWING is a series of rules goving the conduct of tenants and others while in the Film Building at 938-940 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh. These have been prepared in order to prevent a repetition of the disaster, such as occurred at the Sauer Building, 804 Penn avenue, recently, in which ten persons lost their lives.

At 938-40 Penn avenue, there is a special officer present in the building at all times in order to enforce the rules, and any serious violations will not only mean summary dismissal for the employes, but arrest also.

1—Positively no smoking in any part of the entire building.

2—If you must carry matches, carry safety matches only.

3—All films must be carried in metal cases. Carrying of films in paper will not be permitted; also the carrying of films from floor to floor open, or wrapped in paper, is positively prohibited in this building.

4—No one but employes will be allowed in the film, shipping, or poster rooms of any of the Exchanges in this building.

5—All films must be kept in the vaults or metal containers, and only films going through the process of examination will be allowed on the inspection table at any time. This rule applies also to the shipping department.

6—The vault doors must be kept closed at all times.

7—Sprinkler system throughout the building must be kept clear at all times, so as to give each sprinkler head a wide range. Under no circumstances must material of any kind be piled over, close to, or near the sprinkler piping.

8—Each and every floor must be kept clear and free of all waste paper, rubbish, etc., at all times. For this material metal cans must be provided.

9—Under no circumstances must any aisle or window leading to a fire escape on the outside be obstructed.

10—Fire extinguishers must be provided, as called for by the city ordinance governing film exchanges.

11—In addition to the above rules the tenants, patrons, etc., are subject to and must comply with the law, as contained in the city ordinance governing film exchanges.

12—Those violating these rules and regulations may be put to considerable inconvenience and probably arrest, with severe penalty attached.

Lubin Goes to Florida to Consult with Sawyer

HERBERT LUBIN left New York Feb. 10 for Miami, Fla. He will join Arthur H. Sawyer at the Southern resort for the double purpose of holding a series of conferences relative to their S-L Production "Virtuous Men," and to recuperate from a recent siege of illness. Both executives of the S-L Production organization have undergone the strain of a severe illness during the past two months. During their stay at the Florida health resort they will complete the final details of the original exploitation and selling campaign which will mark the initial presentation of the E. K. Lincoln starring vehicle. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin will also consummate arrangements for the organization of two new production companies to operate under the now firmly established S-L banner.

While in Miami Mr. Sawyer has been at work for several weeks on the adaptation of the famous stage success which has been recently purchased as the second "Ralph Ince Film Attraction" in which E. K. Lincoln is to star. Upon the arrival of his partner, the finishing touches will be put to the script, in order that Ralph Ince may place the story in production within the course of the next few weeks.

FRANCES MARION RETURNS TO TASK

Scenarist for Famous Players-Lasky Back from Western Front, Where She Went to Do Government Picture Showing Woman's Activities in World War

NOT often is it given to mere man that he should sit within arms-length of a young woman—and pretty, too—who is so versatile in her financial attainments that she may draw salary at the rate of $50,000 a year one moment and be paid, in the next, eight cents a month, plus a slight fraction, for the same talents. In the pleasantest of "talks" with Frances Marion, just back from the war zone, this matter of money was the most fascinating item.

The interviewer was eager to suffer the tantalizing agony of hearing from her own lips that Famous Players-Lasky were entering her upon a contract that would let her bank, if not utterly salvage, five thousand meg for a twelvemonth. While reference to Miss Marion's wages was the last note in the conversation, the reporter carried away the financial thought above the more necessary (to the paper) details of what her trip abroad was likely to do for pictures.

"Fidgeting" in Strange Company.

We had heard so much about the salary of players; of the cost of sets; the expense of journeying players to far-flung locations; of the oodles of postage wasted in sending picture showmen circular letters and mimeographed sales-talks to be thrown, unopened, into the waste-basket that we had never given heed to the expense of providing just the right kind of scenarios to fit the impulse of the actor, the call of the theatre manager and the demand of the ultimate consumer. Here was a new or, at least, not deeply pondered or heavily press agented angle to the high cost of film production.

Right beside us, then, was the attractive lassie with the $50,000 brain! There's a shipping order for you—to not get frustrated or embarrassed and to act as though eight cent a month women were no more uncommon around these corners than are the $50,000 a year sort!

Strapped under a Tom Brown belt, last thing on in the natty uniform of military correctness that women scenarists wear while on the firing line for the Committee on Public Information, Miss Marion looked like her Famous Players-Lasky salary. She was indeed a dashing eye-full. The cap she wore made her look utterly unlike any conductorette who ever drove passengers away from surface cars or made men flee the subway in anguish of mind.

War Scenes Too Great for Words.

"The other interviewers have asked me, and I suppose you will," said Miss Marion by way of making the World reporter feel natural like; "the others have asked me if I found any material for scenarios on the Western front. I'll tell you that I didn't—for the vastness, the immensity, the awfulness of what I saw as I kept moving along with the front line engagements was utterly beyond my powers of comprehension, let alone my ability to describe or scenarioize."

We had intended to ask her just that, but the other interviewers who had preceded us on Pete Smith's schedule of "talks with Miss Marion" are thus shown to have saved us the trouble. But it seemed incredible that in the five months she had been away; five months in search of material to make, for the Government, a film which may be called "Woman's War Activities"—it seemed impossible that Miss Marion had not written something or other. Voicing this conviction brought the quick answer:

Miss Frances Marion.

"Oh, yes. I was writing every moment I could find a place where the paper didn't jiggle from the motion of a motor lorrie or where, of an evening, I could find even a flickering candle to light my pen's way. I kept even with the scenario for the Government picture; worked right along with Wesley Ruggles, to whom you must give every credit for his devotion to duty if you write anything about what I have done; and with Harry Thorpe, who used to be cameraman for Douglas Fairbanks—two men who braved every hardship, worked eagerly and with tireless energy to make "Woman's Activities" what the Government wants it to be. And besides I wrote a comedy for Jack Barrymore."

There you are! She wrote a comedy in all the swirl and rush and surge of "busting the line" and helping to crush the Hun! But to quote Miss Marion herself:

"It was the only way I could in the least bit soothe my nerves and quiet the fever of an appalling attack of 'surroundings.' I could not write of the war, of the agonies, of the bravery of our boys or the things they endured—I simply couldn't do it and so, for relief from the strain, my mind centered on comedy easier than anything else. What may come as an aftermath of all I saw and experienced is more than I can say right now—but when I think of all the scenes I witnessed I realize how helpless I am, or would be, in attempting to include any of it in a scenario."

How Women Helped to Win.

Miss Marion and Messrs. Ruggles and Thorpe went abroad to make a picture that will show how women—bless 'em—stuck to the doughboy from the time he landed on French soil until the armistice was signed, and how they are still sticking to him with Red Cross comforts, Salvation Army doughnuts and the general "mothering" the boys took such help from in strange lands under unprecedented circumstances.

We know of our own observation about all the women have done in war on this side—from knitting sox and mittens, sweaters and things to their work in munitions, their turn at the ambulance wheel, their motor-copping, canteening and ever and always their Salvation Armying; but it was Miss Marion's duty to show the "take up and go on" at the rail-head "over there."

"We were able to get about 50 per cent of what we wanted and needed to make the picture complete," said Miss Marion. "The signing of the armistice cut short our opportunities to make a picture that will be wholly satisfying. But what we got shows what women have done for our soldiers—women from America, and the women of France, England and other civilized European countries. When the Government gets ready to distribute the feature it will tell a story in photographic facts that Americans will be proud of. And don't forget," she repeated, "to say that Mr. Ruggles and Mr. Thorpe did just as much, or more, than I did to bring home what our Government sent us after."

First Among the First on the Rhine.

Of adventures this fine girl had plenty. Their recital belongs in other class publications than a moving picture trade paper; but it can do no harm or spoil any story to say that she was the first daughter of the U. S. A. to touch foot on German soil whence the Hun had fled. On a motor lorrie taking supplies and comfort to Yankee prisoners who had been released (literally turned loose) along the Rhine before the troops of occupation marched into command of the evacuated soil Miss Marion and her two fellow workers rode the truck into Metz, Treves, Luxemburg and right through to the Rhine at Coblenz.

And all the time Thorpe kept his camera going!

Back home on the Baltic, arriving last Saturday morning, Miss Marion is now off the "Dollar-a-year" assignment and begins at once to provide stories and scenarios for Elsie Ferguson, Billie Burke and Jack Barrymore.

"And my work means this," said Miss Marion. "Stories, working scenarios ready for the director to proceed; tarrying with him through every scene as it is filmed; editing and cutting the complete product and title-writing every bit of it."

HILL.

TELLS PLANS OF PEARSON PHOTOPLAYS

Star in Eight Pictures a Year, with High Class Stories and Fine Casts, Says President Meyer

IN the new offices at 112 West Forty-second street, New York, into which the Virginia Pearson Photoplays, Inc., have just moved, Louis Meyer, president of the company, and Walter R. Price, general manager, outlined the plans and policy of the company.

Mr. Meyer explained that during the coming year this company will produce eight features, and while Miss Pearson will be the star in each, it is not the purpose of the company to center activities upon the star alone, but in each production to observe the trinity of star, story and cast combined with excellence of production, as important factors of successful motion pictures.

Mr. Meyer points to the fact in illustrating his policy that the first production, which is being filmed at the Thanhouser Studios in New Rochelle, under the direction of John B. O'Brien, director general of the company, is "The Bishop's Emeralds," an adaptation of Houghton Townley's popular novel of the same title. The cast includes, in addition to Miss Pearson, Sheldon Lewis, Robert Broderick, Lucy Fox, Frank Kingsley, Walter Newman and Marcia Harris, all of whom have important roles, and attention is called to the fact that in one of the strongest scenes the star does not appear.

Four Stories Already Selected.

The first four stories already have been selected and work will be started within a short time on the second picture. The productions will all be clean society plays or strong dramas, in which Miss Pearson will get entirely away from the "vamp" roles in which she has previously appeared and be presented in more sympathetic characterizations. The stories will not all follow the same line, but will be varied in types.

Mr. Meyer further stated that Miss Pearson's work in the initial production will be a revelation to her many admirers, as also will be the acting of Sheldon Lewis, who appears in a straight role entirely unlike the various types of "serial villains" and heavies in which he has been seen for a number of years.

Further attention was called by Mr. Meyer to the fact that Virginia Pearson Photoplays, Inc., is not a stock selling proposition, but is a close corporation, the entire stock being concentrated in the possession of a few persons, a portion being held by himself and his brother, Paul, the two of whom for a number of years successfully have conducted the Theatre Magazine. Mr. Meyer states that the corporation is soundly financed and in position to make the entire series of eight pictures without depending on the disposal of one or two before commencing the others.

Promise Sound Business Methods.

There are no high salaried officers, and the same sound business policies will be followed as have been employed in the management of their magazine, and which, in fact, form the basis of all successful commercial enterprises. It is Mr. Meyer's contention that there is no reason why a motion picture undertaking which to be successful must sell its product to the public should not be conducted along the same general lines as have been employed in the building up of high class business enterprises.

Mr. Price, who warmly seconded Mr. Meyer in these statements, was formerly associated with the sales organization of Select Pictures, and prior to that was for a number of years identified with large commercial organizations. Both Mr. Meyer and Mr. Price reiterated that it will be the policy of the company at all times to keep the exhibitor and public in view, and to spare no expense in the production of high class features which will result in giving not only the greatest value to exhibitors for a minimum of outlay, but will also please and satisfy their audiences. SEWELL.

ELIMINATION OF RENTAL TAX SOUGHT

N. A. M. P. I. Waging Campaign to Have Additional Impost on Industry Stricken from Revenue Bill

THE motion picture industry has taken off its coat, rolled up its sleeves and is ready to fight to the last ditch for the elimination of the 5 per cent. film rental tax from the Revenue Bill as it was reported to the Senate and House of Representatives by the Conference Committee.

Even though the bill has been reported with the intention of forcing its passage as it now stands within a day or two has not dampened the ardor of the motion picture industry in its attempt to have section 905 eliminated from the measure. This is the section which contains the unjust and iniquitous five per cent. film rental tax.

Officials and representatives of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry who instituted the campaign for the elimination of this provision from the bill only two weeks ago, were in Washington last week, and it is their intention to follow the plan of campaign as that which has been instituted by the Newspaper and Periodical Owners' Association in regard to the postal zone tax for second class mail matter and the association of the retail merchants of the United States for the elimination of the semi-luxury tax.

It is expected that resolutions will be introduced into Congress immediately after the Revenue Bill is passed calling for the elimination of the sections covering these two latter forms of taxation. A resolution will be introduced at the same time calling for the elimination of section 905 containing the five per cent. rental tax.

Although this action on the part of the National Association relative to the introduction of this resolution is not being planned in co-operation with these two trades nevertheless it will be introduced co-incident with them so that it will receive the benefit of all the agitation that will be focused on the members of the House and Senate at that time.

The campaign which is being carried on by the National Association is under the active direction of Walter W. Irwin, chairman of the executive committee as well as chairman of the distributors' division.

Schnitzer to Tour Country.

Joseph I. Schnitzer, general sales manager of Universal exchanges, will leave New York February 18 for a tour of the country in the interest of Universal Special Attractions and short reel dramas. Mr. Schnitzer first will go from New York direct to Cleveland, where all of the Universal exchange managers in the Central States district will gather, with A. A. Schmidt, divisional manager, and Mr. Schnitzer for a sales conference.

Influenza Comes to an End in San Francisco Territory

THE influenza epidemic has come to an abrupt end in the territory covered by San Francisco film exchanges and most picture houses are again in operation. The wearing of gauze masks has been done away with and people are again flocking to amusement places. In this city the business of the downtown houses is almost normal again, while steady gains are being made in the suburban theatres.

Film salesmen who have covered the country territory of late declare that in many places exhibitors are enjoying a phenomenal run of business and that facilities are taxed to care for the crowds seeking amusement. At Hanford, where theatres were closed for three months, business commenced with a rush as soon as the houses were reopened. From Fresno have come similar reports. Theatres are again open at Stockton where exhibitors attempted in vain to secure an injunction against the closing ordinance, and all is serene there once again.

Harry Levey to Make Address.

Harry Levey, manager of the Universal industrial department, will address the Cleveland Ad Club Feb. 28, on the subject "The New Art of Industrial Pictures" according to word from Cleveland. Mr. Levey, on several previous business trips, has spoken before different advertising clubs and has awakened considerable interest in the subject of industrial pictures. Mr. Levy will illustrate his talk with pictures made by his department for some of the leading manufacturers of the country.

Latest Edith Roberts Film Named.

"A Taste of Life" is the permanent title given the latest Edith Roberts Universal film. One of the last stories written by Paul West, who recently died in Paris, the Roberts' play was produced under the tentative title "When Cherries Are Ripe." Jack Dillon produced the film and in support of Miss Roberts are "Smiling" Billy Mason, George Hernandez, May Emory and Harry Todd. The film is scheduled for release on March 3.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM "OUT OF THE FOG"

Luminous and Forceful Acting of Nazimova in Screen Version of 'Ception Shoals Accentuates Her Enviable Position as Leading Tragic Star of the Silent Drama

By Edward Weitzel

IT is a big theme which rises up from "Out of the Fog"—the birth of a woman's soul. The miracle is performed after the tortured soul of another woman has driven her to despair and death. Nazimova lends her luminous and forceful acting to the two characters, mother and daughter. The range of human emotion she thus encompasses is remarkable for its breadth and for its depth.

The Highlights of "'Ception Shoals."

When H. Austin Adams wrote the stage version of his story and called it "'Ception Shoals" he chose an ending that gave the play the inexorable severity of a heathen doom. Faith, the mother of Eve, has transgressed the moral law and ends her life by suicide. The child grows up to womanhood and is forced to repeat her mother's desperate act by her fanatical uncle who deems it his duty to make the daughter expiate the sin of her parent. This brought the highest tragic point at the very finish of the drama. All that came before was dwarfed by the pathetic injustice meted out to a blameless young girl. No Greek tragedy was ever more relentless.

Nazimova's acting in the stage play was as fine and penetrating as the rays from the lantern in the tower of the lighthouse. Every opportunity to lighten the weight of grief and tears in the story was quickly seized, and the innocent animation she gave to the mind of the girl who is the victim of her uncle's bigotry was fascinating and filled with the spirit of engaging youth.

Original Ending Is Altered.

June Mathis and Albert Capellani, who adapted the Adams story to the screen, have thought it wise to disregard the original ending and cheat old Job Coffin of the fulfillment of the law for which he prays on his bended knees. Eve finds love and happiness and sees a vision of her mother in the waves blessing her as she stands with her lover's arms around her. There is not the slightest doubt that the average moving picture patron will prefer this ending.

As was said at the beginning of this article, the big theme of "Out of the Fog" is the birth of a woman's soul—not its leap into eternity.

The way to this birth starts in storm and the wreck of a woman's hopes, and the path is strewn with heartache and cruelty until Faith Coffin leaves her nameless child to the care of her brother and goes out into the Unknown. The story of her unhappiness is told in all its stark and chilling realism and is given its full measure of power by the tense passion of Nazimova and the religious fervor of Henry Harmon in the character of Job.

The frenzied grief of Faith over the body of her drowned lover and the adoration she shows for her baby are particularly fine moments in the star's impersonation, but she reaches the highest altitude of her art in the scene with her brother in the lighthouse just before she leaves him and her child forever. The quiet intensity with which she listens to him revile her is fully as effective as the tragic outburst that ends everything between them.

The movement through this division of the story is a skilful blending of mental and physical action.

Daughter Learns of Great Mystery.

Seventeen years elapse before the second division of the story is taken up and the daughter of Faith Coffin becomes the central figure in "Out of the Fog." Here we learn that the title is symbolic, that out of a mental fog thrown about her by prejudice and false convictions of duty the mind of Eve emerges into the light of knowledge when she learns the first of the great mysteries, the secret of physical birth.

Reared on a dreary shoal where her uncle is lighthouse keeper, the girl has never seen any other human being but Job, until the day she is discovered by a half-witted sailor from a Government supply ship. The fellow seizes her in his arms and implants on her lips the first kiss she has ever known. Frightened by something she cannot comprehend, Eve, whose understanding of passion and the facts of life is absolutely void, escapes from the sailor, who is recalled by the whistle from his ship. Clad in a ragged shirt and trousers that once belonged to her uncle this child-woman stands before a bit of looking glass and studies her face to learn why a strange man should press his lips to hers, and can find no answer to the riddle.

Then comes the day when a yacht runs aground on the shoals and Eve meets the man who teaches her what pure love is; on that same day, she also receives her first intimation of how she and the rest of humanity come into the world. The wife of one of the crew of the boat is about to become a mother, and Eve is the only woman within miles of the place. She is taken to the cabin of the sufferer and when she leaves the room her own soul has been born within her.

The psychological transformation in this child suddenly become a woman is the main motive and logical climax of the second division of the drama.

It is a gripping example of mental action and takes hold on the heart of the spectator and also on his brain.

The Child Becomes a Woman.

Here is another test of Nazimova's power and she meets it with sure and unobtrusive method. During the earlier scenes with her uncle she showed a shrinking obedience to all his commands, which was relieved by a droll sense of fun the moment his back was turned. Her denotement of Eve's nature previous to this important incident was always clearly outlined. Never for an instant did her features indicate the slightest trace of stupidity; only the perplexity of a naturally alert mind that had made the best of the information given it.

Nazimova as the Mother. Nazimova as the Daughter.

But when she burst into the living-room of the lighthouse after the wondrous event she is all aglow with her secret. Her elation is visible in her sparkling eyes and the confidence of her step. She is a child no longer. She has seen the mother love in that other woman's glance and she intends to pray for such a blessing for herself.

The short scene where the yacht owner comes to ask Job to let the young mother and her baby be brought to the lighthouse and is defied by Eve when he refuses the request is a gem. The girl slips out of a window and is next seen carrying one end of the cot on which rest the mother and her child. The air of smiling determination with which this newly awakened Eve marches into the house at the head of the little procession, files past her uncle and deposits her charge in her own room is beautifully expressive of all that is best in woman.

It is more than likely that yacht owner Blake fell in love with her then and there.

Nazimova's Ability Always in Evidence.

The third division of the story depicts the birth of love for Blake in the heart of Eve and her haste to array herself in one of her mother's old gowns. Thus properly clothed an understanding is quickly reached between the two. The rest of the story tells of Eve's waiting for her lover's return after taking the woman and her baby to their Northern home. Job makes Blake believe that Eve is dead when the yacht owner does come back, but the death of the old man from heart failure clears the way for the lovers.

Much credit is due Albert Capellani for his directing of the picture, but if there is one factor to be singled out for contributing to the success of "Out of the Fog" it is Nazimova's ability to sustain a characterization every second she is before the camera.

BLANK ENLARGES THEATRE HOLDINGS

Des Moines Exhibitor Acquires Lease of Aaron Jones on Big House at Sixth and Grand Avenue

THE surprise of the week in Des Moines film circles was A. H. Blank's announcement that he had taken over the lease of the new theatre now building on Sixth and Grand avenoes and that the house will become a part of his chain of picture theatres in the middle west. Mr. Blank assumed the lease signed three weeks ago by Aaron Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Chicago. Pictures will be the policy of the new theatre. Plans call for elaborate presentation and in many cases it will be the rule to hold programs an entire week. Stage settings will be impossible because of the building being finished without a stage of any kind. However terraces and various elevations around the picture screen will be utilized and novel settings thus provided. Mr. Blank will engage one of the best scenic artists in the business and will devise unusual effects.

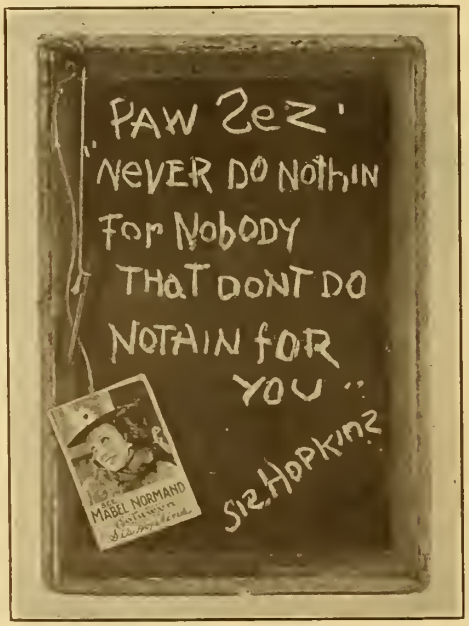
To Have Orchestra of Twenty-five.

Another innovation will be an orchestra of twenty-five pieces under the leadership of a prominent conductor. The music will be one of the features of the amusement policy and big overtures and concerts will be a part of each program. Singers will be employed and will be changed at intervals. Short subjects, scenics, comedies and topicals will be used in conjunction with the big features and present plans call for a performance of two hours or longer. There will also be a large pipe organ.

Rise of A. H. Blank.

The rise of Mr. Blank in the picture world has been rapid. Seven years ago he opened the Casino, the first real picture theatre in Des Moines, its seating capacity of 500 being considered very large. Following the successful operation of this house he sold the controlling interest and opened the Garden, a beautiful theatre of 800 seating capacity.

Meanwhile he opened theatres at Davenport and finally secured three houses there, the Garden, the Family and the Casino. Offered the old American in Omaha, Mr. Blank, against the advice of his friends, took over this house, which had been a prize lemon with a vaudeville policy, and announced that pictures would be the policy. The wiseacres gave him three months in which to run, but in the five years he has had the house, now the Strand, it has been a steady moneymaker and is one of the most popular in Omaha. Mr. Blank built the Rialto in Omaha; nothing finer in the country has been conceived in the way of a modern temple of the silent art. Meanwhile he acquired the Strand at Marshalltown and last summer closed a deal for the Palace in Des Moines. With the new house he controls nine fine picture theatres.



Snipe Posted by Goldwyn
To Advertise Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins."

To Follow Rivoli in Operation.

"I will run the new house, as yet unnamed, along the lines of the Rialto and Rivoli in New York," said Mr. Blank in discussing his plans. "Des Moines is entitled to the biggest kind of picture entertainment, and with our large seating capacity and the wonderful musical program we will be in position to fill a long-felt want for a pretentious musical-cinema entertainment."

Work is being rushed on the theatre and Mr. Blank plans to open it around April 1.

In addition to his extensive theatrical interests Mr. Blank is a member of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit and controls their attractions and a number of state right features in Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas.

San Francisco Film Men Fought Film Rental Tax

DETERMINED opposition was taken against the Government tax of 5 per cent. on film rentals by the newly organized San Francisco Film Exchange Board of Trade and the United Motion Picture Industries of Northern California. Upon receipt of a telegram from the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, outlining a national campaign of protest, the Board of Trade held a special meeting and decided upon immediate action.

A committee composed of M. H. Lewis, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; Louis Reichert, of the Metro; Ben F. Simpson, of Triangle; H. L. Knappen, of Select, and M. J. Cohen, of General, was appointed and no time was lost in getting the work started.

Under the direction of H. L. Knappen a corps of speakers was organized from the ranks of film salesmen and these were sent throughout the city to speak in the various moving picture houses, while others circulated petitions among patrons of these theatres. M. J. Cohen handled the publicity and general propaganda work and also spoke at leading downtown houses. General organization work was handled by President Lewis; Ben F. Simpson lined up the operators and theatre employes, and Louis Reichert attended to the special slides. A total of more than 10,000 signatures was secured the first night.

Gertrude Selby to Star in Comedy.

Gertrude Selby, best remembered as the petite and handsome blond of the Fox-Sunshine Comedies, of the L-Ko and of the Sennett Specials, has been given a contract by the newly formed Macdon Pictures Corporation, of which Frank P. Donovan is director-general, to star in a series of eighteen comedies a year, the pictures to be produced on a lavish scale.

William B. MacNulty is the "Mac" and Frank P. Donovan is the "Don." Production started this week. The new company is all Irish, it is stated. A studio in Grantwood has been obtained.

The purpose of Moving Picture World is to help exhibitors make money out of their pictures. There is value received, over and over again, in every issue on a $3 subscription.

RUBBERNECKING IN FILMLAND

Los Angeles Correspondent Personally Conducts Our Readers Through the West Coast Studios

By Giebler

A WHOLE week without a hotel lobby. Seven days and not a single plan of revolutionizing the industry to listen to. Honest to goodness the tall tales of millions and mergers and maneuvering movie moguls were getting on my nerves and disturbing my slumbers—had me picking at the covers woozy, dippy, if I may descend to vulgar vernacular.

To give you an idea: When K. McGaffey, who is most solemn when he is least serious, backed me up in a corner and unloaded his plan to please the exhibitors by allowing them to write their own stories and act in their own pictures I had the old note book out and was feverishly asking for details, and if it hadn't been for Ed Durling and Al Cohn, who intimated that I was a poor fish to allow K. to kid me, I would have swallowed the whole story.

All that was last week, however. During the delectable seven days that have just winged themselves into the erstwhile I laid off the lobby stuff. Each day I arose betimes and betook myself to the highways and byways of Hollywood, said hello to—and shook hands with—everybody, and it was just like Old Home Week back in Missouri.

The Missouri invasion is getting serious. Heretofore it has been the practice to "kid" Los Angeles about the large number of its citizens who came from Iowa, but a little figuring will convince any one that the Iowa joke is passe.

Where Missouri Wins Out.

Here are the statistics to prove it: There are said to be 200,000 persons here from Iowa. Now so far as I know—and I know nearly all of them—only one of this number is a screen player.

Last week I found four persons from Missouri working in two studios. Figuring on this basis it proves that there are close to a million Missourians in town, and if we stop to consider that there are twenty-five active studios in the city—Great guns! the booster organizations have never claimed more than 600,000 population, actors and otherwise, in their most enthusiastic moments.

Naomi Childers Imitating a Bookworm.

I ranged all over Filmland; even got out to Culver City again. That's where I saw the first two Missourians. One of them was Harry Beaumont, who was directing Tom Moore on a polo pony; the other was Christy Cabanne, scion of the St. Louis Cabannes, who was poring over a script he is getting ready to film. Everybody was on the lot except Reginald Barker, Kay Laurelle and the others of the Rex Beach company, who were up at Truckee with two dozen Alaskan dogs getting snow stuff.

I saw Pauline Frederick and Hobart Henley, who promised to send me a crap-shooting picture and didn't, much to the loss of this page; and Mae Marsh working in a "behind the scenes at a theatre" set with Mary Thurman and about twenty other girls diked out in Midnight Frolics costumes, with Lawrence—whom we once called Larry—Trimble directing, and Philo McCullough, Wallace MacDonald, Betty Schade, Walter Hiers and Alec B. Francis, all belonging in the Mae Marsh story.

Taking the Census of Reel-Land.

I saw a lot more people—Seena Owen, who is supporting Tom Moore, and Thomas Holding and Sydney Ainsworth, who is going to do the heavy work for Pauline Frederick's new piece, and Tully Marshall, who has been farmed out by Lasky's to Goldwyn to work in Madge Kennedy's play, a fantasy written for her by Hugo Ballin, art director of the studio.

After Goldwyn I went to see the Metro people in their new studio, and there saw another St. Louisan in the person of Naomi Childers, who was sitting up on a high ladder giving an imitation of Spitzweg's picture, "The Book Worm." Miss Childers didn't remember me at first (of course, this hurt my feelings, she and me having been brought up in the same town that way), but when I said St. Louis she did remember and was glad to see me, and said:

Elinor Fair and Albert Ray, Who Are to Appear in a Series of William Fox Pictures.

"Well, bless your heart, I'm glad to see you."

And Bert Lytell came along and said: "Don't pay any attention to that. She made the same remark to a man from Cincinnati last week."

Bert and Naomi are in the same picture, "Blind Man's Eyes," and they had a set representing a sleeping car that was so natural that all it needed was a colored boy holding out his hand for a tip to make it absolutely Pullmanesque. After this I went over and looked at a big Parisian scene with about fifty Gallic rough-necks and apaches of both sexes drinking vin rouge in a cellar. Viola Dana as a grisette was leading the action.

Gentle reader, do not judge Viola too harshly on her picture, which is appended herewith. It's just her artistic make-up that makes her look that way. She is really a much better looking girl in real life.

An Editor's Fall from Grace.

I watched Edwin Carewe making an Alaskan film, called "The Way of the Strong," with Anna Q. Nilsson and Harry Northrup, the villain, in a tense scene, and then I ran into my other St. Louis citizen in the person of John Hayes, who used to be the movie editor of the Times, a leading P. M. paper of the big town on the Mississippi.

John was an actor before he became an editor, and now he's an actor again. I talked to John, but forgot to ask him what he was acting in, and John being a poor press agent for himself didn't tell me; but he's something in some Metro play.

I took a look at the big Chinese set from Albert Capellani and Mme. Nazimova's tragedy, "The Red Lantern," which is all finished except one big battle scene; but as it was raining the Capellani company was not working.

I saw Hale Hamilton and his director, Harry L. Franklin, making some good action for Hale's new play, "That's Good." In fact, I saw almost the entire Metro bunch except May Allison, who was away at Vera Cruz after location stuff.

Then I went over to Brunton and saw Jack Pickford just coming back from location, and Frank Keenan, who was just going on location; talked with Dustin Farnum, who was loafing, and he told me about getting two new stories that are very fine from Bob Davis, of Munsey's Magazine, who is a friend of Dusty's.

The Hop, Step and Jump Record.

Out on big stage number "something or other"—there are so many stages to this whale of a place—I saw William Worthington and Sessue Hayakawa working out an office scene, and peeped into another set that was being made up for Olive Thomas; saw Bertram Grassby on the lot, likewise Pat Dowling, who is doping out publicity for Jack Pickford; and J. D. Chapman, whom everybody knows; Howard Hickman and Bessie Barriscale, and the big boss, Robert Brunton, who told me that Clara Kimball Young was coming over with her company in a few days to make pictures at his plant.

It is only a hop, step and a few jumps to Fox. I took them and found a big stir going on and three companies doing interiors because it was raining

Viola Dana
As a Parisian Grisette.

exteriorally. Tom Mix and Teddy Sampson were doing a Western scene in "Fighting for Gold," with E. J. Le Saint directing, and Madeline Traverse, the statuesque, was making a scene with Herbert Heyes.

Mr. Heyes had his young son at the studio teaching him the ropes of Reelland—a fine little chap, only three and a half years old, but big enough to go into the six-year class. He's going to be a big fellow like his dad. I don't know whether young Heyes is going to be an actor or not. Just now he is mightily inclined to a fireman's career, and has some ambitions to own and operate an airship.

"You Know Me, Al" Is Taboo.

Murdock MacQuarrie talked to me a few minutes, then I went over on another stage and saw Al Ray, whom we are all now requested to call Albert, for which I don't blame Al one bit. I have suffered from the appellation of "Al" since childhood. One reason I came all the way out here to California was to escape the name. No one out here knows the dreadful secret. Folks here call me "A. H." and "Gib," and I'm quite happy.

Tom Morris, Poloing.

At any rate Albert was working in his first play at the Fox studio. Elinor Fair is his leading lady, and Art Rosson is directing. They had a big hotel lobby set, with a lot of guests and bell-hops and an elevator that would go up and down and everything, and Albert was all dressed up in "soup-to-nuts" regalia and looked mighty smart. The play is called "Up Against It," and from advance indications it looks as though the public will be up against a good movie when it is finished.

Pittsburgh Houses Pay More Attention to Short Films

THE value of short subjects in the make-up of theatre programs, which has been emphasized in the trade papers and proved by leading exhibitors of the country, is receiving increasing attention among the theatres of Pittsburgh. It has been found that short comedies not only are big features in themselves, but increase the interest in feature pictures.

This is explained by the fact that when two five-reel dramatic features are placed together the tension in the audience caused by the first feature finds a reaction during the presentation of the second. But with a short comedy placed between them on the program, the comedy breaks the spell, and thus puts the audience in an entirely fresh and more receptive mood for the second feature.

The increasing success of William Fox Sunshine Comedies in downtown Pittsburgh is cited by the Fox Film Corporation as an indication of this increasing recognition of short subjects' value. The Harris Theatre has just taken the Sunshine Comedies on second run. Other downtown houses that are using them are the Grand, which has them on first run, the Avenue, the Majestic, the Idle Hour, the Wonderland, Crystal, Arcade and Temple.

George V. Hobart Writing for Fox.

George V. Hobart, author of "Experience," and other notable stage successes, is now writing stories exclusively for the Fox Film Corporation. Mr. Hobart wrote the original story of "The Jungle Trail," the de luxe production which William Farnum has just completed filming at Miami, Fla.

The announcement that Mr. Hobart is to write exclusively for William Fox follows closely after the statement that Mr. Fox has bought the motion picture rights of "Cowardice Court," George Barr McCutcheon's novel. "Cowardice Court" will be produced with Peggy Hyland as its star.

H. M. Berman Returns.

H. M. Berman, general manager of Universal exchanges, returned to New York February 10 after visiting exchanges and exhibitors at Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Kansas City. Mr. Berman states that he found Universal and Jewel productions much in demand everywhere he visited, and found unusual interest in "The Heart of Humanity" and the Stage Women's Green Room series of twelve two-reel photoplaylets, to be released through Universal exchanges shortly.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By A. H. GIEBLER

UNITED ARTISTS FORMALLY ORGANIZED

Only Four of Original Five Sign Final Papers— Hart Not Yet In, But Expected to Join Soon

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and D. W. Griffith, after a series of meetings and discussions as to methods of production and distribution, formally organized themselves into the United Artists' Corporation on the night of February 5. An interlocking contract extending over a period of three years has been entered into by the four artists.

William S. Hart, the fifth member of the original five who formed their rebellion against established producing and distributing methods, has not yet entered the combine, but it is thought that he will do so at an early date. That Mr. Hart did not sign at the same time as the others is said to be due to the fact that he and his attorney have not had time to fully digest the details and plans of the organization. Several other meetings of the four players are to be held at an early date, and it is thought probable that Mr. Hart will announce his connection after one of these conferences.

Griffith Not to Withdraw.

The announcement made by D. W. Griffith that he was to produce three pictures for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit gave rise to the idea that he had withdrawn from the original plans, but his action in signing with the stars at the official meeting held on the 5th makes it certain that he will not withdraw from the combine as it was originally planned.

Two agreements were entered into by the stars. One provides for an organition which will have its headquarters in New York and the other pertains to the distribution and booking of productions made by the combine.

According to the plans of distribution outlined the pictures produced by the corporation may be booked by any exhibitor and for any length of time. The exhibitors may take any film by any star. It is expected that the booking plan will finally work out into a percentage arrangement between the producers and the exhibitors.

McAdoo Makes Statement.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, who has been retained as general counseler of the United Artists' Corporation, made the following statement in regard to his connection with the stars:

"After conference with Miss Pickford and Messrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin and D. W. Griffith I have agreed to become general counsel for the United Artists' Corporation, the independent company which they are organizing for the protection of their interests. They have determined not to permit any trust to destroy competition or to blight or interfere with the high quality of their work. They feel that it is of the utmost importance to secure the artistic development of the moving picture industry, and they believe that this will be impossible if any trust should get possession of the field and wholly commercialize the business."

Mr. McAdoo says that he will not remain in California for more than two months as his duties will call him East. He will open his law offices in Washington upon his return to that city, and will handle the affairs of the Artists' Corporation there.

The meeting at which the final contracts were entered into between the four stars was held at the residence of Sydney Chaplin and attended by the four players in person and their attorneys.

First Picture to Be a Fairbanks.

The first production of the new corporation will be a Fairbanks film. But in spite of the fact that Mr. Fairbanks will be at liberty from his contract with Artcraft in a few weeks his first film as a member of the United Artists' Corporation will not be released until between the middle of September and the first of October. Mary Pickford will have her first contribution under the new order ready about the same time, and films from the other members will reach the market shortly afterward.

Various stories relating to the financial arrangements of the new combine have been circulated and the names of several prominent capitalists mentioned as possible backers. The stars deny these stories. John Fairbanks, brother and business manager of Douglas Fairbanks, states positively that no outside capital will be used.

"The corporation will be financed by the stars themselves," he said in speaking of the matter, "and the plans originally outlined as to production and distribution, whereby the exhibitor will deal directly with the players, will be adhered to."

Will Not Renew Goldwyn Contract.

Mae Marsh, whose contract with Goldwyn expires this month, will not renew the contract at this time, according to the star; but she will accompany her husband, Louis Lee Armes, to New Scene from "The Marriage Price" (Famous Players).

York after the picture in which she is now working for Goldwyn is completed. Miss Marsh, who admits that she has received a very attractive offer from another big film concern, declares that she will take a rest of several months before making any new affiliations.

Hampton and Perry Form Great Authors Pictures, Inc

THE Great Authors' Pictures, Inc., has been formed here, with Benjamin B. Hampton as president and George H. Perry as business manager.

According to announcements no stars are to be used by the new organization, but well-known players will fill the various roles of the plays produced, which are to be adaptations of the works of well-known authors.

Some of the books of Stewart Edward White and the works of Zane Grey will be among the first to be filmed. Mr. White has been engaged by the corporation to assist in the filming of his stories. Mr. White will assist in writing the scenarios and continuity for his own plays, as well as those of Zane Grey, and Mr. Grey will also render the same service in regard to the White stories.

The first play to be made will be Stewart Edward White's "The Westerners." After that Zane Grey's novel, "Desert Gold," with Jane Novak in the leading role, will be filmed.

The new company will operate at the Brunton studios.

Los Angeles Theatre Owners' Banquet.

The Los Angeles Theatre Owners' Association held a banquet at the Los Angeles Athletic Club on the night of February 5.

About 150 guests were present, and in addition to the members of the association there were a number of leading members of civic organizations, women's clubs, players and directors.

The meeting was for the purpose of discussing improvements in the moving picture industry. Frank A. McDonald, president of the Exhibitors' Association, presided at the meeting, and interesting talks were made by J. A. Quinn, George Beban, Al Jennings, Mitchell Lewis, Herbert Standing and a number of prominent clubwomen.

Lehrman Ready to Produce.

Henry Lehrman, former producer of Sunshine Comedies, states that he has perfected his producing organization and that production will begin at once. Mr. Lehrman says that he will make twelve two-reel comedies along the same lines of his former productions, and promises that the characteristics that have marked his previous productions will be maintained, but that he feels that since he is operating independently that he can put into practice some original ideas along comedy lines that will make his films very welcome to the trade.

Jim Corbett Elected Godfather.

James J. Corbett, who came out to Los Angeles to play the leading role in the Universal serial, "The Midnight Man," was invited a few days ago to attend the regular weekly boxing match of the Los Angeles Newsboys' Club. Corbett accepted and refereed the bouts, and at the conclusion of the entertainment the youngsters elected him their godfather by unanimous vote.

Mr. Corbett expressed himself as being well pleased at having been chosen godfather of some fighting unit in this day of army godfathers and godmothers.

"These Los Angeles newsies are some scrappers," he said. "With a regiment of these kids grown up I think I could have waded clear through Hindenburg's armies and into Berlin in record time."

Chaplins Abandon Trip Abroad.

Charles Chaplin and his bride, Mildred Harris Chaplin, have abandoned their trip to Europe for the present, and the Chaplin studio has become the scene of bustling activity during the past few weeks. Chaplin has decided to complete three more pictures for the First National Exhibitors within a short time, which, with two that are now ready for cutting and another well on the way to completion, with "A Dog's Life" and "Shoulder Arms," that have already been released, will fulfill his part of the contract with the First National. Afterward his actions will be guided by the plans of the United Artists' Association, of which he is one of the charter members.

Exploiting State Rights.

Al Nathan, former manager of the Superba Theatre in Los Angeles, and recently with the Carl Laemmle exhibiting interests in New York, is now in the West with a number of states rights features made in the East, which he is placing in Western theatres, and is purchasing Western-made productions for Eastern territory. One of the features Mr. Nathan is exploiting is "And the Children Pay," which he expects to place in one of the large Broadway (L. A.) houses.

Novelty for Grauman Theatre.

Sid Grauman, manager of the Grauman Theatre on Broadway, is soon to introduce a novelty to the patrons of his house — as soon as a lot of huge boards are taken down from part of the lobby, where a small band-stand is being built and a number of artistic and comfortable seats are placed. When this cosy nook is completed an orchestra will furnish music to entertain the patrons standing in line at the box office and those waiting their turn to get into the playhouse.

During the week of February 3, which marked the first anniversay of the opening of the Grauman Theatre, special numbers were added to the program, which consisted of Cecil B. DeMille's new production, "Don't Change Your Husband," as the feature. The interpolated numbers included vocal selections and musical novelties.

Tally on Hunting Trip.

T. L. Tally, of Tally's Broadway Theatre, and his son, Seymour, with two friends, took a few days off for a hunting trip after the strenuous session with the First National Exhibitors while they were in Los Angeles.

Wid Gunning in West.

Wid Gunning, film critic and editor of Wid's Magazine, arrived in Los Angeles last week. Mr. Gunning will probably made an extended stay on the Coast, and he is considering publishing his magazine from this end of filmdom. Mr. Gunning, who is accompanied by his family, is making his home in Hollywood.

"The Love Quest" Begun.

Clara Kimball Young's first picture since "Cheating Cheaters," the last that will be released by Select Pictures, according to Miss Young's announcement, was begun at the Brunton studio last week. The new play, entitled "The Love Quest," which is being produced under the direction of William P. S. Earle and his brother, Ferdinand Pinney Earle, will be distributed through entirely new channels, is the statement of Harry Garson, manager of Miss Young's productions.

Back from the Trenches.

Art Acord, motion picture actor, who served in France for seven weeks with the "Grizzlies," has been honorably discharged from the army and is back in Los Angeles. Acord, while he was with the Army, broke leave of absence and went to the firing line; was arrested, and after two weeks in the military jail was sent into active service.

Mary Moves to Brunton.

Mary Pickford will soon be installed at the Brunton studios, where a large stage, a number of dressing rooms and offices for the managerial staff are being prepared for her. Miss Pickford's second picture for the First National Exhibitors will be produced at the Brunton plant.

STUDIO SHOTS.

ALBERT RAY began his first production for the Fox company on January 28. The story, "Up Against It," was written by E. Lloyd Sheldon and J. Searle Dawley, and is being directed by Art Rosson.

Eddie Polo is working in a two-reel picture, "A Prisoner for Life," while his coming serial is still in preparation for production.

Clyde Bruckman, writer of baseball stories, has been engaged as special subtitle writer for the Lyons-Moran comedies.

W. A. Robbins, representing the Cooperative Film Exchange of Sydney, Australia, was a visitor at the Christie studio during his stop-over in Los Angeles before going to New York.

Scenes of the air circus to be held soon at San Diego, Cal., will be incorporated in the new Charles Chaplin comedy now being produced for the First National Exhibitors.

Louis William Chaudet, director for the National Film Company, is being sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Chaudet, former film actress and scenario writer.

Kitty Gordon left Los Angeles on January 31 for San Francisco, where she made a personal appearance at the Tivoli Theatre upon the showing of her new feature, "Adele," at that house.

Ann Little has just recovered from a serious attack of bronchitis.

David Butler, who played "M'sieu Bebe" in Griffith's "Greatest Thing in Life," is taking the part of Tom, the polo player, in support of Olive Thomas in "Upstairs and Down."

"Hearts Asleep," the third of the B. B. Features starring Bessie Barriscale is well on its way to completion at the Brunton studio.

Jacques Jaccard, former Universal director, and late of the U. S. army, is back in Hollywood.

William Russell entertained T. Hayes Hunter, who is in the West to make a feature production, at Santa Barbara last week.

Darrell Foss, who has just completed a picture with Nazimova, has gone to the mountains for a short vacation.

Lila Lee, Lasky star, entertained the members of the Gus Edwards' Revue company when they filled an engagement at the Orpheum Theatre in Los Angeles last week with a tea and a sight-seeing tour of the big Lasky plant.

Billy West has just completed a new comedy, called "The Chauffeur," at the Bull's Eye studio in Hollywood. Ethelyn Gibson, Stanton Heck and Leo White are the chief supporting players.

Juanita Hansen is playing opposite William S. Hart in his current production.

Sylvia Bremer, until recently a member of the Los Angeles screen colony, is expected to come to California soon, making the trip by motor from Nebraska.

D. W. Griffith gave a party to a number of friends at the Sunset studio one evening last week to show his new picture, "A Romance of Happy Valley."

Frank E. Woods, supervising director of Paramount productions, gave a buffet luncheon to several of his friends of the press one evening last week.

James J. Corbett paid a visit to his former contemporary, Jim Jeffries, in the San Fernando Valley a few days ago, and now he is contemplating entering the agricultural industry himself.

J. Barney Sherry has been cast in an important supporting role in the next Kitty Gordon picture.

Jack Pickford's second production for the First National Exhibitors will be the film version of a magazine story by Hapsburg Liebe, which depicts the adventures of a young Georgia mountaineer.

Al and Charles Christie have been under quarantine for more than a week on account of flu and colds.

Tom Kennedy, ex-prize-fighter, played the role of a hero a few days ago when he saved May Allison's maid from drowning while the company were on location off the Santa Cruz Islands. The girl leaned too far over on a small boat and fell into the Pacific.

Harry Hilliard plays the part of a minister in a new picture with Carmel Myers.

Josie Sedgwick took a trip up in the air a few days ago—with an army aviator.

Kenneth Harlan, sergeant in the 143d Field Artillery of California, Mary Pickford's regiment, has been discharged from the company and is again a member of the Los Angeles film colony.

Jane Novak has been selected for the heroine of "Desert Gold," the first of the Zane Grey stories to be made by the Great Authors' Pictures, Inc., of which Benjamin B. Hampton is president.

Madge Kennedy and her company, in charge of Clarence Badger, director, left for the Moiave desert last week, to be gone several days while taking scenes for a coming Goldwyn feature.

Gene Gauntier Is Photoplay Editor.

Gene Gauntier, the motion picture actress, scenario writer and producer, whose home is in Kansas City, Mo., has entered the newspaper field as motion picture editor of the Daily Post. Miss Gauntier began her picture work with the old Kalem Company, for which company she toured Ireland, Egypt and Palestine. Later she went with the Universal. Miss Gauntier is editing a column in the Post every day.

HESS SEEKS AID OF ADVERTISING MEN

Chairman of Committee on Censorship Explains What Already Has Been Done to Combat Evil

AT the regular weekly meeting of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, Inc., held at Cafe Boulevard February 6, Gabriel Hess, of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and chairman of the censorship committee of the National Association, made a strong plea for the co-operation of the advertising men in the intensive campaign against motion picture censorship which his committee is planning for the immediate future.

Mr. Hess spoke at considerable length, outlining the committee's plan of campaign which, he stated, would be one of propaganda similar in general, though more intense, to those in behalf of the Liberty Loans, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., etc. The assistance which he sought from the members of the A. M. P. A., he said, had to do with the preparation of a pamphlet which would go into the whole subject of censorship exhaustively and which would contain concrete examples of the ridiculous and grossly unfair acts of some of the censorship boards, past and present. They could resist, also, in the preparation of slogans, a number of the leading producers having already promised to print them on all their lithographs; also in the matter of trailers which would be distributed by all exchanges. Finally, he said, a series of one-reel satirical pictures will be made, in which a number of the leading stars will appear. In addition to these specific suggestions he pointed out that systematic general publicity would be required.

Six States Have Censor Bills.

The discussion which followed was participated in by Arthur James, Nils Granlund, Nat Rothstein, Vivian Moses, Harry Reichenbach and others, all of whom voiced heartiest approval of Mr. Hess's suggestion. Mr. Granlund, speaking as the publicity director of the Loew theatres, cited an example of meddlesome and damaging censorship exercised in Montreal on the occasion of the opening of the new Loew house in that city, and offered the suggestion that the most effective campaign could be waged by the exhibitors. Mr. Hess in reply stated that the proposition was primarily up to the producers, but that his committee would welcome co-operation not only from exhibitors but from any source. In conclusion he made it plain that the need for prompt action is necessary, for censorship bills are already before the legislatures of six states, including New York, where the situation is even at this moment critical, and the matter has already been brought up in Congress.

At the request of President Parsons and with the approval of the body, John C. Flinn consented to take the chairmanship of a committee of his own choosing to devise ways and means of assisting Mr. Hess's committee of the National Association.

Riesenfeld Congratulates Members.

Previous to the speech of Mr. Hess, Terry Ramsaye introduced Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, who congratulated the members upon the excellence which now characterizes motion picture advertising. "Before I came to this country," said Dr. Riesenfeld, "I had been taught in school and in my reading that P. T. Barnum was one of the two greatest Americans who ever lived. When I arrived I soon found out that the advertisers of motion pictures were of the same opinion. But there has been a marked change, and I wish to congratulate you men for breaking away from the Barnum idea. Truthful advertising is the only kind that succeeds today."

George Landy, of Select, was unanimously elected to membership and the committee on the dinner to be held February 15 reported, through its chairman, Harry Reichenbach.

Goldwyn Enlarges Its Home Office Facilities

INCREASE in the volume of exhibitor business has made it necessary for Goldwyn to multiply its facilities at the home office in New York and to acquire additional floor space of 14,150 square feet.

The first acquisition of Goldwyn was an entire floor at 62-70 West Fourteenth street, covering a space of 12,800 square feet. This floor is used as a warehouse for accessories, stationery, various equipment, files, etc. The area of Goldwyn's previous warehouse, located at 28 West Twenty-second street, was 2,500 square feet, making a total gain of 10,300 square feet for a stock room alone.

The next move was the acquisition of the entire tenth floor of the building at 509 Fifth avenue. The Goldwyn New York exchange occupies the eleventh floor of this same building, giving the company two floors in one of the largest and most modern buildings on Fifth avenue.

The tenth floor is occupied by the foreign sales department, the supply department of the Goldwyn New York exchange and the New York headquarters of the Goldwyn scenario department. This floor covers a space of 3,850 square feet, and is equipped and outfitted in the most modern fashion.

The executive offices of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation occupy the entire seventh floor of the Rogers-Peet Building at 16 East Forty-second, giving Goldwyn a total of four entire floors in three representative buildings in New York.

Run of "Humanity" Film Extended.

Despite the fact that "The Wicked Darling" with Priscilla Dean was scheduled to be shown at the Broadway Theatre, New York, last week, Manager Maurice A. Kashin received so many requests for a continuance of the showing of "The Heart of Humanity" that the Holubar drama was held over for a seventh week.

Following the close of the Broadway run the production is scheduled to be shown at a number of Loew theatres in New York and vicinity.

PHILOSOPHY OF THE PICTURE SHOWMAN

Edwin O. Weinberg, the Manager of Buffalo's Elmwood Theatre, Jots Down a Few Wise Ones

WHEN an audience extends the chilly reception to a subject that you picked as a winner, that is no time for you to warm up. Just check it up to experience. You've got to be a human barometer in this managing business. I can see that more every day. Just register the pet aversions of your audiences—and govern yourself accordingly when you bump up against Mr. Booker.

* * *

Many an up-stage booker who bunked you into taking a picture that had you "leery" has made the tally-sheet look mighty sick. Always remember that your boss isn't paying you for using the others guy's judgment.

* * *

Never be rough with film salesmen. But don't let 'em grab the grand idea that you're depending for your success upon their resume of the film business.

* * *

Don't take too much stock in that wizard of a critic—the gink who goes in on a pass. Just consider his advice as complimentary.

* * *

Feeding your folks the big stars as a steady diet is just as bad as handing them the tank stuff all the time. Too much is enough!

* * *

Many a manager with a bang-up and an overheated house has wondered why they fumed and fretted as they went out. Watch the little old thermometer as you would the recapitulation sheet.

* * *

If you have one of those fellows in your orchestra who helped to put "harm" in harmony, don't figure that the good boys will cover him up. Get the misery over with quick.

* * *

Film insurance? There is one sure bet! Look the film over yourself. The guy who boosts the feature to you may be a friend of your competitor.

* * *

If you keep your mind on your own proposition you won't have to worry over the dirty tricks your "comp" may be pulling on you. In fact you'll be so darned busy you won't know he is pulling 'em.

* * *

It is easy to see that human nature wants that which is out of its reach. Then why worry about giving that in amusement which stands for the best there is in drama and comedy. Of course that applies when common sense is used. Art is always the highbrow dope.

* * *

Arbitrarily fixing your audience's amusement will get you the sad farewell. The day of tyrants and monarchs is over. You might as well line up with your crowd right now.

* * *

Don't try to educate your audiences! They get enough of that from Daughter Daisy, who is in a seminary, and Wild Willie, who thinks 7 a. m. is the middle of the night.

* * *

Is your house one of those graveyards where they get chills at the ticket office and the shivers from then on? If you're afraid to turn up the lights once in awhile of an evening, you'd better spruce up the house some.

* * *

Lay off on the dignity argument. Keep your standard, but eliminate that morgue look on your own phiz. Don't look alarmed everytime you hear a laugh, fearing that it's a criticism at your selection.

E. O. Weinberg.

* * *

Remember the newspaperman is your best friend. When you slight him you slight opportunity for bigger business.

* * *

It is a hard thing to sell something the public doesn't know you have. Many a former film manager is now ringing bells on a street car because he didn't quickly enough learn that newspapers weren't made expressly for wrapping up the laundry.

* * *

Your boss may be a wise man, but perhaps he hired you because he thought you knew enough to run his house. Therefore, act accordingly.

Minneapolis Manager Uses Novel Advertising Stunt

MAX WITTELS, manager, had to turn hundreds of picture fans away as the result of the original methods employed in "putting over" Walter F. Smith's "Younger Brothers" film at the Crystal Theatre in Minneapolis.

Several thousand succeeded in gaining admittance, but hundreds of others were turned away. Not once during the day, from 11 a. m. until 10 p. m., was there a vacant seat in the house during the showing of the film. At one period the police were called and required Mr. Smith to put his display inside the theatre lobby.

As part of a publicity scheme to advertise the show, Mr. Smith engaged an expert horseman, who performed on Hennepin avenue in front of the theatre on a trained pony. Smith himself was dressed in prison clothes and attracted much attention with his costume. His lobby consisted of old death-dealing weapons, favorite "irons," some of them relics of bad men, known by their first names in the Northwest.

The next day Mr. Smith played the Mazda, which is located in the next block, and while his business was not as large as at the Crystal, he played to full houses all day. Some excitement was caused during that showing when the trained horse, which Mr. Smith was riding, became unmanageable and kicked out one of the doors at the main entrance to the Mazda. It proved expensive advertising, but it brought the dimes to the box office.

Schwartz Entertains Soldier Brother.

A. H. Schwartz, manager of the Brevoort, Rialto and Linden Theatres of Brooklyn, is one of those Americans who handed the Kaiser a few wallops by proxy. Mr. Schwartz' proxy being none other than his brother, Harry. He saw to it that the latter was properly wined and dined on his return from France on the transport Finland. Harry Schwartz, through whose efforts the construction of the Brevoort Theatre was completed in record time, entered the army in May, 1918, at Camp Dix, and sailed soon after for England with the 345th Infantry, an outfit of the Eighty-seventh or Acorn Division. His battalion was selected for guard duty at St. Nazaire, France, in which work Schwartz continued until the armistice was signed.

Miss Childs Succeeds E. R. Phelps.

Miss Agnes A. Childs, of Amesbury, Mass., is the new Director for Overseas Preparation for the Community Motion Picture Bureau of New York. She took charge February 1, succeeding E. R. Phelps, who sailed with members of the staff of the bureau for special work in France and England. Other additional staff members for overseas are Arthur Smith, of Los Angeles; V. G. Harper, of Milwaukee; T. F. McCullough, San Francisco; W. D. Hopkins, Fruitland, N. Y.; Ethel M. Hilliard, Austin, Tex.; Elizabeth Lavelle, Seattle; Julie Nettleton, Seattle; Ann Harlow, Buffalo; Amalie Van Wick, Duluth, Minn.; Dorothy Brown, East Lansing, Mich.; Emily Woodward, Boston; Josephine Marshall, Swampscott, Mass.

Mayer on Universal's Publicity Staff.

Joe Mayer, for several years connected with the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune as a writer, has been appointed publicity manager for the Universal exchange at Cincinnati. Mr. Mayer's duties will be to handle the publicity on Universal productions in Cincinnati and assist exhibitors with their publicity and advertising.

Elsie Ferguson Off to Florida.

For the second time within a month, Elsie Ferguson is in Miami, Fla., where she will work under the direction of George Fitzmaurice on her Artcraft picture "The Witness for the Defense," an adaptation of A. E. W. Mason's play of the same name.

Chicago News Letter

by Jas. S. McQuade

CHICAGO LEAGUE HAS ANNUAL MEETING.

Discussion on Merging Organization with Allied Association Ends with Preservation of Body

THE annual meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Chicago was held Friday afternoon, February 7, in Fraternity Hall, with Joseph Hopp, president of the organization, in the chair. This organization is the only body of exhibitors in Illinois which has been incorporated under the laws of the state, and which holds a state charter.

When the meeting was called to order by the chairman, the hall was pretty well filled, indicating that considerable interest was taken in the proceedings. In his opening remarks Mr. Hopp drew attention to the existing difference of opinion among exhibitors as to whether there should be one or two organizations of exhibitors in Chicago. He pointed out that some exhibitors were of the opinion that the league should be discontinued and merged with the Allied Amusement Association, while others held that the league, being the parent organization, should be continued.

Heated Discussion Follows.

Then followed a lively discussion, in which about twenty exhibitors took part. The remarks of the participants were heated at times, and it was finally decided that the M. P. E. L. of Chicago should be preserved and continued, after which it was voted unanimously that the election of officers be deferred until the next regular meeting of the league, which will be held the first Friday in March.

The next movement was the bringing forward of an amendment which proposed the changing of the government of the league from the elective to the commission plan. The expressed purpose of this change was to so regulate the conduct of the organization as to prevent boss rule and secret committee work, and to guarantee that all transactions on account of or for the league shall be done with the full knowledge of the entire membership.

Plan Provides for Commissioners.

The proposed plan, which will be voted on at the March meeting, will provide for eleven commissioners, who will appoint a secretary and a treasurer for the league. Each of these eleven commissioners will, in turn, act as chairman for a month, which will give a new chairman for every meeting of the league. Between these meetings all matters pertaining to the government of the league will be taken up and considered by the entire commission, and a full report made at the next meeting.

Strong speeches in favor of the commission plan were made by Joseph Hopp, William E. Heaney, Samuel Atkinson and others.

A motion that a committee be selected to prepare the necessary changes in the by-laws of the league and make its recommendations at the next meeting, was passed unanimously. President Hopp then named the following as members of the committee: Samuel Atkinson, William E. Heaney, George Hopkinson, Clyde H. Bates, William Burford, Fred C. Hartman, John Frundt, Alfred Hamburger, William Rohe, V. Langdon and A. Rice. Joseph Hopp will act with the committee.

Step in Right Direction.

The action taken by the M. P. E. L. of Chicago is clearly a step forward, and Chicago exhibitors are to be sincerely congratulated. The democracy of the action is not only in keeping with the times; it is a positive guarantee that the rank and file of the organization are placed on the same footing.

The big exhibitor who can boast of his accumulations has no more voice than the small exhibitor who depends on his small house and its small returns for a livelihood. The small exhibitors are in the majority and in all matters pertaining to the general good of the business they should give their hearty support.

There is no doubt that one of the great disintegrating forces in the organizations formed by exhibitors in the past has been boss rule and politics of the wrong kind. Under the commission plan adopted by the membership of the M. P. E. L. of Chicago, let us hope that a magnificent object lesson will be revealed.

Is it too much to hope that the plan will prove infectious among exhibitors everywhere in America, and that a really new life is in store for the exhibiting class in moving picturedom?

Reformative Illinois Is Zealous for Censorship

REFORMATIVE Illinois is fairly boiling over with zeal for the censorship of films at the present time. Not only have we a Chicago Censorship Commission, which has been in session for some time past in the formulation of a new city ordinance for the censorship of films, but we have a new

Norma Talmadge in "The Probation Wife." Alice Brady in "The World to Live In."

Scenes and Stars of Two Select Pictures.

state of film censorship bill just introduced at Springfield which, from all reports, out-Herods Herod in its drastic purposes.

Senator Buck, of Monmouth, Ill., is credited with being the author of the new state censorship bill, and he claims that he is backed by the State Federation of Women's Clubs, which are its sponsors.

This bill is practically the old state censorship bill which met defeat in the last Legislature. It provides that any film shown publicly in Illinois must be approved by the State Department of Registration and Education at Springfield. It also explicitly declares that no municipality may pass any ordinance regulating moving pictures and that all such ordinances shall become null and void after October 1, 1919.

Under the new state censorship law, if passed, all Chicago ordinances governing film censorship will be void. This will render nugatory all the work of the present Chicago Censorship Commission, and the power now vested in Chicago's Second Deputy of Police will be taken away.

The proposed state bill also aims at making a football of the moving picture —in other words the moving picture can be kicked at pleasure by the men and women who will constitute the state censor board. If made law the bill will give these men and women power to reject all films which are "sacrilegious, vulgar, indecent, obscene, immoral, inhuman, unpatriotic, or of such a character as to corrupt morals or incite to crime."

But this work will not be done for the mere love of poor humanity. The loaves and fishes have not been overlooked. Inspection fees will be charged at the rate of three dollars for every 1,000 of original film and one dollar for every 1,000 feet of duplicate film. Fines of from $50 to $300 are provided.

Ben W. Beadell Talks of Indiana-Illinois Trips

BEN W. BEADELL, assistant manager of the Chicago office of the Select Pictures Corporation, made recent trips through Indiana and Illinois and reports very favorable business both for his company and exhibitors.

In Indiana he visited Ft. Wayne, South Bend, Kendallville and Goshen, where he found business brisk. In Fort Wayne, all the nine houses in the city were doing well, better according to assurances of theatre owners than they had experienced for some time. The improvement in conditions, Mr. Bedell was led to believe, was attributable to the return of soldiers from the front and France. The soldier boys are hungering for moving picture entertainment and they are making up, in a measure, for lost time. Long trains, occupied by returning Yanks, were seen frequently during Mr. Beadell's travels, and there is no doubt that the return of the boys in khaki, in large numbers, has aided business generally.

The Jefferson in Fort Wayne, owned by C. W. Quimby, one of the most progressive exhibitors in the State of Indiana, was doing a record business. This is a thoroughly modern house, of 1,200 capacity, with a fine orchestra of 12 pieces, under the leadership of one of Indiana's foremost violinists.

The programs at the Jefferson are largely comprised of the Select brand of pictures—a Select feature subject, a comedy and a weekly, forming the daily offering. Mr. Quimby also owns the Strand in Fort Wayne, the old legitimate house which seats 1,600 persons. In this house a selected program of various makes is offered to good attendance.

In Illinois, Mr. Beadell visited Champaign, Decatur, Clinton, Bloomington and several smaller cities. In all these places business was cncouraging. The fine weather conditions and the homecoming of "the boys" from across the seas, just as in Indiana, contributed greatly to the increase in the receipts at all picture houses.

Joe Engel Visits Chicago on His Way to Los Angeles

JOE ENGEL, treasurer of the Metro Film Corporation, spent a few hours between trains in the city, on his return to Los Angeles from New York, where he attended the recent meeting of the directors of the company. Mr. Engel makes his headquarters in the California city and his last trip is the seventeenth one-way trip within the past three years. He was favorably impressed with business conditions in the Chicago office.

C. E. Smith, Metro's Chicago manager, informs me that he has booked "Out of the Fog," the coming Nazimova release, two weeks at the Rose Theatre, one week each at the Riviera and the Woodlawn, and also with the entire Ascher circuit, for a run of two days in each house. To meet this extraordinary opening demand Manager Smith was obliged to borrow prints from Detroit, Omaha and Milwaukee, as thirteen copies will be running concurrently in Chicago for the first week's release.

M. C. Hughes is manager of Metro's program department in Chicago, while Manager Smith personally handles the product of Screen Classics, Inc., which includes all the special features. H. W. Willard, formerly manager of Fox's Chicago office, is Chicago salesman for this product, being recently appointed by Manager Smith.

Mr. Hughes, at one time district manager for the Metro Film Service, Ltd., in Montreal, joined Metro's Chicago office the second week in October last, coming on from New York. He expressed himself to the writer as being well satisfied with his present position. He stated that the Metro programs were coming over strong and that exhibitors were taking full advantage of Metro's offerings.

Mr. Hughes, in reminiscent mood for a moment, reminded me that early in his film career he was booker in Percy Waters' New York office years ago, when the General Film Company was in its prime.

And Today's Projectionist Is Tomorrow's Exhibitor

Bijou Theatre,
Wilmington, N. C.,
Feb. 1, 1919.

Chalmers Publishing Co.,
New York City.

I am inclosing $1.50 for which please send me the World for six months—to start at once.

Have been taking another popular trade magazine, but it didn't interest me for they have practically no projection department. And what F. H. Richardson has in the World each week is well worth the price of the whole issue.

I have been buying the World at newsstands and missed my last week's number and realized what I was missing by not being a subscriber. I can't understand how anyone is connected with a theatre in any way can get by without the World. It is the Bible of the film industry, I think.

I will send in another subscription at the end of six months sure, but not now, as I don't know my permanent address at present.

Very truly yours,
D. R. Regan.

"A Romance of the Air" Goes Big at the De Luxe

MANAGER FLAHERTY, of the American Film Clearing House, Inc., reports that "A Romance of the Air," which was shown at the De Luxe Theatre, Wilson avenue, near Broadway, for the week beginning Sunday, February 2, proved successful away beyond expectations.

Lieut. Bert Hall was a big drawing card both at matinee and evening presentations, and the matinee tea, at which Edith Day gracefully presided, was a big society event. Manager Maher, of the De Luxe, expresses himself as being well satisfied with the run from a financial viewpoint.

Lieut. Hall will go to Racine, Wis., for the Monday and Tuesday showings (February 10 and 11) at the Rex Theatre, which is owned by my old friend Tom Norman. The Rex seats 1,000 persons, and knowing Tom's reputation for boosting a good attraction, many hundreds of persons will be turned away.

After the Racine date the picture will be shown in Minneapolis for a week, most likely either in the Garrick or the Strand, which are owned by Finkel & Rubenstein.

Chicagoans See "Cannibals" Film.

Chicagoans saw Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" for the first time on a recent Monday evening when the explorer and his wife made a special trip from Kansas City on their way to New York to show the films before the members of the Hamilton Club. The projection room of the club was hardly big enough to accommodate the crowd which received Mr. Johnson's offering with enthusiasm.

Between reels, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson gave little talks about their experiences, and related a number of thrilling and amusing stories.

The picture has not been exhibited in Chicago outside of the Hamilton Club. This is probably the only big city where the films have not been booked, but they will shortly make their debut in the Windy City.

Jacques Jaccard Mustered Out.

Jacques Jaccard, who resigned his position as Universal serial director during the making of "The Lion's Claws" to go into the army, has just been mustered out and is back again among the film folk at Hollywood. His future plans have not been announced.

Oland Recovers from Influenza.

Warner Oland, Pathe's serial villain, has just recovered from a combined attack of influenza and pneumonia.

LOOKING OVER THE FORT LEE STUDIOS

There's Work Being Done Over in the Jersey Colony—Plenty of Sunshine Found This Winter

JUST to be different we took a little hike and "pike" last week around Fort Lee and Coytesville, N. J., among the studios of that territory. The air was clear and bracing, and we could not help making a comparison with rubbernecking around California. It took only an hour from Times Square to reach our destination. After dismissing our chauffeur we felt so full of ozone and "pep" we hoofed it from one point to another, up hill and down dale, and enjoyed every step of it.

This is the year the producers got fooled, going three thousand miles to the coast when they could have got all the accommodations, sunshine and everything else but the foliage forty-five minutes from Broadway. Theda Bara got the foliage twenty-four hours from New York—at Jacksonville, Fla.—and it was there for anybody who cared to use it. It is true this has been an exceptional winter in this part of the world. It has averaged as many clear days as California. There has been an ample supply of fuel, and the climate has been spring-like.

Deserted Village Going to Ruin.

At Palisade avenue and John street we visited the Universal plant. The studios were idle, but the laboratories were in full blast. There were the deserted streets of a deserted village still standing and going to rack and ruin. The big glass structure for indoor scenes was still and filled with valuable props to meet almost any exigency and satisfy the most fastidious director.

As there was nothing doing in the way of producing we accepted the cordial invitation of Edward F. Murphy, the general manager of the laboratories, who placed us under the guiding wing of Fred Esslinger, one of his assistants, and he took us through the plant. We were greatly impressed by its completeness and activity. It is thoroughly equipped with all the latest improvements, including several Bell and Howell printing machines and perforators. There are 250 to 300 persons employed, and the establishment is splendidly systemized and managed. Every room is cooled and heated by washed air.

Paragon for "Way Down East."

About a block away, on John street, we visited the Paragon studios and laboratories. The same thing can be said about the Paragon as we observed at the Universal—the studios, beautiful glass buildings, were silent and the sets of the village streets were still standing and untrodden. Mr. Baudet is the manager of the laboratories, which are exclusively used for Famous Players-Lasky products, have all the up-to-date appliances, Bell and Howell machines, and a complement of 250 employes. The washed air system is used and every detail carefully handled. As we were entering the plant we met Harley Knoles, the director, who said he had just finished producing a Dixon feature about the Bolsheviks, and W. A. Brady had engaged the Paragon studios for the production of "Way Down East," which he expected to start very shortly.

Three or four blocks away, at Linwood avenue and Main street, we visited the three old New York Motion Picture Company's studios, which were afterward taken over by the Triangle company and are now being used by the Fox company. There is very little being done at these studios except an occasional indoor scene. On the day we were there Edward Dillon was taking, in one of the studios, some interiors of a sailors' boarding house or saloon in connection with a George Walsh picture. In the old Eclair studio Charles Brabin was making some interiors. The middle studio was deserted. The Fox laboratories, which are used entirely for Fox productions, are running full swing. They are located on the same property.

Adjoining the first two studios, right in the midst of the three, is the Nicholas Kessel laboratories. Mr. Kessel is a much younger man than we expected to see, and we were impressed by his keenness and business judgment. He is extremely alert on detail and efficiency. We were surprised to find a number of progressive innovations that we have not seen in other laboratories, and we have been familiar with this end of the industry for the past ten years.

Kessel Laboratories Large.

The Kessel laboratories handle all kinds of products—industrial, independent and the standard features. They have a capacity of a million and a quarter feet of film a week and take over a great deal of the overflow work from other laboratories. On the invitation of Mr. Kessel, after going through the various other departments, we were ushered into the inspection department, where the prints are carefully examined before they are shipped, and we regret that we could not spend the afternoon and enjoy the whole show.

Around the corner from the Fox studios we ventured into the World's Peerless studio. Here we were met by E. J. Rosenthal, one of the vice-presidents of the World, and general manager of the studios. The twelve-o'clock whistle was blowing and all hands were making a bee-line for lunch. Before accepting an invitation to dine in the studio lunchroom Mr. Rosenthal took us through the plant. On entering the studio we ran into Carlyle Blackwell, who had just finished a scene under the direction of Dell Henderson. We were impressed with the system in every department of the place.

Regular Smithsonian Institution.

The properties were catalogued and kept in cases with glass doors, very much like a museum or the Smithsonian Institution. It was fascinating to inspect the innumerable objects—antiques, bric-a-brac, zoological specimens, tapestry, tableware, and everything else under the sun. Every costume is numbered and tabulated with the period. There is no excuse for a player or director going astray so carefully is everything arranged. The restaurant was all right. That it was enjoyed goes without saying.

At 1:30 we were on our way to Coytesville. About a mile and a half walk and we were there. The Solax studio presented an inviting appearance. Everything about it was in excellent shape, but no evidences of life were in sight. Approaching the entrance we were greeted by an Italian caretaker, who told us the place was closed and nothing doing.

SPEDON.

CAMERA TO RECORD SCENES OF CRIME

Criminologist Evolves Plan to Aid Justice by Use of Screen, Thereby Avoiding Diagrams

TO a Rochester man—Jesse C. Hummelbaugh—belongs the credit for being the pioneer user of the moving picture in the realm of crime. A criminologist of some note, he has evolved a plan whereby the film will play a major part in the criminal cases of the future. Further than that he has actually put the plan to the acid test and found that it even exceeds his expectations.

Mr. Hummelbaugh has had the idea in mind for a long time, but until recently never made any effort to try it out. On Christmas Day a most brutal murder occurred in his city. The murderers are still at large. The crime was committed in the apartments of a wealthy auto dealer as he lay in bed. When it was apparent the assailants would not be apprehended immediately Mr. Hummelbaugh conceived the idea of filming the scene of the crime so that at any future time it would be available for a jury.

Owing to the peculiar location of the apartment and the fact that the intruders must have been familiar with its layout much of the evidence at a trial would necessarily involve explanations of the approach, entry to the apartment, how the crime might have been done and the escape. All these things may now be shown in court at any time and in a manner that will be more easily understood than the usual blueprints and diagrams.

Mr. Hummelbaugh says that he has many other uses for film in mind, and now that he has actually demonstrated the value of the camera as an expert witness he believes it will play a larger part in many trials. He says that in future criminals, instead of being "mugged" in the usual way for the rogues' gallery, will be the stars of films which will record their characteristics in a manner true to life.

Raises Sum for Red Cross on High Seas.

Geoffrey Nye, representative in the Far East for E. J. Tait, controlling Chaplin for that territory, has just advised the New York office that while en route from San Francisco to Yokohama on board the Siberia Maru he discovered a long neglected cinematograph machine, cleaned it up, and on condition that a sum of money was subscribed by the passengers for the Red Cross, he promised a showing of Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms." This was taken up enthusiastically by the passengers and the advance bookings totaled $225. The picture was well received.

Rambles Round Filmtown

With WALTER K. HILL.

The Rambler.

Little Five Starts Political Row.

BENNIE ZEIDMAN, mimeographer of the Fairbanks moods, went to the mat with Charley Fuhr in Mrs. Pshaw's lunch room at the second session called by the Little Five, according to reports that come from Hollywood. Fuhr butted in with a proxy signed by Carlyle Robinson.

"We'll have Doug film 'Pudden'head Wilson'," Zeidman started to announce when Fuhr chimed in:

"We can't afford to offend the President," said the proxy-holder.

"But we can do it while he is in Europe," Bennie retorted with spirit.

Investigation was started by Pat Dowling to discover whether Fuhr was a proxy-holder or a Prexy-holder.

"There must be politics in this," said Pat when Fuhr had been carefully frisked. "It looks like a film-move to boost for a third term."

Scoop Conlon, having locked the door, declared himself:

"Prohibition will knock out the best advertisement 'Pudden'head Wilson' could have. That's all!"

"I voted for him the last time," chimed in Jack Lloyd, awaked from slumber by the noise of combat, "and I'll vote if he runs again."

"He kept us out of war," said Bennie, reminiscently.

"And it looks now as though we would have to call on his son-in-law to keep peace among the Little Five," said Charley Fuhr.

A truce was declared until Pete Smith could be heard from. Part of the night letter Pete forwarded in reply to the call for a decision read:

"Paramount-Lasky filmed 'Pudden'-head Wilson' early in 1916. Does Zeidman want it done again or shall we put it over as a re-issue. Success Series is a film-brand, not a political machine."

—w s s—

William Campbell, Universal comedy director, has just elected himself to the job of trying to make an elephant, a lion, Joe Martin, the monk, and a five months old human baby synchronize.

—w s s—

What's a Few Thou. In Press Work?

The film magnate who offered McAdoo $50,000 must have thought the ex-Secretary was an ordinary press agent.

Why not try such an offer on George Creel? His $12,000 job don't look like a cinch for life.

—w s s—

Betty Blythe, of whom you may have read in these paragraphs, has discovered that cutting cross-lots in the North Woods is not advisable. "The snow," she says, "is not only six feet deep and true to tradition, but is six feet wide and 'round."

And Betty, we are advised, is neither that high or wide.

Rewriting a Johnflynn Story.

Shortly after the train pulled out of Indianapolis the silence of the smoking compartment in one of the coaches was broken by the noise of a film salesman bragging. No one had asked him, but he proceeded to expatiate:

"There's the best day's work I've done this week," said the modest one. "I've put my films in three of the best houses for first, second and third runs. Contracts for a year. Three features a week. Nearly 250,000 feet a year. That's what I call selling film."

The silence that followed seemed to last an hour. Then a quiet voice rose just above the noise of the train.

"Well, shrinking violet, that's a lot of film if you didn't sell it."

—w s s—

Jim Corbett has just purchased a Chinese chow dog of Oriental colors. This is the second "Yellow Dog" at the West Coast studios. The other was a Universal propaganda canine.

—w s s—

Wife and husband were in the great crowd that attended a free concert.

"Believe me, I didn't like the music," said the wife as the couple passed out of the building.

"You didn't like it?" echoed the husband. "And you should kick when it cost you nothing!"

—w s s—

Talk is cheap—when you are using another man's phone.

Words have a ravenous appetite—when eating into another man's space.

—w s s—

Shaking the Hand That Shook John Lawrence Sullivan's.

The right hand at the left is the right Nat Rothstein uses in spreading adjectives around Universal's film advertisements.

The right hand at the right is the right of James J. Corbett, known to fame as "Gentleman Jim the King of Serials."

Both boys have a considerable punch. Nathaniel puts punch in picture advertising while James puts punch in pictures.

Gentleman Jim, of Serials, is the successor of Sunny Jim, of Cereals. Nat Rothstein is the successor of nobody. He sets his own standards.

Here's Why Terry Ramsaye Gets So Often Into Rambles.

Hugo Riesenfeld, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli, inspired by experience, is writing a musical suite entitled "Film Salesman's Routine."

It opens with "the approach," enterpreted by the piping of the flute and fairy touches on the strings floating softly yet clearly over a background of distant rumbling on the drums which betokens the rising wind of "bunk."

This motif rapidly develops into a storm of staccato with bells, kettle drums and certainly all of the brasses.

Then there is a cadence in which the bunk motif fades out rapidly disappearing into a rest of a full measure which precedes the "bluff" motif as a lull precedes a storm.

The bluff breaks with rare violence, a shrieking of whistles, swift, menacing rolling of the drums, piercing notes from the strings, a perfect frenzy of trombones.

The bluff phase swiftly passes and after a pause the dolorous "supplication" motif rendered in violin solo, weepful and pleading, is heard.

There are a number of closing measures under consideration: one the exultation which betokens "contracts signed" done with piccolo and violin; and another, the "cancellation exit," rendered on the tuba—the lowest of all instruments.

—w s s—

Says an Electric sign: East Is West With Fay Bainter.
But not with the "Coast Defenders."

—w s s—

Hubby is taking home so many bottles of booze in preparation for the drought that wifey is having great difficulty in finding room for her hat on the closet shelves.

—w s s—

Tom Mix in Danger as Noose Slips About Neck.—Publicity Headline.
"Danger" would seem to be putting it mildly.

—w s s—

Projectionesses?

If we must call moving picture operators "projectionists," how shall we refer to the girl in the lamp-house?

—w s s—

Faire Binney says: "I want to do everything there is to do, whether it is pleasant or unpleasant. When I die, I want to feel that I have not missed a single pleasure, or a single pain.—Wid's.
That's Faire.

Wonder How Far She Has Got?

—w s s—

Perhaps Ex-Director of Railroads McAdoo will still have sufficient pull to get Mary, Doug, David and Charley a pass on the Big Four.

—w s s—

"There's no use talking about prohibition till we get to it. Lord knows there'll be nothing else to talk about when we do."

Them's the sentiments of Will Rogers, says Dwight Perrin.

—w s s—

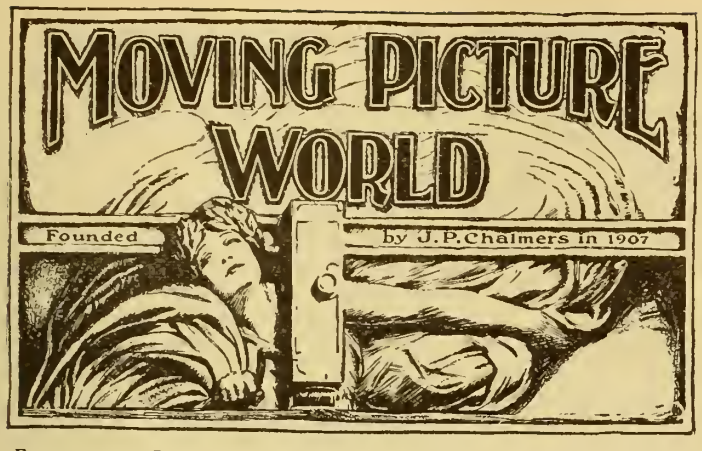
Rumored that the King of Harts is out of the Five Card draw.

But McAdoo still maintains the value of a full hand.

—w s s—

This Week's Best Hunch.

Broadway is Broadway and Indiana is Indiana, and the Hoosier exhibitor does not give a rap about all this argument and data centering about New York's Main Street.—Exhibitors Herald.



Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

516 FIFTH AVENUE, AT 43D STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Telephone, Murray Hill, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President and General Manager
E. J. Chalmers .....Secretary and Treasurer
James L. Hoff.....Assistant General Manager
George Blaisdell .....Editor
A. MacArthur, Jr .....Advertising Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—610-611 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649. G. P. Harleman, Business Representative.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Cuba, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid) ..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time should be allowed for change.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—3 cents a word for Help or Positions Wanted, minimum 50 cents; 5 cents a word for all commercial ads., minimum $1.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-third Street, New York, and not to individuals.

CINE-MUNDIAL, the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 516 Fifth Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American and Spanish-speaking market. Yearly subscription, $2. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, February 22, 1919

Weinberg a Real Film Philosopher

WE commend to the consideration of our showmen subscribers the brand of philosophy built by Edwin O. Weinberg of the Elmwood, Buffalo. His pithy paragraphs will be found on another page and are worth perusing. As an example this one will serve:

"It is a hard thing to sell something the public doesn't know you have. Many a former film manager is now ringing bells on street cars because he didn't quickly enough learn that newspapers weren't made expressly for wrapping up the laundry."

What the Producer Wants

ONE producer has put himself on record that he takes no stock in the old slogan of the showman, "Give the public what it wants." Other producers are not of the same mind. One firm attaches so much importance to the rule that it has worked out an elaborate system of reports from exhibitors who keep a close watch on everything which indicates the likes and dislikes of their patrons while being served their screen fare. By this means the firm is confident it will be greatly aided in giving the public what it wants. And that is what every producer wants and tries his best to accomplish—even our worthy friend who says he doesn't believe in the old slogan.

Greetings to Producer Rothapfel

OUR greetings to Samuel L. Rothapfel, late exhibitor-showman and now showman-producer. He plans to blaze a trail that may be described as virgin, the creation of an entertainment that will include a whole show, from the overture to "good-night." This will also take in music scores, lighting effects and incidental numbers. His announcements indicate no intention to monopolize this particular field of effort, inasmuch as he will issue but a half dozen units each year. So if he succeeds the doors will be wide open for any who may wish to compete with him on his chosen ground. Moving Picture World wishes "Roxy" good luck; and in view of his great capacity for hard work, it believes success will follow him—as it usually does travel in the company of those who work hard and know their business.

Claude Patin Sails Away

MANY film men will regret the departure from New York of Claude Patin, who has returned to his native land of France. It is the second time Mr. Patin has bid good-bye to his associates in the film colony. The first was at the outbreak of the Great War, when with Charles Jourjon, the president of and the immediate superior of Mr. Patin in the Eclair company, he went home to take up arms. Mr. Patin served for sixteen months, later being transferred to the liaison forces and assigned to the British. He goes back to France with a thorough understanding of the film situation here, which will be a valuable asset to his associates there.

The time was when France showed the world how to make motion pictures. We may be sure its citizens have not lost the art of which once they were so sure even if there has been scant opportunity in recent years of exercising it. American directors have gone far since the days they sat at the feet of French producers; they have created a standard of their own at which the world now aims. And the art in America is not declining. Notable pictures are being made today, and there is every reason to believe they will be even better in the months to come.

Censorship Situation Looks Good

REPORTS received by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry indicate that the situation as regards censorship is far and away ahead of what it was last year at this time. Then there were censorship bills pending in thirty-three states. Today there are six—one bill each in Colorado, Massachusetts, Nebraska, North Carolina and New York and two in Indiana. Last year not one survived the effects of the pitiless rays of publicity with which they were flooded. The association's censorship committee under the chairmanship of D. W. Griffith kept the people and the legislators informed as to what censorship meant to all.

It will be gratifying to the industry to learn that twenty-nine of the forty-eight states are organized effectively to combat any move on the part of censorship advocates and that measures are being taken to complete the roster, to make it 100 per cent. Chairman Gabriel L. Hess, of the association's committee, is imparting his own enthusiasm to the members of the state committees, and there is every reason to expect as gratifying a report at the end of the present legislative season as was recorded in 1918.

There is cause for satisfaction, too, in the word that comes from our Washington correspondent as to the chances or rather non-chances this year of the measure designed to succeed the Smith-Hughes bill of unpopular memory. It is pointed out that Congress will be far too busy at this session and also at the special session, if one be called, to spare any time for the consideration of a measure bearing on censorship.

Looks Like a Commission for Chicago

IF the members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Chicago decide to adopt the commission plan of government for their organization there will be a close watch kept upon its progress by those who have had reason to be dissatisfied with the business methods of similar bodies in the past. As the plan is outlined by our Chicago correspondent there will be a commission of eleven members, who will rotate in the chair for one month. The aim is to eliminate the possibility of or the temptation for boss rule, to keep all the cards on the table all the time—and surely this ought to make for organization. The action of the League in declining to amalgamate with the Allied Amusement Association is significant apparently of at least one thing, and that is a belief on the part of the membership that a real national organization is not without the bounds of possibilities, is within the possibilities in fact.

Our Thanks to Washington's Ministers

REALLY the thanks of the public generally, and of the motion picture industry in particular, are due to the Pastors' Federation of Washington for the distinct service they have performed in collating statistics of Sunday evening attendance—at the churches and at the motion picture theatres. As a result of their investigations it is learned that 7,000 persons, on an average, went to church—the hours taken were between 7:30 and 9 o'clock—while in the motion picture theatres 50,000 persons were entertained. Of course, the disparity disturbs the churchmen.

The idea of making the churches attractive on a Sunday evening does not appeal to the clergymen. Instead they propose to have introduced in Congress a bill closing the theatres on Sunday. Let's see, seven to fifty. That means fourteen to a hundred. In other words, 14 per cent intend to dictate, to dominate, 100 per cent. The minor figures fairly reflect the comparative numbers of those everywhere who would impose their will on the majority; at least we may assume that Washington is a typical American community. Its inhabitants include men and women from "all over" the United States.

The exhibitors of Washington should accept the battle promised them by the churchmen and fight it out on the illuminating figures so fortunately provided for them. The argument well may rest on these. They should convince even a Congressman.

Associated Advertisers to Entertain

THE Associated Motion Picture Advertisers will entertain on the evening of February 15, among their guests being their employers. It is intimated that Truth in all its aspects, hideous and otherwise, will be revealed on this occasion for the edification of the Boss, who will be relegated to the role of subordinate. In the ranks of the Advertisers there is an abundance of talent—some of the members are expert word-architects—and we may be sure it will be a feast of fun and folly as well as of food.

Division of Films to Dissolve

IN announcing the approaching close of the Division of Films Charles S. Hart, who is the head of the department, pays tribute to the motion picture industry for its co-operation with the Committee on Public Information. "There was not a time when any executive or official of the industry was called upon for advice or assistance that he did not give more than was asked for," says Mr. Hart. His added assurance that motion picture men "rendered a patriotic service worthy of the highest appreciation of the people and of the nation" makes good reading and also looks well on the record.

"Doings of Organized Showmen"

THERE is nothing like calling things by their right names, we are told on good authority. A department in this publication conducted under the heading "The Motion Picture Exhibitor" appears in this issue as "Doings of Organized Showmen."

This is the first time in the history of the screen that the word showman has been given such recognition by a moving picture trade paper, although the word showmanship has been growing in importance for the past year until it is now generally accepted as another name for the magic wand which fills the box-office with gold and silver and precious banknotes.

Showman is the most complimentary name that can be applied to an exhibitor.

Page after page is being used weekly in all the trade papers to extol the showmanship of different exhibitors in "putting over" this or that picture.

It is merely a matter of justice to call the successful exhibitor by his right name—showman.

Showmanship is the one and only element that influences favorably every department of moving picture making from the scenario writing to the management of the screen theatres—if the word favorable refers to the money-getting quality of a picture.

There are long established and thoroughly dependable rules of showmanship for all branches of the amusement business. A producer may disregard some of them and still achieve artistic success—and go broke as a reward. The exhibitor may do likewise—with a like result. The showman is satisfied to make money in honest and honorable fashion.

Here are a few quotations from a former article in the Moving Picture World on the subject of showmanship:

Show business is the trade name for every form of amusement enterprise.

Showmanship is the art of making money out of the show business.

Time was when money could be made out of the moving picture business by producers and exhibitors who were not showmen. That day has passed.

Your true showman is among the most wideawake individuals alive.

He is capable of doing his own thinking.

Give him the facts and he'll work out a successful plan to exploit his program.

This knowledge is 50 per cent. tradition and 50 per cent. initiative.

Showmanship is not the art of deceiving the public, but of gaining its confidence.

Personal and Otherwise

THE Lesslie Players Corporation has been incorporated for $100,000, with offices at 1547 Broadway. Its object is to produce and release two-reel comedies. The first comedy to be produced is "Match Tricks," featuring Leo Delaney. The president of the corporation is Richard Lesslie, who will also act as general director. Mr. Lesslie was make-up man for the Vitagraph for several years. He has been associated with the Drews and other producing aggregations. The other officers of the corporation are: Vice-president, Max E. Schwabe; secretary and treasurer, William J. Bloxham, of the firm of W. J. Bloxham & Company, stock brokers; Arthur Morgan, director, and S. Earl Levene, director and counsel. The Tappan Studios on the Hudson are to be used by the corporation, so Mr. Lesslie told us.

* * *

Victor Eubank, formerly connected with the Essanay studios of Chicago, is now stopping in New York, at the Friars Club. Mr. Eubank is responsible for the production of "Skinner's Dress Suit," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "A Pair of Sixes" and many other successful pictures. At present he is not affiliated with any producing company, merely looking over the field and awaiting a favorable opportunity.

* * *

William Humphrey, the well-known director, has organized his own producing company under the name Humphrey Picture Corporation, featuring Grace Davison. He has established offices in the Subway Central Building at Broadway and Forty-second street. He will produce six features a year. The meaning of Humphrey is "protection to the home," and with this definition in view Mr. Humphrey says he will produce pictures that will conform to its significance in every way.

* * *

On Saturday, February 8, C. C. Pettijohn returned from Indianapolis, remained in New York until Monday, February 10, and went back to Indianapolis to resume his efforts in behalf of the bill for Sunday opening. He expressed the opinion that the vote in the Assembly would be very close, but they hoped that the bill would be passed by the Senate first, which would help it in the Assembly. The exhibitors out there are not worried about censorship. Mr. Pettijohn will again return to New York on February 17.

* * *

Myles F. Lasker, who was representative at Buffalo for the Division of Films of the Committee on Public Information, has been appointed manager of the Buffalo office of the Famous Players-Lasky Company.

* * *

D. K. Niles, chief of the motion picture section of the United States Department of Labor, announces the release, through Pathe Exchange, of two single-reel subjects, "Solving the Farm Problem" and "Feeding Our Fighters." The pictures were produced by the division of films of the Committee on Public Information and turned over to the Department of Labor for distribution.

* * *

C. B. Price, formerly with the Triangle as sales manager of the New York branch, has opened an office of his own in the Times Building, handling independent films.

* * *

Raymond Cavanaugh, who was formerly associated with Burton Rice in moving picture art work and advertising, is now connected with Universal's industrial department in an executive capacity. Burton Rice continues his art advertising plant under his own direction.

* * *

A. and H. M. Warner, of Warner Brothers, returned early this week from a trip through Pennsylvania and Ohio. They report that in every town they visited picture showmen were doing uniformly big business and believe that prospects for a continuance of prosperity are excellent. They cited an instance of a theatre manager in Youngstown, with a house seating 300, paying $1,200 for a week of "Virtuous Wives" as indication that venturesome "showmanship" is entering largely into the game to its inestimable benefit.

* * *

Charles Reed Jones and Silas Frank Seadler have pooled their interests in a publicity office, handling the work of individual clients—mostly concerned in moving pictures.

* * *

Arvid E. Gilstrom, who has been on the Coast directing the Lee Kiddies for the Fox Film Corporation, is back in New York. He is to direct George Walsh in a number of Fox features at the Fox Fort Lee studio.

* * *

John Clymer looked quite natural browsing about the lobby of the Astor this week, after his year's sojourn on the Coast, supervising the Francis Ford serial for Louis Burston. John has in mind a trip to London, as soon as the process of reconstruction takes on a more favorable aspect.

* * *

I. H. Simmons, northern New York representative of the First National, has resigned and is about to establish himself in a New York City office, for the exploitation of independent productions.

* * *

Fred Desberg, a well-known picture showman of Cleveland, was in town February 11. On March 15 he will open the Euclid Theatre, 1700 seats, at Euclid avenue and Ninth street, Cleveland. It is unnecessary to say he was very busy in New York making up his future programs.

Association Directors to Meet.

On Monday, February 24, at 11 a. m., a special meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will be held at the headquarters in the Times Building. The object of the meeting is to elect a president in place of William A. Brady, whose resignation will be formally acted upon.

In the afternoon of the same day, at four o'clock, a general meeting of all the members of the association will be held to act upon amendments to the by-laws. We understand that the amendments are to be made, briefly speaking, to admit any individual exhibitor who may care to join the organization.

Alfred Chalmers Returns from Service in France

ALFRED JAMES CHALMERS, only son of John F. Chalmers, general manager of the Moving Picture World, and grandson of James P. Chalmers, president of the Chalmers Publishing Company, arrived in New York from overseas the latter part of January with the Fortieth Engineers.

For several years Mr. Chalmers has taken deep interest in aeroplanes, in their history, their mechanism and their operation. From boyhood he had made a study of gas engines, especially those of automobiles and motor cycles. With the ambition of becoming an instructor in flying he had taken courses at schools in Rhode Island and at the Curtiss plant in Miami, Fla., from the latter of which he was graduated. Owing to the decision of the Government to accept no more instructors Mr. Chalmers in May last enlisted in the engineers, at the same time filing application for transfer to the air forces.

Alfred J. Chalmers.

Mr. Chalmers was first sent to Fort Slocum, New York, and from there to Camp Humphreys, Virginia. The organization sailed for France August 25, Mr. Chalmers shortly afterward being assigned to the camouflage section. Just before the armistice was signed he believed he was to have a taste of front-line work when he was appointed a motor cycle dispatch bearer. November 11 found him close up to the big guns.

As to Mr. Chalmers' future he has not decided, but it is unlikely he will return to school at Cornell, which institution he was attending just prior to his departure for Miami.

Anthony Paul Kelly Recovers.

Anthony Paul Kelly is so far on the road to recovery from his attack of the "flu" as to be able to move to Atlantic City. He had a hard siege with the disease and was obliged to stop work for a month. There isn't any doubt but his trusty typewriter will break a few speed records when he starts to catch up on his commissions.

SEEK EXHIBITOR AID IN STORY POLICY

Jesse L. Lasky Says Showmen Will Determine Future Type of Paramount and Artcraft Subjects

THE exhibitor has come to be the deciding factor in the production policy of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, according to Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of that company, in charge of production. For some time past a new department conducted by George N. Shorey, under Mr. Lasky's supervision, has been in operation, and although no details of the work were made public, the new system has been gradually perfected until each producer of Paramount and Artcraft pictures receives a daily report of what the public taste is throughout the country. Each exhibitor is asked to throw light on the reason for better or worse box-office results on every picture.

This system is now in full operation and Mr. Lasky pointed out the importance of the exhibitor's co-operation in this connection. "I want to say that the exhibitor of Paramount and Artcraft pictures will in the future be the final arbiter as to the type of pictures that shall be produced by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"We have organized a department which aims to keep the producing forces of our corporation throughly familiar with the estimate which the public, speaking to us through our exhibitors, places upon our various offerings. This is a carefully considered attempt to establish real contact between producer and theatre manager and to answer the complaints that are frequently made that the producer does not appreciate exhibiting conditions or assist in overcoming exhibiting difficulties. As the head of this department we have installed George N. Shorey, for many years an exhibitor himself, because we felt that only an exhibitor could keep us in closest touch with the exhibitor's point of view. This policy which we quietly put into operation nearly a year ago now intimately links the thinking exhibitors with our production plans.

"It is important that our directors and scenario staff be kept constantly reminded of even the simplest fundamental principles of how to please the great American public."

Norma Talmadge Installs Photographer.

Norma Talmadge, who recently installed a research department at her studio on East Forty-eighth street, has decided to do away with the nuisance of having to pose for new photographs for the press and the magazines every little while by having a staff photographer right on the studio premises. The photographer selected is Frank Puffer, who will continue to co-operate with the men who turn the crank of the movie camera at the Talmadge headquarters.

Blank to Open Ninth House.

A. H. Blank, head of the Blank Enterprises, controlling the First National Exhibitors' Circuit franchise in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, has added a ninth house to his string of personally owned and conducted theatres in the Middle West by buying the building and the lease of the new Des Moines Theatre, to be opened in Des Moines about April 15. The house, located at Sixth and Grant streets, is to be even more elaborate than the new Rialto in Omaha, Neb. It will be conducted on the style of the Rialto and Rivoli in New York City, with a thirty-piece symphony orchestra, concert singers and other modern innovations. Decorators are now at work on the building, which cost about $500,000.

Film Men in France Are Keeping Up to the Minute

UNCLE SAM'S soldiers, still in France and not with the army of occupation are not wasting their spare time, according to Private George Carroll Johnston, formerly of Minneapolis and for the past few months assigned to the 370th Aero Squadron as motion picture photographer and instructor. Johnston writes that at Chattillon Sur Seine, where he is stationed, Carroll Johnston.

he has a daily class of twenty-five men, formerly connected with film companies, and part of their daily instruction is cinematography, projection, laboratory developing of plates and prints and film salesmanship and exploitation. To aid in his work, Johnston uses the Moving Picture World and various contract and business forms for reference. He states the men are keeping "up to the minute" with the film world so that upon their discharge from service they can take care of their former positions as they never were previously able to. In addition to being motion picture instructor, Private Johnston is also editor of a weekly paper published by the 370th Squadron.

Prior to going into the Canadian army, two years ago, from which he joined the American forces in London, fourteen months ago, Johnston was a slide manufacturer, cameraman and laboratory man at Minneapolis.

Offer Means for Improving Mail Service to Exchanges

MEANS for improving the mail service to make it of more value to the film exchanges of Washington, D. C., and to the theatres in the territory served by them, have been suggested to Postmaster Merritt O. Chance by Sidney B. Lust, president of the Super Films Attractions, Inc., Washington, in response to a request from the former. The suggestions are:

Packages containing C. O. D.'s should contain a duplicate invoice giving a description of the contents, both from the film exchange to the theatres, and from the manufacturers to the exchanges. This would enable us in making payments to see just exactly what we are paying for, thereby doing away with a lot of delay and helping us check up the contents of the package.

Films and advertising matter that are shipped from the exchanges to the exhibitors at a first class rate should be handled the same as the express company does perishable goods. Oftentimes films and advertising matter are shipped to various towns, and instead of the local Post Office giving this the proper attention it is delayed somewhat, and the result is that when these are shipped from the exchanges in the usual ample time through this delay films and advertising matter are not received in time to be shown, thereby causing a loss of the day's rental to the exchanges and disappointing the theatre.

Every time a package of advertising matter or films is delivered without a C. O. D. either to the exchange or theatre a signature should be secured. My reasons for suggesting this is oftentimes an exhibitor claims that he has not received advertising matter, and a great many times he claims that films have not been received in time. By having his signature we could trace this package very easily and ascertain whether the Post Office or exhibitor was at fault.

There should be a way of getting films back to the exchanges without any unnecessary delay. For instance, if a case of films is shipped to an out-of-town exhibitor with a C. O. D. attached, and the exhibitor for some reason or other refuses to accept this package, the procedure that it goes through now is as follows:

The local postmaster sends a green post card to the exchange advising him that package is refused and to send certain amount in stamps to cover return of this package. The chances are that this film is probably booked either on circuit or is to be returned back to its destination for shipment elsewhere, and the time that is lost in receiving this post card and returning stamps causes us to lose a great many bookings. This is a very serious mistake in the postal service as far as the film exchanges are concerned.

There should be a way of instructing the local postmaster to wire the exchanges collect that case of films is refused and asking for shipping instructions. Should the exchange advise him to return the case to Washington or elsewhere, the postmaster should advance the stamps on same and ship back C. O. D. This would do away with a lot of delays and save the exchanges a good many dollars.

Buy or sell; trade what you don't want for something you do. That's what The World's Classified advertising is intended to accomplish.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and MARGARET I. MACDONALD

New Screen Magazine for Universal Promises Many Attractive Features

THE New Screen Magazine, which succeeds what has been known as the Universal Screen Magazine, follows a slightly different policy. It caters to an audience's sense of humor as well as feeding it with an occasional instructive or educational subject, and it will be found a palatable addition to the exhibitor's program.

The first two issues of the New Screen Magazine are very attractive. No. 1 opens with "Intimate Studies in Shoe Psychology" treating the subject briefly and humorously. "How We Foiled the Hun" gives an interesting illustration of how work was carried on at the Camouflage Department. It shows the making of plaster models of ships, the artists at work on these miniature pattern ships, and the inspection of the finished product through a periscope to test the quality of its deceptiveness. The exact theory on which the camouflaging of ships was carried out is fully explained. "A Few Moments with a Broadway Star" gives some intimate glimpses of Mildred Le Cue arriving at the theatre, and also in her dressing room before a matinee performance of "Sometime." This is followed by "Laughographs"; and leading up to the "Whoozit Weekly" (animated cartoons) are some attractive scenes in a maple sugar bush, showing the tapping of the trees, the gathering of the sap, the making of the syrup and the final "sugaring off."

No. 2 opens with "Smiles and Tears and a Bit of Joy," which consists of a page in the life of a child of two or three years. This is pleasantly presented. "Mining Slate for Kiddies' Blackboards" delves into the mysteries of slate mining, following it from its natural state to the mills where it is cut into slabs. A closeup of the scraping machine is interesting. "An American Sport Becomes Internationally Known" shows the American soldier teaching his brothers across the water how to play baseball. "Bringing Broadway's Hits to You" introduces Gertrude Vanderbilt and her mermaids in an attractive scene from "Listen Lester." "Six Days Shalt Thou Labor" gives an amusing choice of jobs for men looking for work. "Laughographs" and an animated cartoon close the reel.

Feb. 21 is the release date set for the first issue of the New Magazine, which will be issued at weekly intervals thereafter.

University's Private Movie Theatre.

The following from D. M. Bain, Wilmington, N. C., points to an interesting development in educational circles:

"Realizing the value of motion pictures as an aid to the courses of instruction studied by its students, the faculty of the North Carolina University has arranged for a private movie theatre at which no admission will be charged, and to which only the student body will be admitted, this action being brought about after the Pickwick, the only regular movie theatre in Chapel Hill, had been closed.

"The show for the students will be operated under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and through the Community Service Bureau of New York the Y secretary, W. R. Wunsch, has arranged to put the show on in Gerrard Hall. The pictures are all to be censored by the Bureau before presentation. Two student-operators, R. M. Johnson and J. W. Dorsett, are operators in charge, while a five-piece student orchestra presents music.

"The first day's show taxed the capacity of the hall and the feature promises to become a permanent adjunct to the courses of instruction as given at North Carolina's university."

"Little High Horse."

One of the Robert C. Bruce scenics which has the usual Bruce stamp of excellence. This time the man, a western cayuse and his great Dane dog are the central figures of the picture. Sometimes they saunter along at an easy pace through the valleys, and at others they are seen ascending the mountains with a rapidity for which the camera man is largely responsible. Beautiful views of the mountain peaks reaching into the sky, lonely trails partially veiled in mists and other scenes which the mountain country affords are in the picture. It was exhibited at the Rialto Theatre, New York City, and is an Educational Films Corporation release.

Explaining Theory of Hand Grenade.

In No. 6103 of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph, E. D. Parmelee of the Bray studios gives a clear illustration of the theory of the hand grenade, by means of a mechanical drawing. As explained by the picture and subtitles, the hand grenade was first used by the Germans. The British immediately improvised grenades out of tin cans, filling them with powder, nails and bits of iron and steel and using a fuse to set them off. Since the length of fuse used was invariably too long, the Germans picked the tin can grenades up when they landed and hurled them back into the British trenches with dire results to their originators.

Viola Dana in "Satan Junior" (Metro).

The effectiveness of the hand grenade was so evident that munition makers were called upon to devise types that would outdo those employed by the Huns. It was but a short time before these were forthcoming and as the war progressed, improved types were evolved until the Allied armies were equipped with hand grenades that were more deadly and destructive than any their enemies employed.

"Model Girls" by Prizma.

The Rivoli Theatre, New York City, included in its program for the week of Feb. 2 an interesting illustration of how wax models are made for the fashion shops. The contrast between the live models and the artificial ones gives a fine opportunity to Prizma to demonstrate its effectiveness. Closeups of the making of the plaster forms and also the pouring of the wax into the molds are shown. The wax forms are then developed into perfect models with glass eyes and hair carefully fastened into waxen scalps. The cheeks are carefully tinted and finally the lady fair is arrayed in drapings of gorgeous material for the showroom or shop window.

"Canada's Mountain of Tears."

One of the recent issues of the Goldwyn-Ford Educational Weekly pictures attractively a mountain in Canada that has been named after the martyred nurse Edith Cavell. The pictures takes the spectator on a mountain-climbing trip, which allows for wonderful panoramas of the surrounding country as well as views of the mountain itself with its glaciers, rocks and snow-capped peak.

"The Romance of Crater Lake."

Wm. L. Finley, of the Oregon Fish and Game Commission, has filmed for the Bray Studios, Inc., the romantic and picturesque Indian legend of Crater Lake, the exquisite lake that lies in the crater of a long since extinct volcano in Oregon. This picture is part of release 6103 of Paramount Bray Pictograph.

The lake and its surroundings give ample opportunity for the art of the cameraman and Wm. Finley has done full justice to his subject. The story that the Indian tells of the origin of the lake is that it was the fighting place of the gods and in the battles that took place in this mountain, the pent-up anger of the ruler of the lower places burst forth, blowing the mountain top far away. In turn the opposing forces put out the burning wrath of the evil dweller by a deluge and the lake that fills the old crater still attests to the greater power of the benevolent spirits.

The Boy's Life Screen Review.

A new periodic single reel educational and news picture is about to be issued by the Boy's Life Productions. It will be edited by the Division of Publications of the Boy Scouts of America, and an effort will be made to have the "Boy's Life Screen Review" shown in as many theatres throughout the country as possible.

Pianist Wanted: You'll find advertisements like this in The World's Classified department where many good positions are offered.

Open Forum to Adopt Film as Substitute for Lecturer

THE newest idea in film adoption has been suggested by and is about to be put in action through the efforts of George W. Coleman, of Boston, in connection with the Open Forum movement.

It has been usual in the holding of George W. Coleman.

Open Forum meetings to employ a lecturer on a given subject under discussion. According to Mr. Coleman's idea the lecturer in many instances will be dispensed with, and a film illustration of the subject, probably two reels in length, will be substituted. David K. Niles, of the U. S. Department of Labor is cooperating with Mr. Coleman in stabilizing the movement and selecting films of a proper length and character for use in this way.

Mr. Coleman's capacity as an organizer should serve him well in the putting into practice the use of the film in Open Forum gatherings in theatres and other meeting places throughout the country. He is the originator and director of the Ford Hall meetings in Boston, and is president of the Open Forum National Council. He is also president of the Sagamore Sociological Conference and has held many other positions of trust and honor, and his pen is responsible for "Searchlights," "The People's Prayers as Voiced by a Layman," and "Democracy in the Making."

It is expected to undertake the filming of desirable subjects for this purpose. At the present time Mr. Niles is busy scouring the records for appropriate material of a suitable length.

Jack Pickford's Initial First National.

Jack Pickford will make his first appearance as a First National Exhibitor's Circuit star in "In Wrong," the story of the love affair of a real boy and girl in a quiet sector of American village life. The story was written by James Kirkwood, who is also the director of the production.

A title which was suggested for the production, "That Spivins Boy," characterizes the story. Jack Pickford plays "that Spivins boy," a grocery boy in fact, a youth possessing a dog, a craving for adventure, the usual troubles of an average seventeen-year-old in a country town, and a love affair which gives him a headache and keeps him "in wrong" from start to finish.

Supporting the star are Marguerite De La Mott, Clara Horton, Hardie Kirkland, George Drumgold, Lydia Knott, Jake Abrams and Robin Williamson. Pickford will undertake his second production immediately, and James Kirkwood will continue to direct.

International Localizes Its Weekly News Reels

ART and science are combined in the editing of tri-weekly news service, according to executives of the International Film Service, but the motto of the "three-a-week" is "pep," according to E. B. Hatrick, who looks after the destinies of the reels.

According to Mr. Hatrick, International now employs the largest staff of news-picture men of any similar organization. To give the public the news pictures that are "red-hot" was the principal idea the company had in mind when deciding to issue the Hearst News, Universal Current Events and Screen Magazine each week.

Mr. Hatrick points out that International is far from satisfied with just getting "red-hot" news pictures. The second point of the policy is distribution. In distributing the releases through Universal and localizing news pictures, International is making its biggest gains. So that the people of Chicago or San Francisco and other cities in the West do not get pictures from their respective localities a week old, International has arranged to have local scenes added to its various reels in the cities in which these views are taken. Also, realizing that certain sections of the country desire pictures that other sections might not care for, International inserts special scenes in certain prints. For instance, the arrival of ships bringing back soldiers to native soil, all look alike to a certain extent. To prevent a great amount of "sameness" in its weeklies, International recently inserted in copies for Indiana distribution pictures of the arrival of returning Hoosier soldiers. These scenes were inserted only in special Central States prints. Scenes showing the arrival of Chicago units, Cincinnati, California and other divisions were treated in a similar manner.

"Heart of Wetona" in Music.

A far-reaching publicity stunt has just been accomplished by Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Norma Talmadge Film Corporation, who has made arrangements with Leo Feist, music publisher, to assist Mr. Feist in the exploitation of the song, "Heart of Wetona," which has just been published by Mr. Feist's firm. This song, with words by Sidney D. Mitchell and music by Archie Gottler, is dedicated to Miss Talmadge, having been inspired by her performance in "The Heart of Wetona." The cover of the song bears an autographed photograph of Miss Talmadge.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Crowds.

ARGUING in favor of an increased rate of admission, and reciting that a number of Philadelphia theatres have successfully gotten away with an increase in admission from ten to fifteen cents, Vine Street, a local exhibitors' sheet, winds up with:

> If all the foregoing arguments do not convince the exhibitor that he should raise his admission price, let him bear in mind that crowds are unwholesome. They invite competition; they spread disease; they breed restrictive health and fire regulations and last but not least they surfeit the public with movie entertainment and cheapen its popularity. Comfortably filled theatres are more desirable than over crowded houses when the receipts are the same.

We cannot cry "amen" to that. It is bad advice. Nothing breeds success like success, as has been demonstrated time and again, and a crowd is the visible and tangible evidence of success. When Weber and Fields were selling out to the fire limit nightly at the little house at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street, they were offered many larger houses but they shrewdly refused to move. They knew that the difficulty in procuring tickets was one of their best advertisements. People wanted to go to Weber and Fields' just because they found it so difficult to gain admission. In a larger house where all could have been accommodated, there would have been a smaller demand for seats. The same has held good of innumerable other attractions. Removal to a larger house to gain the advantage of the extra business has spoiled the business entirely. It is true that if a person comes too often; if you get the same crowd two or three times a week, they will tire more quickly than if they went once a week or once every two weeks, but the crowd will make new business to replace that dropping away. But none of this is an argument for the lower price and the larger attendance. Price is not the attraction to the crowd. It is quality, and to some extent price works the other way. People take a certain pride in patronizing the higher priced house. It stamps them as particular people who want the best, and this argument can be employed to increase the crowds if the appeal is not too obvious. The thing to do is to put your price up and still keep the crowd. Business may fall off momentarily, but it is the history of most increases that the temporary drop is almost certain to be followed by an increase in the other direction.

Camden Colonial Changes.

Mrs. A. R. Woodruff, of the Colonial, Camden, has passed her interests to a group of Philadelphians headed by Alexander Boyd, of the Arcadia. John E. Hennessy will be in active charge of the Colonial. Mrs. Woodruff took charge of the Colonial some three years ago. It was a poor proposition then, but through her skillful management the house has risen and prospered. She has played the game nicely and fairly, giving the patrons a square deal that inspired their confidence and won their loyalty. When Mrs. Woodruff first took hold she did considerable experimenting with her program, but for the last year or so she has not had cause to change the style, which has been several times reproduced in these columns and which is here given again. The essence is a few lines of italic presenting briskly and attractively the merits of the feature, followed by a bank of roman. The italic is in ten point and the roman in an eight in a 20 em column with side dates, as shown. The page is a six by nine. The front has a picture of a girl in colonial costume, while the back carries house talk in double column and usually the box at the head of page three is given to the chief of the three attractions for the week. We are sorry to lose Mrs. Woodruff, who is an old friend of this department. We hope that she will find idleness not to her liking and will presently take up another house.

A Six by Nine Program from the Colonial, Camden, Which Has Stood the Test of Time. A Ten Point Italic Introduction Is Followed by an Eight Point Roman Bank.

Steve Stunts.

It is so seldom that Steve Farrar slips that when he does get out a poor advertisement it is a novelty. The two seven and a halfs on the right of this first display is about as poor an advertisement as we have seen from him. Both displays drop seven and a half inches, but one is three columns wide and deals with a single bill, while the other gets two bills in a two-column space. The trouble with the latter is that the display is badly set. The use of the same size type for all titles is deadly to display. It makes a mess of type in which nothing stands out. The Monday display is better done, because here the type is better proportioned. The triple is better in many ways other than type. In the first place it catches the attention from the start. That "He didn't mean to be a thief" gets you right at the top of the display. It not only meets you, but it comes after you, and it means a thousand times more to a would-be theatre-goer than the fact that Jesse L. Lasky presents Cecil De Mille's seven-reel super-production. Here you have to read four lines before you even get interested. It doesn't work. Biff a man between the eyes with a striking catchline and then you can afford to let the press book copy get in its deadly formal work. The second set of samples gives a three twelve for Chaplin and a two sixes for the regular show and another for the Chaplin underline. We think that we would be particular to use the signature on those First National Chaplins, and we would educate our clientele to realize that the signature stands for the newest Chaplin product. It is worth money to a house to be able to use this signature guarantee. It is a part of what it pays money for. The larger display is a capital use of the space, other than the signature. The small type tells some of the funny incidents in the story; just enough to rouse curiosity. Steve ran a five-reeler with this instead of filling in with small stuff, but he ran continuous. Even at that, it is necessary to race eight reels to satisfy the crowd, and the crowd is not satisfied if the reels are raced. It spoils the entire show. Give them time to enjoy the real humor of the film. It is too good to be hurried.

A Poor Example from Steve Farrar (on the right) and a Good Display Where There Was Room for Chat.

Steve's Chaplin Announcements.

Real Work.

Just before Christmas Arthur James, of Metro, sent out a page to all the papers maintaining photoplay pages or using such material. This plate contained Christmas greetings from Nazimova, Viola Dana, Emmy Whelen, Hale Hamilton, Bert Lytell and May Allison. The first two were in half tone and the others in silhouette, each greeting three columns wide. In no instance was there any mention of Metro or films. It was purely a personal greeting, and could be worked up in any one of a score of effective ways. It was far better than anything with an advertising sting and was more widely used. It was clean, sound press work and helped Metro far more than would be possible with trade marked cuts which only the smallest papers would use. It was sent out in time to be run in special Christmas editions printed in advance, which added to its usefulness.

Practice and Theory.

One of these advertisements was laid out by an advertising agency and the other by a house manager. Both are from Colorado Springs. Before you read further look them over and see if you can pick out the one done by the agency. If you have any experience with agencies, you'll know that the advertisement for the America was written by the experts and that the other is the work of the more practical man. The America is a mighty pretty display but it is not a selling advertisement. It has a nice looking frame and the type is put in with a nicety that will delight any artistic printer, but it will not sell one ten-cent ticket over and above the attendance that would come anyway. "One of the funniest stories ever filmed" means nothing when taken by itself. It may or may not be true. There is nothing to support the argument. On the other hand the Princess tells you what sort of a part Miss Ferguson has, tells that it is dramatic and adds that the settings are out of the ordinary. The first and last sections are selling talk. It will very likely catch some people who will be interested in the London settings or in seeing how Miss Ferguson plays a widow. Then there are two named fillers to help along. The display is not as pretty as the America, though it is good, but it gets the big points over far better than the other display, and will sell tickets. It was written by Harry E. Gardner, who used to be a railroad press agent when he first came into this department with some amateur advertisements that were not amateurish even then. He adds:

Monday Tuesday and Christmas Day AMERICA
Constance Talmadge In
"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots"
One of the Funniest Stories Ever Filmed! Dainty Constance Talmadge Makes It All the Funnier!
TOMORROW and TUESDAY
ELSIE FERGUSON
Beautiful Emotional Star of Artcraft Pictures, in
"ROSE OF THE WORLD"
PRINCESS ORCHESTRA — Best Music Always PRINCESS
A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL
Elsie Ferguson
Christmas and Thursday — MARGUERITE CLARK in "OUT OF A CLEAR SKY"

One of These Was Laid Out by an Advertising Agency and the Other by a House Manager. Can You Guess Which?

> The value of the "pipe" story as a medium of publicity seems to have escaped the notice of many exhibitors, especially those in the smaller places.
>
> You may recall that when the writer first "busted into" the columns of the World he was still an outsider, and had never really been in the game. I was passenger agent for a western trunk line.
>
> The first rule of passenger department publicity is this: "Every time you induce some person to read, write, speak or even think, the name of your line, you have accomplished a certain amount of publicity."
>
> The same is true of every picture show, whether in the big city or the tiny hamlet.
>
> As a railroader, I never lost an opportunity to "put over a pipe," no matter how small the mention. Newspapermen generally enjoy putting one over, and at the same time they are, as a class, the easiest to fall for the fake story. Sometimes they will go 50-50 with you and again you have to string them along with the dear public.
>
> To be of real utility, the fake story must have some local interest, which does not necessarily mean it would not apply elsewhere. I am furnishing a copy of a little story I put over Saturday night near the close of the Red Cross drive. Pure bunc, of course, but the editor fell for it and so did the public, and it did not hurt the Red Cross cause. And, it would work just as well in Detroit or Podunk as in Colorado Springs.

The story was simple enough. It merely told of a man who came back after the performance one evening, explaining that he had lost a button. He said he had just paid a dollar for it. Of course it turned out to be a Red Cross button, for the story ran the week of the drive. It was a "pipe" or "dog" story, pure and simple, but it worked, and enough of them will help keep a house on the map. It is the essence of press work to keep your house in mind, and you can do this better with dog stories than you can with straight press work, because these latter will not only stick in the memory but be passed along to others. They are not hard to write, if you have a little imagination, and most editors will eat the stuff if you do not get it too raw.

From Benton.

The Auditorium, Benton, Ill., seems to believe in putting over the serials, and it took a lot of space in which to exploit the start of Eddie Polo in "The Lure of the Circus." It takes a hint from Steve Farrar and uses two advertisements on the same page for one issue, a three sevens for the serial and a two sevens for a concert company. We thought that Blind Boone had gone into retirement long ago. He certainly would seem to have earned a rest, but he is still traveling. The three sevens is the wind up of a series of advertisements, which explains the "Final word" used for an attractor. It is not a bad example of straight type work; nothing particularly good, yet not bad. The text is well written to hold the attention. The serial is exploited in greater detail in earlier advertisements of which a two sevens is a good example. Here four specific points are taken up, though three of the points are rather closely related—the appeal of the circus acts. This is better set than the first example, and is better proportioned. Most of the lines are opened with lead and are easily read and the appeal is made attractively, but we think that Mr. Colovos should have insisted upon some cuts with which to work. This is a subject where cuts would help above the ordinary, and the Universal has provided plenty of cuts, which can be obtained through the home office if the exchange is remiss. A third example from the Hippodrome is not so good. It is a three tens for two subjects. The cut off rule is so much stronger than the border that it suggests two advertisements. Of course in a country paper this is not as bad as it might have been in a city edition, but any printer should know better than to use cut-off rule within copy, and he should also know enough not to use a rule heavier than his border. The border is about a two-point and the rule is a full six-point. That bank of all capitals in Blind Boone Concert Co.

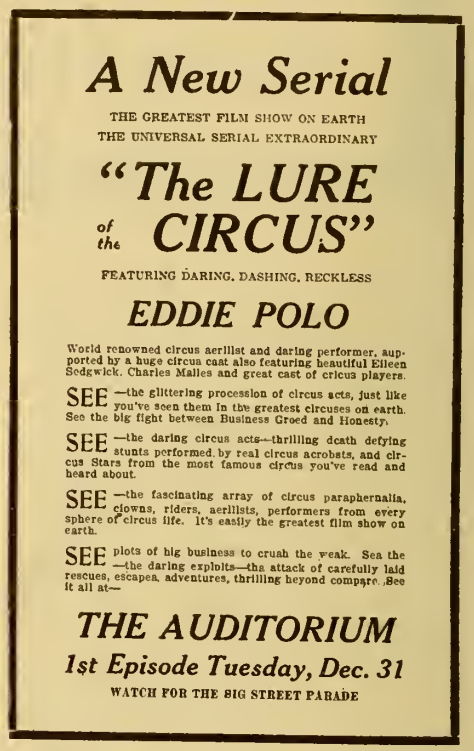
A Concert of Unequaled Brilliancy
ALL COLORED PEOPLE—MUSIC AND SINGING
BRING THE CHILDREN!
Auditorium, Thurs. Dec. 26
Final Word!
THE LURE of the CIRCUS
A Genuine Circus on the Screen
AUDITORIUM, TUES. DEC. 31

A Two Sevens and a Three Sevens for the Same House, Holding the Two Announcements Apart.



A New Serial
THE GREATEST FILM SHOW ON EARTH
THE UNIVERSAL SERIAL EXTRAORDINARY
"The LURE of the CIRCUS"
FEATURING DARING, DASHING, RECKLESS
EDDIE POLO
World renowned circus aerilist and daring performer, supported by a huge circus cast also featuring beautiful Eileen Sedgwick, Charles Malles and great cast of cricus players.
SEE —the glittering procession of circus acts, just like you've seen them in the greatest circuses on earth. See the big fight between Business Greed and Honesty.
SEE —the daring circus acts—thrilling death defying stunts performed by real circus acrobats, and circus Stars from the most famous circus you've read and heard about.
SEE —the fascinating array of circus paraphernalia, clowns, riders, aerilists, performers from every sphere of circus life. It's easily the greatest film show on earth.
SEE plots of big business to crush the weak. See the —the daring exploits—the attack of carefully laid rescues, escapes, adventures, thrilling beyond compare. See it all at—
THE AUDITORIUM
1st Episode Tuesday, Dec. 31
WATCH FOR THE BIG STREET PARADE

A Two Sevens Wholly Given Over to Advance Work for a Serial About to Open.

BENTON
HIPPODROME
YOU
NEED NOT BUY TURKEY OR DUCKS FOR YOUR XMAS DINNER AS WE WILL GIVE THEM AWAY AT THE HIPPODROME THEATRE ON TUESDAY NIGHT, DEC. 24, AT 8:30 AFTER THE FIRST PERFORMANCE. IT DOES NOT MATTER HOW LONG WE HAVE BEEN CLOSED OR HOW MUCH MONEY WE HAVE LOST DURING THE CLOSING TIME, BUT WE WILL DO THIS FOR A FREE CHRISTMAS DINNER FOR SOME OF OUR LUCKY PATRONS, WITH IN ADDITION TO OUR SPECIAL PROGRAM
Alice Brady in
The Mercy of Men
also one reel special battle song
The Star Spangled Banner
MATINEE—2:30 10c and 15c NIGHT—6:30 and 8:25 10c and 20c
CHRISTMAS NIGHT
The Famous Mme. Petrova in
The Light Within
THE ROMANCE OF A BEAUTIFUL GIRL'S ESCAPE FROM A MISTAKEN MARRIAGE, A HUMAN INTEREST DRAMA OF ESPECIAL STRONG APPEAL TO WOMEN. READ THE STORY IN THIS ISSUE. also a two-reel comedy
MAIN 1-2-3
MATINEE—2:30 10c and 15c NIGHT—6:30 and 8:25 10c and 15c

A Three Tens in Which a Poor Display Is Made.

the upper right hand corner is very bad, and the same mistake is made below the title for "The Light Within" where the reader is asked to get three lines of solid eight-point caps with little spacing between the words and none between the lines. Even a country printer should know that all cap lines cannot be read save with extreme effort. It would be better to run in a ten-point upper and lower or even an eight-point upper and lower leaded.

Franklin's Wives.

Harold B. Franklin's three fours for "Virtuous Wives" makes a pretty display, apart from the portrait, which is a bit stiff. Most pen and ink portraits are apt to be lacking in life, but this is not up to the Franklin average. Miss Stewart's eyes

BEG. SUN.
HIPPODROME
SHEA'S
ANITA STEWART
returns to the screen in an all-star production
Virtuous Wives
OWEN JOHNSON'S GREAT NOVEL of MARRIED LIFE IN NEW YORK SOCIETY CIRCLES ALSO
MACK SENNETT'S "Hide and Seek Detectives"
Symphony Orchestra 31 SOLOISTS
FEATURE WILL NOT BE SHOWN ELSEWHERE FOR 30 DAYS.

A Three Fours with Clear Hand Lettering from Harold B. Franklin.

are not on the bias and she has more of a regular nose. A feature of the cut is the use of benday for the name of the star and the main title. This is a risky experiment and one not to be recommended, but Mr. Franklin gets away with it better than most because he has plenty of space in which to display the lettering. The rest of the text is better than average for hand lettering because it more nearly approaches a type effect. We do not like the "Big. Sun." up in the corner. Abbreviation is all right where the whole story must be told in two or three lines, but where three fours are used, the words should be spelled out or else left out altogether. It would be taken for granted that the play did start on Sunday since the advertisement appeared in the Sunday issue. "Today and all week" would have been better yet.

Proportions.

Here is an excellent example of a good advertisement gone wrong through the composition. It is a four tens from a Los Angeles paper, and it offers good copy, but the compositor, feeling that he has a lot of space to fill proceeded to fill it with type too large for the value of the announcement. The top line, the main title and the star are well set, but the lines above and below the star's name are too large in proportion to their value. Smaller lines would have given more prominence to Miss MacLaren's name and at the same time would have made it easier to read the lines themselves. An eighteen point would have been plenty enough for these lines and would have given prominence to the more important facts. In the same way, the six names at the bottom if set in an eighteen and spaced would have given more prominence and an effect of lightness. It would also have thrown up the house signature better. The printer does not know these things. He should have been told.

A Four Tens in Which the Compositor Has Used Type Too Large to Get the Best Results.

Ruff Stuff.

Since he went back home Ralph Ruffner has been so busy telling the natives about the chorus girls and the shimmy dance and things like that, he has had no time to send in stuff, but he did ship along a page he used just before the second flu closing hit the town. It was felt that the story was a bit highbrow and might not get over, so a page display was used, but we think it one of the least effective bits of work Ruff has done. There is no real selling talk. The type under the cuts should have been captions telling what the pictures meant, and the appeal of the story should have been hammered home. Steve Farrar did better with his top line which told why the man stole the money and put it up to the reader if he himself would not have been sorely tempted. This gave the story a human touch and got it over. Ruff got a good display, but he did not get an advertisement.

A Page Display from Ralph Ruffner Which Does Not Tell Very Much.

Program Stuff.

Here is some good stuff for reissues and rebooks. The reissue is all right where it is offered as such, and the rebook is even better now and then. C. H. Bayer has the right idea and puts it neatly:

"I wish I had seen that picture when it was here. Everybody has told me how good it was, but I was so unlucky as to miss it." You have often said that, and so have many of your friends. You never could manage to see all the pictures, and you often let a good one get away. Later on you've heard about it, and you did a lot of regretting. Suppose you were given another chance to see the very best of these pictures of yesterday; you'd jump at it, wouldn't you? From time to time we are going to have an "Old Favorite" program. We will show one of the best pictures of the past. Out of all the pictures released in the last four years we have selected a few because their appeal is eternal, and you will see one on Friday when you see Wm. S. Hart in "Hell's Hinges." If you missed this one then, here is your chance. And if you saw it we know you will want to see it again.

There can be no better advertisement for a film than its first success and a rebook after a reasonable interval will often bring in more business than did the original showing, if the rebookings are carefully made and the prints are still good.

Needs an Editorial Page.

The Eureka Theatre, Philadelphia, gets out a regular four page newspaper every other week instead of using the small program. The idea is good, and they get out a good looking sheet, but there is room for improvement. In the first place we would suggest an editorial each week. A straight house talk, not about the show but about the house, would help a lot to get readers. Then run into local conditions. Boom up the section. Kick for improvements. In addition try to get more local notes. Only about a column of local stuff is used. A half page or even a page would give a value to the issue that would be worth the cost of composition as against the plate matter used. Get a page of local items—real news—and enough trade advertising can be obtained to more than pay the entire cost. The grocer, the baker and the butcher will all want to come in if they are sure that the paper is being read, and it will be read if the local items are run. There is nothing better as a medium than the paper that appeals even to those who are not at first interested in pictures. In time they can be made regular patrons. Advertise on your screen for notes. Work churches, get the names of clubs and get after the secretaries and in no time at all the paper will be a self-supporting eight-pager. It is good as it is, but it can be made much better.

Start that File.

Clip the Christmas suggestions now for use next year. Then you'll have a good assortment of ideas along in November instead of having to wait until the new year.

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and typesetting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 Fifth Ave., New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Important Notice.

OWING to the mass of matter awaiting publication, it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second sets of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Two-Phase Action.

C. L. Bolinger, Salina, Kansas, is puzzled by two-phase current. He says:

"I am trying hard to follow your advice and understand everything connected with my work as well as I can, but one thing puzzles me badly. So far I have not been able to understand two and three phase current. Will you help me by explaining the matter in simple language? I am sure many besides myself will appreciate it. Wishing you a Happy New Year, I will close by saying that our department and your Handbooks, of which I have all three, are my bibles."

I can readily understand your puzzlement, Friend Bolinger, though the thing really is very simple. If you have a set of Hawkins' Electrical Guides, as you should have, you will find the matter well explained and illustrated on page 1558 (book No. 7). The matter lies just this way. In dynamo action an electric impulse is generated when an armature coil passes one of the generator pole pieces, which impulse begins at zero voltage and amperage, rises to maximum as per figure 4, page 16 of the Handbook, and then drops back to zero. Now with a single phase generator this necessarily means that the current will fluctuate from zero to maximum and back to zero with every alternation, since the coils must pass from under the influence of one pole before entering that of another. Now, if we add another coil, set at such angle to the first that when the first is at zero the second will be at maximum, then don't you see we shall have what really amounts to two generators in one, and we may, by a separate set of wires, send out this second electrical impulse, which will necessarily always be in perfect step with the first, and apply it to either a separate motor or to lamps. Nor is that all, for by proper connection of the two coils the impulses may be sent forward on three wires. We may also add a third armature coil in such fashion that the three coils are at maximum alternately, and we then have three-phase current, which gives a very flat current line. With a two-phase three-wire system we may connect single-phase motors to one side or a two-phase motor to all three wires. In the latter motor there are two entirely separate armature windings, each of which in effect constitutes a single-phase motor, and that is why a two-phase motor will operate for a time at reduced power on a single-phase line. The advantages of two-phase and three-phase current are found in less costly generator construction and more economical generator operation and the flatter current line, which means more even torque (turning force) for motors and less flicker tendency in light. There is also economy in copper for distributing lines. There, that is about as clear as I am able to make it without a lot of drawings.

An Explanation Which Does Not Explain.

It has been called to our attention that Mr. Mott, National Carbon Company, has been accused of explaining the increase of light when amperage is increased beyond the value sufficient to give crater area equal to what seems to be the capacity of the lens system of the projector by saying that "the brightest portion of the crater becomes more stationary as the current is increased, whereas it wanders considerably at lower amperages."

Sorry, Brother Mott, but if you are guilty as charged the sentence is that you immediately explain to us the why and wherefore of the fact that whereas at say eighty amperes the screen brilliancy is, so far as the eye can discern, absolutely constant, yet if we increase the amperage to 100 there is a very decided gain in screen brilliancy. I don't think you are guilty, Neighbor Mott, but if you are it is up to you to get exceedingly busy. If the statement attributed to you is true, then the screen brilliancy at 80 would vary as the "brightest spot" promenaded about, and the variation would be very discernible—at least as much as the difference between 80 and 100 amperes show. I have every respect for your knowledge, Friend Mott, but to my mind your explanation, or rather the explanation attributed to you, does NOT explain.

And now I'm going to 'spose my own ignorance. Here is my explanation of the matter: In the cut we will presume the crater to be operating at 50 amperes D. C. and lines A and B. to represent the cone of light striking inside the aperture plate opening, as shown by back-testing. Theoretically, no light emanating outside these lines will reach the aperture. All light emanating in the crater area outside the crater area indicated by the lines will fall on the cooling plate and be lost. But is that strictly true? I don't believe it is. According to your theory, if it were possible to cover the area of the crater inside the lines with an opaque shade without affecting the rest of the crater no light at all would reach the screen, though the circle of light on the cooling plate would remain unchanged. Sounds good. Looks like it ought to work out, but I don't believe it will. In my opinion, a percentage of the light outside the area does reach the screen, and that percentage is in direct proportion to the nearness of the point to the crater area inside the lines, decreasing rapidly with increase of distance. This would fully explain the fact that from minimum up to 60 amperes the increase of screen illumination with increase of amperage is very rapid, but after sixty is passed it slows up and keeps on slowing up with increasing rapidity until about 120 amperes is reached, after which there seems to be no appreciable gain. Mind you, I am not at all certain I am right in this matter, but I am reasonably certain the theory Brother Mott is made sponsor for is not right. The other possible theory was advanced by Projectionist Bowen, who claims that voltilization is speeded up by increased amperage, and thus crater brilliancy is made greater.

This matter seems to be of considerable importance, because until we thoroughly understand exactly what takes place as between the crater and the lens system we cannot hope to work intelligently, or to plan some method of utilizing a greater percentage of the total illumination.

Incidentally, might I presume to suggest that the National Carbon Company solemnly vowed, affirmed and promised this particular Slave of the Typewriter that it would make certain crater measurements for him. S'posin' you come across! Those measurements are tagged with a card reading, "WANTED."

Show Me, Brother!

F. J. Campbell, in the midst of a letter dealing with other things, says:

"In December 28 issue appears an article titled 'What Constitutes Competency,' in which appear many questions the answers to which a man should know in order to get a license. Now, where can I get a book that will answer these questions? I do not find any of the answers in either the third edition of the Handbook or the Hawkins Guides. Have the question booklets, but here in these small towns there is no way to find out the answers. Recently a question was asked in the department as to what made the picture move up and down on the screen. You gave two or three possible causes, but not all. That is the sort of thing we small-town men have to face, and we don't have any one to help us."

Neighbor Campbell, you will have to show me the question in "What Constitutes Competency" the answer to which is not to be found in either the Handbook or the Hawkins books. It is quite true these books don't give you the answer in just so many words, but they supply the basis of knowledge which will enable you to understand all those things, and when you do that you can answer. Merely to give you the answer would not help you in the least, except to possibly pass an examination without having any real knowledge, only to get into trouble later on. Take the matter of selecting the cables as given in article in question. Turn to page 42 of the Handbook, and you will see what you need in capacity for any amperage. Turn to page 48, and you learn how to measure and know what size cable you select. Turn to page 52, and you learn how to distinguish as between the various insulations, and the National Code will tell you what you must have for the work in hand, but on page 54 of Handbook you see what kind you may use in conduit. On page 45 you may even learn how to tell the examiner exactly what the voltage drop of the wire will be for any given length, and may learn whether or not a given wire would be economical in operation. But you must study and learn. Just to memorize an answer to a question doesn't get you anywhere. Take the matter of the switchboard on page 257 (all page numbers refer to Handbook), you are instructed in the use of a test lamp, by which you may readily ascertain the voltage of the various circuits. The kind of current (A. C. or D. C.) can, all but the 500, which we know or are safe in assuming to be A. C., be told by the "feel," first having carefully ascertained the voltage by lamp or instrument, or by the instruments, if any, or a voltmeter if one is supplied you. We now have ascertained voltage and kind of current, except as to phase. If the switch carries but two wires and the current is A. C. it will be single phase. If three wires, it will be either two or three phase, and so far as I know you could not determine which, except by reference to the name plate on the motor. If the motor were single-phase (very unlikely under the conditions named), I would not myself be able to determine whether or not the three-wire was two or three phase current. But the point is that you can learn all these things from the books you have named by studying them, aiding study by careful practical experiments, insofar as you are able. The first thing is to clearly understand the fundamental principles underlying electrical action. Until you do so you won't advance very fast or very far. As to the practical troubles, such as film movement, you may apply for help to this department as often as may be necessary, and you will always find such knowledge as we may possess to be at your disposal. We will answer the most elementary question for a small-town man, for the very reason you have named. City men we expect to understand elementary things, but the small-town man—well, for many reasons, he is entitled to aid in matters we would roast the tar out of the city man for not understanding.

Cimmittee Appointed to Work with Underwriters.

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers has appointed the following committee to work with the Underwriter Laboratories: A. F. Victor, J. C. Moulton and F. H. Richardson . The Underwriters Laboratories will appoint a similar committee, and the committee of six thus formed will elect the chairman who will preside over its deliberations.

This, it seems to me, is not only a step, but a good, big jump in the proper direction. Such a combination committee should accomplish much good in many directions.

Should Be Arrested.

Seems to me theatre managers who issue flamboyant advertising describing the beauty of productions to be seen on their screen, and then project said productions at race-horse speed to accommodate a schedule too short for the program, should be arrested for indecent exposure of their intellectual apparatus.

Theoretical vs. Practical.

Brother Griffith, Ansonia, Connecticut, who, to date, is the only man who has given us anything of any considerable benefit in practical projection as applied to the improvement of the projector optical train—anything the projectionist is able to apply in his daily work, I mean—hands us the following:

"With reference to the paper which Dr. Kellner read before the meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers dealing with the condenser, I do not know whether or not you have recognized the fact, but there are two entirely separate factions in the projection field, as applied to optics of the projector. One of these factions holds that at or near the machine aperture is the place for the crater image to be focused, whereas the other stoutly maintains that the crater image should be focused in the projection lens. It is to this latter class Dr. Herman Kellner belongs. It is quite true the doctor holds, and justly holds, eminent position in the optical field, still that fact does not prove his position in this particular matter to be the correct one. In this connection it is quite permissible to point out the fact that other men who also are very prominent in the field of optics, and particularly in the field of projection optics, hold differently. I refer to the Professors Gage, who, in their work, 'Optic Projection,' page 593, have the following to say: 'The method which has been found most successful in lighting motion pictures is to focus the image of the crater image not on the objective, but on the aperture plate.'

"With reference to your query as to reason for divergence of beam beyond aperture, you will readily see that divergence will depend on where we focus the crater image. With a corrected condenser and the image placed at the projection lens there would be no spreading of the ray between aperture and lens; hence, Dr. Kellner's contention that any spreading of the ray there is due to spherical aberration. However, there would not be a complete crater image at any one plane, even though corrected condensers be used, because in the practice the crater does not occupy a position parallel with the face of the condenser lens. The upper part of the crater will probably be found to be, on an average, 1/5 of an inch nearer the lens than its lower edge. Of course this angle will vary heavily in different individual cases where D. C. is used, and, when we consider A. C., it is very difficult to say what the average condition would be. Taking 1/5 of an inch as the average for D. C. craters, it would mean that the top of the crater would be focused at least 3.5 inches further from the condenser than would the lower edge. It therefore follows that even with a corrected image there would hardly be any true crater image within the projection lens.

"I have been reading with much interest Dr. Kellner's paper, which he read before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers (We intend to publish same in this department as soon as the society releases it for publication.—Ed.), particularly the part where he discusses the diaphraming action of the aperture. It is to be regretted that the doctor did not choose the plane of greatest concentration of the light beam for his aperture position. He is evidently under the impression that the plane of greatest concentration, commonly called the crater or source image, is not of even density, whereas by daily observence practical projectionists are convinced that it is superior (Immeasurably so, I would say.—Ed.) to the plane chosen by him for the aperture, besides being tremendously more economical as regards the item of light waste.

"This is shown in the illustration, in which A is the position Kellner chooses for the aperture and B the point of greatest concentration—the crater image. Dr. Kellner's article is one of the best arguments I have seen in favor of placing the crater image at or near the aperture. Is it not the fact that the projectionist who has need for every bit of available illumination at the screen just naturally withdraws his crater to reduce the spot as much as possible? If his lamphouse were set to place his crater image at the projection lens, his spot would be too small by the time he drew the crater back to the aperture, leaving the corners dark, and thus he would have the condition so prevalent just a few years back, viz.: If the crater image be advanced to the lens there was a blue ghost, and, if it were withdrawn to the aperture, the screen corners were dark. The lens charts were figured to have the crater image cover the aperture when fully concentrated, which, of course, leaves the divergence of the beam beyond the aperture to contend with. If, when the conditions of the latest chart have been met, it is found that the projection lens is not of sufficient diameter, we then have the option of either advancing the crater image or retarding the lamphouse. The latter course has a tendency to reduce the illumination, but to preserve evenness of illumination. The former has less tendency to reduce illumination, but greater tendency to unevenness of illumination at the screen. If the projectionist has an abundance of illumination at his screen without increasing amperage, he can then afford to increase distance between condenser and aperture, thus maintaining evenness of illumination, but if he is already deficient in illumination he will get better results by slightly advancing his crater image by moving the lamphouse forward a little. But in any event the chart (December 28 issue.—Ed.) conditions represent the highest possible efficiency, and any modification means decrease in efficiency."

With all of which I heartily agree, except in one point. I do not quite follow Brother Griffith when he says retarding the lamphouse means less screen illumination, unless he proposes pulling the lamp house back so far that the beam begins to spread before reaching the aperture. If he means the loss through installing longer focal length condenser, why, that would be made up by the narrowing of the beam divergence beyond the aperture, would it not? Little more light in this shady spot, please. Brother Griffith suggests Vancouver Class A men should enter this discussion. We will welcome it, and it would be for their benefit. But since it is hardly possible they have had the advantages for study of these very complicated matters such men as Griffith, Solar, Armstrong and others have enjoyed, it is hardly to be expected that they will make no errors. Come on in anyhow, Vancouver. Don't lettum bluff you. That's the way you'll get wise, and I'm here to see that you're not made a monkey of. Betcha a bunch of kale the Vancouver men will surprise you, Friend Griffith, if we can set 'em going!

Unions a Purely Business Organization.

A certain projectionist appeals to the editor to help him out of a hole if it can be done. As he sets the matter forth the facts are as follows: When New York City Auxiliary 35 of the M. P. M. O. end of things became Local Union 306 this brother was in good standing, but was working up state and had no New York City license, which fact acted automatically to shut him out from membership in 306. Granting the correctness of his status as above set forth (I have his statement only for that), it certainly was the union's duty to give the man in question an honorable withdrawal card. That, it seems to me, was the plain duty of the union, or of those in charge of the change from auxiliary to union. He now asks us to help him get this omission remedied, which same I have, of course, referred to our Assistant President L. G. Dolliver for such action as he may think proper in the matter. The man has, it seems to me, very nearly waived his rights by waiting all this time.

I am only setting this forth to point a sort of moral. A union is nothing else than a purely business organization. That the "brother" end of it is well leavened with bunk is proven by the fact that I have myself heard two men call each other "brother" many times in the course of an evening meeting, and then try to bounce a brick off each others heads at the first and every recurring opportunity until the next meeting, when they are again "brothers." A union is, I repeat, purely and wholly a business organization formed to conserve the business interests of the members thereof. Used in this sense, the word "business" covers wages and working conditions of the members. When a man joins he pays an initiation fee, often of considerable size, and to him a large amount. His membership, therefore, just to that extent, represents and becomes a property right the moment he has been obligated. That property right may, however, be abrogated if he violates certain laws of the organization to which he agrees when he joins, just as insurance may be abrogated if certain rules of the company be violated. He also acquires what amounts to another property right, and a very valuable one, because without membership he will be unable to work in well organized cities. Membership, therefore, involves both property rights and his freedom of action in his chosen calling or vocation in life.

And now here is my point: There is, it seems to me, altogether too much looseness on the part of unions in recognizing the rights of individual members. The case I have cited is a case in point. Unions are too prone to demand fairness for the body as a whole, and then treat the matter of fairness in business matters as between itself and individual members quite cavalierly. Perhaps carelessness might be the better word. There is seldom any deliberate design to be unfair, but unions should realize that membership involving money consideration and the right to work is very decidedly not to be treated carelessly. It should be handled just as carefully as the banker handles his business, nor can it be justly held that the responsibillty for right dealing as between the member and the organization rests entirely wlth the member.

City License.

Malcoln Rosell, Grand Rapids, Michigan, desires information as follows:

"The Union of Grand Rapids expects to secure a city license law for projectionists. I understand that in most cities a strong examination goes with such a law. Have you, in the department, a copy of some of the examinations used by different cities, together with their answers? What I would like is to be up in these things. The money I paid for the third edition of the handbook is the best money I ever invested."

No, friend Rosell, there is not and in the very nature of things could not be such a list of questions and answers, because an examination made by means of a set of fixed questions would be very largely a farce. The examiner who knows his business asks the applicant a question on, let us assume, resistance, and his next question will, in nine cases out of ten, depend upon the answer friend applicant makes to the first. Very often the answer to the first will directly suggest the next question.

The examination, if it is worth anything at all, will seek to ascertain what actual knowledge you have of the things involved, and it is up to you to perfect yourself in knowledge of those various things which you may be required to know in order to put a perfect screen result before the audience and do so without waste of power (electric current), film (unnecessary damage to it), and without causing unnecessary wear or damage to the machinery entrusted to your care. As a projectionist you will have charge of machinery valued at perhaps as much as $1,500, the life of which will depend largely upon the intelligent care you are able to give it. You will be required to illuminate a screen with a certain brilliancy, which you may do at low cost or relatively high cost, according to the knowledge you possess. You will have placed in your charge surely not less than $600 worth of film a day, or a total of $219,000 worth of films in the course of a year, and if you do even so little as one-half of one per cent. of unnecessary damage to them it will amount to more than $1,000 per year, which same must be shouldered by the industry as overhead expense.

With these few facts in view do you not see the importance of being thoroughly competent? Merely learning to answer certain questions "by heart" does not constitute education in your business. I am glad the Grand Rapids Union expects to secure the adoption of a license law, but I wonder of they expect to have put into force a really competent examination, without which the law will be a farce.

Would they be willing, for instance, to have Mr. Examiner start off somewhat like this: What size wires should your projection room leads be to carry 80 amperes, with 4% voltage drop, current 110-volt D. C.? Suppose you had a three-wire Edison circuit on one side of which were circuits using a total of 30 amperes and on the other side circuits using 20 amperes? What would be the capacity of fuses absolutely necessary at each of the three main fuse block fuse contacts? Here is a rheostat, a test lamp and a live 110-volt circuit. Test the rheostat for grounds, and if you find one, locate the coil or grid it is in. At what maximum temperature can your rheostat coils or grids operate without damage? You may be given charge of a motor generator. What kind and grade of lubricant would you use? What care would you give its commutator? What care would you give the machine in general? Would you bolt it to the floor or how would you hold it in place? Would you place it directly on the floor? Suppose you started the machine and the voltmeter showed no reading. What would you look for and what would you do? The show starts in half an hour and the management don't care to give back the money. Tell us what various things you would look for. What usually causes brush sparking and how may it be cured? Is it permissible for economizer coils to become hotter in hot weather than in cold weather? How hot may they get without danger to the device? Do you understand the lens charts provided for the projection machine optical train? What is the relation of the size of the spot at the cooling plate to the size of the crater? Give the various reasons why condenser lenses should not be spaced with apexes of their curved surfaces more than 1-16 of an inch apart. What governs the necessary width of the various blades of the revolving shutter of a projector? Why should the revolving shutter be placed at the plane of the aerial image of the condenser wherever possible, and what is the aerial image of the condenser?

These are but starters, yet I w-o-n-d-e-r whether members of the Grand Rapids Union would be willing to face those questions, with refusal of license staring them in the face if they failed to give correct answers. And will any projectionist dare assert that there is one of them he should not be able to answer? It is all very well to demand a license law, but if a real examination went with it you may take it from me that in the average city there would be some darned tall hustling and some mighty nervous men.

Projection Experience

MOTION PICTURE

HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators

By F. H. RICHARDSON

The recognized standard book on the work of projection. Complete descriptions and instructions on all leading machines and projection equipment. There isn't a projection room in the universe in which this carefully compiled book will not save its purchase price each month.

Buy It Today $4 the Copy, postpaid

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Wright & Callender Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
To save time, order from nearest office.

How About It?

Gardener J. Oakes, Jr., Kalamazoo, Michigan, orders a handbook and question booklets and says:

"Am more than satisfied with our equipment, with the exception of having our Transverter in the projection room. Prefer it in a separate room. Best wishes to you and to our department. You have my co-operation on the term 'Projectionist.'"

Yes, it is better to have the motor generator in a separate room, though if the projection room floor be solid and free from vibration its presence in the projection room is of no really vital importance. It is well, however, to set it on about four or five thicknesses of felt, each one half an inch thick, or on thick blocks of rubber. This will absorb all vibration, lessen the noise, and the weight of the machine will hold it in place without any fastening.

A Correction.

Lewis Swaab, Philadelphia, corrects us in a statement made in recent issue wherein we said he had what seemed an excellent motor attachment for Powers machine, but that it was merely a motor-drive attachment, not a speed control. Mr. Swaab calls out attention to the fact that speed control is had in the motor itself and that it has wide range. We stand corrected, neighbor Swaab. When we are in Philadelphia at the April meeting we will, just to show you there is no hard feeling, let you buy us a bean sandwich.

Tips for the House Manager

Conducted by E. T. KEYSER

COOLING AND VENTILATING THE THEATRE

How the House Manager May Keep His Audience Comfortable in Body and Contented in Mind

AFTER the exhibitor has succeeded in drawing the crowd to his house he is confronted with the problem of keeping the audience in a contented frame of mind and a comfortable state of body while they are watching the screen. And this can only be accomplished in a theatre which is well ventilated in winter and efficiently cooled in summer.

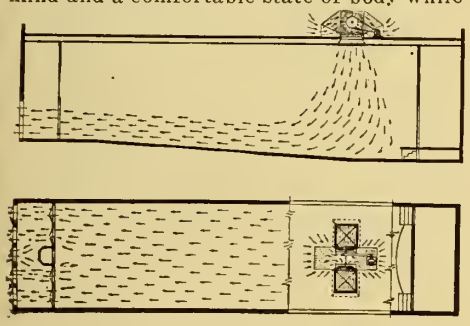

Fig. 1. Installation for Flat Roofed Theatre with Stage and Screen.

Complete Change of Air Necessary.

Good ventilation calls for the entire change of air once in each ten-minute period of time, while efficient cooling demands a change once each minute and the ideal cooling and ventilating plant is one of sufficient capacity to accomplish the cooling at normal motor speed and which may be slowed down to proper winter ventilating speed.

The proper size of apparatus and the horse power of motor required to operate it depend upon the size of the house in which it is to be installed. The most practical method of classifying the average house is by seating capacity, and the following table, furnished by the Typhoon Fan Company, of 281 Lexington avenue, New York, will prove helpful to the exhibitor about to consider the installation of a cooling and ventilating plant:

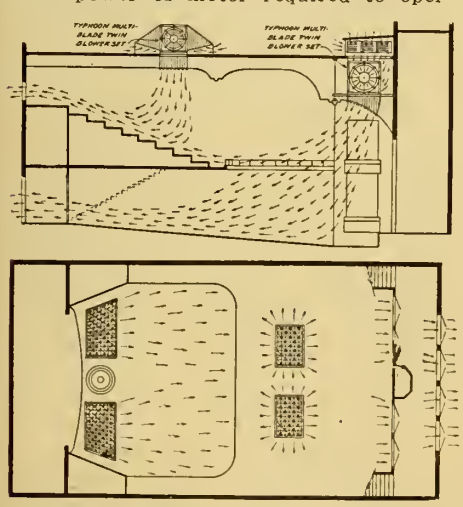

Fig. 2. Installation for Theatre with Balcony and Orchestra.

No. of Occupants.	Size for Cooling and Ventilating.	Horse Power Required.
200-275	No. 4 Typhoon Twin	3 hp.
275-375	No. 4½ Typhoon Twin	3 or 5 hp.
375-450	No. 5 Typhoon Twin	5 hp.
450-575	No. 6 Typhoon Twin	5 or 7½ hp.
575-700	No. 7 Typhoon Twin	10 hp.
700-800	No. 8 Typhoon Twin	15 hp.

Over 900 Combinations of above.

The sizes given are for average conditions in the Middle States. For Northern States smaller typhoons might be used and for Southern States larger typhoons.

Conditions which affect and vary the above, besides geographical location, are: Unusually high or unusually low ceiling, small cubical contents per person.

Typical Installation Plans.

The adaptability of the Typhoon System to all types of theatre architecture is illustrated by the accompanying installation diagrams. No. 1 shows elevation and ground plans for a theatre which possesses a stage as well as a screen. This installation is for a theatre with a flat roof. For houses with gable roofs, No. 4 is the better method, while for buildings with an attic of sufficient height, No. 5 shows the correct installation.

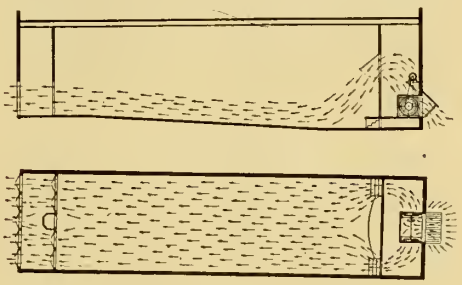

Fig 3. Installation for Small Theatre Which Has Screen Only.

No. 2 shows ground and elevation plans of installation in a theatre of the larger type in which there are balcony as well as orchestra seats. In very large theatres two typhoon twins—four typhoon fans, one twin, set in each location shown, are sometimes used.

No. 3 shows ground and elevation plans for installation in the smaller theatres, which are equipped with screens only or where the stage is used for the screen exclusively.

Cooling with a Breeze.

The underlying idea of the Typhoon Cooling System is to cool with a breeze. This is done by placing a Typhoon equipment at the screen end of the house and with it blow such huge quantities of pure, fresh aid from one end of the house to the other as to set up a cool, refreshing breeze in all parts of the theatre. It is this breeze that produces the Typhoon cooling effect—the same delightful cooling effect as you get when spinning along in an automobile on a smooth country road.

The air is changed about once every minute—and is always fresh and pure in all parts of the house. Because of the refreshing breeze, the air in the theatre will actually feel cooler and more attractive to the public than any open-air theatre—and there won't be any mosquitos. There is absolute freedom from objectionable drafts because the large Typhoon fans are run at low speed and bring in the enormous volumes of air at low velocity. This low speed feature also means noiselessness and a low operating cost.

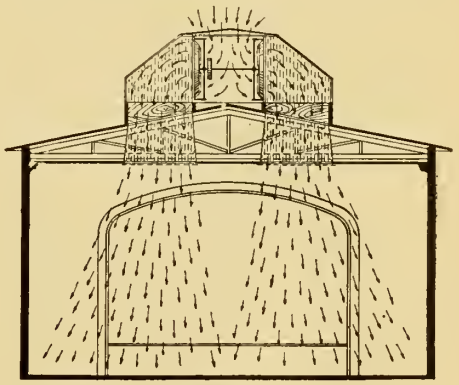

Fig. 4. Installation for a Theatre with a Gable Roof.

Typhoons are reversible, so that in winter, when only ventilating is desired, they can be reversed and run very slowly to exhaust the foul air. The Typhoon System therefore serves the double purpose of cooling the theatre delightfully in hot weather and of ventilating perfectly at all times.

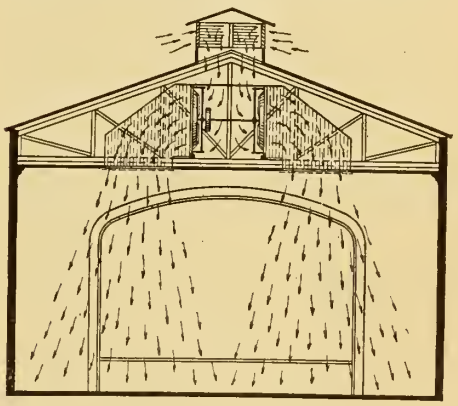

Fig. 5. Installation for Theatre with an Attic.

To the House Manager.

This department is yours. In it from time to time will appear descriptions of accessories and equipment—outside the projection field—which will interest you and save you time and money.

When you are pleased with any particular line of theatres supplies, tell us so that we may pass the tip along.

When you are puzzled as where to procure any equipment for your house, write this department and we will dig it up for you—if it is made.

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Notice!

Questions relating to the writing of photoplays and photoplay synopses will be replied to by mail where a return envelope, properly stamped, accompanies the inquiry. No attention will be paid to questions relating to the market, nor can manuscripts or parts of manuscripts be criticized.

Word Limits.

ALL this talk about the exact number of words permissible in a script is misleading. If you have a real message, tell it. If you tell it briefly, yet fully, you have done all you can do. If you seek to condense you will rob the story of some of its definiteness and gain nothing in return. This is not meant to encourage the author in turning out a book-length synopsis where five thousand words will do, but it is meant to indicate that the "three to five thousand words" is merely a suggestion and not a limitation. One successful writer tells us that he seldom requires more than three thousand words. His scripts are marvels of conciseness, but his work is the result of long training. Many writers, otherwise as well equipped, would require from five to eight thousand words to tell their stories as clearly, and it would be foolish to spoil the chances of a sale through over condensation. Better a story a little too full than one lacking a single essential. Condensation is largely a matter of practice. It is merely the result of studying how to eliminate useless matter until this elimination becomes a second nature. It is partly an inherent trait, but it is to be developed only through practice. But concentration falls so far below plotting as a requirement that it is well first to master the formulation of plots before giving thought to the number of words used, and if, in the meantime, you have developed an idea out of the ordinary, it would be foolish to retain this until you come to be able to put out the idea. Send it out as it is.

Some teachers are fond of saying that the story of the creation of the world is told in brief. They cite this to their pupils as an example of conciseness. They even urge emulation. And yet the story of the Creation is not told in the first chapter of Genesis. The story of the Creation is hinted at, and a clever and imaginative writer can supply details which will be in harmony with the facts as set forth, but he must first study geology, zoology and astronomy before he can even approximate what the Bible so glibly records. He must know what men through the ages have discovered as to the formation of the planet. They must apply these discoveries to the bald narrative of the scriptures, but it will not be the story of the world as told in the Bible. It will be the story of the world as conceived by a writer from scientific research.

It is the same way with photoplay. If too little is told; in a reaching after brevity, the burden is placed upon the continuity writer. He must supply, from his own knowledge of persons, places and things, all of the details the writer of the synopsis has left out of his condensation. If he fails to get the author's exact idea, then he is not seriously to be blamed, for there has been too little suggestion to give him the material he needs, and he must supply this from his own imagination.

In the same way the famous "We have met the enemy and he is ours" by no means conveys an adequate idea. It is a triumph of condensation, but "We win" would likewise be sufficient to convey to idea, and in even fewer words. But no one could write out an authentic description of a battle from this phrase. A clever writer could write out a battle, and that is all. It would not be accurate in any degree save through the accident of chance.

It is better to overwrite than to leave gaps in the manuscript, but cultivate a knowledge of what is essential and what is not. Do not burden the script with useless description. Do not describe non-essential costumes, pretty locations miles from Los Angeles. Tell all of the plot action and the continuity man can fill in the details, but tell that Grace leaves her husband in the hope that he will be shocked into reformation. Do not merely say that she leaves him because he is a drunkard and that he then sobers up. This will create the wrong impression. If she seems to leave him merely because he is intemperate, we make her out a quitter who cannot stand and fight. We despise her and we are apt to despise the husband for bracing up on account of a woman so little worth while. If we first motivate her action, then we appreciate the action and what comes of the act. Get the essential actions and the motives for those actions over. The continuity writer will supply the rest, but do not throw the burden upon him and then complain if it his own play instead of yours you see on the screen.

One sane Person.

When Marc Edmund Jones got back from the war—truth to tell he did not get across the water—he did not start in to write stories with a marital setting. He wrote something else for a change. Therefore he is selling. He knew better than to try to write camp stuff. He was clever enough to write the stuff that other people were not doing, and so there was a market for his stuff. And in the past few weeks we have had a dozen men write in to know where they could sell their war experiences. War experiences are a drug in the market. Write something else if you want to be received with favor. The time to sell umbrellas is when it is raining, but that is a mighty poor time to be trying to sell rain water by the gallon.

Neal's New Book.

Robert Wilson Neal has written, or rather has recently had published, his companion volume to Short Stories in the Making. This was begun shortly after Short Stories in the Making was issued and was intended to complement that little volume, which we think is the most helpful text on short story writing in print. The issue is Today's Short Stories Analyzed, containing twenty-two examples of short fiction ranging from one of Life's famous condensed tales to what might be termed the long short story. The tales are drawn from many sources and do not represent the best short stories of a given year, not yet an anthology of the conte, but comprise the stories which best exhibit the application of the rules of story making, either through the use or defiance of those rules. Each of the tales is preceded by a brief discussion of its elements, and there are copious footnote references. In one instance these footnotes also include the matter added to or omitted from the original script, giving the student a clear idea of editorial changes. There are also liberal references to Short Stories in the Making, adding greatly to the value of the volume, though the notes in themselves are a complete treatise on writing the short story.

In discussing the earlier volume, we dwelt at length upon Professor Neal's directness and simplicity of style. He speaks with the intimate and confidential air of a friend rather than with the severity of a professor. It is easy, even for the beginner, to follow his thought and to grasp his meaning, and the same quality is to be found in the new work. To paraphrase a well-known semi-technical magazine, it is "written so you can understand it." By itself it is an excellent teaching volume. In connection with Short Stories in the Making, it comprehends the entire applied art of story writing.

The new book occupies the same position to the old that the dissecting room does to the lectures of the medical school or the shop work to the theory courses of a trade school. One gives the rules and the other teaches the practical application of those rules. Together they form a complete exposition. No other texts are needed.

Today's Short Stories Analyzed is 620 pages plus xx, and is published by the Oxford University Press, 35 West Thirty-second street, New York City. It is priced $2 net and will be sent by mail for 15 cents additional.

Meat Sells.

Few companies are buying stories merely because they offer a chance for pretty settings. They want a story and they want it in nice backgrounds if they can get them, but they offer backgrounds alone as scenic releases and not as photoplays. Today you must have real meat to offer, a story and not merely something that would look pretty. If it can be made to look pretty, too, so much the better, but get a story first. It is all you can sell. You must throw the scenery in for good measure.

TECHNIQUE OF THE PHOTOPLAY

By Epes Winthrop Sargent

A book replete with practical pointers on the preparation of stories for the screen, answering the hundred and one questions which immediately present themselves when the first script is attempted. A tested handbook for the constant writer of picture plots. "Straight-from-the-shoulder" information from an author with a wealth of real "dollars-and-cents" experience.

By Mail, Postpaid, Three Dollars

Published and For Sale by

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Schiller Building, Chicago.

Wright & Callender Bldg., Los Angeles.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by GEORGE W. BEYNON

Herbert Lubin Gives Views on Appropriate Musical Settings

IN KEEPING with the elaborate campaign along the lines of advertising and publicity which has been prepared by the newly formed S-L Organization for the purpose of giving the proper presentation to the inaugural feature starring E. K. Lincoln and directed by Ralph Ince, Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin have decided to provide the picture with a musical setting of like magnitude. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin are firm believers in real service to the exhibitor. They are of the opinion that every possible aid in the way of exploitation and advertising should accompany the special productions which go to the exhibitor, in order that the showmen may give specially important productions the presentation they deserve. They also believe that the matter of appropriate musical settings has been sadly overlooked by many producers who feel that after they have supplied the exhibitor with a full line of advertising services, every obligation to him is fulfilled. In speak- of effective and appropriate musical scores for feature productions recently, Herbert Lubin said:

"In producing the Ralph Ince Film attraction, which will inaugurate a series of special vehicles presenting E. K. Lincoln as star ,under the personal direction of Ralph Ince, we have been particularly careful not to overlook the value of effective musical settings to accompany the picture. Before the story of the first S-L feature was placed in production by Mr. Ince, the scenario was painstakingly gone over by Mr. Ince and a well-known composer, with the view in mind of seeing whether several special points in the film could be so handled by Mr. Ince as to fit in exactly with the ideas of the composer who will prepare the score. This plan has worked out admirably, particularly in connection with several of the big physical punches which dominate the E. K. Lincoln vehicle. The composer has had the adadvantage of suggesting certain things to be incorporated in the picture so that he might secure impressive musical effects at the proper points. We believe that we are offering to the exhibitors of this country a production of great magnitude and extraordinary entertainment value, and it is our intention to help them in the proper presentation of the film by supplying an adequate and appropriate musical setting. Keeping always in mind the fact that the first run motion picture theatres differ greatly in their requirements as to music from exhibitors of smaller calibre, the musical score for our first production will be so arranged as to be adaptable to the needs of all exhibitors. The music, which we have in course of preparation, will greatly enhance the entertainment value of the first S-L production and above all the music will be appropriate in every respect to every episode in the film."

In conference with Mr. Conrad Milliken, Mr. Ralph Ince, Mr. Lubin and Mr. Bert Ennis, the composer has had an opportunity of obtaining the most minute details of interpretation to be found in this wonderful picture. Melody will be the key of the score and in the majority of cases these melodies will be well known. Great care has been taken to suitably adapt every situation and where no suitable music is available original motives have been written especially for certain scenes, the musical requirements of which call for superb artistry.

The usual method of providing a musical score service has been that of supplying the needs of the bigger theatres and allowing the little fellow to make the best he can of a score written for a symphony orchestra. The S-L Organization are reversing the process by giving out a musical score that may be played by any combination of from one to fifty musicians. There will be organ and piano solo parts in simplified form and the violin and cello books will be plentifully cued with the solos of other instruments. No one will have difficulty in musically interpreting the picture with this score. The entire service is primarily prepared in order that every theatre can, and may, use it for the proper presentation of this fine feature.

Both Directors Should Work Together.

To prevent the silly and defective musical scenes found so frequently in pictures and to obviate the faulty suggestions offered in cue sheets, the music and picture directors should closely co-operate, and collaborate upon each feature. Pitiful mistakes are seen in the direction of certain musical scenes which could be readily corrected if the musical director was called into consultation. Inaccuracies occur continually in cue sheets because the arranger fails to confer with the picture director.

Recently our worthy musical contemporary, Mr. S. M. Berg, pointedly and pugnaciously called the attention of the producers to some intolerable and glaring musical defects in staging atmospheric scenes. His article and standpoint being well taken are worthy of consideratio, for he has voiced the sentiments of nearly eighty thousand picture players and a host of music-loving patrons.

If an actor cannot ride, swim nor shoot, he is usually doubled with some one who can. Why not double the heroine who plays the piano with straight arms, stiff wrists and clawing hands? When a fellow plays the saxophone with his left hand above his right and fingers four keys at the same time, nobody but a fool will credit him as a player. A few words with the musical director would straighten out these incongruities.

In a certain feature of recent release, there was shown upon the screen a few bars of a popular song sung by some darkies. The lyrics beneath the music read, "Meet her and greet her with a smile." For some unaccountable reason, or through sheer negligence, the musical director, who arranged the cue sheet, used the words on the screen as the caption of the song and so indicated it in his cue sheet.

We personally wired the director of the picture and found it to be "The Sunshine of Virginia," published by Shapiro, Bernstein Company. Why didn't the cue sheet arranger get in touch with his picture director before issuing broadcast cue sheets that are misleading? The question of the suitability of selections is largely a matter of opinion and criticism becomes difficult, but when for a direct cue a number is suggested that does not exist, then it is high time that the musical director gets the script or the facts from the picture director.

Riesenfeld Conducts New Overture.

Fredrich Smetana has written many gloriously descriptive numbers, but few as exacting as "Vltava." This number describes the river of the same name in Bohemia and its rippling melodies brought out the idea to a nicety. Mr. Riesenfeld, the new managing director of the Rivoli-Rialto forces, presided at the conductor's desk and brought the house to its feet by his careful interpretation.

Without a break, the music proceeded into the scenic and pictorial review which opened with a pastoral scene showing mountains and streams. This was clever continuity, not only musically but atmospherically.

Anne Rosner sang "In Dreamland" by Herbert, not from choice evidently—for it ill suited her voice—but to introduce the picture "Don't Change Your Husband." Dreamland might just as well have been the title of the feature and no better preparation could have been obtained than the sentiment expressed in the song.

Three special effects marked the playing of the feature, namely: An imitation of a ukelele accompaniment which was poorly portrayed; a Victrola record played to synchronize with a talking machine scene; and the playing of a direct cue "Forgotten." The entire feature received a meritorious setting.

The comedy and organ solo completed the program at the Rialto given during the week commencing Feb. 2.

MUSIC CUE SHEETS FOR THE CURRENT FILMS OF THE WEEK

"All of a Sudden Norma"

Released by Exhibitors Mutual Corp.—Five Reels. Prepared by Joseph O'Sullivan.

THEME—None.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min.	Romance "Manfred"	Andante	Reinecke
2. D. EXTERIOR—GIRL AND MAN	2 min. 30 sec.	Pastel Menuet	Allegro	Paradis
3. D. INTERIOR—BRISBANE	2 min. 15 sec.	Lamento	Dolent	Gabriel-Marie
4. T. THE RUDE FORMALITIES	2 min. 45 sec.	Prelude "Manfred"	Lento	Reinecke
5. T. I CONGRATULATE YOU	4 min. 15 sec.	L'Amour du Papillon	Allegretto	Henneberg
6. T. AN INTERESTING WEEK-END	2 min. 45 sec.	A Garden Dance	Allegro	Vargas
7. T. AN EVENING OF BRIDGE	2 min.	Babillage	Allegretto	Castillo
8. D. EXTERIOR—GARDEN SCENE	2 min.	Lips and Eyes	Allegretto	Lange
9. T. MORNING FINDS RESTLESS	2 min. 45 sec.	Spring Flowers	Allegretto	Zamecnik
10. T. A VIGIL FAR INTO THE NIGHT	1 min. 15 sec.	The Poet's Dream	Andante	MacDowell
11. D. WHEN CUTHBERT ENTERS ROOM	2 min.	Bubbles	Allegretto	Gruenwald
12. D. DARK SCENE—NORMA ENTERING	1 min. 45 sec.	Misterioso No. 2		Minot
13. T. PULL, YOU IDIOT	3 min. 45 sec.	Pulcinello	Allegretto	Aletter
14. D. DARK SCENE—NORMA RE-ENTERING	45 sec.	Misterioso Moderato		Breil
15. D. WHEN THE DUKE TURNS ON	2 min	Intermezzo "Jorsalfar" pp		Grieg
16. T. I HOPE YOU WON'T MENTION	1 min. 45 sec.	Whispering Flowers	Allegro	von Blon
17. T. MONDAY MORNING	3 min.	Al Fresco	Rubato	Etienne
18. T. IN JUDGMENT OF THE JEWELS	2 min. 30 sec.	The Broken Melody	Adagio	Van Biene
19. T. GAMES IN THE BALANCE	3 min. 30 sec.	Dialogue	Andante	Helmund
20. T. SOME YEARS AGO I FELT	2 min. 45 sec.	Nocturne No. 13	Lento	Chopin
21. T. IF YOU ARE SUCCESSFUL	2 min.	Chant Sans Paroles	Allegretto	Tschaikowsky
22. T. HE'S JUST GONE OUT	2 min. 45 sec.	Love in April	Allegro	Kriens
23. T. THE FIRST STEP OF NORMA'S	5 min.	Ein Maerchen	Dramatic	Bach
24. T. LATE AFTERNOON BEGINS	1 min. 30 sec.	Under the Leaves	Agitato	Thome
25. D. TRENT AND SERVANT GIRL	1 min. 45 sec.	Once Upon a Time	Agitato	Mahr
26. T. I AM HAMILTON BRISBANE'S	1 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Agitato No. 43		Borch
27. T. HELLO, UNCLE, WHAT ARE YOU	1 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 1		Reissiger
28. D. CLOSE-UP NORMA AND OLIVER	1 min. 15 sec.	Humoreske		Dvorak

"Bluffer, The"

Released by World—Five Reels. Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Bleeding Hearts—Andantino—Levy.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min 15 sec.	THEME.
2. T. I AM AT THE END OF MY	1 min.	Andante Pathetique		Berge
3. T. RICHARD VAUGHN	2 min.	Valse Idylle		Schmid
4. T. HAVE YOU EVER THOUGHT	2 min 30 sec.	THEME.
5. T. AFTER A SHOPPING TOUR	3 min. 15 sec.	Violetta	Allegretto	Herman
6. T. THIS IS THE SECOND	2 min. 45 sec.	Flirting Butterflies		Aletter
7. T. I'LL STAY SIR	4 min.	Flight of the Birds	Allegretto	Rice
8. T. WAYS AND MEANS	2 min. 15 sec.	THEME.
9. T. HOTEL DE MONEY	45 sec.	Blue Devils	March	Levy
10. D. WHEN SYBIL DROPS FAN	2 min. 15 sec.	Savannah	One-Step	Rosey
11. T. IN THE WEST VAUGHN	2 min.	Fighting Tommies	March	Boulton
12. T. THE HONEYMOON	2 min.	Flirtation	Allegretto	Cross
13. T. ISN'T THE VAN NORDEN	2 min. 15 sec.	THEME.
14. T. WHO GOETH A BORROWING	2 min. 45 sec.	Carnaval Mignon	Moderato	Schuett
15. T. I'VE GOT A NEW ONE	3 min. 30 sec.	Harlequin's Serenade		Schuett
16. T. AT THE END OF THE EVENING	2 min. 45 sec.	Elegie		Barmotine
17. T. IT'S MONEY ALWAYS MONEY	2 min. 30 sec.	Melancolie	Larghetto	Bubeck
18. D. WHEN SYBIL TELEPHONES	45 sec.
19. T. IN MORAN'S HOME CITY	2 min.	Valse Divine		Rosey
20. T. EDMUND CURTIS AND IDLER	1 min. 45 sec.	A La Mode		Rosey
21. T. IF CURTIS LANDS GRACE	1 min. 45 sec.	Hunkatin		Levy
22. T. LATER IN THE EVENING	2 min. 30 sec.	THEME.
23. T. CHARMING ADVENTURESS	2 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 9		Andino
24. T. A GLIMPSE OF PARADISE	2 min. 45 sec.	THEME.
25. T. THE BLUFF CALLED	1 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 36		Andino
26. T. HOW LONG DO YOU THINK	2 min. 15 sec.	Dramatic Agitato No. 38		Minot
27. T. ASK HER IF SHE CHEATS	2 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 64		Borch
28. D. WHEN VAUGHN LEAVES ROOM	2 min. 15 sec.	Furioso No. 11		Kiefert
29. T. SEVERAL YEARS LATER	45 sec.	THEME.

"Hard-Boiled."

Released by Paramount—Five Reels. Prepared by Filmusic Studios.

THEME—Sweet Little Buttercup—Andante—Paley.

1. AT SCREENING	1 min. 30 sec.	Sailin' Away on the Henry Clay	One-Step	Van Alstyne
2. T. CORRINE MELROSE	2 min. 45 sec.	THEME
3. D. FLASH TO GIRL LOOKING THROUGH	2 min. 45 sec.	Withered Flowers	Moderato	Kiefert
4. T. WELL I SEE YOU GOT	1 min.	THEME
5. T. OPERA HOUSE—TONIGHT	3 min. 30 sec.	Popular One-Step
6. T. THE OPPOSITION	1 min. 30 sec.	Mysterioso No. 1	Andante	Langey
7. D. FLASH TO OPERA HOUSE STAGE	1 min. 30 sec.	Popular One-Step.
8. T. THE AWFUL HOUR	3 min.	Serenade Op. 16, No. 3.	Andante	Rubinstein
9. T. TA, TA FOLKS	1 min. 15 sec.	Allegro Agitato		Kiefert
10. T. I'VE GOT ENOUGH COIN	1 min. 15 sec.	THEME
11. D. MISS DALTON SEES CRYING	3 min.	Thoughts	Andante	Crespi
12. T. IF YOU'RE STRANDED	2 min. 30 sec.	Vanity Caprice	Allegro	Jackson
13. T. AUNT TINY COLVIN'S	5 min.	Simplicity	Moderato	Lee
14. T. I CLEAN FORGET	2 min.	Graciousness		Smith
15. T. THE FINISH OF BILLY'S	4 min. 15 sec.	Tulips	Moderato	Miles
16. T. THE BIRTHDAY DINNER	4 min. 15 sec.	Pizzicato Bluette	Allegro	Lack
17. T. NOW THAT WE HAVE	2 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Tension		Andino
18. T. EVENING—THE LIGHT	2 min.	THEME
19. D. FLASH BACK TO MISS DALTON	1 min.	Memories		Crespi
20. T. A WEEK LATER	4 min. 45 sec.	In the Village		Godard
21. T. DON'T DRINK THAT	3 min.	Menuetto all' Antico Op. 20, No. 5		Karganoff
22. T. YOU HAVE AWAKENED ME	4 min. 15 sec.	Mountaineers' Dance		Borch
23. T. WHAT WAS THAT FEMALE	2 min.	Turbulence		Borch
24. T. I SEEN THEM AGOIN'S ON	2 min.	Hurry No. 4		Lake
25. T. JUST GIVE THAT	1 min. 45 sec.	Sweet Bells		Bruenwald
26. T. I'LL TELL YOU WHY	1 min. 45 sec.	THEME

CHARACTER ..... Comedy Drama.

ATMOSPHERE ..... Western.

The Cornet an Offspring of the Old Post Horn

The word "Cornet" in its literal sense means "Little Horn," and was formerly used to designate a reed instrument of the oboe family having a conical bore terminating without a bell. But this instrument is long since obselete and the term is now alone associated with the brass instrument of the trimpet class, being a hybrid intermediate between the French horn, trumpet and bugle.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, the cornet was evolved from the old post horn. This feat was accomplished in Germany by the introduction of pistons and a modification of the horn outline. The instrument never found much favor in the land of its nativity, but was adopted in England and France in 1830.

Its characteristic feature consists of the three pistons which may be pressed down singly by twos or all together to increase its compass. The first lowers the pitch a tone; the second, a semitone; and the third, three semitones. The instrument has the same pitch as the trumpet, although the mouth piece is larger and there are no fixed notes as in instruments having lateral holes or those furnished with keys. The musical scale is obtained by the performer through his ability to produce notes by overblowing. The intermediate notes completing the chromatic scale are obtained by means of three pistons which, upon being depressed, open valves leading into supplementary wind ways which lengthen the original tube. Formerly there were two kinds of cornets known as Bb and Ab instruments, deriving their names from two shanks which were interchangable. The new "Victor" cornet, put out by C. G. Conn, Elkhart, Ind., has a small wheel which enables one to tune the instrument to the finest degree with the assurance that it will remain where placed. It also has extra compensating tubes which permit the player to sound every note in time in any key without having to humor certain notes with the lips in order to obtain them strictly in tune, as is the case with the ordinary instrument. These instruments are justly famed and have the endorsement of eminent cornetists the world over.

In England, music for the cornet is usually written for the instrument as sounded, but in France, Germany and this country, composers score for it as for a transposing instrument and the music must be written for it above the key as it transposes downward. Its compass is naturally two octaves and three tones. But it is essentially a band instrument, and as all these are scored either in Bb or Eb, the Bb cornet is regarded as C.

The timbre of the cornet is between the horn and the trumpet. The tone color is not to be compared with the trumpet as the brilliant, noble senorousness of the trumpet is lacking and, unless in the hands of a skilled musician, the cornet tone has a proneness to be coarse and blatant. The tendency to crowd the trumpet out of the orchestra by the substitution of cornets is regrettable, for, while the latter is bright in tone and an agile instrument with great technical possibilities, its sound is hard and commonplace and more suited to military music than for serious concerted works. From the performer's viewpoint, it is superior to the trumpet, for it is played with great facility, its mechanism is simple and little fatigue is caused the musician. But as a musical instrument intended to convey lofty ideals, the cornet has no possibilities and is never taken seriously by the master composers.

George Drumm, Composer, Offers "Reverie," His Latest

The Irish are a fighting race, known throughout the ages for their pugnacity and steadfastness of purpose. They will not be kept down and they strive to gain the heights of their ambitions through constant efforts, conscientiously made.

Some of the race from the Emerald Isle come to New York to be policemen and, begorra, they make good ones at that. But George Drumm (no middle name), the well known musician, arrived in America to show us what an Irish band could do working in concert.

George Drumm.

As Mr. Drumm was the bandmaster of Ireland's Own Band, they couldn't leave him at home, and in 1904 this fine organization was brought to the St. Louis exposition. Later, it toured the Eastern States giving band concerts which drew forth much praise for their merit. The band returned to Ireland minus a perfectly good conductor, for George decided that America offered greater opportunities than those afforded in the old country.

For some time Mr. Drumm conducted orchestras for P. G. Williams and B. F. Keith, later entering the field of picture players, when he became one of the members of the Strand orchestra. After some months as a practical musician, Mr. Drumm was given the charge of a large orchestra in the Regent Theatre in Paterson. There he developed a fine sense of picture fitness and gave a musical program that was the talk of the state.

Naturally energetic, he found time to compose some of the finest orchestral selections of the day. "Meditation" was his first piece, and after being played by the Strand orchestra in manuscript form, was rejected by many publishers as being a poor business proposition. Finally, G. Schirmer, Inc., took the number and its popularity forced them into four editions. It is recognized as one of the biggest selling orchestra numbers on the shelves of the dealers today.

"Springtime," a waltz intermezzo, and the "Rookies March" followed the first successful number and became almost as popular as the first. When America entered the war, Mr. Drumm brought out "Hail Columbia," a grand march with vocal chorus. Although not so popular because of its restricted use, "Hail Columbia" is known as one of the few good standard marches.

At present Mr. Drumm is working on a new number which he calls "Reverie" and which every orchestra leader will be glad to get. It is an andante movement written in his best style and promises to reach a greater popularity than that attained by any of his previous efforts.

In speaking of the call for new music among the picture players, Mr. Drumm said: "The time will never come when there will be sufficient music to meet the demands of the film industry. Music, as we now hear it in picture theatres, is generally good but has by no means reached its zenith. Its development has been gradual and must continue as the people become better acquainted with musical literature. No money should be spared on the music for a good picture and the miserly and niggardly attempts to cut down music appropriations will only tend to lower the attendance at those theatres where such a shortsighted policy prevails."

As Mr. Drumm is a student of harmony and theory, an accomplished player of the violin, viola and harp, and a member of the Royal Irish Academy of Music in Dublin, he knows his subject well. The future should hold splendid possibilities for him.

Earnest Appeal for New Music Rolls

A letter recently received by us makes such a pertinent appeal that we are quoting from it, trusting it will reach the eyes of the parties most intimately concerned. It is from one of our subscribers, the owner of a moving picture house in Tasmania, New Zealand. The gentleman says in part:

"As a regular subscriber to the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, I notice that the makers of photoplay records do not advertise in your magazine. No doubt if you placed this proposition before them it would be to your advantage and it would be a boon to us who are compelled to use mechanical instruments."

In view of the fact that organs requiring rolls are being advertised and sold, it would seem that organ roll people should become awake to the possibilities of properly listing their rolls. A suggestion to the wise is usually sufficient.

SEND IN YOUR SUBSCRIPTION NOW
FOR
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
presenting
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
A Real Music Service to the Leader
CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.
516 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One year.....$3.00
Canada $3.50
Foreign $4.00

"Border Legion, The"

Released by Goldwyn—Five Reels. Prepared by M. Winkler.

THEME—Andante Doloroso—Pathetic—Borch.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min. 45 sec.	Olympia Overture	Dramatic	Ascher
2. T. JOAN OF THE WEST	1 min. 45 sec.	Scherzetto		Berge
3. T. I CAN'T BELIEVE YOU	45 sec.	THEME.
4. T. THE MINERS AND THEIR	3 min.	Sinister Theme		Vely
5. T. ANXIOUS EYES MATCH	1 min. 30 sec.	Half Reels Hurry		Levy
6. T. AND A RIDER OF THE PONY	1 min. 45 sec.	Continue to action
7. T. JIM CLEVE HAS LEFT	1 min. 15 sec.	Continue pp
8. T. IF JIM HAS RUSTLED	2 min. 30 sec.	Mysterioso Dramatico		Borch
9. T. ON THE BORDER TRAIL	3 min. 30 sec.	Rustle of Spring		Sinding
10. T. THE DUMB MESSENGER	1 min. 15 sec.	Tragic Theme		Vely
11. T. AND THIS IS THE LAW	30 sec.	Continue pp
12. D. BANDITS DANCING	45 sec.	Organ improvise to act'n
13. T. THEY HAD KEPT THE WATCH	2 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Suspense		Winkler
14. T. AND THE MORNING AIR	3 min. 15 sec.	THEME.
15. T. YOU'VE GOT TO PAY	1 min. 45 sec.	Agitato Appassionato		Borch
16. T. THE LURE OF THE ROAD	2 min. 30 sec.	Prelude		Rachmaninoff
17. T. THE QUALITY OF MERCY	3 min. 45 sec.	THEME.
18. T. THERE IS A PARTY OF MEN	3 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Tension		Shepherd
19. T. IT BELONGS TO MY WIFE	2 min. 15 sec.	Love Song		Flegier
20. T. UPON KELL'S RECOVERY	3 min. 15 sec.	Dramatic Fantasia		Bach
21. T. ACCORDING TO OUR	2 min.	Dramatic Agitato		Hough
22. T. I CAN'T, I WON'T WEAR THE	2 min. 45 sec.	THEME.
23. T. YOU MUST GIVE ME TIME	2 min.	Mysterioso Dramatico		Borch
24. T. GOD, SO YOU'RE THE WOMAN	2 min.	Dramatic Narrative		Pement
25. T. WE'RE GOING TO CROAK	1 min. 30 sec.	Lion Chase		Koelling
26. T. AND THE WOMAN'S LIVE IS	3 min.	Continue pp.
27. D. KELL SEES THE BANDITS	1 min. 30 sec.	Continue pp. and slow.
28. T. I AM GOING TO SEE JIM	3 min. 15 sec.	Half Reel Furioso		Levy
29. T. THE GANG WOULD NEVER	1 min. 30 sec.	THEME.
30. T. GULDEN AND THE GANG	2 min. 30 sec.	Furioso		Shepherd
31. T. VICE IS A MONSTER	30 sec.	THEME ff.

CHARACTER ..... Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE ..... Western.

"Eleventh Commandment, The."

Released by Exhibitors' Mutual—Five Reels. Prepared by Joseph O'Sullivan.

THEME—Dreams of Love—Poco Allegro—Liszt.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min. 45 sec.	The Swan	Adagio	Saint-Saens
2. T. DORA CHESTER	4 min. 15 sec.	THEME
3. T. DR. DAVID MAYO	1 min. 45 sec.	Valse Lento	Poco Moto	Schuett
4. T. WHERE MEN WHO NEITHER	2 min. 15 sec.	Prelude	Allegretto	Jarnefelt
5. T. DESPERATE SITUATIONS	1 min. 30 sec.	THEME
6. T. LIFE IS A GAME	2 min. 30 sec.	To Spring	Allegro	Grieg
7. T. NO POET OR PAINTER	1 min.	Elegie	Lento	Massenet
8. T. THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE	45 sec.	Once Upon a Time	Agitato	Mahr
9. T. CONSCIENCE MAKES COWARDS	1 min 45 sec.	Sous la Feuilee	Agitato	Thome
10. T. ROBERT STANTON BORN WITH	2 min. 15 sec.	Serenade	Allegretto	Pierne
11. D. AFTER FADE OUT	3 min.	Adagio Pathetique Son.	Moderato	Beethoven
12. T. I CAME TO SEE IF I	3 min.	THEME
13. T. THE FOLLOWING MORNING	1 min. 45 sec.	Rustle of Spring	Allegro	Sinding
14. D. MRS. CHESTER ENTERS DORA'S	1 min. 30 sec.	Edris and Hyperion	Andantino	Gruenwald
15. D. DORA AT TELEPHONE	1 min. 15 sec.	Same—Agitato
16. T. AN UNEXPECTED MEETING	2 min. 15 sec.	Romance	Andante	Frommel
17. T. MANKIND OFTEN CHOOSES	3 min. 45 sec.	The Last Spring	Andante	Grieg
18. T. DORA, DR. MAYO IS HERE	5 min. 30 sec.	Andante—5th Spmphony (start at cello)		Tschaikowsk
19. T. STILL BELIEVING IN HER	2 min. 45 sec.	One Who Has Yearn'd Alone		Tschaikowsk
20. T. AND THAT NIGHT HER	2 min. 15 sec.	Nocturnal Piece	Andante	Schumann
21. T. MAY I USE YOUR PHONE	4 min. 15 sec.	THEME
22. D. EXTERIOR—WHEN CHAUFFEUR IS	4 min. 15 sec.	Pizzicato-Bluette	Andante	Lack
23. T. IT WAS A QUIET AFFAIR	45 sec.	Organ only—Wedding ceremony.
24. T. AND THEN FOR DORA BEGAN	1 min. 45 sec.	THEME
25. T. THAT EVENING	3 min. 30 sec.	Capricious Annette	Moderato	Borch
26. T. FROM THE JUNGLES OF NIGHT	1 min. 30 sec.	Misterioso No. 29		Andino
27. D. WHEN BUTLER IS SEEN	2 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Agitato No. 38.	Allegro	Minot
28. T. A BURGLAR SIR—HE GOT IN	4 min.	Inflammatus Stab. Mater.	Andante	Rossini
29. T. YOU KNOW THE PRISON	1 min. 15 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 36		Andino
30. T. IT WAS HE WHO TOOK THE	1 min. 45 sec.	Agitato No. 3		Langey

CHARACTER ..... Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE ..... Neutral.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS ..... Automobile, shots.

"Way of a Man With a Maid"

Released by Paramount—Five Reels—Prepared by Filmusic Studios.

THEME—Legend of a Rose—Andante—Reynard.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min. 45 sec.	Tulips	Allegretto	Miles
2. T. SATURDAY NIGHT	4 min.	Popular One-Step
3. T. LET'S HAVE A BITE	3 min.	Andante Mysterioso No. 15		Lake
4. T. ANYWAY HE IS	5 min.	THEME
5. T. MONDAY MORNING	4 min.	Serenade Op. 29	Moderato	Chaminade
6. T. McARNEY, YOU ARE	3 min.	Fads and Fancies	Allegretto	Gruenwald
7. T. McARNEY SPENDS HIS	1 min. 45 sec.	Intermezzo	Allegretto	Arensby
8. T. AFTER CYNICAL MEDITATION	4 min. 30 sec.	THEME
9. T. THE INSTANT McARNEY	2 min. 45 sec.	Vanity	Allegretto	Jackson
10. T. THE RACE IS NOT	2 min. 45 sec.	Bon Vivant	Allegro	Zamecnik
11. T. BUT IN ORDER TO	5 min.	Valse Danseuse	Waltz	Miles
12. T. SUDDENLY REMORSE	4 min. 30 sec.	Caressing Butterfly	Moderato	Barthelemy
13. T. BUT ABOUT ONE	2 min. 30 sec.	Popular One-Step
14. T. NEXT MORNING	3 min. 30 sec.	Spring Flowers (omit intro.)	Moderato	Wood
15. T. YOUNG MAN	2 min. 30 sec.	Mysterioso No. 15	Andante	Lake
16. T. SO WHILE ELSA DANCES	4 min.	Mountain Music 4 Move.	Allegro	Borch
17. D. McARNEY LEAVES OFFICE	45 sec.	Popular Jazz One-Step
18. D. WHEN ALL STOP DANCING	1 min.	Continue One-Step pp.
19. D. McARNEY GREETING ELSA	5 min. 30 sec.	THEME

The Proper Presentation of Pictures Calls for the Best Possible Music, Suitably Adapted and Perfectly Synchronized to Each and Every Scene. These Are some of 364

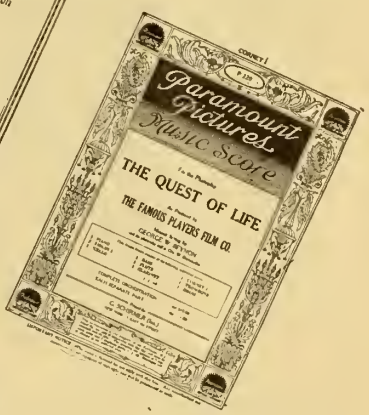
MUSIC SCORES

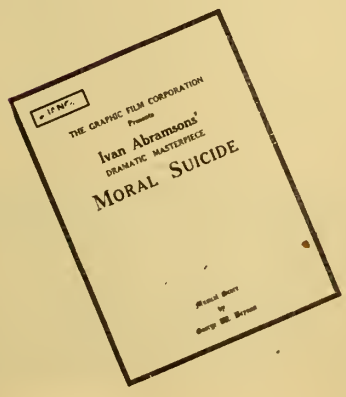
arranged

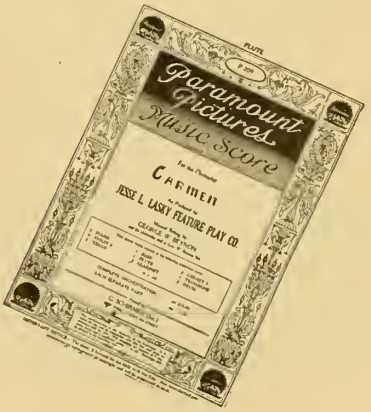
by



GEORGE W. BEYNON

505 Fifth Avenue, New York





"Great Romance, The."

Released by Metro—Six Reels. Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Babillage—Allegretto—Castillo.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min. 15 sec.	Review March		Berg
2. T. IN THE SHADOW OF THE	1 min. 45 sec.	Turbulence	Agitato	Borch
3. T. WHILE ACROSS THE SEAS	3 min. 30 sec.	THEME
4. T. HIS MOST IMPORTANT INTEREST	2 min. 30 sec.	A La Mode	One-Step	Rosey
5. T. GEE, THIS COUPLE	1 min. 15 sec.	Kathleen	Valse	Berg
6. T. OUR HERO WAS AS WELCOME	3 min. 45 sec.	THEME
7. T. YOUR FATHER WISHES TO SEE	2 min. 15 sec.	Hunkatin	One-Step	Levy
8. T. I HAVE A PLAN	1 min. 30 sec.	Birds and Butterflies	Intermezzo	Vely
9. T. PLEASE CALL MISS HANWAY	1 min. 15 sec.	THEME
10. T. PROFESSOR HOW LONG WILL	1 min.	Movie Rag		Zamecnik
11. T. THREE WEEKS LATER	45 sec.	Sleeping Rose	Valse	Borch
12. T. THE END OF THE LONG	2 min. 15 sec.	Capricious Annette	Moderato	Borch
13. T. IT'S THE KING'S CASTLE	2 min.	Visions	Intermezzo	Buse
14. T. BRING MY COAT LOUISE	3 min.	THEME
15. T. WELL PRINCE STILL	1 min.	Allegro Agitato No. 8		Andino
16. T. THE NEXT MORNING	3 min. 30 sec.	Ecstasy	Moderato	Zamecnik
17. T. IT IS THE MEETING PLACE	30 sec.	Gruesome Misterioso		Borch
18. T. NOT ALL MY RELATIVES	2 min. 30 sec.	Agitato Appassionato		Borch
19. T. LATE AFTERNOON	1 min. 15 sec.	Perpetual Motion	Allegro	Borch
20. T. THE NIGHT OF THE MASKED	3 min. 30 sec.	Valse Divine	Valse	Rosey
21. D. WHEN PRINCE SIGNALS	2 min. 30 sec.	Hurry No. 33		Minot
22. D. WHEN GUARDS HALT	2 min. 45 sec.	Agitato No. 49		Shepherd
23. T. YOU MAY TRUST THE COUNTESS	2 min. 15 sec.	THEME
24. T. ARE YOU SURE THEY HAVE	1 min. 45 sec.	Simplicity		Lee
25. T. THE MILLS OF THE GODS	2 min. 30 sec.	Furioso	Half reel hurry	Levy
26. T. IN THE COLD GRAY DAWN	3 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 64		Borch
27. T. HIS MAJESTY COMMANDS	2 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Tension No. 67		Shepherd
28. T. IT'S TRUE	1 min.	Agitato No. 69		Minot
29. T. IT WAS I WHO PLANNED	1 min.	Andante Dramatico 62		Borch
30. T. AND SOON CAME THE DAY	2 min.	Review March		Berg
31. T. SEVERAL WEEKS LATER IN	1 min.	THEME
CHARACTER	Comedy.
ATMOSPHERE	American & European.
MECHANICAL EFFECTS	Auto, phone, waves, shots, motorboat.

"His Parisian Wife."

Released by Artcraft—Five Reels. Prepared by M. Winkler.

THEME—May Dreams—Moderato—Borch.

1. AT SCREENING	1 min. 15 sec.	Valse Moderne	Valse	Rosey
2. T. MARTIN WESLEY WHO CAME	2 min. 45 sec.	Pizzicato		Berge
3. D. EXTERIOR OF RESTAURANT	2 min. 45 sec.	Birds and Butterflies	Intermezzo	Vely
4. T. I WAS BORED TO DEATH	3 min.	THEME
5. T. WHEN HEARTS ARE YOUNG	1 min. 15 sec.	A La Mode	One-Step	Rosey
6. T. AND SO THEY WERE MARRIED	1 min.	Serenade D'Amour	Moderato	Blon
7. T. IN MARTIN'S NEW ENGLAND	2 min.	Continue to action.
8. T. AS THREE SLOW YEARS PASS	2 min.	THEME
9. T. ANTHONY RYE IS COMING	1 min. 45 sec.	Dramatic Recitative		Levy
10. T. THE COMPANY INVITED	3 min.	Love Song	Moderato	Puerner
11. D. FOUVETTE APPEARS AT DINNER	1 min. 15 sec.	Continue ff.
12. T. HUMILIATED AND	2 min. 15 sec.	Dramatic Tension		Levy
13. T. AS TONY'S VISIT LENGTHENS	2 min. 15 sec.	THEME
14. T. NEXT DAY	2 min. 45 sec.	Bleeding Hearts	Andantino	Levy
15. T. UNABLE TO UNDERSTAND	2 min. 45 sec.	Serenade	Dramatic	Widor
16. T. IN HIS ROOMS IN BOSTON	3 min.	Dramatic Suspense		Winkler
17. T. NEWS OF THE MARTINS	2 min. 30 sec.	Adieu		Favarger
18. T. YOU THINK I SHOULD STAY	30 sec.	Continue ff.
19. T. DESPITE MARTIN'S EVIDENCE	1 min. 15 sec.	THEME
20. T. FREED FROM THE WESLEYS	2 min.	Babillage	Allegretto	Castillo
21. T. REALIZING THAT HIS HEART	3 min.	Eva Prelude	Dramatic	Massenet
22. T. WHILE FAUVETTE WORKED	1 min. 15 sec.	Intermezzo	Moderato	Huerter
23. T. AS THE MONTHS SLIP BY	2 min.	Capricious Annette	Moderato	Borch
24. T. BUT TONY'S HEART	2 min. 30 sec.	Dramatic Narrative		Pement
25. T. NEXT MORNING	3 min. 30 sec.	THEME
26. T. AS FAUVETTE'S SUCCESS	1 min. 45 sec.	Valse Caprice		Rubinstein
27. D. DANCING SCENE	1 min. 15 sec.	Valse Divine	Valse	Rosey
28. T. BUT PRESENTLY FAUVETTE	2 min.	Melody	Moderato	Huerter
29. T. HUMBLE A SUPPLIANT	1 min. 45 sec.	THEME ff.
30. T. DO YOU THINK WE COULD	30 sec.	Continue to action.
CHARACTER	Dramatic.
ATMOSPHERE	Society.

"In for Thirty Days"

Released by Metro—Five Reels. Prepared by S. M. Berg.

THEME—Impish Elves—Intermezzo—Borch.

1. AT SCREENING	2 min.	Frills and Furbelows	Rondo Rococo	Crespl
2. T. THE VOLUMES ARE NOW	2 min. 45 sec.	Liselotte	Moderato	Adam
3. T. THE JAIL'S EMPLOYMENT	2 min.	A La Mode		Rosey
4. T. THE BAIT	1 min. 15 sec.	THEME
5. T. WHEN I STEP ON THE	2 min.	Comedy Allegro		Berg
6. T. I AM SORRY I UPSET	3 min. 45 sec.	Savannah	One Step	Rosey
7. T. THE MEN FOLKS WILL	4 min. 15 sec.	Serenade		Kautzenbach
8. T. IT DON'T DO NO GOOD	2 min. 30 sec.	Petite Serenade		Horton
9. T. THE MORNING AFTER	2 min.	THEME
10. T. HIRAM JONES THE LEADING	2 min. 45 sec.	Cupid and Butterfly	Intermezzo	d'Albert
11. T. THE JUDGE GAVE HER THIRTY	3 min. 15 sec.	Hunkatin	One Step	Levy
12. T. YOU BRUTE	3 min.	Nymph and Satyr	Allegretto	Rollinson
13. T. NOW COOK SOMETHING	3 min. 30 sec.	THEME
14. D. WHEN BRETT TELEPHONES	4 min. 15 sec.	Florindo	Allegretto	Burgmein
15. T. NEAR THE END OF THE FIRST	3 min. 45 sec.	Hurry No. 33		Minot
16. T. I HOPE THE JUDGE GIVES YOU	2 min. 45 sec.	Flirtation	Allegretto	Cross
17. T. BY HECK, IF THE LAW	1 min. 45 sec.	THEME
18. T. THE END OF A WEEK IN	3 min. 45 sec.	Flight of the Birds	Allegretto	Rice
19. T. WHY IT IS SIMPLE, THE STATE	3 min. 45 sec.	Sachem	One Step	Rosey
20. D. HELEN AT TYPEWRITER	3 min. 30 sec.	THEME
21. T. WHEN NIGHT CAME THE	1 min.	Gruesome Misterioso		Borch
22. T. CHEW TAKES IVORY SOAP	1 min. 30 sec.	Perpetual Motion	Allegro	Borch
23. D. WHEN HELEN IS SEIZED	2 min. 45 sec.	Agitato No. 69	Allegro	Minot
24. T. I HAVE JUST ESCAPED FROM	1 min. 45 sec.	THEME
25. D. WHEN COUNT ESCAPES	2 min. 30 sec.	Galop No. 7		Minot
26. T. TOO LATE MA'AM, I JUST	1 min.	THEME
CHARACTER	Comedy
ATMOSPHERE	Southern

Organists, Pianists, Leaders

We want your name in order that we may communicate with you and tell you about the wonderful

Musical Opportunities that continually knock at our door.

Place Your Name On Our Rostrum for new music, bargains in instruments, positions available, new theatres projected, free songs and professional copies of new orchestral numbers or otehr interesting things pertaining to picture playing.

WE DESIRE TO GIVE BETTER SERVICE THROUGH PERSONAL CONTACT

"Music for the Pictures" Department

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Chalmers Publishing Company—516 Fifth Ave., New York

MUSIC SERVICE EXCHANGE

PROVES A BIG SUCCESS

We knew that the idea was right, but frankly, we doubted its feasibility. All innovations are experimental and the principle of a central buying station had never before been applied to the musical industry. We tried it, and the hearty response from musicians everywhere has been both gratifying and convincing.

AT PUBLISHER'S PRICES

WE SUPPLY

Orchestral Numbers

Anthems — Organ Solos

Operatic Arias — Oratorios

Piano Pieces — Songs

In fact, any music in print.

Piano and Orchestral arrangements made. Programs selected for concerts and recitals.

Special Rates to Teachers.

MUSIC SERVICE EXCHANGE

505 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

TWO FINE NUMBERS

"OUR RAINBOW SOLDIER BOYS"

A truly patriotic march song
by a Red Cross Nurse
BETTY TILLOTSON

"REVERIE"

A splendid orchestral piece
by the well known composer
GEORGE DRUMM

NOW READY FOR PICTURE PLAYERS

ASTORIA PUBLISHING COMPANY

505 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK

EXHIBITORS

If you want a real picture organist or pianist, write us. Endorsed by biggest exhibitors East and West.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL of PICTURE PLAYING

Strand Theatre — Los Angeles

AMERICAN

Fotoplayer

(Trade Mark Registered)

The Musical Marvel — Write for Catalogue

AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.

62 West 45th Street — New York City

GEORGE W. BEYNON

The name that stands for quality in

MUSICAL SCORES

THE WORLD'S STANDARD THEATRE ORGANS

Unified Theatre Organs

SEEBURG

Automatic Pipe Organs

SIMPLICITY • RELIABILITY • ENDURANCE

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO. - REPUBLIC BLDG. CHICAGO

SAMUEL ROTHAPFEL, PROGRAM PRODUCER

The Man Who Blazed the Trail for Exhibitors Tells Why He Went Into His New Enterprise

FROM exhibitor to producer seems contrary to the laws of evolution. Samuel Rothapfel, erstwhile managing director of the Rialto and the Rivoli, and the man who blazed the trail for the successful exhibitor of today, takes an entirely different view of the matter. Seated at his desk in the offices of the Rothapfel Pictures Corporation last Monday he gave a brief outline of his plans and told his reasons for the strong faith that is in him in the practicability of his new enterprise. Before he had talked a minute one fact had the high visibility of the light on the Metropolitan tower; the driving power of the Rothapfel enthusiasm was still with him.

Not once during the interview did his smiling confidence leave him.

"From exhibitor to producer, isn't that an unusual step?" he was asked.

"Unusual, but logical," was the reply. "The man who has come in close contact for over five years with the screen theatre public and has studied its tastes and learned how to build up the patronage of the theatres under his direction is equipped with a stock of first-hand information that can be obtained in no other way. Moving pictures are made with but one end in view—to please the public. Studying the patrons during the run of a picture is a liberal education in finding out what the public doesn't want. Solve that problem and you'll not waste time trying to give the public something it doesn't care for."

Interest Keen in Novel Plan.

"The novelty of your program plan should awaken a great deal of interest, Mr. Rothapfel."

"It has done so already. I have had many personal inquiries and phone calls since the story was given to the—Excuse me. Yes, this is Mr. Rothapfel's office. Sorry, but I can't give you the full particulars at present. There is a lot of preliminary work to be done. Certainly, you shall have all the particulars the moment they are ready for publication. Thank you for your good wishes—you see that is the way it goes all day." And the president of the new company hung up his phone.

"What first put the idea into your head of supplying the exhibitor with all the screen features for his program?"

"It is the result of keeping my eyes open while traveling about the country and visiting the different picture houses. I found that all exhibitors were not so situated that they could put together a perfectly balanced bill, with music cues, light plots and every detail of presentation worked out in a thoroughly artistic and showmanship manner. With my complete 'unit programs' at his disposal all an exhibitor will have to do is attend to the ordinary running of his house. We intend to establish a service bureau in connection with the picture company, and will be ready to assist our patrons in every way possible in conducting their theatres. If necessary I shall myself respond to a call from a perplexed exhibitor and help him to get everything in smooth working order."

To Be Producer in Fact.

"As I understand it you are to be a producer in fact as well as in name and take full charge of the making of the pictures."

"That is correct. I shall make features that will embody a new form of construction—a step forward in the art. My comedies also will have new ideas. I shall select the stories, engage the actors and superintend the entire production of the pictures." Here the speaker leaned back in his chair and added calmly: "It sounds like a large contract, doesn't it?"

Samuel L. Rothapfel.

"Yes," replied his listener; "and you will be working with the spotlight full on you until you have made good."

"All I ask is the encouragement my past record demands until I am ready to have the public pass judgment on my first program," was the characteristic rejoinder.

"How often do you intend to release your 'unit programs'?"

"I will have no set time. The amount of work necessary to complete so extensive a form of the highest class of moving picture entertainment cannot be definitely determined in advance, but I expect to finish six of the 'unit programs' a year, which will be released through the Independent Sales Corporation."

"Have you any idea where your programs will be shown in New York?"

"Not at present. Sooner or later I expect to have charge of that matter also. There is no law, you know, to prevent me from having a theatre of my own on Broadway." WEITZEL.

Give Luncheon to Billie Rhodes.

To celebrate the success of the first Billie Rhodes productions, "The Girl of My Dreams," and "Hoop-La," released by Exhibitors' Mutual, the Southern California Exhibitors' Association gave a luncheon to the young star on a recent Wednesday in Los Angeles. The guests of honor were "Smiling Billy" Parsons, president of the National Film Corporation, whose organization makes the Rhodes pictures; Flora Parker and her husband, Carter De Haven.

More than 100 exhibitors from Southern California were present. A special musical program was arranged for the occasion. Carter De Haven entertained with a little speech, Miss Rhodes sang a few songs, and "Smiling Billy" Parsons added to the mirth with a number of amusing stories.

San Francisco Trade Board Completes Organization

THE San Francisco Exchange Board of Trade has filed articles of incorporation, the board of governors being M. H. Lewis, Louis Reichert, B. F. Simpson, H. F. Knappen and M. J. Cohen. The purposes of the organization are set forth as the promotion of high moral principles in the film business in California, Oregon, Nevada and the Territory of Hawaii, the territory served in whole and in part by local film exchanges, and the investigation of bad business methods. It plans to serve the United States in every way possible and to see that no improper film is circulated.

The following committees have been appointed: Membership, Ralph Quive, William J. Citron and W. A. Crank; business efficiency, Sol L. Lesser, Myron H. Lewis and Eph. Asher; grievance, Morris L. Markowitz, G. C. Parsons and Louis Reichert; legislation and public information, Meyer J. Cohen, H. L. Knappen and E. O. Child; transportation and traffic, W. O. Edmonds, Charles Rosenthal, Jr., and C. H. Muehlman; credits; Floyd St. John, A. M. Bowles and D. J. Chatkin; entertainment, E. O. Child, Eph. Asher and Marion H. Kohn.

Kalem Studio Properties Absorbed by Vitagraph

A LARGE amalgamation of literary properties, just completed, puts Vitagraph in possession of a big photoplay library. The information became public this week when Albert E. Smith announced that Vitagraph had absorbed the Kalem properties, which included a library of photoplay subjects particularly brilliant in authorship and bristling with stage plays that had scored successes for many years.

The acquistion of the Kalem properties includes all produced subjects.

Concurrently with the transfer of these properties, William Wright, secretary and treasurer of the Kalem almost since the inception of that pioneer concern, becomes affiliated with Vitagraph's sales and promotion department.

A further gain to Vitagraph in the Kalem deal regards the laboratories at the Brooklyn studio, which have been reinforced with the complete laboratory equipment of the Kalem studio. Together with the transfer of this finely co-ordinated department to Vitagraph, the superintendent responsible for its organization becomes a member of the chemical staff of Vitagraph, together with several of his expert assistants.

"Manager Wanted" is an advertisement frequently appearing in The World's Classified department. Give it a try and better your position.

Doings of Organized Showmen

ONTARIO EXHIBITORS HOLD MEETING

Steps to Organize the Co-operative Exchange Meet With Favor—To Ask Relief from Reel Tax

MORE than ordinary interest was taken in the regular monthly meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario at the association headquarters, 143 Yonge street, Toronto, on February 4. The meeting drew a large attendance of both Toronto and outside members, more than seventy exhibitors taking part in the conference.

The main reason for the unusual interest was the fact that the association's protege, the Canadian Exhibitors' Film Exchange Company, Limited, had been making considerable progress, while another feature was the presence of President George A. Graham of the Manitoba Exhibitors' Association, Winnipeg.

It was decided to send J. C. Brady of Toronto, president of the Ontario organization, and Secretary Thomas Scott to Montreal to discuss exchange and other matters with the exhibitors of Quebec Province.

Favor Co-operative Exchange.

All members present were in favor of steps taken to organize the co-operative exchange and the consensus of opinion was that the new company would grow into a Dominion-wide organization. The Ontario company was expected to be the nucleus and other provinces would probably fall in line, judging by letters and personal assurances already received.

President Graham of Winnipeg announced that the first work he would undertake upon his return to Winnipeg would be to bring the exchange proposition, as formulated by the Ontario body, to the attention of all exhibitors in Manitoba with a view to active co-operation and support.

In his speech before the Ontario members, President Graham announced that the Manitoba exhibitors had decided to send a deputation to Ottawa to ask the Government for relief from the special tax of fifteen cents a reel a day. He suggested that Ontario exhibitors and those of other provinces do likewise. He also explained the formation of the Manitoba Theatrical League which covers every branch of the amusement business in Manitoba.

Congratulate Ontario Association.

Mr. Graham congratulated the Ontario Association for organizing the co-operative exchange. He declared that the Ontario body could rely upon the support of the Manitoba association in the matter.

Mr. Graham read a letter which he had sent to all Manitoba exhibitors which contained his views of the present situation in the moving picture field and in which he outlined his policy for the Manitoba association for the coming year. He argued that if the exhibitor associations of Ontario, Manitoba, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces held together in the co-operative exchange development, Canadian exhibitors would be assured of having a good service of their own.

On the motion of Manager Redway of the Crown Theatre, Toronto, seconded by Manager Alexander of the Park Theatre, Toronto, Mr. Graham was officially thanked for his presence and his speech.

Revenue Letter Causes Discussion.

A letter from the Inland Revenue office at Ottawa aroused considerable discussion regarding the fifteen cent reel tax. It was pointed out that this tax meant an average expense of $375 per year to each exhibitor. The matter of sending a deputation to Ottawa to interview Government officials was left over until the two Ontario officers confer with the Quebec exhibitors at Montreal.

Out-of-town delegates present at the meeting included Fred Guest of Hamilton, J. S. Smart of Port Hope, E. Glassco of Windsor, F. Simpson of Guelph, G. F. Schreiber of Petersboro, A. A. Cooper of Huntsville and E. T. Wykes of Schreiber. These members represented practically every section of Ontario.

Cleveland Picture Men Plan Frolic and Ball

WHAT promises to be an outstanding social event of the winter season in Cleveland is the Movie Frolic and Ball of 1919, scheduled for the Hotel Winton Thursday evening, Feb. 20.

Prominent picture stars will be invited. One of the chief events of the evening will be a "movie" grand march. This will take place at 9.30. All guests will pass through a completely equipped studio, and motion pictures will be taken of the march. These pictures will be developed and printed and projected on a screen in the ballroom at one o'clock the same evening.

Still another feature will be a series of motion picture tableaus of poses plastique, showing vivid reproductions with living actors, of some of the film masterpieces of the past few years. Notably among these will be posed reproductions of Annette Kellerman in a "Daughter of the Gods"; Theda Bara in "Salome"; Audrey Munson in "Purity," and others of equal interest.

The committee in charge of the ball

Scenes from "When a Girl Loves" (Universal).

has elected Lloyd W. Young, 1900 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, executive secretary. The attendance will be strictly limited to 1,000 persons.

Brandt Again Elected Brooklyn League Head

THE Exhibitors' Association of Brooklyn and Long Island held its annual meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year at the William Brandt.

Cumberland Theatre on Saturday midnight, February 8.

William Brandt was elected president, defeating Jacob Grossman by three votes, Brandt receiving twenty and Grossman seventeen. Charles Crenidies was unanimously elected first vice-president. Otto Lederer was unanimously elected second vice-president. Samuel Berman defeated J. Cellar for executive secretary by a vote of twenty-five to eleven. H. Shapiro was elected treasurer by twenty-one votes against fifteen votes cast for H. Rachmill. D. J. Askin was unanimously chosen sergeant-at-arms. The board of directors are A. J. Stockhammer, William Bigall, H. S. Manus, Rudolph Sanders, John Manheimer, J. Enster and H. Rachmill.

The elections for president, secretary and treasurer were hotly contested, and the discussions indulged in were somewhat acrimonious. The Brooklyn Exhibitors' Association is one of the largest in the country, and this is the third time Mr. Brandt has been selected as the president.

Minneapolis League Has Large Membership Gain

THE mushroom growth in the membership of the Theatrical Protective League since its organization in Minneapolis last December has been due largely to the persistent efforts of Jack Martin, chairman of the membership committee.

The league organized with 12 members. Its personnel has now reached a total of 70, including a number of exhibitors from St. Paul and nearby Minnesota communities as well as Minneapolis moving picture men. Fully 95 per cent. of the exhibitors of Minneapolis are members of the organization, and although no effort has been made to seek out-of-town members, several applications from outsiders have been accepted.

Credit to Jack Martin.

Jack Martin, who is credited with getting more than 50 per cent. of the new members to date, says he is going to remain the "membership committee" until every prospect has been exhausted, and then he is going to go over the whole field again with a fine tooth comb.

Al Is "Took" by Kinograms.

Ring W. Lardner, creator of Jack Keefe, the famous Friend Al person, posed for Kinograms the other day. In order to hide his embarrassment from the camera man, he ticked off the following, while the noble young representative turned the crank:

"Friend Al:

"Well Al a bird is here taking my pitcher for the kinograms or something and I am embarrassed to death you might say and especially on acct. of it being a moving pitcher and its hard for me to move so it looks like as if I was in for a tough P. M."

REVIEW BOARD TO OPPOSE CENSORSHIP

Appoints Committee to Work with Similar Bodies—Quotes Famous Brief of Mayor Gaynor

THE board at the last meeting of its executive committee, consisting of Dr. Edward F. Sanderson, director of the People's Institute; Dr. Henry S. Oppenheimer, of the Charity Organization Society; Mrs. Miriam Sutro Price, of the Public Education Association; Henry E. Jenkins, district superintendent of schools, New York; the Rev. William B. Tower, of the Department of Surveys of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions; Louis Rouillion, director of the Mechanics' Institute; Dr. Orlando F. Lewis, general secretary of the Prison Association of New York, and Rowland Haynes, executive secretary of the New York War Camp Community Service, appointed a special committee on legislation to formulate plans and work in co-operation with other committees and organizations in opposing the bill for Federal censorship in Washington.

At the time of the passage of the Folks motion picture ordinance governing the regulation of motion picture films in New York City, a committee of the National Board conferred with the late Mayor Gaynor relative to the censorship clause in the ordinance, pointing out to Mayor Gaynor the undemocratic principle involved. Judge Gaynor, an ardent advocate of freedom of expression, transmitted to the Board of Aldermen his celebrated brief in opposition to censorship of motion pictures which was adapted as the policy of the National Board in this regard.

In transmitting this brief to the Board of Aldermen, Judge Gaynor said: "When I became Mayor, the denunciation of motion picture shows by a few people was at its highest. I had an official examination made of all moving picture shows in this city. The result was actual proof and an official report that there were no obscene or immoral pictures shown in the last few years."

Judge Gaynor, speaking from his knowledge of judicial proceeding, stated emphatically in vetoing the ordinance that the criminal law is ample to prevent the exhibition of undesirable pictures and that pre-publicity censorship is unnecessary from a legal standpoint. In closing his brief Judge Gaynor said: "These motion picture shows are attended by the great bulk of the people. Many of them cannot afford to pay the prices charged by the theatres. They are a solace and an education to them. Why are we singling out these people as subjects to be protected by a censorship? Are they any more in need of protection by censorship than the rest of the community? That was once the view which prevailed in government and there are some among us, ignorant of or untaught by past ages, who are of that view now. Are they better than the rest of us, or worse?"

"Our constitutional provision plainly is that publications, whether oral, or printed, or by writing, or by picture, shall not be restrained in advance, but that every one shall be free to speak or publish what he sees fit, subject to being prosecuted afterward for libel, immorality, obscenity or indecency therefor. I do not believe the people of this country are ready to permit any censor to decide in advance what may be published for them to read or what pictures may be exhibited to them. Our laws forbid the publication of any libelous, obscene, indecent, immoral or impure picture or reading matter. Is not that enough? If anyone does this he commits a criminal offense and may be punished therefor."

The executive committee or the National Board in opposing legal censorship believes that it is acting in support of the Constitution not only of the state but of the nation.

Lewis J. Selznick Now Banker.

Lewis J. Selznick has now become a banker. Mr. Selznick and Oscar Steiner, president of the East River National Bank, in association with others, have purchased the Cosmopolitan Bank of the Bronx, using which as a nucleus it is proposed to form a large banking establishment. Mr. Steiner will be president of both banks and Mr. Selznick will assume a directorship. The present bank will be retained only as a branch, with the main house opened in the Broadway district, somewhere in the Forties—in other words, within reach of the amusement enterprise field.

At the present time the Cosmopolitan Bank of the Bronx has a capital of $100,000 and a surplus of $25,000. This capitalization is being increased to $750,000, and a surplus of $250,000 will be maintained, which figures will provide a working capital of $1,000,000.

There are many ways in which The World's Classified advertising serves theatre managers and other individuals in the moving picture industry. The service is prompt and the appeal effective.

WILSON IDEAS FORM PICTURE'S BASIS

"Whom the Gods Would Destroy" Ready for Issue Carrying Ideals of Society of Nations as Theme

AFTER almost two years of silence and no small effort at keeping secret the details of the activities of their producing arrangements, the C. R. Macauley Photoplays, Inc., announces the completion of its special film production which was made under the working title of "Humanity." The story of the film was written by C. R. Macauley, in collaboration with a number of prominent persons, the theme of it being President Wilson's ideas for a permanent society of nations.

Seven months were spent in devising the story, entailing twenty trips to Washington for research purposes, continued conferences with men close to the President, who were aware of Mr. Wilson's ideals, and who were certain that the war would be fought until these ideals could be achieved. The new title chosen for the picture is "Whom the Gods Would Destroy."

This title was selected after the conference in New York of the delegates of the International Organization of the various League of Nations and Leagues to Enforce Peace, last week. "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," approximately seven reels in length, was produced at Universal City, Cal., under the personal supervision of William Sellers, formerly supervisor of the Triangle Studios, with Frank Borzage in charge of direction. Mr. Borzage was formerly a Griffith director at Triangle.

Kaiser and Emperor Shown in Film.

There are eighteen principal characters in the story, with Jack Mulhall and Pauline Stark playing the juvenile and ingenue leads respectively, and supported prominent players gleaned from almost every important company in California. A number of difficult scenes were secured by co-operation with the United States Government, and for the first time in films actual meetings between the Kaiser and the Austrian Emperor are shown.

Months were consumed in the photographing of the picture, and after the armistice was signed the entire story was altered to meet the changing conditions in Europe, the picture closely following developments at Versailles.

Sets covering acres of ground were built by the Macauley Company, one street 500 yards long, upon which twenty-six complete buildings were constructed, was later mined and destroyed; a bridge of concrete and stucco 200 feet in length was built and destroyed for flashback purposes; 1,600 people were in various scenes at one time, and experts in topography, history, geography and political economy were taken to Los Angeles, and invited to exercise their scientific minds in order that the picture would be historically accurate.

Through co-operation with various peace organizations, and organizations supporting President Wilson's great Society of Nations Ideas, arrangements are going forward for the simultaneous exhibition of this picture in New York, Paris, London, Rome, Sydney, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, and other world capitals. The entire handling of the picture has been placed under the direction of Harry Reichenbach, who has already arranged a campaign even more ambitious and far reaching than that which characterized his efforts with "Tarzan of the Apes."

Mr. Reichenbach is completing arrangements now for many pages of co-operative text in the daily papers throughout the United States, and a smashing campaign of unusual attractiveness direct to the exhibitor.

MINISTERS WORKING TO CLOSE THEATRES

Washington City's Pastors' Federation Raises Fund to Influence Legislation to Get Sunday Closing

THE Pastors' Federation of Washington, D. C., has raised a campaign fund of $1,000 to influence Federal legislation for the closing of theatres, motion picture theatres, and other amusements in the District of Columbia on Sunday.

The ministers of that city, who find the attendance at their churches dwindling in face of the competition offered by the theatres are in the game to secure Sunday closing legislation. The campaign was inaugurated at a meeting February 9 when speakers pointed to statistics gathered on previous Sunday evenings during the period from 7:30 to 9:00 o'clock, when all people are expected to attend church.

The clockers showed that while 7,000 people went to church, the 38 motion picture theatres watched entertained about 50,000 people. The announcement was made that a bill is now being drawn for introduction in Congress and that the campaign for its passage will be well-organized and powerful.

Just what is in store for the District of Columbia if those opposed to the many threatened reforms do not wake up, was announced by Rev. Dr. H. L. Bowlby, of New York, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, who referred to "S. O. S." as "Save Our Sabbath."

"We do not want a strictly Puritan Sunday," he remarked, "but we must make war against the organized desecrators of the Sabbath."

With the reformers winning everything before them the ministers are going about enlarging their business, for that is really what it amounts to, by the easiest way. It is suggested that, inasmuch as gathering petitions seems to be very much the fashion, it might be well for the exhibitors and theatre men in Washington to prepare to circulate petitions among the 50,000 people who are said to visit the motion picture houses Sunday nights. At any rate the exhibitors should get together and organize in the same way these ministers have, and do it now, and do it better than have the ministers.

Pauline Stark.

Jack Mulhall.

Kathryn Adams.

Players Prominent in "Whom the Gods Would Destroy."

TO ERECT STUDIO IN SAN FRANCISCO

Belle Bennett Pictures Completes Production Plans—Opens Offices in the Flood Building

WITHIN ninety days the production of moving pictures on a large scale will be commenced at San Francisco, and the outlook is bright for a development of the business. For some time past moving picture companies have been coming to the Bay City from the southern part of the state, there being scarcely a week that some company has not worked here, and stars have been clamoring for studio facilities in order that they might remain here permanently.

The heavy studio investments of many of the large producers in Southern California have prevented these from making the change, despite scenic advantages, but the recent changes in the producing world have brought about conditions that greatly favor the establishment of the industry on a firm footing in San Francisco. Stars are breaking away from their former affiliations and are forming companies of their own, planning to work in leased studios, and to accommodate these, together with local companies in need of facilities, a mammoth studio is to be erected at once in this city, doubtless the forerunner of others.

The initial step to place San Francisco firmly on the film producing map is being taken by the Belle Bennett Pictures Corporation, recently organized by C. E. Bentley, of New York, who is its vice-president and general manager. Offices have been opened in the Flood Building, the most pretentious office building in this city, and plans for the erection of the studio and for the making of pictures have been completed. The studio, it is said, will cost a quarter of a million dollars and will be built after the order of the Robert Brunton Studios in Hollywood. It will be operated entirely independent of the Belle Bennett Pictures Corporation, which, however, will be the first company to lease space in it.

Associated with C. E. Bentley in the new San Francisco concern is L. H. Bentley of Minneapolis, who owns the Bentley Grand Theatre at Long Beach, and who is connected with various large enterprises.

Belle Bennett, who will be the star of the company bearing her name, is now leading woman at the Alcazar Theatre, of this city. She is known in the field of moving pictures through her work in "The Hell Cat of Alaska," "The Bond of Fear," and other productions.

Nazimova to Make Series of Five De Luxe Pictures

ARRANGEMENTS for a new series of Nazimova productions have just been completed by the Russian star in cooperation with Richard A. Rowland and Maxwell Karger, who present the Nazimova superfeatures.

The new series will comprise five de luxe productions and will be photographed in California under the direction of Albert Capellani and the general supervision of Maxwell Karger. Henri Menessier, Mme. Nazimova's art director, will prepare the art details of the productions.

In variety of theme, wealth of costume, direction, setting and lighting, the new Nazimova pictures will surpass even her achievements of the last twelve months. Each story will be widely different in theme, treatment, and locale.

The first of the new Nazimova superfeatures will be a surprise to many, since it gives an English part to the star supposed to be most at home in roles of Oriental or exotic flavor. The story, the screen rights to which have been obtained for the star's use, is "The Heart of a Child," Frank Danby's (Mrs. Julia Frankau) popular and appealing novel. Nazimova will play the part of Sally Snape, a little red-headed urchin, who, according to the moving tale of Mrs. Frankau's, makes her first appearance dancing to the music of a hurdy-gurdy. The fortunes of Sally are followed until she becomes Miss Sarah Mainwaring of the Gaiety Theatre, and her romance with a young nobleman is sketched to a captivating denouement. Through all the adventures and misadventures that befall her, Sally retains "the heart of a child."

Fascinating scenes are plentiful. They include glimpses of theatrical life, both before the curtain and behind it, and week-end trips "down at Brighton." Character studies of the theatrical world and intimate scenes of society alternate in the story, which will be picturized by June Mathis and Albert Capellani.

Of the other productions to be made following the Frank Danby picture, little has yet been divulged. Mme. Nina Lewton, Mme. Nazimova's sister, is making a translation of a French dramatic romance, the title of which will be given out later. The leading role provides Nazimova with another distinctive and difficult part.

Report Heavy Bookings for "Under Four Flags"

MOST favorable reports of the further success being established by the Government's Victory picture "Under Four Flags" are reaching the office of the Division of Films from the World Film exchanges. In the many territories where the picture has been shown the reports tell of openings in which house records were broken and unusual enthusiasm displayed by the patrons. In those sections of the country where the picture has not yet opened the reports are that bookings are being made in excess of the record made by "America's Answer."

In the Southern territory the bookings are unusually heavy. At the Strand in Knoxville, where it was shown for a week, "Under Four Flags" not only broke the house record, but it drew such crowds that it was necessary for the management to give extra performances. Similar circumstances attended the showing at the Alcazar in Chattanooga and at the Airdrome in Miami.

In the territory around Boston the picture is being successfully shown over all the big circuits, playing a week at the Strand in Providence to big business and three days at the Majestic in Pittsfield to a new record for the house.

Similar results have been obtained in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia through the Pittsburgh exchange and in Ohio through the Cincinnati exchange. In the Western districts bookings are reported to be heavy through Utah, Oregon, Oklahoma, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota and Montana.

The Illinois bookings have been particularly large. Fifteen Chicago houses have already played the picture and many other contracts are in for the city.

Since the showing at the Rivoli and Rialto in New York, the picture has been exhibited in twenty-five other houses in the city, and booked in as many more for early showings. Fifteen Brooklyn houses have shown it, with other bookings to follow. Similar records have been established in Washington, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cincinnati and Buffalo.

Combat Film Rental in Oregon.

When the full meaning of the film rental tax became known to the manufacturers, C. M. Hill, manager of the Portland (Ore.) exchange of the Famous Player-Lasky Company, received a wire containing 877 words from his home office on the subject. Mr. Hill immediately referred it to a committee of prominent exhibitors and a meeting was scheduled. At the time set there were present a few exchangemen and not a handful of exhibitors.

Then Mr. Hill took it upon himself to conduct the campaign for petitions against the tax on his own initiative. He had slides made at his own expense, supplied theatre managers with petitions for the patrons to sign and supplied publicity to the papers. He is now getting the co-operation of the exhibitors.

Metro Adopts Army Supply Methods.

Army transport and supply methods have been adopted at the new Metro studios in Hollywood, where David H. Thompson, studio manager, has engaged the services of Lieutenant A. E. Cohen, recently discharged from the Quartermaster's Corps after eighteen months with the colors, to receive the large shipments of lumber, lights, properties and other production materials arriving daily at the new Metro plant.

Lieutenant Cohen enlisted in the army and qualified for a commission at Honolulu. His last assignment was at Charlotte, N. C., and before that he had been stationed at several of the cantonments. He is a son of J. C. Cohen, president of the Consolidated Amusement Company, of Honolulu, owning four big motion picture theatres in Hawaii and conducting the only film exchange on the island.

Reports Cincinnati Business Good.

Manager Harry H. Hicks, of Select's Cincinnati office, who was recently promoted from the Seattle territory, paid a visit to the home office in New York on Monday, Feb. 3, in order to consult with President Lewis J. Selznick and General Manager Arthur S. Kane regarding the greatly increased business which in sight in Cincinnati.

Mr. Hicks expressed his faith in a new era of prosperity for the middle western exhibitor. Conditions obtaining during the war and also the depressing conditions increased by the epidemic have both been left behind, avers Mr. Hicks.

CLEAN UP CAMPAIGN FOR 'OUR TEDDY'

Manager Shackman, of New York's Eighty-first Street, Demonstrated the Value of Showmanship in Putting Over Big Feature in House with Neighborhood Location

APPROXIMATELY five thousand new patrons of the class who rarely attend a motion picture theatre, four days of capacity business in a house seating twenty-four hundred, and a special Saturday morning matinee for school children which brought crowds so great that a detail of nine policemen was required to preserve order, are the results obtained by S. A. Shackman, owner and manager of the Eighty-first Street Theatre, at Eighty-first street and Broadway, New York City, from an unusual campaign to put over "Our Teddy," the six-reel screen version of the life and accomplishments of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, made by McClure Productions, Inc., and distributed by First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Mr. Shackman changes his program twice a week. This gives him a three days' run for the first half, and four days for the second half of each week. "Our Teddy" was booked to open on Thursday and to close on Sunday night, making a four days' engagement. His theatre is in the heart of a thickly settled district, populated by well-to-do families, in the upper West Side.

Going Out for New Patrons.

For appeal to this class of patronage he has found that dignity and a certain element of conservatism are essential. His regular advertising mediums include car cards on the Broadway surface lines, five line insertions daily in the New York Times as the morning newspaper, and the Evening World for the afternoon publication, with larger space in the Sunday editions of both; advance slides, and a variety of lobby display cards, hand lettered and arranged by himself. Supplementing these is the house program of sixteen pages, containing current and advance announcements. Occasionally he uses blotters for distribution to out-going patrons and among the apartment houses in the neighborhood. Window card displays in a dozen choice locations complete the list of regular methods of advertising and publicity.

"Here is a chance," Mr. Shackman said to his assistant, Mr. Gerard, after he had booked the Roosevelt picture, "to bring new patrons to the theatre. I believe that this production will appeal not alone to the 'regulars,' but to the thousands who still believe that motion pictures are beneath average amusement standards. There is the opportunity in 'Our Teddy' to interest them in screen entertainment. The possibility of results easily is worth the effort."

Made Study of Subject.

He then proceeded to analyze the production for novel advertising ideas. He had just been advised that a song had been written under the title of "Good-bye, Teddy Roosevelt, You Were a Real American." After reading the verse and chorus he hit upon the first of a series of new promotional plans that added five thousand potential "regulars" to his clientele.

The concluding scenes of "Our Teddy" show Colonel Roosevelt and his four sons in double exposures over a service star. The action pictures the part taken by each of the four boys in the world war.

With this for his premise Mr. Shackman began a search for a quartet of wounded soldiers. Commanding officers at several Base Hospitals in New York were consulted and four wounded men were finally located at Bast Hospital No. 1. They had sung in the hospitals in France during their convalescence.

Put Novelty in Lobby Display.

Beginning with the matinee on the Sunday preceding the opening of "Our Teddy," Mr. Shackman introduced them as "Pershing's Overseas Quartet." Specific reference was made to the Roosevelt picture, and then the quartet sang the song while announcement and scene slides from the film were thrown on the screen. This was repeated at every performance.

Variety and novelty were sought for the lobby display. The idea finally approved by Mr. Shackman provided for a display portrait of Theodore Roosevelt, hung from the marquee and facing the street. In an apartment house opposite he placed a spot light which threw a strong light on the portrait after dark each night.

Made Use of Spot Light.

This received a great deal of attention from pedestrians on the opposite side of Broadway, and from a heavy automobile and surface car traffic. A similar portrait, draped with flags, was hung in the center of the marquee above the sidewalk for the attention of passers-by on the theatre side of Broadway.

He used a different style of lobby display, alternating the arrangements of material in the cards so that it appealed both to his regular patrons and to the new clientele he was seeking. Some of the frames contained lobby display photographs, while others were mounted with newspaper and magazine clippings, surrounding large portrait photos of the former President. These latter displays were given preferred position in the frames facing the streets at either side of the lobby.

School Campaign Well Planned.

The public schools were considered for a semi-educational and semi-entertainment appeal to the pupils. Mr. Shackman learned that within a radius of ten blocks of the theatre were schools with a registration of ten thousand children. A personal appeal was made to the principal of each of nine schools, and permission was obtained from them individually for the distribution of ten thousand blotters, announcing a special school children's matinee at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

To add interest to the occasion he extended an invitation to the New York Council of the Boy Scouts of America for its members to attend the special matinee as his guests. The New York Council has a band. He sought the leader, and arrangements were made for the band of thirty-five pieces to give a short patriotic concert as an overture for the picture. This fact was made a part of the copy on the blotters sent to the schools.

"A surprising feature of the school

Children of the Neighborhood Schools Lined Up on Broadway for Their Own Special Performance of "Our Teddy."

plan," said Mr. Shackman, "was the marked willingness of the principals to co-operate with me. They looked upon the production as something that every school pupil should see, and the fact that I was arranging a special matinee seemed to them to be the ideal way of presenting the picture to the children."

There is an established rule in all New York public schools prohibiting the distribution of advertising matter of any character to the pupils, either outside the school or in the class rooms. Mr. Shackman's blotters were given out in the class rooms, at the direction of the principals, by the various class monitors.

Used Blotters to Advantage.

A cartoon by R. M. Brinkerhoff, picturing in entertaining style his impressions of the production, was the illustration used on the blotters, which were printed in two colors. The blotters were distributed on Tuesday, two days before the picture opened its four days' engagement. There was a practical legitimate purpose in this. Mr. Shackman was confident that every pupil would preserve the blotter for personal use, and that every one of the ten thousand would be certain to tell their parents about the matinee.

He was right. They did both; more effectively than he had dared to hope.

As a further effort to win the "once-in-a-whiles" Mr. Shackman increased the size of his newspaper space in a four days' campaign, starting on Wednesday, and continuing until Saturday. He used ads two columns by two inches in the Times and the Evening World. The copy was written to interest all classes of readers. Small line cuts of the situations drawn in cartoon by Brinkerhoff were used to illustrate the text.

Making Music Do Its Share.

Walter Davidson, musical director for the Eighty-first Street Theatre, arranged a musical score which included the "American Patrol" for the overture, various other patriotic airs, including "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," and an orchestral accompaniment of "Good-bye, Teddy Roosevelt, You Were a Real American." The enthusiasm of the audiences during the first half of the week satisfied Mr. Shackman that the "Pershing Quartet" would contribute to the atmosphere of the production by singing this song as an introduction, and again with the closing scene.

Got Capacity Opening.

The production started on Thursday to capacity business. On Friday the treasurer notified Mr. Shackman that the advance sale for Saturday and Sunday was far above normal. On Saturday morning, with the special matinee scheduled to begin at 11:30 o'clock, Mr. Shackman arrived at the theatre at 9:30 o'clock to find the lobby and street jammed with children.

By 10 o'clock the crowd had grown to such proportions that it was becoming unmanageable, and he telephoned to a police station for assistance. Nine policemen responded, and they were kept busy for nearly two hours.

Sees Hundreds of New Faces.

"The production proved a truly wonderful attraction," said Mr. Shackman. "Mr. Gerard and I watched carefully at every matinee and evening performance, and we saw hundreds of new faces in line at the box office, people whom neither of us could remember ever having seen in the house before. I had arranged the remainder of my program so that these new patrons would be thoroughly pleased with the entire show. I wanted to convince them that the Eighty-first Street Theatre would be well worth their future consideration.

Children Were Home Advertisers.

"Undoubtedly the blotters distributed in the schools sent into the homes of Shackman Featured His Quartette.

thousands of families the news that the life of Colonel Roosevelt would be told in motion pictures at my house. I am positive that hundreds of fathers and mothers and older brothers and sisters of the school children came to the theatre before Saturday to satisfy themselves.

One of Shackman's Lobby Frames.

"It is too early yet to say how many new patrons will result from the campaign and the production, but I am satisfied that the number will be sufficient to more than justify the attempt."

Fox's Pittsburgh Branch Forms Picture Navy League

A MOVEMENT to organize into a Motion Picture Navy League all the film men who have seen service in the navy has been inaugurated in the Pittsburgh branch office of the Fox Film Corporation. Letters have been sent to all the William Fox Film exchanges and to other picture offices asking the co-operation of men who have seen naval service. The object of the league is to promote the welfare of the navy and navy men throughout the country.

The organizers include Ensign William Cantwell, a Harvard graduate who was in the aviation branch of the navy. He saw service in France for nine months, and was officially credited with bringing down eight German planes. Mr. Cantwell, who was recently discharged from the navy, is now assistant office manager of the Fox branch at Pittsburgh.

Paul Baron, also connected with the Pittsburgh office, is another leader in the movement. He was a petty officer, stationed at the big naval training station at Pelham Bay Park. He spent a year and a half in the navy. Before enlisting he was office manager for two years and a half at the Syracuse Fox office.

Another member of the Fox Pittsburgh staff who is furthering the project is George Ranshaw, salesman for Southern Pennsylvania. Mr. Ranshaw, who was formerly office manager at the Fox branch in Detroit, saw nearly two years' service at the Great Lakes Naval Training School.

Congress Has No Time for Censorship Bills

THE Moving Picture World's Washington office has had a number of inquiries as to the status of the bill recently introduced by Congressman Randall, of California, for national censorship of motion pictures. Unlike the Smith-Hughes bill of the last Congress, of which the Randall bill is a copy, it has been referred to the House Committee on the Judiciary instead of to the House Committee on Education and Labor.

If the motion picture industry is worried over the possible passage of this bill at this time, it might well forget even the mere existence of the measure. Congress has plenty to do between now and March 4, without fooling around with such legisaltion as this, and even if it was desired and the bill was rushed through the House of Representatives, it could not get passed the Senate.

New York League to Hold Convention.

A call for a state wide convention of motion picture exhibitors in New York has been issued by President Sydney S. Cohen. The call is for February 26 at the Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse.

Positively no so-called co-operative booking or film selling scheme of any kind under whatever guise or by whomsoever proposed will be considered or discussed at this convention.

Among those who will address the convention will be Senator Thompson, of Niagara, who made a gallant fight for the Sunday opening bill at the last session of the Legislature, and who is again putting forth his best efforts for the bill, and Dr. Royal Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York City.

HOW GRAUMAN PUT ON "CANNIBALS" FILM

Big Los Angeles Exhibitor Used South Pacific Natives in Prologue to Martin Johnson's Picture

GRAUMAN presented Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas," an Exhibitors' Mutual release, at his million-dollar picture palace, Los Angeles, with a prologue and stage setting of startling originality.

The stage was set with palm trees and palmleaf huts, and so effective was the set that, as the curtain rose on the semi-darkened stage, it might well have been an actual vision of a South Pacific Island. The detail was there, even to a monkey astride a stump.

The prologue followed the presentation of the news reel, when the curtain was lowered and raised slowly on the partially darkened stage. The lights grew brighter slowly, as to picture the rising sun. As dawn came the audience discovered an opal blue lake in the background.

In the distance, paddling a canoe through the lake, appeared two savages, and as they drew closer to the shore, other savages, men and women, appeared from the woods to greet them. When the visitors landed the savages all joined in a cannibal dance around the stage, which continued as the curtain slowly dropped on the scene, and the title of the picture flashed onto the screen.

Real South Pacific natives were secured for the prologue, for the native Islander is not scarce in Los Angeles and other Pacific coast cities. They were garbed in cannibal style, although the municipal regulations necessitated that they wear, especially the women, more generous attire than the native savage.

The prologue was so distinctive that it was given a separate place on the Grauman program for the week, followed by Martin Johnson's "unstaged drama."

Press Commends Presentation.

The press of Los Angeles wrote columns of commendation on the showing and it is considered one of the most effective presentations that has ever been staged in the Grauman Theatre. The Los Angeles Herald called it: "Grauman's finest presentation 100 per cent. verdict."

Grauman wired to Exhibitors' Mutual, after the success of the showing had been established by box office figures, that the rigid weekly change policy of his theatre alone prevented him from continuing the production for a second week's run.

The sensational success of the Johnson feature has led to the immediate booking, in many cities, of the final installment of five reels in which the capture of Martin Johnson and his wife by the "Big Numbers" tribe is pictured.

Exhibitors Mutual, through which the Johnson cannibal pictures are being released, announces that the final installment of Johnson's adventures will be available in a five-reel feature within the month.

William Fox Invades More South American Territory

WITH the end of the war film exporters are engaged in one of the sharpest foreign contests in the history of the motion picture industry to capture foreign territories. Nearly every week sees an announcement of the departure for Europe of some American film representative, and there is every indication that American motion pictures, grown to a dominating position during the war, will strengthen their hold on all foreign countries. South America in particular appears to be the objective of several big companies, and the competition for this territory is assuming great intensity.

Announcements from the Fox Film Corporation reveal the scope of the invasion of Latin-America by American films. Fox pictures now, it is said, are being shown in every country in South America save Colombia, and the William Fox organization is contemplating a contract for that.

The Foreign Department of the Fox Film Corporation last week closed a contract with Granados Diaz, of Caracas, for all the William Fox special features to be shown throughout Venezuela. These pictures are already being shown in Caracas and other leading Venezuelan cities.

The company also has just closed contracts for the booking of Fox films in Santo Domingo and in Central America. One of the big favorites in Latin-America, letters from exhibitors show, is Theda Bara. Miss Bara's super-production, "Cleopatra," was recently shown in the Fausto Theatre, Havana, to capacity audiences for an extended run. At the same time two other Bara subjects, "The Kreuter Sonata" and "The Clemenceau Case," were being shown at the Margot Theatre, one of the leading local houses.

Five Famous Players Films In One Week on Broadway

WITH Cecil B. DeMille's Artcraft picture, "Don't Change Your Husband," at the Rialto, John Barrymore in the Paramount offering, "Here Comes the Bride," at the Strand and William S. Hart in his latest Artcraft picture, "Breed of Men," at the Rivoli, productions of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation were the headline attractions of the programs offered at all three of the big pre-release houses on Broadway this week.

Moreover, while the names of these attractions were being emblazoned in electricity the New York Theatre and all the other houses of the Marcus Loew circuit in Greater New York were beckoning the crowds with the announcement of William Faversham in the Paramount-Artcraft Special, "The Silver King," on Monday, and Fred Stone in his second Artcraft picture, "Under the Top," as the Tuesday feature.

Murray Will Not Return to Stage.

Charlie Murray, the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedian, is not contemplating a return to the stage. This announcement is called forth by a statement that the old team of Murray and Mack is shortly to be revived.

Murray, by the way, adds lustre to the cast of "Puppy Love," Lila Lee's Paramount picture released March 2. The picture was directed by R. William Neill and photographed by Henry Kotani. It is from an original story and scenario by Monte M. Katterjohn.

An advertisement in The World's Classified Department is a quick and sure way to the attention of interested readers. Many wants are supplied through this effective medium of barter and sale.

Grauman's Setting for "Cannibals of the South Seas."

HART TO DISSOLVE DIVISION OF FILMS

Director Returns from Europe, Where He Has Been Closing Up Affairs of His Department

THE Division of Films of the Committee on Public Information, having completed its important work of screen propaganda both in this country and Europe in an endeavor to help win the war, will soon go out of existence. Charles S. Hart, director of the division, recently returned from Europe and makes the statement that the affairs of the division will be closed up at the earliest possible moment with no new pictures to be presented. This circumstance will create some little surprise as it was expected that the division would show some of the pictures taken by the Government of the Peace Conference. The contract with the World Film Corporation for the release of "America's Answer," "Under Four Flags" and the "U. S. A. Series" will be maintained until that concern has finished all its bookings.

Charles S. Hart.

Mr. Hart has given out the following interview relative to his trip to Europe and the plans for closing up the activities of the Division of Films. At the same time he pays a glowing tribute to the motion picture industry for the important part it played in helping win the war.

Its Work Completed.

"The Division of Films has completed the work laid out for it by the Government and all of its affairs will be closed up at the earliest possible moment," said Mr. Hart. "As the public perhaps well knews, this department of the Committee on Public Information was intended to make valuable use of the powerful influence of the screen for propaganda work in the war. It was intended to show the people of the country as many details as could be discreetly given of America's participation in the great struggle, to show the preparations at home and the activities in France in all departments of the A. E. F., as well as to give the public a comprehensive idea of where and how their money was being spent and what was being accomplished by its use.

Division of Films Has Been Success

"It was also intended to oust German propaganda pictures from the neutral countries and to show our own broadcast to the invaluable aid of the cause of the Allies. I believe it is safe to say that the Division of Films, in all of its activities, has been a success and has performed its functions in a way that has met with the approbation of the Administration and the spoken appreciation of the Allies.

"My recent visit to Europe was not, as it was thought in some quarters, to direct the screening of the Peace Conference with the purpose of exhibiting the pictures through this division. The pictures of the Peace Conference taken by the Government are only for historical reference and will be filed in Washington; they are not for competition with the industry, but are available for use by the industry if desired.

"My mission in Europe was to close up the affairs of the offices engaged in our foreign propaganda work, to check over the details of the activities of the organization and to close the offices. In this work I visited London, Paris, Rome and other cities. My visit had no significance in connection with motion pictures or with plans to continue or renew the activities of the Division of Films.

Shut Germany Off of Neutral Screens.

"The public and particularly the motion picture industry will be pleased to know of the invaluable propaganda work accomplished through the screen in foreign countries. The foreign organization, headed by Herbert C. Hoagland, succeeding in effacing the German propaganda pictures from the screen in all the principal neutral countries and in displaying our own in practically every city and town.

"The elimination of the German films was made possible by the patriotic services of the motion picture producers of the United States. They furnished such elaborate programs for our use in the foreign countries that the exhibitors there clamored for them. It was so arranged that the exhibitors were not allowed to have these programs unless they ran our propaganda pictures with them. Since the American pictures were too good to refuse, they were shown everywhere, together with our propaganda films, and there was no room anywhere for German pictures. The American producers furnished these programs at cost, adding in no small degree to the honorable record of the screen and the industry as a whole in the great endeavor for victory.

"As quickly as the financial department of the division can get in the receipts, complete its audit of the accounts and make a report to Congress, the offices of the Division of Films will be closed. I think the work will be completed within a period of two months at the most."

Rialto Books Vitagraph Feature.

"The Lion and the Mouse" has been secured by the Rialto Theatre for its initial New York run. Vitagraph's big super-production, which stars Alice Joyce, begins a week's engagement on Sunday, Feb. 16.

As previously reported the production is being snapped up all over the country for circuit runs and for extended showings.

Frank E. Woods Organizing Fund for Photoplayers

FRANK E. WOODS, supervising director of productions at the Famous Players-Lasky Studio in Hollywood, has undertaken the creation of a fund that will be of the same character in its general application to the moving picture people as the Actors' Fund is to the members of the regular stage profession.

Mr. Woods has undertaken the organization of the fund at the request of the board of directors of the Motion Picture War Service Association, formed here several months ago. Mr. Woods states that the Motion Picture War Service Association is to be dissolved and that the funds on hand will be distributed to the givers in proportion to their donations.

Frank E. Woods.

Mr. Woods says that details for the new organization are not yet completed or ready for publication and that he is working very slowly in order to make the plans as comprehensive as possible.

Frank E. Woods was one of the earliest writers on film subjects and was for a time editor of the Dramatic Mirror, and his articles under the signature of "Spec" were widely read and had world wide circulation. He was perhaps the earliest film critic and one of the first continuity writers.

In addition to his literary work, Mr. Woods has had wide experience as a director and producer. He was connected with the Reliance-Majestic and Fine Art Studios, was for a time with the Kinemacolor Company and for four and one-half years was a director at the Biograph Studio under D. W. Griffith.

Mr. Woods has been in his present position of supervising director for Famous Players-Lasky for a year and a half.

"MICKEY" FIRST AS A MUSICAL TIE-UP

H. J. Shepard Claims To Be Originator of the Scheme for Linking Phonographs and Feature

BECAUSE of the success of the musical tie-up for "Mickey" there have been several other songs written for the purpose of boosting extra features. While the matter is still fresh in memory H. J. Shepard asks that it be written on the records that the W. H. Productions was first to use a specially written song on phonograph records. He wants it put down now against the time the matter is befogged by the lapse of months or years, and so in the interests of accuracy the record is made.

Before "Mickey" was placed upon the market a sprightly song was written, typical of the rollicking humor of the play. It was got out in a cheap edition and placed on sale throughout the country through the ten-cent stores, and more than a million copies already have been sold, with the demand still strong. In addition two phonograph records were made by the Columbia; or rather three, for there is one disc with a vocal trio on one side and a "Mickey" medley on the other, and another disc on one face, of which the selection is played as a fox-trot. In addition a perforated roll was prepared for the player pianos at a popular price.

All of these various devices very naturally boom the film to the full extent of their power that they may profit through its popularity. In Denver, for example, the phonograph company took better than quarter pages to advertise the records; while the ten-cent stores plastered their windows with copies of the song, using the stills and posters of the local house for attractors. Even in the small towns where "Mickey" has not as yet been played the phonograph and music stores have given strong hook-ups and have offered displays that could not possibly be purchased in many instances solely because they stood to profit equally with the house in the popularity of the film; and when it is realized that the equipment for advertising supplied by the W. H. Productions ranges from two 24 sheets through sixes and eights to ones, with a large variety of smaller pieces, it can be seen that the combined efforts of the exhibitor and the dealers results in a campaign that really meets the much abused word "circused." It is all there for the exhibitor, and he has been turning things loose because he has been supplied with a line of aids that would please even Ralph Ruffner, and the stuff gets to the exhibitor. It does not remain in the press book and on the exchange shelves.

Mr. Shepard is entitled to full credit not only for being the first to get out a real phonograph tie-up, but to get out an advertising campaign that is both fool and accident proof.

SARGENT.

Says Playwrights Should Get Stories from Soldiers

SAM H. HARRIS, who is the partner of George M. Cohan and a theatrical producer and manager, has a tip for stage and screen playwrights. He thinks so much of it that if he could write dramas himself—"I'd never give this to a living soul," he declares. But since Harris' genius can't be strained in this direction of theatrical endeavor, he passes on the great discovery.

"See soldiers and sailors," counsels Harris. "I mean, men who have seen active service in actual war. There are hundreds of them around these days, and they're glad to relate their adventures.

"Talk about real drama! Why, you can get enough romance and realism out of soldiers' tales for ten plays. The situations are new, the plots are vital. There's always humor along with the pathos. If some of the boys had the dramatic trick they'd control the entire play product of America. Meantime before they cultivate it—and I believe they could turn almost any trick, these youngsters—the regular playwrights and scenario writers ought to get busy."

Goldstein on the Rhine.

An American motion picture man was one of the first doughboys to cross the Rhine according to a letter and photos just received by President Paul H. Cromelin, of Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, from Private Louis Goldstein, of the Photographic Section of the Signal Corps. Goldstein was a film broker in New York for a number of years previous to the spring of 1918, when he joined the colors. He has been taking pictures and doing laboratory work with the Photographic Section since summer. The photo taken on the Rhine shows Goldstein, the first man in the row beginning on the left. The celebrated Coblenz Hof, where the headquarters of the commanding officers of the Army of Occupation reside, appears in the background across the Rhine.

Louis Goldstein and an Onabridged Version of His Card.

Famous Players to Put "Secret Service" on Screen

ONE of the most important announcements made by the production department of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in the past few months was given out recently by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president, in charge of that department. It involves the purchase of "Secret Service," one of the biggest money-making theatrical attractions in the history of America's "legitimate" stage, by William Gillette.

"Secret Service" opened on October 5, 1898, at the Garrick Theatre in New York, with the actor-author in the leading role. The opening was one of the most notable stage occasions in years.

In his announcement concerning the production of "Secret Service" for the screen Mr. Lasky said: "In 'Secret Service' we have one of the most valuable pieces of stage property ever purchased for the motion picture screen. This famous play, in which Mr. Gillette won such great popularity, is of particular value as a motion picture story, as any one who knows the theme will no doubt agree."

The scenes of "Secret Service" are laid in Richmond at the crucial time when the capital of the Southern Confederacy was seriously threatened by the Federal army. Two brothers named Dumont, members of the United States Secret Service, had been detailed to secure control of the Richmond telegraph office. By sending a false dispatch to the general commanding the Confederate forces, ordering him to withdraw his forces from a certain point, the Union army is to break down and capture the city. A beautiful romance is woven into the theme, presenting on the whole a fast moving story, with plenty of human touches to make it an admirable screen subject.

"We expect to announce in the near future," said Mr. Lasky, "the name of one of the foremost American actors to play the role created by Mr. Gillette. Details of the arrangement with this star are now under consideration, and within a few days we expect to definitely close for his engagement in this film."

Burns Goes to the Coast.

Edward Burns, the juvenile whose buoyant personality is seen to its best advantage in "Made in America," caught the Santa Fe for the West Coast film colony immediately after seeing himself on the screen in this picture. Young Burns has been in pictures eighteen months and appeared in sixteen productions. He says his role of the 100% American in "Made in America" is his favorite.

DIFFICULTIES OF A WAR CAMERAMAN

Leon Caverly Formerly with Gaumont and Now an Army Photographer Tells of Service at the Front

LEON H. CAVERLY, formerly a cameraman for the Gaumont Company, and now a lieutenant in the Marine Corps as an official photographer with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, has written an interesting letter to Pell Mitchell, editor of Gaumont News.

"All countries maintain an extensive photographic department, whose duties are to photograph every phase of actual warfare for the archives of the war department," says Mr. Caverly. "The men are expert photographers and have been obliged to take the same chances as the soldiers. Some have been killed; many wounded, and a few taken as prisoners. Many of the pictures the public never see as they are used purely for military reference.

"It was my good fortune to be the first official Government photographer to come to France with the expeditionary force. During eight months of action I had ample opportunity to secure really wonderful pictures, both movies and stills, covering every phase of warfare—tanks going into battle, shells falling, air raids, destroyed towns, wounded prisoners, and in fact everything that happens in connection with a great offensive.

Goes Along in Raids, Too.

"In order to record the battles for future generations it is necessary that the photographer in many ways become a soldier. He is obliged to tramp many miles through mud and rain with his heavy outfit, and at the end of a day he is just as pleased with a few good "shots" as the boys who capture a machine gun nest. In raids he often goes along, too, and the click of the shutter is drowned by the pop pop of the machine guns. Sleeping in barns and out in the open also falls to his share. On several occasions, while in the St. Mihiel drive, I was obliged to abandon my outfit and seek cover.

"Staggering along with an outfit weighing nearly a hundred pounds through trenches and across shell holes on a hot day with shells bursting all around and the whine of machine gun bullets is not the most pleasant pastime in the world, still we consider it worth while if we get a few feet of really good stuff. The chances we take are lost sight of in the possibility of getting a good shot, and we consider it a good day's work if we can record some new action never before photographed. As an operator in civil life, I have shot many a battle scene, but for excitement give me the real thing, it's a great game if you don't weaken or get shot.

Cannot Consider the Weather.

"It did not take me long to discover that present-day warfare is not run to suit the photographer. When ordering an attack the General does not consult the weather man, so the photographer must work under conditions as he finds them. Good light conditions, good backgraunds, shells bursting at the right time and in the right place are seen only in the movies. Unlike his brother at home, the photographer at the front must do the best he can with the material at hand, so do not blame him if the results are not as good."

Stolte of Omaha Puts on Griffith Film Effectively

MANAGER STOLTE, of the Strand Theatre, Omaha, is making a mark for himself throughout the Middle West with his stage settings. Showing Griffith's "Greatest Thing in Life," he introduced a setting which, for real artistic and striking effectiveness, has never before been equalled in Omaha.

With a fifteen-piece symphony orchestra playing the accompaniment, the setting opened with the faint signs of dawn. As it became lighter, the picture of a ruined village in France, with trenches, barbed wire entanglements and broken down cannon in the foreground, came into prominence. Suddenly, in place of the sun, the word "Victory" was flashed in the sky, a spotlight was thrown upon a silk flag waving from the top of a ruined tree trunk and the band started playing "The Star Spangled Banner." Then, while the audience stood, on the screen were thrown pictures of Yanks marching in all parts of the world, with cutins of President Wilson and Pershing thrown upon the screen.

Suddenly the setting vanished, then dark velvet curtains unfolded from before the screen and showed the picture starting. The Strand played to capacity houses all week and the setting was widely discussed. Manager Stolte says he has other ideas for settings that will make Omaha set up even straighter and take notice.

The Victory Setting of the Strand Theatre, Omaha.

Vitagraph Engages Ince to Make Leslie Subject

AMONG the interesting events of the week is the announcement by Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, of the return of Ralph Ince to that company as a director. Mr. Ince, after an absence of a couple of years spent in independent directorial essays, has been re-engaged to direct Gladys Leslie for one picture.

Coupled with the announcement of Ralph Ince's resumption of Vitagraph relations comes another important piece of news. "A Stitch in Time," one of the comedy-drama hits of the past season in New York, where it ran at the Fulton Theatre for thirteen weeks, has been secured by Vitagraph for Miss Leslie's Star Series, and will be produced under the direction of Ralph Ince.

Ralph Ince is a Vitagraph product, with sound stage training back of him. Of a theatrical family, his interest in production was an inherent one; but he may be said to have differed from the average offshoot of theatrical parents in that he did not devote himself exclusively to acting, but delved into every branch of the theatre and the studio. He was a member of Richard Mansfield's famous repertoire company, learning stage technique first-hand from that most versatile of actors of his day; learned all about the handling of great masses of supernumeraries and the staging of spectacle while with Klaw & Erlanger's "Ben Hur" production, and under the management of Henry W. Savage, producer of some of the best musical productions, absorbed that special knowledge which goes with song shows.

Then motion pictures attracted his attention, and he was among the first to enter actively that field in the employ of Vitagraph. He spent two years alternately as an actor and one of the mechanical staff. Then followed two years in important roles, and thereupon four, which were given over to direction.

All in all he had spent eight years with Vitagraph, being identified as star, director or both of many of the most notable of the company's productions of several years ago.

Cohen Declines Membership.

Sydney S. Cohen, president of the New York State League of Motion Picture Exhibitors, has declined to accept membership in the Advisory Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

If you could rent your theatre you might move to that other town where you believe you will fit into community life less like a square peg in a round hole. Try The World's Classified advertising.

DEFEND "SALOME'S" LACK OF CLOTHING

Theda Bara and Her Director, J. Gordon Edwards, Reply to Critics of Star's Characterization

APPRECIATING the peril which faces motion picture art in the efforts of various state censorship boards further to extend their powers, Theda Bara has taken up the cudgels in defense of her characterization of Salome, in reply to recent criticism visited upon her and the picture by the reviewing committee of St. Louis. Miss Bara, who is in Miami, Fla., declares that the criticsm of the St. Louis censors is only "another case of misunderstanding and lack of comprehension."

"Mr. Fox is one of the few men of the theatre who has had the courage to bring 'Truth' above the surface of hypocrisy and present it on the screen in such form that the multitudes, while viewing wonderful theatrical effects, may profit from the moral that is presented in such stories as 'Salome' and 'Cleopatra.'

"The stories of these two women, incarnations of wickedness, have been preserved to us not as entertaining fiction, but as factitious object lessons—as horrible examples. To hide these powerful lessons is to enthrone hypocrisy. To bring them before the eyes and minds of the people is to give 'Truth' a place in the sun.

"The St. Louis gentlemen refer to me as 'overbold and underclad' and declare that a 'too seductive appeal to the senses is made.'

"I challenge each and every one of these statements. I shall let Mr. Edwards tell you the story of my costuming of Salome; but as to the matter of seductive appeal, I state that none such was intended in the production, and it is visible only to those who go seeking it. Hypocrisy is to blame for the present-day viewpoint which makes it 'sinful' for a woman to expose parts of her body on the stage or screen, although it is conventional for her to do it at the bathing beach. The average normal person goes to a picture theatre to enjoy the story as it is enacted on the screen, and never sees anything immoral. But there is another class that go in search of immorality only and these never see the story.

"Let the fault-finders and supermoralists seek the good that is to be found in such plays as 'Salome' and not build up, for their self-gratification, ogres of badness. 'Salome' is a deterrent, not an inspiration to wickedness."

J. Gordon Edwards, who directed Miss Bara in "Salome," "Cleopatra" and many other plays, was quite as emphatic in defense of the production as was his star in her defiance to the critics of her performance.

"For anyone to say that 'Salome,' as presented on the screen, does not carry a big, moral lesson is to say that theology is a structure of falsehoods," said Mr. Edwards.

"Salome, according to a consensus of literary opinion, was the most wanton creature criminal history has given to us—a woman in whom the fiends of passion held sway. She has determined that John the Baptist should be hers, and when she failed of her object she drove the most diabolical bargain that ever has been known. She bartered a dance for the head of a man.

"The 'Salome' that we have given to the screen is no particular version. It is a combination of many versions; the result of six months' research and study on the part of Miss Bara, myself and a staff of investigators. We devoted approximately the same amount of time to transferring the result of these investigations to the screen, at a cost of many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"Objection is made to a clean-shaven, youthful John the Baptist. Who is capable of gainsaying that we have presented him as he appeared in the passion-swept mind of the woman? I have in my possession old prints showing John the Baptist exactly as he appears in the William Fox production of 'Salome'—clean-shaven, walking with a staff.

"But even if I had not these for authority, there still is another legitimate reason for presenting him as we do—poetic license. Obviously it would be impossible to expect an audience to be sympathetic toward a hero who wanders through eight reels of story pushing before him a clump of mattress material.

"We stand by the boyish John visualized by Salome. There is no romance in whiskers."

An Auspicious Opening

LET us be cheerful! Things are looking up in a somewhat important branch of the film industry. The new year has had an auspicious opening in the way of pictures of uncommon merit that do not deal with the war. Several bright comedies and a number of worth while dramas that will help the man in need of wholesome entertainment have been released during the past six weeks. One of the comedies is about the best example of playwriting the screen has produced so far, and shows technical ability of a high order. A review of the picture is printed in this number. Scenario writers and directors will do themselves a benefit by studying the method of its construction and endeavoring to surpass it.

Record Crowd Attends Ball of Operators' Union

THE sixth annual reception and ball of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, Local No. 306, held at the New Amsterdam Opera House on February 12, was attended by the largest crowd ever gathered at this annual affair.

The grand march, staged at midnight, was led by Margaret Marsh and Herbert Rawlinson, who are soon to be seen as the stars of the big Craig Kennedy serial now in the process of production by the Oliver Films. These two stars occupied a box and were the center of attraction during the evening.

The ballroom, elaborately decorated, presented a patriotic air. The members of the union, mindful of their boys in the service, printed an original poem, "Let We Forget," in the program, showing that they remembered and appreciated the sacrifices of their soldiers.

The chairmen of the various committees were Sam Goldfarb, Will C. Smith, and Alex Polin. Sam Kaplan is president of Local 306, R. Weis vice-president, M. J. Rotker and H. I. Sherman, secretaries, and Will C. Smith treasurer.

Bill Puts Sunday Question in New York Up to Cities

Albany, February 11.

A COMPANION bill to the one recently introduced by Senator James Foley and putting the question of Sunday motion picture shows up to each municipality to decide for itself, in other words, a local option measure, has now been introduced in the Assembly of this State by Assemblyman Charles D. Donohue of New York, the minority leader. The bill was referred to the Codes Committee. With Senator Foley, minority leader in the upper house, and Assemblyman Donohue, occupying the same position in the lower house, there appears at the present time to be a strong likelihood of the bill being favorably acted on later in the session. The bills are practically identical in their wording and leave it to the common council or the governing bodies of cities and towns to decide whether or not Sunday shows will be permitted in the respective communities.

No further progress has been made in the Brush bill, introduced two or three weeks ago by Assemblyman Brush of Orange county, and which seeks to establish a commissioner of motion pictures with the power of a censor and also imposes a footage tax of considerable magnitude. It has come to light that the bill has no backing of consequence and it is generally expected that the bill will die in committee. When asked recently as to his reason for introducing the bill, Assemblyman Brush replied that he had heard that the Democrats were preparing to introduce a similar measure and so he revived the Wheeler bill of two years ago and immediately introduced it without change in order to, as he termed it, "get the jump on the Democrats."

It is expected that a general hearing on proposed motion picture legislation will be held early in March, at which time both sides will be given an opportunity to express themselves.

Pathe Company Off to Florida.

The midwinter exodus for Florida was augmented recently. Director Joseph Golden took his entire company now engaged in the filming of a coming Pathe serial, "The Great Gamble," to Miami. The party included, in addition to Mr. Golden, Ann Luther and Charles Hutchison, co-stars in the serial, Richard Neil, Billy Moran, Warren Cook and Edith Thornton. They expect to remain about six weeks in the South.

Buying from newsdealers at 15 cents the copy is all right—if you always remember to buy. Missing occasional copies frequently means the loss of many ideas that mean money in the box office. Subscribe to Moving Picture World at $3 the year, save $4.80 and get every copy, every week, as issued.

Trade News Brevities

ORCHESTRAS PROVED DRAWING CARDS

Two Leading Downtown San Francisco Theatres Inaugurate Sunday Morning Symphony Concerts

By T. A. Church.

THE experiment recently made by the management of two of the leading downtown moving picture theatres of San Francisco in featuring symphony concerts each Sunday morning has proved such a success that the policy is to be continued indefinitely. The idea was inaugurated at the California Theatre by Manager Eugene H. Roth and was taken up shortly afterward by the Tivoli Theatre, whose past history is largely a recital of musical successes. The augmented orchestras in these two houses have served to fill the theatres to capacity before noon on Sundays, something never before heard of. In addition to these orchestras the San Francisco Symphony is giving its regular program of concerts and is meeting with deserved success.

The immediate success of the concerts inaugurated at the California Theatre brought about difficulties in the matter of securing players, the management of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra objecting to its members taking part in other symphony concerts. These were overcome, however, with the assistance of the Musicians' Union, and the California and Tivoli Theatres now have concert orchestras of fifty-five and sixty-five men, respectively, in addition to the regular symphony organization of the city. The contracts of the members of the latter expire in March and not a few are expected to join one or the other of the two theatre orchestras. On the last occasion when all three organizations gave concerts on the same day the orchestras in the moving picture theatres presented programs that included works by Tschaikowsky, Bach, Gounod, Rossini, Elgar, Greig, Handel, and Thomas.

May Hear Concert and See Pictures.

The California Theatre offers its musical program commencing at half past eleven, while that at the Tivoli Theatre begins a half an hour later. Customary Sunday prices rule at each house and patrons are privileged to remain for both concert and moving picture program. The Turner & Dahnken circuit, which conducts the Tivoli Theatre, has inaugurated symphony concerts at its house in the suburban city of Oakland, a sixty-five-piece orchestra having been organized there.

Business Rapidly Becoming Normal.

Moving picture business in the San Francisco territory is showing a marked improvement and it is believed that it will soon be on a normal basis again. Local theatres are showing a steady gain in patronage and the enforced wearing of gauze masks as an influenza preventative is not keeping people away from shows. During the first eleven days following the adoption of this ordinance new cases of influenza in this city fell off more than 1,000 per cent.

Among the towns which have permitted moving picture theatres to reopen during the past week are the following: Healdsburg, Merced, Napa, Oroville, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, San Mateo, Hanford, Vallejo, Lodi, Willitts, Fort Bragg, Los Banos and Selma. The theatres at Hanford were closed for a stretch of three months. Word has been received from Honolulu, H. I., to the effect that theatres have been closed there, this being the only addition of the week to the list of closed towns.

"Hearts of the World" Shows Out Again.

George W. Davis, former business manager of the Alcazar Theatre, arrived here from Chicago this week to attend a directors' meeting of the company controlling the Western rights to "Hearts of the World." He states that the eight companies in the Middle West are out on the road again and that business is showing a decided increase. Mr. Davis plans to return to Chicago at an early date.

Stars Appear in Person.

Kitty Gordon has made arrangements to appear in person at the Tivoli Theatre shortly when her newest photoplay, "Adele," will be the screen attraction. Aurora Mardiganian, who took the leading part in the picture "Ravished Armenia," is here to appear in person at the Columbia Theatre, where the film is being shown for the benefit of the fund for the relief of Armenia.

California Theatre Pulls Aeroplane Stunt.

In co-operation with the Gaumont Weekly the publicity department of the California Theatre recently pulled an original stunt. An aeroplane was secured from Mather Field for the purpose of securing moving pictures of San Francisco from the air and these were shown a few hours later on the screen of this theatre. Thousands of circulars advertising D. W. Griffith's "The Greatest Thing in Life," the feature attraction for the week, were dropped from the fighting aircraft which traversed the length of Market street at an elevation of a thousand feet.

House Management Changes.

Eugene Perry, assistant to George Mann, of the Rialto Theatre, has been made manager of the T. & D. Theatre at Oakland, Cal., succeeding Sam Y. Edwards, who has been filling the position temporarily. George E. Thornton, formerly of the Franklin Theatre, Oakland, but more recently manager of the Rialto Theatre, Eureka, Cal., succeeds Mr. Perry at the San Francisco house.

Matthews Returns to San Francisco.

W. E. Matthews, formerly of this city, but of late with the General Film Company at Los Angeles, has been transferred to the San Francisco office, succeeding Charles I. Luntz as traveling salesman. F. E. Samuels, special representative of the General, is visiting the offices in the Northwest and expects to make another stop here on his way back to Los Angeles.

Flu Fails to Check Pathe.

The local branch of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., conducted under the direction of E. O. Child, broke all former monthly records for business during December, despite the fact that fifty per cent of the theatres in this district were closed on account of influenza. The record for January is even better than that set in December, a fact that is causing much jubilation on the part of the sales force.

Police Censor Promoted to Morals Squad.

Corporal Peter Peshon, for many years censor of moving pictures and dramatic performances for the Police Department, has been placed in charge of the morals squad, succeeding Charles Goff. There will be no successor appointed to the office of censor, since the work of this kind is now very light, and Corporal Peshon will be in readiness to look after anything in this line that may arise.

Macdonough Lease Changes Hands.

John J. MacArthur has taken over the lease on the Macdonough Theatre, Oakland, Cal., from Sam Harris and Irving C. Ackerman, of the Hippodrome circuit, and will use it for general utility theatrical use, ranging from moving pictures and vaudeville to road shows and stock companies.

Eph Asher Loses Mother.

The sympathy of the film trade is being extended to Eph Asher, head of the film exchange department of the Turner & Dahnken circuit and manager of the Tivoli Theatre, on account of the death of his mother, which occurred in this city January 26.

Edna Purviance Visits City.

Miss Edna Purviance, moving picture actress prominent for her work in many Charlie Chaplin releases, is visiting friends in San Francisco.

Washington News Letter

By Clarence L. Linz.

Flax Resigns from Metro.

SAM FLAX has resigned his position as manager of the Metro exchange. This announcement came as something of a surprise to both exhibitors and managers of the other exchanges, for Flax ranks as one of the most popular office heads here. It is stated that he intends starting out as a state rights operator on his own account. He has had five years' experience in the business, starting in with General, later going with Pathe, becoming booker and assistant manager, and later going with Metro. He joined the latter as booker when it was operated as an independent exchange and when the home office took it over he was made its manager.

Washington News Notes.

R. Vonder Goltz, traveling representative of the General Film Company covering North Carolina and Virginia, has been called to his home in Elizabeth City, N. C., on account of injuries suffered by his wife in an automobile accident.

Leo Mettler, who has been the George Kleine representative here, has become manager for Cochran & Company, a large brokerage concern, and will have charge of their Jersey City office. Jake Flax, manager of the General Film Company, who has been elected corresponding secretary of the Washington Film Exchange Managers' Association, through whose exchange the Kleine films are marketed, will take up Mr. Mettler's work.

Tom O'Donnell, owner of the Navy Theatre here, has taken over the active management of the Virginia and West Virginia theatres, on Ninth street. These two houses are owned by J. J. Noonan.

Philadelphia News Letter

By F. V. Armato.

Fox Exchange Seeking Bigger Quarters.

GEORGE M. DENBOW, manager of the William Fox Exchange, who was recently released from the army as a first lieutenant, has experienced a considerable increase in business since his return and is now seeking larger quarters. Annette Kellermann in "Queen of the Sea" is reported to have broken all records at the Victoria Theatre during its two weeks' run. An extensive advertising campaign in the newspapers and with posters helped to bring the desired results at the box office.

Tolmas New Manager for Independent

B. R. Tolmas, one of the best known of the local film men, has recently been made the new manager of the Independent Sales Corporation. Mr. Tolmas was formerly manager of the Mutual and has been connected for a long time with the First National Exhibitors' Association. E. F. Mowery will be assistant manager, C. Schwartz, the booker and W. G. Busch the up-state representative.

The Stanley Company has just completed negotiations with Du Ponts to take motion pictures of all the plants of that company throughout the country, which is declared to be the largest contract ever signed for the making of industrial films. About forty plants will be filmed and the operation is expected to take over four months to complete the big job. This motion picture when finished will constitute a permanent record of Du Pont's war activities.

The Comerford and Degraff theatrical interests have taken a 30 years' lease on Public Square, Wilkes-Barre, owned by the Pattebone estate, which includes the Fort Durkee Hotel and several business buildings. The deal is estimated at $1,000,000, and plans have already been completed to erect a vaudeville and motion picture theatre on the property.

A number of motion picture men attended a testimonial dinner tendered Dave Sablosky, manager of the Globe Theatre, at the Walton Hotel, January 15. Jules Mastbaum acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by Wm. Grey, Esq., Assistant District Attorney Speiser and other notables.

Harvey Day, the well known local film expert and now operating the Harvey Day exchange in Pittsburgh, was in town last week.

Bob Lynch has been promoted to the position of assistant general manager of the United Exchanges, comprising the First National, Peerless, Electric Theatre Supply Company, Metro and Goldwyn. His first official act was to abolish night work by the employes of the several exchanges.

J. Hagerty, manager of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, has recovered his Velie, which has been absent owing to a slight accident which cost him real money for the said repairs, it is rumored. However the second cost will soon be forgotten, says Mr. Hagerty, as long as he can keep away from the scene of the place where the last accident happened.

Anna Nilsson Plays Dual Role.

Anna Q. Nilsson, whose blonde hair is her crowning glory, will be seen as a brunette in the prologue of "The Way of the Strong," which is now in preparation at the new Metro studios in Hollywood. Miss Nilsson enacts two roles. First, she is the wife of the Yukon prospector whose dominant personality is the basis of the title; later, she is the betrayed woman's half-sister, a blonde, with whom the strong man at last finds love and happiness.

Edwin Carewe is directing Miss Nilsson in "The Way of the Strong," Finis Fox's screen adaptation of the novel by Ridgewell Cullum. Joe King, recently with Triangle, plays opposite Miss Nilsson. Harry S. Northrup does the heavy part.

BEDLESS OIL BOOMERS CROWD THEATRES

Burkburnett, Texas, Picture Houses Never Close and Roomless Visitors Use Them for Lodgings

By Phil Fox.

BEDLESS oil boomers, who throng the little town of Burkburnett, located in a dense forest of oil derricks, seeking wealth, have found the two moving picture theatres in the community a heaven-sent boon. Consequently the hours of operation of the two shows are from twelve midnight to twelve midnight.

There are no hotels at Burkburnett—only tents and shacks. There are hotels at Wichita Falls, a few miles away, but no rooms available. They are leased by the month and by the year by lucky oil promoters and dealers who got the first option. Skyscraping hotels are in course of construction but that provides no eider-down. Rooms are nix.

Hence the moving picture show run in the little oil field town. Business men from Dallas, Fort Worth and North Texas towns arrive in Burkburnett to spend the day. The sun sets and they are roomless. To get a place to sit down and rest awhile they have recourse to the picture show. Snoozers are tapped on the shoulders by courteous ushers but they usually reach in their jeans pocket for a good sized bank note with the sleepy request of "on your way." The two picture shows, one of which has an oil derrick almost barring the entrance, are simply coining money.

Not the roomless alone are the cause of the movie prosperity. Burkburnett is a frontier town minus the "front." Old Dame Prohibition has dimmed the bright lights and there is nothing crude in Burk except the oil. Drillers and helpers work in three eight-hour shifts. When they are through they are "all dressed up with no place to go" except to the movies or to take a dubious train to Wichita Falls. At all hours of the night the men coming off shift go to the picture shows for relaxation. Facing the screen they enjoy their one recreation in the little oil city.

J. A. Collins, an enterprising exhibitor from Wichita Falls, Texas, runs the Lyric Theatre at Burkburnett. H. K. Greever, of Vernon, runs the other theatre. They buy the best films the market can afford and change them almost daily. It's not their fault that the bedless try to sneak a snooze in their wideawake play houses.

More picture shows would be built at Burkburnett but town lots have jumped from $50 to $50,000 and land on the bald prairie is at a lease premium.

James J. Corbett and Kathleen O'Connor in "The Midnight Man" (Universal).

Prosperity Stares Dallas in the Face.

On February 1 Dallas motion picture exhibitors totaled up their books and found that they had experienced the most profitable month in their history.

The North Texas oil boom has more than made up for the financial depredations of the influenza. It's not the old time customers or the staid tri-weekly patrons that are bringing the profits to Dallas motion picture exhibitors right now. It's the new comers.

The regulars are still on hand but the lobbies of the theatres each night see new faces. From East and West and South and North new arrivals in the Lone Star state are on hand and the exhibitors of Dallas, providing the very best, are reaping a harvest which comes as a god-send after the perilous times of closed doors and sniffing sanitary inspectors.

"Le 'flue' est fini. Vive le oil," as Herschel Stuart, a noted French linguist of the Hulsey interests, remarks.

Automatic Ushering Is Coming.

Patent has been applied for by J. H. Judia, owner of the Folly Theatre at Cisco, on a new style of play house which he is constructing in his home town.

Under Mr. Judia's supervision the construction of the new style theatre has already commenced. It is a moving picture theatre of many entrances. Branching off from a main ticket window are various doors leading to variously priced seats. For the top price, which will probably be set at 50 cents, the ticket given provides upholstered armchair seats. For the lower admission prices ordinary theatre chairs, chairs and benches are provided. Sections of the ground floor are partitioned off into the various types of seats. The many entrances and exits lessen fire hazard.

Mr. Judia has his theatre already under construction. He is an enterprising Texas exhibitor and has made quite a name for himself as an inventor. Various improvements suggested by him for airplanes were patriotically tendered by him to the United States Government. He has also perfected some labor saving automobile accessory devices.

Personal and Business Items.

Dallas Pathe salesmen from all parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas were summoned into a staff conference February 1 by District Manager W. S. Wessling.

W. M. Williams of Sayer, Texas, has decided to open a new moving picture show at Cisco, which is in the oil field district.

J. M. Abrams, Southern District manager for "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," was a Dallas visitor during the first week of February.

J. H. Brice of the Strand Theatre, Oklahoma, has taken the managership of the Liberty Theatre, Tulsa.

T. M. Hervey, of the Unique Theatre, El Paso, visited Dallas during the first week in February. Mr. Hervey is a pioneer Texas motion picture show man.

The Odeon Theatre at Bartlesville, Okla., has added vaudeville to its moving picture attractions.

The Rialto Theatre at Tulsa reported that box office receipts late in January showed that Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" did a regular Eat 'em Alive stunt. The S. R. O. sign was hung out for three days

GEO. W. TRENDLE WATCHES LAW MAKERS

Will Keep His Eye on Legislation Affecting the Interests of Moving Picture Exhibitors

By Jacob Smith.

GEORGE W. TRENDLE, of the Kunsky Enterprises, has been appointed chairman of a committee of one to handle all matters regarding legislation as it may effect the exhibitor. At present he is working on some important changes, which, if made, will be of great benefit to the exhibitor and the motion picture industry. "I believe that in the Detroit Exhibitors' League the motor city has the best association it has ever had," said Mr. Trendle. "The exhibitors, for the first time, seem to realize the value of co-operation and they are working together as never before for the best interests of the business."

Refusing to Ship C. O. D.

Several Detroit film managers were in Cleveland on February 6 to attend the special dinner and meeting of the Board of Exchange Managers of that city, whose purpose it is to adopt a set of trade rules similar to those enacted in Detroit—especially the rules refusing to ship C. O. D. and insisting that check be in the exchange before the film is shipped. The Detroit film men told the Clevelanders how splendidly the trade rules were working out.

Fishman Dating "Fit to Win."

J. C. Fishman, of the Standard Film Service, is now arranging percentage dates with Michigan exhibitors on "Fit to Win," the U. S. Public Health Service film, which recently completed a three weeks' run at the Washington Theatre, Detroit. The Standard has the exclusive booking rights to this picture.

Ludwig Has "Silent Mystery."

Sam Ludwig, of the State Film Company, has purchased the Michigan rights to the Francis Ford serial, "The Silent Mystery," in fifteen episodes. He has arranged for a billboard campaign in Detroit to run for sixty days. Mr. Ludwig also owns "The Hand of Vengeance" serial, and says he is now after a third serial—the biggest one of all. "We are going to specialize in serials the coming year, but will also have features," he said.

Detroit Notes.

The Colonial Theatre has again changed its policy from a week's stand to three changes weekly.

John H. Kunsky has booked all of the forthcoming Lockwood and Nazimova specials from Metro. They will be shown at the Adams Theatre.

John P. Harrison, who operates extensively in the Middle West, was in Detroit on February 1 to confer with Edgar F. Kirchner regarding improvements to that playhouse.

Work on the new John H. Kunsky Theatre in Highland Park will start some time in March, according to present plans. The house will seat about 2,000.

Paul Schlossman, of Muskegon, recently gave a banquet to his employes, and afterwards took them to a bowling alley, where he offered prizes to the persons making the highest scores.

James Steele, of Pittsburgh, who operates theatres in Bay City and Detroit, has closed his Detroit office in the Book building. Mr. Steele plans a trip to Detroit once or twice a month to arrange bookings and to take up other matters.

F. J. Kovey has leased the Bandbox Theatre, 443 Grand River avenue, taking possession Feb. 5.

J. O. Kent, Select manager, reports big business on The Midnight Patrol all over the state; also on the other Select specials which have already been released.

Joe Horwitz reports that he is being flooded with inquiries on "Mickey," which he recently bought for Michigan, exclusive of the upper peninsula, and immediately upon his return to Detroit booked it for an extended run at the Majestic Theatre.

John H. Kunsky has booked "Woman, Woman," with Evelyn Nesbit for a week at the Washington Theatre in March.

The Standard Film Service has two new pictures for Michigan, "One Law for Both" and "And the Children Pay."

Charles A. Dean, vice-president of the Educational Distributing Corp., was in Detroit for a few days recently, conferring with his Detroit manager, Harry Abbott.

W. C. Bachmeyer, district manager of Metro; Clayton P. Sheehan, district manager for Fox; Mr. Schmidt, the new district manager for Universal, and Howard Sheehan, former manager of the Rialto Theatre, Los Angeles, who has resigned to enter the Fox Film organization, were visitors in Detroit last week.

W. A. Haynes, manager of the Independent Sales Corporation, announces an indefinite run on "Wanted for Murder," at the Washington Theatre, starting in March. Mr. Haynes, accompanied by C. W. Perry, salesman, is back from an extended tour of the state.

Henry P. Diggs, publicity manager of the Independent Sales Corporation, will be in town for several days to launch a big publicity and advertising campaign in connected with "Wanted for Murder."

"False Faces" played the Broadway-Strand Theatre the week of February 2, and opened to the biggest Sunday business in history of the house.

W. D. Ascough, for nearly four years manager of the Orpheum Theatre, Vancouver, B. C., has taken the house management of the Regent Theatre, Detroit.

Charles H. Miles, operating the Regent and Orpheum theatres, is back from a six weeks' sojourn in California.

The Arthur S. Hyman Attractions will move from the Owen to the Film building about the 15th of February.

Portland News Letter

By Abraham Nelson.

Mask 'Em, Is Order.

GEORGE B. GUTHRIE, Oregon Theater, have made a unique rule relative to reports that the health authorities the flu situation. Theatre attendants are required to have a supply of flu masks with them all the time and when a patron coughs or sneezes or shows any evidence of so doing, the attendants are empowered to fit him with a mask—muzzle him, so to speak. We presume it is optional with the patron to submit to muzzling or to leave the theatre.

During the closed periods in Salem, Mr. Guthrie had opportunity to remodel his show house, spending over $10,000 in process. A balcony has been installed and a new Wurlitzer Unit Orchestra is on the way from the East.

War Film Goes Big.

Frank Lacey, manager of the Majestic Theatre, is receiving much praise for the way he put over "Under Four Flags," which closed January 31.

Universal Publicity Man in Portland.

L. S. McConnell, publicity man for Universal's serials and screen magazines, is in Portland from New York, arranging a publicity campaign in the Northwest for the benefit of exhibitors in this territory.

Compromise in Oregon City.

Motion picture shows and pool halls bore the brunt of the attacks of some of the good women of this city who complained to the Mayor that these two classes of business were to blame for the spread of influenza and insisted that the lid be clamped on tight. His Honor failed to respond to the pleadings of the long haired element, however, and influenza restrictions were limited to admitting to picture shows only as many people as there were seats in the theatres.

Wears All Insignia of Service.

Sid Schubach, who is assisting Fred Langerman at the New Grand Theatre, has blossomed out wearing on his civilian clothes about all the service insignia there is. Sid served on the border during the Mexican trouble and a year during the recent war.

Conducted Educational Campaign.

Among the recent visitors on Portland's film row were Dick Charles, of Vader, Wash., owner of a circuit of theatres in that district, and R. S. Bowen, Dreamland Theatre, Castle Rock, Wash., also on Mr. Charles' circuit. Mr. Bowen told of the successful use of prepared publicity pertaining to the flu situation sent out from the Eastern offices of film companies. He says the papers in his town were glad to print this matter and that its publication had much to do with the successful relations between the health officials and the picture shows.

Exhibitors Attend Trade Showing.

At the trade showing held by Sol Baum at the Liberty Theatre when "Hearts of Humanity" was featured, the following out of town exhibitors attended: Art Kolstad, Liberty, Hood River; George Bligh, Liberty, Salem; Dr. C. W. Crews, Liberty, Walla Walla, Wash.; W. H. Durham, Camas, Wash.; S. LaRouge, Battle Ground, Wash.; T. E. Curley, Wasco, Ore.; and J. B. Sparks, Heppner.

Briefs About Oregon Film Men.

J. J. Parker, owner of the Majestic Theatre, has returned to Portland after his visit to California and the film studios where he had been getting first hand information regarding future film policies. C. S. Jensen, Liberty Theatre, who was a member of Mr. Parker's party and who came home before Mr. Parker, recently returned to the South.

News Items.

S. Danz, Star Theatre, Astoria, was recently in Portland booking service. Mr. Danz says business in Astaria is good but has not yet returned to normal after the flu epidemic.

Pete Sabo, Portland Motion Picture Machine Company, is the proud father to a brand new baby girl.

Rainier, Ore.—The Grand Theatre has reopened under the management of Archie Swan, formerly connected with the Cozy.

Portland.—Censors condemned "Alone in New York." Those who saw the film couldn't tell whether it was raining or snowing.

Portland.—R. E. MacIntyre, traveling auditor for Famous Players-Lasky, was a recent visitor in Portland.

L. J. Meyberg, representing the Associated Producers, Los Angeles, was a caller on Portland exhibitors.

The Liberty Theatre, Walla Walla, Wash., has returned to a policy of pictures only instead of vaudeville.

Minneapolis News Letter

By W. E. Mulligan.

Mutual Exchange Moves.

THE Minneapolis Exhibitors' Mutual exchange is now located in handsome new quarters at 309-18 Loeb Arcade. The Loeb Arcade, located in the heart of the business district, is rapidly becoming the home of leading film exchanges in Minneapolis. Besides Exhibitors' Mutual it now houses the exchanges of General Film, Sherry Service, George Kleine, United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., Capitol Film Company and Educational Film Company.

Territory Extended.

R. K. Evans, manager of the Minneapolis branch of the Independent Sales Corporation and Film Clearing House, Inc., has announced that the northern part of the state of Iowa will be served from the Minneapolis branch henceforth.

Fire Damages Theatre.

Fire caused damage at the Glen Lake Theatre, Sixth and Penn avenues, North Minneapolis. The piano was completely destroyed.

Coen Forming Big Company.

L. H. Coen, former manager of the Minneapolis Metro and Universal exchanges, is forming an independent distributing company in this territory.

Strand Gets Cannibal Picture.

Ira Mantzke, manager of the Minneapolis Mutual Exchange, announced that Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" will play at the Minneapolis Strand Theatre in the near future.

Film Men Hosts to Peavey.

Exchange men of Minneapolis gave a farewell banquet in the Empire room of the Radisson Hotel last week in honor of C. L. Peavey, former manager of the Paramount-Artcraft exchange in Minneapolis, who has been called to the P.-A. branch in Chicago.

Northwest News Brevities.

L. J. Blomberg, Jr., who for the past two years has been connected with the Minneapolis Metro office, has joined Manager James Bryson's sales force at the Minneapolis Universal Exchange.

H. J. Fitzgerald, manager of the Milwaukee branch of the first National Exhibitors' Circuit of the Northwest, was a visitor in Minneapolis, conferring with E. R. Pearson, manager of the local First National office. Mr. Fitzgerald made arrangements to handle the upper Michigan territory from the Milwaukee office. That territory is at present being served by the Detroit office.

The Bijou Theatre at Blackduck, Minn., has been reopened under the management of Joe Threllen.

Earl L. Scott has purchased the Fox Theatre at Black River Falls, Wisconsin.

Thomas J. Garleck is preparing to build a moving picture theatre at Dubuque, Iowa, for Lewis Truckler.

F. C. Means expects to open a moving picture theatre for the benefit of the Indians on the Sioux reservation in the Agency Hall at Fort Yates, N. D.

McArdle and Longacre have purchased the moving picture theatre at Benson, Nebraska.

The Dreamland Amusement Company of Mitchell, S. Dak., has been organized to erect a new theatre at Mitchell. Dr. L. F. Patrick is the president.

Fred E. Giese, proprietor of the Star Theatre at Nevis, Minnesota, will exercise leases on two other theatres in the near future.

McCarthy Brothers, managers of the Grand and Orpheum theatres at Fargo, N. D., are negotiating for the lease of the Grand Theatre at Grand Forks, N. D.

A. L. Robarge of the A. R. Amusement Company of Wausau, Wisconsin, is opening a new picture theatre at Ocanto Falls, Wisconsin.

Minneapolis moving picture circles were shocked to learn of the death of R. L. White, branch manager of the Pathe Exchange at Omaha, who died following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. White was for same years associated with E. R. Pearson, now manager of the Minneapolis First National branch.

Curtis James and Forrest Christensen have purchased a moving picture theatre at Rushmore, Minnesota, from C. D. Bedford.

Otto Kunz has taken over the Opera House at Clara City, Minnesota.

Manager Goodell has had the Grand Theatre at Beaver Crossing, Nebraska, remodeled and opened to the public.

John Weinandit & Son have purchased the moving picture theatre at Wynot, Nebraska, from Beyschau & Son.

CLEVELAND GETS ANOTHER BIG THEATRE

Grossman of the Standard Anticipates Opening a Magnificent Structure This Coming Autumn

JOSEPH GROSSMAN, owner of the Standard Theatre, a first-run downtown house, will have a new 2,500-seat theatre before the year ends.

The new theatre is to be located at Euclid avenue and East 105th street, a busy crosstown location, where are now located the Alhambra and Monarch theatres, the former with 1,500 seats and the latter with 800.

The building will have a frontage of 70 and a depth of 196 feet, and will cost approximately $300,000. It will be put up by M. C. and I. N. Stone, who have the ground site lease, and they are reported to have leased the house to Mr. Grossman for about $25,000 per year, for twenty years.

"We will have all the latest innovations for a high-class picture theatre," said Mr. Grossman, "including women's rest rooms and space for parking automobiles. The policy of the house, of course, has not been mapped out, but I am working on it. We hope to open in September or October."

The New Euclid Will Open March 10.

The new Euclid Theatre on East 9th street, near Euclid avenue, Cleveland, will be opened about March 10.

The name, Euclid, originally selected, but later changed to Argus, will be retained, the owners having decided that it is more appropriate. At present the interior work is almost finished, and the engineer, W. S. Ferguson, promises that his contractors and men will be out of the building by March 1, leaving ten days to lay carpets, install seats, projection machines, screen and other interior equipment.

Cleveland Burglars Run Off Private Showing.

Recently the yeggs became busy and picked on the movie shows. On the first of the month, the National Theatre on East 55th street was broken into and a diamond valued at $100 and papers were taken from the safe.

On the third of the month, burglars broke into the American, a downtown show house, and got away with the petty cash. The burglars evidently thought they would like some entertainment, as there was evidence that they had run off a Chaplin comedy, which was on hand for the following day's showing.

Catherine Calvert
In "Fires of Faith" (Famous Players-Lasky).

Standard Film Service to Release Christies.

The Standard Film Service Co., of Cleveland and Cincinnati, announces that it will be ready to release two-reel Christie comedies by the first of March.

Personal and News Items.

Frank Gross has sold his West Side National Theatre, Cleveland, to H. Brook and the National Moving Picture Theatre Company.

The Clark Theatre, Cleveland, long closed up, was reopened recently by a Mrs. Coffman, who is doing a nice business.

They put Danny Stearns to work in the Pathe Cleveland booking department last week to help out Booker Henry Laws, after Danny had brought in a bunch of new contracts.

The Universal Exchange, Cleveland, made a scoop on the arrival of the 331st regiment of Cleveland boys in New York and the parade in Cleveland.

The Filmcraft Studios, Chicago, were brought to the attention of Cleveland exhibitors recently when J. E. Willis, one of the owners, came to town (his old home) and showed some very clever announcement titles. Mr. Willis says all the big theatres in Chicago are using them.

Ed. Smith, of the Cleveland Universal Exchange, has the following titles among his releases in one week: "Marry My Wife," "Who Will Marry Me?" and "A Proxy Husband." Why all the matrimony, Ed.? Want to lose some more stenographers that way?

Utica News Letter

By C. A. Carroll.

Hippodrome Will Be Remodeled.

PLANS are now under way for the complete remodeling of the Hippodrome Theatre. More than $50,000 will be expended in transforming the house. The Hippodrome is a ground floor theatre, at present containing eight hundred seats. When alterations are completed the number will be increased to twelve hundred. Beautiful decorations and hangings will embellish the walls and dressing rooms. Mr. Linton, owner of the Hippodrome, also controls the Richmond Theatre, Herkimer, and the Hippodrome Theatre, Little Falls. A short time ago he acquired a long term lease on the City Theatre, Little Falls, which he is having completely remodeled and when completed he will conduct it as a combination house.

Strand Put Over a Scroop.

When a number of Syracuse soldier boys arrived in New York from overseas a cameraman snapped pictures of them entering the metropolis. These films were quickly developed and printed and rushed to Syracuse where they were shown the next evening, before the boys had reached home. The Strand Theatre, Edward Weil, manager, is to have the credit for this unusual "scoop."

Avon Gives an Elaborate Show.

Nazimova's "Eye For Eye" was given an elaborate presentation at the Avon Theatre on February 5, 6, 7 and 8 by William P. Donlon, managing director of that theatre. As the picture shows Nazimova as a dancer, Mr. Donlon engaged Helen McDonough, a dancer of New York, to appear in classical and Oriental dances. Beautiful lighting effects were arranged by Chief Electrician Mullane which added much to the beauty of the performance. The Avon Symphony Orchestra, directed by Carl Merz, was greatly augmented during the showing and an appropriate musical score was given by the orchestra. During the four days' showing of "Eye For Eye" capacity business was the rule.

CRANDALL PUSHES "MICKEY" FORCEFULLY

Plasters Her Name on Everything That's Loose From Sox to Sundaes in Western Pennsylvania

By Elmer H. Mayer.

MILTON D. CRANDALL, who has charge of the publicity department on "Mickey," is using new and novel methods in exploiting this attraction in Western Pennsylvania. He is succeeding in securing the most prominent display windows in all towns where it is to be shown, and since "Mickey" has been introduced in the Pittsburgh territory we have "Mickey" Shirts, "Mickey" Sox, "Mickey" Flowers, "Mickey" Sundaes, "Mickey" Phonograph Records and many other "Mickeys" too numerous to mention.

"Mickey's" premiere showing was at the Mishler Theatre, Altoona, Pa., where they played to the largest business in the history of the house for five days. As a result, an immediate return booking was obtained, when receipts were even greater than the first time.

"Mickey" Get Good Publicity.

"Mickey" just finished a week's engagement at the Majestic Theatre, Erie, Pa., and the Manager, Mr. Potter, wired that he has just seen the picture through, and the reason for his delay in seeing the picture until the fourth day, was because he could not get into the theatre.

"Mickey" is exploited differently from any other production, heretofore offered in the territory. It is advertised through the 5 and 10 cent stores, the Columbia Graphophone stores, and the music of "Mickey" for window display and the Columbia record of "Mickey" in their towns, in order to get a display, which incidentally boosts their business from one to five hundred per cent.

Melvin Bros. Lease Bradford's Lyceum.

Melvin Brothers, owners of the Lyceum Theatre at Bradford, Pa., have taken a lease on the Columbia Theatre at Warren, Pa., now conducted by O. A. Potter, and will gain possession of the same May 1st, next.

The Columbia is a fine house of 700 capacity and will make a valuable addition to the chain controlled by the Melvin Brothers.

Teplitz & Berger Dissolve Partnership.

The firm of Teplitz & Berger, owners of the Penn Film Service, 938 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, was dissolved February 1st, Morris Berger retiring from the firm. Matthew Teplitz will continue the business, while Mr. Berger states that he has several propositions under advisement and will likely be in the film game again in the very near future.

Punxsutawney's Gem To Be Enlarged.

Manager Huett, of the Gem Theatre, Punxsutawney, states that work will begin shortly on the remodeling and enlarging of his house, which will necessitate the closing of the theatre for three or four weeks. Plans have been prepared and estimates are now being secured on the work. The capacity will be increased from 300 to 600 seats and the house will be improved and beautified in every way possible.

Exhibitors' Mutual Expands.

The Pittsburgh branch of the Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing Corporation, secured possession of the storeroom at 121 Fourth avenue, adjoining their exchange, and are now remodeling the same, the front part of which will be Manager Rippard's office, and the rear the poster room.

Sliter Closes Many Contracts.

Fred Sliter, special sales representative of Exhibitors' Mutual home office, the week of January the 27th, visited Fairmount, Morgantown and Clarksburg, W. Va.; also California, Pa., and closed contracts in each town. The week of February the 3rd he worked in Altoona, Johnstown and adjacent territory, and Manager Rippard said he would send him a truck to bring the contracts back to Pittsburgh.

Goldwyn Completes Inspection Room.

The new film inspection room at the Goldwyn exchange has been completed and is now one of the largest and safest in Pittsburgh. Manager McKibbin says that although there is room enough for thousands of reels of film, he only allows as many reels out of the vault as there are girls inspecting the same.

News Notes.

S. S. Neal, formerly of the Goldwyn exchange, is now on the road for the Mutual in Pittsburgh.

J. B. Cox, of Mount Pleasant, was laid up recently with bronchitis. He has recovered and was able to make his regular trip to Pittsburgh Monday, February the 10th.

The Regent Theatre in East Liberty, Pittsburgh, changed its policy the week of February the 10th to two shows weekly instead of three, as heretofore.

Manager McAleer, of the Pittsburgh Universal exchange, reports a lively interest in "The Heart of Humanity," the newest Jewel release. Already dates have been alloted to Butler, Johnstown, Kittanning, Uniontown, Belle Vernon, Wheeling and other towns in this territory.

Henry Polk's Palace Theatre at Homestead, Pa., managed by Harry W. Myers, has booked practically all of the big specials on the market at the present time, which he runs for two days at advanced prices. The policy has proven very successful.

William Fairgraves, the well-known Erie exhibitor, underwent a serious operation recently, but is now on the road to recovery. During his stay at the hospital his theatres, the Nixon and Princess, were looked after by Mrs. Fairgraves and son Frank.

Manager Harry A. Lande, of the Quality exchange, spent the week of February 2nd at Chicago. During his absence Mark Horwitz was in charge of the Quality exchange.

W. C. Van Alstyne has sold his Star Theatre at Wilcox, Pa., to Aldrich & Ferguson, the new owners having taken possession January 20th.

Baltimore News Letter

By J. M. Shellman.

New Exchange To Start.

ARTHUR B. PRICE, well known in Baltimore as the manager of the Rialto, Blue Mouse and Aurora Theatres, and several other film men of Baltimore, have formed a closed corporation with a capital of $20,000 which will be known as the Star Pictures Corporation. Application for the incorporation of this company has been made under the laws of the State of Maryland. Big state rights productions will be handled by this company for Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The territorial rights of "Wives of Men," produced by the Pioneer Film Corporation, starring Florence Reed and Frank Mills have already been acquired.

Buck Is Back.

A. G. Buck, who for the past six months has been the representative of Goldwyn in Philadelphia, has returned to Baltimore, where he was last connected with Vitagraph. This time he will become the manager of the Baltimore Booking Company, and will be located at 412 East Lexington Street. This concern is handling State Rights Features for Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia and will also handle short reels, reissues. Mr. Buck was associated with Tom Moore of Washington before the General Film started in business.

Baltimore State Rights Elects Officers.

A stockholders' meeting of the Baltimore State Rights Film Company, 412 East Lexington Street, was held on Monday, January 27, and officers were elected for the ensuing year. They are: George C. Easter, president; L. H. Homand, treasurer, and R. B. Palmore, secretary.

Clarence Eiseman Marries.

Clarence Eiseman, the First National representative in the Monumental City, went to Chicago the latter part of last week and was married in that city on Monday, February 10.

Slides Tell Health Hints.

Health Commissioner John D. Blake, of Baltimore, is co-operating with the moving picture men in this city in the matter of guarding the health of the patrons of moving picture theatres by having slides issued which give health hints. This action is being taken through the Maryland Exhibitors' League, of which Louis Schlichter is president.

Canadian News Letter

By W. M. Gladish.

To Release a New News Weekly.

THE Specialty Film Import, Limited, Montreal, and five other Canadian cities, has arranged to release through its various offices what will be known as the "British-Canadian News Weekly." Four different reels will be released each week, it has been announced. The company, which handles Pathe subjects in Canada, announces that each reel will be 60 per cent. British or Canadian. A camera department was recently established at the Toronto office of the company under the direction of Blaine Irish, and a cameraman is also on the job in and around Montreal.

The Specialty Company has also been releasing the Allies' Official War Review in Canada.

"Travelogues" Finish Long Engagement.

"The Musical Travelogues," a song act designed for presentation in moving picture theatres, and owned by John T. Fiddes, a former Canadian exhibitor, recently wound up a six weeks' engagement at the Family Theatre, Ottawa, and started on a tour of Ontario cities. "A Trip to Movie-Land" was one of the specialties given by Fiddes, but the regular plan of the act was the presentation of characteristic songs and dances of various countries in rotation.

"Canada at Mons" Goes Big.

A special Canadian war release, "Canada at Mons," a two-reel official subject, became quite the feature at the Imperial Theatre, Ottawa, Ontario, recently. The fact that a number of Ottawa officers of high rank and an assortment of Ottawa troops were designated in the picture aroused much local interest. The theatre made the most of this detail in the special advertising for the release. In addition an automobile was used to carry banners around town during the whole week.

On the afternoon of January 29th the theatre was crowded with military patients from the Sir Sandford Fleming Convalescent Home. They came as the guests of the management, and they were delighted with the picture because of past association with those shown on the screen.

The Ottawa presentation was the first run of the featurette in Canada.

Repeat Run of "Greatest Thing in Life."

Another repeat run for Toronto this season has been the extended engagement of "The Greatest Thing in Life" at the Allen Theatre, Toronto. This opened at the Allen on Monday, January 27, for a week at regular prices. Before the end of the week it was decided to double the run at least.

Jack Arthur Suffers a Relapse.

Jack Arthur, the popular director of the Regent Theatre Concert Orchestra, expected to return to his work on January 27, after an illness of several weeks due to stomach trouble, but he sustained a relapse that sent him back to bed. The Regent Orchestra is recognized as the largest permanent theatre orchestra in Canada, and consists of twenty-one pieces. Mr. Arthur has been in charge of the organization for two and a half years.

Darsh Managing the Wychwood.

The Wychwood Theatre, Toronto, one of the most attractive neighborhood houses in Toronto, is now under the management of J. R. Darsh, brother-in-law of William Roenick, proprietor of the Academy of Music at Lindsay, Ontario.

Influenza Flares Up in Eastern Canada.

The influenza situation has been causing some concern in various sections of Eastern Canada. There has been another scare at Ottawa, but general precautions have been taken. Montreal and Toronto, the two largest cities, are reported to be practically free of the disease. Several small centres have been hit again, however. The medical officer at Sturgeon Falls, Ontario, ordered the closing of local theatres for a second time, but permitted schools, churches and other places to remain open.

Crume Goes to Holman Theatre.

Mr. Crume, associated with the headquarters' staff of the Canadian Universal Film Company at Toronto, has been appointed assistant manager of the Holman Theatre, Montreal, Quebec, which is controlled by Canadian Universal interests. Mr. Crume, who will work with Manager Harry Pomeroy, has had considerable experience as an exhibitor, having had a theatre at Sault St. Marie, Ontario, for a number of years.

A Serial to Be Produced in Montreal.

Merrick R. Nutting, of Montreal, Quebec, is behind a venture which has for its purpose the production of a serial picture to be called "All Canadian." The picture is to be produced in Montreal starting in March. It is stated that first runs have already been arranged for at the Tivoli and Mount Royal theatres, Montreal. A director and cameraman are being provided through the Specialty Film Import, Limited, Montreal, Canadian Pathe distributors.

Regent Asks Assessment Reduction.

The Regent Theatre, Toronto, has appealed to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for a reduction of the assessment for the City of Toronto, which was fixed by Judge Winchester. Originally the assessment on this property stood at $104,000 on the land and $80,000 on the building. The judge reduced the land assessment to $98,800 and the building assessment to $75,000, but the appellants still contend that the tax valuations are too high. Judgment was reserved by the board.

Theatre Manager Elected Town Council.

Manager Al Cooper, of the Lyceum Theatre, Huntsville, Ontario, now holds the distinction of being a member of the local town council, having recently been elected to office.

Hamilton Finishes "Johnny on the Spot."

February 17 is the date set for the release of the Metro All-Star Series feature, "Johnny on the Spot," with Hale Hamilton in the role of "Johnny." It is a rapid-fire comedy of the sort well suited to the star.

The play is based on the story by Shannon Fife, and was adapted by June Mathis, of the Metro scenario staff.

OTTUMWA WILL HAVE A FINE NEW HOUSE

Morris and J. B. Lince Will Be the Promoters of Proposed Forty Thousand Dollar Structure

By J. L. Shipley.

A NEW motion picture theatre that will involve the expenditure of $40,000 has been projected at Ottumwa, Iowa. Morris Lince, owner of the present Empire in Ottumwa, in conjunction with J. B. Lince of Des Moines, is the promoter. A corner location with exits on two streets is planned, taking up the building that now houses the Empire. It is thought work will be begun early in the spring and that the house will be ready for dedication by fall. Mr. Lince has made a great success of the Empire and believes that he will do equally well with the more pretentious theatre planned.

Trilby Destroyed by Fire.

Fire destroyed the Trilby Theatre, seating 500, located near Camp Dodge last week. As Dodge is now more or less of a clearing house for returning soldiers and the population of the camp is constantly shifting, the house will not be rebuilt. It was covered by insurance. Elbert and Getchell have been operating the theatre for a syndicate of local promoters and F. A. Russell has been acting as resident manager.

Shows "Don't Change Your Husband."

R. C. LiBeau of the Paramount office held a trade showing of "Don't Change Your Husband" the past week. A. H. Blank has booked the picture for a week's run at his Garden Theatre in Des Moines and his Strand Theatre in Omaha.

Will Show "The Heart of Humanity."

Manager M. J. Frisch of the Universal office has arranged for a special trade showing of "The Heart of Humanity" the coming week at the Garden. Frisch with an artistically created invitation has covered the state and, judging from the acceptances he has received, there will be a hundred exhibitors here for the booking. Special music will be provided by the Garden symphony orchestra and pipe organ.

News Item.

Manager Bill O'Hare of the Majestic has had the front of his house handsomely redecorated.

J. J. Jones, house manager of the Strand in Marshalltown, was a Des Moines visitor the past week in conference with owner A. H. Blank.

Spokane News Letter

By S. Clark Patchin.

Spokane Business Spurts.

A SPURT in business was reported at the Spokane picture houses during the week of February 2, when the Liberty was crowded during the presentation of Griffith's "The Greatest Thing in Life"; Henry Walthal drew well at the Casino in "Humdrum Brown"; "Fan Fan" showed to good houses at the Class A; "Tarzan of the Apes" was a good attraction at the Majestic, and William S. Hart was a good drawing star in "Riddle Gawne" at the Lyric.

Stiwell Books Goldwyn and Hodkinson.

The complete output of the Goldwyn studios has been secured by Manager Stiwell, of the Casino and Class A theatres, and will be presented regularly at his houses beginning February 8. Mr. Stiwell secured this service during a recent trip to Seattle. He has also contracted for the Hodkinson features.

Hereafter the Casino shows will be changed on Saturday instead of Sunday.

Show Activities of St. Dunstan's Blind.

"St. Dunstan's Happy Blind" is the subject of the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travelogue release of February 9. Guided by Mr. Holmes, the spectator is shown the workshops, the schools, the teachers and pupils both at work and in the many forms of play provided for them. The teachers, themselves blind, teach the newly arrived to read, to tell time and to make all sorts of things from net-work bags and hammocks to shoes, cabinet work and picture frames. In the superb mansion everything is arranged for the pupils' health and comfort.

Save and Succeed. Buy W. S. S.

Scene from "Long Lane's Turning" (Exhibitors Mutual).

PATHE ENLARGES KANSAS CITY OFFICES

W. S. Wessling, Auditor for the Southwest, Says That January Receipts Show Healthy Business

By Kansas City News Service.

W. S. WESSLING, auditor of the Pathe for the Southwest, was in Kansas City last week arranging for the enlargement of the Pathe plant in this place. Nearly the whole of the second floor of the Ozark building will be taken over by this company, increasing the floor space for the office and doubling the shipping and poster room. Mr. Wessling says the whole blame for increased expense is to be laid to Manager Storey. Business has grown under Manager Storey until the present quarters, adequate a year ago, are now entirely too small.

Mr. Wessling states that in all the branch houses he has visited the receipts for January were 40 per cent. greater than in December. On no trip that he has made through this part of the United States has he found conditions more healthy.

The Pathe did the biggest business during January that it has ever done in its history, even distancing any month before the Oklahoma district was separated from the Kansas City branch.

Kansas City Draws Trade from Far Away.

The Kansas City exchanges have been, not surprised, but pleased by the number of visitors which have come into the city from states generally considered outside of its territory. There was J. L. Shortley, the veteran movie man of Sioux City, Iowa, who came so far away from his home town to be sure he got the right kind of films. J. A. Woolstenholm, of the Empress, in Grand Island, Neb., was another purchaser of reels which he thought he could find in Kansas City and nowhere else.

Out of town visitors from this territory last week were Harold Cusac, of Clifton, Kas.; J. H. Cooper, of the Wichita house, Wichita, Kas.; E. H. McClintock, of the Alamo, Garden City, Mo.

From Film to Oil.

W. E. Truog, the oldest exchange manager in Kansas City, has resigned to become general salesman and manager of the Texas-Cushing Oil & Developing Company, of which he has been the treasurer for a year and a half. Mr. Truog will be succeeded as manager of the World by W. G. Carter, who for two years has been its sales manager. No other changes will be made in the office force and the policies of Mr. Truog will be continued.

Changes in Exchange Offices.

Don. Wood, formerly with Pathe, has become the new booker at the Universal. Leo Doty, whom he succeeded, has been placed at the head of a newly created department, organized to improve the service of the Kansas City exchange. He will see that films are shipped on time, that they are in first class condition when shipped, and look after the advertising matter.

Kansas City Notes.

The Kansas City branch of the Pathe has received a telegram announcing the death of Roy White, manager at Omaha, Neb.

Miss Ruth Wright, of the Cozy Theatre, Topeka, Kas., was in the city last week booking up for the Billie Rhodes series.

P. C. Wreathe, who has been the manager for the Paramount Theatre, has become the representative for the W. W. Hodkinson company and will have charge of the Kansas City and Oklahoma City territories.

The United Picture Theatre, Inc., Company in keeping with the recent amalgamation made in Los Angeles, is now sending out its pictures from the World office instead of the General. The change was made Feb. 8. Charles W. Harden is the Kansas City manager.

The Universal has doubled the capacity of its projection room for the private showing of films to picture showmen.

Harry Berman, of New York, has been in the city for several days, arranging for exploitation of Allen Holubar's production "Heart of Humanity."

Wesselman & Dubinski opened the New Subway Theatre Feb. 1, in the heart of the retail section of the city.

W. C. Wood, one of the best known motion picture men in Oklahoma, and proprietor of the Metropolitan and the Cassino in Lawton, was a visitor in the city last week.

The Isis, a popular theatre in the south residence part of the city, has the credit to be the first Kansas City house to play the first suburban route for two days. Many were turned away at each performance.

The Universal held its regular salesmen's meeting Sunday morning, seven being present to discuss trade conditions. H. C. Jones, who travels through southern Kansas, stated that he had sold more films and done a better business generally than he had during his ten years' experience.

A. S. Flynn, of St. Louis, has been transferred to Kansas City as manager of the Film Clearing House. Howard Brink, his predecessor, has removed to Buffalo, N. Y.

Fred Mainert, formerly cashier for the Pathe in Minneapolis, Minn., has removed to Kansas City and is now occupying a similar position with the General Film Company.

B. F. Keith and the Orpheum circuits are playing the World film "Kinograms," which Manager Carter will release in Kansas City this week.

K. B. Johns, formerly of Marysville, Mo., has been engaged as roadman by the General Film Company.

Fred Savage, of the "De Luxe," Hutchinson, Kas., and a member of the Kansas Motion Picture League, was in the city last week.

John Morphet, auditor of the General Film Company, spent several days in Kansas City on his way to Omaha.

O. C. Speccard has transferred his allegiance from the Pathe to the Universal.

Jerry Abrams, special agent for the general manager of the Universal, stopped in Kansas City for a few days on his return east from the Pacific Coast.

Mid Southwest Activities.

York, Nebr.—Al W. Ballenger will establish a Scenic Moving Picture Theatre.

Omaha, Nebr.—The Muse Theatre has been sold to the World Reality Company, which concern also owns and operates the Sun. Excavation work on a new theatre, which they will operate, has begun. The seating capacity will be similar to that of the Sun and Muse.

Chetopa, Kans.—Manager Bert Finley has opened the Opera and is showing high class pictures.

Vermillion, Kan.—The High School has contracted for six motion pictures which will start February 12.

Hazelton, Kan.—Dan Edwards and Charlie Hyatt will open a moving picture in the near future.

Randolph, Kan.—At a public auction sale of the property of the Randolph Light Company, a moving picture machine and seats for an airdrome will be included. The sale will be held February 22.

Pittsburg, Kan.—N. F. Hoffman has leased the rooms formerly occupied by the Palace Theatre on Broadway near Fifth and will remodel the interior and install new fixtures. He will feature Vitagraph and Goldwyn productions, when he opens for business about March 15.

Belleville, Kan.—W. Bartlett and Son of Fairbury, Neb., have purchased the White Way Theatre from G. A. Chapin. The theatre will be closed for two weeks, while extensive improvements are being made both on the interior and to the booth, which will be torn out and enlarged.

Quero, Texas.—A. R. Bell has recently become manager of the Dreamland Theatre, having leased it from its present owners.

Hillsboro, Mo.—Chas. G. Goodnight is the new manager of the Jefferson Theatre Company.

La Monte, Mo.—D. A. Setiles and Miss Mayme Brown have purchased the equipment of the Electric Theatre from Mrs. R. S. Viets and will have charge of the business in the future.

Elorado Springs, Mo.—L. W. Gray, manager of the Eldorado Springs Opera House, has sold his interest to A. E. Jarboe of Carrolton, Mo., who will take possession Feb. 10.

Henderson, Texas.—W. H. Powers, of Jacksonville, has been here making arrangements for the installation of a moving picture show. He will remodel the old Methodist church building for the purpose.

Beaumont, Texas.—Aaron Laskin, of Houston, Tex., has assumed the management of the Kyle Theatre of this city. Chas. Sasoon, former manager, will take charge of the Grand Opera House at Galveston.

Hugo, Okla.—S. A. Mennamer, of Kanawo, Okla., has purchased the Optic Theatre in Boswell from Mr. Gill, of Hugo.

El Paso, Texas.—After a reorganization of the company owning the Majestic Theatre, C. E. Buchert was appointed new manager.

E. N. Moorhead of Kansas City has purchased the Opera House at Cowgill, Mo., from V. V. Cash, O. A. Griffey, O. C. Switzer and Sid F. Thomson.

The Royal Theatre at Caddo, Okla., has opened for business in its new building.

The New Theatre, Salina, Kan., is to be opened soon by the Salina Amusement Company, under the management of H. C. Collins.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Announcement of tentative plans for the building of a seven-story theatre and office building to cost $600,000 has been made by P. C. Levy, local amusement manager.

New Boston, Texas.—O. S. Roberts has sold his picture theatre to M. E. Rust and C. B. Doss of Annona, who have taken charge.

The Jefferson Theatre, Springfield, Mo., has been reopened under the management of Harold C. Craig.

Humble, Texas.—J. W. Pate and T. C. Harrington have taken charge of the Liberty Theatre and have changed the name to "The Dixie."

Muskogee, Okla.—Dan Meyers, manager of the Broadway Theatre, is contemplating the erection of a $100,000 theatre building at the corner of Third and Okmulgee.

Fire completely destroyed the Trilby Theatre at Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Ia.

Henderson, Texas.—W. H. Powers, manager of the new picture theatre, has purchased new equipment for his show which is just being completed and has installed a $3,000 electric orchestra. The seating capacity is 400.

Mountain Home, Ark.—W. M. DeLapp, owner of the local picture show, has purchased property, on which he will erect a new picture theatre building.

Mrs. Annie K. Wilson is the new manager of the Gem Theatre at Sherman, Texas.

Ed. McLaughlin and Joe Brown are the new managers of the picture theatre at Ralls, Texas.

Producers' and Distributors' News

Universal Enlarges Force to Increase Short Subjects

IN order to meet the demand for bright, snappy two-reel dramas an extra company to produce only short-reel subjects has been added to the production forces at Universal City, according to advices from the Pacific Coast. When Universal began releasing short dramas about a year ago it was expected the films would have popular appeal to the public, but to date the popularity of the films has far exceeded expectations.

Not only are the films being sought by small-town exhibitors, but in the leading cities the best vaudeville and motion picture theatres display these films regularly. Large city exhibitors have found them especially appropriate to run with five-reel light comedies, with serials, and as the featured films of novelty, short subject programs.

To provide exhibitors with the best of stories and players in these short subjects, Universal's scenario department has sent out hundreds of letters asking writers to submit stories for production, and many prominent film stars have been featured. Helen Gibson, Fritzi Ridgeway, Marie Walcamp, Kingsley Benedict and others have been featured in releases to date. Recently, Violet Mersereau was starred in a short drama entitled "A Proxy Husband," and, while awaiting the development of his next serial release, Eddie Polo has been making two-reel pictures.

Humane Association Praises Pathe Film.

The American Red Star Animal Relief, a department of the American Humane Association, has given its indorsement to "Corinne, Come Here!" one of the three recent two-reel plays featuring Gloria Joy. The announcement comes through Mrs. Richard Hardy, manager headquarters branch office, New York, who writes to Pathe Exchanges, Inc.:

"This is just a word of appreciation of one of your films, 'Corinne, Come Here!' which we happened to see recently. We like to see pictures of this nature which emphasize kindness to animals and the natural comradeship which exists between children and dogs.

"There is so much hysteria against dogs which humanitarians are constantly having to combat that it is refreshing to see pictures like 'Corinne, Come Here!' and we consider them the most effective kind of propaganda in behalf of our dumb friends."

Fine Cast for "Diana of the Green Van."

"Diana of the Green Van" which will serve to bring Alma Rubens back to the screen as a star on the Exhibitors' Mutual list, will be played by a well rounded cast.

Nigel Barrie, just out of the Royal Aviation Service, has been engaged to play opposite Miss Rubens and should make the ideal Phillip. Wedgewood Nowell has the prominent part of the Prince, while Lamar Johnstone, Harry Von Meter, Josephine Crowell and Ed Brady also appear in strong parts.

"Diana of the Green Van" is being produced from the best seller by Leona Dalrymple and was adapted for the screen by Tom Geraghty.

Lillian Hall.

Lillian Hall to Play Opposite Taylor Holmes

LILLIAN HALL, who broke into the limelight because of her finished work in the role of one of the sisters in "Little Women," has been engaged by Taylor Holmes to play the ingenue lead opposite him in his latest production, work on which has been started at the Biograph Studio.

Holmes' latest work will be a screen version of the magazine serial story, "Taxi?" the last installment of which appeared in the pages of a well-known magazine in the February issue. Miss Hall will portray the author's character of Imogene, a pretty chorus girl, who wins the love of a young New York clubman, a heritage and her rightful place in society.

Metro March Releases Are of Strong Quality

THE schedule of releases for March makes it evident that the Metro studios will contribute to photoplay lovers at least a half dozen good film productions. March 3 will be the release date of Viola Dana's new All-Star Series feature, "Satan Junior."

In this piece, Miss Dana portrays a most unusual character, a tomboy vampire. Among those supporting her are Lilie Leslie, Alice Knowland, Frank Currier, Lloyd Hughes and George King. Milton Sills has the leading male role.

The story was adapted for the screen by John H. Collins and directed by Herbert Blache.

On March 10, "The Blind Man's Eyes" will enable its admirers to see Bert Lytell in something entirely different from the usual run of photoplay dramas.

The remainder of the Metro releases for March have not as yet been announced.

Heavy Bookings Recorded on Vitagraph's New Serial

COMPILATIONS made at the home offices of Vitagraph of the advance bookings to date on file at its various branch offices for the new serial, "The Man of Might," featuring William Duncan, supported by an all-star cast, including Editor Johnson and Joe Ryan, already make it apparent that this newest of Vitagraph's chapter plays will prove by far its greatest serial hit. Ever since its pioneer product in this line, "The Fighting Trail," was presented Vitagraph's serial business has grown with every succeeding offering on that form.

The cluster of bookings recorded thus far in the various branch offices is growing compact almost hourly as the date for the release of the first episode draws near. Only one point remains open to settle with the exhibitor, and that is the day and date on which he wants the chapter play for his theatre.

The efficacy of Vitagraph serials as business builders is testified to by the experience of numerous theatres which a year ago were doing a poor business. Many testimonials are in the files of the company to the effect that Vitagraph serials have built up those houses.

"The Man of Might" was written by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Brady, and William Duncan is directing the production.

Fourth Keeney Released Through Sherry.

"Marriage for Convenience" is the title of the fourth Frank A. Keeney release through the William L. Sherry Service, starring Catherine Calvert. It is a melodramatic story involving the upper strata of society. The release date is Feb. 9.

E. Lloyd Sheldon, the playwright and author of "Marriage," a previous Catherine Calvert success, wrote "Marriage for Convenience" especially for Miss Calvert. The direction is by Sidney Olcott.

A well balanced cast of players appear. Included are Edward Burns, Anna May, George Majeroni, Blanche Davenport, Henry Sedley, Sadie Leonard and George Pauncefort.

"Blind Man's Eyes" Nears Completion.

Bert Lytell is nearing the completion of "The Blind Man's Eyes" at the new Metro studios in Hollywood. The star is directed by John Ince.

June Mathis made the screen adaptation from the novel by William McHarg and Edwin Balmer. Lytell has what is perhaps the strongest cast that has supported him since he became a Metro star. In it are Frank Currier, Joseph Kilgour, Naomi Childers, Richard Morris, Morris Foster, Gertrude Claire and Mignon Anderson.

Some of the most thrilling episodes take place on a Pullman sleeper. These include an attack with intent to murder.

Sherry Announces "Calibre .38."

The William L. Sherry Service announces release on Feb. 16 of a new Edgar Lewis special feature production, "Calibre .38," a drama of the West done in the usual profuse style of the producer. The picture tells a remarkable story in six chapters. It is claimed to be a fascinating production.

Unusual Studio Set.

Not the interior of a prison—only a studio set representing one, constructed for William S. Hart's new Artcraft picture, "The Poppy Girl's Husband."

Heavy Demand for Nazimova's "Out of the Fog"

THE demand of exhibitors directing big theatres throughout the country for Nazimova's "Out of the Fog," based on H. Austin Adams' stage success, "'Ception Shoals," in which Nazimova achieved such heights when produced at the Maxine Elliott Theatre in New York, exceeds the most optimistic expectations of Richard A. Rowland and Maxwell Karger, who present the Nazimova productions.

Already theatres devoted exclusively to weekly runs have booked the picture, though the majority of the managers of these houses have not yet seen the production.

Those who have seen "Out of the Fog," exhibited recently in the projection rooms of Metro, which is exclusively distributing the Nazimova productions, were unstinted in their praise of the Russian's work and the distinctive beauty and dramatic power of the productions.

Prerelease at New York Rivoli.

The Rivoli in New York will be the theatre in which "Out of the Fog" will be shown to the admirers of the star in that city, opening for a special run the week of February 9. An unusually attractive program of music and stage setting and lighting has been prepared appropriately to accompany the projection of the picture.

Other first-class theatres which will show the picture are the new California in Los Angeles, the Strand, San Francisco; Liberty, Portland; Clemmer, Seattle; Merrill, Milwaukee; New Garrick, Minneapolis; New Garrick, St. Paul; Strand, New Orleans; Red Mill, Dallas; Forsythe, Atlanta; Moore's Rialto, Washington; Parkway, Baltimore; Strand, Syracuse; Grand Opera, Pittsburgh; Alhambra, Cleveland; Colonial, Dayton, and other big houses in Kansas City, Des Moines and Omaha.

Elaborate Prison Scene in New Artcraft.

One of the most elaborate sets ever constructed at the William S. Hart studio was built for "The Poppy Girl's Husband," a new Artcraft production, representing three tiers in a state's prison. The gloomy corridors of the prison are admirably represented with stone-flagged passages, the "iron" gratings and platforms.

This picture is now practically completed and is said to differ materially from anything in which Bill Hart has hitherto made his appearance. Juanita Hansen has the role of the "poppy girl." Among others in the cast appear Captain Walter Long, late of the United States Artillery.

San Francisco, the Barbary Coast, and the prison are all features of the picture which was written by Jack Boyle for the Red Book and scenarioized by C. Gardner Sullivan.

"The Captain's Captain" Going Strong.

The pungent odor of the sea is, evidently, mightly popular with inland audiences. "The Captain's Captain," according to Vitagraph, proves this. This picture of sea life, which presents Alice Joyce in a new type of characterization, is maintaining its popularity and is recording bookings above the normal in centers located in the heart of the continent.

The film was directed by Tom Terries and includes in its support of Miss Joyce Percy Standing, Eulalie Jensen, Julia Swayne Gordon and Maurice Costello.

G. M. Anderson's Latest Is Up-to-Date Western Story

THE latest of the Gilbert M. Anderson releases through the William L. Sherry Service, "The Son of a Gun," is a brand new five-part up-to-date Western, with notable photographic effects and many wild Western characters. The scenario was prepared by Mr. Anderson in collaboration with Jesse J. Robbins, who has been connected with most of the Anderson productions.

"Red Blood and Yellow," Mr. Anderson's last five-reel offering released through the Sherry Service, outsold any previous production under the same auspices.

Mr. Anderson is announced to appear in a series of five-part Westerns for Sherry Service release, and several of these plays are now being finished up for printing.

Make Scenes for Salvation Film.

Among the actors who have arrived from the Coast with Director Edward Jose to make the final scenes for the big Salvation Army production to be released as a Paramount-Artcraft Special is Robert Anderson, who enacted one of the leading roles in D. W. Griffith's "Heart of the World."

Commander Evangeline Booth makes her personal appearance in the picture and it was made with the co-operation of the religious body, depicting their work at home and abroad in peace and war, and telling as well a thrilling and human story of love and sorrow, battle and daring, sadness and joy.

Mr. Anderson plays Luke, an American farmhand who loves his "Lizzie-beth," played by Catherine Calvert, follows her to France, seeks her everywhere in the field and base hospitals and hutments of the Salvationists and finally discover her in a secret cellar in France.

Others in the cast are Eugene O'Brien, Ruby DeRemer, Theodore Roberts and minor players.

"Common Clay's" First Run Record Big.

Pathe reports that the bookings of "Common Clay" in first run houses bid fair to excel the unusual record of "Infatuation." Following the scheduling at the Rialto, New York, of the screen version of the Harvard Prize Play by Cleves Kinkead, the bookings in the New York district have passed the previous big feature record. The reports from the West show that the prominent exhibitors have had only to see it and then sign for it.

The prosters which Frederick Brown MaDan has prepared for "Common Clay" are marked by the dramatic virility that characterizes his selection and execution of a theme. For this Pathe Special he has drawn a one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet and a twenty-four sheet.

One three-dollar a week usher can do your house more harm than half page advertisements can offset. Politeness and courtesy on the part of employees means money in the box office.

Pathe's Twenty-four Sheet Poster Advertising "Common Clay."

Doris Kenyon's "Twilight" Is Released February 23

DORIS KENYON'S latest photoplay, "Twilight," declared to be the most pretentious production so far made by Miss Kenyon at the head of her own company, De Luxe Pictures, Inc., will be released generally Feb. 23, but one week later on the Pacific Coast. The production, which has been more than two months in the making, affords Miss Kenyon unusual opportunities for displaying her marked dramatic talent and her youthful girlish charm.

J. Searle Dawley, Miss Kenyon's director, has developed every one of Miss Kenyon's talents in "Twilight," and has added to it the artistic and dramatic touches for which he is famous.

Filmed from Magazine Story.

The story of "Twilight" first appeared in a magazine and was written by Vingie E. Roe. The screen adaptation was made by Louis Joseph Vance. The story of "Twilight" is laid in the mountains of North Carolina, and in order to get all of the local coloring Director Dawley took his entire company of thirty players to the exact locale of the story about thirty miles from Asheville, where the most beautiful scenery east of the Rockies is to be found. In addition to the cast, Director Dawley used over one hundred mountaineers and a dozen yoke of oxen in the production.

Theodore C. Dietrich, president of De Luxe Pictures, Inc., announces that the illustrated titles for "Twilight" have been made by a new process and are in keeping with the ultra-artistic making of the picture throughout.

Variety of Subjects in Screen Magazine.

Preparedness, nature studies, comedy, travelog and art are among the various subjects brought out by Universal Screen Magazine 105, released the third week of February.

The reel opens with scenes showing how Carlisle Indian girls have proved what America has done to develop the minds of its original settlers. Many of the girls appearing in these scenes have seen service in the Red Cross and canteens in France during the war.

"The Vandal of the Corn Fields" is the subtitle of the second subject of the weekly. It deals with the destruction wrought by the chinch bug in the corn field. A cinema vaudeville act follows and the history of the bonbon and chocolate soda, William Jerome's Laughographs, a French travelog and a Pat Sullivan cartoon entitled "The Bar Fly" complete the release.

"The Long Lane's Turning" (National).

In "The Long Lane's Turning," a production made by National from a story by Hallie Erminie Rives and directed by Louis William Chaudet, Mary Charleson has the role of Echo Allen. Echo is the woman Henry Walthall has to woo—a part which he should play with considerable fervor and realism, considering the success he had in winning Miss Charleson.

Echo Allen in the novel of "The Long Lane's Turning" is the type of self-sacrificing heroine who wins the admiration and sympathy of every one. She is willing to give herself away to Cameron Craig, the unscrupulous politician, in order to save the good name of her father, but she is saved, her father's name remains unblotted, and Harry Sevier, the brilliant young lawyer, receives his just award.

New Lyons and Moran Comedy.

Lyons and Moran, Universal funsters, have just completed a comedy release entitled "Lawyers and Liars." The film deals with the efforts of two "gentlemen of the bar" to win an important case. Mildred Moore is seen in support of the two comedians.

Scene from "Molly of the Follies" (American).

Universal's New Serial Greeted with Enthusiasm

FOUR episodes of the latest Universal serial, "The Red Glove," were shown in the projection room the past week for the executives, and it is doubtful if any picture, or serial was greeted more enthusiastically than the Walcamp vehicle.

Not only is the picture an artistic offering, but the previewers assert it contains more "pep" and "punch" in the first four chapters than any other Universal serial yet produced. As Billie the supposed daughter of "Gentleman" Geoff, owner of "The Blue Chip," a mountain store, Miss Walcamp is said to do her best screen work and to perform many unusual feats. Among those who have prominent parts in the production are Pat O'Malley, who is seen as Kern Thodes; a mining engineer Charles Lingham, who is cast as Starr Wiley, a crafty engineer and rival of Thode. Leon De La Mothe portrays the "vulture," a leader of a band of outlaws, called vultures due to the peculiar head-dress worn by them; Alfred Allen, plays "Gentleman" Geoff and Evelyn Selbie, as Tia Juana, a Mexican woman possessing psychic powers.

"The Pool of Lost Souls" is the title of the first episode and among its numerous thrills are the destruction of Thode's equipment by the vultures and the capture of the engineer by the outlaws.

The tentative title for the second episode is "Claws of the Vultures" and deals with the efforts of Billie to free Thode from the hands of the outlaws, the bungling sheriff's attempts to bring the outlaws to justice and the rescue of both Thode and the sheriff by Billie when both men are about to be hanged.

In the third episode Miss Walcamp does some fine acting. Among the major thrills is brought about when Miss Walcamp rides to the rescue of Thode who has been captured by the vultures and taken to the mountains, with her horse falls, in jumping across a ravine. Miss Walcamp falls at least forty feet before freeing herself from her horse and as the two strike ground they both roll down a steep incline and into a water reservoir. This fall was actual as no "dummies" could be used.

In the fourth episode two of the vultures having been made prisoners in the Blue Chip, at the same time Tia Juana, who alone knew the location of the valuable oil pool Thode and Wiley were seeking, was admitted, the vultures swooped down upon the inn and sought to free the captives. In defending the inn Gentleman Geoff is shot and on his death bed tells of Billie's real parents and of her having inherited a fortune which he held in trust for her. As the episode ends Billie leaves the inn, passes through the vulture band and obtains aid from the sheriff's posse, which is scouring the mountains for the outlaws.

Director J. P. MacGowan has taken his company into the California mountains to film the sixth and seventh episodes of the serial, according to word received from Universal City.

Much Expected of "The Highest Trump."

"The Highest Trump," the Vitagraph-Earle Williams picture, which has just been released, is expected to prove of especial interest to the thousands of men in Uncle Sam's aerial service who have just returned from France, for the airplane is a principal "prop" in the play. Earle Williams made his debut as a sky pilot.

The story has a phase of the war merely as a background, but it is full of dramatic opportunities and is leavened by a pretty love story. Earle Williams himself is responsible in part for the story. He collaborated with H. H. Van Loan in the preparation of the play.

James Young directed the picture, and in the cast are Grace Darmond, Robert Byrem, John Cossar, C. H. Geldart, Robert Bolder and Miles McCarthy.

Bohemian Life in Viola Dana's Latest.

Glimpses of Bohemian life in the artists' studios of the Latin Quarter in Paris will be given in the new Metro production starring Viola Dana, the working title of which is "Jeanne of the Gutter," and which has entered upon its second week in production at the new Metro studios in Hollywood. The picture is an original story from the pen of June Mathis, adapted for the screen by Finis Fox, and directed by Herbert Blache.

Pathe News Shows German Revolution.

Pathe News has had a cameraman right in the most exciting phases of the German revolution and he was in Berlin during the big developments of the movement The pictures, the first to arrive in this country, have been included in issue No. 13 released Saturday, February 8. These pictures thrill with dramatic interest and the news with extremely interesting pictorial qualities.

Scene from "Under Four Flags" (Official).

Obtains Much Material from Current Magazines

THE filming of popular stories appearing in the fiction magazines has recently become a marked feature of the production activities of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. In fact, including five productions released during the last few weeks, the list of Paramount and Artcraft pictures recently completed or now in course of production includes no less than sixteen which were adapted from short stories or serials which have appeared in magazines.

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in charge of production, in commenting upon the matter said: "This policy, or tendency if you will, on the part of our company, pronounced as it is, is the result of much careful deliberation on the part of our scenario and production departments. We have given it a thorough tryout, and in no case that I can recall has such an adaptation failed to register a conspicuous success when it has been released.

"The safety of the policy is, you might say, inherent, Mr. MacAlarney, our scenario editor, has so systematized his department that all the magazines of importance are assigned to expert members of his staff for careful reading.

"Among recent successes of adaptations of magazine fiction I might cite Wallace Reid's last two Paramount pictures, 'Too Many Millions,' adapted by Gardner Hunting from Porter Emerson Browne's Magazine story, 'Someone and Somebody,' and 'The Dub,' adapted by Will M. Ritchey from the magazine story by Edgar Franklin; Bryant Washburn's 'The Way of a Man With a Maid,' Ida M. Evans' magazine story which Edith M. Kennedy scenarioized, and the same Paramount star's 'Venus in the East,' which Wallace Irwin contributed to the same periodical and which Gardner Hunting adapted; also Dorothy Gish's Paramount picture, 'The Hope Chest,' which M. M. Stearns adapted from Mark Lee Luther's story which first ran serially in a woman's magazine.

"Elsie Ferguson's Artcraft picture, 'The Marriage Price,' tentatively scheduled for March release, is an adaptation by Eve Unsell of Grisfold Wheeler's 'For Sale,' and the same star has just finished the production of 'Eyes of the Soul,' which George Weston wrote under the title 'The Salt of the Earth,' and which Miss Unsell also scenarioized."

Power's Supplying the Service.

In no line of endeavor have motion pictures become of such vital necessity as in the "service." In order that they may be properly projected, there has been installed in the Knight of Columbus Hut, Broadway and Forty-sixth street, New York, a Power's 6B Cameragraph, through the United Theatre Equipment Corporation of New York.

First Pictures of Dardanelles Surrender.

The Pathe News No. 11 scored an "exclusive" on the occupation of Constantinople by the Allied forces—the first pictures of the surrender of the Dardanelles. The proceedings of the great Peace Conference give to even the casual reader the vital significance of the fact that the Gateway of the East is open to the world and the cause of centuries of war is forever removed. How terrific was the bombardment of the Allied fleets is shown by the wreck made of Sedul-Bahr by British long range guns.

An excellent view is given of the historical landing of General D'Esperey and staff at the city of the Sultans to complete the plans of occupation. Then the Goeben, Germany's famous warship, again changes hands. It was turned over to Turkey in 1914, and the Pathe News shows it going into the possession of the Allies.

Plays Heavy Role in "Island of Intrigue."

Hector C. Sarno is playing the heavy role of Count Pellessier in "The Island of Intrigue," May Allison's newest starring vehicle now under production at the Metro studios. Sarno has been in pictures nine years. He has been with Vitagraph, Biograph and Fox, among other companies. His engagement for "The Island of Intrigue" is his first work for Metro.

Sarno prefaced his advent on the screen with long experience in the legitimate drama here and abroad. For four years he was in the support of the eminent Italian actor, Ermete Novelli, playing throughout Italy.

"Molly of the Follies" Completed.

The screening of "Molly of the Follies" has been completed. This is the fourth of a series of pictures starring Miss Margarita Fisher. The film is described as being different from anything as yet attempted by Miss Fisher, and is a play that gives her excellent opportunities.

Edward Sloman is the director. Jack Mower plays opposite Miss Fisher. The picture is to be released through Pathe Exchanges, February 16.

Prominent Authors Supply New Material for Hayakawa

THE Haworth Pictures Corporation, one of the producing units of the Exhibitors' Mutual, filming features starring Sessue Hayakawa, has mapped out a series of pictures for the Oriental actor for which the material has been supplied by E. Philips Oppenheim, Thomas J. Geraghty, L. V. Jefferson, Clifford Howard and Mary McNeil Fenollosa.

Among the stories which Hayakawa will produce during the year is "The Illustrious Prince," by E. Philips Oppenheim, which offers splendid screen possibilities. Tom Geraghty has contributed "The Courageous Coward" to the Hayakawa repertoire.

L. V. Jefferson's offering to the Japanese series will be "The Debt," another strong drama of the type Hayakawa prefers. "The Gray Horizon," by Clifford Howard, and "The Dragon Painter," by Mary McNeil Fenollosa, are others on the schedule for the coming season.

Strong Role for Earle Williams.

Complete "stills" of a forthcoming Earle Williams feature, "A Gentleman of Quality," just received from Vitagraph's West Coast studios, are reported to be particularly promising in point of action as well as pictorially. Concurrent with the arrival of the photographs came the report that the picture is ready for final critical unreeling.

Earle Williams in "A Gentleman of Quality" is provided a role that gives him full scope for the exercise of his delineative powers. This role presents him as the beneficiary of an overly exacting foster-father, whose despotism forces him to flee the home provided for him.

Katherine Adams is Mr. Williams' leading woman. Others in the cast are Joyce Moore, James Carpenter, Robert Bolder, George Pierce and Donald Byram. The picture was directed by James Young. It is set for mid-March release.

Buys Rights to Another Norris Novel.

Bessie Barriscale, starring in her own productions released through Exhibitors' Mutual, is to be a Kathleen Norris heroine again. Announcement is made that the B. B. Features have just purchased the rights to Miss Norris' novel, "Josselyn's Wife." This will be the star's second appearance as a Norris heroine.

Maie B. Havey, head of the scenario department of B. B. Features, will prepare "Josselyn's Wife" for the screen.

Director Howard Hickman has chosen his technical staff, which will include Fred Crift, assistant director; Guy Wilkie, cameraman; George Nogle, assistant cameraman.

Swift Action in "Toto's Troubles."

Toto, formerly clown at the New York Hippodrome, deserting the footlights for the screen, has more than made good as a movie funmaker. In "Toto's Troubles," the Rolin comedy, released by Pathe on Feb. 16, he has one of the best vehicles for his peculiar art. His work is different from that of any other droll in the pictures in that it combines the distinct individuality of the clown with that of swift, modern farce comedy. In "Toto's Troubles" the action is a swift succession of laughs and Toto does some of his most strenuous stunts.

Moss Engages Gertrude Berkley.

Everybody remembers "War Brides" on the screen and Gertrude Berkley's portrayal of the mother, which paves the way to announce that Miss Berkley has been engaged by B. S. Moss to play a mother role in the forthcoming "Break the News to Mother." The middle of March will see the release of the picture. The direction is by Julius Steger.

The Tom Mix Quartette.
Left to right, Pewee, Buck, Taterbug and Banty.

Many Exhibitors Adopt Tom Mix Quartette Idea

REPORTS from various parts of the country show that numerous exhibitors already have adopted the idea of having a cowboy quartette sing cowboy songs during the showing of Tom Mix subjects. Moreover, the original Tom Mix Quartette, which made its first public appearance at the Kinema Theatre, Los Angeles, during the showing of Tom Mix's play, "Fame and Fortune," has started on a tour of the country, appearing at various theatres showing Tom Mix subjects.

The idea of having cowboys on the stage during the show of Mix pictures started with the Kinema Theatre. The management of that house was fortunate in having the original Tom Mix Quartette, composed of singers who are members of Tom Mix's company.

The management of the Kinema had a backdrop, showing the rolling foothills that skirt the plains. In the center of the stage was a camp fire—a real fire, that sent a pungent odor of burning wood out into the audience, thus heightening the illusion. The four cowboys were seated about this fire. They were garbed in regulation cowboy costume, with chaps and leather boots and spurs, and carried their pistols and lariats.

The quartette began their entertainment by singing "Pony Boy," after which they sang "San Antone," following this with "Rag Time Cowboy Joe." Then they gave an excellent burlesque on "The Old Oaken Bucket" and concluded with "Sleep, Kentucky Babe."

Marking an innovation in picture presentation in Los Angeles, the cowboys made a great hit, and appeared at every performance during the entire week's run of "Fame and Fortune."

The cowboys who made up the quartette are Gilbert Holmes, whose nickname is Pewee; Charles Gebhardt, known as Buck; Earl Simpson, who answers to the picturesque name of Taterbug, and Riley Caldwell, known as Banty.

The Fox Film Corporation, in an effort to help exhibitors create atmosphere in the presentation of Mix pictures, is urging that various theatres either avail themselves of the services of the quartette or engage local singers who could appear in cowboy dress and duplicate the effect achieved at the Kinema Theatre.

Kenneth Webb to Direct Alice Brady.

Select announces that Kenneth B. Webb has been engaged to direct Alice Brady in a forthcoming Select picture, the one which will follow her latest attraction, "The World to Live In," which is being distributed as a February production. The title of the picture on which Miss Brady and Mr. Webb are now working has not yet been announced. Miss Brady's new director is the author and stage director of several well known Columbia University comic operas.

"For Better, For Worse" DeMille's New Artcraft

"FOR BETTER, FOR WORSE," is the title of Cecil B. DeMille's next Artcraft picture, the story having been written by Edgar Selwyn and scenarioized by William C. DeMille. Alvin Wyckoff is the photographer. As the title suggests, the play hinges upon a marriage, but the picture is not a discussion of marriage problems, it being totally different in this respect from Mr. DeMille's previous production, "Don't Change Your Husband." The problems arising from marriage as an institution are not touched upon at all in the play.

Most of the action in the production takes place after the war. Although the introductory portion of the drama takes place in America during war times, Mr. DeMille states that it is not a war play, has nothing to do with war, and deals instead with the actual present.

"It isn't in any sense a problem play," said Mr. DeMille. "It proves nothing, it doesn't attempt to instruct or convince. It is a tremendous drama, narrating the struggles of human beings in their attempts to make the proper adjustment to the situations in which they find themselves. Mr. Selwyn's story is real, it is human.

"I think that it is dramatically the biggest subject I have ever handled. The situations are so unusual, yet so possible and logical, that I am positive it will excel in sheer dramatic value any picture I have ever made."

Elliott Dexter has been selected to play the leading role, that of Dr. Edward Meade, a specialist in children's diseases. Gloria Swanson has the role of Sylvia Norcross, a New York society girl of wealth and position. Tom Forman makes his first appearance in a DeMille production in the role of Richard Burton, a young architect. Wanda Hawley plays the ingenue role, that of Betty, and Raymond Hatton has a straight role of a young acquaintance of Richard. Theodore Roberts has an excellent character part, and Sylvia Ashton appears as Sylvia's aunt.

"Children of Banishment" Praised at Private Showing

THE print of "Children of Banishment," Mitchell Lewis' forthcoming attraction under the Select banner, and the second of his Select star series, arrived in New York from Los Angeles last week and was given a private showing for departmental heads in Select's projection room.

According to an announcement made by Select officials, Mr. Lewis' second Select will be a good box office attraction. They were especially pleased with numerous scenic bits of the film and the unusual adaptability of Mr. Lewis for the role of backwoodsman and lumberjack.

Based on this pre-release report exhibitors and the public will be safe in anticipating a genuine success. The story is full of human appeal and deals with the fortunes and misfortunes of a big-hearted lumberjack who lets a stranger go half with him on the purchase of a valuable "Y" of timber. Shortly after this deal is made the stranger attempts to sell him out, but Lewis nips the plot in the bud and forces his partner to deed the property over to his wife, and then and there begins the struggle for victory—a victory in material things and a victory in affairs of the heart.

The cast of players in support of Mr. Lewis includes Bessie Eyton, Arthur Morrison, Herbert Heyes, Tom Bates, George Nichols and Jane Keckly, in addition to the scores of extras who were recruited from the roster of the Yosemite Lumber Company.

Song Gives Motive Theme to Blackton Play

An important theme in the development of J. Stuart Blackton's new super-feature, "A House Divided," adapted by Anthony Paul Kelly from Ruth Holt Boucicault's novel, is found in the words and melody of "Just a Song at Twilight."

It is a favorite song of the heroine of the picture played by the Blackton star, Sylvia Breamer, and is the motive which effects the unexpected and pleasant ending of the feature. Renunciation is the keynote of this new problem drama, the action showing how the wife sacrifices her good name when her husband is in danger of being convicted of bigamy to save him from jail and then disappears. Months later she is found wandering in devastated France, that country and England being the locale of the picture, and her memory is restored by the strains of "Just a Song at Twilight" sung by a group of doughboys in a rest camp nearby, where they are awaiting orders to return home.

Rogers Holds Select Week in Many New England Cities

THE week of February 9 to 15 was celebrated as "Select Week" throughout New England, and the stunt was put over by Charles R. Rogers, Select Pictures Corporation's New England manager, who has charge of the territory comprising the eastern half of Connecticut and the states of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire. In all of the New England "key cities" Select pictures received a 100 per cent. showing, while scores of small cities and towns fell into line and ran Select pictures for four, five and even seven days.

The "big week" was the culmination of a three weeks' campaign by Manager Rogers and his salesmen. In Boston, four theatres—the Boston, Park, Globe and Orpheum theatres—ran Select pictures seven days straight. In Worcester, Manager Rogers captured two out of three first-run houses. They were Poli's and the Gordon's.

In Portland, the Empire ran two Select pictures half a week each, while at the Modern in Providence a Select held forth the entire week.

In Lawrence, "The Midnight Patrol" played the entire week at the Empire, and "The Better Half" filled the week's bill at the Comic. Other cities where Select pictures were shown during the week are Pawtucket, R. I.; Woonsocket, R. I.; Manchester, R. I.; Nashua, N. H.; Lynn, Mass.;

Charles R. Rogers.

Waltham, Mass.; Burlington, Vt., and at Bangor, Me.

Manager Rogers' "Select Week" boosted the week's rentals 60 per cent. over normal.

Jane and Katherine Lee in "Smiles" (Fox).

Goldwyn Exploiting "The Woman on the Index"

WHEN Pauline Frederick greets the-atregoers in her first Goldwyn production, "The Woman on the Index," from the stage success by Lillian Trimble Bradley and George Broadhurst, and released February 23, an atmosphere of mystery will be created in almost every city and town in which the picture is presented.

As the heroine of the story, Miss Frederick is the centre of the stare of suspicion and the taunting voices of accusation; she is the woman on the index, hunted by men and haunted by women, yet ever defying fate to rob her heart of all that she holds dearest—the faith and devotion of the man she loves.

To create the mystery effect, Goldwyn has designed special "teaser" advertisements which show a score of hands pointing to a large head of Pauline Frederick. A question mark appears directly over the head, and at the bottom of the layout appears a hand-lettered catchline which reads, "Who Is This Woman?" Exhibitors everywhere have signified their intention of using these advertisements for newspaper display, house organs, programs and window cards.

The twenty-four sheets issued on the production are similar in design and layout to the teaser advertisements. They are the most striking and powerful of any twenty-fours yet issued by Goldwyn, showing a score of hands pointing to a large head of Pauline Frederick, with the billing of the picture below in bold lettering. These twenty-fours are produced in black and white. The background is in black, with the hands and lettering in white, presenting something entirely new and different in billboard paper. The head of Miss Frederick is tinted in a flesh hue, imparting just enough color to accentuate the contrast of white on black.

The campaign of exploitation outlined for "The Woman on the Index" is one of the most intensive yet formulated by the Goldwyn organization. The fact that Pauline Frederick is making her first appearance as a Goldwyn star, coupled with the popularity of the play in which she is appearing, has resulted in an unusual campaign of promotion.

The Goldwyn exchanges are now holding trade showings of the production, and early reports indicate that the exhibitors are heartily approving the picture. The story is brimming with rapid-fire action, and there is that element of mystery and daring romance which holds such strong fascination for the motion picture public.

Constance Talmadge Enjoys Vacation.

Constance Talmadge started last week on another picture for Select. When she finished "Romance and Arabella," she announced that she would take a short vacation before resuming work. "Romance and Arabella" is now being distributed as a February attraction, however, and Miss Talmadge has returned to the studio.

The name of her forthcoming attraction has not been decided upon, but the photoplay is based on one of last season's most popular Broadway comedies, a vehicle which will provide Miss Talmadge with another of those golden opportunities for displaying her exclusive brand of comedy plus drama acting.

Autographed Photographs of the Drews.

An artistic form of advertising has been inaugurated by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in connection with their new two-reel comedies released by the Famous Players Corporation.

An individual letter was forwarded to one hundred and ten of the more prominent motion picture theatres in the United States, advising them that an original photograph 40 inches by 60 inches, being an intimate subject of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, was being made, and would be forwarded to the theatre autographed by Mr. and Mrs. Drew provided the theatre framed and hung it for permanent display in the lobby.

One hundred and ten replies have been received, and one hundred and eight of these expressed their desire to receive, frame and hang the photograph in their lobby. The other two stated they regretted it was impossible for them to hang the photograph, because there was absolutely no place in their lobby for the picture, but these two requested that they be recipients of the autographed photograph to be hung in the manager's office.

There is no advertisement or any printed matter on the photographs, and they are altogether a personal contribution of the Drews to the management of the various houses receiving them.

Arrow Film Announces Several More Sales

IN addition to the announcement of the large number of sales made by the Arrow Film Corporation on "The Demon's Shadow," a reissued serial, the company announces the disposition of the following productions: "The Finger of Justice," for Illinois, to J. V. Ritchey. Al Rosenthal will represent Mr. Ritchey in the exploitation in Chicago, the picture having already opened at the Band Box for an indefinite run. The four "Allison-Lockwood" five-reel reissues to the Mid-West Distributing Company, of Milwaukee, for the state of Wisconsin. "The Woman's Law," "The Sunset Princess," "Her Aviator" and "Pamela's Past" to Supreme System, Inc., of Minneapolis, for Minnesota, the Dakotas and Wisconsin. "The Finger of Justice," for Brazil, to H. Winik. "The Profiteer," for Illinois and Indiana, to Silee Film Exchange, of Chicago. "The Struggles Everlasting" and "The Accidental Honeymoon," for Colorado, Utah, Nevada and Arizona, to Jos. J. Goodstein, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

"The rapid disposition of these attractions is possibly the best proof of the healthy condition of the state rights market and the activity of Independent buyers in all sections of the country," says Doctor Shallenberg, of Arrow, who states this company will shortly announce the offering of two additional new productions, both of which were made in the West.

"The Brand" a Gripping Rex Beach Story.

In "The Brand," which Samuel Goldwyn will present on March 9, Rex Beach returns once more to the field which is peculiarly his—Alaska.

The picture is quite the most vital, human and thrilling Rex Beach picture that has yet been made. Its powerful, gripping love interest is absolutely devoid of the mawkish, but the characters have an irresistible appeal to the heart-strings of any audience. It is a story of the struggles of strong, violent, but warm-hearted men with the rigors of an austere climate, with each other and with their own passions and frailties. It is a story of the adventure of a pretty, tenderly nurtured girl in the hardships of the frozen North, of what she suffered and of how she won finally and achieved happiness through the compassion and kindness of big Dan McGill.

Reel of Thrillers from "Red Glove."

Director J. P. MacGowan, Marie Walcamp and other members of "The Red Glove" Serial Company returned to Universal City early the present week from filming the sixth and seventh episodes of the latest Universal serial in the mountains.

Universal has had made at its Fort Lee laboratories a special reel which contains many of the thrilling scenes from the first five episodes of "The Red Glove." Copies of this reel will be sent to each Universal Exchange immediately, so that country exhibitors can get a good idea of what the serial is like prior to the arrival of the first prints of the serial at the exchanges.

Francis Ford Entertains.

Many friends and admirers of Francis Ford attended a musicale and dance given in his beautiful home in the West Adams section of Los Angeles recently, in honor of his father and mother, who have just arrived from Portland, Maine, on an extended visit.

No lost copies, no delay, if you send $3 for an annual subscription to Moving Picture World. And you save $4.80 on the transaction.

Convalescent Overseas Heroes Applaud "Made in America"

DOWN at the Embarkation Hospital No. 3, New York, more than a thousand convalescent doughboys nudged each other and grinned and chuckled, occasionally bursting into applause, as they watched "Made in America," flashed upon the screen recently. Through the courtesy of the producer, Ashley Miller, and W. W. Hodkinson, the publisher and distributor, the eight-reel series was given a preshowing in its entirety to the edification of the overseas men.

It is safe to say that the picture will never be shown to a more appreciative audience nor one better qualified to criticise, for everyone of these men had actually lived the experiences so faithfully shown upon the screen.

The overseas men laughed heartily at the grouch of the unwilling draftee, Joe Nelson, and showed warm appreciation at his gradual conversion under the influence of his loyal camp comrades. The movements of the awkward squad, the boisterous outdoor games and all the little sidelights on the doughboys' career were warmly applauded.

When the American soldiers in the practice trench in France hustled on their gas masks as the poisonous vapor rolled over the trench there was much laughter and applause. The serious moments of the picture and the emotional appeal of the dramatic story were followed with an intentness that showed how deeply it struck home to the hearts of these veteran soldiers.

Pre-showing of "Made in America" will be held in several of the large army camps, and the first release date has been fixed for Sunday, February 16.

This Heavy Weighs 340 Pounds.

T. Hayes Hunter, producer and director of "The Border Legion," from Zane Grey's great story, chose some strong and unusual characters to play important roles in the gripping drama of the West starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth, and released through Goldwyn.

His selection of Horace Morgan to act the part of leader of a gang of Rocky Mountain plunderers could not have been improved upon. A hulk of a man—Morgan weighs 340 pounds and stands 6-foot-3—he makes a ferocious looking figure as he thunders out orders to his hirelings over whom he towers. To make his appearance even more terrifying, Gorilla Gulden—that's Morgan's name in the play—wears a beard that covers most of his massive face and lends horror to a pair of beady eyes.

"A Trick of Fate" Miss Barriscale's Latest.

Bessie Barriscale in her newest production, "A Trick of Fate," an Exhibitors' Mutual release, is surrounded by a competent cast of character students.

Joe Swickard must be accredited with one of his ablest performances as Raoul Garson. Alfred Whitman, who as Richard Crane is Miss Barriscale's leading man, is the finished actor in this picture. George Fields as Pierre LaRouge, also takes care of his part in superb manner.

The veteran, Joe Dowling, has little to do as Major Lee, but what little he does he accomplished in his usual artistic manner. Frank Whitson has the unsympathetic role of John Wentworth, but is well cast.

Howard Hickman directed the picture.

Chicago's Riviera Books "Common Clay."

Sales Manager Quimby and Branch Manager Rogers, of Pathe, have closed Balaban and Katz's Riviera Theatre in Chicago on "Common Clay." The picture will show in the Riviera the week of March 2.

A special advertising campaign in the Chicago newspapers is planned by Balaban and Katz. Full pages wil be used in all the papers.

Yes, Olive Thomas Has Begun Work on "Upstairs and Down" for Selznick Pictures, Under Charles Giblyn's Direction.

"The Common Cause" Is Making New Picturegoers

"THE COMMON CAUSE," J. Stuart Blackton's big photodrama, which is being released through Vitagraph, has increased the patronage of picture theatres. A psychological fact just uncovered in connection with the showing of this picture establishes the fact that the cast of stage celebrities which enacts part of the play has attracted to the picture theatres a certain aloof element of theatregoers who have maintained an exclusive interest in the "legitimate" drama.

Followers of Julia Arthur have in instances gazed for the first time with serious interest on a photoplay to see the favorite who, because of the scarcity of her present-day stage appearances and her retirement from "the road," is no longer accessible to them in the frame of the speaking stage.

A considerable stock following, who have been Effie Shannon fans from the day that they saw her in 'knickers or pinafores,' would not miss a performance with Effie Shannon in the cast, be it on stage or screen, and here a quota of new patrons have been won for the screen.

Others who have not usually attended pictures have been swung into line by the appearance of Marjorie Rambeau, Violet Heming and Irene Castle.

"The Common Cause," although it is being extensively shown, seems to see no abatement in demand. A remarkable excess of bookings over the number figured as normal for the period resulted in the past week. Herbert Rawlinson and Sylvia Breamer, who assume leading roles in the drama, have added materially to their reputation by their work in this production.

Neilan Narrowly Escaped Acting.

Mickey Neilan came near being leading man for Olive Thomas in her Selznick Picture, "Upstairs and Down." Myron Selznick was scouring Southern California for a leading man and was up against it. One night at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, in desperation, he put it up to Mickey, who had not, at that time, begun work on his Anita Stewart productions.

Whether it was the fervency of Myron's appeal or the convivial atmosphere of the Athletic Club, Director Neilan promised young Selznick that if he was still without a leading man when he was ready to begin work, he, Neilan, would play the part. At the last minute, however, Gasnier, of Pathe, loaned Robert Ellis, another director who was in charge of the Ruth Roland productions, and Mickey was able to get his release. Ellis will play the same part in "Upstairs and Down" that he did on the stage.

Pathe Review Shows Analysis of Motion.

Pathe Review No. 3, released Feb. 16, shows another marvel of the "analysis of motion." It is called "What the Eye Misses" and is really a continuation of thesis of No. 1, the now celebrated baseball picture.

The Novagraph camera accomplishes these wonderful things. In Review No. 3 it shows a man and woman diving, and through the slow motion the jerky spasmodic actions become a series of graceful movements, which demonstrate the remarkable body control in midair. In travel, beautifully colored views of picturesque France are shown; Raymond L. Ditmars shows a thoroughly amusing and instructive series of pictures, "Some Wading Birds," and "In Sunny Spain" one gets a colorful succession of charming views of places and people.

Issuing Newspaper Serial for "Our Teddy."

The McClure newspaper serial, written by Charles Hanson Towne and Daniel Henderson, and covering episodes pictured in the Roosevelt film, "Our Teddy," is now nearing its completion in large city newspapers. Arrangements have been made with the Tribune Syndicate, which is handling the story, so that the serial can be run concurrently with the newspaper advertising of this authorized Roosevelt film in each locality.

McClure Productions has notified C. L. Yearsley, publicity manager for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, that beginning February 17 the serial will be available to any newspaper throughout the United States, preference in any one town going to that newspaper selected by the branch manager of the First National Exchange.

ROCK SPRING, WYO.—D. T. Gilmore has sold his interest in Oracle and Grand theatres to Thomas Berta.

Problems in American Life Pictured by Ford Weekly

HOW directly the topics pictured in the Ford Educational Weekly are related to the current affairs and interests of the American people is revealed by the fact that within ten weeks Henry Ford's educational release has dealt with the United States Post Office service, the Liberty Motor, the Hog Island shipyards, Mt. Edith Cavell, Canada's "Mountain of Tears"; the story of the nation's great hotel kitchens and the story of steel. Besides these there have been fascinating pictures of the dramatic roles played by great industries in the winning of the world war.

Under Goldwyn distribution, which has made for complete systemization of bookings and the development of the weekly's "reach," more than 3,000 of the more important theatres of the country are now presenting the Ford Educational Weekly. This number will be doubled by May 1, and, in addition, industrial organizations, lodges, farmers' granges, churches, etc., will have their own circuits on this educational.

Frank Keeney Is Satisfied.

"A 22 carat cast" is Frank A. Keeney's opinion of his production of "Marriage For Convenience," which has now reached the screen, with Catherine Calvert as the star. The players represent names of reputation and long identified as favorites. There is not one "Johnny Newcomer," as Miss Calvert has always insisted that a bed-rock cast support all her efforts. She believes that a solid cast helps sustain interest at every turn of the camera crank.

The present cast includes Edward Burns, Anna May, George Majorini, Blanche Davenport and George Pauncefort. E. Lloyd Sheldon wrote "Marriage For Convenience" and the direction was by Sidney Olcott.

Buhler Praises Prizma.

The following letter was received by World Pictures from Frank W. Buhler, managing director of the Stanley and Arcadia theatres in Philadelphia:

"Prizma has made a profound impression on our patrons at the Stanley and Arcadia theatres. You can say to the Prizma Company that they have made an excellent beginning, and, if they continue to improve along the lines laid down by them, Prizma will be the one big find in the motion picture industry."

Jungle Scenes in Pathe Serial.

The Seventh episode of the new Pearl White serial, "The Lightning Raider," scheduled for release February 23, takes the millions of fans who have been closely following the Raider in her maze of adventure to the jungles of Brazil. Lightning and Tom, in their desperate attempt to ascertain the secret of the Ebony Block and foil Wu Fang in his schemes for wrongdoing, have been directed to Calucchi Cave, near the head waters of the Amazon, by a mysterious clue.

Start Work on First DeHaven Comedy.

"What Could Be Sweeter" is the title of the first comedy to be made by Carter De Haven and his wife, Flora Parker (not forgetting the DeHaven kiddies), under their recent contract with the National Film Corporation, whereby their productions will be released through Exhibitors' Mutual. Work on this breezy little newlywed play has been started in the National studios in Hollywood. DeHaven is directing the piece, assisted by Bob McGowan, who also aids in preparing the stories. Harry Fowler is filming the story.

Sennett Still Strong for Thrills.

Thrills are still a component part of Mack Sennett's two-reel comedies. One of the latest and best examples of this is "Never Too Old," which is released by Paramount January 26.

Alice Joyce

Gets some fine points on safe-cracking from her director, Tom Terriss, in a rehearsal for a scene in Vitagraph's big production, "The Lion and the Mouse."

Miss Young's Newest Is "The Better Wife"

WORD from the Pacific Coast has it that the title of the new Clara Kimball Young picture, on which production was begun about a week ago, is "The Better Wife." This is the first picture in which Miss Young will appear as the star under her own business management for independent distribution. The Select Pictures Corporation has been distributing the Clara Kimball Young release for some time under a contract which is now being contested in the courts; according to statements they will not figure in the handling of "The Better Wife."

An examination of the cast which Miss Young has chosen to support her warrants the belief that "The Better Wife" will be well up to the high standard of quality which this popular star has set for herself during the past few years. Migel Barrie, Louis Cody, Anna Q. Nilsson, Little Benny Alexander, Edward M. Kimball, Barbara Tenant, Naomi Childers and Kathryn Williams are among the principals named. The action of the picture takes place in England and at some of the smart watering places on the European Continent, affording opportunity for some strikingly beautiful sets and remarkable costuming.

Fine Views of Zebras in Pathe Review.

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars has recently completed a release for the Pathe Review that shows the zebras and their allies from a new angle. He constructed a high platform and filmed these animals from an elevation, showing the peculiar patterns of their backs.

Some wonderful movie portraits of these animals are included in the scenes and it is significantly remarked that several specimens, with broad and striking markings, at once recall a favorite camouflage design on troopships during the war.

Stage Stars in First "S-L" Picture.

Two celebrated figures appearing in the first "S-L" picture starring E. K. Lincoln and directed by Ralph Ince are Yvette Guilbert and Irene Bordoni. Madame Guilbert and Miss Bordoni will be seen doing the things for what they became famous on the stage. This marks the debut of both of these famous artistes in the movies. The views shown of them are exclusive.

Tom Moore Has Fine Support In "A Man and His Money"

WHEN Tom Moore is seen in his newest picture, "A Man and His Money," by Frederic S. Isham, the young Goldwyn star will be in good screen company.

Chief in his support is Seena Owen, an ideal foil in a comedy-drama of society such as is found in the new play.

Sydney Ainsworth, distinguished on the stage and screen, makes his first appearance in Goldwyn pictures as the superpolished villain. As Walter Randall, he is more like the man he portrayed in "On Trial," one of the notable screen productions enlisting his talents.

Claire DuBrey plays with her accustomed skill the role of a woman of the world who chooses to masquerade as a lady's maid. Another name in the cast will attract attention. It is Sydney Deane, known to playgoers everywhere through his vaudeville sketch, "Christmas Eve on Blackwell's Island."

Kate Lester, too, is a favorite artiste. Edwin Sturgis, seen in many Goldwyn pictures, has an outstanding role in "A Man and His Money."

Third Bessie Love Picture Announced.

On March 10 Vitagraph will release another Bessie Love picture, her third since coming under the management of that organization. "The Wishing Ring Man" is the title of her new play, and it deals with a romance of childhood.

The film is adapted from a book of that name by Margaret Widdemer. Miss Love has been surrounded with a strong cast, included in which is J. Frank Glendon in the role of the young doctor, with the other principal roles distributed among Jean Hathaway, Claire DuBrey, Truman Van Dyke, Willis Marks, Alberta Lee, Dorothy Hagan, Colin Kenny and Master Karl Ehrlinger. David Smith is directing the picture.

Popularity of William Farnum Growing.

Because of the great success which has attended "Riders of the Purple Sage," "Les Miserables," "The Rainbow Trail" and "For Freedom," the popularity of William Farnum, it is stated in an announcement from the William Fox offices, is now greater than ever before in his career, and his pictures are booking more heavily than ever, this popularity being especially shown in the heavy bookings for "The Man Hunter," Farnum's next release.

"The Man Hunter," which promises to be one of his greatest successes, tells a story of great power, and has an abundance of highly dramatic scenes. Three of those scenes are among the strongest ever shown on the screen—one in particular, which shows him fighting with a man on the edge of a cliff that overlooks the sea, being packed with thrills.

Story Secured for Next Lincoln Film.

The second starring vehicle in which E. K. Lincoln will appear is now being selected by the Sawyer-Lubin organization. One of the most widely read stories of the present day has been purchased. The leading character is said to fit the screen personality of Lincoln perfectly. The picturization will be done under the personal direction of Ralph Ince, responsible for the initial "S-L" feature.

Billy West Starts Fourth Film.

Billy West has started work on his fourth comedy for Bull's Eye. It will be called "The Chauffeur." His first three pictures, "He's in Again," "A Rolling Stone" and "Ship Ahoy!" have been pronounced as the best work he has done for the screen. Director Charles Parrott has things running smoothly, and at times Billy West works on two pictures at once.

Putting Society Atmosphere in Pathe's Chambers Serial

IT is obvious to all serial fans that there must be a new sort of atmosphere in a Robert W. Chambers serial, and Director George B. Seitz, who is producing "In Secret," the new Pearl White serial by this author, is busily engaged in his task of preparing the proper environment for the Chambers characters. Mr. Chambers' types are not of the sort hitherto associated with serials. They are of the drawing room, the hunt club and the verandas at Palm Beach and Bar Harbor, and they will unquestionably come as a welcome surprise to the serial fan who has become more or less accustomed to denizens of the underworld as the weavers of action in his continued pictures.

Hence, it was not surprising that Director Seitz took his company to the Meadowbrook Hunt Club on Long Island and photographed many scenes with this famous rendezvous of society as a background. The mansion of a millionaire in New Jersey has also been photographed.

One of the important interior scenes in the first episode will show how high society revels at its own functions, and a ball room setting of great magnificence was built especially for this. Dorothy Ward, one of the principal dancers in "The Betrothal," the production now running at the Century Theatre, was especially engaged to do the solo dances in this scene.

W. W. Hodkinson to Release "The Forfeit" March 10

THE W. W. Hodkinson Corporation announces the release on March 10 of "The Forfeit," a Frank Powell production co-starring House Peters and Jane Miller. Adapted from Ridgewell Cullom's novel, "The Forfeit" is a virile story of the Southern cattle country.

Mr. Peters plays the role of a ranch owner who marries a widow and later finds that she was not only the wife of his brother, but it was she who betrayed him, resulting in his being hanged as a cattle thief. The role is a dramatic one, replete with pathos, and Mr. Peters plays it in his usual sympathetic vein.

Jane Miller is the wife who had no knowledge that her first husband was a cattle thief when she reported the hiding place of the notorious gang of rustlers. Miss Miller is a new personality in stardom, and her work in this production will undoubtedly make her many friends.

"The Forfeit" was staged near San Antonio, Tex., in the country where the action of the story takes place. The King ranch, the largest in the world, was used for exterior locations.

In support of the stars are William Human as the weak younger brother, Hector V. Sarno as the chief cattle rustler, L. H. Welles as the ranchman, Blanche Abbott as the ingenue and George Murdock.

To Take Snow Scenes in Bear Valley.

Anna Q. Nilsson and her supporting company will go to Bear Valley to "shoot" some more snow scenes for Metro's "The Way of the Strong." It is to be the company's second trip from balmy Hollywood to California's snow regions, the first one having been in Truckee. Additional mountain shots not obtainable at Truckee are needed for the picture, which has the gold fields of the Yukon as a background for part of the story.

Prominent among the players surrounding Miss Nilsson are Joe King, Harry S. Northrup and little Irene Yeager. "The Way of the Strong" is from the novel by Ridgewell Cullum. It was adapted for the screen by June Mathis and Finis Fox in collaboration.

George Thomas Gets a Lift.

George runs the Iris Theatre in Rigby, Idaho, but sometimes he takes a vacation. Recently on such a trip he encountered Earl Montgomery and Joe Rock, Vitagraph's Big V comedians, working on location at Santa Monica, and inasmuch as Mr. Thomas has been playing Vitagraph Comedies since their inception, Montgomery and Rock greeted him like old friends and made him feel at home.

To Feature Alice Joyce In Another Klein Play

ALICE JOYCE, who has just completed her work as Shirley Rossmore, Vitagraph's heroine of "The Lion and the Mouse," the Charles Klein play, is to bring to the screen another heroine drawn by the same author.

Plans are now being perfected for Miss Joyce to produce "The Third Degree," a Klein drama.

"The Third Degree," at the time of its metropolitan premiere in New York, evoked this criticism from one of the most discriminating reviewers present: "Mr. Klein has given us a number of good plays, but in many respects this is the best he has written." Box office returns, if one so judges a play, at the end of the season showed that the above-mentioned critic had been more than safely conservative.

Every ounce and ampere of dramatic strength and dynamic power inherent in the play is to be not only sustained but strengthened in the picturization of the Klein success, according to the pledge given by Vitagraph. To achieve this mark the company, aside of the evident asset it has in Miss Joyce, points to the direction of Tom Terriss, who has artistic control of all the Joyce productions, and the supporting cast which is to be provided.

Jack Pickford Selects Liebe Story.

As his second photoplay to be produced for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, the Jack Pickford Company has secured a short story by Hapsburg Liebe, which will offer Pickford the role of a young Georgia mountaineer.

Harvey F. Thew, who wrote the scenario of "Seventeen," from Booth Tarkington's novel, is adapting Hapsburg Liebe's story for the screen. James Kirkwood will direct the next Pickford production, which will probably take the company to a distant mountain location.

Baby Marie Osborne Heads Pathe Program for Feb. 23

PATHE'S program for the week of February 23 is headed by Baby Marie Osborne in "The Old Maid's Baby." The little star plays the part of a child of the circus, and is one of the actors in the scene of a spectacular balloon ascension, and the terrible accident in mid-air which makes her an orphan.

It is an unusual story, full of appealing touches, of laughs and sunny good nature, and of real dramatic feeling. The picture is a five-reel Pathe Program Feature, written by Agnes C. Johnston. It was directed by William Bertram.

One of the briskest of the Harold Lloyd comedies is called "On the Fire," which is a real laugh-making, exuberant satire on the way millions of Americans take their sustenance.

"The Case of Dread" is the title of the eighth episode of "The Lightning Raider," in which Pearl White, staggering from the underground terror, has an escape from a pool of crocodiles. This is just one of the thrills in this episode which is crowded with perils.

Betty Compson, out in the great West, with George Larkin, her hero, goes through some pictorially perilous stunts in the fourth episode of the Diando Serial, "The Terror of the Range." This episode is called "The Midnight Raid."

"The Unpardonable Sin" Shown Privately Here

THE first print of "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blanche Sweet, under the direction of Marshal Nielan, arrived in New York City February 8. Since that time a few people in the East who are interested in the plan which has been laid out for marketing the big production have seen it and have confirmed earlier statements which came on from the Coast before the picture arrived in New York.

These opinions are in effect that "The Unpardonable Sin" is one of the really big pictures and among the best directed picture which has recently been turned out. Just how these statements will check up with the opinions of the reviewers when they see it in the near future will be interesting to observe.

The print was brought on from Los Angeles by Herbert Sonborn, a member of the Harry I. Garson producing organization, and arrived on the Twentieth Century about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Before 11:30, the same morning, W. H. Rudolph, Mr. Garson's Eastern representative, had it on the screen in the Miles' projection room and another group of people saw it that afternoon. Announcements as to just how the picture is to be handled are expected in the very near future.

His Mistake and "Her Mistake."

Max Shagrin, who owns and manages the Orpheum Theatre, Youngstown, O., has been confronted with the same problem that has confronted many managers who have had attractions that outdraw their house capacity. Last week Mr. Shagrin played "Her Mistake," starring Evelyn Nesbit and her son Russell Thaw, which is being released on the Independent Sales Corporation's plan.

Judging from his wire to Charles F. Schwerin, the branch manager of the Indepedent Sales Corporation, Detroit, he learned his mistake was that in building his theatre he neglected to provide enough seats to accommodate his patrons during the run of "Her Mistake."

Hilbert Praises Cameragraphs.

Jack Hilbert, of Local 306, New York, is supervisor of the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Dix. A letter from him states that nine Cameragraphs have been in constant use without giving the slightest trouble.

Among Independent Producers

Conducted by C. S. SEWELL

Initial "S-L" Picture Is Titled "Virtuous Men"

ARTHUR H. SAWYER and Herbert Lubin, of "S-L" Pictures, announce that the title of the first Ralph Ince film attraction starring E. K. Lincoln will be "Virtuous Men." This title is said to have been selected after weeks of careful deliberation, keeping in mind the requirements of exhibitors, together with the factor of box office value and public interest.

In speaking of this unusual name, Herbert Lubin said: "Many superior productions have failed to attract the patronage they deserve because of the weakness of their titles. We feel that with the title 'Virtuous Men' we have helped the exhibitor by providing a name that will arouse discussion and comment and attract the attention of all. 'Virtuous Men' possesses unusual advertising possibilities. It will stand out either in electric lights or on posters. From all angles it gives the exhibitor the necessary commercial value. After the picture has been presented, motion picture patrons will appreciate the suitability of the title."

"Virtuous Men" is now in the final processes of cutting and titling. It was personally directed by Ralph Ince, and will be ready for the market in the near future.

M. H. Hoffman, of Pioneer, Tells Company's Plans

THE reorganization of the Pioneer Film Corporation means that new methods will be brought into play and several important changes made in the manner in which state rights pictures will be marketed by the company," says M. H. Hoffman, the new general manager of the organization. "There is a great opportunity for the independent producer, and it is for that reason that the Pioneer Company has placed itself on record as being anxious to open negotiations with men who have big features to sell. In short, it is in the market to buy the biggest and best features available."

Mr. Hoffman further states that while this organization will continue to operate on the state rights market through independent exchanges, in certain territories branch offices of the company will be opened for the handling of the company's product so that country-wide distribution to the exhibitors will be secured. "The old policy of the company still holds good," says Mr. Hoffman, "and it will continue to market money-making features as in the past, and within a short time several important announcements regarding features and other matters of interest will be made."

Arrow to Handle "Power," Featuring Holbrook Blinn

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that the five-part picture, "Power," featuring Holbrook Blinn, produced some months ago, but never placed on the market, will be state righted by the Arrow Film Corporation.

"Power" is said to be a thrilling story of love, political intrigue and gambling. Holbrook Blinn has the part of Ted Harrigan, political boss, who holds the destinies of a city in his hand. When Harrigan is aroused he is a fighter, and, although the odds are against him at the start, he overcomes his enemies and sees his daughter married to the son of the man who is trying to break his power.

As he needed somebody to protect his gambling interests, he nominated and elected Bill Shaunessy mayor. As soon as Shaunessy was elected, however, he entered into a private deal with the president of a railroad to sell the city's property. Harrigan didn't approve of the deal, and then commenced what is claimed to be one of the strongest fights that has ever been staged.

The Modern Feature Film Company has the New York rights, and the New England territory has been acquired by the American Feature Film Company.

Bert Hall Will Take Film by Air for Special Showing

RATHER a novel idea for rapid film delivery has been worked out by Frank Hall, of the Independent Sales Corporation, in connection with the Bert Hall feature, "A Romance of the Air." At the close of the special run in Chicago, where this production is now being shown, it is announced that Lieutenant Hall, who is a well known American "Ace," will make an aerial flight from Chicago to Minneapolis, where it will open at Grossman's Standard Theatre, and will carry the films in his airplane, arriving in the latter city on the date of the opening.

Following the policy announced in connection with the Chicago and Boston showings, Lieutenant Hall will make personal appearances in connection with the production, telling of his experiences, and the proposition is being considered of having him make additional aerial trips at the opening of special runs on this production, taking the films with him from one city to the next.

On account of the heavy demand for bookings, the Independent Sales Corporation announces, as no other showings are made in any territory until after the special inaugural run, that the length of these runs may be confined to one or two weeks in order that the exhibitors who have booked the production may be enabled to have earlier openings and secure the full benefit of the novel publicity brought about through Lieutenant Hall's appearances in person.

Excellent Cast in First Alpha Film.

Mabel Julienne Scott and Niles Welch are said to have done some of the best work of their careers in the Harry MacRea Webster production, "Reclaimed," which is being state righted by Alpha Pictures Corporation, and it is claimed that this picture, which has been recut and retitled, and is now in its finished state, will be a surprise to every one. There is excellent photography in this production, and the stars are supported by a well balanced cast, including Anders Randolf, Mabel Wright, Fred Peters, Warren Cook, Sidney Bracey and little Bobbie Connelly.

Fine Press Book for Webster Film.

An attractive press book, together with an excellent line of lithographs and several advertising novelties, including a fine set of post cards with photographic scenes from the production, has been prepared by Alpha Pictures Corporation on "Reclaimed," the Harry MacRae Webster production starring Niles Welch and Mabel Julienne Scott, which the Alpha Pictures Corporation is distributing on a state rights basis.

Maurice Tourneur Preparing to Take the Stock Exchange Scene in "The White Heather."

Trade Showing for Alpha's "Reclaimed."

The Harry MacRea Webster production, "Reclaimed," starring Mabel Julienne Scott and Niles Welch, which is being state righted by Alpha Pictures, Inc., a newly formed organization, will be given a trade showing on Wednesday, February 19, at 2:30 p. m., at Loew's New York Roof.

Many Bookings Secured on Latest Graphic Film

REPORTS from the Graphic Film Corporation indicate that great interest is being manifested by exhibitors in Ivan Abramson's latest production, and which is claimed to be his best, "The Echo of Youth," particularly among those who have exhibited Mr. Abramson's previous subjects "Moral Suicide," "When Men Betray," and "Ashes of Love."

The first bookings for "The Echo of Youth" began with a two weeks' showing in David V. Picker's houses in the Bronx, New York, simultaneously with a week at the Symphony Theatre, Broadway and Ninety-fifth street, also a week at the Mt. Morris and Majestic Theatre, and the prices paid are said to be the largest for first runs on any Abramson production.

Several bookings have also been made in Brooklyn, while northern New Jersey rights have been secured by the New York Rolfe Company. Charles Richman, Leah Baird and Pearl Shepard are featured in this production, with Marie Shotwell, Jack McLean, Howard Hall, Peggy Shaner and William Bechtel as associate players.

McAdoo Move Recalls Perret Suggestion.

In connection with the recent announcement that the former Secretary of the Treasury and Director General of Railroads would be general counsel for the United Artists' Association, composed of high salaried film stars, Leonce Perret calls attention to a letter which he addressed to Mr. McAdoo on December 9 calling attention to rumors of just such a combination, and suggesting that he turn his thoughts toward the motion picture field and consider becoming associated with this industry. At that time, however, Mr. McAdoo was not inclined to consider the suggestion favorably, as indicated in a reply received by Mr. Perret dated December 23.

"As a Man Thinks" to Be First Four Star Feature

NOW that the organization plans of the new company formed to produce the Four Star Series of features, starring Leah Baird are completed, work is being pushed on the first of the six box-office attractions. Under the supervision of Harry Raver, a spectacular offering, to appeal to the class of exhibitors who participated with him in the profits on "Cabiria," is being molded into picture form.

George Irving, who lately finished the Artcraft Special, "The Silver King," with William Faversham, is the director whose name furnishes one quarter of the Four Star ensemble. The Biograph Studio has been leased in order to ensure the big, beautiful and massive effects called for by the locale of the story.

For the first of the six Augustus Thomas plays starring Miss Baird, the successful Broadway play, "As A Man Thinks," is to be screened. The original play ran at the 39th Street Theatre, New York City, for many months—the cast including such stage and screen celebrities as John Mason, Crystal Hearn, Vincent Serrano, and Gail Kane.

In the screen version the beauty of Miss Baird will have a magnificent setting, cast as it is amid striking scenes depicting the Quartz Art Ball in Paris, the Art exhibitions of Fifth Avenue, and the simulated surroundings of the millionaire publisher whose escapade in Paris formed the basis of the original plot. Some of the works of art and sculpture secured for use in the picture are each in themselves worth a small fortune, and were obtained through the personal friendship of the owners with Augustus Thomas.

Vincent Bryan to Write Stories for Billy West

Milton L. Cohen, president of Bull's Eye Film Corporation, announces that Vincent Bryan, who has written the stories for some of the best Chaplin and Arbuckle films, has been engaged to write a series of two-reel comedies for Billy West.

Mr. Bryan gained a reputation in various theatrical lines even before entering the film business. He is the author of several plays and librettos, songs and vaudeville acts for the stage and also toured the country with some of the big minstrel shows and musical companies. For Keystone, he wrote "A Favorite Fool." For Essanay, "Carmen" and "Police." For Lone Star (Chaplin), he wrote "The Floorwalker," "The Fireman," "The Vagabond," "One A. M.," "The Count," etc.

Miss Cassinelli to Appear in Many Photoplay Houses

DOLORES CASSINELLI, star of the Leonce Perret productions "Stars of Glory" and "A Soul Adrift," is planning an extensive tour of the United States and Canada. She will visit many of the larger cities and make personal appearances in a number of the leading motion picture theatres. Adolphe Osso, Miss Cassinelli's representative announced that she will be preceded by an advance agent to make necessary arrangements for a novel and appropriate reception in each city.

The cutting and titling of "Stars of Glory" is now complete and "A Soul Adrift" is nearly so, and a definite announcement of the releasing medium of these productions will be made within the near future. Miss Cassinelli's appearance in the theatres will be in connection with the showing of either or both of these productions.

Sherrill's Two Reelers May Be Filmed in Texas

PREPARATIONS are under way by the Frohman Amusement Corporation for the production of the recently announced series of twenty-six two reel Western dramas starring Texas Guinan. The first five stories have been purchased and are now being transferred to scenario form, and other plans are complete with the exception of choosing a place of production. It was originally determined to locate in southern California, but since announcement of the fact that the Frohman organization were planning to make this series, the Chamber of Commerce located in various cities in Colorado, Texas and Florida have been urging that the studio be established in their respective localities. The merits of all these localities are being considered particularly as to climatic conditions, variety of scenery, accessibility and ability to furnish local talent necessary.

W. L. Sherrill, President of the company, leaves for Texas during the coming week to visit San Antonio and El Paso, returning via Miami and Jacksonville, Florida. "I am impressed with the merits of San Antonio," says Mr. Sherrill, "as a producing point for Western subjects; while it is true that locations, local atmosphere, cowboys, cattle, etc., are found in southern California, San Antonio has possibly two advantages; it is practically virgin territory from a motion picture standpoint, with locations that have probably never been filmed; then too, there are more working hours and the actinic value of the light should give us almost stereoscopic photography. The mountains, plains and gorges and an artificial lake as large as Lake George, New York, lend themselves to Western attractions. Also, the cosmopolitan population of San Antonio, and varied character of the buildings is an added argument."

Much Interest Shown in "Reclaimed."

Alpha Pictures Corporation report the receipt of a large number of inquiries from exhibitors and exchange men throughout the country on the Harry MacRae Webster production, "Reclaimed," which they are distributing. This picture, which is now ready for release, has been given a final O. K. by the director, who advises that it will not only be a great attraction for the public, but will please exhibitors as well.

Massive Set Constructed for First S-L Picture, "Virtuous Men."

Sales Manager Card to Make Countrywide Trip

LYNN S. CARD, sales manager of the Independent Sales Corporation, left New York Sunday for a month's trip in the interests of his company. During this time he will practically cover the entire United States, visiting each of the eighteen cities where the Independent Sales Corporation and the Film Clearing House maintain units.

Before leaving, Mr. Card stated: "I am delighted with the results our branch managers have obtained; in fact, the number of contracts secured for the Independent's '10-20-30' series and the specials, 'Wanted for Murder' and 'A Romance of the Air,' has far exceeded my expectations.

"The object of my trip is to thoroughly acquaint branch managers with very important deals the Independent Sales Corporation has recently consummated, one of which is the handling of the new Rothapfel Pictures Corporation's productions, of which S. L. Rothapfel is president, through the Independent Sales Corporation and the Film Clearing House.

"The entrance of Mr. Rothapfel into the production field marks a new era in the industry, for Mr. Rothapfel plans to give the exhibitor a 'unit program,' including a dramatic feature picture, comedy, scenic and news or magazine films, together with complete musical scores, lighting effects, incidental numbers and all that goes to complete a picture theatre entertainment. In other words, Mr. Rothapfel is going to put into concrete form the ideas that he successfully employed at the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York. There will be six of these Rothapfel 'unit programs' produced this year, and, as they are special attractions for the better theatres, the method of booking them will be different from the booking of single features.

"As soon as the news that Mr. Rothapfel would market his productions through the 'Independent' reached our branch managers, then enthusiasm became immediately manifest by a number of wires they sent into the hom office making inquiry as to release dates, contract forms, etc."

Nelson Film Will Be Distributed by Arrow

ANOTHER recent Arrow acquisition announced by Mr. Shallenberger is "The Mysterious Mr. Browning," a five-reel picture featuring a cast of old favorites headed by Walter Miller, Paul Panzer and Edna Mason. It will be released on the state rights plan, and is fresh from a week's run at the Washington Theatre, Detroit. Geo. W. Trendle, secretary and general manager for John H. Kunsky, the owner of this house, as well as a string of Michigan exchanges and theatres, writes that the management, "Was thoroughly satisfied with the business done by the production, and, aside from that, want to compliment you upon the excellent cast you have chosen, the direction and the settings."

The story is a detective-mystery story, as the title would indicate, and is said to hold the spectator's interest until the last foot of film has been flashed. It deals with the dual personality of one Red Harrigan, a leader of fashion by day and a leader of outlaws by night.

Lincoln in "Virtuous Men" Enacts Hazardous Scenes

E. K. LINCOLN, star of "Virtuous Men," the forthcoming Ralph Ince film attraction, was called up not do many hazardous scenes during the production of the picture. The story, a society melodrama, contains many spectacular scenes laid in the lumber forests of the Northwest. A forest fire, in which the torch was laid by director Ralph Ince to a tract of land embracing hundreds of huge trees, required Lincoln, in the role of the hero, to lead a brigade of fire fighters against the flaming forest. The star declined an offer to have a lumberjack "double" for him. In company with Danny Hayes, who interprets the role of "Hick Hogan," and a band of real lumberjacks, Mr. Lincoln led the attack on the burning forest, while a battery of six cameras secured realistic scenes.

While enacting these scenes the star is said to have been in danger from the fast moving flames and to have suffered painful burns. Spectacular and impressive results were secured.

"Virtuous Men" will be presented to the exhibitors of the country as a special screen entertainment, and is claimed to be worthy of distinctive exploitation and an increased scale of admission prices.

Majority of Territory Sold on Reissued Serial

IN view of the demonstrated demand existing for reissued two-reel productions, the Arrow Film Corporation decided to go one step further, and, when all prints of the "Twenty Million Dollar Mystery" were withdrawn from the market, Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, president of Arrow, suggested to his associates that the action of the original production be concentrated in twenty reels instead of forty and the serial be reissued in ten episodes at a figure which would result in a profit for both exchange men and exhibitors.

That this innovation has "taken hold" is shown by the announcement now made by Arrow that approximately seventy-five per cent. of the world market, including the United States, has already been disposed of on the revised serial titled "The Demon's Shadow," the following domestic exchanges being among those distributing this production: Merit Film Company, New York; Quaker City Feature Film Company, Philadelphia; Variety Pictures, Baltimore; Sipe Film Company, Atlanta; Day Film Company, Pittsburgh; Federal Feature Film Company, Boston, and Al osenthal, Chicago.

Release date for the first episode has been set for March 1, and a three weeks' preliminary exploitation campaign is being conducted by exchanges handling this subject.

State Rights Sales Reported This Week

HARRY RAPF announced the sale of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico rights to Joseph Goodstein, of Denver, for "The Struggle Everlasting," starring Florence Reed and "The Accidental Honeymoon" with Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein.

* * *

Rights to the series of thirty-two Unique comedies for Kentucky and Tennessee have been sold to the Arrow Film Corporation to the Big Feature Rights Company of Louisville.

* * *

Superior Film Exchange, Inc., 1331 Vine street, Philadelphia, announces that it has secured the eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey rights to "Spanuth's Original Vod-a-vil Movies," which will be released one each week commencing March 1.

* * *

Arrow Film Corporation announces the sale of considerable territory of the reissued serial "The Demon's Shadow," and other attractions, in another article in this issue.

First Gale Henry Comedy Completed.

The first of the comedies to be made by Gale Henry has been completed at the Bull's Eye Film Corporation's studios in Hollywood, and as soon as the work of cutting and titling has been completed, Nat Spitzer, the studio manager, will announce the title to the New York office. Miss Henry is now at work on her second Bull's Eye comedy.

Ford Serial Doing Big Business.

The Francis Ford Film Company reports that exhibitors all over the country state the latest Ford Serial "The Silent Mystery," is proving to be a box-office winner and that it is the most exciting and mysterious of the serials in which Mr. Ford has appeared.

Charles Schwerin Now a Proud Papa.

The many friends of Charles F. Schwerin, who for a number of years has been identified in the state rights field, and who is now branch sales manager at Cleveland for the Independent Sales Corporation, will be interested in the news that he is now the happy father of a baby boy, born February 4.

Both Mrs. Schwerin and Master Schwerin are progressing nicely, and will soon be able to leave New York, where they are at present, for their home in Cleveland.

Picture Theatres Projected

BLYTHEVILLE, ARK.—Auditorium and theatre building will be erected by Blytheville Auditorium Company.

HARTFORD, CONN.—E. Z. Poli plans to build a new quarter-million dollar theatre to replace his old vaudeville house, with seating capacity for 3,000. Construction work will be started early next spring.

WATERBURY, CONN.—Harold R. Durant is interested in project to erect theatre here.

TAMPA, FLA.—Florida Theatre Circuit has been incorporated with $5,000 capital by John F. Robinson, Maud L. Robinson and Burton Mank.

DUBLIN, GA.—Frank Lawson is interested in project to erect theatre here, with seating capacity for 1,800 people.

BENTON, ILL. — Benton Amusement Company has been incorporated with $12,000 capital by George D. Colovos and W. C. Ladwig.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Morrison Theatre Company has been incorporated with $100,000 capital.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Ascher Brothers, 220 South State street, have purchased site at 92nd and Commercial avenue upon which to erect a $250,000 theatre.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Walter Ahlchlager, 111 West Washington street, is preparing plans for a $275,000 theatre and store building for A. E. Whitbeck.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Albert Anis, 155 North Clark street, is preparing plans for a three-story theatre, office and store building for Alexander Flower, 1635 South Franklin street.

MARION, ILL.—Harry Bracy is having plans prepared for modern moving picture theatre.

SAN JOSE, ILL.—Princess Theatre, recently destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt in spring.

SOUTH PEKIN, ILL.—M. McDonnell plans to erect moving picture theatre here.

WOODSTOCK, ILL.—New theatre will be erected on Main street by C. W. Ritt.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Saenger Theatre Company has leased Liberty Theatre.

SOUTH BEND, IND.—J. Handelsman, care Kimball Piano Company, 308 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, and Charles E. Potts, care Inland Steel Mills, Indiana Harbor, Ind., have plans by C. W. and G. L. Rapp, 69 West Washington Street, Chicago, for two-story theatre and store building, 100 by 165 feet, to cost $300,000. Theatre will be known as the Blackstone.

DUBUQUE, IA.—Louis Truchler has plans by Thomas J. Carkeek, Lincoln Building, for remodeling theatre building.

Reviews and Advertising Aids

Conducted by Edward Weitzel, Associate Editor Moving Picture World

Sidelights and Reflections

THE picture that is generally referred to as "very good," in a tone of calm satisfaction, is anything but that. If a certain portion of its public does not pronounce it "Great"—it isn't.

Our critical friend, "The Author's League Bulletin," continues to say caustic things about the moving picture. In a recent number it poked fun at some of the stressful "Art captions" and gave an example that came within ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent. of proving its case. Subtitles sometimes come under the Widow Murphy's definition: "Language in bunches."

Has anyone ever considered the feasibility of making two versions of the same picture? The screen's public is so extensive and takes in such a variety of tastes and grades of culture. There are many worthy but poorly educated persons, especially among those who do not speak the English language fluently or at all, who have difficulty in following a story that seems slow and overloaded with explanation to keen and well cultivated minds.

Referring to the cry which goes up frequently against using what is termed "worn-out situations and motives," also to the contention of the overseer of this department that greater technical skill in the handling of well tried and valuable material is the solution of the problem, it is pertinent to call attention to the deduction of a writer in The Drama: "A thousand authors have written plays or novels with forgery as the basic motive of the plot; but it takes an Ibsen to conceive a 'Doll's House.'"

No one ever thinks about the age of the material in a photoplay if it reflects a phase of life which is still vital and the interest is properly sustained.

A picture which had the benefit of a well-known star, competent cast and intelligent direction of the material furnished by the scenario was criticised in this publication for the lack of mechanical skill in its plot building. Its press sheet showed how the story had been changed from the original scenario in an attempt to inject a clearly defined main motive. The mistake was made, in the first place, of trying to fashion a five-part picture from a book whose theme barely carried into the second reel. The result was a disjointed structure that neither convinced nor entertained. Had it conformed to the plainest rules of drama and showman's logic it would have ranked among the star's best pictures.

Its plot was not scenario proof.

WEITZEL.

IN THIS ISSUE.

Happy Though Married (Paramount).
Out of the Fog (Nazamova-Metro).
Shadows (Goldwyn).
A Trick of Fate (Exhibitors Mutual).
Where the West Begins (Pathe-American).
The Moral Deadline (World).
Made in America (Hodkinson-Miller)
The Lion and The Mouse (Vitagraph).
The Sealed Envelope (Universal).
Breezy Jim (Triangle).
The Love Auction (Fox).
Child of M'Sieu (Triangle).
As the Sun Went Down (Metro).
In For Thirty Days (Metro).
Maggie Pepper (Paramount).

"HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED."

Ince-Paramount Picture with Enid Bennett Is a Comedy of Extraordinary Merit.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE Ince-Paramount Picture, "Happy Though Married," is among the most brilliant achievements of the screen. In some respects it stands in a class by itself. The original story was written by Lois and Arthur Zellner, and adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan. It is a comedy that resembles in its technical perfection the works of the leading stage playwrights. Commencing quietly it gives no indication of the extraordinary merit employed in its construction. Apparently the spectator is going to see a pleasant enough little story about a domestic triangle that is more amusing than tragic. Events move along at the standard screen comedy pace up to a certain point and then commence to gather speed. There is no forced physical action, but the preparation for the race down the homestretch has been handled with such uncommon cleverness that not the slightest resentment is felt when an unexpected character dashes to the fore and comes down the last quarter, neck and neck with the favorite.

There is no halting in the straight away sweep of the story, no going back to pick up a forgotten connection or work in one of those make-shift bits of padding which are the "first aids" of the scenarist who cares little and knows less about the law of climax and the art which made illustrious the foremost dramatists of the world. Story writers, scenarist and director have all shared in the skillful making of the comedy.

Your pardon, Mr. Exhibitor, for taking up so much space with the technical side of the picture, but "Happy Though Married" is destined to influence for the better the future grade of screen comedy. All classes of patrons are going to endorse the picture and realize it is something new and refreshingly clever. Clean, humorous and human and capitally acted it is full of delightful surprises and agreeable thrills. There is nothing superior to its intelligent fun, and the naturalness of the misunderstanding between the two brides that occurs when one brother brings his Mexican wife to visit the other brother's wife and the brides find themselves alone in the American wife's home. Neither of them can understand the other's language, but that does not prevent them from giving each other a tongue lashing when the blonde beauty imagines the handsome brunette has stolen her husband's affection and the dark sister-in-law believes that the light sister-in-law has sneaked into the house to rob her of her jewels. The scene where the two enraged women stand glaring at each other, realize—both at the same instant—their ludicrous mistake and fall into each other's arms is a wonderfully effective climax. C. Gardner Sullivan has lead up to this situation in a masterly manner.

Enid Bennett as Millicent Lee makes her stage husband a much-to-be envied man. The part is in line with her best acting skill. Vola Vale shared even honors with her and their strongly contrasted loveliness is a credit to themselves and to the good judgment of their directors in having them in the same cast. Douglas McLean and Hal Cooley as the two bridegrooms, Philo McCullough as the chap who starts the game of cross purposes and Lydia Yeamans Titus as Millicent's aunt are excellent selections.

Cast.

Millicent Lee.....Enid Bennett
Stanley Montjoy.....Douglas MacLean
Bob Davis.....Philo McCullough
Jim Montjoy.....Hal Cooley
Diana Ramon.....Vola Vale
Aunt Mattie.....Lydia Yeamans Titus

Story by Lois and Arthur Zellner.
Scenario by C. Gardner Sullivan.
Directed by Fred Niblo.

The Story.

Stanley Montjoy and his brother Jim go to Mexico to make their fortune. Stanley is engaged to Millicent Lee. Jim falls in love with Diana Ramon, a Mexican girl. A snap shot he takes of her gets into the pocket of Stanley's coat. The brothers have a mining claim which Diana's uncle wants to buy. Jim stays in Mexico to look after the property, while Stanley comes to New York to see if he can't get a better price. Once there he finds that Bob Davis is trying to cut him out, so he marries Millicent without delay. By way of a joke he gives his wife a book called "How to Be Happy Though Married," which puts all sorts of jealous notions in her head. She finds Diana's picture in Stanley's coat, pretends to go away on a visit and returns to the house to discover her husband bringing the original of the photograph into the house and installing her in one of the bedrooms. Jim, who has eloped with his Mexican charmer, has stopped down town to buy a suit of clothes. Stanley leaves the house without knowing his wife is there, the two women meet, cannot understand each other and there are lively doings in the Montjoy home until the husbands arrive and explain.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Married or Single There Is Enjoyment for All in This Latest Paramount Photoplay.

Family Quarrels Based on Jealousy and Misunderstanding Rend the Happiness of Two Homes.

Enid Bennett Star of Latest Paramount Photoplay Sets Example for Both Married and Single.

Suspicious Bride and Cynical Husband Make Heaps of Trouble Out of Whole Cloth.

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Bennett. Make a strong appeal with the title. Get some cheap blank books or a four-page folder and letter the cover, "How to be 'Happy Though Married'," add the house name. On the first page of the book or on the third page of the folder print, "See Enid Bennett and learn how. Date." Advertise before you start to advertise the title that these books will be given as souvenirs on a certain night. Treat it seriously and profit by the joke. Have a happily married night, when all happy couples who attend the play are requested to wear white ribbons. Play it up like a function. You can make a lot of capital in a small town.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released February 2.

"OUT OF THE FOG."

Strong Characterization by Nazimova Augments Powerful Story Released Through Metro.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

TAKEN from the stage drama by H. Austin Adams, "Out of the Fog" brings an unusual theme to the screen. Its chief merit is to furnish Nazimova with two contrasting characterizations, each of great power. This fine actress, whose temperament and training enable her to strike the tragic note that dominates the first scenes of the story and to give the remaining situations the combination of light-hearted youth and pathetic innocence required, has never done anything better in an artistic way. Aside from the novelty of the plot, the spectator is treated to a picture that is directed at his heart and his brains and reaches both its marks.

In the stage version, "'Ception Shoals," the end was tragic. "Out of the Fog" does not permit a stern old fanatic to drive a blameless young girl to suicide in expiation of her mother's sin, but permits her to find happiness with the man she loves. The production is generally of a high order, the scenes around a lonely lighthouse of the coast of Florida being impressive. Charles Bryant as Philip Blake, Henry Harmon as Job Coffin and Nancy Palmer as Maude Standish sustain their characters with exceptional skill.

Cast.

Eve, Faith ..... Mme. Nazimova
Philip Blake ..... Charles Bryant
Job Coffin ..... Henry Harmon
Maude Standish ..... Nancy Palmer
Luke Allen ..... T. Morse Koupal
Brad Standish ..... George W. Davis
Elijah Allen ..... Charles Smiley
Jim Smoot ..... Tom Blake
Constable ..... Hugh Jeffrey
Dancer ..... Dorothy Smoller

From the play by H. Austin Adams.

Adapted by June Mathis and Albert Capellani.

Directed by Albert Capellani.

The Story.

Faith Coffin is a New England girl who loves Luke Allen, a fisherman. His body is washed ashore one morning after a storm, and Faith finds herself destined to become the mother of his child without having been made his wife. Her brother, Job, a religious fanatic, is driven almost to madness by her sin and appoints himself her judge. Resigning his position as keeper of the harbor light, Job gets appointed to the lighthouse on 'Ception Shoals, a lonely reef off the Florida coast. Here Faith's baby is born and here the mother ends her life, driven to the act by her brother's cruelty. Seventeen years pass. Eve, the daughter of Faith, has been reared by Job as his own child and never allowed to see another human being. Her knowledge of life is less than that of a child of seven. She dresses in a tattered shirt and an old pair of trousers.

One day a yacht is blown on the shoals. Eve swims out to it and meets its owner, Philip Blake. On board is the widow of a sailor. The woman is about to become a mother. Blake asks Eve to help her and the girl learns the great mystery of birth. Her awakening makes a new being of her. She and Blake fall in love with each other. Blake takes the widow and her baby home to New England, after promising Eve to return for her. Job has sworn that Eve shall never know the joy of love and marriage. He makes Philip believe that Eve is dead when he first returns. The girl manages to lock her uncle in the lighthouse tower. As she starts to leave the lighthouse she is attacked by a half-witted sailor. Philip rescues her, Job dies while trying to get the door open and go to Eve's help, and the heroine's troubles are over.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Famous Russian Actress Plays Dual Role Depicting Tragic Maturity and Brightly Blooming Youth.

Nazimova Presents Her Greatest Impersonations of Screen Types.

Metro's Latest Sensational Screen Drama Was Staged Under Title of "'Ception Shoals."

Advertising Angles: "'Ception Shoals" was one of Nazimova's great stage successes, and you can offer an established screen favorite in one of her greatest stage successes. Go the limit. The story is an unusual one, and it will be well to pick up the main points for advertising exploitation, and don't forget that the daring costume had much to do with the vogue of the play. Get extra sets of stills and get these pictures around town in the better class of store windows. Work cuts in your advertising and go to some extra expense for pictorial paper. Play it up for a cleanup and you will get it. The points are simple. Iteration is what counts.

Advertising Aids: Four styles one-sheet, three three-sheets, two six-sheets, one twenty-four sheet. Photos. Slides. Music cue sheets. Special heralds. Special hand-colored lobby displays. One, two and three column ready-made advertisements. Scene cuts.

"SHADOWS."

Goldwyn Presents Geraldine Farrar in a Willard Mack Story of a Woman with a Past.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

A VERITABLE screen star of the highest order, Geraldine Farrar has practically every equipment to hold her place in public favor. Healthy, vigorous and well-formed, she has an infinity of graces acquired under the exactions of operatic interpretation. Every shade of feeling becomes manifest to the spectator because of an intensity of self expression wrought by her vivid imagination and high intelligence. In the Goldwyn production of "Shadows" she not only fills the role of a woman happily married, whose dark past suddenly looms up, threatening to destroy that happiness—she makes it intensely human.

The Story.

Muriel Barnes is the loving and happy wife of a fond and prosperous husband, the devoted mother as well of a child, when a promoter of fake mining enterprises, Frank Craftley, gains social access to her home. Craftley has never met her before, but he is haunted by a recollection soon solved. His side partner, a sourdough miner named Jack McGoff, has a photograph of her as Cora Lamont, a woman he deceived in Alaska by marrying her while he had a wife living. He subsequently forced Cora to enter upon the career of a dance-hall girl. She had escaped by shooting him in self-defense. Without knowing all these circumstances, but guessing them closely, Craftley works upon her fears until she induces her husband to go West and examine the salted claim he is being urged to buy. Jack McGoff remains behind and visits the woman he has wronged late at night. She permits him to do this and to enter her boudoir, because she has framed up a situation. She knows there is a policeman below, courting one of the servants, and she scatters her jewels so as to give the appearance of an intended robbery. She screams for help when McGoff attempts to embrace her and he attempts to escape arrest. In doing so he fires on the policeman and is killed in the scrimmage which follows. His death disperses the shadows hanging over her life.

Advertising Aids published in issue of Feb. 1 on page 678.

"A TRICK OF FATE."

B. B. Features Present Bessie Barriscale in Two Roles of Widely Separated Personalities.

Reviewed by William J. Reilly.

A TRICK OF FATE," produced by B. B. Features, with Bessie Barriscale as the center of the storm, displays more originality in plot than the usual picture which introduces the much abused "Fate" into its title. M. E. Havey's story under the able direction of Howard Hickman gives the star ample opportunity for the display of her talent in two separate roles. Mary Lee, the beloved little daughter of the South, and Mary's double, the favorite danseuse of a notorious Parisian cafe, are two characters of widely different types. The heroine is forced to assume a character which not only jars upon her finer sensibilities, but actually imperils her own honor. The events which lead up to her assumtion of this second personality make the plot an intricate one; and when a murder removes Anna Gerard, the dancer, the story reaches a climax which borders on the daring. Joe Dowling, Alfred Whitman, Joe Swickard and Frank Whitson support Bessie Barriscale in excellent manner.

Cast.

Mary Lee, Anna Gerard ..... Bessie Barriscale
Richard Crane ..... Alfred Whitman
Pierre LaRouge ..... George Fields
Raoul Garson ..... Joe Swickard
Major Lee ..... Joe Dowling
John Wentworth ..... Frank Whitson

The Story.

Mary Lee, the daughter of a Southern gentleman of disabled fortune, is cruelly hurt when her father dies and is called a "crook" by a local banker to whom he owed $5,000. Mary assumes the debt, goes to New York to build up her fortunes sufficiently to pay it off, while her lover, Richard Crane, leaves for South America on an engineering project. Anna Gerard, the dancer, who startles the habitues of the Black Rat Cafe, with her startling costumes and mannerisms, is the exact double of Mary Lee. Struck by the dancer's possibilities, Raoul Gerson, an American theatrical manager, brings her to New York, where as "Zura" she gains reputation overnight. In a fit of temperament she declines to appear one night, and her frantic manager discovering Mary Lee, her double, on the street decides to palm her off as Zura. Mary accepts the offer on condition that Gerson pay her $5,000, the amount of her father's debt. Complications arise when the original Zura is murdered by an old flame, Pierre La Rouge, unknown to any one but Gerson. A body dressed in Mary Lee's clothes is found in the park and the police decide it is Mary Lee. Gerson installs the real Mary Lee in the dancer's apartments, exacting a promise that she will not disclose her identity. She is compelled to face unusual situations when John Wentworth, whom Zura was about to marry, and Crane, her lover, return. Wentworth, suspecting that Mary is not Zura, gets the police busy, and she is about to be arrested when Crane makes a false confession, taking the guilt upon himself. The truth is brought out at the finish.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Bessie Barriscale Star of Amazing Photoplay in Which She Plays Her Own Double.
Fame and Fortune Climax in Sensational "Red Light" Scene.
High Lights of Paris and New York Gleam in Sensational Photoplay.
Daughter Clears Her Father's Name and Wins Her Own Happiness.
Mystery and Intrigue Intensify Interest in Amazing Photoplot.

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Barriscale and make liberal use of the three and six sheets showing her in tights. Do not use this angle in your newspaper work, but here tell that she plays the dual role of a French cafe singer and her American double, letting this hook up with the lithographs through suggestion rather than direct statement. In your readers, however, hint that Miss Barriscale will be seen in tights in this play. Make a cut-out of the three-sheet for the lobby and display it well in advance. These can also be used for window displays.

Advertising Aids: One each, three and six sheets. Banner unmounted. One, two and three column cuts and mats. Lobby displays, 11x14, 22x28. Slides. Press sheet.

Released in February.

"WHERE THE WEST BEGINS."

Five-Reel William Russell-Pathe Tells Rollicking Tale of Far West.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE story contrived by Stephen Fox for this William Russell production, entitled "Where the West Begins," is one of the admittedly preposterous type, which succeeds as the result of its entertaining action and humor. There is not a great deal of plot, but what there is has been used to the best advantage and the number is one that will create many admirers.

The tale begins with an amusing situation in New York City, in which the son of a financier is trying to die of ennui, despite the entreaties of his father and sister that he brace up and try to enjoy life. A speedy change in the young man's spirit is wrought by the hero, a rampant Westerner, who appears on the scene and whisks him away to Montana, where all sorts of adventures await them.

William Russell is pleasing in the role of the ranch foreman, and J. Cullen Landis gives a first rate portrait of the tired city boy. Eileen Percy plays the sister with intelligent appreciation of the character changes demanded. There are some excellent scenic effects scattered through the Western part of this number, many of which have been unusually well photographed.

The number as a whole resembles certain predecessors, but will carry on the strength of its incessant action and breezy humor.

Cast.

Cliff Redfern.....William Russell
Prudence Caldwell.....Eileen Percy
Ned Cadwell.....J. Cullen Landis
Luther Caldwell.....Frederick Vroom
Gunner McCann.....Carl Stockdale
Blackthorn Kennedy.....Alfred Ferguson

Story and Scenario by Stephen Fox.
Directed by Henry King.

The Story.

Ned Caldwell, son of an Eastern financier, is tired of life and tells his father and sister, Prudence, that he wants to die. He is only twenty-four years of age, but thinks he has already exhausted the joy of life. A change in the situation is wrought by the sudden appearance of Cliff Redfern, superintendent of a Montana ranch owned by Ned's father.

Mr. Caldwell wishes Ned to go West with Redfern, but the youth rebels and Prudence sympathizes with him. Redfern then resolves on heroic remedies. He pulls the youth out of bed and ducks him in a pool of water. Ned makes a humorous effort to end it all by drowning himself, but Redfern pulls him out of the water, dresses him and soon has him on board a train going West. Prudence indignantly follows, accompanied by her father.

Subsequent scenes occur on the ranch, where there is much gun fighting with a cattle thieving band, led by the treacherous ranch foreman. Redfern not only fully restores Ned's desire to live, but also tames the rebellious spirit of Prudence, who learns to love him.

Publicity Points: There are many striking scenic views in this number, all beautifully photographed. Great herds of cattle appear in many of these.

William Russell performs some vigorous riding stunts in which he is capably assisted by Eileen Percy.

The scenes picturing the hero and heroine together on the plains, without food or shelter, are full of romance. The fighting scenes between the cowmen are realistic.

Advertising Angles: Play up William Russell. For the newspaper work give the high lights on Cliff, making the abduction from the train your special point. Hammer on the vivid action of the story in all your advertising, but play Russell all through it for he is what you have to sell.

Advertising Aid: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby display, 11x14, both in sepia and color; also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

Released March 2.

Program and Advertising Phrases: William Russell, Dare-Devil Horseman of the Screen, Returns in Wild-Riding "Western" Photoplay of Strong Appeal.
Sensational Riding Featured in Dashing Story of the Breezy West.
Red Blood, Straight Shooting and Fearless Riding Featured in Photoplay.
Sensation and Adventure Combine with Romance in Thrilling Drama.
Ranch Life and Rugged Romance Pictured in Realistic Screen Visions.

"THE MORAL DEADLINE."

Five-Reel World Picture Features June Elvidge in Story of Thwarted Love.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE plot of this five-reel subject, entitled "The Moral Deadline," is of a commonplace character, possessing little dramatic or humorous appeal. It has, at the same time, a well-defined narrative interest which will give it considerable entertainment value for many people.

There is always a certain element of universal appeal about a story of true love that has been crossed by interfering parents or circumstances beyond control of those most affected. In this instance the hero marries the girl under an assumed name and his father insists that he leave her for a year in order to test the strength of his love. The settings of the story contain some attractive views of Central Park in the opening scenes. The social scenes are only fairly successful in attaining the desired atmosphere.

Cast.

Evelyn Merrill.....June Elvidge
Hal Oaker.....Frank Mayo
John Oaker.....Ned Burton
Helen Oaker.....Grace Stevens
Mlle. Aimee.....Alice Weeks
Anna Tyson.....Gertrude Webber
Henry Strickland.....Louis Grizel
Kate.....Louise DuPre
Joe Ellis.....Joseph Smiley
Mrs. Van Vliets.....Jane Sterling
Barbara Van Vliets.....Muriel Ostriche

Story by Earle Mitchell.
Scenario by Lucien Hubbard.
Directed by Travers Vale.

The Story.

Evelyn Merrill, a shop girl, is walking in Central Park with a girl friend when they chance upon Harold Oaker, whose taxi has just been injured in an auto smash. He befriends the girls by rescuing Evelyn's hat from the lake. They fall into conversation and Harold inadvertently gives Evelyn a card bearing the name of Harold Carson, one of the witnesses of the auto wreck. Later, after meeting Evelyn several times and learning to love her, he marries her, still under the borrowed name.

Harold's father, a millionaire, who is trying with his wife to break into high society, learns of the marriage and induces Harold to go West for a year, leaving Evelyn. The father agrees to receive the girl at the end of a year if Harold still loves her. Harold departs, but is shanghaied by some sailors and taken to sea.

While he is absent the father makes a vain attempt to buy off Evelyn, but she refuses to get a divorce. Her child is born and she becomes a professional dancer to support it. The Vice Society, of which Harold's mother is an active member, makes an effort to arrest Evelyn, but her dances are really harmless and Harold appears at a crucial moment to defend her. They are reunited happily at the close.

Pubicity Points.

From the scenic standpoint the views taken in Central Park and those at the social lawn party are the most attractive.

Program and Advertising Phrases: June Elvidge Star of Striking Photoplay Reflecting Problems of Social Inequalities.
New York's Famous Central Park Scene of Photoplay Action.
Oddly Contrived Photoplot Sustains Interest to the End.
Flashes of Stage Life Shed Light on Sociological Problems.
True Love Wins Against Parental Opposition and Intrigue.

Advertising Angles: Play for the Elvidge following. For the play angle tell that it unmasks a hypocritical reformer. Reformers are not popular just now, so hold John Oaker up to scorn in your advertisements, and tell that he applauded at a private dinner a dance he raided as indecent at a cabaret. Ring the changes on this, but always add that there is a strong love story, too.

Advertising Aids: Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, two six-sheets, two eight-sheets and one 24-sheet. Eight 8x11 black-and-white, eight 11x14 colored and two 22x28 colored lobby displays. One two-column cut, two one-column cuts. Slides, press sheets and music cues.

Released February 24.

"MADE IN AMERICA."

Ashley Miller's Fine Production of the Making of the Victory Army, Distributed by Hodkinson Through Pathe

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

WITH the eight-episode picture, "Made in America," Ashley Miller enters the ranks of independent producers. In so doing he has put his best foot forward and given the public not only an entertaining production, but a true record of the making of the Victory Army. The picture, which contains not one dull moment, will be released in weekly single reels, commencing Feb. 16, by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation through the Pathe Exchange, Inc. It was made in co-operation with the United States Government through the Committee of Public Information, and so cleverly has Director Ashley succeeded in presenting a subject based more or less on cold, systematic facts, that real dramatic intensity is arrived at before the last episode closes. A story of three young Americans is blended into the subject matter of the picture so skillfully that the mind follows eagerly from one incident to another scarcely conscious of the mental exercise of absorbing information at the same time. The main characters of the picture are given convincing portrayal. The titles of the episodes are "Made in America," "Nine Million Answer," "The Rookie," "Victory Army in the Making," "Building the Soldier," "The Hated 'K. P.'," "Overseas to Victory" and "Forward—Always Forward."

Cast

40,000 U. S. Soldiers and John Evers.....Richard Turner
Jimmy Evers.....Edward Burns
Mrs. Evers.....Lillian Lawrence
Nancy Evers.....Emily Marceau
Joe Nelson.....Philip Sanford
Mrs. Nelson.....Florida Kingsley
Mr. Nelson.....Bryan Darley

The Story.

At the declaration of war in America two sons of one family are shown eager to follow the flag to France; the son of another family is in quite the opposite mood. The eldest son, drafted first, finally lands on the other side. The second son and the slacker are shown participating in the disciplinary requirements of the Government from the first detail of filling in questionnaires to the very last item in the making of the American soldier. The slacker affords many a laugh as he frets his way through the training period, while the splendid type of the willing fighter wins the admiration of the audience at every turn. Finally, when the slacker is on the eve of his departure for France and is in the act of writing a dissatisfied letter to his mother from the Y. M. C. A. hut, the lights in the hut are suddenly extinguished. Knowing something of the electrical business he decides to "fix the fool lights," and is ridden upon the shoulders of his comrades in appreciation of his service. This turns the tide of his feelings; he tears up the letter he has written, writes another of a reverse sentiment. and thereafter wears a sunny smile which wins him friends and a sweetheart. Accompanying the thread of the story is each separate chapter in the life of the man from the moment he answers the call until he reaches the front line in France. The opening reel of the picture includes the capitol at Washington, Secretary of War Baker, and a scene at the drawing of numbers for the draft.

Publicity Points.

Spectacular scenes in the battle's night are replete with dramatic intensity.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Uncle Sam's Soldiers in the Making from Draft Board to the Watch on the Rhine.

Every Move in the Making of a Soldier Pictured in Authentic Scenes.

Produced and Directed With the Co-operation of the U. S. Government.

How the Doughboys Were Schooled and Trained to Knock the Hun Out of Hunzollern.

Uncle Sam's Victory Army in the Making and On the Firing Line.

"THE LION AND THE MOUSE."

Alice Joyce Amid Rich Settings Enhances Vitagraph Production of Klein Play.

Reviewed by William J. Reilly.

IN TAKING full advantage of all the possibilities of Charles Klein's play, and in presenting, besides, Alice Joyce as Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse," Vitagraph has given out a most attractive and pleasing picture. The story, full of genuine American interest, flows along as smoothly and deeply as a great river, sweeping out finally into a big climax.

The character of Shirley Rossmore, the real American girl, beautiful generous, talented, devoted to her father, is a distinctively individual creation of Charles Klein. Taking on the role of Shirley, Alice Joyce draws for her interpretation from a rich store of grace and charm. She enhances the finely constructed story, entertains while it is getting under way, sustains it at all times, and when it reaches its big moments compels frank admiration for her artistic treatment of the part.

Tom Terriss, the director, shows the star amid rich surroundings, the center of beautiful settings worthy of the home of "the richest man in the world," and loses no chance to set off her winning personality. The inoffensive exhibition of a number of richly planned settings is one of the fine points of the picture.

Anders Randolf, seen in the character of the "American Octopus," John Burkett Ryder, gives a worthy interpretation of the powerful, unscrupulous man of big business, and he with Conrad Nagel in the part of Jefferson Ryder give Alice Joyce able support.

Cast.

Shirley Rossmore.....Alice Joyce
Jefferson Ryder.....Conrad Nagel
John Burkett Ryder.....Anders Randolf
Judge Rossmore.....Henry Hallam
Senator Roberts.....T. W. Carlton
Kate Roberts.....Mona Kingsley
Mrs. Ryder.....Jane Jennings
Judge Stott.....W. H. Burton
Fitzroy Bagley.....Templer Saxe

From the Play by Charles Klein.
Directed by Tom Terriss.

The Story.

John Burkett Ryder, "the richest man in the world," determines to discredit a judicial decision which works against the interest of his millions by discrediting its author, Judge Rossmore, and causes impeachment charges to be laid against him in Congress. Shirley Rossmore, the judge's daughter learns of her father's trouble and returns home from Paris, where she has won success as a writer. She is loved by Jefferson Ryder, son of the magnate who is slowly killing her father. Determining to force the millionaire's hand, she publishes "The American Octopus" under a pseudonym, using Burkett's character as the central figure. He is attracted by the book and brings Shirley, whom he knows as Sarah Green, to his home to write his biography. This is the opportunity she is seeking, as it gives her a chance to obtain the two letters which will clear her father's name. Jefferson Ryder helps her secure the desired papers, but is discovered by his father and denounced as a thief. Shirley, who loves Jefferson, cannot stand to see him so branded and confesses her identity to his father. The "Lion" had long since been won by the charm of the "Mouse," and the story is cleared up in pleasing style.

Released Feb. 24.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Popular Drama of Great Vogue Brought to the Screen with Alice Joyce the Star.

Dainty Woman Defeats the Plots of Wealthy Autocrat in Game of Wits.

One of the Greatest Plays on the Stage Is Even Greater on the Screen.

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Series Present Alice Joyce in Famous Stage Role.

How Clever Girl Defeated the Plans of Conniving Millionaire.

Advertising Angles: Make the play of equal importance with the star. Tell that this was one of the exceptional successes of the dramatic stage and is still largely used by stock companies. It has been seen in all but the smallest towns, and in most of the larger places you have only to tell that it has been put into film and appeal to curiosity to see what sort of a play it makes. Where it is not known, tell that this is the story of a young girl who beat the richest man in America at his own game and cleared her father's name. This will appeal to every one if you present it attractively.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Window cards. Lobby display, 11x14 and 22x28. Heralds. Slides. Plan book. Press sheet.

Released February 24.

"THE SEALED ENVELOPE."

Five-Reel Universal Subject Features Fritzi Brunette In Crook Story.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS five-reel Universal subject, entitled "The Sealed Envelope," might be set down as an ordinary crook story, with its scenes laid in the usual slum sections, were it not for the fact that the plot has been so skilfully manipulated that it refuses to be classed as just ordinary. The author, Andrew Souter, and the adapter and director, Harvey Gates and Douglas Germard, have taken a comparatively simple chain of events and woven them into a yarn that gains in mystery as it proceeds.

Much of the sustained interest in this number is due to the manner of its development rather than to any real greatness in the mystery itself. Peter James Slaney, the released jail bird, is capably portrayed by Wm. A. Sheer, who brings out naturally the essential weakness of the type. Slaney has reformed, but when injustice threatens "Miss Lena," the girl slavey who loves him, he agrees to steal again for her. Fritzi Brunette is also effective as Lena, and Katherine Wallace makes considerable of the part of Madge.

The scenes are typical of the underworld, most of them being in a cheap hotel where Slaney has a room and Lena is employed. The subject does not

(Continued on page 1107)

INTERNATIONAL EXPORT AND IMPORT SECTION of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

A Part of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD Once Every Four Weeks in the Issue Bearing Date of the Saturday Nearest the Fifteenth of the Month

Promoting the Distribution of Moving Pictures Wherever the English Language is Used In Trade

Cover portrait of Elsie Ferguson whose pictures are available in the export field through Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

In This Issue—

New Export Firm Starting Strong
Nazimova Plum for Export & Import
Clash on "The Woman and the Law"
English Most Effective Sales Language
Beating the Barrier in Race for Europe
Specializing in Serial Pictures
Screen as Influence for National Development
Editorials
Production Booming in England
After Pictures Again in Great Britain
Australian Company Being Formed
France Wants Tariff Readjustment
Inter-Ocean Gets Graphic Products

Advertisements—

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.
Inter-Ocean Film Corp.
Export & Import Film Co., Inc.
David P. Howells
Apollo Trading Corp.
Gillespie Bros. & Co.

American-made Moving Pictures Are Much the Vogue in Foreign Countries Just Now—The American Moving Picture Trade Publication That "Goes Everywhere" Is the MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

An International Language

DO you know the story of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and its growth to the leadership of one of the greatest industries of the world? The story of the growth of the motion picture is the story of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Have you ever compared the photoplay with steel or oil, or placed it side by side with transportation and agriculture? Do you know that the film industry is one of the largest in the world? And have you ever realized why it attained this position?

It is because the photoplay makes an international appeal.

American oil may talk to Russian oil, in terms of oil and be understood.

The steel industry of the United States may communicate across the world in terms of steel and all concerned in steel will comprehend.

But the film speaks from the screen to all nations in an international tongue—a language that can be understood from the goldfields of Alaska to the Coast Cities of Africa by rich and poor—educated and uneducated.

The reason that Paramount and Artcraft pictures distributed by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation have been successful is because they are true to life—vital. Because the scenes they portray are correct in every detail and because the players are real people expressing their message of love, Romance, and Happiness simply, forcefully, clearly a message in an international language to all the world.

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

Look for the trade-marks as the sure way of identifying Paramount and Artcraft Pictures—and the theatres that show them.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

"FOREMOST STARS, SUPERBLY DIRECTED, IN CLEAN MOTION PICTURES"

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

The following Picture Stars and Short Reel Subjects are the features distributed to the Cinema Theatres of the world by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation:

Artcraft productions, starring: Enrico Caruso, Geraldine Farrar, Douglas Fairbanks, William Faversham (Paramount-Artcraft Special), William S. Hart, Mary Pickford, Fred Stone.

Paramount productions, starring: John Barrymore, George Beban, Enid Bennett, Billie Burke, Lina Cavalleri, Marguerite Clark, Ethel Clayton, W. H. Crane (Success Series), Dorothy Dalton, Julian Eltinge (Success Series), Dustin Farnum (Success Series), Pauline Frederick, Dorothy Gish, Sessue Hayakawa (Success Series), Lila Lee, Vivian Martin, Shirley Mason, Victor Moore (Success Series), Ann Pennington (Success Series), Jack Pickford (Success Series), Ernest Truex, Charles Ray, Wallace Reid, Bryant Washburn.

These pictures are made under the direction of the following internationally-known Directors and Producers:

D. W. Griffith, Cecil B DeMille, Thomas H. Ince, Mack Sennett, J. Stuart Blackton, John Emerson, Burton Holmes.

Short Subjects

Paramount-Arbuckle Comedies
Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies
Paramount-Montgomery Flagg Comedies
Paramount-Bray Pictographs
Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures
Paramount-Drew Comedies

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

In the shadow of Milan's (Italy) historic cathedral, films are sold in the English language.

NEW EXPORT FIRM STARTING STRONG

Apollo Trading Corporation Already Has Foreign Sales Rights to Many Pictures

CONSIDERING RECORD DEAL

L. Lawrence Weber, Benjamin Hicks, and "Bobby" North, Officers of Organization —New Billy West Comedies and Broncho Billy Westerns Offered.

Concurrent with the granting of their charter a few days ago, the Apollo Trading Corporation, with offices at 220-26 West Forty-eighth street, New York City, have just shied their hat into the growing ring of big moving picture interests which are now specializing in the export and import end of the business. L. Lawrence Weber, the well known theatrical manager, is president of the company; Benjamin Hicks is vice-president, and Bobby North is treasurer.

Among moving picture people, Mr. Weber is probably best identified as having held a producing franchise with the Metro Pictures Corp. under which he produced the Mme. Petrova pictures. Mr. North worked with Mr. Weber on this deal, serving as supervising director of these releases and later was supervising director of the Mme. Petrova pictures made for distribution on the First National Exhibitors' Circuit program by the McClure interests. Captain Hicks, vice-president of the company, though an American, has been entirely identified for the past fifteen years with European theatricals, having represented the Shuberts and L. Lawrence Weber abroad at various times.

In the vernacular, the new company is starting "like a house afire." For some days past their names have been linked with one of the most important export deals which have been arranged in a long time, and, while no definite announcement is possible at this time, there is every indication that the deal will go through and will immediately establish the Apollo Company as one of the most important in their line of business.

Already in their catalogue for foreign distribution are the product of the Frank Hall Independent Sales Corp., the Billie West comedies and ten new Broncho Billy (W. H. Anderson) releases, two of which have been finished.

That the Apollo company are in the game to stay and are playing according to the best established rules is indicated by the fact that Captain Hicks, vice-president of the company, has already sailed for Europe, and, after a tour of the country for the purpose of getting a line on marketing conditions abroad, will remain in either London or Paris in close contact with a string of offices which the company will open. Chester Beecroft, whose activities as an export sales agent have attracted attention in the American field for a number of years, recently purchased the Apollo releases for the European continent.

Does Germany Know She's Beaten?

London newspapers of different dates have enumerated thrilling details of an alleged new German film combine to launch forward at the cessation of hostilities and devour the moving picture market of the world. The Deutsche Bank, North German Lloyd, Hamburg-America Line and other institutions prominent in the days when Germany was a financial power are said to have co-operated in the production of moving pictures upon the usual "kolossal" scale. Everything is presumably complete for their exhibition, even—as in the case of the Kaiser's banquet in Paris —down to the printing of the programs. All that remains to be done is for the films to be exported abroad. The immediate prospects are not rosy, needless to say.

NAZIMOVA PLUM FOR EXPORT & IMPORT

Special Metro Releases Included in New Contract Signed by Blumenthal Company

TERRITORY SOLD IN ADVANCE

Buyers Show Unusual Interest in Prize Productions Starring Well-Known International Star—Two New Serials Also Ready for Marketing.

One of the most important contracts which has been announced in the export industry for some time has to do with the 1919 activities of the Export & Import Film Company, Inc., presided over by Ben Blumenthal, with offices at No. 729 Seventh avenue, New York City. Mr. Blumenthal's company has been handling the Metro output in South America and Continental Europe for some time, and this contract has been renewed for another year. Of more importance, however, is the new deal whereby the Export & Import Company have secured the Nazimova pictures made by Metro for the same territory. These Nazimova releases, because of their unusual qualities of production and acting, have been tempting morsels to the exporters operating from New York for some time. "Revelation," "Toys of Fate" and "An Eye for an Eye," with the internationally known actress in the stellar roles, have already been released in the American market, and have been big successes; as a consequence, much is expected of the pictures which are to follow—about six a year.

Mr. Blumenthal seems glad to admit that his traffic with Metro pictures in the foreign markets, despite the fact that his purchase of the rights involved an unusually large sum of money, has been very satisfactory. The Metro trademark has come to mean more and more each year abroad, and it is admitted in the Export & Import offices that practically the entire output had been placed for 1919 before the contract with Metro had been renewed in New York. The same buyers, moreover, were only too glad to contract for the Nazimova releases at a much higher figure than they have been in the habit of paying.

The importance of the new deal may be grasped when it is recalled that Metro will make between thirty and forty program pictures during 1919 and between twenty and thirty of the "Star Series" releases, in addition to the Nazimova specials.

Absorbing most of the attention of the Export & Import people at the present time is the sale of the foreign rights of two more big serials, which they have taken over to follow the Houdini pictures, with which they have been so spectacularly successful. One of the serials, which is being made here in New York, is based upon the Craig Kennedy detective stories which have had such wide circulation in the Saturday Evening Post. The other is a big serial featuring Juanita Hansen, which will get its thrills from situations developed through the use of the animals in the famous Selig Zoo in Los Angeles; Col. William N. Selig is in charge of the production of this serial, which, as yet, has not been named. Both serials are to be made up of fifteen two-reel episodes, and several episodes in each serial have already been completed.

American exporters have always been fond of serials for the reason that they seem more popular with foreign buyers than straight feature productions and are therefore more easily sold. The Export & Import Film Company, Inc., are considered fortunate in having secured the two new serials, which are expected to prove equally as acceptable abroad as was the big Houdini serial which the same company has already disposed of for the world.

ARGENTINA WILL USE FOUR PRINTS OF BIG PICTURE

"Hearts of the World," the D. W. Griffith masterpiece, which is being distributed throughout Latin American through Gillespie Brothers & Co., is about to be shown in Argentina, and some idea of just what success is anticipated for it may be had from the fact that while the original sale called for two prints of the picture, two additional prints have just been ordered by the New York Film Exchange, who own the rights for that territory.

J. M. de Aragon, who has charge of the film affairs of Gillespie Brothers & Co., says that the distribution of "Hearts of the World" has been quite satisfactory despite the great change in conditions between the time his company purchased the Latin American rights and the present time. A recent sale of territory to Pairoa & Herrera involved the exhibition rights for Cuba, Porto Rico, Santa Domingo, Venezuela, Colombia, Panama, Honduras, Guatemala, Nicarauga, Costa Rico, and Salvador.

Other sales which have recently been made through the Gillespie offices are of the Select Pictures Corporation output for Cuba, Porto Rico, and Brazil; "The Kaiser's Finish" for Argentina, and the new Chaplin comedies to Salm, Ltd., for Spain and Portugal. The last named sale, of course, was effected through William Vogel, who controls all foreign rights on the new Chaplin releases.

CLASH ON "THE WOMAN AND THE LAW"

Detailed Report from Chile Seems to Show Queer Conflict of Decisions by Representatives of U. S. Government—Matter Being Taken Up in Washington by Injured Purchaser.

Bernardo Herrera, of Pairoa & Herrera, well known moving picture distributors operating throughout Chile, with headquarters in Santiago, left New York a few days ago for Washington to make another effort to straighten out with the United States Government authorities an interesting tangle which developed through his firm's purchase of the Fox Film Corporation's feature, "The Woman and the Law," based upon the celebrated Jack DeSaulles murder case. Mrs. DeSaulles, who shot and killed her husband, and was acquitted after having been charged with murder in the first degree, is a member of a wealthy Chilean family. Mr. Herrera has been in the States for many months, and his difficulties over this film have been told, piece-meal, in practically every export office in New York. Briefly, Mr. Herrera and his partner purchased "The Woman and the Law," paid for it in the accepted way, and it was shipped, after having been examined, viseed and passed in the appointed manner by all Government officials having to do with the exportation of American-made moving pictures during war times. When it arrived in Chile representatives of the same United States Government which had originally passed the film refused to release it to its purchasers for exhibition in Chile.

Mr. Herrera's trip to Washington was undertaken after he had received from his partner in Chile the following report in detail as to just what had transpired in the South American Republic:

Duly Passed in New York

This film was purchased in March of this year (1918), and the purchase price was paid at the same time through the National City Bank of Valparaiso.

Three months elapsed, and, when the purchaser received no news that the film had been shipped, arrangements were made to send Bernardo Herrera to New York to investigate what had happened. We learned from him that the film could not be shipped, because the United States Government was taking greater precautions in the exportation of films in order that none of them might prove an obstacle toward the winning of the war. For this reason the film had to go through the censor of the War Trade Board, a lengthy and troublesome formality. At last the export license was secured, and the film arrived in Chile consigned to the American Consul at Valparaiso.

Santiago Consul Denies Permit

Four days after the film arrived at Santiago, we received a letter from the Consul notifying us "that in virtue of the contract signed, the Consulate would not grant permission for exhibiting the film in Chile without a written order from the United States Ambassador," and at the same time he asked us to communicate with Mr. Preciado, chief of the Bureau of Information of the American Government in this city.

We talked with Mr. Preciado, who told us that he wanted to see the film before it was shown to the public, and he sent his censor to the private exhibition that was given on the following day. This gentleman decided, in accordance with his instructions, not to authorize the exhibition of the film.

We took the matter up with the Naval Attache of the Embassy in the presence of Alberto Reed, who acted as interpreter, and the following decision was reached: That the Embassy would send a cablegram to Washington to demand from the Fox Company the reimbursement of the price paid for the film. If Fox acceded to this, the money would be reimbursed to us, and, if not, the Embassy would grant us a written permit to exhibit the film and the Fox interests would be forbidden to export any films to South America.

After fifteen days had passed without a reply from Washington, we talked again with Mr. Preciado in the presence of the same Mr. Reed and Mr. Pinto, owner of the Garden Theatre, asking Mr. Preciado, in case the Fox Company acceded to the reimbursement of the money paid for the film, who would pay us the expenses that its purchase had caused us? Mr. Preciado replied that we had nothing to fear, that the Bureau of Information would pay us these expenses if we presented our certified invoices.

Fifteen days more elapsed without a reply from Washington in regard to the matter, and during this interlapse of time, Mr. Preciado was leaving for the United States and H. H. Seviers was taking charge of the Bureau of Information in Chile.

In the initial interview we had with this gentleman, the first thing he did was to deny that the Bureau of Information would pay our expenses, and that we should be quite satisfied if we got back the money paid for the film.

Title Usurped by Another Picture

While this was going on, we learned that Benito Del Villar had been advertising throughout Southern Chile the film, "Mother's Rights," under the title of "The Woman and the Law." Mr. Pairoa, who was in Valparaiso, spoke with the American Consul in order to call his attention to the matter and notify him that we would publish an announcement stating the facts of the case, as the above mentioned party was about to use the same misleading advertising in Santiago. All the reply Mr. Pairoa got was the following threat made before a well known customs agent: "If you write anything against Mr. Del Villar, we will be obliged to put you down on our black list."

Because of such an unjust and arbitrary threat, an article was published in the "Diario Ilustrado" explaining the situation brought about by Mr. Del Villar, and a letter was written to the Ambassador informing him of this abnormal situation. To this letter we have received no reply up to this date.

Two days after all of this happened, we received a cable from New York reading as follows: "Fox refuses to reimburse, advise what to do. Herrera."

This cable was laid before Mr. Seviers, who told us he would give us a reply on the following day, as he had to consult the Ambassador.

The written reply was as follows: "Referring to the telegram you showed me in which is stated that Fox refuses to reimburse you of the amount paid for the film, 'Woman and the Law,' I believe it my duty to inform you that the attitude of this office has not changed.

"If the film in question is exhibited in Chile, it will be done under our protest, since we consider that it will create a feeling of scorn for American life on account of being false and preposterous in all respects.

"I also wish to add that this decision has also been communicated to Washington, and, as far as this office is concerned, the matter can be considered as finally closed."

Purchaser Faces Heavy Loss

In other words, a film is purchased in the United States, with all the expenses of cables, advertising, traveling, etc., which film has had a tremendous success in the very United States themselves, without any one ever having made so severe a criticism as Mr. Seviers. The film has been exported in accordance with the legal requirements of the United States and with the approval of the War Trade Board—that is, the officials above Mr. Seviers—and now they want to compel us to lose the money we paid for it, our expenses, our time and our profits.

And, finally, they make omission of everything that was previously taken up in regard to the matter with Mr. Preciado and the Naval Attache of the Embassy.

ENGLISH EFFECTIVE LANGUAGE FOR SALES

J. Roland Kay's Export Chart Furnishes Data of Particular Interest to Those Engaged in Overseas Picture Trade—Vast Population to Be Reached

Of interest to the constantly increasing number of moving picture men throughout the world who are specializing in the international distribution of film is the information tabulated on a very useful export chart recently prepared by the J. Roland Kay Company, international advertising agents, with home offices in Chicago and representation in New York City at 18 East Forty-first street.

The chart lists all the important countries of the world, excepting Germany and other enemy nations, and notes the following points of statistical information concerning each country: The capitol, mail time in days (from New York), postage rates (first and second class), postal maximum weight, government, area in square miles, population, unit of money, United States value of money (normal), commercial language and principal port of entry.

A careful examination of the chart permits of some interesting deductions which have to do with the relative importance of the commercial languages used throughout the world, these deductions being of an especially timely nature at present because of the efforts which are being made in the American moving picture industry to encourage the international distribution of moving pictures.

There are ninety-nine export localities listed on the chart, including the United States and Canada, and a double listing of China as a nation and Hongkong, China's principal commercial city, concerning which separate detailed information is given. For purposes of examination from the viewpoint of the American moving picture producer as well as the exporter doing business from New York, figures which have to do with the United States and Canada (closed markets as far as the American exporter is concerned) have been omitted, as have also the figures dealing with Hongkong separately. With these omissions the chart may be said to list ninety-six separate export units, all of which provide a market to be reached by American producers and American exporters.

In thirty-nine of these ninety-six countries English is the recognized commercial language, and in ten more of them the English language shares the honors with some other language in the transaction of business. It is fair to say, then, that in forty-nine out of the ninety-six countries listed moving pictures can be readily "sold in the English language."

At the great risk of wrecking the office adding machine, which—because of the fact that its usual work is the figuring of gross business done with the hope that a profit may be shown—is unfortunately not accustomed to such big figures, a very amateurish mathematician toiling on the International Export and Import Section of the Moving Picture World has attempted to discover just what these fundamental figures—forty-nine countries out of a total of ninety-six—mean in their relation to populations and areas. With the adding machine balking and the operator's fondness for this sort of thing neglible, the figures which have to do with these deductions may not be accurate enough to satisfy the cashier of the Bank of England—but they are reasonably authentic.

Forty-nine Countries Use English.

The total area in square miles of the ninety-six countries listed is 34,887,959, and populating this area are 1,447,033,718 people. The forty-nine countries which use the English language in trade have an area of 13,903,583 square miles and a combined population of 1,026,164,004. These figures indicate that approximately 70 per cent. of the population in the countries which represent the market for American-made moving pictures can reasonably be expected to be reached through the medium of the English language.

The J. Roland Kay Company chart, which has been made the basis for this examination of export conditions, ought to be a most convincing argument for the efficacy of the English language as a means of selling any kind of goods. The data used in its preparation has been collected, not from dry atlases which are often out of date, but from the working records of many of the largest international merchandising concerns throughout the world with which the Kay company is closely identified.

The average man, in considering just how useful English is in trade, is likely to form his opinion after giving a little thought to the difficulties which he would likely encounter if he were to be set down in any one of the majority of foreign countries equipped with nothing but the English language and confronted with the necessity of doing business. And yet, a conclusion arrived at in this way would be greatly in error, for there is a vast difference between the "commercial language" of a country and the language which one hears on the street. This fact is well illustrated by the following list of countries from the export chart in which English is given as the commercial language; one can tell at a glance that in many of these countries but little English would be heard on the street, and yet it has been clearly established that in these countries it is not only possible but advisable to do business in the English language: Abyssinia, Aden, Afghanistan, Africa (British East, West and South), Arabia, Australia and Tasmania, the Bahamas, Barbados, Borneo, Burma. Ceyion, China, Korea, Curacoa, Dutch East Indies, Equador, Falkland Islands, Federal Malay States, Fiji Islands, Great Britain, British Guiana, Hawaii, British Honduras, India, Jamaica, Japan, Leeward Islands, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, New Zealand, Newfoundland, Persia, Siam, Strait Settlements, Trinidad, Winward Islands and Zanzibar. The countries in which English and some other language are listed for commercial use are as follows: Curacao, Dutch East Indies, Java, Netherlands and Sumatra, Dutch-English; Morocco, French-English; Norway, Danish-English; Sweden, Swedish-English; Panama and the Philippines, Spanish-English.

While data on Germany and the other enemy countries was omitted from the Kay chart for the best of reasons at the time it was published, any discussion of areas, populations, etc., bearing upon the possibilities for moving picture export from the United States would be incomplete without reference to the possibilities of these countries, for the time will come eventually, if not within the next few months, when moving picture film will probably be as freely exported from the United States to the so-called enemy countries as to any other section of the world.

Even German Market Possible.

Germany is accredited with about seventy million people, Austria-Hungary has about fifty millions, and thirty more millions will cover the population of Turkey and Bulgaria. Of these countries Germany is the preferred market because of its intensive population and splendid means of transportation. While German is the commercial language there, enough has been written recently about German trade methods to convince any person that the native language of any country which ranks at all with Germany as a rival in any business line is an easily understood language throughout the one-time domains of the thoroughly hated Kaiser.

To draw a final conclusion, let it be said that, from the very nature of things, if 70 per cent. of the population of the world open for American-made pictures can be sold the ordinary lines of merchandise with the aid of the English language then a considerably larger percentage can be reached on the subject of moving pictures. The screen, as a means of entertainment and education, is fundamentally of the English-speaking races. If the earliest pretentious picture productions did come from the Latin countries of Europe it is equally true that by all odds the most important commercial developments in the business have been made by the English-speaking races, and, most notably, by the United States. In another interesting article which is a part of this issue of the International Export and Import Section of the Moving Picture World will be found a statement by a recognized English authority to the effect that 90 per cent. of the pictures now being shown in England are of "foreign" manufacture, the "foreign" place of manufacture being the United States. If this is true, it is convincing that the world has been taught to look upon modern moving pictures as an American institution—and if they have been so taught, they will expect to deal in moving pictures in the language of the patron country of moving pictures, or, in other words, in the English language.

Moving Pictures are essentially of the English-Speaking Races
ALL EYES ARE TURNED to the
UNITED STATES for the Bulk of Their
PHOTOPLAY PRODUCT
The
International
Export and Import
Section
of the
MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the
BEST POSSIBLE MEDIUM to Promote Your PICTURE SALES

BEATING BARRIER IN RACE TO EUROPE

With Travel Made Easier, General Exodus of American Exporters Is Observed—Will Be Abroad When Peace Is Signed.

FOR months a favorite complaint among American exporters has been that, despite the fact that representatives of foreign moving picture interests were coming to New York without restriction either from their own or the United States governments, American exporters whose interests abroad have grown to tremendous proportions and will either grow still larger or will suffer, depending upon the personal attention which is given them, have been unable to secure passports to visit foreign countries.

Within the past couple of weeks the authorities have made it easier for American moving picture people to travel and, as a consequence, there seems to be in progress a general exodus of New York exporters from their offices. It has been suggested that the trips abroad of the Americans at this particular time may have some bearing upon the future of American-made moving pictures in important territories which have been closed to them for the past two or three years. Many of the local exporters will be in Europe when the peace terms are signed, providing the treaties are negotiated at the time it is expected they will be. Methods of distributing American-made pictures in the British Empire, France, Italy, Holland and Scandinavia had been pretty well arranged before the signing of the armistice.

Ben Blumenthal, of the Export & Import Film Company, Inc., is scheduled to sail Saturday, February 15, on an extended tour of Europe in the interests of the firm whose destinies he directs. The duration of his stay is indefinite, but it is significantly announced that he will be in Ben Blumenthal.

Europe when the peace terms, which are expected to return the old world to some semblance of pre-war conditions, are finally signed.

Mr. Blumenthal's first work in Europe will be the establishment in a number of the important cities, including London and Paris, of branch offices of the Export & Import Film Company, Inc., with accredited representatives directly in charge and working in close harmony with the New York office. His first port of call will be London.

The activities of the Export & Import Film Company after the war have long been a source of interesting conjecture among American exporters. It is well known that this company has been quietly and steadily building for a big future in the foreign markets, and have now in their control probably more American-made moving pictures which are finished, bought and paid for, and ready to release than any other similar firm. It is pretty generally known, too, that the company's plans for handling distribution in the broadest possible way throughout Europe and the Near East have been perfected, based upon a foundation of expected fact which would be considered at least extraordinary if it were discussed in detail at the present time.

Mr. Blumenthal and his associates are conceded to be especially well informed of conditions in the foreign countries mentioned because of their having operated in the export film industry from other markets in Europe a long time before American-made moving pictures became an important factor in the field.

During Mr. Blumenthal's absence in Europe his able lieutenant, Lou Auerbach, will remain in New York in charge of the purchasing and forwarding end of the business.

David P. Howells sailed for Europe on January 30 to institute a method of closer co-operation between the representative of American producers and the purchaser of selling rights to American films in foreign countries. Before his return to New York, Mr. Howells will have established in every film distributing centre of Europe a personal representative of David P. Howells, Inc., one of the largest film exporting houses in the United States, whose chief duty will be to study the market to which he is assigned and make regular reports upon films being shown there, conditions from the exhibitors' standpoint, and other matters which will aid in the procuring of films of the nature most desired there, and also as a guide for the preparation of the proper kind of titling, advertising and other essentials to the most advantageous showing of productions.

David P. Howells.

"The time has passed," said Mr. Howells just before sailing, "when a film exporter can make a success by merely purchasing the foreign rights to any film and selling it to people in another country and letting the matter end. The foreign markets are practically stabilized, and the once stung foreign buyer is wary of the agent who sold him the film. Many sterling American films have suffered because they have fallen into the hands of a man who has handled poor pictures in that territory before, and the buyer will have none of him or the products he handles.

"I believe that a film exporter should regard himself as the American representative of every foreign exhibitor who shows a film which he has handled. For that reason I regard the house of Howells as the representative of every exhibitor in the world outside of the United States and Canada, because those who have not already shown films of David P. Howells, Inc., are potential customers. Because I want the confidence of every foreign exhibitor, I am establishing a service station in every film distributing centre in the world. The service station will be there for the use of the exhibitor, and through the aid we can extend to him we will learn of his needs and thereby be able to cater to him."

Mr. Howells is accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Howells. Their first stop will be in England, where the first service station will be established in London. From there the trip takes in the Scandinavian countries, Holland, France, Spain, Portugal and Italy, as well as the other Mediterranean countries.

Mr. Howells has taken prints of some of the latest and most successful releases. Among them are the First National Exhibitors' Circuit's release, Anita Stewart in "Virtuous Wives," and the three releases of the United Picture Theatres Corporation—Dustin Farnum in "The Light of Western Stars," Kitty Gordon in "Adele" and the Florence Reed feature, which will not be released in the United States until February, and the title of which has not yet been announced. Trade showings of these pictures will be arranged in the European distributing centres, and the foreign rights of them will probably be disposed of before Mr. Howells returns.

Mr. Howells will remain in Europe for about two months.

Louis Brock, of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, sailed from New York a few days ago for the West Indies where he will travel for the next few weeks in the interest of his firm. Mr. Brock's activities with the Inter-Ocean for some time past have had to do particularly with the Latin-American trade. A number of important contracts for the products which the Inter-Ocean distribute are pending in Cuba and Mr. Brock's first port of call will be Havana.

Despite the proximity of Cuba to the United States it is very seldom that home office representatives of important picture and exporting firms visit that territory, and perhaps this is the reason that American films invaded the country much more slowly than they did in lands further removed. Before leaving on Wednesday Mr. Brock closed contracts taking in Spain and Portugal for the World Films, Plaza Pictures, "The Victim" and Inter-Ocean specials.

Mr. Brock's trip to the West Indies is a further development of the firm's policy, announced some time ago, of having customers and prospective customers meet the men with whom they are doing business face to face. The first man to leave the Inter-Ocean building under this plan was H. G. Harper who is now on a 40,000-mile trip through the Far East.

Louis Brock is a nephew of the late Henry J. Brock who is accredited with having been one of the first American exporters to see the big possibilities for American-made moving pictures in the Spanish and Portuguese speaking countries of Latin America and Europe. Some time ago the young Mr. Brock contributed the following article on "Export Evils" which will be of interest to readers of the International Export & Import Section of the Moving Picture World:

Louis Brock.

A FEW months ago an American exporter notified the Moving Picture World that the foreign buyers would yet come to use duped films. What he should have said was that instead of "coming" to it, they were in danger of going back to it, because duping is an old, old evil of the business, something the reputable foreign renter wants to get away from, not return to.

The man who thought the business would return to the use of duped films was undoubtedly sincere in his belief; at the same time it is the prayer of exporters and foreign buyers everywhere that this condition never actually becomes a fact. The American manufacturer suffered immeasurably by the old duping process. His choicest wares were shown at a real disadvantage, full of photographic defects and blemishes.

The very natural result was that other brands were preferred by foreign exhibitors and public alike, and it grew difficult to get good prices for the American product. When the American trade won out in the original effort to stop the "junking" of American films in the world markets every trade factor was pleased—the foreign publics viewed American pictures at their best, the cinemas were consequently better attended and the renter received better prices.

Last, but not least, the American producer started to obtain a decent sum out of the foreign rights to his films. Many months have gone by since the American exporter in mention spoke publicly of his fear of a return abroad to duped prints, and we still have to face such a situation! I think I am taking no undue liberty in predicting that no matter how long the disturbed war conditions may continue the return of "duping," as we have known it, is out of the question.

A trade danger that is much more real is the slip-shod translation work performed in this country on American films for shipment abroad. The recent restriction on raw stock shipments has caused a great many foreign buyers to order their American films with the foreign titles already inserted. In view of this, you would believe that the most expert translators possible are employed.

That is to say, if the film is ordered for Spain, you would think that the most expert Spanish translator available would be secured for the titling work, inasmuch as the sole public to view the certain picture is the Spanish public, and they are surely the first to recognize errors in so-called Spanish translation. Once upon a time, when raw stock was plentiful all over the globe, incorrect titles were no particular menace, as they were quickly whipped out and new translations put in by the foreign purchaser.

Today the shortage in stock makes practically each American film sent to a foreign country go out to the public of that country in the exact shape that the renter receives it. At such a time, therefore, bad title-translating should not be tolerated in any exporting office. Nevertheless, people who know say that there are a lot of films leaving the country whose titles reflect no credit whatsoever on the American motion picture executives who are responsible for the editorial side.

SPECIALIZING IN SERIAL PICTURES

Oliver Films, Inc., Have Model Studio in Which "Craig Kennedy" Stories Are Being Transferred to Moving Picture Screen—Second Company to Start Work Shortly.

Much is said by the wiseacres operating in the export field as to essential differences in the tastes of moving picture patrons in various countries. Certain American-made subjects are considered unsuited to audiences in England, in Continental Europe, in the Far East, or in Latin America for any one of a half dozen different reasons—and on these reasons there is rarely an agreement between any two exporters. One admitted peculiarity of the foreign market, however, is its abnormal fondness for serials. Serials are the easiest sold pictures which American exporters can find to handle, despite the fact that the market for serials of the average type in the United States is conceded to be a tough one. So desirable, indeed, have serials become in the foreign market that the man with the rights to a good serial is often enabled to get action on a great many of his slow moving features by hanging a serial up as a reward or bonus.

Because of this condition the production of each new serial is watched with great interest by the traders who send their wares overseas. Just now interest is centered on the activities of Oliver Films, Inc., who have equipped what may well be called a "Serial Shop" at No. 308 East Forty-eighth street, New York City, and are preparing to specialize in pictures of the serial type.

Big Glove Man Heads Company

Oliver Films, Inc., was organized some time ago with Harry H. Grossman as the moving spirit and serving the company as vice president and general manager. I. Oliver, head of the widely known glove manufacturing business doing business throughout the country with headquarters in New York City, is president of the company.

The studio at 308 East Forty-eighth street, was formerly occupied by the Frank Keeney company and a long term lease has been taken on it. The Oliver company moved in December 14 and immediately set about making extensive alterations, with the result that the studio is today one of the coziest and most efficient in the East. The efficiency of the studio and organization working in it is testified to by the fact that the production of the first serial, known as the Craig Kennedy Serial, was begun January 1st and was almost fifty per cent. finished by January 15th, six of the fifteen episodes having been completed.

Mr. Grossman, general manager of the Oliver Company, spends all of his time in cozy offices in the studio building and takes quite apparent delight in showing the place to interested visitors. One entire floor of the building has been given over to a workshop in which everything in the way of special appliances—and the special appliances used in the production of a serial are many and queer—is made. Here, busy all the time, are to be found carpenters, machinists, plaster-workers, and painters turning out the properties which are to be used in the studio one floor above. The sets in the studio—and let it be remembered that this is a "Serial Shop"—are remarkable for their appearance of solidity and permanence, and they are, for the most part, made of easily portable units which can readily be adapted for other uses after they have served the original purpose for which they have been constructed. Hanging from the roof the other day was a practical aeroplane and in a corner of the studio stood a splendid reproduction of a thirteen-inch gun; both of these "props" had been turned out by the studio workmen.

Of interest are the accommodations which have been provided for a score or more actors who are to be found at work each day at the studio. The dressing rooms are clean, light, and almost lavishly furnished. The hallways from which the dressing rooms are entered are canopied with prettily painted lattice work. Near the dressing rooms, and on the same floor level, are a well equipped kitchen and dining room and a substantial luncheon is served each day, free of cost, to all employes who are engaged around the plant.

Stories Are Original Creations

The serial on which the Oliver people are working is commonly referred to as the "Craig Kennedy Serial" but, as set down in the early advertising literature, the title reads "Craig Kennedy, The Serial." The principal role, played by Herbert Rawlinson, is a screen adaptation of the "Craig Kennedy" of short story fame as introduced in the Saturday Evening Post. The serial's story, written by Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey, is, however, an original story along the same lines as the Saturday Evening Post series but dealing with different subject matter.

Of the six subjects that have been completed, three of them have been roughly titled, and it is likely that they will be shown the trade some time in the near future. A number of possible buyers have seen these three episodes and, Mr. Goodman says, have been sufficiently impressed with the quality of the production to make offers for the entire serial without further examination. The Export & Import Film Co., Inc., who control the foreign rights, have already sold the serial in many territories without having had to show a single episode.

Within the next ten days, or before the first serial has been completed, work will be started in the same studios by a second Oliver company on another serial which has already been mapped out. It is also announced that plans are being made for the production of a genuine novelty which will establish the Oliver company in a brand new field.

The Screen as an Influence Upon a Nation's Development

Claim is made that 500,000,000 people annually visit Picture Theatres in Great Britan and that millions of boys and girls are forming their conceptions of life and conduct in accordance with what they see at the Cinemas—and ninety per. cent. of the pictures are of Foreign Origin.

The London "Bioscope" publishes an article on the screen as a medium of national advertising and a circular on the subject sent out to the manufacturers and traders by the Industrial Publicity Service, Ltd., a concern anxious to undertake the titanic task of solving that problem for Great Britain.

We reproduce below parts of the prospectus issued by the London firm in question, which will doubtless prove of interest to the American trade.

"The purpose of this sheet is to persuade manufacturers and their trade associations that they should take a serious view of the incalculable influence of the cinema on world trade developments as, in effect, a great medium of national advertisement.

"Producers of films in this country have not been given the same facilities as in America, France, Italy, Scandinavia and Germany, for recording on the screen scenes of national life and industry. Abroad, the man with the camera has been made welcome everywhere; on the railway station, at the mine, in the factory. In the United Kingdom he has been commonly treated as a nuisance or as engaged in some frivolous pastime meaning nothing to solid business interests. Some of the serious consequences are briefly discussed below.

"Within a few years regular attendance at picture theatres has become an almost universal habit. In Great Britain, for example, the figures exceed 500,000,000 patrons per annum, or twelve times the total population. It is an extraordinary anomaly that over 90 per cent. of the films shown to these people are of foreign origin.

Picture Influence Likened to that of Newspapers

"What would be thought of a great country whose newspapers were to the extent of 90 per cent. foreign controlled and representative of foreign mentality?

"It is an error to set this question aside as merely concerned with the amusements of the people. What they see on the screen habitually, like what they may read habitually, must have a profound psychological effect. There are, for example, millions of our boys and girls who are forming their conceptions of life and conduct in accordance with what is shown to them at the picture theatre. If British ideas and ideals and standards are to be preserved the cinema film should have a national character just as much as our literature and our journalism.

"There is another very serious aspect of this question in regard to political and commercial relations with Empire and foreign States.

"Through the remarkable enterprise of the American cinema trade—representing now one of the half dozen most lucrative exports of that country—the United States is by far the best advertised nation in the world. Every day millions of people all over the globe have before their eyes American scenery, American heroes and heroines, American industrial and social backgrounds, offices, factories, farms and households, and American taste in all manner of articles of trade.

Deplore Britain's Failure to Spread Its Ideals

"Admirable as much of this may be, it is not possible to regard with complacency the almost complete lack of exported British films to convey similarly effective impressions on behalf of our country to the Dominions and Colonies, and to the great and small foreign States with which we need to maintain advantageous commercial and political relations.

"The incalculable importance of this indirect but most powerful influence on general trade competition has naturally not escaped the attention of German industrial directors.

"Britain cannot afford to look on while America and Germany contest for mastery of world-wide cinema propaganda, as, apart from the actual remunerative results of the trade in itself, it is bound to have a rapidly growing effect on the development of all other trades.

"Industrial Publicity Service, Ltd., urges manufacturers to give, in the first instance, all reasonable facilities in the use of their works as backgrounds for cinema scenes, so that British producers may have this encouragement to prepare and distribute films which will give telling impressions to the public at home and abroad of features of industrial life in this country, and will thus contribute to sustaining British good will and the traditional belief in our sound methods of production and trade.

British Manufacturers Asked to Help Movement

"We invite correspondence from manufacturers making some reference to the facilities they are willing to give at their works or offices, so that producers of story films may avail themselves of British industrial backgrounds; the features of their business which they regard as being particularly suitable for this purpose (e. g., interesting processes of manufacture, convenient or picturesque or unique situation); and any suggestions which occur to them for giving encouragement to film production so that the "Pictures" throughout the world shall convey better impressions of British industry and enterprise.

"The information that we collect will be carefully recorded and classified, and will only be used confidentialy and impartially for the guidance and assistance of film producing firms wish to arrange their scenes with backgrounds representative of British industrial activity.

"It is not claimed that all the disadvantages under which film producers have labored will be thus removed; but we are assured that they will find these facilities of marked benefit, contributing on the one hand to the preparation of pictures of special interest likely to be in great demand, and on the other hand to giving favorable impressions at home and abroad of the scope and variety of British manufacturing, and the conditions under which it is directed.

Direct Advantages To Accrue to British Business

"There are several ways in which the development of cinematograhy promises to be of direct service to manufacturers in marketing their goods. Co-operation with film producers as described in the preceding paragraphs is mainly intended for giving better publicity to British industries as a whole, and to the advertising abroad of the nation or of certain prominent industrial cities or staple industries identified with such cities. It is to the obvious benefit of the country or the district or the industry that the many millions of regular picture theatre patrons should be thus familiarized with British industrial scenes and backgrounds.

"The more intimate employment of living photography for the trade purposes of particular firms falls into two main divisions:

1. Exhibition in the head or local offices of the firm, or actually in the office of a prospective customer, of technical processes, selling points, and method of using the firm's machinery or manufacturers.

"2. Display of pictures of the firm's works or of the featuring of some particular product to be exploited at some form of public exhibition, or before selected invited groups of business people likely to be interested.

Portable Projectors to Spread Industrial Doctrine

"In the exploitation of the first-mentioned method it is probable that many firms will in the future employ portable projecting apparatus, by means of which the salesman or traveller can show, either in his own office or in the office of a customer, the selling points of the article in which business is being negotiated. The requirements are quite simple—a small amount of ordinary wall space, preferably painted or papered in light tint (or the reverse side of a wall map or a sheet on rollers), and a means of electrical connection, for which an ordinary lamp bracket is sufficient.

"The second method mentioned is necessarily more complicated and expensive. It involves the use of some hall or room to which the general public or some specially interested public may be invited. In some particular cases it is possible that the processes shown are of such striking public interest or importance that space may be found for a film in the actual program of the ordinary picture theatres, but only in rare instances could this method be used in such a manner that the name of the firm would receive any advertising benefit.

"Under present conditions it would appear that there is little attraction in this method as a competitive aid to any firm. General exhibition should be regarded from the point of view of telling the story of a whole industry, or picturing a city with its local interests, and even in such cases the effect is likely to be more impressive on the public mind if such scenes are used as the background for a skillfully composed narrative film."

INTERNATIONAL EXPORT AND IMPORT SECTION of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Conducted by
F. G. Ortega and Randall M. White

A special department of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD devoted to the exploitation of moving pictures wherever the English language is used in trade.

A part of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD once a month in the issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD published the Saturday nearest the first of the month and bearing date of the Saturday nearest the fifteenth.

The next INTERNATIONAL SECTION will appear in the issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD dated SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1919.

Advertising forms close, Tuesday February 11, 1919.

"The Posters, God Preserve Us"

Our posters do not seem to be making a hit in France.

One of the Paris trade papers says: "We have a lot to learn from our American friends. Their energy, hustling activity and practical common sense are admirable qualities, but . . . God preserve us from their moving picture posters!"

We don't blame the French. We have yet to see a single unconventional poster designed in this country. Most of those we have seen were of the crude regulation, machine-made type. And the worst part of it is that our designers are absolutely convinced of their superiority over all comers, in fact they become patronizing and sarcastic whenever an original pictorial work is brought to their notice.

* * *

Here is a little fact of some significance. Barcelona, with scarcely 800,000 inhabitants, has at present thrice as many moving picture houses as Paris with a population of nearly four millions. Frank J. Marion of the Kalem Company, who has been representing the Committee on Public Information in the Peninsula, with offices at Madrid, told the writer that he had a list of about 2,000 moving picture theatres in Spain. We notice, however, that some American producers are still selling the Spanish rights on their pictures together with several other territories and not as a separate market.

* * *

The dealers in "wide-world-rights," as some of the foreign buyers have begun to call the dupers, pirates and other gentry that used to make their headquarters in New York before this country entered the war, seem to have resumed their activities with greater enthusiasm than ever. An impresario from the other side of the pond, when told by a local exporter that the business was now under absolute control, remarked that there were a few places near 42d street where, "for a moderate sum, anybody could obtain an illicit copy of even the last thought of Griffith."

The Abnormality of Peace

THE moving picture business throughout the world is in the midst of a crisis. The exhibitor does not feel it—yet—neither does the public, but the exporters, producers, distributors and importers are on the qui vive wherever films are a commercial factor.

Great Britain is facing a disturbing situation. Will there be a preferential tariff between the mother country and the dominions? Will it include films, if enacted? Here are problems enough to keep the New York exporters and London agents busy for a while.

If such preferential arrangement, which is advocated in the highest quarters on the other side of the Atlantic, becomes a law, what will be its effect on the American producers who have been accustomed to reckon and rely on the British market? And—following the hypothesis—what would be the future of the London dealers that have been thriving for years on the exploitation of American pictures?

France offers the same uncertainly. A movement is on foot to raise the duty against foreign films, and the opinion among the New York exporters is that it will materialize in some sort of tariff revision in favor of the French producers. How would such measure affect our film exports to Paris and the territories supplied from the French capital?

And what about Central Europe, with its teeming millions, hundreds of large cities and thousands of moving picture theatres? That it will be far from a closed market to American pictures is the opinion held by experienced men everywhere, and we divulge no secret by stating that since the armistice was signed a lot of quiet but highly energetic maneuvering has been going on to secure the vantage point when the proper time arrives and trading restrictions are eliminated. This sparring for position in regard to the Teutonic nations, timid and hesitating at the start, is in full swing at this moment in all the large film centres.

To people who are still breathing war atmosphere and thinking war thoughts, this may seem unpatriotic and mercenary, and our discussion of the subject untimely. But the fact is that, all arguments, opinions and general hysteria, to the contrary, human nature is human nature and trade is trade—and bunkum, by the way, is also the same article in New York, London or Paris—and it does not take a prophet to foretell that American films in large quantities will be on their way to Germany and Austria before the ink is dry on the treaty of peace.

This being so, how will American pictures be handled in those territories? By way of Paris, London or direct from New York?

Something of a similar nature is also happening in Spain. During the war the Barcelona renters and importers labored under the constant threat of being thrown out of business by the restrictions on film export enforced by Italy, France and Great Britain, but, although they had every inducement to place their orders in New York, very little trading of importance was done direct with this country. Now, however, when conditions are becoming normal and the European producers and exporters are in a position to supply the Spanish market without any trouble, the Spaniards—to prove the old saying that they will always do the unexpected—are beginning to sign large contracts with American manufacturers and exporters.

To make matters even more complicated, French and British dealers, who should be marking time and watching developments if the reports of discriminating tariff changes in France and Great Britain are to be taken seriously, are buying film in the United States in greater quantities than ever.

On these conflicting facts and views we base our conclusion that the international moving picture business is in a critical state. It is not exactly a crisis, but rather a period of uncertainty which will not be dispelled until the peace treaty has been signed and the reconstruction measures adopted by the different belligerent nations become public property.

The United States can scan the horizon with certain degree of assurance. Our reconstruction problems are of easier solution than those of any other country, and our enormous home market coupled with overwhelming popularity of American pictures in Latin America and the Far East, as well as our predominating position everywhere in the field of moving pictures, are all factors the weight of which will be decisively felt when normality is restored.

In Italy, a peculiar situation seems to be developing. Despite the fact that American pictures made little headway during the war, when all the advantages were in their favor, some important contracts have recently been signed in New York, indicating that several Italian distributors of standing are satisfied that their introduction on a large scale can be profitably attempted.

YOU MUST HAVE A BUYING AGENT

A VERY SPECIAL TALK

IN A DAY of limited shipping space, foreign buyers discovered the value of dealing with an American exporting firm that had no producer interests. The buyers who "tied to Inter-Ocean" got THE FILMS THEY WANTED in the face of all restrictions. Where only a little film could be shipped to a foreign purchaser of American films, that little was "preference" material—of HIS preference.

Inter-Ocean had no favorites to play, no product in which it was financially interested, except as a straight matter of price based on THE MARKET VALUE TO YOU, THE FOREIGN BUYER.

Peace is here; restrictions are gradually reducing, but the war-time lesson still has weight with the careful foreig picture purchaser.

It is safest and sanest to take you American films from a house that i not financially interested in any Ameri can producing firm!

Your New York buying agents, t give you 100% service, must be clea of the entangling alliances of the pro ducing field, must appraise the whol field ONLY IN THE LIGHT OF YOU NEEDS.

Inter-Ocean has no interests what soever in any American producing com pany, and is therefore superbly quali fied to act as your New York buying agent.

You need a tested buying agent i New York like Inter-Ocean because th American producing field to-day i

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

INTER-OCEAN FILM

INTER-OCEAN BUILDING, 218 WEST

"We Operate Everywhere"—Larges Fields and Sole Exporters of

AN IMPARTIAL IN NEW YORK

WITH FOREIGN BUYERS

By President

ffering a long list of subjects that sur-ass in quality and drawing power the ilms made in any other land.

It is for this reason that we urge you o be represented—by Inter-Ocean—in New York. Another reason is that the English producing field is about to get ctive and that the Continent will wit-ness a production revival shortly. And he Inter-Ocean offices in London and Paris act as watch-dogs on those pro-ducing fields!

The result is that buyers whom Inter-Ocean represents don't lie awake nights in the fear that something good from one of the great producing fields will slip away to a competitor.

Commission Inter-Ocean to act for you to-day!

And don't wait to write—CABLE!

Can immediately furnish a regular supply of World, Paralta, Plaza, and other famous American brands, featuring such stars as Louise Huff, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley, Carlyle Blackwell, Alice Brady, Ethel Clayton, Kitty Gordon, Lewis S. Stone, J. Warren Kerrigan, Bessie Barriscale, Louise Glaum, Henry B. Walthall, Rhea Mitchell, Howard Hickman, Anita King, Kathleen Clifford and Jackie Saunders. Or those big Inter-Ocean special features like "Wives of Men" with Florence Reed, "Hearts Across the Sea" with Arnold Daly, and "The Transgressor," a successor to, and of the same type as the mighty successful "Victim." Or those funny Inter-Ocean comedies by the Whartons and other great producers, and Adventure films like Frederick Burlingham's. Or accessories like Speer Carbons, the "Fulco" line of 300 time and money-saving appliances, and the Globe Steel Reel, which permits the quick replacement of broken springs.

CORPORATION

42ND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Distributors of Films in Foreign
Speer Carbons and Fulco Accessories

INTER-OCEAN SECURES GRAPHICS!

When a motion picture can be sold state rights in the United States, it MUST be SPECIAL. It must have EXTRA APPEAL. For the state rights market can only absorb the unusual in films. When a motion picture is big enough to "go state rights" in America, it is big enough for any theatre program anywhere unless its theme makes it unsuitable. The theme of Ivan Abramson's Graphic features makes them 100 per cent. suitable abroad! Graphic's reputation as a "special" is built on the fact that she didn't acquire it with ONE PICTURE. All of her releases to date—three—have been strong enough to "go state rights." Not one, mind you—THREE. And it is these that Inter-Ocean now offers, for the first time, to foreign buyers.

"WHEN MEN BETRAY"—Featuring Gail Kane, with an all star cast, including Robert Elliot, Stuart Holmes, Jack McLean, Sally Crute, Reed Hamilton, Dora Mills Adams, Gertrude Braun, Tallulah Bankhead, Hazel Washburn and Juliet Moore.

"ASHES OF LOVE"—Featuring James K. Hackett, Effie Shannon, Mable Juliene Scott and an all star cast, including Paula Shay, Ruby de Remer, Dora Mills Adams, Hugh Thompson, William Davidson, William Bechtel and Thea Talbot.

"THE ECHO OF YOUTH"—Featuring Charles Richman, Leah Baird, Pearl Shepard, supported by Marie Shotwell, Jack McLean, Peggy Shanor and William Bechtel.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L MGR. — 218 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"WE OPERATE EVERYWHERE"

LARGEST DISTRIBUTORS OF FILMS IN FOREIGN FIELDS AND SOLE EXPORTERS OF SPEER CARBONS AND FULCO ACCESSORIES.

PRODUCTION BOOMING IN ENGLAND

Gaumont Company, Ltd., Official Says Activity Has Resulted from Failure of American Exporters to Supply Demands with Smoothness and Speed Desired, Shipping Delays This Side the Atlantic Proving the Drawback.

INDICATES WHAT ENGLISH PUBLIC LIKES

English Picture Patrons Tiring of "Eternal Triangle" as Shown by Return to Standard Ideas of Love and Chivalry in Latest British Features—Five-Thousand-Foot Subjects Most Popular Among Exhibitors in the United Kingdom.

Gaumont is one of the most widely known names in the moving picture industry of the world. Gaumont productions were among the most important in the American market some years ago. In Europe the Gaumont distributing organization has always been one of great efficiency, and this article, contributed to the International Export and Import Section of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD by a London official of the Gaumont Company, is of particular interest because of the unusually close contact with the conditions under discussion the author has been able to enjoy.—Editor's Note.

The Gaumont Company, Limited, among the foremost of the cinematograph firms in the British Isles, has been rapidly forging ahead during the past year. It includes in its activities everything connected with the business, the supply of machines and accessories, production of films and printing, the taking of topical pictures and renting a variety of productions. The works, located at Lime Grove, Shepherds Bush, London, are capable of turning out a tremendous amount of positive printing each week, in addition to developing negatives. Adjoining the works is the studio, one of the most up-to-date buildings of its kind in Great Britain. It is a glass building, specially constructed for cinematograph work, and equipped with the latest appliances and original lighting arrangements.

Recent pictures produced here include a series of comedy films entitled "The Adventures of Eve." These are comedies suggested by the famous "Eve" caricatures which have been appearing in the leading society paper in London, The Tatler.

In addition to these comedies, J. L. V. Leigh, the director for the Gaumont Company, has also produced an English romance adapted from the novel by Dorin Craig entitled "The Key of the World."

The most recent production from the studio, however, is a racing story called "Pallard, the Punter," adapted from the book of the same name by the English writer, Edgar Wallace. This studio was also responsible for a series of films known as the "Ultus" series, which are now being released in the United States as a serial under the title, "The Hand of Vengeance."

Another branch of the company known as the Gaumont Film Hire Service is engaged in renting films, including several makes of pictures besides the Gaumont output. Foremost among them are the productions of the Select Pictures Corporation of America, Paralta Plays and Christie Comedies. The whole of the activities of the Gaumont Company in the British Isles are directed by Reginald C. Bromhead, a keen and far-sighted business man.

Mr. Bromhead was responsible for securing the exclusive rights throughout the British Isles for Select Pictures, Paralta Plays and Christie Comedies, and also the Paramount serial, "Who Is Number One?", which has just been put out in that country.

"With respect to the particular conditions now existing in the British Isles," said one of the members of the Gaumont Company, "one of the great difficulties of the moment is that connected with the shipment of films from the United States. Great trouble is caused over here by our not being able to depend upon shipments. The exact position and causes of delay on your side of the water are rather obscure to renters in this country. Apparently it takes weeks and sometimes months to get stuff to England, although once it arrives in Liverpool we are able to obtain delivery in London in three days. Some hurrying up of the authorities on the American side of the Atlantic would be greatly appreciated on this side, as, of course, we are largely dependent upon American films to supply the demand.

*"Some hurrying up of the authorities on the other side of the Atlantic would be greatly appreciated on this side * * "

" * * British production is booming and pictures are being turned out more quickly and in greater quantity than they have ever been before in spite of all handicaps."*

"There is no doubt that the British public is beginning to get a little tired of always having 'the eternal triangle' put in front of them as entertainment in American film."

" * * renters are being flooded with American war propaganda pictures * * * the majority of them are very much out of date * * * American producers should remember that Great Britain entered the war four years ago."*

"The demand for very sensational pictures is also on the wane."

*Duping is prevalent again, but "in most cases, however, this duping is due to the fact that negatives do not arrive from America in time * * "

"American producers will have to send across first-rate films in first-class condition if they wish to maintain their supremacy in the British market. British productions are becoming increasingly competitive and, if in peace time, as is quite likely to be, the supply of British pictures on the market is equal to American, the American producers will have to make a much bigger effort to sell their film."

"As a result of these difficulties in getting stuff across, British production is booming, and pictures are being turned out more quickly and in greater quantity than they have ever been before in spite of the war handicaps. These British productions seem to be popular both with British exhibitors and the public—undoubtedly due to their British atmosphere. English stories also are more inclined to deal with love and chivalry than with the sex question, which predominates in American productions.

"There is no doubt that the British public is beginning to get a little tired of always having the 'eternal triangle' put in front of them as entertainment in American films. At the moment the renters in this country are being flooded with American war propaganda pictures, in spite of the fact that these films would only have been useful in the British Isles about two or three years ago. Some, of course, are applicable to present day conditions, but the majority of them are very much out of date from the British point of view. American producers should remember that Great Britain entered the war four years ago. The demand for very sensational pictures is also on the wane, as instanced by the striking success of the French serial recently released in this country by the Gaumont Film Hire Service entitled 'Judex.' This serial, which was produced by Gaumont in France, depended for its success entirely upon the story, beautiful settings and wonderful photography. The story was one into which love and humor were introduced, and which, although stimulating the curiosity of the public week by week, nevertheless did not picture all sorts of improbabilities.

"Another question which is prominent before exhibitors at the moment is the question of the duping of films. In most cases, however, this duping is due to the fact that negatives do not arrive from America in time, and, consequently, renters either have to let their customers down or supply duped copies, which, of course, are never satisfactory.

"The Gaumont Company was the first company in England to advertise the policy of not showing anything to the trade until the negative was actually in England. This guaranteed exhibitors against let-downs and dupes. Apart from the responsibility, however, of the transit of negatives to England, many renters find that after sending for a sample print some producers send over a negative which contains portions of dupe. This is a practice which is very much resented in this country, and is held to be entirely unnecessary. It is quite obvious that with the present boom in British films and the tremendous boom which will come with peace, when the companies which have now been formed are absolutely ready to produce, the American producer will have to send across first-rate films in first-rate condition if they wish to maintain their supremacy in the British market.

"British productions are becoming increasingly competitive, and if in peace time, as is quite likely to be, the supply of British pictures on the market is equal to the American, the American producers will have to make a much bigger effort to sell their films.

"The censorship question in the British Isles lately has not been so acute as it was during the war. This is largely due to the fact that the Board of Censors,

(Continued on page 1100)

Another Boxoffice Whirlwind!

The

CRAIG KENNEDY SERIAL

EVER since Edgar Allan Poe turned his superior genius to the task of manufacturing mysteries in order that he might solve them with the aid of science and common sense, detective stories have been a preferred diet for readers in search of mental excitement. "Sherlock Holmes," "Raffles," and other characters of fiction have commanded the attention of millions and most recently "Craig Kennedy," using the most marvelous methods in unraveling apparently hopeless mysteries, has become a favorite among the millions of readers who have been introduced to him through the columns of the Saturday Evening Post.

HERBERT RAWLINSON and MARGARET MARSH supported by a cast of remarkable excellence, have been chosen by OLIVER FILMS, INC., to transfer to the screen a series of exciting stories written by Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey with Craig Kennedy and his characteristic methods as the central themes. Donald Mackenzie is directing the serial.

. . . It's been my business for a good many years to look at pictures. The Export & Import Film Co. have bought a lot of them and that we're selling them easily is the best indication that we know what "good pictures" are. Take this statement for just what it is worth: The Craig Kennedy Serial is the best I have ever seen. BEN BLUMENTHAL,
Export and Import
Film Co., Inc.

15 SMASHING EPISODES—31 REELS

TO BE RELEASED MARCH 17TH

WE'RE SELLING THE FOREIGN RIGHTS NOW

Some Person Else Will Buy Your Territory If You Don't

Act Quickly

Export & Import Film Co. Inc.

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

AFTER PICTURES AGAIN IN GREAT BRITAIN

Sir Sidney Lee Proposes Legal Measures to Keep Children Out of Kinemas in Poorer Districts on Ground That They Are Harmful—News Notes from London and the Provinces.

Special Correspondence to the Moving Picture World by J. B. Sutcliffe.

London, January 15.

"A most essential thing is to dissuade or prevent children, especially in the poorer districts, from spending all their pocket money or leisure time at picture palaces, where the programs are almost entirely deleterious to their minds and their imagination. I think this evil is a very serious one for the rising generation, and, although one would like to improve matters by voluntary effort, it looks as though it might be necessary for the educational authorities to seek some legal power to prohibit the admission of children to picture palaces of the inferior kind, which abound in the poorer districts throughout the kingdom."

Although this statement is an extravagant one and will be endorsed by no exhibitor, coming from Sir Sidney Lee it sounds a note of warning that might be noted by the manufacturers of moving picture films. The occasion of its utterance was an exhibition of educational films by the Kinema Recreative Council, a recently formed institution which, to quote its own words, "aims at uniting in a definite effort the clergy, teachers and social workers to harness the unbounded force of the kinema in the interest of right-thinking and noble living." It is well known in the industry that at the outbreak of war the Government had under consideration a multitude of proposals for the control of juvenile attendance at moving picture shows. But these, along with many other contemplated measures, were promptly obscured by the dark cloud that enveloped the continent in 1914. Are they now in prospect of resurrection, is the question to be asked. In their pre-war form I candidly believe they are not. The moving picture moved with the martial times and, as a potent weapon of warfare, has received the fullest acknowledgment the state could give. Any neglect in its intended development upon educational lines was laid at the door of the abnormal conditions. The war as an excuse is no longer valid, and the manufacture who bears this in mind in sending his films to Europe might be saved a few disappointments. While acknowledging that both at home and in America film producers are beginning to realize their moral responsibilities, Sir Sidney added "that the power for good in the kinema is inadequately utilized and the power for evil imperfectly checked."

Middlesex Authorities Consider Drastic Measures

The recent serious epidemic of Spanish influenza in England, occasioning, amongst other inconveniences, the closing of moving picture theatres in some districts, and the exclusion of children in others, has moved the Middlesex County Council to propose new legislation to meet any future emergency. Instead of devoting its energies to the public health department, some of the harassing suggestions of the council show a preference for cure rather than prevention. No child who "looks" under the age of fourteen is to be admitted; duration of the exhibition must not exceed three hours without forty-five minutes interval for ventilation, and, finally, the council reserves the power to close down any theatre should occasion arise.

Renters' Society May Be Divided

The detailed organization of the new British union of film exchangemen, both manufacturing and independent, embodied as the Renters' Society of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd., is virtually complete. But there is no inconsiderable dissension in the trade respecting its constitution and probable policy, for, as has been mentioned in these columns before, one of the conditions which it is claimed will guarantee the stability of the society in all its undertakings, and guarantees is a cash deposit of one hundred pounds from each member upon entrance and an additional quota of that amount by way of an annual subscription. The many renters or exchangemen we have in London and the Provinces in a limited way of business —I can best compare them to the American state rights buyers—take this stipulation to politely infer their exclusion, and so general has been this interpretation that a meeting has been held in Wardour street to formulate a plan of action for the modest independent exchange man. The Renters' Society will most probably be approached to modify its terms, or, alternatively, a second renters association will be formed as was done in the case of the exhibitors after the schism in their ranks eighteen months ago.

"Hearts of the World" in British "Legit" Houses

W. F. Burlock, representing "D. W. G.," is booking initial runs to London and provincial "legit" theatres and vaudeville shows of "Hearts of the World." This super-feature had its English premiere at the London Palace some months ago, where it probably established itself more as a "cause celebre" than as a successor to "Intolerance." The latter and "The Birth of a Nation" are still booking extensively in provincial centres.

Close Big Deal with Vitagraph Company

The old firm of Ruffels, of Longacre, is once more to the forefront in exchange enterprise by entering into an arrangement with the Vitagraph Company to distribute all their features and serials throughout the United Kingdom, excepting only the London district and southern counties.

Barrie to Write Red Cross Scenario

Sir J. M. Barrie has signified his willingness to write a scenario to picturize the history and growth of the Red Cross organization.

AUSTRALIAN COMPANY BEING FORMED

Roland Stavely Heads Organization Which Is to Embark in Business on Big Scale—Entire Foreign Rights to "The Enemy Within," Recently Produced, Acquired by American Concern.

Special correspondence to the Moving Picture World by T. S. Imrie.

Sydney, January 2.

Roland Staveley, who recently produced the very successful subject, "The Enemy Within," is about to form a limited liability company for Australian productions on a sound business basis. This scheme includes the acquiring of a recently erected up-to-date studio, built on similar principles to the latest Californian studios, at Middle Harbor, Sydney. Mr. Staveley also is making arrangements for the company to have its own distributing agents in every state, with connections abroad. The foreign rights to "The Enemy Within" were recently acquired by an American company.

* * *

The locally-made production of "Struck Oil" was to have been shown at the Sydney Town Hall on November 20, but owing to the present shortage of raw film it was impossible to procure the necessary material anywhere in Australia. As a result, the release date has been put back several weeks.

* * *

Under the auspices of the Royal Agricultural Society of New South Wales a number of interesting Canadian Government films were given a private screennig in Sydney this week. The principal film depicts the bulk-handling of wheat in Canada, showing the complete operations in harvesting, railway transportation and shipping overseas.

Over 3,000 invitations were issued for the screening and a very representative audience was present.

* * *

Melbourne picture showmen are complaining that the action of the Government in giving only one day's grace in notifying the public of the new entertainment tax has placed them in an unusual position. They state there is a great shortage of pennies, which necessitates the employment of men to scour the city banks and business establishments daily for pennies. They also complain that the theatres which are not working under a bond to pay the tax have to employ a staff to attach as many as 1,100 stamps to tickets daily. An appeal is being made to the theatregoing public, asking them to bring their own pennies.

* * *

The first amendment to the Entertainments Tax came into force on November 11. As previously stated, this puts a tax of one penny on admissions of threepence and sixpence.

* * *

The Tasmanian Government announces that the state censorship of films has been relinquished as far as Tasmania is concerned, as it is considered that the Federal Board is adequate to the situation.

* * *

Union Theatres, Ltd., have again taken control of the Lyceum Theatre, Sydney. A policy of double-feature programs has been inaugurated for all sessions, continuous performances being given from 11 a. m. till 10.30 p. m.

For the reopening, Madge Kennedy will head the bill in a Goldwyn production, "The Service Star," and Frank Keenan, in Pathe's "More Trouble," completes the program.

The taking over of the Lyceum places ten Sydney theatres under the control of W. Barrington Miller, and brings the Australian total to over the fifty mark.

* * *

The Spanish influenza epidemic in New Zealand is now abating rapidly and business is gradually getting back to normal. All places of entertainment and public halls still remain closed, however, except in Wellington, which is now declared a "clean" city. The continuous houses there are only open from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. daily, and this will continue for some time. To offset the short hours of screening, with decreased receipts, prices of admission have been increased considerably. In other parts of the Dominion the outlook for exhibitors is far from cheerful. Some houses have been closed for nearly two months now, with small hope of opening again before the New Year.

* * *

Thomas E. Preston is in the American market for special attractions and has secured as his first subject the exclusive feature, "Where Is My Father," to be

(Continued on page 1100)

STARS SUPREME

MARY PICKFORD

This most widely known of motion picture stars is a favorite wherever the screen is used as a means of entertainment. The new series of pictures Miss Pickford is making under a special contract with the First National Exhibitors' Association are being sold in foreign markets exclusively by David P. Howells. There will be three of these super-productions during 1919; the first, a screen version of "Daddy Longlegs," directed by Marshal Neilan, will be ready soon.

The New ANITA STEWART Series

"Virtuous Wives," the first of six special productions in which Miss Stewart will appear during 1919 under the management of Louis B. Mayer, drew record-breaking business at the Strand Theatre, New York, recently. The remaining five will have equal draft. Some of the most discriminating foreign buyers have already closed contracts for the entire series through the David P. Howells office.

Also Selling

All Foreign Rights on Entire Output of First National Exhibitors' Circuit (Excepting the Chaplin Releases) and Entire Output of United Picture Theatres of America

DAVID P. HOWELLS

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

(Continued from page 1098)
released in Sydney this month. Mr. Preston also owns the New Zealand rights to this subject and it will be shown there probably next month.

* * *

The Federal Government has abandoned its projected scheme of paper control, which, if put into action, would have seriously affected motion picture advertising. This was made possible by the Controller being given the power to delete or limit the size of any special class of advertising. Exhibitors in this state advertise extensively, and as far as New South Wales is concerned, that clause in the regulation was directed right at the showmen. The abandonment of the scheme frees them entirely from a dangerous possibility which would have undoubtedly done much harm.

* * *

R. L. (Snowy) Baker, who returns this month from America, will, in all probability, begin another series of pictures after the New Year. While in America Mr. Baker spent two weeks looking over the picture studios, and was deeply impressed at the magnitude of the industry.

* * *

D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World" is now in the fourth week of its Sydney season, and is still drawing good houses in spite of the influenza scare. The season will, however, close this week, as the theatre is required for the legit. attraction, "Oh, Oh, Delphine." The Melbourne season is a duplication of the Sydney success, and in the southern capital a long run seems assured.

INTER-OCEAN GETS GRAPHIC PRODUCTS

Ivan Abramson's Pictures, Including "Ashes of Love," "When Men Betray," "The Echo of Love," and Forthcoming Releases Involved in Deal Recently Consummated.

President Paul H. Cromelin announces that the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation has completed negotiations with the Graphic Film Corporation whereby the Inter-Ocean becomes distributor in the world market, exclusive of the United States and Canada, of the three Graphic productions that have been produced to date entitled "Ashes of Love," "When Men Betray" and "The Echo of Youth." Inter-Ocean's acquisition of these specials comes right on the heels of their purchase of "Wives of Men" from Pioneer Film Corporation, and is evidence of this exporter's desire for special features to meet foreign demand.

The Inter-Ocean statement reads: "Ivan Abramson was long an independent producer, and started the Graphic Film Corporation in order to bring out a bigger type of special feature than his name had up to that time been identified with. The Graphic business has been in existence for over a year, and yet only three features have been made. This simple fact in itself tells volumes about the class of his product. All three productions have been successfully marketed in that most difficult of American markets, the state rights field, and this was a further recommendation to us in considering the exploitation abroad of these productions."

President Cromelin believes that an important factor in the success of the Graphic plays was found in the care with which Abramson picked his casts. Seldom in the history of filmdom has a cast contained so many prominent artists as those engaged for "Ashes of Love," which features James K. Hackett, Effie Shannon, Mabel Juliene Scott, Paula Shay, Ruby De Remer, Dora Mills Adams, Hugh Thompson, William B. Davidson, William Bechtel and Thea Talbot. Although this director, of course, realized that "names" give added prestige to a picture, it was not for their reputation alone that the selection was made. While writing his photoplays he has a habit of visualizing some particular actor or actress in the role of each character he creates, making a note of their names on the manuscript, with the result that, when the story is finished, he has a tentative cast already chosen.

Ivan Abramson.

"When Men Betray" stars Gail Kane, with a supporting cast that includes Robert Elliot, Stuart Holmes, Jack McLean, Sally Crute, Reed Hamilton, Dora Mills Adams, Gertrude Braun, Tallulah Bankhead, Hazel Washburn and Juliet Moore. Mr. Abramson's latest Graphic production is "The Echo of Youth," which features Charles Richman, Leah Baird and Pearl Shepard, supported by Marie Shotwell, Jack McLean, Peggy Shanor and William Bechtel.

FRANCE WANTS TARIFF READJUSTMENT

Complaint Made That American Moving Pictures Are Given Advantages in French Territory Which French Pictures Are Denied in United States.

The agitation against the introduction of American films into France on the present basis, started when the French industry was at its lowest ebb in the still not very rosy days of early September, is now in full swing. The manufacturers, renters and even the exhibitors who have only been able to keep going during the last years of the war owing to the supply of American pictures, seem to be unanimous in their opinion that the French industry must be saved at all costs and that the raising of the tariff is the first logical step to be taken in the campaign for the rehabilitation of French pictures at home and abroad.

Henri Coutant, from the columns of the Paris Cine-Journal, makes the following statement, which we reproduce for the benefit of American exporters and producers, as the question of tariffs and their revision will be one of the chief points to be discussed at the peace conference:

"We want to protect a French product against foreign competitors, and the first thing we have done has been to accord them practically free entry into the country, while we have tolerated without protest that these same competing nations should erect insurmountable barriers against the importation of our product. This situation seems almost incredible, but it is true nevertheless.

"Nobody ignores, for instance, that American films—to mention only the most dangerous competitor—can enter France by paying a small custom house fee, while the duties paid by French pictures imported into the United States are enormous. The figures speak for themselves.

"An American picture pays in France an import duty of 168 francs per 100 kilos, or about .008 of a franc per metre. A French film imported into the United States pays .36 of franc per metre of positive and 3.63 francs per metre of negative.

"How is it possible that French pictures could compete with the American product under these conditions?"

When Your Message is Carried by the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S PRESTIGE "Makes It Stick"

RUSSEL BACK AT WORK AFTER REPEATED ILLNESSES

David W. Russell, one of the pioneer film exporters of the United States, who, as representative of David Horsley, succeeded in introducing this manufacturer's photo products into England and on the European continent at a time when most American producers were not yet awake to the value of their foreign business, has, for the past six months, experienced three separate confinements to his home with sickness. The first two occasions, Mr. Russell suffered from a temporary form of paralysis which attacked his left knee and leg and confined him to his home for two stretches of six and four weeks, respectively. Having recovered from this ailment, Mr. Russell returned to his office only to suffer an attack of influenza, which was followed by pneumonia, and which kept him away from his business during the month of January. Once again, however, he is back at his desk and doing business as ever.

After Mr. Russell's return from London, he handled export from the American side of the Atlantic, and has put through quite a few important deals for British and European buyers of American photoplays.

BOOMING IN ENGLAND.

(Continued from page 1095)
although not an official Government body, nevertheless does its work very well, and is reasonable. The renters also are glad to co-operate, and as a result no objectionable films manage to get before the public. Plays adapted from well-known English novels or very successful English stage plays are the best drawing cards, and at the present time such pictures are superseding the drawing power even of picture 'stars.'

"Apparently the exhibitors in this country think the most useful length for a picture is five thousand feet, which enables them to balance up their program with a comedy, an episode of a serial, and a news film. This is about eight thousand feet in all, and is about the average length of program shown throughout the British Isles."

APOLLO TRADING CORPORATION

Foreign Distributors for

J. STUART BLACKTON'S
7-REEL PRODUCTION
"LIFE'S GREATEST PROBLEM"
Featuring MITCHELL LEWIS and RUBY DE REMER

ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN in
"WANTED FOR MURDER" and all
Independent Sales Corporation Productions

G. M. ANDERSON Creator of "BRONCHO BILLY" in "RED BLOOD AND YELLOW," "SON OF A GUN," "SHOOTIN' MAD" and Seven Others

MOLLIE KING in
"SUSPENSE"

EMMETT DALTON in
"BEYOND THE LAW"

DAVID G. FISHER'S
"THE LAW OF NATURE"

A Brand New SERIES
TWENTY-ONE TWO-REEL
BILLY WEST COMEDIES

APOLLO TRADING CORPORATION

226 WEST 48TH ST. NEW YORK CITY, U. S. A.
TELEPHONE: BRYANT 1800 CABLE ADDRESS: "APOLTRADE"

TABARÉ

A Genuine Photoplay Novelty!

A Remarkable Screen Adaptation of the Most Widely Read Poetical Work Ever Produced on the South American Continent

AN INDIAN LEGEND OF THE SPANISH CONQUEST

Written by ZORRILLA DE SAN MARTIN

An Eight-Reel Production of Rare Strength and Beauty

WORLD RIGHTS

GILLESPIE BROS. & CO.

220 West Forty-second Street New York City, U. S. A.

(Continued from page 1082)

vary greatly from the average of its type in general presentation, but the plot is stronger than most of them.

Cast

Lena .....Fritzi Brunette
Slavey .....William Sheer
Biggs .....Jos. Girard
Gregory .....Charles Dorian

Story by Harvey Yates.
Directed by Douglas Gerrow.

The Story.

Peter James Slaney, who has just been released from jail a month, lives at a cheap place known as the Paris Hotel. He has been kind to a slavey, named Lena, who falls in love with him as a result. It is because the abusive landlady mistreats Lena that Slaney again determines to go wrong. He accepts money tendered him by a mysterious visitor, who asks him to enter the home of the political boss, John Biggs. Slaney agrees to do this and to follow certain instructions in a sealed envelope, which is not to be opened until he is inside the house.

Slaney enters the Biggs home and is so affected by the sight of a grieving child that he forgets to open the envelope. Instead, he kidnaps the little girl, at her request, as she says her father, John Biggs, treats her cruelly. Slaney and Lena take care of the child until further events of a semi-political character bring Biggs to terms. It then develops that the kidnapping of the child was what Slaney had really been employed to do. Prior to this Slaney has many exciting adventures in his efforts to escape from the police and plain clothes men.

Advertising Angles: Play up the star. Get up a throwaway reading "A sealed envelope doesn't seem much, but one brought trouble to many people. You can see how at the (house and date)." Seal these in plain envelopes and distribute from house to house. On the face have written. "Don't let your wife see this." Cover the lobby display with a frame in imitation of a sealed envelope and letter the title on the frame. Hinge this to the top of the display and place it so close to the sidewalk that it may be raised by passers by.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The Contents of a Sealed Envelope Hid From View a Message of Sensational Importance.

If the Envelope Had Been Opened Months of Agony Would Have Been Avoided.

Fritzi Brunette Star of Sensational Photoplay of Thrilling Interest.

Underworld Exposures Rock the Grafters From Their Seats.

Political Intrigue Couple With Underworld Crimes in Photoplot.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Stock one-sheet of star. Colored and black-and white lobby displays. Slide. Heralds. Players' cuts in three sizes. Scene cuts one and two columns wide. Press book.

"BREEZY JIM."

Five-Part Triangle Featuring Crane Wilbur Follows Old-Fashioned Methods of Production.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

TRIANGLE'S release for Feb. 22, "Breezy Jim," is a David Horsley production directed by Lorimer Johnson. It features Crane Wilbur, with Juanita Hansen in the feminine lead, and is rather difficult to tabulate. If there are those left among present day moving picture audiences who like films of the old school, "Breezy Jim" will please them. It is devised after strictly old-fashioned methods, even to its subtitles. There is evident in the production no serious attempt at dramatic construction, the plot ambling from one incident to another. Crane Wilbur as "Breezy Jim" gives an attractive impersonation, and shows up to better advantage individually than he has done in other productions in which he has appeared.

Cast

Breezy Jim.....Crane Wilbur
Patricia Wentworth.....Juanita Hansen

Story by J. Francis Dumbar.
Directed by Lorimer Johnson.

The Story.

A detective posing as an idle stranger in a Western town, steals a ride on a stage coach on which is a pretty young girl from the East who has come West in search of a "real man." Arrived at the town of Cheyenne, Arizona, in company with one "Old Timer" he discovers a questionable character in the shape of an evangelist who is supposedly trying to rid the town of "Demon Rum." The evangelist, on a secret mission in the hills is followed by the detective, and "Old Timer" and is discovered to be an escaped convict who has stolen a pailful of gold and buried it at the spot to which they follow him. "Old Timer," who is the actual owner of the gold, meets with rough treatment from the evangelist before Jim can interfere. Later the pretty girl from the East caring for the old man is kidnapped by the evangelist and rescued by Jim when she suddenly finds that he is the "real man" for whom she has been looking.

Publicity Points.

Dethroning the driver of a Western stage coach from his place beside a pretty girl, and fastening him securely to the back of the vehicle in a bag, is a novel way of beating ones way.

The transferring to the jail of the town's supply of booze adds a lustre to the lockup which dims the glint of stolen gold.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Pretty Girls Search for A Real Man Leads to Breathless Adventure in Western Wilds.

Bone Dry Advocate Suffers from Abnormal Thirst for Booze.

Transferring the Bone Dry Movement to the Screen in Graphic Relief.

Reforming the Wild West Proves Healthy Job for Adventurer.

Wild Adventure in the Woolly West Leads to Happy Marriage.

Advertising Angles: Anticipate the announcement of the play by a teaser ad. or snipe reading Patricia Wentworth wants a real man. Where can she find one?" Keep this up after the play is announced then change into "Patricia Wentworth can find a real man at the (house and date)." Then start to work on that angle in your regular advertising. If you have a lot of old player slides, run, eight or ten different men with a slide asking "Which one do you suppose was the one Patricia found?" In these troubled times you can get considerable capital out

SPECIAL BARGAINS
REBUILT MACHINES

We have on hand all makes of rebuilt machines which we GUARANTEE to be in A-1 ADJUSTMENT, all worn parts having been replaced by NEW PARTS.

Regular Simplex:
Hand Drive...New Price, $335 Rebuilt Price, $175
Motor Drive..New Price, $400 Rebuilt Price, $225
(110 volts, 60 cycles)

Powers 6-A:
Hand Drive...New Price, $280 Rebuilt Price, $100
Motor Drive..New Price, $338 Rebuilt Price, $150
(110 volts, 60 cycles)

Powers 6-B:
Used two months, Motor Drive..... $250
(110 volts, 60 cycles)

Motiograph, 1909 Model:
New Price, $225 Rebuilt Price, $30

Motiograph, 1915 Model:
Hand Drive...New Price, $250 Rebuilt Price, $125
Motor Drive..New Price, $285 Rebuilt Price, $150

Motiograph, 1916 Model:
Hand Drive...New Price, $265 Rebuilt Price, $150
Motor Drive..New Price, $305 Rebuilt Price, $175

Mercury Arc Rectifier:
New Price, $480 Rebuilt Price, $150
(110 to 220 volts, 60 cycles, 50 amperes)

All orders subject to prior sale.

Amusement Supply Co.
LARGEST EXCLUSIVE DEALERS TO THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE
300-302 Mallers Bldg. 5 S. Wabash Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.
Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Motion Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens, and Everything for the Theatre

GUARANTEED
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—total, 25,300; by States, $3.50. Per M.
1,500 film exchanges.....$5.00
313 manufacturers and studios..... 2.00
368 machine and supply dealers..... 2.00
Further Particulars:
A. F. WILLIAMS, 166 W. Adams St., Chicago

AUTHORS
Recognized photoplay and fiction writers may place their synopses with our Manuscript Sales Department for submission by personal representation to the producers of Southern California. Commission basis.
Unrecognized writers may obtain competent constructive advice and help through the Palmer Plan and Advisory Bureau. Write for our free explanatory booklet.
Palmer Photoplay Corporation
595 I. W. Hellman Bldg. LOS ANGELES, CAL.

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe—for authoritative articles by leading British technical men—for brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read
THE BIOSCOPE
The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
Specimen on Application

WONDERFUL PROJECTION WITH NEW SHUTTER
New scientific invention. It eliminates Flicker because it keeps the light on the screen constantly.
It eliminates eye-strain because the picture is never off the screen. It saves electricity. It produces a brighter picture. The old style shutter cuts off both picture and light intermittently. Write for descriptive circular.
B. F. PORTER - - - - 729 Seventh Avenue, New York of "He shaved a reformer and found a convict. The man who made Cheyenne bone dry had a thirst himself."

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art heralds. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Photographs. Slides. Electros and mats.

"THE LOVE AUCTION."

Fox Emotional Drama Provides Virginia Pearson with Many Tearful Moments.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IN "The Love Auction," produced by William Fox, a woman who marries for wealth, is made to pay heavily for not following the dictates of her heart. Virginia Pearson, who does her best work in emotional roles, plays a struggling young artist, who tries to find happiness after turning away from the man she really cares for and becoming the wife of a rich young chap, a member of high society. Her error causes her to turn again to her old lover and a new thought faker discovers their secret—a child which is born to the unhappy wife has the lover for its father. This is the strongest motive in the story. The faker tries to blackmail the woman, but her husband whose craze for liquor starts the trouble between the pair, kills the criminal, and the baby's parents are free to marry.

Such a story is sufficiently near to life to find a sympathetic following. The characters are truthfully enough drawn, although all three of the principals are regrettably weak. On the side of the workmanship of the picture, the plot is unfolded cleverly and the direction is of good grade. The acting of the star and the leading members of her support, Hugh Thompson, Edwin Stanley and Thurlow Boergen, is forceful.

Cast.

Lea Montrose, later Mrs. Vanderveer, ... Virginia Pearson
Mrs. Sebastian ..... Elizabeth Garrison
Jean Dale ..... Gladys MacClure
Dorian Vanderveer ..... Hugh Thompson
Jack Harley ..... Edwin Stanley
Dr. Charters ..... Thurlow Bergen

Directed by Edmund Lawrence.

The Story.

Lea Montrose, the heroine of "The Love Auction," sells herself. The man she has known and loved since childhood still has his fortune to make so she accepts the wealthy Dorian Vanderveer, whose one vice is drink. His fits of madness when intoxicated drives her into the arms of her old lover. A baby is born and its supposed father determines to reform for its sake. He learns the truth through the aid of a blackmailing faker, Dr. Charters. He resumes drinking, kills the doctor and ends his own life.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Virginia Pearson Star of Tragic Story Based On the Evil Consequences of Intemperance.

Love Sold for Gold Leads to Distressing Domestic Situation.

Cleverly Unfolded Plot Sheds New Light On Domestic Problems.

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Pearson and work on the esoteric idea. Tell of the numerous cults existing in New York and other cities which find their devotees—and victims—in the ranks of the idle society women who seek excitement. Play up this angle strongly, and tell that this story exposes the rottenness of these sects. You can clean up with this angle.

Advertising Aids: One, three and six sheets, two styles of each. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Announcement slide. Cuts, mats and press sheets (cuts are made on special order at rate of 20 cents per column; mats and press sheets are mailed gratis).

Released February 9.

"CHILD OF M'SIEU."

Baby Marie Osborne Featured in Triangle Production Inspired by Browning's "Pippa Passes" Gives Pleasing Impersonation of Little Heroine.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

WHILE the Triangle production "Child of M'sieu" was inspired by Robert Browning's "Pippa Passes" it must not be concluded that it is an adaptation of the poem. As would be expected Babie Marie Osborne has the center of the stage, and her pleasing naturalness and skill will win in spite of the limitations of the story. The picture was directed by Harrison Ingraham, the supporting cast consisting of Philo McCullough, Claire Alexander, Katherine Maclaren, supplemented by himself. There are no big moments in the picture, and the scenes are given over principally to exploiting the personality of the child actress. It does, however, contain that wholesomeness of atmosphere and purpose that usually characterizes a play of this kind.

Cast

Marie Child of M'sieu, ... Babie Marie Osborne
Philip, a man of Bohemian taste, ... Philo McCullough
Absinthe, lovable though a derelict, ... Harrison Ingraham
Claire, a plaything of fate, ... Claire Alexander
The Lace Lady, a flirt ..... Katherine MacLaren
M'sieu ..... The Tavern Keeper

Directed by Harrison Ingraham.

The Story.

At the inn of M'sieu lives a little girl who has been adopted by an old musician who furnishes the music for the place. In his earlier years the old man has served as accompanist to a great singer, who discharged him because of drunken habits. The singer had a daughter who at his death was turned on the world alone. One day as she despondently meditates death at the river brink, little Bab of the inn of M'sieu senses her distress and leads her to her own benefactor. The young woman is cared for and becomes the constant companion of Bab, and also a helper at the inn. In the final scenes of the story the old musician learns that she is the child of the singer of whom he was very fond. The young woman's love story with a frequenter of the inn is nicely concluded through the efforts of the child Bab.

Publicity Points.

The singing of a little child replaces evil thoughts with good.

The situations of the picture reveal the devious ways of fate in unraveling tangled threads.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Little Marie Osborne, Baby Star of the Silver Screen, In Another Fascinating Photoplay.

Screen Story Inspired by Browning's Poem, "Pippa Passes."

Clever Screen Play Made for Grown-Ups and Kiddies to Equally Enjoy.

Advertising Angles: Play up the child star and announce this as her most ambitious effort yet, a play founded upon the Browning poem or rather weaving that famous bit of verse into a new version. Hook up with the war and announce that you have adopted a French baby and will show her at your house on a certain date. A day or two later go on to tell that Baby Osborne is the little French kiddie in this case. Use plenty of pictures in the lobby.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art heralds. Lobby display, 11x14 and 22x28. Photographs. Slides. Electros and mats. Triangle magazines. Press sheets.

Released Feb. 16.

"AS THE SUN WENT DOWN."

Metro Pictures Corporation Releases Five-Reel Western Featuring Edith Storey.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

A WESTERN melodrama of the old-fashioned type, harking back to the manner of Bret Harte, is this five-reel Metro subject entitled "As the Sun Went Down." It is a production that abounds in entertaining characters, all carefully drawn and possessing strong individual interest. Yet the preponderance of good characters acts as something of a drawback, for each in turn leads the interest away from the others and this tends to weaken the dramatic interest at times. It is a picture that may be said to have

Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
Expert Developing, Printing and Coloring

CAMERA OUTFITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED

CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street San Francisco, Cal.

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention the MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera
Official Organ of the Italian Cinematograph Union
PUBLISHED ON THE 15th AND 30th OF EACH MONTH
Foreign Subscription: 20 francs per annum
Editorial and Business Offices: Via Cumiana, 31, Turin, Italy

COMMERCIAL LABORATORY WORK
In all its branches, receives INDIVIDUAL attention. Has the QUALITY and PUNCH which SELL prints.

RELEASE WORK
Specially equipped for QUANTITY production. Uniform SUPERIOR QUALITY such as only EXPERTS with scientific supervision can produce.

SPECIALTIES
If you have work requiring EXPERT SCIENTIFIC knowledge, we are BEST qualified to do it.

Empire City Film Lab., Inc.
345 W. 40th St., New York City
Bryant 5437 Bet. Eighth and Ninth Aves.

too much plot and action to be entirely effective.

There are some fine moments of pathos in this story, and some strong situations. One of these is where the rough Westerners ascort the fledgling minister to the home of an outcast woman, pretending she runs a quiet, respectable boarding house. The woman, known as "Colonel Billy," is portrayed by Edith Storey, and the story is largely concerned with the regeneration of this character. There is good intermingling of humor and pathos.

Cast.

"Colonel Billy".....Edith Story
Faro Bill.....Lewis J. Cody
Arbuthnot, known as "The Tarantula," Harry S. Northrup
Albert Atherton, the "Sky Pilot," William Brunton
Gerald Morton.....E. A. Turnor
Mabel Morton, his wife..Frances Burnham
Sal Sue.....Za Su Pitts
Gin Mill Jack.....F. E. Spooner
Pizen Ike.....Alfred Hollingsworth
Ike's Wife.....Vera Lewis
Piety Pete.....George W. Berrell

Directed by E. Mason Hopper.

The Story.

"Colonel Billy" is an outcast girl living on the edges of a town named Rattlesnake Gulch. She is shunned by women, but respected by the men, and is in love with a gambler named Faro Bill. The latter's brother, a young minister named Atherton, from Boston, comes to the camp; also Gerald Morton, a stranded actor, with his wife and child. The minister is searching for his brother and is taken by some jesting Westerners to the home of "Colonel Billy," as a respectable place to live. In the course of the story Gerald Morton strikes a wealthy claim and a San Francisco gambler, named Arbuthnot, appears. He is an old acquaintance of Mrs. Morton and tries to gain control of Morton's claim.

The minister in the meantime is holding religious services, and there are some affecting scenes when "Colonel Billy" enters the church. Mrs. Morton befriends her and "Colonel Billy" afterward comes to the aid of the Mortons. The minister is shot in a row, but his Bible stopped the bullet and he eventually recovers. He and Faro Bill are reunited and the latter marries "Colonel Billy."

Publicity Points.

This production is strong in characters and atmosphere as depicted in the tales of Bret Harte. It contains many melodramatic incidents, one of the most unusual being that of a duel between a man and woman, in which the latter comes off best.

There are some fine clear-cut mountain settings in this number. The drive of the old-fashioned stage coach across the hills is very picturesque.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Edith Storey Star of Metro Photoplay That Recalls the Spirit of Bret Harte.
Rugged Combats and Graphic Episodes in Burly Western Camps.
Shunned by Women She Lived to Be Redeemed by Love.
Struggles Against Villainy and Intrigue Lead to Victory.
The Smash and Crash of Life in Rugged Mining Camps.

Feature Miss Storey in a part well suited to her, Lewis J. Cody and Harry S. Northrup.

Advertising Angles: Play up Miss Storey. Tell that this is a story of the West in which she is given a part exactly suited to her. Make a strong appeal to her following and you should get a full house. Also make ample use of the fact that this play is taken from George D. Baker's stage play of the same name.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. Press sheet. Filler sheet. Ten-minute novel. Slide. Heralds. Lobby displays, 8x10 sepia, 11x14 sepia, 22x28 colored. Cuts.

Released February 10.

"IN FOR THIRTY DAYS."

Sprightly Comedy Produced by Metro Has Handsome and Clever May Allison as Heroine.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

ORIGINALITY in liberal measure is one of the agreeable features of "In for Thirty Days," a five-part Metro comedy with handsome and clever May Allison as the heroine. The story also combines an amusing and neatly contrived plot and has been directed by Webster Cullison with a quick appreciation of its humor and its possibilities for character study and scenic display. Its fun is wholesome, it has amusing but honest romance and there is an air of crisp freshness about the picture that will gain it many friends. The easy skill with which the author has taken an old law of the South requiring that all prisoners in the county jail be hired out and made it the foundation for his sprightly comedy insures the picture a successful career.

May Allison as Helen Corning has the light touch and charm of person which are necessary to the character. Everyone is going to applaud Brett Page for falling in love with her. Robert Ellis, who plays Page, is the right man for the part. Mayme Kelso, Rex Cherryman, Jay Dwiggins and Bull Montana keep their impersonations in the Ellis class.

Cast.

Heeln Corning.....May Allison
Brett Page.....Robert Ellis
Mrs. Corning.....Maym Kelso
Count Dronsky.....Rex Cherryman
Judge Carroll.....Jay Dwiggins
Homer Brown.....George Berrell
"Hot Stove" Kelly.....Bull Montana

Directed by Webster Cullison.

The Story.

Because she lived in the South and was sent to jail for thirty days by Judge Carroll for running into his wagon with

COLOR HOODS ARE BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN ANY DIP

They Slide Over the Lamp

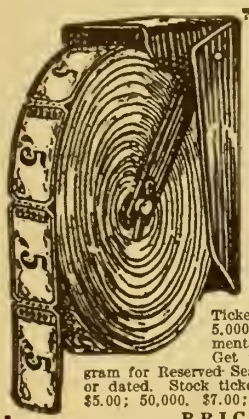
and show Beautiful Permanent Color Effects in Signs, Decorative Lighting, Exit Lights, etc.

Reynolds Electric Co.
422 S. TALMAN AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

Watch for coming announcement of
SESSUE HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS
Haworth Pictures Corporation
H. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC CO.
West 114th Street, Cleveland, Ohio

PERFECTION IN PROJECTION
Gold King Screen
10 Days' Trial
No. 1 Grade, 75c.; No. 2 Grade, 50c.
Stretchers included
Try before you buy. Sold by all the leading supply dealers throughout the country.
Factory, ALTUS, OKLAHOMA



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings: 5,000, $3.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets: 5,000, $1.25; 25,000, $5.00; 50,000, $7.00; 100,000, $10.00.

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.50
Ten Thousand..... 3.00
Fifteen Thousand..... 4.00
Twenty-five Thousand..... 6.00
Fifty Thousand..... 8.00
One Hundred Thousand.....12.00

National Ticket Co., Shamokin, Pa.

Do You Want a Theatre?

Here's a Chance of a Lifetime!

I have a new theatre of 1,200 seats, beautifully decorated, gorgeously draped and carpeted and fully equipped for pictures. Hallberg twin generator set, $10,000. Hope-Jones organ; late style ticket selling machines; change makers, etc. Located in a city of 125,000 population, on the theatrical thoroughfare; 60,000 persons pass the doors daily. The theatre is open seven days a week, doing a business of from $1,200 to $1,800 each week. I will lease it for a term of ten years as it stands. Will stand the most rigid investigation.

Brokers will not be considered. Business must be done in person; first letter must give personal and financial reference that will bear investigation.

This is a man's proposition and only men of solid financial standing will be considered, as several thousand dollars will be required.

My reasons for selling are legitimate, but too personal for publication.

Address all communications to

"THEATRE OPPORTUNITY"
M. P. WORLD, 516 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

her auto and scrambling a basket of eggs in the legal gentleman's whiskers Helen Carning, the belle of the town, is obliged to become housemaid and chauffeuress to young Brett Page and ends by becoming his wife. An anclent law forces the sheriff to hire out his prisoners at twenty-five cents a day. Brett has himself been the victim of Helen's love of speeding and is on hand the first morning of her hiring out. He secures her services and takes her to his home. The lady jail-bird makes an awkward job of her dutles in Brett's kitchen, but improves after she returns to her cell and finds that her master has had lt fitted up so that it resembles a lovely little boudolr.

In the meantime Helen's mother and Count Dronsky, a hundred and fifteen pound suitor for her hand, are makIng frantic endeavors to secure her release. One night she is kidnapped by a gang of prisoners who have been hired by her mother to get her across the state line. Helen is forced by her captors to run the auto. Clad in frail, but expensive pajamas she stears the car straight through the side of Brett's bungalow. After that hint, Brett runs out and beats up her abductors and marries her at high speed as the auto races down the road and the judge reads the marriage ceremony from the back seat.

Publicity Points.

How to make a jail more attractive than home is one of the useful hints In this picture.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Jailed for Thirty Days Girl Finds Locks and Bars Are Easy for Cupid to Break Through.

Blue Laws of the South Turned to Arvantage by Young Lovers.

Turning Drab Jails Into Palatial Palaces Where Cupid Romps.

Exciting Wild Desires to Break Into Finely Furnished Jails.

May Allison Turns a Trick That Makes Her a Motor-Cop Bride.

Feature May Allison as the girl jailed for speeding and rented out to Page for thirty days.

Advertising Angles: Make a "jail" out of a packing box lighted with electric globes and incarcerate a three-sheet of the star, announcing over the top that she is "In for Thirty Days" commencing with your playing date. Try and get your local paper to carry a line to the effect that May Allison has been sent to jail for speeding, and follow it the next day with the explanation. Have a scrub women's contest at your theatre, offering a prize for the best scrub lady, and tell that May Allison had to scrub floors while In jail. Get a special tag to be attached to parked autos reading, "You are liable to go to jail if you speed. See what happened to May Allison in 'In for Thirty Days' and be warned in time."

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. Press sheet. Filler sheet. Ten-minute novel. Slide. Heralds. Lobby displays, 8x10 sepla, 11x14 sepia, 22x28 colored. Cuts.

Released January 27.

"MAGGIE PEPPER."

Paramount Presents Ethel Clayton in a Sparkling Comedy of the Up-to-Date Working Girl.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

ADMIRABLY adapted from the stage play of Charles Klein by Gardner Hunting, and as capably directed by Chester Withey, here is one of those rare products which can stand on its own merits, irrespective of a star, but its value is tremendously enhanced by the impersonation of Ethel Clayton. Her personality seems to be a nicely balanced combination of feminine sweetness and highly cultivated intelligence typical of our best American girls. As an enterprising shopgirl, who has worked herself up to the position of head saleswoman in the suit department of an old-fashioned drygoods store, she fills the role nicely, balancing between new-born dignity and lapses from it in vernacular.

Elliot Dexter as the youthful owner of the old-fashioned place, Raymond Hatton as an amorous young Hebrew salesman, and Tully Marshall in a villainous role are excellent. Straight through, from witty subtitles to well-balanced backgrounds in the sets, the release measures up for success.

Cast.

Maggie Pepper.....Ethel Clayton
Joe Holbrook.....Elliott Dexter
Ada Darkin.....Winifred Greenwood
Sam Darkin.....Tully Marshall
Claire Darkin.....Edna Mae Wilson
Jake Rothschild.....Raymond Hatton
Alice Keane.....Marcla Manon
John Hargen.....Clyde Benson
Dud Corey.....Billy Elmer
Delivery Boy.....Bud Duncan
Detective.....C. H. Geldart

Story by Charles Klein.
Scenario by Gardner Hunting.
Directed by Chester Withey.

The Story.

Maggie Pepper ls a self-reliant and snappy saleswoman who supports a young girl, the child of her sister-in-law, a wldow in jail for shop lifting. Maggie is courted by Jake Rothchlld, and has just rejected him when the young owner of the store happens upon them. She mlstakes the owner, Joe Holbrook, for a nice young man in search of a job and advises him to stay out of a concern which is dylng painlessly. He becomes interested and finds that the peppery young lady has vision and ldeas. He is engaged to a girl and is given an opportunity of making a comparlsion between the two women very much to Maggie's advantage. She becomes the victlm of envy and ls discharged. Her sister-in-law, now released from jail and led back to evil practices by a second husband, undertakes to do shoplifting in the Holbrook store. Nothing matters to Maggie except that the child shall be removed from such influences. She accepts an offer from a Pittsburgh concern in order to rid the child of a bad environment. A sensational attempt to steal the child brings young Holbrook to the rescue and he feigns that he has been wounded ln order to keep hls hold upon Maggie. He finally prevails by reaching her tender sympathies and wins a winner.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Famous Stage Comedy Brought to the Screen ln New Slde-Lights and Reflections.

Wins Bread for Suffering Child by Fracturing the Code.

Unfortunate Girl Turns Shoplifter to Save Sister's Offspring.

Stage Play That Roused Country-Wide Discussion Now Screened.

Ethel Clayton Star of Paramount's Latest Screen Product.

Advertising Angles: Tell that Miss Clayton is to be seen ln a play made famous on the stage by Rose Stahl. If you can draw from any large department stores,

(Continued on page 1112)

4 K. W. Electric Generating Set.

60 or 110 volts for stationary or portable moving picture work and theatre lighting. Smooth, steady current, no flicker. Portable type with cooling radiator all self-contained.

Send for Bulletin No. 26

Universal Motor Co.
OSHKOSH, WISC.

THE CINEMA

NEWS AND PROPERTY GAZETTE
30 Gerrard Street
W. I. London, England

Has the quality circulation of the trade in Great Britain and the Dominions. All Official Notices and News from the ASSOCIATION to its members are published exclusively in this journal

YEARLY RATE:
POSTPAID, WEEKLY, $7.25
SAMPLE COPY AND
ADVERTISING RATES ON REQUEST

Appointed by Agreement Dated 7|8|14
THE OFFICIAL ORGAN OF
THE CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN & IRELAND, LTD.

Inventors Will Do Well
TO AVAIL THEMSELVES OF OUR EXPERIMENTAL DEPARTMENT
Finest Tools, Instruments, Apparatus
TO DO THINGS WITH
ELECTRIC COMPOSITOR CO.
856 BROAD ST. BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
Tools, Jigs, Fixtures, Gages, Punches, Dies
Special Machinery Light Manufacturing

WORTH WAITING FOR

UNIVERSAL MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
Uncle Sam wants Universals now, so you must wait: but remember, they are worth waiting for. Get acquainted now. Catalog on request.
BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., CHICAGO
225 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

WANTED
Agents for all parts of country to further a legitimate advertising proposition. $500 should return a comfortable living.
Publicity Clock Co., Inc.
105 West 40th St., New York City

DO IT NOW
Investigate what it means to you to entrust your DEVELOPING and PRINTING to EVANS.
We are certain that no one can or does turn out a better quality of work than EVANS.
EVANS FILM MFG. CO., 416-24 West 216th St., New York City Telephone: St. Nicholas 3443-44

That's a word—

Pulsebeats—

In the "Heart of Humanity," a late Jewel release, they occur and should be astir in the spectator, judging from page 885 of last week's issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD. "Without intellectual pose of any kind, and addressed to the feelings that respond quickest to the touches of nature that make the whole world kin, 'The Heart of Humanity' lives up to its title."

Pulsebeats are either normal, subnormal or abnormal and they can be indicative of the condition of the business as well as the intonation of a picture.

This business suffered one condition not long ago and will one day enjoy another.

Since the inception of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD in 1907, the pulsebeats of this business have been printed and read by the trade of which many thousand exhibitors are a part—and a vital part.

A certain organ manufacturer up in New England might find it profitable to "look into" that last paragraph.

If you are a buyer of moving picture trade paper space—and you want to know by the "show me" method how many of these exhibitors are subscribers for the WORLD—come over and introduce yourself to our Mr. Shea.

(Continued from page 1110)

work to them. In smaller towns advertise it as a study of a great department store's methods. Play up the fact that it was written by Charles Klein, who wrote many successes for Charles Frohman. Have a bargain sale matinee, with signs such as, "Tickets 13 cents, were 15 cents," and "Orchestra chairs, seating two, 26 cents a yard, marked down from 30 cents." Get a "selling-out" banner for the top of the lobby, and use the dry goods store style of advertising in the papers. With a little effort you can get a good suggestion of a department store in your lobby.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising lay-out mats. Slides. Press book.

Released February 23.

Additional Advertising Aids

"FIGHTING THROUGH"

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation Presents E. K. Lincoln in the Story of a Man Who Was a Patriot Though He Did Not Realize It.

Cast.

Robert Carr.....E. K. Lincoln
Col. Dabney Carr.....Spottiswoode Aitken
Braxton Warren.....Frederick Vroom
Mrs. Warren.....Helen Dunbar
Maryland Warren.....Millicent Fisher
Raymond Haynes.....Hayward Mack

Directed by William Christy Cabanne.

The Story: Robert Carr, whose grandfather fought for the Confederacy, still believes in the cause of the South. Virginia Warren's grandfather also fought with the South, but she is loyal to the flag. She breaks her engagement to Robert, thinking him both disloyal and a coward, but he proves his loyalty and his bravery, too, when Virginia is kidnapped by Mexican bandits, and they make a fresh start.

Feature E. K. Lincoln, as Robert Carr, who, doubted by his sweetheart, proves both his loyalty and bravery.

Program and Advertising Phrases: E. K. Lincoln Star of Intensely Exciting Photodrama Bearing on Rebirth of the Old South.

Inspiration to Patriotism in Thrilling Photoplay of the South.

Sensational Photodrama Combines Love and Patriotism in Gripping Episodes.

Reflection of the Old South Smouldering Under Cloud of Defeat.

Lovers of Thrills in Photoplaying Will Find Their Desire Appeased.

Advertising Angles: Play for the followers of the star and tell that it is neither a war story nor a Southern story. You can probably clean up with an advertising campaign using the star and the fact that a tear in his trousers caused him to be branded as a coward. Use such phrases as "Robert Carr was no coward, but he tore his trousers on a barbed wire and he could not show his bravery without showing the rip. What do you suppose E. K. Lincoln did? You'll have to see Fighting Through at (house and date)."

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one and three sheets. One six-sheet. Thumbnail and one to three column cuts in electros or mats. Press book.

Released January 25.

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

No. 478
11/16 Inch
Actual Size

Sample
Box of 100
Postpaid 50c.

SAVES WEAR AND TEAR ON PAPER

THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK FOR GENERAL USE

SOLIDHED TACK COMPANY
SOLE MAKERS
38 Murray Street, New York

No. 448—½-Inch Tops—30c. per 100
No. 468—⅝-Inch Tops—40c. per 100

Brass-plated to prevent rusting.

"NEWMAN" Brass Frames and Rails

DO YOU KNOW

that 90% of all the brass frames used in the moving picture houses throughout the country are "NEWMANS"?

WHY?

Because we steadily have refused to cheapen or lower the quality of our goods, even though others have sought to undermine our prestige by underselling with cheapened products. That is one of the reasons why nine out of every ten frames sold bear the name "NEWMAN."

Insist on that name and save money.

You ought to have our latest catalogue. Write us today.

We manufacture the frames in various finishes which do not require polishing.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
ESTABLISHED 1882
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal Canada.
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.
Frames, Easels, Grilles, Rails, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

COMMENTS

Universal Film Company.

THE RED GLOVE (Special), February 17.—"The Pool of Mystery," the first episode of this new Universal serial, produced by J. P. McGowan from a story by Douglas Grant, is very promising. It features Marie Walcamp, a great favorite, and the cast includes Alfred Allen, Thomas Lingham, Pat O'Malley and others. The story concerns a band known as the "Vultures," who operate in an oil country, where an evil place called "the pool of lost souls" is located. The key to the mystery is contained in a red glove, given to the heroine by an aged woman native. The action begins in pleasing style and there is just about the right amount of plot thus far for a red-blooded story. The titles are artistic and there are some fine special photographic novelties.

THE FRECKLED FISH (L-KO), January 22.—A two-reel comic, in which a young Chinaman, a fish, a colored mammy and a barber play important roles. The action is too indefinite to hold the attention closely and the number as a whole is only fair.

HIS BODY FOR RENT (Star Comedy), February 17.—An amusing comedy, featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Mildred Moore. This has an original conception, in which the girl "rents" a husband for the purpose of divorcing him so she can win another man, who prefers widows. The idea has been quite cleverly carried out and the cast is pleasing.

IT'S A BIRD (L-KO), January 29.—This two-reel subject opens with some pleasing pictures of puppies, kittens, a chimpanzee and a parrot. The plot action is very weak in the first reel, but rather better in the second. It makes a fair subject with some good spots in it.

ROSALAND AT REDGATE (Special), January 11.—A three-reel number, adapted from a novel by Merridith Nicholson, featuring C. M. McDowell, Larry Peyton, Martha Maddox and Ruth Stonehouse. The latter plays a double role. The story is somewhat vaguely developed, though not without a considerable pull on the interest. It concerns two brothers, each married, one of whom is guilty of forgery. The daughters resemble each other strongly and play considerable part in working out the story. The presentation is not strong. Some of the settings, in fact most of them, are quite attractive.

Vitagraph.

FORTUNE'S CHILD (Vitagraph), February 10.—A five-part production featuring Gladys Leslie which will be found entertaining. The picture is well made and has an interesting story of a waif and a prize fighter. A full review was published in a previous issue.

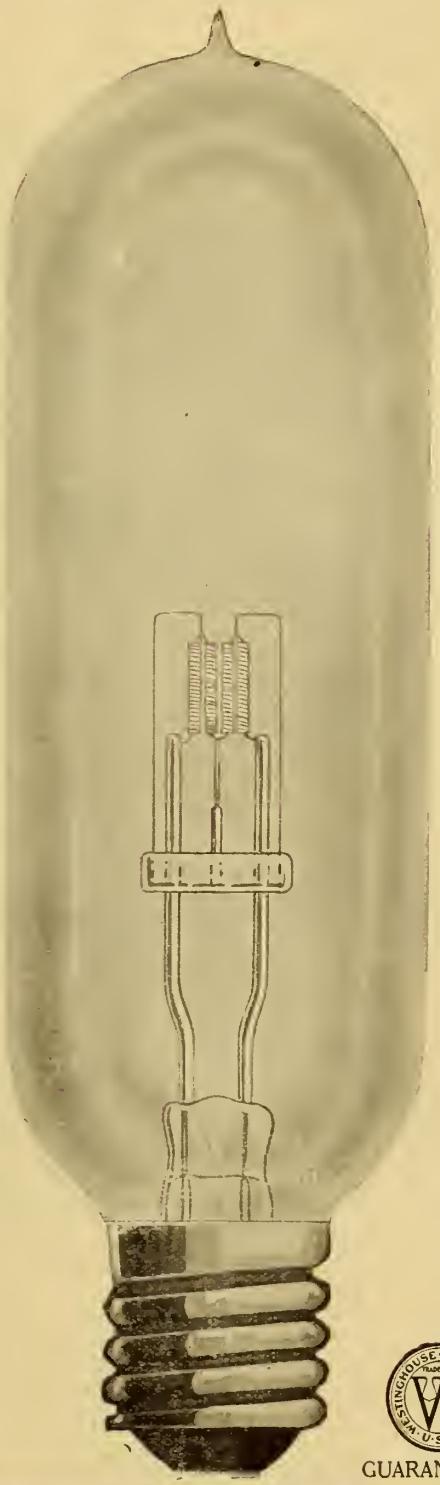
LOVE AND LATHER (Big V).—One of the Montgomery and Rock comedies which the average audience will like. The plot concerns a change of vocation by two tramps, who answer an advertisement for a barber and a bootblack. Their manner of conducting the business calls forth a number of good laughs. A couple of manicure girls and the boss of the establishment are included in the mixups.

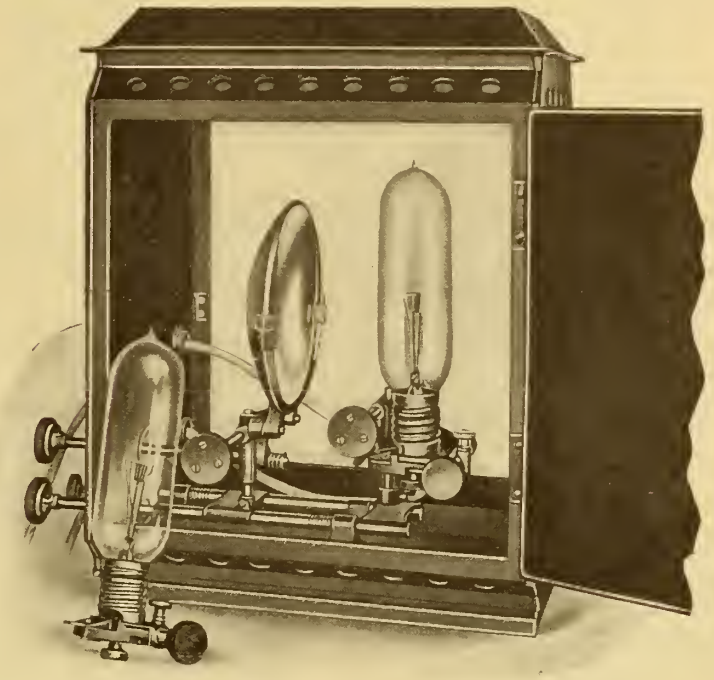
EARN $25—$100 A WK.—BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

Motion Picture—Studio—Commercial

Good positions open in this fascinating profession. Three months' course covers all branches. Practical instruction, day or evening. Easy payments. Write today for catalog "How to Become a Professional Photographer."

NEW YORK INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY, Department 25, 141 West 36th Street, New York





For Up-to-date Motion Picture Projection

A better picture can be projected by means of a 900-Watt WESTINGHOUSE MAZDA C LAMP than with any alternating current arc outfit. The performance also compares very favorably with direct-current arcs up to 35 amperes. In other words, the 900-Watt WESTINGHOUSE MAZDA C LAMP will take care of a 16-foot picture and any throw up to 100 feet.

The Lamp burns equally well on either alternating current or direct-current, and the three-wing shutter may be used in either case, thus eliminating shutter flicker.

In addition to being more reliable than the arc light, radiating less heat, and not giving off carbon gas or dust, the WESTINGHOUSE MAZDA LAMP may be operated on one-quarter to one-half the current required for an arc for equivalent results.

Further information will be gladly furnished on request.

GUARANTEED BY THE NAME

Westinghouse Lamp Company

165 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Sales Offices and Warehouses Throughout the Country.

For Canada: Canadian Westinghouse Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.

WESTINGHOUSE MAZDA LAMPS

For Motion Picture Projection

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

General Film Company, Inc.

SCRANTONIA FILM COMPANY.
(Featuring Charlie Fang.)

Parson Pepp (One Reel—Comedy).
Fang's Fate and Fortune (One Reel—Comedy).

OFFICIAL WAR PICTURES.
(Committee on Public Information.)

Our Bridge of Ships (Two Reels).

AMERICAN RED CROSS.
(One-Reel Patriotic Films.)

First Aid on the Piave (One Part—Patriotic).
Rebuilding Broken Lives (One Part—Patriotic).
The Kiddies of No Man's Land (One Part—Patriotic).
Victorious Serbia (One Part—Patriotic).
A Helping Hand in Sicily (One Part—Patriotic).
Homeward Bound.
New Faces for Old.
Russia a World Problem.

COSMOFOTOFILM.

I Believe (Six Parts—Drama).

AMERICAN FEATURE FILM CORP.

Hearts of Love (Six Parts—Drama).

MAXWELL PRODUCTIONS.

The Married Virgin (Six Parts—Drama).

Exhibitors-Mutual

STRAND.
(One-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 5—Accidental Heroes.
Jan. 12—Some Mother.
Jan. 19—No Man's Land.
Jan. 26—Easy Payments.

FEATURES.

Dec. 29—And a Still Small Voice (Henry B. Walthall—Five Parts).
Jan. 5—All of a Sudden Norma (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts).
Jan. 12—Life's a Funny Proposition (William Desmond—Five Parts).
Jan. 19—Bonds of Honor (Sessue Hayakawa—Five Parts).
Jan.—Hoop-La (Billy Rhodes).
Jan.—The Eleventh Commandment (Ralph Ince Production.
Feb.—Long Lane's Turning.
Feb.—Tricks of Fate.
Feb.—Diana of the Green Van.
Feb.—Shadows.
Feb.—What Every Woman Wants.

OUTDOOR SUBJECTS.

Dec. 8—A Maori Romance.
Jan. 5—Teetotalers, Tea and Totem Poles.
Jan. 12—Geesers and Geysers.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JANUARY 19.

Corinne Comes Home (Gloria Joy—Two Parts—Comedy-Drama—Bartlett).
Wolves of Kultur (Episode No. 15, "The Reward of Patriotism"—Two Parts—Drama—Western).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 3, "Underworld Terrors"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Love's Young Scream (Alf Goulding—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 1 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 30 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 8 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 9 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JAN. 26.

A Vagabond of Romance (Henri Kraus—Four Parts—Drama).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 4, "Through Doors of Steel"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Going! Going! Gone! (Harold Lloyd—Comedy—Rolin).
Official War Review No. 31 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 10 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 11 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 2.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 5, "The Brass Key"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 1, "Prowlers of the Night"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Hustling for Health (Stan Laurel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 2 (Educational).
Official War Review No. 33 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 12 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 13 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 9.

Todd of the Times (Frank Keenan).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 6, "The Mystic Box"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 8, "The Hidden Chart"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Ask Father (Rolin Comedy—Harold Lloyd—One Reel).
The Story of the Orange (One Reel Educational—Leggett Gruen).
Pathe News No. 14 (One Reel—Topical).
Pathe News No. 15 (One Reel—Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 16.

The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 7, "Meshes of Evil"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 3, "The Chasm of Fear"—Two Parts—Drama—Diando).
Toto's Troubles (Toto-Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe Review No. 3 (Educational).
Pathe News No. 16 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 17 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF FEB. 23.

The Old Maid's Baby (Marie Osborne—Five Parts—Comedy—Diando).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 8, "The Cave of Bread"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 4, "The Midnight Raid"—Two Parts—drama—Diando).
On the Fire (Rolin Comedy—Harold Lloyd—One Reel).
Pathe News No. 18 (Topical—One Reel).
Pathe News No. 19 (Topical—One Reel).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MAR. 2.

Common Clay (Fannie Ward—Seven Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Lightning Raider (Episode No. 9, "Falsely Accused"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
The Terror of the Range (Episode No. 5, "A Threat from the Past"—Three Parts—Drama—Diando).
Hoot Man (Star Laurel—One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pathe News No. 20 (Topical).
Pathe News No. 21 (Topical).

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY.
(Released by Pathe.)

Wives and Other Wives (Mary Miles Minter).
Fair Enough (Marguerite Fisher).
When a Man Rides Alone (William Russell).
Feb. 2—The Amazing Impostor (Mary Miles Minter).
Feb. 16—Molly of the Follies (Margarita Fisher).
Mar. 2—Where the West Begins (William Russell).

W. W. HODKINSON.
(Released Through Pathe.)

Jan. 6—The Drifters (J. Warren Kerrigan—Five Parts—Drama—Hampden).
Jan. 20—The Law that Divides (Kathleen Clifford).
Jan. 27—Fighting Through (E. K. Lincoln—Six Parts—Drama—Cabanna).
Feb. 10—Come Again, Smith (J. Warren Kerrigan—Comedy).
Feb. 17—Made in America (First Episode).

Made in America.
Ashley Miller Productions—One Reel—Patriotic.

Feb. 16—No. 1, "Made in America."
Feb. 23—No. 2, "Nine Million Answer."
Mar. 2—No. 3, "The Rookie."
Mar. 9—No. 4, "Victory Army in the Making."
Mar. 16—No. 5, "Building the Soldier."
Mar. 23—No. 6, "The Hated K. P."
Mar. 30—No. 7, "Overseas to Victory."
Apr. 6—No. 8, "Forward—Always Forward."

Fox Film Corporation

BIG TIME PICTURES.

Why I Would Not Marry.
Queen of the Sea (Annete Kellerman).
The Land of the Free.
The Prussian Cur.

STANDARD PICTURES.

Jan. 12—The Light (Theda Bara).
Jan. 26—Woman! Woman! (Evelyn Nesbit).
Feb. 9—Every Mother's Son.
Feb. 23—The Man Hunter (William Farnum—Six Parts).
Mar. 9—When Men Desire (Theda Bara).
Mar. 23—Thou Shalt Not (Evelyn Nesbit).

EXCEL PICTURES.

Jan. 26—The Girl With No Regrets (Peggy Hyland).
Feb. 9—The Love Auction (Virginia Pearson—Five Parts).
Feb. 23—Smiles (Jane and Katherine Lee).

VICTORY PICTURES.

Jan. 5—Treat 'em Rough (Tom Mix).
Jan. 19—The Call of Her Soul (Gladys Brockwell).
Feb. 2—Luck and Pluck (George Walsh).
Feb. 16—Hell Roarin' Reform (Tom Mix).
Mar. 2—The Forbidden Room (Gladys Brockwell—Five Parts).
Mar. 16—Never Say Quit (George Walsh).
Mar. 30—Fighting for Gold (Tom Mix—Five Parts).

SUNSHINE & FOX-LEHRMAN COMEDIES

Jan. 26—Oh, What a Knight (Two Parts).
Feb. 9—A Roman Cowboy (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
Feb. 23—His Musical Sneeze.
Mar. 29—Six Cylinder Love (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
Mar. 23—Money Talks.
April 6—Tom and Jerry Mix (Tom Mix—Two Parts).
April 20—The House of Terrible Scandal (Two Parts).
May 4—A Lady Bell-Hop's Secret (Two Parts).

MUTT & JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS.

Jan. 19—The Hula Hula Cabaret.
Jan. 26—Dog-Gone Tough Luck.
Feb. 2—Landing an Heiress.
Feb. 9—The Bearded Lady.
Feb. 16—5,000 Miles on a Gallon of Gas.
Feb. 25—The Pousse Cafe.
Mar. 2—Fireman Save My Child.
Mar. 9—Wild Waves and Angry Women.
Mar. 16—William Hohenzollern, Sausage Maker.

THE GREAT NINE.

Jan. 5—The Serpent (Theda Bara).
Jan. 12—The Regeneration (All-Star).
Jan. 19—The Broken Law (William Farnum).
Jan. 26—Under Two Flags (Theda Bara).
Feb. 2—Infidelity (All-Star).
Feb. 9—The Soul of Broadway (Valeska Suratt).
Feb. 16—The Darling of Paris(Theda Bara).
Feb. 23—Hoodman Blind (William Farnum).

PRODUCTIONS EXTRAORDINARY.

Salome (Theda Bara—Eight Parts).
Cleopatra (Theda Bara—Eight Parts).
Les Miserables (William Farnum).

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

3c PER WORD FOR SITUATIONS WANTED AND HELP WANTED
MINIMUM, $0.50

5c PER WORD FOR ALL COMMERCIAL ADS.
MINIMUM, $1.00

SITUATIONS WANTED.

EXCHANGE MANAGER.—One who is thoroughly acquainted with Greater New York territory, highest quality feature proposition. Applicant must measure up in every respect to highest standard. Only those thoroughly qualified and having had necessary experience need apply. Communications strictly confidential. Apply XYZ, care M. P. World, 516 5th Ave., N. Y. C.

CONCERT ORGANIST open for theatre engagement. Experienced, reliable and efficient. Large repertoire. Good organ and salary essential. Address Efficient, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER—Vaudeville and pictures, having ten years' experience in my own theatre, at liberty after March 25th owing to theatre being sold and termination of lease. Thirty-seven years of age, good habits, strictly sober. Only first-class proposition desired. Address Vaudeville Manager, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER AT LIBERTY, twelve years' experience, knows business thoroughly; never handled a failure, can increase your receipts, expert on projection, handle one or circuit of houses. Best references, go anywhere. Address Expert, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN with Pathe outfit at liberty. Ten years' experience in studio, educational and industrial work; go anywhere. A. R. Mariner, 145 W. 84th St., N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

ORGANIST.—Splendid opportunity for competent organist (Wurlitzer, Style K) and teacher. Three hours nightly, with occasional matinee. Salary for playing, $25 weekly. Chance to get part interest in established music school and store. Week trial required. Save your time if you cannot positively make good. Location in modern up-to-date Western town. Address L. Peterson, Iris Theatre, Belle Fourche, S. D.

FILM EXPERT WANTED—Excellent opportunity offered young man thoroughly capable supervising film and projection departments large exporting house. Negative inspection, cutting, foreign title insertion, experience essential. Address stating salary, F. C., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—A Moy camera fitted with spiral focusing jacket, reverse drive, film punch, one turn, one picture handle, view finder, four dark boxes, one 2-inch Zeiss lens, one 3-inch Zeiss lens, and English made leather carrying case for outfit; also one Motion Picture Apparatus Company precision tripod with leather cover. Complete outfit practically unused. State best cash offer and address in the first place. Camera, Box 13, Station G, N. Y. City.

SENSATIONAL MONEY SAVING bargains is the title of the latest photographic book just off the press; a 32-page catalog filled from cover to cover with wonderful offers in every standard make of tested and guaranteed motion picture apparatus, cameras, lenses, kodaks, etc. It's the biggest little thing in the current photographic field. Worth its weight in gold to you, and in fact no cameraman in the country can afford to be without a copy. Send for it today; yours for the asking. David Stern Company; in business since 1885; 1027W Madison St., Chicago, U. S. A.

GOOD NEWS—We are once more in a position to supply the famous Universal motion cameras, brand new, direct from the factory, and tripods. The Universal more than did its duty during the war and is now ready to serve you covered with glory. Our magnificent stock enables us to make shipment at once. Prices on request. Send for bargain list free. Bass Camera Company, Chas. Bass, Pres., 109 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

PROFESSIONAL WARWICK, Zeiss lens, $150; lenses, Zeiss, $40; Goerz, $34; Cooke, $25; $100 home projector, $60; tripods, $15. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

JURE 300 FOOT outside magazines, F:3.5 lens, $50; tripod, $15; Simplex printer, $20; developing outfit, $12; home projector, $35. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

200 FT. U. S. CUB motion picture camera equipped with B. & L. tessar, F:3.5 lens, special price, $85. Send today for new Universal camera booklet "Three Years' Profit in One." Central Camera Co., 124 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., M. P. Dept.—Specialists new and guaranteed used apparatus.

FILMS WANTED.

NEGATIVES WANTED—One and two-reel educational or historical. Those previously released preferred. S. G., 615 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

WANTED—Negative or positive of "Nero," or "The Burning of Rome." Address S. Efrus, 220 W. 42d St., N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—"Crimson Stain Mystery," 32-reel serial, featuring Maurice Costello, including 1, 3 and 6 sheet posters. Federal Feature Exchange, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

COSMOGRAPH PROJECTOR, motor driven, takes standard film and slides, perfect condition, price $100. M. D. Freeman, West Chester, Pa.

THEATRES FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Lease on theatre, lower New York State, seating 750, suitable moving pictures or attractions. Large stage. Good proposition responsible party. Address Glaes, Box 871, Wilmington, Del.

YOU ARE LOSING OPPORTUNITIES

Opportunities to increase returns from your business efforts;
Opportunities to make your theatre more popular with your public;
Opportunities to present your shows in the most attractive manner;
Opportunities to make more real money on your present investment;
Opportunities to absorb the brightest ideas of other good showmen;
Opportunities that come to Exhibitors, Exchange-men and Operators Through the Service Rendered in the Pages of Moving Picture World.

Send your subscription NOW. Get your paper regularly by remitting your subscription. Regular subscribers get the first issues off the press. Subscribe and save—$4.80. The newsstand price is 15c.

One Year.....$3.00 Six Months.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
516 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK

.....
.....
.....
Please fill in the name of your Theatre.....

Cut Out and Mail To-day—Now!

ADVERTISING AIDS FOR BUSY MANAGERS

in another section

Of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Will Furnish All the Matter Needed in Program Designing

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Metro Pictures Corporation.

METRO ALL-STAR SERIES.

Dec. 23—A Poor Rich Man (Bushman and Bayne—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 30—Her Inspiration (May Allison—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Gold Cure (Viola Dana—Five Parts).
Jan. 13—The Spender (Bert Lytell—Five Parts).
Jan. 20—The Divorcee (Ethel Barrymore—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—In for Thirty Days (May Allison—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—Faith (Bert Lytell).
Feb. 10—As the Sun Went Down (Edith Storey).
Feb. 17—Johnny on the Spot (Hale Hamilton).
Feb. 24—Peggy Does Her Darndest (May Allison).

SCREEN CLASSICS, INC., SPECIALS.

To Hell With the Kaiser (Laurence Grant and Olive Tell—Seven Parts—Drama).
Pals First (Harold Lockwood—Six Parts—Dr.)
The Great Victory, Wilson or the Kaiser, The Fall of the Hohenzollerns.
Why Germany Must Pay (All Star Cast—Six Parts).
The Great Romance (Harold Lockwood—Six Parts).

NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS.

Revelation (Seven Parts—Drama).
Toys of Fate (Seven Parts—Drama).
Eye for Eye (Seven Parts—Drama).
Out of the Fog (Seven Parts).

Triangle Film Corporation.

Dates and Titles of Triangle Releases Subject to Change Without Notice.

TRIANGLE PRODUCTIONS.

Dec. 15—Irish Eyes (Pauline Starke—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Crown Jewels (Claire Anderson—Five Parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—Wife or Country (Gloria Swanson—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 26—Unto the End (Crane Wilbur).
Feb. 2—Restless Souls (Aima Rubens).
Feb. 9—Secret Marriage (Mary MacLaren).
Feb. 16—Child of M'Sieu (Baby Marie Osborne).
Feb. 23—Breezy Jim (Crane Wilbur).

Vitagraph

VITAGRAPH FEATURES.

Miss Ambition (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
The Dawn of Understanding (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
The Man Who Wouldn't Tell (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
The Beloved Impostor (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Hoarded Assets (Harry T. Morey—Five Parts).
The Captain's Captain (Alice Joyce—Five Parts).
The Adventure Shop (Corinne Griffith—Five Parts).
Jan. 27—The Enchanted Barn (Bessie Love—Five Parts).
Feb. 3—The Highest Trump (Earle Williams—Five Parts).
Feb. 10—Fortune's Child (Gladys Leslie—Five Parts).
Feb. 17—Silent Strength (Harry T. Morey).
Feb. 24—The Lion and the Mouse (Alice Joyce—Special).
Mar. 3—The Girl Problem (Corinne Griffith).
Mar. 10—The Wishing Ring Man (Bessie Love).
Mar. 17—A Gentleman of Quality (Earle Williams).
Mar. 24—Miss Dulcie from Dixie (Gladys Leslie).
Mar. 31—Fighting Destiny (Harry T. Morey).

BIG V COMEDIES.

Jan. 20—Traps and Tangles (Two Parts).
Jan. 27—Footballs and Fraud (Two Parts).
Feb. 3—Love and Lather (Two Parts).
Feb. 10—Soapsuds and Sapheads (Two Parts).
Feb. 17—Scamps and Scandal (Two Parts).
Feb. 24—Damsels and Dandies (Two Parts).

The Iron Test.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Featuring Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway.)

Dec. 23—In the Coils.
Dec. 30—The Red Mask's Prey.
Jan. 6—No. 12, "The Span of Terror."
Jan. 13—No. 13, "Hanging Peril."
Jan. 20—No. 14, "Desperate Odds."
Jan. 27—No. 15, "Riding with Death."

The Man of Might.

Drama—Fifteen Episodes—Two Parts Each—Featuring Edith Johnson and Joe Ryan.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

CENTURY COMEDY.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Dec. 18—The Cabbage Queen (Alice Howell—Two Parts)—03299.
Feb. 12—Behind the Front (Alice Howell)—03589.

HEARST NEWS.

(One-Reel News Weeklies.)

Jan. 14—No. 3 (Topical)—03475.
Jan. 21—No. 4 (Topical)—03490.
Jan. 28—No. 5 (Topical)—03566.
Feb. 2—No. 6 (Topical)—03576.
Feb. 10—No. 7 (Topical)—03588.
Feb. 17—No. 8 (Topical)—03600.
Feb. 24—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03611.
Mar. 3—No. 10 (Topical)—03621.

L-KO.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 8—Fools and Duels (Ford Sterling)—03485.
Jan. 15—Charlie, the Little Dare Devil (Charlie from the Orient)—03476.
Jan. 22—The Freckled Fish (Babe Hardy)—03491.
Jan. 29—It's a Bird (Harry Mann)—03571.
Feb. 5—Hop, the Bell Hop (Billy Armstrong)—03577.
Feb. 19—Call the Cops (Billie Armstrong)—03601.
Feb. 26—Lions and Ladies (Babe Hardy)—03612.
Mar. 5—A Rag-Time Romance (Two Parts—Comedy—Helen Lynch)—03622.

NESTOR.

(One-Reel Comedies.)

Jan. 6—She Wasn't Hungry, But (Victoria Forde)—03463.
Jan. 13—Mixed Nuts (Molly Malone)—03474.
Jan. 20—Only a Janitor (Wallace Beery)—03486.
Jan. 27—He Was No Lady (Bobbie Vernon)—03496.
Feb. 10—Mixed Wives (William Franey)—03583.
Feb. 17—Them Eyes (Ben Wilson)—03595.
Feb. 24—The Movie Queen (Jane Bernoudy)—03606.
Mar. 3—A Poor Prune (Sammy Burns)—03619.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION.

Jan. 2—The Wildcat of Paris (Priscilla Dean—Six Parts—Drama)—03462.
Jan. 11—Rosalind at Red Gate (Ruth Stonehouse—Two Parts—Drama)—03467
Jan. 13—After the War (Grace Cunard).
Jan. 18—The Ghost Girl (Donna Drew—Two Parts—Society Drama)—03479.
Jan. 27—Roped (Harry Carey)—03483.
Feb. 1—Sure-Shot Morgan (Harry Carey—03569.
Feb. 3—Charlie in Turkey (One-Reel Cartoon)—03572.
Feb. 8—A Proxy Husband (Violet Mersereau—Two Parts)—03581.
Feb. 10—Creaking Stairs (Mary MacLaren—Six Parts)—03586.
Feb. 24—The Wicked Darling (Priscilla Dean)—03609.

The Lure of the Circus.

Mar. 3—Episode No. 16, "The Knockout"—03618.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Dec. 28—Issue No. 98 (Educational)—03446.
Jan. 4—Issue No. 99 (Educational)—03456.
Jan. 11—Issue No. 100 (Educational)—03466.
Jan. 18—Issue No. 101 (Educational)—03478.
Jan. 24—Issue No. 102 (Educational)—03493.
Jan. 21—Issue No. 103 (Educational)—03568.
Feb. 7—Issue No. 104 (Educational).
Feb. 14—Issue No. 105 (Educational).

NEW SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Feb. 21—No. 1 (Educational)—03579.
Feb. 28—No. 2 (Educational)—03591.
Mar. 7—No. 3 (Educational)—03624.

SCREEN TELEGRAM.

Jan. 22—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03492.
Jan. 30—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03567.
Feb. 5—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03678.
Feb. 13—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03590.
Feb. 20—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03602.
Feb. 26—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03613.
Mar. 5—No. 10 (Topical)—03623.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

The Lure of the Circus.

Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Eddie Polo Featured.

Jan. 6—No. 8, "The Human Ladder"—03469.
Jan. 13—No. 9, "The Flying Loop"—03481.
Jan. 20—No. 10, "A Shot for Life"—03489.
Jan. 27—No. 11, "The Dagger"—03500.
Feb. 3—No. 12, "A Strange Escape"—03575.
Feb. 10—No. 13, "The Plunge for Life"—03587.
Feb. 17—No. 14, "Flames"—03598.
Feb. 24—No. 15, "The Stolen Record"—03610.

The Red Glove.

(Drama—Each Episode in Two Parts—Marie Walcamp Features.)

Feb. 17—No. 1, "The Pool of Mystery"—03599.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Jan. 5—Issue No. 1 (Topical)—03459.
Jan. 12—Issue No. 2 (Topical)—03468.
Jan. 9—Issue No. 3 (Topical)—03480.
Jan. 26—Issue No. 4 (Topical)—03495.
Feb. 2—Issue No. 5 (Topical)—03570.
Feb. 7—Issue No. 6 (Topical)—03580.
Feb. 14—Issue No. 7 (Topical)—03592.
Feb. 21—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—03604.
Feb. 28—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—03615.
Mar. 7—No. 10 (Topical)—03625.

STAR COMEDIES.

(One-Reel Comedies, featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.)

Dec. 28—Swat the Flirt—03451.
Jan. 5—Straight Crooks—03463.
Jan. 12—How's Your Husband?—03471.
Jan. 20—Sing, Rosa, Sing—03487.
Jan. 27—Marry My Wife—03497.
Feb. 3—Kitchen Police—03573.
Feb. 10—Up the Flue—03584.
Feb. 17—His Body for Rent—03596.
Feb. 24—Mixed Tales—03607.
Mar. 3—Oh! Ethel!—03620.

WESTERN AND RAILROAD DRAMAS.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 5—The Secret Peril (Helen Gibson—Two Parts)—03458.
Jan. 8—A Kaiser There Was—03442
Jan. 25—The Border Terror (Yvette Mitchell)—03494.
Feb. 15—Tapering Fingers (Fritzi Ridgeway)—03593.
Feb. 22—Raiders of the Range (J. Warren Kerrigan)—03605.
Mar. 1—Riding Wild (Helen Gibson)—03616.
Mar. 8—The Crooked Coin (Pete Morrison)—03626.

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Get Your Copy!

Just off the press—

New Typhoon booklet shows you how to do a good business all through the hottest summer weather.

Send a post-card for your free copy—TODAY

Typhoon Fan Company
Box 209
281 Lexington Ave., New York

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

IMPROVE your projection
INCREASE your patronage
INFLATE your receipts
INDORSED by all Leading Exhibitors
INFORMATION and Samples upon request

DEALERS EVERYWHERE

THE UTMOST IN SCREENS

MINUSA CINÉ SCREEN CO.,
Bomont & Morgan St Louis, Mo.

SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

ERBOGRAPH FOR SERVICE

PRODUCERS OF
MOTION PICTURE FILMS
COMMERCIAL DEVELOPING and PRINTING
Telephone Audubon 3716

ERBOGRAPH CO.
LUDWIG G. B. ERB, President
203-211 WEST 146th STREET, NEW YORK

Moving Picture Machine Patents My Specialty

PATENTS

WILLIAM N. MOORE
PATENT ATTORNEY
LOAN AND TRUST BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The first important step is to learn whether you can obtain a patent. Please send sketch of your invention with $5.00 and I will examine the patent records and inform you whether you are entitled to a patent, the cost and manner of procedure.

Personal Attention Established 25 Years

List of Current Film Release Dates

Unless Otherwise Specified All Subjects Are Five Reel Dramas

Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

STAR SERIES PRODUCTIONS.

Jan. 26—Shadows (Geraldine Farrar—Six Pts.).
Feb. 2—The Bondage of Barbara (Mae Marsh).
Feb. 16—Sis Hopkins (Mabel Normand).
Mar. 9—The Brand (Rex Beach Production—Seven Parts).
Feb. 23—The Woman on the Index (Pauline Frederick).

BENNISON STAR SERIES.

Oh, Johnny (Betzwood).
Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U (Betzwood).
Speedy Meade (Betzwood).

GOLDWYN SPECIALS.

The Border Legion (Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth—Six Parts).
The Manx Man (Seven Parts—Drama).
For the Freedom of the World (Seven Parts—Drama).

CAPITOL COMEDIES.

(Two Reels each)

Jan. 12—You Know What I Mean.
Jan. 26—The Big Idea.
Feb. 9—Have Another.
Feb. 23—A Master of Music.

"Go Get 'em Potts" Series.

Mar. 9—The New Breakfast Food.
Mar. 23—The Potum of Swat.
Apr. 6—The Midnight Alarm.

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY.

Jan. 20—The Truth About the Liberty Motor.
Jan. 27—Hang It All.
Feb. 3—Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas.
Feb. 10—Canada's Mountain of Tears.
Feb. 17—Where "The Spirit That Won" Was Born.
Feb. 24—Rough Stuff.

Famous Players-Lasky

PARAMOUNT FEATURES.

Mar. 2—Alias Mike Moran (Wallace Reid).
Mar. 2—Good Gracious Annabelle (Billie Burke).
Mar. 2—Puppy Love (Lila Lee).

PARAMOUNT-SENNETT COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 26—Never Too Old.
Feb. 9—Rip & Stitch—Tailors.
Feb. 23—East Lynne with Variations.

PARAMOUNT-ARBUCKLE COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Feb. 16—The Pullman Porter.
Mar. 2—Love.

DREW COMEDIES.

(Two-Reel Comedies.)

Feb. 2—Romance and Rings.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.

Paramount Features.

Jan. 19—Here Comes the Bride (John Barrymore).
Jan. 26—Venus in the East (Bryant Washburn).
Feb. 2—Hard Boiled (Dorothy Dalton).
Feb. 2—Happy Tho' Married (Enid Bennett).
Feb. 9—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Two Brides (Lina Cavalieri).
Feb. 9—The Girl Dodger (Charles Ray).
Feb. 16—Boots (Dorothy Gish).
Feb. 16—You Never Saw Such a Girl (Vivian Martin).
Feb. 23—Maggie Pepper (Ethel Clayton).
Feb. 23—Paid in Full (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 23—The Winning Girl (Shirley Mason).

Artcraft Pictures.

Jan. 26—The Romance of Happy Valley (D. W. Griffith Production).
Jan. 26—Don't Change Your Husband (Cecil B. DeMille Production).
Feb. 2—Breed of Man (William S. Hart).

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIAL.

Jan. 12—The Silver King (William Faversham).
Feb. 16—False Faces.

PARAMOUNT-FLAGG COMEDIES.

(Two Reels Each.)

Jan. 19—Impropaganda (Two Parts).
Feb. 3—One Every Minute.

SUCCESS SERIES (REISSUES).

Jan. 19—Captain Courtesy (Dustin Farnum).
Jan. 26—Dawn of a Tomorrow (Mary Pickford).
Feb. 2—The Crucible (Marguerite Clark).
Feb. 9—Belladonna (Pauline Frederick).
Feb. 16—Puddin'head Wilson (Special).
Feb. 23—Are You a Mason? (John Barrymore).
Mar. 2—Temptation (Geraldine Farrar).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES.

Jan. 19—Celestial Contrasts.
Jan. 26—Canning Scenery.
Feb. 2—With the American Y. M. C. A. in London.
Feb. 9—St. Dunstan's Happy Blind.
Feb. 16—The War Women of England .
Feb. 23—London Plays Ball.
Mar. 2—A Cabaret of Old Japan.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPH.

Jan. 12—Sugar Growing in the West Indies; Individual Oil Wells; Cartoon.
Jan. 19—Perilous Occupation; Travels in the West Indies; Cartoon.
Jan. 26—The Passing of the Cannibal; Training Women for Canteen Work; Cartoon.
Feb. 2—Winter Sports; The Passing on the Cannibal; Theory of the Long-Range Shell.
Feb. 9—War Brides, Our Picturesque Neighbors and Cartoon.
Feb. 16—Hand Grenades, the Romance of Crater Lake and Cartoon.
Mar. 2—Hatching an Eagle a Day; Ingenious Sleeping Bag; War Birds; Cartoon.

World Pictures Corp.

Jan. 13—Love in a Hurry (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 20—The Bluffer (June Elvidge—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—Heart of Gold (Louise Huff).
Feb. 3—The Rough Neck (Montagu Love—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 10—Mandarin's Gold (Kitty Gordon).
Feb. 10—What Shall We Do with Him?
Feb. 17—Courage for Two (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley—Five Parts).
Feb. 24—The Moral Deadline (June Elvidge—Five Parts).
Mar. 2—Crook of Dreams (Louise Huff).
Mar. 10—The Unveiling Hand (Kitty Gordon).
Mar. 17—The Hand Invisible (Montagu Love).
Mar. 24—Hit or Miss (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley).
Mar. 31—The Love Defender (June Elvidge).

KINOGRAMS.

Issued every Tuesday and Saturday (Topical).

FEATURES.

April 7—The Little Intruder (Louise Huff).
April 14—The Scar (Kitty Gordon).
April 21—The Quickening Flame (Montagu Love).

Feature Releases

BLUEBIRD.

Jan. 20—The Game's Up (Ruth Clifford).
Jan. 27—Who Will Marry Me? (Carmel Myers).
Feb. 3—Sue of the South (Edith Roberts).
Feb. 10—The Millionaire Pirate (Monroe Salisbury)—03585.
Feb. 17—The Sealed Envelope (Fritzi Brunette) 03597.
Feb. 24—The Little White Savage (Carmel Myers)—03608.
Mar. 3—A Taste of Life (Edith Roberts—Five Parts)—03617.

CAPITAL FILM COMPANY.

Indianapolis, Ind.

(Two Reels each)

Through the Storm.
Vengeance of Hate.
The Outlaw's Sacrifice.
Railroad Raiders.
Running Wild.
Struck by Lightning.
Secret Service Dan.
Faithful Unto Death.
Escaped Convict.
The Square Gambler.

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY.

Feb.—Oh, Baby.
Feb.—Good Gracious, Bobby.
Feb.—You Couldn't Blame Her.
Feb.—For Love or Money.
Feb.—Salvation Sue.
Feb.—Four of a Kind.
Feb.—Welcome Home.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION.

Feb. 1—First Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement.
Feb.—Indian Life.
Feb.—An Indian Love Story.
Feb.—A Day with Carranza.
Feb.—What is a Mexican.
Feb.—The Washington Air Patrol.

Bruce Scenics.

The Wanderer and the Whozitt.
The River Gray and the River Green.
The Little High Horse.
The Restless Three.
The Wolf of the Tetons.
The Pale Pack Train.
An Essay of the Hills.
Men Met in the Mountains.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS'

Shoulder Arms (Charlie Chaplin).
Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany."
Italy's Flaming Front—Official Italian War Pictures.
The Fighting Roosevelts.
Romance of Tarzan.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CO.

Times Building, N. Y.

Once to Everyman.

HARRY GARSON.

Aeolian Building, New York.

The Hushed Hour (Blanche Sweet).
The Unpardonable Sin (Blanche Sweet).

INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

(Releasing Through Film Clearing House.)

Specials.

Wanted for Murder (Rapf).
A Romance of the Air (Crest).

Ten-Twenty-Thirty Series.

Life's Greatest Problem (Blackton).
Her Mistake (Steger).
A Woman's Experience (Bacon-Backer).
Suspense (Reicher).

NOTICE

FRANK A. KEENEY PICTURES CORPORATION claims the exclusive services of Miss Catherine Calvert for motion pictures, pursuant to its written contract with her, which is still in full force and effect.

Notice is hereby given to motion picture manufacturers, producers and managers, of our sole and exclusive right to utilize Miss Calvert's services, and of our intention to enforce our legal rights against any and all persons, firms or corporations who may violate the same.

Dated, New York, February 6th, 1919.

Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation

Frank A. Keeney, President Ray C. Owens, Secy. & Treas.

The Essential Requirements
FOR Improved Projection
ARE
SPEER CARBONS

Speer Alterno Combinations
for A. C. Work
AND
Speer Hold-Ark Combinations
for D. C. Work
Produce Incomparable Results

Write to-day for descriptive folders.
Read the unbiased opinions of operators.

Place an order now with your Supply House

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"
MANUFACTURED BY
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

This Sign Can Be Changed In 20 Minutes

THE raised, snow white glass letters are set in metal panels, illuminated from lights behind. All that is necessary is to slip out one set of letters and put in another.

Oplex interchangeable signs are day signs as well as night signs—raised white letters on a black background.

Flexlume Oplex signs are made in many designs to meet the needs of motion picture-houses.

Send in this coupon and get a sketch showing how your sign will look.

The Flexlume Sign Company
1236-1242 Niagara St. Buffalo, N. Y.
Electric Products Corp., Los Angeles, Cal.
Flexlume Sign Co., Ltd., St. Catharines, Ont.

COUPON—Send me a sketch. Sign should read:

Name
Street
City

M. P. W.

List of Current Film Release Dates

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb. 15—The Heart of Humanity (Dorothy Phillips—Six Parts)—03594.
—When a Girl Loves (Mildred Harris).

LEONCE PERRET PRODUCTIONS.

1402 Broadway, New York.

Stars of Glory (E. K. Lincoln and Dolores Cassinelli).
A Soul Adrift (Dolores Cassinelli).

GEORGE KLEINE.

Rialto DeLuxe Productions.

Conquered Hearts (Drama).

Edison.

The Unbeliever (Seven Reels).

Essanay.

Young America (Seven Parts).
Triple Trouble (Charlie Chaplin Picture).

SELECT PICTURES.

Jan.—Who Cares (Constance Talmadge).
Jan.—Cheating Cheaters (Clara Kimball Young).
Jan.—The Indestructible Wife (Alice Brady).
Feb.—Romance and Arabella (Constance Talmadge).
Feb.—The World to Live In (Alice Brady).
Feb.—Children of Banishment (Mitchell Lewis).
Feb.—The Belle of New York (Marion Davies).

Specials.

Feb.—The One Woman (All-Star).
Feb.—The Cavell Case (Julia Arthur).
Feb.—The Midnight Patrol (Ince Production).
Feb.—Ruling Passions (Julia Dean and Edwin Arden).
Feb.—The Hidden Truth (Anna Case).
Feb.—Over There (Anna Q. Nilsson and Charles Richman).
Feb.—The Public Be Damned (Mary Fuller and Charles Richman).

WILLIAM L. SHERRY SERVICE.

729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. City.

Burlingham.

Unknown Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
The Pilatus Railway (Burlingham—Travel).
Allied War Heroes Arrive in Switzerland (Burlingham—Travel).
Scrambles in the High Alps (Burlingham—Travel).
The Riviera of Lake Leman (Burlingham—Travel).
Lovely Lucerne (Burlingham—Travel).
The Gornergrat Railway (Burlingham—Travel).

Features.

Red Blood and Yellow (Broncho Billy).
Wild Honey (Doris Kenyon—Six Parts).
Son of a Gun (Broncho Billy).
Marriage for Convenience (Catherine Calvert).
The Troop Train (Six Parts).
Calibre 38 (Six Parts).
Feb. 24—Twilight (Doris Kenyon—Six Parts).
Mar. 2—Love and the Law (Edgar Lewis Production—Six Parts).

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES.

Jan. 5—The Light of Western Stars.
Jan. 26—Adele.

State Right Releases

ACME PICTURES CORPORATION.

The Thriteenth Chair (Yvonne Delva).

ALPHA PICTURES, INC.

130 West Forty-sixth Street.

Reclaimed.

ARROW FILM CORPORATION.

Times Building, New York.

Sunset Princess (Margery Daw).
A Woman's Law (Florence Reed—Five Parts—Drama).
The Accidental Honeymoon (Robert Warwick).
The Struggle Everlasting (Florence Reed).
The Demon's Shadow (Serial in Ten Two-Reel Episodes).
Twelve Anna Little Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Million-Dollar Mystery (Marguerite Snow—Six Parts).
Ten J. Warren Kerrigan Reissues (Two Reels Each).
Four Allison-Lockwood Reissues.
Thirty-two Unique Comedies (One Reel).
Finger of Justice (Crane Wilbur—Six Parts).
The Profiteer (Alma Hanlon).
The Commercial Pirates (Mlle. Valkyrien).

BRENTWOOD FILM CORP.

4811 Fountain Ave., Los Angeles.

The Turn in the Road.

CREST PICTURES CORP.

Times Building, New York.

The Lust of the Ages.
A Grain of Dust.

THE FILM MARKET, INC.

403 Times Building, New York.

What Becomes of the Children (Corra Beach).
Suspicion (M. H. Hoffman Production).
The City of Purple Dreams (Selig).
Who Shall Take My Life? (Selig).
Beware of Strangers (Selig).
The Garden of Allah (Selig).
The Spoilers (Selig—Reissue).
The Star Spangled Banner (Gathem—Half reel).
Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean (Gathem—Half reel).
The Battle Cry of Freedom (Gathem—Half reel).
Home Sweet Home and The Girl I Left Behind Me (Gathem).
The Amazon Jungle (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Wonderland of Peru (Capt. Besley Expedition).
The Undying Story of Captain Scott (Capt. Scott Antarctic Expedition).
Animal Life in the Antarctic (Capt Scott Antarctic Expendtion).

GAUMONT CO.

Flushing, L. I.

Satan on Earth (Two-Part Novelty).
Gaumont News—Released every Tuesday.
Gaumont Graphic—Released every Friday.

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.

Longacre Building, New York.

Mother (Six Parts—Drama—McClure Pictures).
The Warrior (Seven Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).

HILLER & WILK, INC.

Sept.—Sporting Life (Maurice Tourneur Production).
Woman (Maurice Tourneur Productions).
The Silent Mystery (Francis Ford serial in fifteen episodes).

GRAPHIC FILM CORPORATION.

729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

When Men Betray (Drama).
Ashes of Love.

JAMES KEANE.

220 West 42d Street, New York.

The Spreading Evil (Seven Parts—Drama).

PIONEER FILM CORP.

130 West 46th St., New York City.

The Still Alarm (Selig Production).
Wives of Men.
Little Orphant Annie (Six Parts—Drama).

HARRY RAVER.

1402 Broadway, New York.

The Master Crook.
The Liberator (Serial Starring "Maciste").

SELZNICK PICTURES.

Upstairs and Down (Olive Thomas).

ERNEST SHIPMAN.

17 West 44th Street, New York City.

The Daughter of The Don (Five Parts—Drama).

W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company, Inc., Featuring Shorty Hamilton, One Five-Reeler Per Month.

The Coast Guard Patrol (By Nell Shipman—Seven-Part Patriotic Drama).
A Nugget in the Rough (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Tiger of the Sea (Seven Parts—Drama—by Nell Shipman).
Bill Stingers' Poems (A series of one-reel patriotic comedy-dramas issued semi-monthly).

Al and Frank Jennings.

Lady of the Dugout (Six Parts—Drama).

Lloyd Carleton Productions.

Mother I Need You.

Edwin Frazee.

The Haunted House (Mystic Comedy—Two Parts).

United Film Corporation.

Crime of the Hour (Seven Parts—Drama).

Francis Ford Producing Co.

The Isle of Intrigue (Six Parts).

HARRY RAPF.

Palace Theatre Building, New York.

Sins of the Children.

WILLIAM STOERMER ENTERPRISES.

729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

The Tidal Wave (Eight Parts—Drama).

SOUTHERN FEATURE FILM COMPANY.

1476 Broadway, New York.

Beyond the Law (Emmett Dalton—Six Parts).

UNIVERSAL FILM COMPANY.

1600 Broadway, New York.

Song Hits in Photoplays.

W. H. PRODUCTIONS.

71 West 23d Street, New York.

Mickey (Seven Parts).

The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five Parts—Dr.).
Staking His Life (Five Parts—Drama).
Seriee of two-reel productions.
Satan's Pawn (Bessie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
The Straight Road (Beesie Barriscale—Five Parts—Drama).
Series of eixteen two-reel Shorty Hamilton two-reel Western comedy-dramas.
Series of twenty-eight two-reel Mack Sennett-Keyetone comedies.
Series of twenty-six one and two-reel Charlie Chaplin comedies.
Series of twenty-four single reel Fatty Arbuckle comedies.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Liberty Keystones.
Series of Twenty-Eight Single Reel Eagle Keystones.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Union-Kay-Bee Western Dramas.
Series of Fifteen Two-Reel Columbia-Kay Bee Western Dramas.

WARNER BROTHERS.

220 West 42d Street, New York.

The Kaiser's Finish.

FELIX F. FEIST.

130 West 46th Street, N. Y. C.

Stolen Orders (Eight Reels—Drama).

SILVERTIP

NEGATIVE CARBON

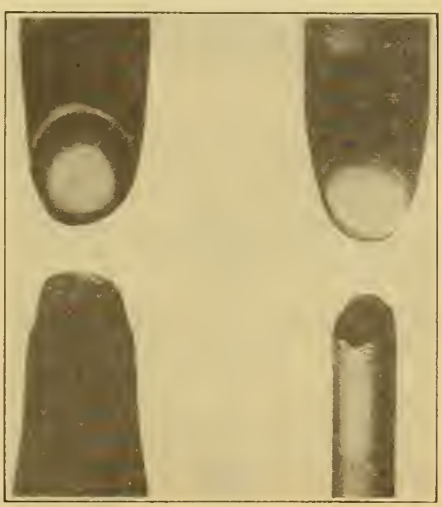
FOR

Direct Current Projection

The small diameter Silvertip carbon gives a strong, flexible light. The arc can be varied at the will of the operator, according to the density of the film within a reasonable limit of the rated amperage.

The Silvertip is heavily plated with a metal coat, making it capable of carrying the heavy currents required by long throws and dense films. Silvertips are used on direct current only and always in combination with the Columbia upper.

The illustration below shows clearly the difference in size of the Silvertip negative and the old negative carbon. The great improvement in positive crater is also shown.



The blunt point of the negative carbon in the old system permits the negative spot to wander, since the spot covers but a small portion of the point. The negative spot on the Silvertip covers the entire point, with the result that the arc cannot wander and cause a flicker on the lens and screen.

Write for Circulars

National Carbon Company, Inc.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

USED WHEREVER AUTOMATICKET SYSTEM TICKETS ARE SOLD

The Biggest Investment

No other investment will pay you such handsome profits as the

NEW MODEL AUTOMATIC G2

No other investment can do for you what the AUTOMATICKET SYSTEM can.

It helps you save more and make more money.

It has 60% fewer parts than any other similar device and many exclusive patented improvements.

It represents the latest efforts of the only firm that for 10 years has specialized on the ticket problems of exhibitors, large and small, including the largest circuits.

So you can be sure we have a message for you that you cannot afford to miss.

Fill out coupon below today and you will find it the most profitable thing you have done in a long time.

No obligation of course.

AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING & CASH REGISTER Co

1731 BROADWAY
NEW YORK

FACTORY:
235 WEST 55th STREET

Used Wherever Tickets are Sold

PLEASE FILL OUT

AUTOMATICKET SYSTEM,
Gentlemen:
Please mail us information on the New Model G and tell us all about it.

Name .....

Address .....

City .....State .....

About "Virtuous Wives"
Mr. Julian Johnson writes in Photoplay Magazine:

"A d let us not conclude the catalogue of excellencies without a word for one Watterson Rothacker, a sort of Griffith of film mechanics, so to speak. Rothacker's toning and tinting are so apropos that they become absolute and vital parts of Tucker's drama."

From First National Exhibitors everywhere came other welcome words praising "picture" and prints.

For quality prints, properly priced and combined with reel service see

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO U.S.A.

There are reasons—
Come and see them.

Simplex

MAJESTIC THEATRE TIME SHEET

REEL	MINUTES	FEET
Educational	16	1105
Comedy	14	980
Feature (1)	15	1050
" " (2)	13	960
" (3)	16	1100

FILM FOOTAGE REGISTER

Simplex INTRODUCES ANOTHER FEATURE

To the projectionist running his reels on schedule time—the new SIMPLEX FILM FOOTAGE REGISTER makes a special appeal.

WHAT IT IS—A simply constructed register which accurately indicates the number of feet of film that are passing through the mechanism.

WHAT IT ELIMINATES—When the time approaches for making a dissolving "pick-up" from one reel to another there is no nervous opening of the upper magazine, no tense watching of the screen to the neglect of everything else—no guess work.

A glance at the register shows exactly when the "pick-up" is to be made.

Upon re-loading the magazine, a simple turn will instantly set the register back to "0."

Increases projection room efficiency.

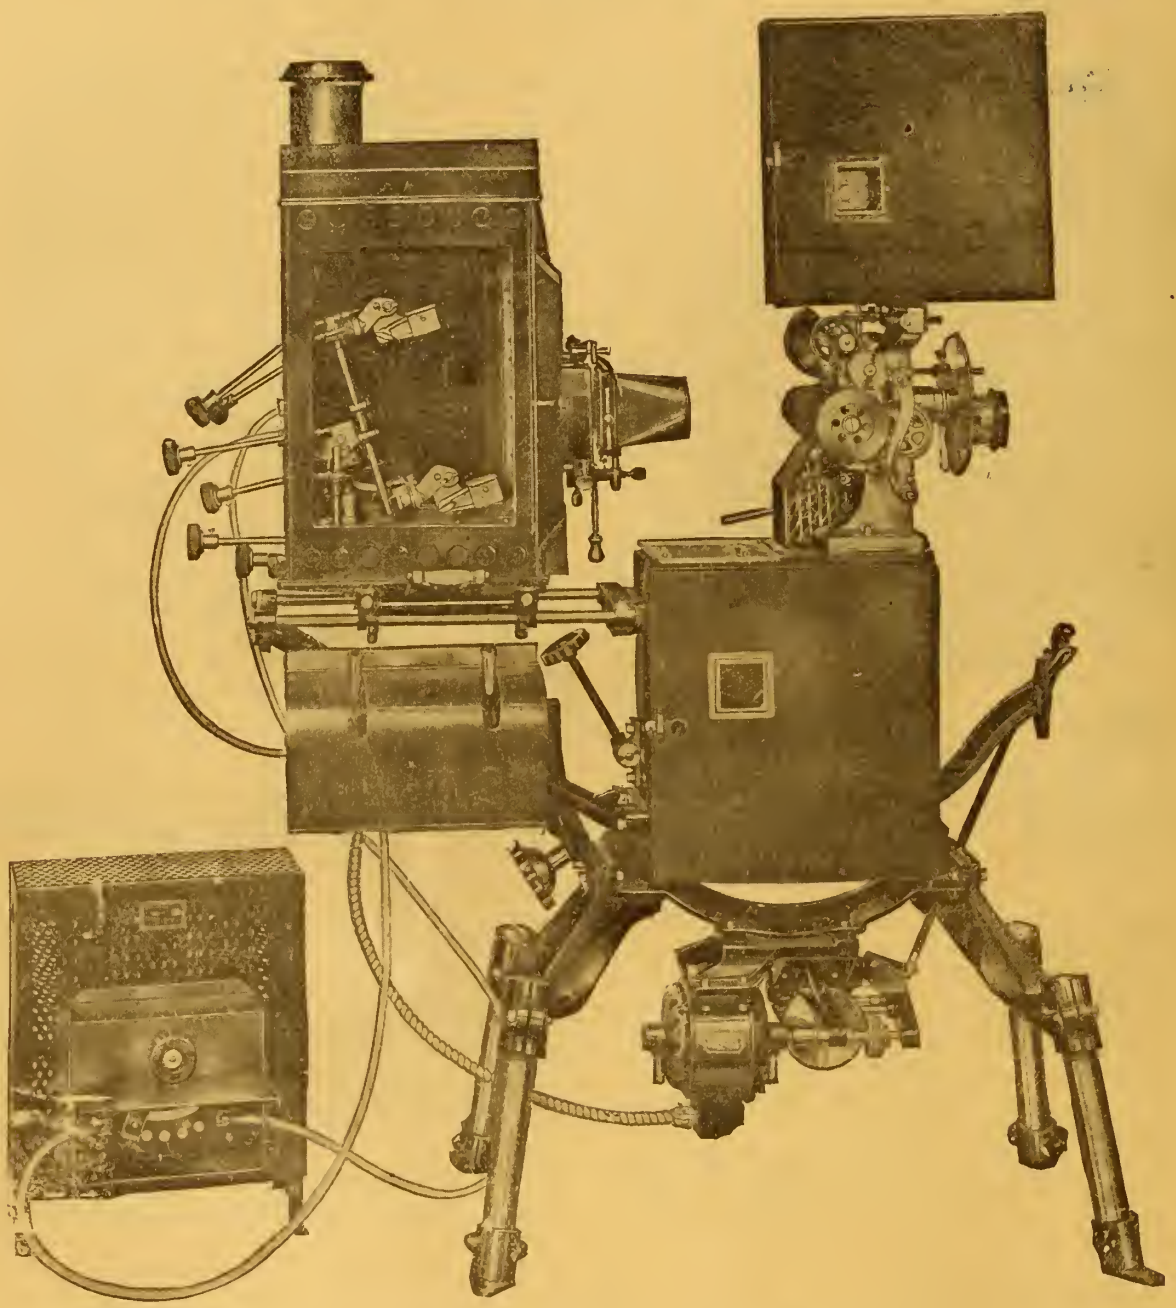
Insures a smoothly running program.

NOTE:

The SIMPLEX FILM FOOTAGE REGISTER is to be regarded purely as an accessory and not a part of the regular Simplex equipment. Will only be attached upon request to new Simplex Projectors at an additional charge of $15.00.

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St.-- New York

Power's 6B Cameragraph



Write for Descriptive Catalogue 15

Nicholas Power Company

Incorporated

Pioneers of Projection

90 Gold St.
New York, N. Y.

DEC 1 8 1933